his Scottish wars, where he behaved himself so gallantly, that, for that very respect (as the Patent^b expresseth) the King was pleased to pardon him a very great misdemeanour; viz. the drawing of his knife at the publique Assizes held at Coventre, before Ric. de Wilughby and other the Kings Justices there sitting, to the great terrour of the people then present. Which Sir John in 19 E. 3. sold^c this Mannour of Morton D'aubeny, with the advouson of the moytie of the Church to Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick: To whose posterity it continued till all the possessions of that great Earldome came to the Crown, in 3 H. 7. as it Warwick is manifested. After which it was granted^d by K.E. 6. to John Dudley Earl of Warwick, who had the Castle of Warwick, and divers Mannours in this County, formerly belonging to those Earls: which John after he was advanced to be Duke of Northumberland, past^e it away to John Coleburne gent. 28. Oct. 6 E. 6. who dyed^f seized thereof 13. Junii 1. M. leaving John his son and heir two years of age; which John had issue Sir Edmund Coleburne Knight, who sold it to Richard Murden gent. which Richard left issue one onely daughter called Mary wedded to Sir Stephen Harvey Knight of the Bath, by whom she had two sons, viz. Francis and Richard, both dead unmarried; and five daughters, viz. Mary, Elizab. Sara, Elianore, and Stephana.

The Church (dedicated to the Holy Crosse) being in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued^g at xv. marks, was then divided betwixt two Rectors. In 6 E. 3. Sir John de Bishopdon Kt. gave^h the advouson of his moytie thereof to the Hospitall of S. John Baptist in Warwick, which was appropriatedⁱ thereto 16. Apr. anno 1359. 33 E. 3. there being a Pension^k of 2 s. per annum thereupon reserved to the said Bishop and his successors. The other moytie was intended to have been appropriated to the Nuns of Winley in this County, who had obtained the Kings License for that purpose, as appears by a Petition^l exhibited to W then Bishop of Worcester, by one Rob. de Holand in their behalf; but whether it were so appropriated or not I cannot say.

About a mile lower, lyes Newbold, commonly called Newbold-Pacy, for distinction from those other Newbold's already spoke of in Knightslow-Hundred, in regard that the family of Pacy were antiently Lords thereof. This was one of those towns which Hasculf Musard (of whom I have spoke in Lemington-Hastang) had of the Conquerors gift; at the time of whose generall Survey Hunfridus, progenitor to the family of Hastang, held it; the extent thereof being then certified^m at five hides, and the value C s. Whether it was Atropus Hastang, the son of Hunfridus above specified, or the second Atropus that enfeoffed Ashorne.

This Hamlet is in the Parish of Pewbold-Pacy, and, doubtlesse, had that name originally, (though corruptness in pronounciation hath somewhat altered it) by reason of its Eastern situation from Pewbold; for the later syllable now written horne, was at first hyrne, which being an old English word signifies a corner; and the former viz. Am was Cae and proceedeth from the word Cast, as Caeby which is usually called Ashby.

As it is of Pewbold Parish, so was it formerly a member thereof, being held of the Hastang's, who were Lords of the whole; but which of them first past it away I have not seen; howbeit, inasmuch as I find that the family of Balaunce were posselt of it for divers descents; and that Rog. Balaunce levied a Fine of lands here, in 7 R. 1. (wherein it is written Wastorne) I may without much rashnesse conclude, that they were Lords thereof as antiently. The next that I meet with, of that name, is VWill. Balaunce, whose service for one Knights fee, held of Robert Hastings, part whereof I conclude to be for this place, was in 12 H. 3. remitted, he being then servant to Stephen de Lucy. From which VWill. descended Thomas, who in 7 E. 1. held this Lordship of Robert de Hastings by the service of half a Knights fee, and had at that time two carucats of land here in demesn; as also nine Tenants holding four yard land in servage. At that time I also find, that one Hugh de Bromle and Avicia his wife held certain lands here of the said Robert de Hastings by the third part of a Knights fee; and that he had one carucat in demesn, and four tenants holding one yard land and a fourth part: As also that the same Hugh gave one yard land here to the Monks of Wordestey, which at that time the Bishop of Chesster held of them; and likewise that the Freres of Theldeston then held one yard land here, of the same Hugh, for xii d. and half a pound of Cummin: Of which family was Nich. Balaunce the last male branch that had to do here; which Nich. had issue Joane, married to John Veffy of Brentingthorp in Com., who by their Deed bearing date at Cobentre on the Feast day of S^t Dunstane 32 E. 3. granted this Mannour to Thomas Beauchamp E. of Warwick, and John Whateley and their heirs : which John Whateley by his Release¹, dated on Munday next after the Feast of S^t Martin ensuing, quitted to the said Earl and his heirs all his interest therein : To whom it continued till 8 H. 6. that Richard Beauchamp then Earl of Warwick gave^m it to his Chantry at Onyes-Cliffe, whereof I have already taken notice. Which Chantry, with all the Mannours, messuages, lands &c. thereto belonging, being grantedⁿ by Thomas Moore and Roger Higham, the last Chantry Priests thereof, unto Sir Andrew Flamock Knight and his heirs, as their deed dated 4. Junii 1 E. 6. manifesteth, this Mannour then past to him thereby ; but what is become of it since, I have not seen.

Feast

Thelesford Priory.

UPON the Southern bank of this torrent, within lesse than a flight shoot of its conjunction with Avon, stood a little Monastery, somewhat neer the Road-way leading from Wellesburne towards Warwick, as it thwarteth the Foord ; which was founded, in H. 3. time, by Sir Will. Lucy of Cherlecote Knight to the honour of God, S. John Baptist, and S. Radegund ; the persons profest here, being of the Order of the holy Trinity for redemption of Captives. But before I further proceed to speak of the particular endowment which it had, I must first first say something of the same S. Radegund, and then briefly take notice of the originall and first occasion of this Order. She was the daughter^o of Bertarius King of Thuring, and wife to Clotharius, the fift King of France of the Merovignian line, who dyed in the year of Christ 564. and being a Lady much devoted^p to prayer and Almesdeeds, often fastings, and chastening her self with hair-cloth (which she wore under her royall apparell) as she one day walk't alone in the Garden of her Palace, hearing the voices of Prisoners in fetters imploring pitty to them, she betook herself to Prayer ; whereupon their fetters burst in sunder, and they became loosed (as saith my Author.) This Radegund took the habit^r of Religion at the hands of S. Medard Bishop of Soyon, and founded^t a Monastery for Nuns at Poictiers, in honour of the holy Crosse, whereof she was Abbess, living there in great sanctity, daily ministring relief to poor people, and departed this life on the Ides of August ; in which Abby she had sepulture^t, and was canonized for a Saint.

But of this Order^t of the holy Trinity for Redemption of Captives, is S. John de Muta (born at Faulcon in Provence anno 1154.) said to be the Founder ; who being Student in the University of Paris, where he attained to the degree of Doctor, grew so famous for his learning and holiness of life, that divers eminent Prelates came to be his assistants at his first Masse ; in the performance whereof, at the Elevation of the Host, an Angell cloathed in white appeared before him, bearing a Crosse of red and blew upon his brest, having also his hands a Crosse layd upon the heads of two slaves that kneeled down by his side : From which time God revealed unto him, how he would be served in the foundation of a new Religious Order ; inciting him to leave all his goods, to forsake the present world, and to retire himself into the Desert ; which he accordingly did, and distributing all that he had to the poor, resorted to an holy Anachorite called Felix de Valois, who lived in an Hermitage within the Dioces of Meaux (six leagues distant from Paris) called Cerfroy, in Latine Cervus frigidus, in regard that there, at the foot of a little hill was a fair clear and cold Fountain, within which a white Hart used to come for refreshment. Which two devout Hermites beganⁿ, within this solitary place, an Order of the holy Trinity for the Redemption of Captives, about the year of grace M. CXCIV. where they continued for the space of three years, living in great austerity from any company of men ; and being on a day in Prayer, were inspired of God to goe to Rome, there to declare their intentions to his Holiness, and to receive from his hands the Habit and Rule of the Order which they desired to institute ; for the better effecting whereof, they had Letters testimoniall from the Bishop of Paris, making mention of the vision which the said John de Muta had at the time that he first celebrated Masse.

When they came to Rome they were courteously received^w by Pope Innocent the 3. who forthwith celebrating the holy Masse on the 28. of Jan. being the Octaves of S^t. Anne, did, at the time of his elevation of the Host, behold the like vision of an Angell cloathed in white as aforesaid, with two Captives chain'd ; whereof the one was a Christian, the other a Moore : After which he assembled his Cardinalls, and made known what he had seen, and sent for the Anachorites, declaring also to them, that the Spirit of God did conduct them to those their designs, and that he was the onely Author of the Order they would institute : whereupon he gave them white^x Robes, with a Crosse red and blew (as on the following page is to be seen) declaring to them the mystery of his vision ; scil. the white Robe representing the candour of an innocent life, and the purity of conscience : The three colours, scil. of the habite and Crosse, signifying the three persons of the holy Trinity, the white the Father Eternall ; the blew, which was the traverse of the Crosse, the Son in his Passion ; and the red, the Charity of the holy Ghost ; and the two Prisoners bound and fettered, had relation to the redemption of Captives ; appointing that this Institution should be called The Order of the holy Trinity for the Redemption of Captives ; and that all the possessions, which they should enjoy, might be equally divided into three parts ; viz. the one for the entertainment and reception of Religious persons, the other to relieve the poor, and the third to redeem Christians kept Captive by the Infidells.

Having now done with the Order, I come to this particular place, founded^y by Sir William de Lucy, who stiles^z himself Filius Walteri de Cherlecote, and sometimes Walteri militis de Cherlecote, id est of Sir Walter de Cherlecote Knight. Which William gave, as the words of his Charter^a import, to God, S^t. John Baptist and S. Radegund the Virgin, xiii. acres of his demesn land belonging to Cherlecote, and next adjoyning to the way which leads from Cherlecote to Testesford-bridge, on the west part the torrent called Testesford ; with the Meadow ground belonging to the said xiii. acres : As also all that land lying Eastward of the said way and bounded on the other side with certain errable ground, which heretofore belonged to Gerald de Cherlecote, in pure and perpetual Almes, free and discharged from all secular service and demand, to build thereupon a Church to the honour of the before specified Saints, and an Hospitall for the relief of poor people, receipt of Pilgrims, and sustentance of Religious men there serving God for ever. Adding^b to this his gift the advowson of the Church at Cherlecote; and confirming half a yard land in Cherlecote, which Cecily his mother had granted thereto.

Having signified thus much as to its Foundation, I will now enumerate the severall Benefactors that the Canons of this Priory had, beginning with the posterity of the pious Founder; whereof Foulk de Lucy, his grandchild, was the first, who gave them leave^c to inclose a way which interposed betwixt the Church of Wellesford and their habitation. To him succeeded Sir William de Lucy Knight, which William gave^d them liberty to inclose two acres of land lying neer to their House, and joyn them to the

the Court thereof; as also a certain parcell of ground called the Hay, lying at the head of those two acres along by the brook called Thelesford brook, so far as the breadth of those two acres extended. In Bereford much was given^e thereto; scil. by Alice the wife of Walter de Bereford, and daughter to Reinbold de Cherlecote, five yard land. By Philip de Kynton a good proportion, which he had purchased of Henry de Bereford and others. By Henry de Bereford the Church^e of Bereford, and certain lands within that Lordship. By Will. de Nuford, sometime Lord of Bereford, the fishing^e in Abon from Le-Millne to his own Mill pool, with liberty to make a Pound upon their land at Bereford, to keep in such cattell as should trespass upon them; as also three yard land called the Free hide, exempt from Warth and Scutage and all secular services; and to have free ingress and egress to and from the Common of pasture at Bereford for their cattell.

By ^h Richard Milore son to William Milore of Stirkby in Leicester-shire, certain lands in the same Stirkby, with the advowson of the Church; as also the Chapells of Whilton and Pakinton in that County. By ⁱ William Putot, a yard land with a messuage and 4. acres lying in Athorne; in consideration whereof he and his tenants were to be quitted from paying any small Tithes for their lands in Stewbold; as also of Chirchescot. By ^k William de Odingells certain lands lying within his Lordship of Solithull, at a place called Hunde-shale. By ^l William de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick three parcells of errable land, the one called Cley-pits, the second Mozercoft, and the third Ferny-furlong, with Common thereto belonging when the fields are open. By ^m Roger de Cherlecote all his lands and tenements in Hethcote, viz. from Godelwyneschich above Hethcote along to Stewbold brook; and from the torrent which runneth through the midst of Hethcote to Stewbold brook in breadth unto the way leading from Stewbold towards Warwick. Divers petty grants of sundry others, for brevity, I omit. Which endowments by severall persons so conferred; enlarged the revenues belonging to this Monastery so much, as that the Canons built their Church a new about the beginning of Edward 1. time, as may seem by the Consecrationⁿ thereof upon the day of the translation of S. Thomas the Martyr Anno 1285. 13 E. 1. which was solemnly performed by Godfrey Giffard the reverend Bⁿ. of Worcester, who then preach^t upon this Text: Domus tua decet, &c.

The Benefactors that it afterwards had were these. In 28 E. 3. Thomas Lucy then Lord of Cherlecote and Philippa his wife, who gaveⁿ certain lands in Cherlecote to these Friars that they should celebrate divine service, and pray devoutly for the soul of William de Clinton sometime Earl of Huntingdon; as also for the souls of the said Thomas and Philippa. In 18 R. 2. Sir William Lucy Knight, Roger Strange, and John Vicar of the Church of Willesburne gaveⁿ unto them one mels. xl. acres of land, and vi. acres of meadow, lying in Athorne, and Stewbold-Pacy; and in 7 H. 7. Sir William Lucy, then Lord of Cherlecote releas^t to them certain Priviledges which he and his Ancestors had in Thelesford; viz. Toll, Tack, Stallage, and Blashed. Other passages, as had relation to this Hou^e of Thelesford, from the S. A. Lucyes I shall mention anon, when I speak of that family in Cherlecote.

Upon the Survey^t taken in 26 H. 8. the value of all that belong^d thereto, over and above reprises, was certified to be no more than xxiv li. xix s. yet through the Kings favour, (or rather for that it was of so small consequence) the dissolution thereof was forborn in 27 H. 8. when the rest of the lesser Hou^s went to wrack; so that till 30 H. 8. it stood: but then, following the example of others, the poor Friars here, by their publique^t Instrument dated 26. Octob. 30 H. 8. surrendered it up to the K^e. use; the names of those that subscribed thereto, being Edw. Davie Minister, Frater Jacobus Brown, Will. Lacie, and Nich. Turnar. Of which the Prior (scil. Edward Davie) had a Pensionⁿ of 5 li. per ann. granted to him during life; but the rest nothing.

After this scil. 7 Julii 35 H. 8. the King, in consideration of 648 li. 19 s. 02 d. soldⁿ the site thereof, together with a thicket of trees neer adjoining to the Hou^s, containing seven Acres, and called by the name of Thelesford-grove; as also certain lands in Cherlecote and Wasperton belonging thereto, unto William Whorwood Esquier, and William Walter, to be held in Capite, by the C. part of a Knights fee, under severall Rents: Since which it is, by purchase, come again to the Lucies of Cherlecote.

Charlecote.

Anon passing on scarce a mile lower leaveth Charlecote upon its Eastern bank, whereof one Saxi was posses^t before the Norman invasion, but afterwards the Earl of Mellent. By the Conquerors Survey^s it was certified to contain three hides, having two Mills prized at xxi s. the whole being rated at iv li. In that Record it is written Terlecote, and had its appellation originally from some antient possessor thereof in the Saxons time, as I guess, Ceorle being a name then in use as we find in some antient Authors^b. In those days it was of the parish of Willesburne (hard by) as when I speak of the Church shall be shewed; and came doublets to Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick with most of those lands which were the said Earl of Mellent's (his brother) in this Shire; whose son and heir, viz. Roger Earl of Warwick in 23 H. 1 gave^t to his Collegiate Church of Warwick, then newly by him founded, half a hide of land lying here, with the Tithe of the whole Lordship, and of the two Mills before specified.

By the same Earl Roger, was Thurstan de Montfort (a great man in those days) enfeoff^t of large possessions in this County, as in Waldesfort I shall manifest; whose son Henry de Montfort, with Alice de Harecourt the widow of Robert de Montfort his elder brother, gave to Walter the son of Thurstan de Cherlecote all this Village of Cherlecote; which grant King R. 1. by his Letters^k Patent bearing date at Doboy 6. Decemb. confirmed to the same Walter and his heirs, adding divers immunities and priviledges thereto; all which were ratified^t by King John in 5. of his reign. 'Tis not unlike but that the said Thurstan de Cherlecote was a younger son unto the before specified Thurstan de Montfort; for that he was paternally a Montfort the MS. History^m of Worral importeth; and that the same Thurstan was his father, not onely the likelihood in point of time, but his Christen name doth very much argue.

From this Walter de Cherlecote (who was aⁿ Kt.) by Cecily his wife, descended William that assumed the surname of Lucy; which makes me think that she was an heir to some branch of that family; for it hath antiently been usuall enough with the descendants of great heirs to relinquish their paternall names, and take the Mothers, as M^r Cambden^o doth sufficiently manifest. Which William had a confirmation^p of this Lordship made to him by Thurstan de Montfort son and heir of Henry de Montfort above specified; whereby it appears that upon the originall grant, made to Walter his father, the summe of ten pounds of silver was annually reserved from him and his heirs, to be payd at the Feasts of St. Michaell and the Annunciation of our Lady by equall portions; at the time of which confirmation made, he the said William did his homage for this place. This William was^a in Armes with the Barons against King John; but returning to his allegiance in 1 H. 3. had his lands, seized upon for that offence, restored^b to him, as appears by the Kings Mandate to the Sheriffs of Gloucester, Gloucester, Warwick, and Leicester shires, within which Countyes his estate lay. In 6 H. 3. he had the Kings Letters Patent^c of confirmation made to him, of the Hundred of Winton, originally granted^d to Walter the son of Thurstan de Cherlecote by King H. 2. and ratified by King John, but had been seized^e upon by King H. 3. with the demesns of the Crown, and such Eilchaets as had hapned.

In 18 H. 3. Walter de Lascey (a great Baron in that age) confer'd upon this William and his heirs the Stewardship of all his lands that he then had, or that he might have in England, with two carucats, part of the demesns belonging to his Castle of Ludelaw. In consideration of which two carucates the said William and his heirs were to be Constables of that Castle for the safe custody thereof; and to maintain for ever a Priest, a Porter, and two Centinells there, as formerly had been used, except at such times as the said Walter de Lascey himself, or his heirs, should come thither; and then he and his heires to remain in the outer ward, during their stay there: But for the times of hostility it was agreed, that the said Walter and his heirs should fortify and defend it themselves at their own costs, and the said William and his heirs to remain in the same outer Ward whilst it should be so fortified. And further that the said William and his heirs might take the like rates taxt upon Bread and Beer in the town of Ludelaw, in the absence of the said Walter and his heirs, which he had used to have, or ought to receive when he was there in person: As also that the repair, which he and his heirs should make there, upon occasion, to be by the view of two honest men, and at the charge of the same Walter and his heirs: And that he & they, should have sufficient provision of fewell in the woods belonging thereto, as other Constables thereof used to have. And further that whensoever the said William or his heirs, by the command of the said Walter and his heirs, or his or their Bayliffs should be called to any place, where the said Walter or his heirs were to hold their Courts, receive Accompts, or upon other occasions, that he and they should have entertainment for themselves and their Horses, during their abode there for that purpose, at the charge of the said Walter and his heirs: which Agreement^f beareth date at Trlm in Ireland 1. August 18 H. 3.

This William de Lucy was a Knight^g in 17 H. 3. and Executor^h to his brother Stephen de Lucy, by whose death he had a great personall estate. In 20 H. 3. the Custodyⁱ of this County and Leicester shire was committed to his charge, together with the strong Castle of Kenilworth 23. Apr. in which trust he continued^k for the space of 3. years: And in 25 H. 3. was he joyned in^l Commission with the then Shiriff, viz. Philip de Ascells, and some others, for viewing all the Castles of this County, and certifying the defects in every of them under their Seales to the King. In 26 H. 3. the before recited Walter de Lascey sealed a^m bond unto him of CCCLxxii li. Sterling, in consideration that he should discharge all his debts owing to any Jews in England, except those of Hereford, and Driford; which sum was to be paid by Lxxx li. per annum, untill it might be discharged; and in case of making default, the said Walter and his heirs were to abide such Ecclesiasticall censure, and the like Penance, if need were, as the Archbishop of Canterbury with the Bishops of Salisbury and Bath should impose on them that were debtors to those who were signed with the Crosse, according to the Constitution of Pope Honorius, the said William de Lucy being so signed. And inⁿ 28 H. 3. did Roys de Verdon (of whom in Brandon I have spoken) agree with him for Cxx li. to discharge all the debts which the said Walter de Lascey and John de Verdon, with Margerie his wife, then owed to the Jews, except to those of Hereford, unto whom the said William was bound to pay 80 li. due to them from the same John de Verdon.

This William de Lucy was he that founded^o the Monastery of Chellesford, whereof I have lately spoke; and had a Chapell within his Mannour-house here at Cherlecote, allowed^p unto him for himself, his wife and family, by Roger de Cherlecote Parson of the Church of Cherlecote, with reservation of his obedience to the mother Church of Cherlecote, as touching all Oblations, and access thereto with his said wife and family, upon seven Festivall days in the year; viz. Christmasse, Candlemasse, Easter, the Ascension, Whitsontide, S. Leonard, and All-Hallows. He bore for his Armes Verry three Lucies hauriant d'Argent, as may seem by the impression of one^q of his Seales: but by another^r, there is nothing of Verry at all. He married two wives, viz. Isabell^s daughter to Abfalon de Aldermoneston, with whom he had certain lands given^t to him by Gervase then Abbot of Perthore. The second was Maud^u, sister and one of the coheirs to John Cotele, of whose inheritance he had the Mannour^w of Be-reuton in Hants shire: and departed^x this life about 32 H. 3. leaving issue^y Sir William Lucy Knight his son and heir; of whom I find nothing memorable but his marriage, which was with a great heir; viz. Amicia^z daughter and heir to Will. de Furches, and heir also to William Fitz Warin: by whom he had issue Fouk^a de Lucy, of the retinue^b to Peter de Montfort, one of the rebellious Barons that took up Armes against the King, in 48 H. 3. (of whom in Belbeseft I have spoke) & was in such favour with them for his activeness in those times, that being indebted to one Elyas le Blund a Jew of London, in in a great sum of money, which himself and his Ancestors had taken up at interest, he procured a speciall Mandate^c (dated 7. Maii 49 H. 3.) directed unto the Commissioners, unto whom the estates of the Jews, then seized upon, were intrusted, to deliver up the bonds and to discharge him thereof, acquitting him of all interest money due thereupon, but reserving the payment of the principall into the Exchequer; for at that time those Barons had^d the Kings person in their custody, whom they took Prisoner in the battail of Lewes, and made use of his great Seal and all other Regall authority in his name.

But what a dismall fate attended them, though they prospered for a while, that which I have said in Benilwozth will plainly manifest; the sum whereof is, that being utterly vanquish'd, soon after, at Evesham, their estates thereupon became confiscate, most of which were given away to those that had firmly stuck to the King, amongst whom Robert Walerand had^e this of our Fouk de Lucy; howbeit, by that favourable Decree called Dictum de Benilwozth, being admitted to Composition, he reenjoy'd it again; and for CC. marks of silver obtained^f from Peter de Montfort, son and heir to the before specified Peter, a discharge of that xli. per annum Rent, reserved out of this Lordship upon the originall grant thereof to his Ancestor (as hath been already noted;) paying only for the future, a pair of gilt Spurs or 4d. at Christmasse only, to the said Peter and his heirs for all services whatsoever: All which was certified^g into the Exchequer by that notable Inquis. of 7 E. 1. and moreover that he then held here two Water-mills, and two Carucats of land in demesne, together with the whole Mannour, except six yard land called the Hullelond: As also, that he had xxii. Tenants which held 42. yard land at will, performing severall services, scil. Plowing, Reaping, Mowing, making Hay, Harrowing, carrying Wood, and the like; and paying certain yearly Rent in money: And likewise a Court-Leet^h, with other liberties, granted to his Ancestors by King Ric. 1. and confirm'd by King John; which Court-Leet was not to be kept but in the presence of the Kings Bayliffe, as the said Charter testifieth.

This Fouk was a speciall lover of good Horses, as it should seem; for in 11 E. 1. he gaveⁱ xli. marks to two Londoners, that were Merchants of Horses, for a black Horse; about which time a fat Oxe was sold^k but for xvi s. In 13 E. 1. being questioned by what authority he held a Court-Leet here, and had Assize of Bread and Beer, Gallows, Infangthef, weyfs, &c. he produced King John's Charter^l above mentioned: but the Jury then found, that he and his Ancestors had kept their Court-Leet without the presence of the Ks. Bayliff, and so he did at that time, notwithstanding the said Charter, for which respect he had a day assigned him to make good his claim. In 14 E. 1. he was constituted^m one of the Justices for the Gaol delivery at Warwick: Inⁿ 15 E. 1. one of the 4. Knights to take care that the Articles for conservation of the Peace, according to the Statute of Winchester, should be observed in this County: And the same^o year, as also in^p 17 E. 1. again one of the Justices for the Gaol delivery at Warwick. He was a Benefactor to the Canons of Thelystord, as I have already there shewed; and dyed in^q 31 E. 1. leaving issue, by Petroneill^r his wife, William Lucy his son^s and heir then 26. years of age, who had livery^t of his lands the same year: which Will. was a Kt.^u in 2 E. 2. if not sooner, and bore for his Arms Gules semé of Crosslets with three Lucies hauriant d'Argent as by his Seal appears.

Whose publique employments were as followeth; viz. Knight for this Shire in the Parliament held at Westminster in^v 6 E. 2. In that at Bozke^w 15 E. 1. Again at Westminster^x 17 E. 2. In that of Bozthampton^y 2 E. 3. and of Westminster^z in 10 E. 3. For the Gaol-delivery at Warwick he was in Commission in^a 10, 16, 17. and 19 E. 2. For conservation of the Peace according to the Statute of Winchester in^b 13 E. 2. In 15 E. 2. a for choosing Foot-Souldiers, and conducting them to New-Castle upon Tine to march against the Scots: so also^c in 16. at which time the number so conducted were, in this County, full CCC. In^d 18 E. 2. for ordering of those Knights, Esquiers, and other Souldiers, which were to serve on Horseback, with the K. in his Warrs of Gascon. And in^e 19 E. 2. for conservation of the Peace according to the Statute of Winchester. To the Canons of Thelystord he was also a Benefactor^f as other of his Ancestors had been. And by Elizabeth^g his wife left issue William his son and heir, who in 15 E. 2. was^h in that Welch expedition for the Kings service; and inⁱ 18 E. 3. a Knight, being then in Commission (with others) to enquire within this County, and to certify the names of all persons who had Lands and Rents to the value of an £s. and upwards to a thousand pounds per annum, deducting the services and necessary reprises. In 19 E. 3. he received Summons^j, with many other persons of quality, to prepare himself with Horle and Armes, by the Feast of S^t Laurence, for to wait upon the K. in his French expedition.

This^k was the time when that notable battail of Cressy (whereof our Historians make relation) was fought, he being of the retinue^l of Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, but exempted from attendance at that time: being then joyn'd in^m Commission with the Shiriff, and some others to array Clv. Archers in this County for the Kings service: but after the 22 E. 3. I find no mention of him. By Elizabeth his wife he left issueⁿ Thomas Lucy, who had two wives; viz. Elizabeth and Philippa; which Philippa in 28 E. 3. joyned with him in a grant^o of certain errable land, lying here in Cherlerote, to the Canons of Thelystord, to the intent that they should celebrate Divine Service, and pray devoutly there, for the soul of William de Clinton Earl of Huntingdon; as also for the souls of them the said Thomas and Philippa.

This Thomas had issue^p William Lucy, who being a Knight^q in 5 R. 2. was the same year retained, by Indenture, ^r with John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaster King of Castile, &c. to serve him with one Esquier for terme of his life, aswell in times of Warr as Peace; for which service to have xx li. per an. besides his dyet: and in 1 H. 4. was one^s of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament then held at Westminster.

To him succeeded Thomas his son and heir, retained^t also with the said D. of Lanc. for terme of life, to serve him aswell in times of Peace as Warr; for which he was to have x. marks per an. wages. This Thomas being a Kt.^u in 7 H. 4. served^v the same year for this County in the Parl. then held. In 8 H. 4. he was constituted^w a Shiriff of this and Leicester-shire, and having been of the retinue^x to Richard de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, for which he had xx li. per annum Fee, wedded ^c Alice the onely daughter of Sir William Hugford; but by the death without issue of Margerie, daughter to William son and heir to the said William at length his ^d heir; by whom he had a fair inheritance of lands, lying in the Counties of ^e Bedford and Salop. ^f and departed ^g this life 28. Julii 3 H. 5. leaving William his ^h son and heir 13. years of age; the said Alice taking to husband ⁱ Richard Archer (of Danworth) Esquier within 8. weeks after his said decease.

This William was during his minority, in Ward to ^k John Beeler of Werrington in Com. Lanc. Esquier, and in 2 H. 6. upon the death of Eliz. the widow of Sir John Clinton Knight, found Cosen and ^l heir to her; viz. son of Alice Hugford, daughter of Margerie, son of James Pabenham, son of Joan, sister of William, father of William, father to the said Elizabeth. In 12 H. 6. I find him listed in ^m the Catalogue of those men of note in this Shire, that made oath for performance of such particular things as were determined of in the Parliament held at Westminster that year. In 14 H. 6. he was constituted Sheriff ⁿ of this County and Leicester-shire; so also in ^o 28 H. 6. and the same year join'd in Commission ^p with the Lord Grey of Groby, and others for treating with the people about a loan to the King. So likewise ^q in 31 H. 6. with Humfrey Duke of Buck. and others for that purpose. It seemes that he adhered to the House of Poike in those turbulent times, when so much blood was spilt in that quarrell with the Lancastrians: for in 38 H. 6. he had a Protection for ^r himself and all his goods from the Earls of March and Warwick, which bears date 18. Julii, and departed ^s this life in 6 E. 4. leaving, by Elianore ^t his wife, daughter ^u to Reginald Lord Grey of Ruthin William his son and heir 26. years of age; who in 7 E. 4. doing fealty ^v for the Mannour of Habersham in Com. Buck. held of the K. as of his Honour of Pevecrell; as also for the Mannour of Shrewley, in this County, held also of the King as of his Duchy of Lancaster had his homage respited ^w.

This William was one of the Commissioners for conservation of the Peace in this County in ^x 11, 12, 13 and 14 E. 4. in which fourteenth year he had, for some great and speciall considerations the gift ^y of an Cleli. bestowed upon him by the King, out of the profits of this County and Leicester-shire, being the same year made Sheriff ^z of these Counties. In 20 E. 4. I find ^a that he was a Knight. In 1 H. 7. created ^b Knight of the Bath at the Queens Coronation. In 6 H. 7. constituted ^c one of the Commissioners of Array in this County for setting forth men in defence of the Realm against Charles the 8. King of France then threatening an invasion thereof; being also in Commission ^d for Conservation of the Peace in this Shire at the same time. In 7 H. 7. he quitted ^e to the Canons of Thelesford those liberties which he and his Ancestors used to have in Thelesford; viz. Toll, Tack, Stallage and Bloodshed, (as in Thelesford I have shewed;) And by his Testament ^f, bearing date 2. Julii anno 1492. in the same 7th year of King H. 7. bequeathed his body to be buried in the Chancell of the Parish-Church of Stratford super Avon, in this County. To eight Churches next adjoining to Cherlecote; viz. Hampton, Wasperston, Weresford, Petwold, Wellesburne, Loxley, Alveston, and Shitburne, he gave ^g vi s. viii d. a piece. To the reparation of the high Altar in the Church of Cherlecote vi li. xiii s. x d.; and an acre of his demein lands in Cherlecote to be forever at the disposition of the Church-Wardens there, for the behoof of the same Church. To the House of Thelesford for the observation of his Exequies ^h xl s. To the Nuns of Winley for the like ⁱ xl s. To the Canons and Vicars of the Collegiate-Church in Warwick, for the like, ^j xx s. To the Warden and Priests of Stratford, for the like, ^k xx s. And, constituting ^l Sir Edward Raleigh Knight, Robert Throkmorton, and Thomas Breton Esquiers his Executors, departed ^m this life 3. Julii the same year, leaving issue Edmund ⁿ his son and heir 28. years of age, with William, Henry, and Humfry his younger sons ^o, and Mary a daughter ^p. And of the Lady Alice, his widow, I find, that by her Testament ^q, dated ult. Sept. 1494. 10 H. 7. she bequeathed her body to sepulture within the Chancell of the said Collegiate Church of the Holy Trinity in Stratford super Avon, before the high Altar, on the left side her said husband.

To the before specified Sir William succeeded the said Edmund Lucy, his son and heir by ^r Margaret his first wife: which Edmund was a Commander ^s in King H. 7. Army at the battail of Stoke (juxta Newark) in the second year of that Kings reign: and in Aprill 7. H. 7. retained ^t by Indenture to serve the said King in his Warrs for one whole year, with two men at Armes, having with him his Custrell ^u and his Page, and three Demilances, xxx. Archers on foot, and vi. Bills, of good and able persons; taking for himself, and his men at Armes ^v xviii d. per diem wages; for his Demilances ^w ix d. per diem; and Archers, and Bills ^x vi d. per diem: this being the time ^y that King Henry took his voyage into France, and besieged Bulloin till a truce was taken. In 10 H. 7. (20. Sept.) he had Summons ^z, amongst divers others of great quality, to attend the King in person upon the Feast day of All Saints, the same year, ready fitted to be made Knight of the Bath, with Henry the Kings son, who was also to be at the same time created Duke of Poike: But it seems he did not accordingly appear; for in Aprill following, his Testament ^a bears date, wherein he is stiled Esquier, by which Testament he bequeathed his body to be buried in our Lady Chapel, within the Monastery of Thelesford, on the North side of his mother Margaret Lucy. To the said House of Thelesford he bequeathed a Crosse of silver and gilt, of ten pounds value, to be bought by his Executors. Forty marks he appointed to be spent and given on the day of his buriall, by the hands of his Executors to Priests, Clerks, and poor people: And also willed, that at his Months mind xii. poor men, holding Torches, should have each of them a black Gown and hood, and ^b iv d. in money: Likewise, that his Anniversary should be kept at Thelesford, for the space of xx. years after his death, and ^c xl s. spent thereat, for Dirige overnight, Masses, and to poor people.

He further willed, that one Priest, of the same Order of those at Thelesford, should sing in the said Chapell for his soul, for the souls of Jane his wife, and Sir William Lucy Knight his father, and all Christen souls by the space of six years next after his decease: And that the same Priest should have yearly for so doing, during the said six years, 8. marks to be payd by the hands of his Executors: And that a Marble Stone of 7. foot in length, and 4. foot

4. foot in breadth, with the Armes of himself and his wife, and their portraictures, together with an Inscription, might be laid upon his grave. Of which Testament he constituted Sir Reginald Bray Kt. (a great man in that time) to be Supervisor. When he dyed I am not certain; but the Probate thereof bears date 19 Maii anno 1498. 13 H. 7. By Jane his wife he left issue Thomas, one of the Sewers to K. H. 8. in the first year of his reign: which Thomas had by the Ks. Letters Pat. bearing date 21. Sept. the same year, the custody of all the lands belonging to George Catesby (of Amby-Legers in Com. North-hampst.) eq. then deceased, to hold during the minority of Will. Catesby, his son and heir; and took to wife Eliz. the widow of the said George, daughter to Sir Ric. Empson of Caston-Pelton in that County.

This Thomas was a Knight in 6 H. 8. but how long before I am not certain; and in 16 H. 8. Sheriff of this County and Leicester. By his Testament bearing date ult. Julii 17 H. 8. he bequeathed his body to be buried in the Gray-Friers at London; appointing, that within a year after his decease, there should be a stone laid upon his grave, with the portraiture of himself, his Lady, and children, and his Armes at the 4. corners thereof; as also such an Inscript. as his Executors should devise, to the intent that good people might have remembrance to pray for his soul, and all Christen souls (for those are his words.) He also willed, that a Priest should be found, by his said Executors, to say Masse, and to pray for his soul in the Parish-Church of Cherlecore, or Amby, for the space of 3. whole years after his decease; and left issue by the said Eliz. 3. sons; Will. Thomas, and Edmund; and 3. daughters, scil. Anne, Radegund, and Barbara. To Thomas he gave the Mannour of Clebybrook in Com. Lesc. and to the heirs male of his body, with remainder to his son Edmund, to whom he bequeathed the Mannours of Bekering, and Sharpenho in Seginho and Richmont in Bedfordsh. with remainder to his son Thomas for want of issue male of the said Edmund; and departing this life on the 3. of Sept. 1525. E. 1. Isabell wife to K. E. 2. Joan Q. of Scotts, daughter to K. E. 2. with divers of the English Nobility, and other persons of special quality; and in particular the name of this Sir T. Lucy, there is not now one to be seen: And if you desire to know what is become of their Tombes, hearken to what the same Author says; viz. All these, and five times so many more have been buried there, whose Monuments are wholly defaced: for there were ix. Tombes of Alabaſter and Marble, environ'd with strikes of iron, in the Quire; and one Tombe in the body of the Church, also coped with iron, all pulled down; besides Cxl. grave-stones of Marble; all sold for fifty pounds, or thereabouts, by Sir Martin Bows, Goldsmith and Alderman of London.

In a chapel on the North side the Chancell.

On this monument for S. Thomas Lug k^t who dyed A 1603 erected by Dame Constance his Lady daughter and heire to Richard Kingmill, is there noe Inscription.

Of William Lucy, son and heir to the said Sir Thomas, I find that he wedded Anne the daughter of Richard Farmer esquier, and dyed 5 E. 6. leaving issue Thomas his son and heir (afterwards a Knight) Richard, William, Timothy, and Edward; and these daughters; viz. Alice, Mary, Jane, Martha, and Joyce: which Sir Thomas in 1 Eliz. built the House here at Cherlecote, of brick, as it now stands. But of his descendants I shall need to say no more, than what the Pedegree here inserted, together with their Monumentall Intercriptions do shew.

That which I have else to take notice of, relating to this place, is, that it is one of the towns whereof our Countreyman Rous, temp. Edw. 4. complained of, for Depopulation: And that the Church in H. 1. time, being a Chapell of Willesburne, was by Simon Bishop of Worcester then confirmed to the Canons of Kenilworth, having been annexed to the said Church of our Lady in Willesburne by Henry de Newburgh, the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman line, as appears by the Confirmation thereof, made by William Earl of Warwick, grandchild to the same Henry, in H. 2. time. What agreement was made, touching it, with the said Canons of Kenilworth by the Cherlecotes (who were anciently Lords of this Manour, as I have shewed) hath not yet appeared to me; but some such thing there was; for otherwise could not William de Lucy, Founder of the Monastery of Thebesford in H. 3. time, have given the advowson thereof, as he did, to the Canons of that House. It seems there was a portion of xx s. per annum then reserved to the Priory of Kenilworth; for so much doe I find that they had out of this Chapell in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.)

In 14 E. 1. it was valued at 4 marks: And by a Certificate upon an Inquisition taken in 12 H. 7. it appears, that upon the grant thereof to the said House of Thebesford, by William de Lucy before specified, it was appropriated to that Monastery; but that Robert, Prior in E. 1. time, gave the right of Presentation to the Vicaridge, unto Folk de Lucy then Lord of Cherlecote and his heirs; with whom it continued till about the beginning of H. 7. time; that Sir Will. Lucy Kt. bestowed the same patronage upon the Canons of Thebesford, and their successors, Edmund his son and heir confirming the grant. At the time of this Inquisition taken the Vicaridge was found to be of xii. marks per annum value, being endowed with all Oblations and Obventions, Tithes come only excepted; and that the Vicar there, was lyable to find Bread, Wine, and Wax for the daily Celebration of Divine Offices, and in every usuall Visitation to pay w^d. towards the expences of the Ordinary.

HERE ENTOMBED LYETH the Lady Joyce Lucy wife of Sir Thomas Lucy of Cherlecote, in the County of Warwick Knight, daughter and heir of Thomas Aston of Sutton in the County of Worcester esquire, who departed out of this wretched world to her heavenly kingdom, the tenth day of February, in the year of our Lord God 1595. and of her age lx. and three: All the time of her life a true and faithfull servant of her good God, never detected of any crime or vice; in religion most sound; in love to her husband most faithfull and true; in friendship most constant; To what in trust was committed to her most secret; In wisdom excellling; in governing of her house and bringing up of youth in the feare of God that did converse with her, most rare and singular. A great maintainer of hospitality; greatly esteemed of her betters; misliked of none unlesse of the envious. When all is spoken that can be said, a woman so furnished and garnished with vertue as not to be bettered, and hardly to be equalled by any. As she lived most virtuously, so she dyed most godly. Set down by him that best did know what hath been written to be true.

A little below Cherlecofe, is Abon increased by the confluence of another Torrent, which hath its rise from the Eastern side of this Hundred, as the Map will shew: But such is the hillyness of that part, wanting the like streames to water it, which in most other places are to be seen, as that the situation of the towns cannot be observed as elsewhere: Taking notice therefore of them, by those other eminent marks, as may best demonstrate how they lye, wherein that mountainous tract, called Edge-Hill will stand me in much stead, I shall begin with Herdwick-Priors, in which Parish are contained the Villages of Priors-Persiton, and Shukbozongh-inferior.

Herdwick-Priors.

This was one of those xxiv towns, which Earl Leofrike gave to the Monks of Cobentre in Edward the Confessors days, when he founded that Monastery, as in Cobentre I have manifested; and in the Conquerors Survey is certified^o to contain xv. hides, then valued at x li. In that Record it is written Herdwiche; but touching the Etymologie of its name I need not here speak, having already in Herdwick juxta Lemington delivered my opinion, all places of the same denomination proceeding from the like cause. There is not much to be said of this Lordship, in regard that it continued to the Monks of Cobentre so long as that Monastery stood, which Monks had Free-warren granted^p to them in all their demesne lands here in 41 H. 3. viz 5. carucats, as appears by that Inquisit^o of 7 E. 1. the rest being held by Tenants, whereof xxix. were such as occupied 17. yard land, for which they payd certain particular Rents, and performed divers servile duties: Besides which Free-warren, they had also at that time a Court-Leaf and Gallows.

But after the dissolution of the Monasteries, it was by the Ks. Letters Patent dated 25. Apr. 34

H. 8. granted unto Sir Edm. Knightley Kt. and to the heirs male of his body, with remainder to Valentine Knightley his brother, &c. with Offchurch, as I have there more fully shewed. Which Sir Edm. dying 12. Sept. in the same 34. year of H. 8. without issue male, his brother Valentine (then a Knight) became possessor thereof; who, by a speciall Patent dated 4 & 5 Ph. & M. had License^t to alien it unto Sir John Spenser Knight, and Edward Griffin Attorney generall to the Queen, and their heirs: but nothing was done therein, as it should seem: For in 8 Eliz. the said Sir Valentine dyed^u seized thereof, leaving Richard his son and heir of full age; which Richard sold it in Q. Eliz. time to one Raph Blount (an ancient servant to Sir Valentine) which Raph had issue Richard, who inclosed all that belong'd to the Mannour, and then sold it to Sir William Samuel of Cipton in Com. Dorset Knight, who gave it to Arthur a younger son, that sold it to William Lord Spenser, whose younger son Robert is the present owner thereof.

The Church belonging to the Monks of Cobentre, and of their patronage; as Lords of the Mannour, was by Roger Molend Bishop of Cobentre and Uichfield appropriated^w to them in An. 1260. (44 H. 3.) being endowed^x with two carucates of land. In Anno 1291. 19 E. 1. it was valued^y at xxvii. marks, and the Vicaridge at lx s. but in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was rated^z at xxiii li. xvi s. over and above xxvi s. viii d. yearly paid out thereof to the Monks of Cobentre, and iv s. for Synodalls.

Merston-Priors.

THIS, being in the Parish of Herdwick-Priors,
was with it, amongst divers other Lordships,
given to the Monks of Coventre by Earl Leofrike
in Edw. the Confessors days: yet is there no particular mention of it in the Conquerors Survey, it being there involved with Herdwick. Which Monks in 41 H. 3. had a Charter^a of Free-warren extending to all their demesne lands here as, it did to the rest of their Mannours: And in 7 E. 1. had xxxviii. Tenants, who held 23. yard land in this place, paying severall Rents and performing divers services, scil. Plowing, Mowing, Reaping, and the like; all which used to do suit to the Priors Court twice in the year. After the dissolution of that Monastery, it was granted^c out of the Crown, with Herdwick, &c. to Sir Edmund Knightley Knight, and hath ever since passed therewith; being now posselt by the Lord Spencer.

The Chapell, as a member also of Herdwick, was appropriated^d to the Monks of Coventre.

Shukborough-Inferior.

IN the Conquerors time Ric. Forestarius held^e half a hide here, then valued at xx s. afterwards, as by an authentique Record^f appears, reputed for three yard land. From which Richard (who is there called Ric. Chenen) it descended, by Margerie his daughter and heir to William Crok, and so by Margerie the sister of William, son to the said William, to Robert de Brok, who by a fair Charter^g (with his portraiture in his Seal on Horle-back) wherein he calls himself Domini Regis Anglie Marescallus, gave^h to Roger Helie, aliàs de Bentley this land in Succberge: From whom descended John de Bentley, who in 28 E. 1. was certifiedⁱ to hold one hide of land here of Richard de Loges, lineall heir unto Robert de Broc, (as in Chesterton is shewed:) And from him William de Bentley, Lord of Bentley in Com. Staff. who in 47 E. 3. granted^k to John, the son of William de

IN the Conquerors time part of this town, being in the Earl of Mellent's possession^m; viz. one hide and a half, which one Gislebertus held of him, was valued at iv li. x s. and then written Wilmere-stone: Another part, but much greater, did Turchill de Warwick thenⁿ possesse, which was certified to contain three hides, and rated at x li. one Warrinus being at that time his undertenant for it.
In that place it is written Wilmerestone: A third portion, here, did one William hold^o at the same time of Goisfrid de Manneville, viz. half a hide and a fourth part, valued at xv s. and there it is written Wimelestone: which makes me conjecture that the denomination thereof might originally proceed from the name of its owner, scil.
Wimere, or some such name.

Whether it were by King Henry the first immediately disposed of to Geoffrey de Clinton, his Chamberlain and Treasurer (of whose advancement I have in Kentworth made mention) or to Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick, and by him granted to the said Geoffrey, I am not certain: howbeit, that the said Geoffrey enjoy'd it, is clear enough from what I shall shortly manifest; for Geoffrey de Clinton, son to that Geoffrey, gave^p the Church of this place to the Monastery of Kentworth, and afterwards enfeoffed^q Ric. Walsh in the whole Man-nour, to hold by the service of a Knights fee;
which grant Henry de Clinton, his son, ratified^r to the said Richard and his heirs, in consideration whereof he received viii. marks of silver; but therein it is written Wilmelastune. This Richard Walsh had issue^s Vill. and two daughters, scil.
Petronill and Sybill; which Villiam dyed without issue, as I guesse; for the same Henry de Clinton confirm'd^t this Mannour unto his said sister, and their heirs, to hold by the like service of a Knights fee, and quitted^u unto them their Relief, for all which they gave him xxs. in silver.
What became of Sybill I know not; but Petronill was wedded^w to Geoffrey Peche, about King Ric.
1. time, and^x had with her the inheritance hereof,
which continued to his posterity, in the male line, till H. 4. time (whereof in Hampton in Arden I have spoke.)

To Geoffrey succeeded Richard^y, and to him,
John^z, who in 7 E. 1. was certified^a to hold it immediatly of Theobald de Nevill, by the service of a Knights fee, and he of Richard de Harecourt, and he of the Earl of Warwick: At which time
the said John had here two carucates of land in demesne, and xiii. Tenants holding 7. yard land and a half, besides 3. Freeholders; as also a Court-Leet. It was then likewise found, that John Passelew held of the said John Peche two carucates of land, here, by the service of half a Knights fee:
which John Passelew had xiv. Tenants holding severall proportions thereof; (but in that Record it

Of this family did divers bear the name of John; to one of which in 28 E. 3. there was a Charter^c of Free-warren granted in all his demesne lands here. After which viz. in 12 H. 4. this Mannour, with divers other, was by a Fine^d then levied, setled upon Catherine the widow of the last Sir John Peche for terme of life; and after her decease upon William Mountfort of Colthill, and Margaret his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, with remainder to the right heirs of the said Margaret, she being daughter and heir to the before specified Sir John Peche (as in Hampton in Arden is manifested.) From which Sir William descended Sir Sim. Montfort Knight (as in Colthill I have shewed) who being attainted^e in 10 H. 7. forfeited this Lordship with the rest of his lands; the inheritance whereof was granted^f out of the Crown 7. Mai 13 H. 7. to Will. Cope Esquire, Cofe-ner of the household to the K. to be held in Socage, paying xv. marks per annum into the Exchequer. Which Will. Cope in 14 H. 7. depopulated xii. messs. and 3. Cottages here, as was certified by one Inquis.^g and inclosed CC. xl. acres of land: And Sir Edw. Raleigh Knight wasted vi. messuages more. After which, viz. 3. Sept. 22 H. 7. the said Will. Cope sold^h this Lordship to John Spenser Esquier, who soon after began the structureⁱ of a fair Mannour-house, wherein, when that Inquis. was taken he had his residence, with lx. persons of his family, being a good Benefactor to the Church in Ornaments and other things. From which John descended Sir Robert Spenser Knight created^k Baron Spenser of this Wormleighton 21. Julii 1. Jac. whole grandchild, viz. Henry Lord Spenser, now, scil. an. 1640. enjoys it.

The Church (dedicated to S. Peter) being^l given to the Canons of Kenilworth, in King Stephens time, by Geffrey de Clinton, son to Geffrey the Founder of that Monastery, was confirmed^m to them by Richard Peche Bishop of Coventre, in H. 2. time: Out of which Geffrey Muschamp, Bishop in King John's time, gaveⁿ unto those Canons a Pension of xl s. per annum to be received during the life of Adam de Kelinton the then Incumbent: And granted^o, that, after his decease or resignation, two parts of the fruits and profits belonging thereto, as well in lands and Rents, as obventions of the Church-yard and Altar, should be appropriated to that Monastery; and the third part wholly redound^p to the Vicar. Some question there grew afterwards betwixt the Lord of this Mannour, and the Canons of Kenilworth, touching the advowson thereof; but in 23 H. 3. they grew to an Agreement, at which time Richard Peche quitted his^q interest thereto.

In Anno 1291. 19 E. 1. the Rectory, so appropriated, was valued^r at xv. marks, and the Vicaridge at x s. But in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was rated^s at vi li. xiii s. iv d.

Fenny Compton.

IN the valley below Wormleighton, South-west-wards, stands Fenny Compton, which takes its name from the situation, Combe and Cumbe, in our old English, signifying a hollow place or deep valley, (as in Cumbe, I have already shewed) and Fen dirt.

In the Conquerors time part of it was posselt by^t the Earl of Spellent, and part by Turchil de Warwick. That which the Earl of Spellent then had here (wherein the Church stood) was by the generall Survey^u, then made, certified to contain 4. hides and 3. virgats of land, which were valued at iv li. Gislebertus (who held part of Wormleighton of the said Earl) being his Tenant thereto. Howbeit that which Turchil de Warwick had, was somewhat more, and held^w of him also by two undertenants, viz. Almarus, who occupied two hides thereof, rated at xl s. and Rogerius 3. hides and one virgate, valued a L s. all which had been the freehold of Ordric, Alwin, and U^lsi in King Edward the Confessors dayes. But I cannot directly discover the time, when this Earl of Mellent (who was advanc^t to the Earldome of Leicester by King H. 1.) enfeofft Raph Boteler in his part of this Lordship; yet that he so did is out of doubt: for in that confirmation^s made by the same King to the Canons of Kenilworth, of those lands and Churches wherewith their Monastery was endowed, the Church of this Cumpton is specified, and said to be de feodo Radulfi Pincerne de Legrecstria, so that it is clear enough that Butler had it in his time.

The next possessor thereof, that I find^r, was Bigot, to whom, questionlesse, the before specified Raph Boteler granted it: for in H. 2. time Gilbert le Bigoth, his son, releasing^r to those Canons his right in the advouson of this Church, acknowledges^a that it was de elemosina patris, given to them by his father. At that time also the said Gilb. quit claimed^b his title and interest to one hide of land lying here, which his Ancestors had bestowed on them; in consideration whereof he^c reserved the service of the fift part of a Kts. fee to be performed by the Incumbent in the said Church on behalf of the before specified Canons. This Gilbert in 20 H. 2. answered^d vi li. to the K. for his lands here; which as it should seem, was by way of composition for his offence in adhering to those that were in Rebellion against the King on the part of young Henry; but in that^e Record he is called Gilbertus Picot. In 5 H. 3. there was a Fine^f levied of the third part of a Kts. fee here, betwixt Cecil the widow of Gilb. Bigot, & Ric. Bigot, she clayming the said third part as her dowrie; in which Record it is written Fenni-Cumpton, that being the first time I find it distinguished by such addition.

Of Bigot's portion, intending to say more anon, I now come to speak of Turchill's share; the passages whereof, though I cannot, by direct steps, exactly trace; yet am I satisfied in what road it went; viz. to the Earl of Warwick, (as the rest of Turchill's lands did) who enfeofft Turchill's posterity thereof, to hold of his descendants by half a Knights fee: From whom (viz. one of the Ardens) the Canons of Trentham in Staffordshire, having a grant thereof, past it to Richard Peche (Lord of Wormleighton, whereof I last spoke) to hold by the same service: all which may be inferred from that Inquis. taken in 7 E. 1. whereof I shall make further mention by and by, though in 20 H. 3. the Record^g expresses no other than that the said Ric. Peche held it immediatly of the Earl of Warwick; Nor that^h of 36 H. 3. than that the heirs of Ric. Peche held it of Thomas de Arden, and he of the Earl, without any mention of the Prior of Trentham. But, about the beginning of E. 1. time, upon an Agreementⁱ made betwixt Richard Prior of Trentham, and the Lady Hawisia, widow of Richard Peche, the title of the Canons of Trentham begins to appear; for I thereby find, that the said Canons, at the especiall request of William Bishop of Posworth, Sir Hugh de Arden Knight, and other great men, granted to the said Hawise the Wardship of these lands at Fenni-Cumpton, and the Relief of John her son, when he should accomplish his full age: which John, in 7 E. 1. was certified^k to hold this Lordship, of the Prior of Trentham, by the service of half a Knights fee; the said Prior holding it of Thomas de Arden, and he of the Earl of Warwick, having one carucate of land in demesne, and 5. Villains holding three yardland; for which they payd severall Rents, and performed suit to his Court. At the same time it was likewise found, that the Prior of Clatercote held one carucate of land in demesne of the same T. de Arden, by the service of the fourth part of a Knights fee; and that the said Prior had also 4. Freeholders, who held severall other portions.

I now return to Bigod. By this Record^l doth it also appear, that Robert Bigod (descended from Gilbert before specified) held his part of this town of Raph le Boteler, by the service of half a Knights fee, and he of the Earl of Leicester: and that the said Robert then had .xii. Freeholders holding severall proportions of land under particular Rents, and suit of Court: And moreover^m that the Prior of Clatercote held two carucats of land of him in pure Almes, whereof no Scutage was to be payd for more than one virgate: which Robert and all his Tenants used to make their appearanceⁿ at the Earl of Leicester's Court-Leet. But after this I find no more mention at all of these Bigots; so that I presume, that what they had here, was by them sold to Peche: for in 13 E. 1. John Peche claimed^o by Prescription a Court-Leet in this his Lordship, together with Assize of Bread and Beer, which were allowed. From which family it went to Montfort by a daughter and heir, as in Hampton in Arden, where the Descent is drawn, may be seen: And by the attainder^p of Sir Simon Montfort (10 H. 7.) eschaeted to the Crown; out of which it was granted^q, together with Wormleighton, unto William Cape Esquier, Treasurer of the household to the K. 7. Maii 13 H. 7. And past, as I think, from Cope to Spenser (with Wormleighton;) for in 13 H. 8. John Spenser posselt^r it: But in 22 H. 8. a Fine was levied thereof, betwixt Richard Willis gentleman plaintiff, and Margery Belingham, widow, late wife of Sir Robert Belingham Knight, daughter and heir to John Beaunfiz of Walthall, deforciant: from which Richard is descended George Willis now Lord thereof, an. scil. 1640.

That which the Canons of Clatercote had here, was granted^s out of the Crown in 30 H. 8. unto William Petre D^r of Law, and to the heirs male of his body, together with the site of that Monastery, and Mannour of Clatercote. And in 36 H. 8. by another Patent^t to the same William and his heirs, by the name of Sir William Petre Knight. But the next year following, upon exchange^u of lands made with the said Sir William Petre, the King had it again; and by his Letters Patent^v dated xi. Dec. 37 H. 8. granted it, inter alia, to the Colledge of Christ-Church in Oxford, of his own foundation, to hold in pure Almes.

That the Church (dedicated to S. Clare) was given^w to the Canons of Kenilworth, by Bigot, in H. 1. time, I have already intimated; which grant Richard Peche Bishop of Cobentre confirmed^x temp. H. 2. And Geffrey Muschamp (Bishop in King John's time) assigned^y xxx s. Pension to them, yearly, out of the fruits thereof, which Alex. de Savensby (his successor) shortly after confirmed^z. After which till 12 E. 1. the advouson thereof continued to those Canons; but then did they passe^a it to Roger Molend Bishop of Cobentre and Wichfield. In anno 1291. 19 E. 1. it was valued^b at xi. marks; And in^c 26 H. 8. at xv li. viii s. ii d. over and above viii s. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

Derfet.

Come next to Derfet, a parish somewhat spacious; but that part wherein the Church stands is commonly called Burton-Dasset; the Hamlets belonging thereto being these; viz. Great Dasset, Hardwick, Knightscofe, and Portfend. In the Conquerors time the Earl of Mellent had x. hides within the compasse of this place, which was the Freehold of three Thanes before the Norman invasion, and then esteemed to be worth x li. but at the generall Survey no more than viii li. and there written Derfeto. The residue was then certified to contain xv. hides, which Harold, son to Raph Earl of Hereford held; and so did in Edward the Confessors dayes; at which time it was valued at xvi li. but by the Conquerors Survey at xx li. where it is written Derfetone: In each of which parts there was at that time a Priest, and, in likelihood, some Chapell besides the mother Church; yet I presume the Mother-Church then stood where it now doth, scil. in that part belonging to Harold.

From this Harold did paternally descend the line of Sudley (taking their surname from Sudley in Gloucestershire, their principall seat;) of which family, for that they were Founders of the Monastery of Crobury, within the precincts of Chilbertscoton in this County, I reserve what I have to say historically, till I come to Giff in that parish, where they resided. It seems that the same part of this town held by the E. of Mellent, as above said, came also to the Sudley's; for it appears by good authorities, that they were possessors of the whole, and so continued, till by an heir generall, it descended, to Boteler, as I shall manifest in due place: But when it was past from the said Earl, or any of his posterity, I have not seen; neither can I guess at the direct time, otherwise than to conclude it to have been somewhat antient: and yet do I make a question, whether it were before the xxth of H. 3. for upon collection of the Aid then levied, it is certified^k, that Robert Munduit held one Knights fee and a half, here, of the Earl of Warwick, unto whom most of the lands and fees, which were the Earl of Mellent's in this County, devolved. At which time it was also found, that Raph de Suthley answered for a Knights fee in this place. But by anotherⁿ Record, not above xi. years after, it appears, that Raph de Suthley accounted for two Knights fees here, which proportion the heirs of the said Raph held^o in 36 H. 3.

For the etymologie of the name, considering how variously it hath been written in ancient time; viz. Derecto, Derectone, Derecth, and Dozcestre, I shall onely deliver my fancy; viz. that, being a hilly place, it was originally a receptacle for Beasts of Chase, wherewith this land, before it grew populous, did much abound; which kind, we know, do much delight in Mountainous grounds, as this is; So that I suppose, it might, by reason thereof, at first, be called Deocest with the Saxons, which betokeneth a place where wild Beasts have their abode: but I leave it as a conjecture.

As for that part of the town, called Burton-Dasset, it is by way of distinction from the other; of which addition I have exprest my conceipt where I discourse of Burton-Hastings in Unknightlow-Hundred; wherunto I shall adde, that 'tis probable it might proceed from the Saxon word beoþg, which signifieth the same with Collis, the situation thereof upon a little hill favouring this my conceipt. But I now come to what I find, memorable in relation to this place. In 51 H. 3. Barthol. de Suthley, being then Lord thereof, had a Charter granted^p to him and his heirs for a Mercate to be kept every Friday, weekly, here; and a Fair annually for three days, viz. the Eve of S^t James the Apostle, and two days after. And in 7 E. 1. John de Suthley was certified^q to be Lord hereof, where it is written Magna Derect, but said to be a member of Suthley^r; as also to be held by him of the King in Capite, with his Barony, by the service of two Knights fees. And that he had at that time here Lui, servants holding xix. yard land and a half, paying severall Rents and performing divers servile labours; with xxv. Freeholders, holding 24. yard land and a half. And moreover it there appears^s, that the Chief Chanter of the Church of Lichfield, held here at that time a fourth part of one yard land, and the Canons of Orbury two yard land, one whereof the Church was endowed with: As also, that the Templars of Balshall then had xi. Tenants here, who held four yard land, paying severall Rents, and performing severall servile labours. The Liberties and Priviledges which the said John de Suthley then had^t in this Lordship were the Mercate and Faire, whereof I have already toucht, Free-warren, Court-Leet, Gal- lows, Cuckstool, and Pillory, with Affize of Bread and Beer: All which together with weyfs; as also to be quit of Murther, and suit to the Hundred and County Court, he claimed^u, partly by Prescription, and partly by Charter; but it being then found, that for Murther he used to partake with the Hundred, he was amerced for that undue claim, the rest of his Challenge being fully allowed.

Which John de Sudley became a speciall Benefactor to the Monastery of Orbury (of his Ancestors foundation) by the grant of lands and other advantages thereunto out of this place, as I shall punctually shew, when I come to speak of that Religious House. I often find in Record^w that this town is called Cheping-Derfet; the reason whereof is because of the Mercate: for Cheping with our Ancestors did signify the same that buying and selling doth with us; whence it is, that Cheping-Porton, in Driford-shire, Cheptingham in Wilt-shire, and Chepstow in Monmouth-shire had their names. But the last of the Sudley's, that had to doe here, was Sir John de Sudley Knight, who dying^x without issue in 41 E. 3. left Thomas Boteler, son of Joan, his eldest sister, then dead; and Margerie his younger sister his^y heirs: whereby, as also by the death^z of the said Margerie afterwards without issue, the said Thomas became possessor^a of this and all the rest of Sudley's lands: which Thomas, being afterwards a Knight^b dyed seized of this Mannour jointly with Alice his wife (daughter to Sir John Beauchamp of Powpke) 21. Sept. 22 R. 2. then leaving John his son and heir xiv. years of age; who in 8 H. 4. confirmed^c the estate for life therein, which had been granted by certain Fees unto the said Alice, she being at that time married^d to Sir John Dalyngrugge Knight.

This John, and William his brother were sons to Sir Thomas Boteler by his first wife; but both dyed without issue, as it seems; for upon the death of the abovespecified Alice in 21 H. 6. Sir Raph Boteler Knight, was then found^e to be heir unto her (and begotten by the said Sir Thomas) being then xl. years of age: which Sir Raph became a man of great note in H. 6. time, as it seems; for I find, that^f being Knight for the Body to the King he was made his Standard-bearer 28. Martii 17 H. 6. And by Letters Patent^g dated at Westminster x. Sept. 20 H. 6. created Lord Sudley, with the grant of CC. marks per annum to himself and his heirs for the better maintenance of that dignity. He was also constituted^h Lord Treasurer of England 7. Julii 22 H. 6. which office he held about three years: but in 13 E. 4. he departedⁱ this life, leaving Sir John Norbury Knight, and William Belknap his heirs: which Sir John Norbury was son^k of Sir Henry Norbury Knight, by Elizabeth; and Will. Belknap son^l of Hamond Belknap by Joan, sisters to the said Raph; for he left no^m issue male, Sir Thomas Butler, his only sonⁿ, dying in his life time: which Sir John Norbury and William Belknap in 16 E. 4. had livery^o of all the lands descended to them by the death of the abovespecified Sir Raph Boteler: The partition^p whereof was made betwixt the said Sir John, and Edward Belknap Esquier, son of Henry, brother and heir to William Belknap aforesaid in 13 H. 7. whereby this Mannour, inter alia, became assigned to Belknap: for in 2 R. 3. William dyed^q without issue, leaving Henry Belknap his brother and heir 50. years of age: which Henry, by his Testament^r dated 25. Junii anno 1488. 3 H. 7. bequeathed his body to be buried in the Chapell of our Lady at Wekle in Souther. It seemes he lived there; for by the same Testament he gave to the high Altar in that Church x. d. in lieu of his Tithes forgotten, and not paid; and departed this life 10 Julii following, leaving the said Sir Edward his son and heir xvii. years of age; who became a man of much publique action: for in 2 H. 7. he was one of the Commanders in the Kings Army at the Battail of Stoke: In 6. a Commissioner of Array in this County. In 12. a Commander in the Battail of Blackheath in Kent, against the Western Rebels. In 17. he had the custody of Warwick-Castle committed to his charge, being at that time Squier of the Body to the King. And from 8 H. 7. for the most part during all that Kings reign, was in Commission for the Peace in this County, as appears upon the severall renewings thereof; and sometimes for Gaol delivery. In consideration of whose acceptable services, the said King, by a special Patent dated 14. Apr. 24. of his reign, granted him immunity from being troubled or questioned for that Inclosure and depopulation, which he had made in this Lordship, contrary to the Statute in the third of his reign.

He was also Squier of the Body to King H. 8. being in the first of his reign again constituted Constable of Warwick-Castle; (for he resided at Wetton subius Wethale in this County, as it seems by what I have there manifested.) And in 8. a Knight. The Depopulation, and Inclosure that he made within this Lordship, scil. in 14 H. 7. was of xii. mess. and CCCLv. acres of land; unto every of which messuages 24. acres belonged: But by the Inquis. then taken, I find it certified, that this decay of tillage was no prejudice, but benefit to the publique: for whereas before that time they were able to entertain but xx. strangers, upon occasion, they could afterwards entertain Lx. as well: And that the Church and ornaments were then in better condition than before, having since cost the Parish CCli. That there were also xxi. Ploughs maintained in the Parish: And whereas before the Inclosure they had but one Priest, then were there 2. and many Clerks performing divine service every Holy day by Note, and divers times with Prick-song, none such having been kept before, by reason of the disability of the Parishioners. That the Benefice was better, and more of value to the Incumbent than when the lands did lye in tillage by iii li. or thereabouts. That the Children of the Parish were better taught, and better Houses kept; and that there were then within the precincts of the same Parish Cxli. Communicants.

By his Testament, bearing date 23. Martii anno 1520. 12 H. 8. he bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Black-Friers near Ludgate, in case he departed this life in London; but if in Warwickshire, then to be buried in the Charterhouse near Cobentre: And also appointed that John Cotes, with whom he had exchanged the Mannour of Whitchurch, in this County, for other lands, should receive x. marks yearly to him and his heirs out of this Mannour, till his Executors, or his heirs had clearly discharged the said John and his heirs, of and for the Rent of xiii. Quarters of Wheat, and xiii. Quarters of Barley, and part Masselin against the Nuns of Whitley and their successors, granted to their Predecessors by Sir Peter de Montfort, sometime Lord of that Mannour: And died by a pestilentiall aire in France 26. Martii the same year, without issue, being at that time a Captain in the English Army there; leaving Anthony Coke, son of John Coke, by Elizabeth his sister; Mary wife of Gerard Danet Elquier, and Alice the wife of William Shelley (his two other sisters) his heirs. I have not as yet seen when or how the division was made betwixt these coheirs; but I presume that Shelley's part came shortly after to Sir Edm. Wotton Knight (son of Sir Rob. Wotton by Anne another sister to the said Sir Edm. Belknap;) for I find that the same Sir Edward was seized of the third part of this Mannour in 29 H. 8. From whom descended Edward, created Lord Wotton 13. Martii Jac. And that Gerard Danet being Squier of the Body to King H. 8. had issue Sir John Danet Knight, father of Leonard Danet, that sold his interest here to Peter Temple Elquier in 2 Eliz. whose posterity do still enjoy it.

The Church (dedicated to All Saints) being given to the Canons of Erdbury by Raph de Sudley (Founder of that Monastery) was appropriated thereunto by Geffrey Muschamp Bishop of Cobentre in King John's time, and endowed with one carucate of land; the Vicaridge being ordained in anno 1232. 16 H. 3. by Alex. de Savensby Bishop of Cobentre and Wichfeld. In anno 1291. 19 E. 1. the Rectory was valued at xxiv marks; but the Vicaridge had another endowment in H. 7. time; so that in 26 H. 8. upon the valuation then made, it was rated at xiv li.

In the East window of the Chancell these Armes,
Or two barrs gules. } Sudley.

I will now proceed with the Hamlets, beginning with Herdwick; for that which is called Great Dasset is involved with Burton-Dasset (alias Cheping-Dasset) whereof I have already spoke.

Herdwick.

This, being a member of Derret, is not particularly mentioned in Domesday book; but was then reckoned in the number of hides, which are there certified for that place. In H. 2. time Raph de Sudley (part of whose possessions it was, as belonging to Derret) gave some quantity of what he had here to the Templars, which in 31
H. 2. was valued at xl s. per annum. And in 7 E.
1. rated at 4. yard land, being then held by xi.
Tenants, (as in Dasset I have already intimated:)
But of the residue did the Sudley's continue owners, John de Sudley in 9 E. 2. being certified Lord thereof, together with Dasset, and as a member of the same. Howbeit that which the Templars had here, came to the Hospitalars in E. 2. time, as all their other lands did; and soe continued in their possession till the generall dissolution of the Religious Houses in 30 H. 8. that they were brought to the Crown. After which in 7 E. 6. these lands in Herdwick were granted to Edward Aglionby of Walsall, and Henry Hugford of Solihull gent.
and their heirs, who, within the compass of the same year, past them to Wotton Esquire.
There hath antiently been a Chapell here, dedicated to S. Leonard, but now it is ruinous, the Village being totally depopulated.

Knightcote.

This was heretofore also a member of Dasset,
and so not particularly taken notice of in the Conquerors Survey. The first mention that I find of it is in H. 3. time, and then was there one Si- mon de Knightcote, son to Raph de Knightcote owner of it: which Raph, or some of his Ancestors, being (doubtlesse) enfeoffed thereof by one of the Sudleys, assumed, it seems, their surname from hence, by reason of their residence here, and had a Chapell in this Village: But the inheritance hereof descended to Joan Dycon of Derret, as daughter and heir to Julian, daughter to the abovesaid Symon de Knightcote. Which Joan past away all the right she had in the Mannour of Knightcote (for by that name it was then stiled) to William the son of William Sutton and Amicia his wife and to the heirs of the said William, by her deed bearing date on the Feast day of S. James the Apostle 24 E. 3. who kept his estate therein but a while;
for on the Feast day of S. Mathew the Apostle next ensuing, he granted it to William de Peyto and his heirs, and levied a Fine thereupon in 27 E. 3.
Which William in 3. R. 2. granted to Laurence Dive of Herlaston in Com. Northampt. all his right in this Village; who the self same year past it unto Sir Henry Arden Knight, Robert Burgoyllon
and others, and their heirs, as Feoffees, (it seems) to the use of Thomas Puresey: for it appears, that very shortly after they quitted their right therein to the said Thomas: which Thomas in 10 H. 7. conveyed it unto Will. Hussy Esquire, with certain other lands in Wellesborough in Com. Leic. and Folkhill within the Liberties of Coventre, in exchange for that Mannour in Fenny-Drapton in Com. Leicesters, called Hussy's Mannour. The next possessor whereof, that I have met with,
was Sir Walter Smyth Knight, of whom I have spoke in Shirford, and Fletchamsted; whose grand-child, Sir John Smyth of Crabbet in Suffex, now enjoys it.

Northend.

This is likewise a part of Dasset, and originally had its name from the Northern situation thereof from thence; there being nothing at all memorable therein other than a Chapell, which it hath antiently had.

Aven-Dasset.

Southwards from Burton-Dasset, stands Aven-
Dasset; but whither it was originally a member thereof, and part of what the Earl of Gloucestre
held there in the Conquerors time, is hard to determine, without farther light than I have yet had.
The most antient possessor of it, that I find, was William Giffard, a Retainer to Roger Earl of War- wick in King Stephens time, as may be observed from his so frequent being a witness to that Earls Charters,

Charters, and a Benefactor to the Templars, by the gift of some lands here, as may seem by that Account⁹ of their possessions taken in 31 H. 2. where it is written Aine Mercet. To him succeeded Andrew Giffard (though not immediately) whose heir in 36 H. 3. was found^r to hold one Kts. fee here of Roes de Verdun, and the of the Earl of Warwick. But in 7 E. 1. Murgerie de Cantilupe was certified^r to be owner of this Mannour, and to hold it of Theobald de Verdon, by the service of one Kts. fee, having then one Carucate of land, and a half, here in demeln, and 5 yard land besides, which was held by divers Tenants, who payd certain Rents and performed severall services for the same. From which Murgerie descended Walter de Cantilupe, Lord^r thereof in 9 E. 2. it being then reputed as a Hamlet of Farnborough; which Walter was Parson^u of Sutfield, and became posselt of this Mannour by the grant^u of Sir John de Cantilupe his Brother. But in 12 E. 2. the same Walt. de Cantilupe past^x away the inheritance thereof, together with the advoulon of the Church, unto Christiane de Bishopden, widow of Sir Will. de Bishopden Kt. reserving to himself an estate for life only.

Which Christiane, by her Deed^r, bearing date the Tuesday next after the Feast of St. Valentine the Martyr 13 E. 2. sold her said estate in reversion, herein, to Sir John Peché, the elder, Kt. and his heirs: to whose posterity it continued as long as their male line lasted, and afterwards came to the Montforts of Colshill, with the rest of Peché's lands, by the marriage of a Daughter and heir (as in Hampton in Arden shall be shewed;) And by the attainder of Sir Simon Montfort Kt. in 10 H. 7. to the Crown. Out of which it was passed, 25 Aug. 12 H. 7. to Gerald Earl of Bill-dare and Eliz. St. John his wife, and to the heirs male of their two bodies lawfully begotten: which Earl and his Lady had a Charter^a of Freewarren granted to them in all their demeln lands here, dated 20 Julii 18 H. 7. But leaving issue^b Sir James Fitz-Gerald Kt. attainted in 28 H. 8. it elchaeted again to the Crown; and by K. E. 6: 15 Dec. in the fourth year of his reign, was granted^c to Sir Raph Sadler Kt. Master of the great Wardrobe, and Laurence Wenington Gent. and to the heirs of the said Sir Raph, to be held in Socage: who by their Deed^d bearing date 6 Febr. next ensuing, sold it to John Woodward of Butlers-Sperston and his heirs; from whom is descended Richard Woodward Gent. the present owner thereof.

The Church (dedicated to St. Iohn Bapt.) had^e antiently two yard land belonging thereto; and in an. 1291. 19 E. 1. was valued^f at xii marks; but in 26 H. 8. at xiii l. xviii s. viii d.

Farnborough.

UPON the same ledge of Hills stands Farnborough, whereof the onely mention made in the Conq^r. Survey, is under the title of the Bishop of Chester's lands in this County, where it is certified, that the said Bishop then held 3 hides in this place, which is in that Record written Ferneberge; and, probably, had at first that name from the naturall disposition of the soil to bear Ferne, the later syllable Berge signifying in our old English a little Hill, as we see the ground, whereon the town stands, is. Before the Norman invasion it was^h the freehold of one Stori, and by the generall Survey valued at C s. but at that time, for the most part, involved with Spollington, as I guess: for the posterity of Osbernus fil. Ricardi (which Osbernus was then posselt of Spollington) were chief Lords of the Fee here: whose Grandchild, g } Domesday lib.

Hugh,

Hugh, assumed the Sirname of Say; from whom descended Margerie, who being heir to Ricardus-Castle in com. Heref. and other great possessions, brought them to the line of Mortimer, as the descent here inserted will shew; which I have thus drawn, chiefly to demonstrate that the Family of Say, long since Lords of this Mannour, was assuredly from that stock, though I cannot directly shew, where or when it brancht out. But by what authorities I have seen, relating to the owners of this place, I think it likely enough to have been, as I have here exprest, in as much as there is no disproportion in time to argue the improbability of it.

Having thus given my Reader the best advantage I can, for discerning how the succession of this Lordship hath gone, whilst it continued in the line of Say, I shall now briefly take notice of what I have found memorable, relating either to it, or to the persons who were owners of it. In 13 Job. amongst the Kts. fees belonging to Ricardus-Castle, which lay in this County, Herbert de Muchegros was certified^a to hold a fourth part of a Kts. fee, and Rob. de Mongumery (perhaps it sh^d be Mortuomari) the eighth part, here in Ferneberge. But in 20 H. 3. the extent^b of the Fees lying here, and then held by Will. de Statteville in right of that Castle, was one Kts. fee and a fourth part; which Kts. fee in 36 H. 3. was certified^c to be held by Thomas de Say, and the same fourth part by Nicholas de Say.

Touching these Says of Farnborough, I find that Jordan, the first, was^d in that Rebellion with the Barons against K. John, but returning to obedience in 1 H. 3. being then with Rob. Marmion (of whom he held his lands) had his estate restored^e to him, which lay in this County and Worcestershire: and that Thomas, son to the first Jordan, was a Kt. (of whom I shall say something when I come to speak of the Church:) as also that Jordan his son was Lord of Farnborough in 7 E. 1. and then certified^f to hold it of Robert de Mortimer (son of Hugh) by the service of one Kts. fee, having^g at that time two carucates of land in demesne and 5 Freeholders: which Jordan dyed^h in 33 E. 1.

leaving Jordan his son and heir 30 years of age, who by his Deed, bearing date at Worcester on Sunday being the Feast day of St. Edmund the K. in 11 E. 2. granted to John de Rale of Farnborough and his heirs the advowson of this Parish Church; unto which Deed, instead of his own Seal, was the Seal of the Bayliff of the City of Worcester affixed, with this expression, Et quia Sigillum meum non est cognitum, Sigillum Ballivi Civitatis Wigorn: presentibus apponi procuravi, & est appensum per Will. Lee.

But it was not long after this, that the said John de Rale purchased the whole Mannour of the same Jordan de Say: for in 15 E. 2. he levied a Fine^a thereof to him the said John and Joan his wife, and to the heirs of John: which John is in the list^b of those Esquires, whose names in 17 E. 2. amongst the Knights and men at Arms of this County, were returned into the Chancery; whence I conclude that he resided here at that time: but in 1 E. 3. he was^c a Kt. and bore for his Arms Argent semé of Crosslets gules, with a cross molein sable, as appeareth^d by the impression of his Seal, which coat his posterity have retained, even until this day. It seems he was originally descended from the Raleighs of Devonshire: for in 14 E. 3. he writes^e himself of Charles in that County: but he had lands in Farnborough, by purchase, in 8 E. 2. from Margerie the Widow of Philip de Fillongle, Daughter^f of Avicia, wife to Will. de Halton of Farnborough, which Avicia was Daughter^h to Nicholas de Say. Of Joan, wife to the above specified Sir John de Rale, I findⁱ that she was a Gray, though of what family I am not very certain; by whom he had issue John, Father to Thomas; upon which Thomas, and the issue of his body by Eliz. Daughter to Robert de Evesham, was this Lordship entailed^k in 17 E. 3. After which, viz. the same year, did Amicia the Widow to the before mentioned Jordan de Say, and Thomas de Say son and heir to the said Jordan, release unto the above specified Thomas de Ralegh all their right and claim therein, as appears by their deed bearing date at Salisbury on the Feast day of St. Benedict the Abbot.

This Thomas de Ralegh was a man of much publick employment: For in 47 E. 3. I find him in Commission for the levying and collecting a Fifteenth and Tenth. In 4 R. 2. Sheriff of this County and Leicestershire. In the sixth, joyn'd in Commission^o with Thomas Earl of Warwick and other persons of quality for conservation of the Peace and resistance of the Rebels in this Shire (Jack Straw and his fellows being then up in Arms.) In 12 R. 2. he bore the Office of Sheriff^p again for this County and Leicestershire, so also in 15 R. 2. being in Commission^r for the Peace at other times; and departed^s this life in 21 R. 2. leaving Thomas his son and heir xvii. years of age, who in 3 H. 4. had livery^t of his lands, which Thomas wedded^u Joan the Daughter and heir to Will. Lord Astley of Astley in this County; and resided with her at Astley, as it seems: for by his Testament, bearing date there upon Wednesday next after the Feast of St. Luke the Evang. in 6 H. 4. he bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Quire of the Collegiate Church of our Lady at Astley, and x li. of silver to the same Church, to the end that his Obit should be perpetually there observed, and his name written in the Martyrologe: And also gave xlii l. xlii s. iii d. for the providing viding of one Priest, to celebrate divine service there for his soul, for the space of three years after his decease. To the poor xx. marks. To his Brother John Raleigh two Gowns, To the Bayliff of Farnborough xiii s. iii. To the Church of St. Botolph, here at Farnborough xl s. To the Lord of Astley a Bowl with a Cover of silver; and to Joan Lady Astley (his wife) a Diamond, and a Boul of silver with a cover. To every yeoman of the Lord of Astley's household vi s. viii d. To every Groom there iii s. iii d. and to Will. Raleigh his son, a Sword harness'd with silver; as also a Dagger, and a wood knife. And departed this life in the same sixth year of H. 4. leaving issue Will. his son and heir, but xii months old; as also a Daughter called Joan, afterwards marry'd, first to Gerard Braybroke Esq. and secondly to Edw. Bromsflete: which Edward, by the death of the said Will. Raleigh in his minority 8 H. 5. was in his wives right Lord of this Mannour, and here resided in 10 H. 6.

What particular agreement, with the said Joan or her posterity, was made by the male branch of this family (of Raleigh) I find not: but certain it is, that they came to be owners of this Lordship again, it continuing to their posterity even till this very day: the first of them that had any publick employment in this Shire, being Sir Edw. Raleigh Kt. son of Will. son of John, a younger Brother to the last Thomas, as the descent here placed will shew.

Which Sir Edw. bore the office of Shirriff, for this County and Leicestershire, in 7 E. 4. and being a Justice of Peace from 1 E. 5. till 18 H. 7. was at sometimes in Commission for arraying of men, and for the Gaol delivery at Warwick. In

1 H. 8. he was Steward to the K. for his Mannours of Sutcliffe, and Beasley in this County: And by his Testament, bearing date 20 Junii 1509. (1 H. 8.) bequeathed his body to be buried in the Chapel of our Lady, here at Farnborough, directing that the sum of CCCli. should be raised out of his estate, lying in the Counties of Heref. and Glouc. to purchase lands of x li. per an. value, to be amortized to the Chantry in the said Chapel of our Lady: and that the Chantry Priest there, should be a well disposed D. of Divinity to Preach the word of God; as also to pray for him the said Sir Edw. his wife, with all his Ancestors and Successors, and all Christen souls. By which Testament he gave xxx l. for to build the South side of the Cloister at Combe, and for Glasing it: To the Abbot there he bequeathed xx s. To every Priest vi s. viii d. To every Monk profess, and no Priest iii s. iii d. All which were therefore to keep the yearly Obit of him the said Sir Edw. and Margaret his wife; as also of Will. Raleigh and Eliz. his wife, Raph Verney and Emme his wife, Fathers and Mothers of them the said Sir Edw. and Margaret. To the Dominican Friars at Warwick he gave x s. To the Friars Minors at Cobentre x s. To the White Friars at Cobentre x s. and to the Augustine Friars at Atherston x s. Which Margaret was Daughter to Sir Raph Verney Kt. Citizen and Mercer of London; by whom he had issue Sir Edw. Raleigh Kt. Father of George; who by his Testament dated 2 Apr. an. 1546. (37 H. 8.) bequeathed his body to be buried in the Chancell of the Church of Ogburne-George, if it should fortune him to dye there.

Concerning the Church, here, (dedicated to St. Botolph) I find, that Nicholas the Son of Hugh de Fernberge, in Ric. 1. time, made a grant, that in case it happened he should sell or pawn any of his lands to the Canons of Clatercote, or any other Religious House, it might be no prejudice to the Church of this place in their Tithes arising out of any Cattrell depasturing thereon: And that Sir Thomas de Say Kt. in H. 3. time, granted to Thomas de Wymundham, then Parson thereof, the homage and service of Will. de Williamscothe, uncle to him the said Sir Thomas, and of his heirs, for 1. mess. and 1 yard land, which he the said Will. held of him here in Farnborough.

In an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) this Rectory was valued at xi. marks; and in 11 E. 2. the advowson thereof was granted by Jordan de Say (Lord of the Mannour) unto John de Raleigh, and his heirs. After which, viz. in 13 E. 3. I find, that Sir Will. Shreshull Kt. purchased it, of Thomas de Hulhampton Kt. and Margaret his wife; but how they had John de Rale's title therein, I know not: And the next year following granted it to the Canons of Lilthull in com. Salop. and their Successors; which Canons obtained an appropriation thereof from Roger de Northburgh Bishop of Cob. and Lich. 3 Non. Martii an. 1345. 19 E. 3. the Vicaridge being endowed the xii Cal. of Dec. following, and a Pension of v. sol. per an granted to the Dean and Chapter of Lich. and their Successors, by the said Canons of Lilthull out of the fruits of the same Rectory: But the said endowment was made void, as it seems; for it appears that by an Instrument, bearing date x. Kal. Julii 1367 (41 E. 3.) upon a Petition exhibited to the Abbot of Lilthull by the Canons of that House, setting forth how short their maintenance tenance was, the said Abbot, by the consent and License of Rob. de Stretton, then Bishop of Eob. and Lich. granted all the profits thereof unto them, for augmentation of their dyet and clothing; though what was thereupon reserved for the Vicar I have not seen: which Vicaridge in 26 H. 8. was rated at Cxxii. s. over and above viii. s. allowed for Procurations and Sinodals.

Here is but part of this town in Warwickshire, the rest lying in Oxfordshire, wherewith I am not to meddle. That which is certified by the Conq. Survey^r to be in this County, was then rated at v. hides, which were valued at lx. s.
and possessed by Osbernus fil. Ricardi (of whom in Aston Cantilupe I have spoke;) but before the Norman invasion belonged unto the Mother of Leuvinus de Ninnueham: From the descendants of which Osbernus the one half thereof came to Juliana de S. Remigio, who bestowed^a it upon the Canons of Kenilworth about K. H. 2. time; to whom it continued till the dissolution of that Monastery; but then coming to the Crown, was purchased by Fouk Woodhull Gent. in 37 H. 8.
who had a grant^b thereof, bearing date 12. Junii
the same year, to himself and his heirs, to hold in Capite by the xth part of a Kts. fee, paying x s. ix d. ob. yearly Rent. Which Fouk had issue
Leonard, and he John^d that dyed^c seized of it 30 Jan. 30 Eliz. leaving Anthony his son and heir, then of full age.

But the other part came to Thomas de Arden of Rotley, or his Ancestor, by grant from some of the descendants of the before specified Osbernus, to hold by the half of a Kts. fee: for by the Record^f of 36 H. 3. it appeareth, that Agnes Cagthelme then held it of the said Thomas, and he of Ricards-Castle; From which Agnes it divolved to Alanore de Clare, who in 1 E. 2. held it of the heirs of Ricards-Castle by the like service; and in 5 E. 3. dyed^h seized of it, leaving John her son and heir 22 years of age. After which,
John de Herdwike in 20 E. 3. heldⁱ it by the third part of a Kts. fee (at which time the Prior of Kenilworth's, part answered for no more:) but in 13 R. 2. it went for half^k a Kts. fee, as formerly. Howbeit, in 18 R. 2. Edm. Waldeyve was found^l to dye seized thereof, and that he held it in right of Margaret his wife, as of her inheritance, leaving Thomas his son and heir xiiiij. years of age: But how to derive the title that these had from each other, is past my skill, except I had the sight of private evidence: And as much am I to seek in the discovery of its succession till of late:
for after this till H. 8. time, I have not seen ought else thereof: neither then do I find any more, but two Fines, the one levied^m in 1 H. 8. betwixt Sir Nicholas Vaus Kt. and others Plaintiffs, and Sir Thomas Brandon Kt. and Eliz. his wife defendants, of the fourth part: the other inⁿ 24 H. 8. of the moitie thereof, betwixt Rob. Dormer, and others Plaintiffs, and Rog. Beket and others deforc. but to what uses I know not. The next owner thereof, that I meet with, was^o Henry Keble, who, by his last Will and Testament, settled^p it (inter alia)
upon George Keble his Grandchild, and the heirs Male of his body, with remainder to Sir Will.
Blount Lord Montjoy, and the Lady Alice his wife; which Lord Montjoy and Alice had issue
Will. their son and heir.

Shotswell.

Shotswell.

Passing over the vally from Spolington, Westwards, I come next to Shotswell, situate on that brow, or ledge, which beareth the name of Edge-hill for many miles: But of this place I find nothing at all by particular name in the Conq^{ts}. Survey^u; and therefore do conclude that it was then involved with Warminsteron, at that time certified to contain a greater number of hides, than of it self it would have been found to do, as I suppose: the reason of this my conjecture arising, partly from the consideration of its adjacency to Warminsteron and partly for that it hath been, with Warminsteron, of the Earl of Warwick: fee: From one of which Earls it was granted to the Ancestor of John de Dyve, who had fair lands in Orfordsh. hard by; and from Dyve to the Progenitor of Rob. Fitzwith (id est filius Guidonis;) and from Fitzwith to Wandard, as may seem by that notable Record^r of 7 E. 1. But when these passages were I cannot certainly tel; yet do believe them to have been very antient; for I find that Robert Wandard had to do here, in K. John's time; and that his Fathers name^r was Will. of whom there is mention^u in 16 H. 2. Betwixt which Robert and the Abbot of Preaur, in Pormandy, there was a Fine^r levied in 5 H. 3. touching the advouson of this Church; whereby it being settled upon the said Robert, he granted an yearly Pension of x s. to the Church of Warminsteron of the Patronage of the said Abbot, to be forever received of the Parsons incumbent there.

As for the name, I find it in antient time somewhat variously written; viz. Shottelwell, Shetelwell, Shetelweld, and Shettelwelle; but do suppose that it proceeded originally from one Sho (for that was an appellation in use before the Norman Conquest) and a fair Spring issuing out of the Hill there, and called by his name. But of these Wandards were there more that bore the name of Robert than one, as it seems: for in 40 H. 3. I find, that amongst many others, who by the K. speciall Pat. had respite of their Knight-hood untill Christmas in that year, Robert de W. n. liri is certified to be one, being of this County. It is very like that this Robert is he, who in 7 E. 1. held what he had here of John Fitzwith, by the service of half a Knights fee; at which time the said John, being Superior Lord, had one Carucate of land in demesne, and two servants; the Canons^r of Clatercote 7 yard land, and the Canons^r of Studley a Carucate, and six Cotages, which were given^o to them by Will. de Cantilupe, and which he the said Will. had by acquisition from Eustace de Morstein and John Wandard.

This Rob. Wandard (sometimes also written Wandak;) was a Knight^e in 15 E. 1. and Coroner to the King in this County, as appears by his Writ^r of discharge from that office in 27 E. 1. and had issue Thomas, who, about the beginning of E. 2. time (as I judge) sold this Mannour of Shotswell to Will. de Beresford: for in 9 E. 2. the said Will. is certified^e to be Lord thereof; but the Fine thereupon was not levied^r till 12 E. 2. Which Will. dyed^r seized of it in 20 E. 2. leaving Edmund his son and heir 28 years of age. But of this family of Beresford I shall speak further when I come to Langlep in Hemlingford

Hundred. In 9 E. 3. the said Edmund had a Charter^r of Free-Warren granted to him (inter alia) in all his demesne lands here: the like Charter^r had Sir Baldwin de Beresford Kt. in 4 R. 2. Which Sir Baldwin, as it seems, past away his estate in this Mannour to Sir John Beauchamp of Holt Kt. but not direct y; for the Fine^r whereby it became veiled in the said Sir John and Joan his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, was levied by one Richard de la Felde, a Priest, and others (who were Feeffees) in 49 E. 3. This Sir John Beauchamp is he, who was attainted in the Parl. o' xi R. 2. and put to death (of whom I have already spoke in Bobenhull;) John his son and heir being at that time but xi years of age; whose wardship, with the custody of this Mannour, was by the said K. 11 Feb. 12 R. 2. granted^r to Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick: which John, being afterwards a Kt. dyed^r seized of this Mannour in 8 H. 5. leaving Margaret the wife of John Poncefof his Daughter^r and heir, who afterwards became the wife^o of John VV. yham.

But the next possessors hereof, that I find, were John Ash on of Somerton in Orfordshire, and John Blount of Wyginton in the same County; viz. in 10 H. 6. perhaps by marriage with some coheirs to the before specified Margaret. It seems that the greatest part there came at length to the said John Ash on; and that it was by him granted^r to James le Botiller Earl of Dymund, whose son and heir; viz. James Boteler, created^r Earl of Ulster 8 July 27 H. 6. following the fate of the Lancastrian House, whereunto he adhered in those times of civil dissention, became attainted^r in the Parl. held at Westminster 1 E. 4. and put to death at Bewcastle, having no issue. After which K. Edw. by his Letters^r P. dated 16 Sept. in the second year of his reign, in consideration of the good and acceptable service, which Ric. Harecourt Esq. had performed unto Richard D. of York. Father to the said King; as also to the K. himself, granted it unto him the said Richard and Edith his wife, and to the issue male of their two bodies: Howbeit, I do not perceive that the whole Mannour past by that Pat. for in 12 E. 4. there was a Fine^r levied of a third part thereof with the third part of divers other Mannours in Orford and Worcester shires whereby it became settled upon Thomas Croft Esq. and Eliz. his wife, with remainder to the right heirs of the said Eliz. by which it should seem that she was a coheir to the lands formerly belonging to Sir John Beauchamp beforementioned, in regard that the third part of the Mannour of Holt in com. Wigorn. is settled (inter alia) therewith.

After which, viz. in 4 H. 8. John Crofte and Eliz. his wife levied a Fine^r of the moytie of this Mannour, to Simon Rice Citizen and Mercer of London, and others; but to what uses I know not. Neither can I say to what uses that Fine did inure, which was levied^r of this Mannour in 10 H. 8. between John Trevelthen and others Plaintiffs, and Margaret Boleyn widow Deforc. Howbeit, for certain, that Fine levied thereof 29 H. 8. betwixt Thomas Pope, Esq. Pl. and Ric. Fermour and others Deforc. was to the use of the said Thomas Pope, and his heirs; for even to these very times his posterity do enjoy the same, together with another Mannour here, which appertained to the dissolved Monastery of Studley; for by that name it past^r from the Crown in 31 H.

8. unto the same Thomas and the heirs male of hisbody, he being then a Knight, and Treasurer of the Court of Augmentation.

Touching the Church (dedicated to S. Laurence) I have already shewed, that the advouson thereof was vested² in Robert Wandard, and his heirs, by the Monks of Picau in Normandy; whereupon a Pension of x s. per annum, became settled² out of the fruits thereof to be payd to the Parson of Warmington and his successors. In anno 1291. 19 E. 1. it being valued^b at viii. marks, was afterward granted to the Monastery of Lavenden in Com. Buck. about the beginning of E. 3. time, as it should seem by the Presentations thereto; but not appropriated till 2 R. 2. and then Pope Urban the 6. by his Bull^c dated at Rome on the Ides of November, granted unto the Canons of that House liberty to take the fruits thereof to their own peculiar use; the same year Simon de Sudbury Archbishop of Cant. ordaining^d the Vicaridge, which in 26 H. 8. was valued^e at Cxiii s. iv d.

tion originally sprung from some ancient possessor thereof in the Saxons time; perhaps Weremundus, for that appellation was then usuall.

This, as most of the lands, which the said Earl had in Warwickshire came to Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick (brother to the same E. of Mellent) but by what Agreement appears not; w^{ch} Henry gave^e it wholly, excepting the Hamlets belonging thereto, to the Monks of Picau, in Normandy; who built a Cell here, and sent over part of their Covent to reside therein, and to be subordinate to their House of Picau; of which Cell the said Earl Henry is reputed^h to have been Founder: which Religious House stood about the midst of the town, as the Inhabitants, by tradition, do affirm. This grant so made to Picau by Earl Henry, was in Edw. 1. time confirmedⁱ by William de Beauchamp then Earl of Warwick, it being then found that there were xx. Tenants here, that held their lands by a servile tenure; viz. each one providing a Labourer one day every week, for the Lord's imployment, or to give 1 d. ob. for every day in the week, which would amount to x d. and so in the year to xliii s. iv d. And that every one of them should plow for the Lord thrice in the year, or give x s. per annum and mow his meadowing or give x d. As also that every yard land should find two men for 3. days in Harvest, or give for every day in stede of a man iij. d. which comes to xxx s. in the year: That they should carry the Lords Hay, or give xl d. That each man should perform one dayes carriage in Harvest, or give xl d. That they should make the Lords Hay, or give x d. Rake his corne or give x d. Harrow each of them one day with a single Horse, or give x d. And lastly carry once in the year at Warwick, or give xl d. Howbeit afterwards I find^k, that this whole town payd only a marke per annum to the Earls of Warwick at two termes, viz. Candlemas, and Whitsontide for all services.

But this Mannour so belonging to Picau grew afterwards reputed^l to be parcell of the possessions pertaining to the Priory of Tostes in Normandy (which Religious House was founded by those forraign Monks after they had the grant^m of the Mannour of Tostes by Rob. E. of Mellent before mentioned) the Monks here, being either recalled into Normandy, or transmitted to Tostes: And upon the seizure of those lands which the Priors-Alien had in England (whereof in Wolston I have fully spoke) was in 33 E. 3. committed to the custodyⁿ of John de Herdemyk: Howbeit afterwards, the King allowing some favour to the Monks of those Cells, the Prior of Tostes had permission to^o ferm it; who whilst he was Tenant thereto, made much waft^p here, by falling CC. Ashes, prized then at xx li. the yearly value thereof being about that time rated^q at xxix li. xi s. vi d. per annum.

Certain it is, that the frequent seizures of such lands, by reason of the Warrs with France, made those forraign Monks willing enough to sell their interest in them, during those troubles at least; as may appear by the passing them away, aswell to divers Lay persons, as unto some Religious Houses in England about this time: amongst which this Mannour of Warmington, as also that of Tostes, with some others, was by those Monks of Picau granted^r to Lewys Clifford for life, with remainder to Lewys, his son, for life also, upon a certain Rent reserved to the King during the continuance of those warrs.

Warmington.

More than a mile Northwards, on the side of Medg-Hill; stands Warmington, which in the Conquerors time, being posselt by the Earl of Mellent, contained xv. hides and a half; two whereof were held by a certain Knight of the said Earl, and valued at xx s. and the residue rated at x li. all which had been the Freehold of one Azor before the Norman invasion. In that Survey^s it is written Wermintone in one place, and Warmintone in another; but I presume that its denomina-

He was the sonⁱ to Roger de Bellomont (a person of great esteem with King William the first when he was but Duke of Normandy, being one of^k his prime Councillers) by Adelina daughter of Walleran, and sister to Hugh Earl of Wexelant: after the death of which Hugh without issue, he^m obtained the Castle of Wexelant from the King of France for a summe of money, and succeeded him in the title of Earl. Of his speciall valour in that famous Battail with Duke William, whereby he got the Crown of England: hearken to what Guil. Pictavenfis saith "—— Tyro quidam Normannus, Rogarii de Bellomonte filius, Hugonis de Melleto

Mellento Comitibus, ex Adelina sorore, nepos & haeres, primum illo die primum experiens, egit quod aternandum esset laude, cum legione quam in dextro cornu duxit, irruens, ac sternens magna cum audacia. No mervail therefore then, that, besides his inheritance in Normandy, he obtained from the Conqueror ingentia pradia in Anglia, as W. Malmesb. observes: Amongst which this Village of Arlescote being part, he devoutly bestowed it on the Monks of Preaur, before specified, together with the Mannour of Toffes in Dorset; as also the Church and Tithes of Cherlenton in Com. Of which Monastery at Preaur Humfry de Vetus grandfather to this Robert, began the Foundation; whereof Roger de Bellomont, his son (father to our Earl of Wessex) was so great a lover, that he not onely perfected the work, but plentifully endowed it; and afterwards bidding farewell to the vain pleasures of this transitory world, became himself a Monk therein, choosing it for his sepulture.

But I return to Robert Earl of Wessex, who was a man of an haughty spirit, as it seems: for in an. 1090. sc. 3. Will. Rufi. being exceedingly puffed up with rewards and promises by the King, he came to Roan, and boldly required of Robert Curthose D. of Normandy, the Castle of Abberp. To whom the Duke answered, that he had given to his father the Castle of Bizon for it, which was an equall exchange: whereupon he replied, I allow not of that bargain, but what your father gave to my father, that will I have, otherwise, by S. Nicholas, I shall do that which will displease you. At which words the Duke growing very angry, caused him to be layd hold on and imprisoned; whereof so soon as the crafty old man, his father, heard, he sent the Duke a Present, hasting afterwards himself to him, and with fine flattering expressions obtained his sons liberty. Being a faithfull adherent to King Henry 1. against his brother Robert Curthose before specified, he was thereupon advanced to the Earldom of Leicester, in England; and had also other rich gifts: but how he got that Earldom let us hear Ordericus Vitalis tell. Urbs Legrecstria quatuor dominos habuerat (saith he) Regem & Episcopum Lincolnie, Simonemq; Comitem, & Yvonem Hugonis filium, Præfatus autem Consul de Mellento, per partem Yvonis, qui municeps erat & Vice-Comes, & firmiter Regis, callide intravit; & auxilio Regis, suaq; calliditate totam sibi civitatem mancipavit, & inde Consul in Anglia factus, omnes Regni proceres divitiis & potestate præcessit, & per omnes parentes suos transcendit.

Now what the particulars of this cunning and deceitfull dealing were, I shall briefly here rehearse. This Robert, having begun a Rebellion in England, wherein he had done much mischief by firing some Houses of his neighbours; and being, through the Kings excessive indignation towards him, fined at a vast summe, made his addressee to this Earl of Wessex; qui p accipiens erat inter Consiliarios Regis (saith my Author) hoping by his means to obtain some favour; who subtilly advised him to perform a long Pilgrimage, for effecting whereof he would help him to 500. marks of silver, keeping his lands in pawn for xv. years; with promise, that at the end of that terme, they should be wholly restored to Robert his son; and not onely so, but that he would give him his brothers daughter (viz. Henry Earl of Warwick) in marriage: For the performance of which Agreement the Earl of Wessex gave his oath, the King himself also assenting thereto: But in this Pilgrimage Robert departing the world, his son neither enjoy'd the woman, as was promised, nor any of his paternall inheritance.

Other particulars I shall for brevity omit, winding up my discourse with this Satiricall Character of an eminent Author of that time hath of him. Euit igitur Robertus Consul de Mellento in sapientissimus omnium, hinc usq; in degentium. Euit scientia clarus, ingenio versipellus, prudentia insuperabilis, consilio profundus, sapientia magnus: Possessiones igitur magnas & varias, quas vulgò vocant Honores; urbes & Castella, Vicos, & Villas, & flumina, & silvas prædictis adquisierat instrumentis. Erant autem Honores ejus non solum in Anglia, verum & in Normannia, & in Francia: pro libitu igitur suo Reges Francorum & Anglorum nunc concordem uniebantur, nunc discordes præliabantur. Si adversus aliquem insurgebat contritus humiliabatur; si proesse volebat gloriosus exaltabatur: Hinc thesauri copia, auri scil. & argenti, gemmarum & palliorum incredibiliter ei confluebat. Cum igitur in summo statu gloria sua degeret, contigit quendam alium Consulem sponsam ei, tam factione quam dolosis viribus arripuisse; unde in senectute sua mente turbatus, & angaria obnubilatus, in tenebras mæroris incidit; nec usq; ad mortem se letum vel ylaem sensit. Cum igitur post dies dolori dedicatos in infirmitatem mori præstantiam incidisset, rogatus est ab Archiepiscopo & Sacerdotibus cum ei Confessionis purgatorium impenderent officium, ut terras quas vi vel arte multis abstulerat, pœnitens redderet, & erratum lacrimis lavaret. Quibus respondens ait. Si terras quas aggregavi multifariam divisero, quid miser filiis meis relinquam? Cui contra Ministri Domini, Sufficiens filiis tuis hæreditates pristinae, & quas juxta terras adquisisti, cætera redde, alicquin animam devovisti Gehennæ. Respondit autem consul. Filiis omnia tradam; ipsi pro salute defuncti misericorditer agant: Eo autem defuncto filii ejus magis injustè congregata, injustè studuerunt augere, quam aliquid pro salute paterna distribuere. Liqueat igitur summam viri sapientiam, in fine quasi laus canitur, non solum in summam stultitiam, sed in cecam devenisse insaniam.

This great man wedded Isabell daughter to Hugh Earl of Normandy; by whom he had issue Robert that succeeded him in the Earldome of Leicester, and Walleran Earl of Wessex, both twins, with another son called Hugh, surnamed Pauper, Earl of Bedford, and divers daughters; one whereof, viz. Elizabeth was a Concubine to King H. 1. And departing this life on the Nones of June anno 1118. (18 H. 1.) lyeth buried in the Monastery of Preaur before mentioned.

All that now rests, in relation to this place, is to enquire what became thereof after the generall dissolution in King Hen. 8. time; wherein I find, that it was (inter alia) past out of the Crown 17. Junii 34 H. 8. to Ric. Andrews gentleman and Leonard Chamberlain Esquier, and to the heirs of Andrews. As for the three virgates (in case Walleran and this be all one) it appears, that Geoffrey de Linton had them of the Earl of Warwick's grant, and that he bestowed them on the Monks of Stoneley immediatly after the Foundation it proceeded from the high situation of the place, the syllable Up signifying as much as supra: but the first mention that I find of it, is in H. 2. time (if not King Stephens) where one Haraldus filius Gunfridi maketh sale to Godfrey de Arden (a Monk of Cobentre and son to Siward de Arden) of certain lands lying here, to the use of that Monastery. After this, viz. in R. 1. time, as I guesse, did Thomas de Arden grant certain lands, lying in this place, to the Canons of S. Sepulchers in Marwick; in which deed it is written Hoptone. But there was anciently a family assuming their surname from their residence here, which held it of the Ardens; whereby 'tis evident, that from one of that line they were enfeoffed thereof. Of these one is called, Rich. de Hpton: and I have seen an ancient Roll wherein it appeareth, that Roger de Hpton held it of Thomas de Arden by the service of the tenth part of a Kts. fee: From which Roger, I presume, descended John de Hpton, certified to be Lord thereof in 9 E. 2. Howbeit, the services here due to the Ardens; and their heir, were granted away by Thomas (who sold this Lordship) unto Guy de Gyllebrok: which Guy past them to Will. de Beauchamp Earl of Marwick: so that afterwards it was held of the said Earl and his descendants.

But the next mention I find of this Mannour, is in 30 H. 6. where W. Verney Esquier, son and heir to Robert Perry of great Wolfeord in this County, by his Ded^e, bearing date 12. Feb. 30 H. 6. sold it to R. Dalby of Brookhampton gent. for Lxxviii l. vi s. viii d. sterling: which Richard enfeoffed the-^r of one Morgan Kydwelly Esq. and others, to certain uses; who sold it to Will. Danvers (afterwards K^t) which Will. depopulated i mess. and inclosed xxviii. acres of land, and CC. acres of pasture in this place: From whom is lineally descended John Danvers Esq. now Lord thereof.

Upon the corner of Cog-Hill within this parish, is there a great Fortification, of a quadrangular forme. Containing about twelve acres as I guesse; unto which, in our memory, was found a Sword of brasse, and a Battail-axe; touching which kinde of weapons M. Cambden in Comwall maketh some mention. Of such and other Fortifications, made by the Romans, (as this doubtlesse was) Polybius in his xvii. book speakeeth. v Regis. Prior. de Cobentre penes Ma- gnum & B. f. 1. a.
This was heretofore posselt by the family of Arden, being originally a member of Ratley, and therefore is involved therewith in the Conquerors Survey, though it be not particularly mentioned. As for its name, there is no question but that Radway.

This place, being situate on the skirt, and neer the passage up to Cog-Hill, had its name originally, as I guesse, from the red colour of the earth which sheweth it self at a good distance upon that road by reason of the ascending ground. In the Conquerors time it contained six hides, three whereof were then posselt by the Monks of Cobentre, and valued at L. s. two by Earl Alberic, (Progenitor to the Earl of Orford) rated at xx s. and one by Ricardus Forestarius (of whom I have spoke in Chesherton) valued at xxv s. in which Survey it is written Radwot, and Rodelwele. But upon some Agreement betwixt the said Monks of Cob, and the Bishop, that which they had here came to him, it seems; Two hides whereof did Roger de Clinton Bishop of Cobentre give in frank Almes to the Monks of Radmore in K. Steph. time; and the third, coming to G. ffrey de Clinton (of Kenilworth) was by him bestowed on the same Monks for the health of his soul, and the souls of his father and mother, and other his Ancestors: in acknowledgment of which favour they gave him C s. and to Henry his son a Bisantine.

Touching that which Earl Alberic had, it came to Hugh Bigot Earl of Northfolk in H. 2. time, in marriage, as I suppose, with Julian daughter to Alberic de Vere (the Kings Chamberlain) grandchild to the said Earl Alberic: for in 9. Joh. the Sherriff of this County received the Kings Precept to render the possession possession thereof to Roger Bigot Earl of Posfolk (son to the said Hugh) it having been seized into his hands upon wroug information, as part of the possessions of Simon Montfort Earl of Leicester, who was in rebellion about that time. It seems that it was afterwards seized again for the King as an Eicheat; for in 6 H. 3. the Shiriff of Warwickshire had a commandⁿ to make livery thereof to Hugh Bigot Earl of Posfolk son to the same Roger. I find it anciently accounted^o for half a Kts. fee; but the land it self, as is evident, being granted toundry persons, was part'y given^e to the Monks of Stoneley, or by those Monks purchast^d from the particular Freeholders (which Monks were translated from Radmoze thither, as in Stoneley I have shewed;) And partly to the Canons of Crobury; for it appears^r that Raph de Sudley beittowed on that Religious House one whole hide lying here, which in 7 E. 1. was rated^t at two yard land, and then held by 5. Tenants, who payd severall Rents, and performed severall servile labours; At which time the proportion that the Monks of Stoneley had here was esteemed^t at four carucates, whereof two they then held in demesn, the rest being in the hands of Tenants, who payd somewhat in Rents, and the rest in servile imployments for those Monks.

But the residueⁿ of this town, being vii. yard land and a half, was then posselt by John de Morcote, son^w of Alan de Morcote, who held it of Richard de Loges. This is that which in the Conquerors time was rated at one hide, and held by Ric. Forestarius, as I have already declared; whose right therein lineally descended to the family of Loges, as in Chesterford hath been shewed; and by Hugh de Loges, father to Richard above mentioned, was aliened^x to the said Alan de Morcote. In that part which the Monks of Stoneley had here, they had Freewarren^y granted to them in 12 E. 1. having a Grange within the precincts thereof, ^z called Edge-Grange: But it was not long ere they became Lords of more: for it is evident^a that in 14 E. 1. the above mentioned John de Morcote sold part of that he had unto them: Howbeit, the Abbots tenants here did anciently^b use to performe their suit at the Court-Leet held for the Honour of Leicester.

The residue of that which was of Loges his fee, and formerly posselt by the above specified Alan de Morcote, being^c 7. messuages, one toft, with 7. yard land and a half, was in 22 R. 2. granted by Robert de Walden of Warwick to the said Monks, to find a certain Wax Candle burning in the Conventuall Church of Stoneley every day at the Masse of our blessed Lady whilst the world should endure. Of these lands, after the dissolution of the Monasteries, a great part was disposed to purchasers; viz: Edge-Grange to^d Ric. Andrews gent. Leonard Chamberlain Esquire, and to the heirs of Andrews, in 34 H. 8. Radway-Grange (which is in the parish of Bishops-Achington) to^e Francis Goodere gent. and his heirs 13. Apr. 36 H. 8. And in 7 E. 6. another proportion to^f Thomas and Hunsfry Cocks, both brethren, and to the heirs of Thomas. But what hands they have past through since I know not.

The Church (dedicated to S. Peter) hath been anciently appropriated to the Monastery of Stoneley. In anno 1291. 19 E. 1. it was valued^g at two marks; and in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge^h at Cxii s. over and above viii s. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

Tisoe.

Following the tract of Edge-Hill, it leads me next to Tisoe, which stands likewise at the skirt thereof, having within its precincts the Hamlets of Westcote and Hyte-Herowpke. This is a great Lordship, and contained xxiii. hides in the Conq. days, as appears by his generall Surveyⁱ, where it is written Wichestoc, being then rated at xxx li. and posselt by Rob. de Stadford, (a person of eminent note) at which time there was a Church: but before the Norman Invasion Waga, of whom in Wotton I shall speak, held it.

Continuing to the posterity of the said Robert for divers ages, I find^k; that in 7 E. 1. Nich. de Stafford held

held it, as part of his Barony, by the service of one Knights fee, having at that time two carucates in demesne, and xiii. Tenants occupying certain proportions of land under severall Rents, and divers particular services; viz. Plowing, Harrowing, Mowing, Threshing and the like. And that Robert de Stafford, son to the same Nicholas, held then also a good quantity of land here of his said father, upon which he had xix. tenants, who, occupying the greatest part thereof, performed the like servile duties as his father's Tenants d.d. At that time also it appears, that the Monks of Worcester had 3. yard land and a half within the precincts of this Lordship; The Nuns of Bretwood two yard land and a half; The Bishop of Worcester 4. yard land; The Canons of Stone 3. yard land, with the advowson of the Church; The Canons of Benilworth 5. yard land; The Canons of Crobury 2. carucates; and the Templars of Balshall 1. carucate, all of the fee and gift of the Barons of Stafford: All whose Tenants, except those to the Canons of Benilworth, and Templars, did their suit twice a year at the Court-Leet held at Kinton for that Hundred.

Which Nicholas Lord Stafford, in 13 E. 1. had Free-warren granted to him in all his demesne lands here: So also in 15 E. 3. had Raph Lord Stafford, grand-child to the same Nicholas, in consideration of his acceptable services (he being at that time Steward of the King's household) a weekly Mercate granted to him and his heirs therein upon the Tuesday, and a Fair yearly for four dayes; viz. on the Even and day of S. Peter ad Vincula (commonly called Lammastide) and two days following: As also a Court-Leet, with Weyf. Sirey. and divers other privileges. But in 12 H. 8. did Edw. D. of Buck pass away this Mannour to Ric. B. of Winchester, and others, to the use of Sir Will. Compton Kt. and his heirs; since which time they have enjoy'd it, the Earl of Northampton (whose descent in Compton-Wynate is inserted,) being now owner thereof.

That which the Templars had here was granted to them by Rob. de Stafford, and Henry de Clinton, being in 31 H. 2. valued at vi li. ii s. viii d. But coming afterwards to the Crown, with all other lands belonging to the Religious Houses, was in 7 E. 6. past out, by the name of a Mannour to Edw. Aglionby of Balshall gent. and Henry Hugford of Solt-hull gent. and their heirs by Letters Pat. dated 26. May, being now called Temple-Tilsoe, by way of distinction from the other Lordship.

Within the precinct of that Mannour in Tilsoe, now belonging to the E. of Northampton, (but anciently to the family of Stafford as I have shewed) there is cut upon the side of Edg. Hill the proportion of a Horse in a very large forme; which, by reason of the ruddy colour of the Earth, is called the Red Horse, and giveth denomination to that fruitful and pleasant Countrey thereabouts, commonly called The vale of Red Horse: The Trenches of which ground, where the shape of the said Horse is so cut out, being yearly scoured by a Free-holder in this Lordship, who holds certain lands there by that service.

The Church (dedicated to the Assumption of the B. Virgin) being given to the Canons of Stone by Rob. de Stafford, grandchild to the first Robert who lived in the Conq. time, was in an. 1291. 19 E. 1. valued at xxx. marks (and appropriated to those Canons by Godfrey Giffard B. of Worcester

Westcote.

This place, lying Westwards from Tilsoe, was involved therewith at the time of the Conq. Survey; but till 3. Joh. I have not seen it mentioned in any Record, and then was there a Fine levied betwixt one Alardus de Westcote, and Basilia de Mora, of certain lands here, it being of her inheritance, as one of the three daughters and coheirs of Rob. fitz Otes, who was Lord of Locksley also, and held it of the Barons of Stafford; by one of which, either himself, or one of his Ancestors was, it seems, enfeoffed. Which said Basilia, being married to Peter de Mora, had issue 5. daughters; the eldest whereof was wife to Raph le Falconer, otherwise called Raph de Mora; the second to Rob. de Offsworth; the third to Rob. Balance; the fourth to Paulyne Peyure; and the fifth to one Leonard a Kt.

This Raph le Falconer, alias de Mora, had issue by her a son, named Peter de Mora; which Peter, about the 38 H. 3. past away all this Village of Westcote to the Canons of Benilworth; so that in 7 E. 1. the Prior of Benilworth was certified to be Lord thereof, holding it of the Baron of Stafford by the service of half a Kts. fee. But at the same time had the Hospitall of S. John, situate without the East gate at Orford, where Magdalen Colledge now stands, a carucate of land in this Village, and the Monks of Stoncle 1. yard land; which proportion, belonging to the said Hospitall, being purchased by the Master, Brethren, and sisters thereof, about the beginning of Edw. 1. reign, was in 13 E. 1. found to be 4. yard land. Upon the Foundation of which Colledge

But that which the Canons of Benilworth had here, was in 34. H. 8. granted to Ric. Andrews, and Leonard Chamberlain, and the heirs of Andrews.

Kyte-Herdwike.

This being also a member of Elthoe, and poss'd there with by the ancient Barons of Stafford, was by Rob. de Stafford, Grandchild to the first Robert, given unto Will. Giffard; who bestowed the whole hide thereof upon the Canons of Benilworth in H. 2. time, in recompence for the wrongs he had done them, and for the pardon of his sins; which grant the said Robert confirm'd. But how or when Giffard parted with his interest here, I cannot shew; Howbeit in 36 H. 3. it appears, that the heir of Raph de Mora held half a Kts. fee in this place of Robert de Stafford: And in 7 E. 1. Ric. de Bloys was certified to be Lord of part thereof, which he held of the said Baron of Stafford by the service of two parts of a Kts. fee: and John de Cantilupe owner of another part of it, held it of the said Baron by the service of the third part of a Kts. fee, and 1 pound of Cumin. I have not found the true reason of its being called Kyte-Herdwike; but that it was usually so termed appears by severall Records. In 10 H. 6. Will. Verney of Wolsoford Esq. was Lord thereof, and held it by the third part of a Kts. fee. From whom it pass'd to Ric. Dalby of Bokehampton, as it seems; for the said Richard dyed seized thereof in 20 E. 4. leaving Robert his son and heir xxx years of age.

Compton-Winyate.

Further Southwards stands Compton-Winyate, being so called for distinction from the other Comptons in this County; having had that addition in respect that long since there was a Vineyard within the Lordship, as by tradition of the Inhabitants appeareth. And (as all others of the same name) was originally so called from its situation in a low and deep valley, the word Com in the British, and Cumbe in the Saxon importing no less. In the Conq. time it, being poss'd by Turchill de Warwick, contained viii. hides and one Virgate; two whereof were held by Almarus of the said Turchill, and valued at xl s. Three and a Virgate by one Roger, which were rated at L s. and the rest by Almarus prized at liii l.

That the greatest part of Turchil's lands came actually to Henry de Newburgh, the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman line; and that the residue, which the said Turchil's heirs enjoy'd, was by them held of the said Earl, and his descendants, is plain enough by what I have so often express'd: but whether the first that assumed his surname of this place was immediatly enfeoff'd thereof by one of those Earls, or by any of Turchill's posterity, I cannot positively affirm, in regard that the Record of 20 H. 3. and that of 36 H. 3. do not directly concur; the former of them intimating, that the half Kts. fee, which Philip de Comton then had here, was by him held directly of the Earl; and the other, that it was held by Thomas de Comton (son of the same Philip I presume) of Thomas de Arden lineall heir to Turchill, and that he held it over of the Earl. Neither am I certain that this Philip was the first that became enfeoff'd thereof; for I find an Arnulphus de Comton, and likewise an Osbertus de Comton in 16 H. 2. As also Waleranus de Comton in R. 1. and beginning of K. John's time, all of this County; but whether these or any of them were of this place, is hard to determine.

The first mention I meet with of Philip de Compton, above specified, from whom I conclude this family to be descended, is in 5 Joh. or thereabouts: For Will. Poer Sheriff of this County in 4. 5. & 6 Joh. was witness with him to a grant of lands lying in Elthoe, made by Ric. de Bereford, and Cecilia his wife to the Canons of Benilworth at that time: the succession from which Philip is on the next page inserted, in order of time as Records do warrant it; but I have not adventured to knit them together, excepting where there is apparent proof.

In 7 E. 1. it was certified, that Philip de Compton (Grandchild, I presume to the former) was then Lord of this Manour, where it is written Compton-Winyate, and that he held it of Thomas de Arden by the service of half a Kts. fee, and he of the Earl of Warwick: At which time the said Philip had 2 carucates of land here in demein, and Freeholders, who held of him six yard land by severall Rents: As also 5 Tenants holding 3 yard land, paying certain Rent, and performing divers servile labours. It was likewise then certified, that the Templars had 3 Freeholders here, who were poss'd of two yard land, for which they paid a certain Rent, and did suit to their Court at Warwick.

Of the memorable employments that any of this Family had, I shall here briefly take notice as I find them recorded. Robert de Compton (grandchild to the last Philip) was in that expedition of Wales in 15 E. 2. In 6 E. 3. John de Compton was a Knight for this Shire in the Parl. then held at Westm. In 23 E. 3. Thomas de Compton of this place, being one of the Coroners in this Shire (an office of very great account in those days, which he held till 50 E. 3.) was also in the same 23 year of E. 3. joyn'd in Commission with sundry other persons of quality for assessing and collecting a xvth and xth. To him succeeded Edmund, a Coroner also, both in the beginning and later end of R. 2. time. But touching his descendants I have not seen much that is memorable till H. 8. time, that Will. Compton (son and heir to another Edmund) who was but xi years of age at his Father's death (which hapned in 8 H. 7.) being first a Page to Henry Duke of York (second son to K. H. 7.) afterwards, when he was King by the name of Henry the 8th became Groom of his Bedchamber; for I find him stiled Garcio Camera in the first year of his reign: Nay he quickly grew in such farther favour with that K. that he was the same year advanced to be chief Gentleman of his said Bedchamber; and within three years after, in consideration of his good and faithfull service, had a speciall grant to himself and his heirs of an honourable Augmentation to his Arms, out of the said King's own royall Ensigns and Devices; viz. a Lion passant guardant Or, and for his Crest a demi

In the same year of that K. he led the Rereguard of the Kings Army at Cherouene, composed for the most part of the retinue belonging unto Richard Fox Bishop of Winchester, and Wolsey, then the King's Almoner, being about 800. in number. In 10 H. 8. he was charged with providing of 50 Archers for the Kings service in his Wars; In 16 H. 8. joyned, with the Marq.

Dorset to assist Thomas Howard Earl of Surrep-
in his expedition towards Scotland against the D.
of Albany, who then had invaded the North parts.
And in 17 H. 8. he had the title of Barfarius Regis.

This Sir Will. erected a fair Mannour house, here at Compton, most of the brick used in that structure being brought from Fulbroke where a ruinous Castle was, whereof he had the custody
by the Kings grant and Keepership of the Park;
which Castle he pulled down, making use of the materials for that building. In the Chapell within this House was a costly window of rare workmanship, the passion of our Saviour being therein
very lively represented; and in the lower part thereof his own portraiture, as also that of his Lady, both kneeling in their surcoats of Arms. The Parke likewise, which is very large, was begun by the same Sir Will. about the xi. year of H. 8. For then had he License, not onely to impark certain grounds there, inclosed at that time; but to include and lay to the same 2000 acres more of land and wood, lying in Compton superior, and Compton inferior (alias Compton Upneyatps) for the use of himself and his heirs for ever. He married Werburge the Daughter and heir of Sir
Joh. Brereton Kt. widow of Sir Francis Cheyney
Kt. And by his Testament bearing date 8 Martii
an. 1522. (14 H. 8.) bequeathed his body to be buried here at Compton, with his Ancestors, and appointed that his said Lady should likewise be there interred; as also a Tomb of Alabaster made by the discretion of his Executors for his Father and set over his grave, with his Arms cut thereupon; and the body of his Mother taken up where she was buried, to be brought thither and layd by his said Father. By which Testament he likewise bequeathed to the King, from whom he acknowledged that he had received all his preferment, a little Chest of Ivory, whereof the lock was gilt, with a Chels bord under the same, and a pair of Tables upon it; and all such Jewels and treasure as was inclosed therein; most humbly desiring his highness to accept thereof as a remembrance of him. He also bequeathed to the said King certain Specialties to the summe of a thousand marks, being for money lent to Sir Thomas Bullein Kt. to the intent that the K. would be so gracious to his Lady and Children, as to permit his said Will to be performed, as he there expresseth.

And moreover appointed, that his Executors should found in his name two Chanteries, here at Compton; and every Priest of the said Chanteries to have yearly for his salary x marks, they being to do dayly service in praying for the souls of the King, Queen, and the Lady Anne Hastings; as also for the souls of himself, his wife, his ancestors, and all Christen souls; which Priests and every
of them to be presented to the Ordinary of the Diocess, and he to make Institution and Induction accordingly: And if the said Priests or any of them should dye, that then the Abbot of Winchcomb, and his successors, to present cove-nable Clerks within two months after the vacancy: And in case he or his successors should fail, that then the Abbot of Chesham to do the same,

same, in such a forme as is above rehearsed. After which, about vi. years, he dyed of the sweating sicknesse; viz. in 20. H. 8. (being at that time of the Bedchamber to the King, who was also in great danger.) Touching the Probate of his Will, so potent a man was Cardinal Woolsey in those dayes, that S^r Henry Guilford, one of his Executors, professed openly, that he could not obtain it till he had paid a thousand Marks.

To which S^r Will. Compton succeeded Peter his son and heir, then in minority; whose wardship was committed to the said Cardinal. This Peter, marrying Anne the daughter to George Earl of Shrewsbury, dyed before he accomplished his full age, sc. 30. Jan. 35. H. 8. leaving issue Henry of the age of xlix. weeks and 5. dayes. Which Henry being Knighted in 8. Eliz. was summoned to Parl. amongst the Barons S. Mui 14. Eliz. and dyed in 31. Eliz. leaving issue by Frances his first wife, daughter to Francis Earl of Huntingdon Will. his son and heir, created Earl of Northampton 2. Aug. 16. Jac. Who being also President of the K. Councell in the Marches of Wales, one of the Knights of the most honourable Order of the Garter, and Lieutenant to the King in this County of Warwick, wedded Eliz. the daughter and heir to S^r John Spenser K^t Alderman of London; and dyed an. 1630 (7. Car.) leaving issue Spenser Earl of Northampton his son and heir, whose marriage and issue the Pedegree, before inserted, sheweth.

The Church (dedicated to S.) had anciently two yard land belonging thereto; and in an. 1291. (19. E. 1.) was valued at viii. Marks; but in 26. H. 8. at x li. As for the fabrick thereof, it is now totally reduced to rubbish, having been demolished in an. 1646, when Compton house was garrison'd by the Parliament forces; the Monuments therein of the before specified S^r Will. Compton and his Lady, with that of Henry Lord Compton, his grandson, which were very beautifull and stately, being then utterly razed, and knockt in peices: so that in stead of them (whereof I was not so happy as to take notice whilst they stood) I shall here to the memory of that worthy person, who was the first rayser of this House to that lustre it hath since had (I mean, the before specified S^r Will. Compton) and honour of the Family, insert the portraictures of him, his Lady and Children, as they still remain (having been set up in his time) in the Chapell of of Balioll Colledge in Oxfoꝝ.

Brailles.

I come next to Brailles, within which parish are the Hamlets of Chelmescote, and Winder-ton. This Lordship is of a very large extent, yet antiently more spacious; for Tantworth, which is of itself a great one, was heretofore a member thereof, as in my discourse of that place is manifested; the whole, being certified by the Conq. Survey to contain 46. hides, having woods of 3. miles in length and 2. in breadth: All which then yielded to the K. yearly L^v wi h xx horse loads of salt, and then were in his own hands: But before the Conquest it was part of the possessions belonging to Edwine Earl of Merca. Which part, wherein the woods were so contained, I conclude to be Tantworth, whereof there is no expresse mention, by name, in the said general survey.

I am of opinion, that it was given to Henry de Newburgh, Earl of Warwick, by K. Will. the Conq. for clear^u it is that the said Earl possessed it. It should seeme, that in the grant thereof, the number of hides, which it contained, were exprest, and very likely the same that the general Survey before mentioned had recorded; but, that either the measure was too large, or that K. Stephen had a mind to get some mony from Roger Earl of Warwick, under that pretence; for it appears^w, that about the beginning of his reign, he put him to CC marks fine for the overplus of the hides in this Mannour. After which his posterity enjoy'd it, till K. Henr. 7. in 3. of his reign, got all the possessions belonging to that great Earldome, as in Warwick I have manifested.

In 31. H. 3. upon the agreement^x betwixt John de Plessers with Will. Mauduit and Alice his wife; it was (inter alia) settled upon the said John for life, he having wedded Margery the daughter and heir to Thomas Earl of Warwick (as in my story of the Earls hath been shewed) which John together with his said wife, the next ensuing year, obtained a Charter^y from the King, for a Perccate here upon the Munday every weeke; and a Fair to begin on the Even of S^t George, and to continue for the space of two dayes following. After which; viz. upon the death of Will. Mauduit Earl of Warwick in 52. H. 3. it was by agreement betwixt Alice his widow, and Will. de Beauchamp the succeeding Earl, assigned^z to her as part of her dower. But in 7. E. 1. was in the possession of the said Will. who then held^a in demesne

3. carucates of land here; as also a certain Park containing xxx acres, with Warren and other liberties. Which Earl had lx. yard land, here, held of him by sundry Tenants, under several rents, and certain particular services; whereof in regard that in those times the like was usual in most places, I will here give instance in one; viz. Adam Underwood; who holding one yard land, payd for the same 7 Bushells of Oats yearly, and a Hen; being to work for the Lord from the feast of S^t Mich. th'arch-Angell till Lammass, every other day except Saturday; viz. at mowing as long as that time should last; for which he was to have as much grasse as he could carry away with his Sicke: & at the end of Hay-harvest, he & the rest of his fellow Mowers to have the Lord's best Mutton, except one; or xvi^d in money; with the best Cheefe saving one, or vi^d in money; and the Cheefe-fat, wherein the said Cheefe was made, full of salt.

As also, that from the said Feast of Lammass till Michaelmas, he was to work two dayes in the week, and to come to the Lord's Reap, with all his household, except his wife and his Shepherd, and to mow down one land of Corne, being quit of all other work for that day. That he should likewise carry two Cart loads and a half of the Lords hay, with seven Cart load of Stones for three dayes, and gather Nuts for three dayes; And in case that the Lord should keepe his Christmase at this his Mannour of Brailles, he to find three of his horses meat for three nights. That he should plow thrice a year for the Lord; viz. 6. felloes, and do the same tillage within xx. miles: And moreover to make 3. Quarters of Malt; giving for every Hogg above a year old, i^d, and for every one under, a half penny. And lastly, that he, and the rest of the said Tenants here, should give xii. marks to the Lord, at Michaelmasse yearly, by way of Aid, and not marry his daughter; nec filium coronare (id est, nor make his son a Priest) without license from the Lord. [That being an usuall restraint, of old, in Villanage tenures, to the end that the Lord might not loose one of his villeins, by coming into holy Orders.]

As for the Freeholders here, I shall only mention some of them; viz. ^b Nich. de Segrave, who held at that time viii yard land of the Earl by the service of the sixth part of a Knights fee; Theobald de Nevill, and Robert de Hastang viii. yard land, by the service of a pair of gilt spurs; and Peter de Montfort xvi. yard land, by the 4th part of a Knights fee. At that time the Nuns of Worhall had^c one yard land here, which was given to them in pure Almes by Willelan Earl of Warwick. So also had the Canons of Bentworth 4. yard land, but that was in right of the Church, as part of its glebe. After this, viz. in 13. E. 1. Will. de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick claim'd^d by prescription to have certain priviledges here; viz. Gallows, with Affize of Bread and Beer, which were allowed: For it is a large and goodly Mannour, the yearly value whereof in 9 E. 2. being rated^e at no lesse than 93^l 05^s 04^d ob. q^s.

There is little else memorable touching this Mannour, so long as it continued to the Earls of Warwick: But shortly after it came to the Crown, as aforesaid, it was leased^f to Richard Hungerford, and John Hopper for xl. years; and afterwards; viz. in 21 H. 8. the fire thereof, and all the demesne lands, with the Perccate and Fair; as also the water-Mill and Warren of Coneyes, to Will.

After which, viz, in an. 1291 (19 E. 1) the profits belonging to the Rectory were estimated at xx marks and a half, and the Vicars portion at xviii marks: but in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was rated at xxii.

In this Church of Brilles there was a Gild founded^a by Ric. Nevill Earl of Warwick, by the name of a Warden, Brethren, and Sisters, with two Priests, to celebrate divine service every day, and to pray for the souls of the said Founders: the renew whereof in 37 H. 8. was certified to be xviiith xiiith in^o ob. out of which a Grammar School was then here maintained. There was also here a Chantry of two Priests, of a much elder foundation; but because it relates most to Chelmesote, I purpose there to speak of it.

OF this place I doe not find any mention till H. 3. time, it having been originally a member of Brilles. and posselt therewith by the old Earles of Warwick: but in 20. of that Kings reign Roger de Crafe, and Sim. de Turvill were certified^t to hold halfe a Knights fee, here, of the Earl of Warwick: and in 36 H. 3. Rog. de Crafe and John Muce. In that Record it is written Chelmundescote; whereby 'tis apparent, that it had at first its appellation from one Ceolmunde (an usual name in the Saxons time:) Howbeit afterwards was the family of Hubaud (whereof I shall discourse in Ipsey) posselt thereof; it being seized^t into the Kings hands in 50 H. 3. for the rebellion of Henry Hubaud, then in Kenilworth Castle against the King. But things being composed by the Decree called Dictum de Kenilworth, the same Henry enjoyed^u it again; and in 7. E. 1. was certified^v to hold it of the Earl of Warwick by the service of the fourth part of a Knights fee; at which time he had five yard land here in villenage. All which did his son, John Hubaud posselt, in 9 E. 2. But after that time, till about Lxx. years, I have seen no more of it, than that Reginald Lord Grey of Ruthin in 1 H. 4. conveyed^y it unto one John Lee: which John by certain Feoffees, past^z it to Baldwin Boteler in 10 H. 6. whose daughter and heir Elizabeth brought^a it in marriage unto Eustace de Grenevil, about the 38 of H. 6. Since which time the descendants of the said Eustace have enjoyed it till of late years.

I am of opinion, that the said Eustace de Grenevil began the depopulation thereof: for our countryman Rous (who lived in that time) complaints of it, After which others followed his example; for by the Inquis. taken in 9 H. 8, it appears that Henry Grenefeild gent: depopulated 3. mess. and 1. Cottage, inclosing Cxx. acres of land; the Master and Brethren of the Trinity and S. George his Gild in Warwick 1. mess. with a carucate of land and a halfe, containing lx acres; and the Chantry Priest here at Chelmesote 1. mess. and 50 acres of land. From which Henry Grenefeild descended Richard, that died seized of this Mannour in 12 Jac. whose grandchild Richard, about 12 Car. sold it unto Ric. Shukborough of Shukborough Esq;.

Besides this Mannour already spoke of, is there another here, at least in reputation; for in 30 H. 8. Will. Walter was posselt^d thereof, in right^e of Isabel his wife: Which Will. demised the same to Will. Villington Esq; (of whom in Warchelston I have spoken;) who in 1 E. 6. converted^f 4 mess. here into cottages, as also 200 acres of arable land into pasture: And being seized in Fee-simple of one mess. and lx acres of land more, did the like by it. All which, by his last Will and Testament^g he bequeathed (inter alia) to his co-syn Will. Barnes and his heirs; upon condition that he should distribute certain summs of money to the poor of Brilles, Shipston, and Tysoe.

In the Chapell here at Chelmesote, there was a Chantry founded by one Thomas de Pakinton of Brilles, in an. 1322 (16 E. 2) as appears^h by a certain Agreement indented, made the 16 day of Jan. the same year, betwixt Thomas Cobham then Bishop of Worcester, the Prior and Convent of Kenilw. and Gilb. de Wythbroke Vicar of Brilles on the one part, and the said Thomas de Pakinton on the other part; whereby the same Prior and Convent, with the said Vicar of Brilles do grant liberty to the said Thomas and his heirs to provide a fit Priest for celebration of Divine service in the Chapell before-specified, and to maintain him at his and their proper charges: which Priest was to be presented to the Vicar of Brilles, for the time being, by the said Thomas and his assignes, making oath to be accountable unto him for all Tithes, obventions, and oblations there received, as due to the mother Church of Brilles: provided that he the said Thomas, with his Tenants and neighbours of Chelmesote, might have divine service in that Chapell, if they thought fit, so that they did perform all parochiall rites, and receive the Sacraments at the Church of Brilles: and in acknowledgement of their duty therein, to repair thither on Christmasse day, Candlemasse, Good Friday, Easter day, Whitsunday, S. George his day, and All Saints: as also on the day of the Dedication of the said Church of Brilles, there to hear divine service, and visit the said parish Church, except manifest and reasonable cause should appear to the contrary; and that on those days there should be no service at all in that Chapell; All which was confirmed^k by Simon Mountacute Bishop of Worcester in an. 1334. 8 E. 3.

But in 21 E. 3 the said Thomas de Pakinton, then Parson of Spaple-Derham in Orfordshire, by his Instrument^l dated Feb. 25. settling upon Nich. Laumprey of Worston, his nephew, the inheritance of four Messuages, and four yard land, lying in Ober Brilles, and of the Fee called Se-grave's Fee, together with lxviij ob. yearly Rent, issuing also out of certain lands there, did appoint, that with the profits of the said land and rent, two Priests should be perpetually maintained, to celebrate divine service dayly in the parish Church of Brilles, for his noble Lord Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, his ancestors, kindred, and heirs: As also for himself, his parents, kinsfolks, and their posterity, and for the souls of all faithfull people deceased. Howbeit, the compleat Ordination of this Chantry was not till the year 1348 (22 E. 3.) And then did^m the said Thomas de Pakinton, declaring himself to be the Founder of a Chantry consisting of four Priests, within the Parish of Brilles, appoint and direct, that they should celebrate divine service for his Lord the Earl of Warwick, his Countesse, children, and ancestors; as also for him the said Thomas, and all his ancestors and kinsfolke in manner following; viz. two of them, which were to inhabite near the said Chapel at Chelmesfote in the house there assigned for them, every day to sing the Mattens of our blessed Lady, and the Mattens of the day, with all Canonical hours distinctly, and openly; and to celebrate Masse dayly in manner and forme following, unlesse they should be hindred by sufficient cause; viz. One of them every Sunday, and on the great Festivalls; and on Munday the Masse of the holy Trinity, Tuesday of S^t Thomas the Martyr, Wednesday of S^t Katherine and S^t Margaret, Thursday of Corpus Christi, Fryday of the Holy Crosse, and Saturday of the Annuntiation of our Lady.

The other Priest to celebrate every day the Masse of Requiem, for the soules of all the faithfull departed this life: And in every Masse, except by reason of solemnizing the Festivall, he should be hindred, to say seven Collets; one of the celebration of the Masse; The second for him the said Thomas de Pakinton; viz. Deus qui caritatis, &c. The third also for him likewise, after he should be departed this World: Deus cuius misericordia non est numerus, suscipe pro anima famuli tui &c. The fourth of S^t Thomas the Martyr. The fifth of the Annuntiation of the blessed Virgin. The sixth for the soules of the deceased, beginning with Inclina. The seventh, the generall Collet which becometh thus, Sanctissime Dei genetrix Maria; especially naming therein the said Earl, his Countesse, and children: as also him the said Thomas de Pakinton, and all his kindred. And upon all Holy dayes and others, except the solemnity of the Festivall did hinder, to say a Placebo and Dirige, with commendation of the souls of the persons before spoken of, & for the souls of all the faithfull deceased. And likewise ordained, that the other two Priests should also live together near the said mother Church of Brilles, in the house assigned for them, and be daily present therein at Mattens, and all other Canonick houres, to joyne with the Priests belonging to the Church, except just cause and hinderance hapned: and dayly sing Masse at the Altar near his Father's grave, behaving themselves in Masses, and all other things in such sort as is directed for the two Priests at Chelmesfote: And moreover, that all these Priests, before their admission to these Chanteries, should take their corporal oaths before the Vicar of Brilles, for the time being, that they would preserve the mother Church of Brilles indemnified, and observe all other orders as aforesaid, to their utmost power. Which Ordination was confirmed accordingly by the Canons of Kensworth, as Rectors of the said Church of Brilles, as also by John de Chelmesfote then Vicar of Brilles, the Earl of Warwick, and Bishop of Exeter.

Winderton.

THIS, being also a member of Brilles, is not very antiently (for ought I have seen) mentioned in Records; for the first time, that I meet with it, is in 20 H. 3. Where it appears^e that it was held of the Earl of Warwick by half a Knights Fee, one of the D'Eivills, of Walton-Deivill in this Countrey, being posselt thereof; and in 36 Henry 3. Robert D'Eivill.

It seemes that D'Eivill became first enfeofft thereof by Roger de Clifford; for by a pleading in 12 Edward 1. betwixt Thomas de la More, and Hugh D'Eyvile, the said Thomas called Roger de Clifford to warranty for the same: which Roger in 7 Edward 1. was certified^e to be Lord thereof, and to hold it of the said Earl by the service of half a Knights Fee; having then one carucate of land in demesne, and xix yard land held of him in Villenage.

To this Roger de Clifford succeeded another Roger, who wedded Isabell^e daughter and one of the coheirs to Robert de Vipount; and upon an agreement made with John de Crumbwell, husband to Idonea, widow of Roger de Leyburne, the other daughter and coheir of Robert de Vipount, past^e his interest in this Mannour to the said Idonea and her heirs, in exchange for some other lands: whereupon it became afterwards seized^u into the Kings hands for some misdemeanour committed by the said John de Crumbwell, in staying beyond Sea, contrary to the Kings command; yet such was the Kings respect to the said Idonea, that he permitted her to take the profit thereof towards her maintenance: but upon her death without issue, which hapned in 8 Edward 3. it devolved^x to Edw. le Spenser, son of Hugh le Spenser the younger, by virtue of an entail^e made in 15 E. 2. Howbeit, that which is here called the Mannour, was but the moytie of this Hamlet (as it seemes) the other moytie continuing in the family of Clifford still: for I find that in 14 Edw. 3. Rob. de Clifford Lord of Westmerland, gave^e to the Canons of Baginmon in Shropshire all his lands and Tenements lying here in Winderton, having the Earl of Warwick's license^a for the same, of whom they were held: as also the King's^b which expresseth plainly that it was the half of this Village.

But that which was Spenser's Mannour came^c at length by descent to Isabell daughter of Thomas Lord Despenser, as sister^d and heir to her brother Richard; which Isabell first married to Richard Beauchamp Lord Bergavenny (afterwards made Earl of Gloucester) and secondly to Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick: After whose death she settled^e it (inter alia) upon S^t Ralph Boteler K^t and others, and their heirs, for the performance of her last Will, as she should make declaration of her mind therein, for the health and advantage of her soul: Yet it should seem, that notwithstanding this purpose of hers, it descended to her heire, and so consequently came to the Crowne, as the rest of the Earl of Warwick's Lands did; and was not granted

Pat. 1. M. away till 1 M. that the Queen disposed thereof to Michael Throkemorton Esquier and his heirs, who dyed & seized of it 1 Nov. 5. & 6. Ph. & M. leaving Francis his son and heir 7. years of age. As for what the Canons of Haghamon had here, or at least so much thereof as I have seen any authority for, it was past out of the Crown by Q. Eliz. unto John Dudley and John Ascough, and their heirs in 17. of her reign.

I shall now follow this hilly part of the Country no farther; but, returning more into the Vale, must take my course by those brooks and streams, which glide through the rest of this Hundred, till I have made a perfect view thereof: In observance of which order, I next come to that petty torrent, that hath its head within the precincts of Dasset; and so, dividing the Lordships of Merston-Boteler & Kington, creepeth along betwixt the two Waltons, as also the Willesbourns, neer unto which it joyneth with Abon.

Merston-Boteler.

i Domesd. lib. THis, being posselt by Hugh de Gretemaismill in the Conquerors time, had then a Church and two Mills, and containing x. hides was valued at xv li. But ere long after, Raph Boteler of Oversley had a grant thereof, as it seems; for, in King Stephen's time, he gave^k the Church to the Monastery of Alcester, of his foundation: And it may very well be presumed, that the above specified Hugh de Gretemaismill so conferred it upon Boteler, in regard that Robert Blanchemains Earl of Leicester wedded^l not his daughter and heir, called Petro-nill, till H. 2. time. But of this family of Boteler I shall speak historically in Oversley, therefore will I next take notice of what is most memorable in relation to this place in particular.

From the before specified Raph, it descended to William le Boteler; who in 7 E. 1. held it of the Earl of Leicester by the service of two Kts. fees, having then one Watermill here, and two carucates of land in demesne, and xxx. Tenants holding one yard land and a half, by payment of certain Rent, and performance of severall services; viz. Plowing, Reaping, carrying Corn and the like: As also x. Cottiers; but these didⁿ their suit to the Court-leet held for the Honour of Leicester.

In this town had^o Raph de Ardern also at that time seven yard land, which he held of John Mallore, and he of the said William le Boteler: Of which Botelers the last that had to do here was Sir William le Boteler Knight, who left issue Eliz. his daughter and heir, first married unto Sir Robert de Ferrers Knight, and afterwards to Thomas Molington, as by the descent in Oversley will appear. From which Eliz. it descended to Nevill, and afterwards to Gascoign, as Oversley did: and was by Sir William Gascoign Knight, (the fourth from him that married Nevill's heir) sold^p to Thomas Lord Cromwell in 29 H. 8. which Thomas being attainted^q in the Parl. begun at Westminster 30 H. 8. it eschaet^r to the Crown, and was thereupon granted^s to Richard Fermour and Anne his wife, and to John Fermour their son, and Maud his wife, and to the heirs male of the said John, by the Kings Letters Patent dated 23. Nov. 36 H. 8. But it seems that the said John dyed without issue male; for I find that K. Edward 6. in 7. of his reign, by his Patent^t bearing date 23. Junii, granted it to Peter Temple of Derket in this County gent. and Thomas Lee of Clatrecote in the County of Oxford gentleman, and their heirs, to hold in Capite by the xlith part of a Knights fee. Which Peter sold away sundry parcells thereof to severall persons, about the beginning of Queen Maryes reign; amongst which John Woodward purchased^u the Mannour place, and a large proportion therewith. Which John dyed^v seized thereof 8. Nov. 2. & 3. Ph. & M. leaving Richard his son and heir 50. years of age; who dyed^w also seized thereof 14. Aug. 4. & 5. Ph. & M. leaving John his son and heir 26. years of age. But the greatest^x proportion besides^y viz. 1. melis. 1. Garden, 1. Orchard CCC. acres of land, x. acres of meadow, viii. acres of pasture, and L. acres of Heath & Furrs, was sold to Tho. and Edward Savage by the before specified Peter Temple, and Thomas Lee: which Edward dyed^z seized thereof in the life time of Thomas; and Thomas departed this life 1. Jan. 5. Eliz. leaving John his son and heir xxx. years of age.

The Church being given^a to the Monastery of Alcester by Raph le Boteler, Founder thereof in K. Stephens time, was in an. 1291. 19 E. 1. rated^b at xii. marks: at which time the Prior of Ware had a portion of the Tithes belonging thereto, valued at 1. mark. And in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was valued^c at viii li. iii s. iv d. the Rectory being appropriate^d to the Monks of Alcester, and then rated at^e xvii li.

Kington.

THis town, as it gives name to the Hundred, wherof I have spoke already at my entrance therein.

hereinto, so stands it about the center of it; and, for divers respects, as I shal anon observe, is a place as worthy of note, as any other in this part of the County. There are two places in the Conquerors Survey^e wherein the name of Cintone (which is all one with what we now call Kington or Kine-ton) is to be found; the one amongst the lands belonging to the Earl of Mellent; but I make a doubt whether that concerns this place, rather believing it to be Kington now an obscure Village lying neer Claverdon: The other amongst the lands of Will. fil. Corbucion, and then held by one Ailmarus being then certified to contain no more than two hides, besides the woods, estimated at half a mile in length, and 4. furlongs in breadth; all which was then valued but at x s. and had been the freehold of Turchill de Warwick in Edward the Confessors days.

But whether that were this Kington, I am as unsatisfied; believing rather this not to be at all mentioned in Domesday-book, as some other places of note; viz. Alcester and Lamworth, in this County, are not, though then in the Ks. hands, as I conclude those places were: for it appears by a very authentique Record^{*}, that it was ancient demesne; id est in the possession of King Edward the Confessor, or King William the Conquerour, and very likely of other Kings before those days; the name thereof importing no lesse. But the first certain mention that I find of it, is in the Register^f of Kenilworth, where it appears, that King H. 1. posselt it, and gave the Church to the Canons of that Hou^e immediately after the Foundation thereof—Ecclesiam etiam de Chintonia de meo domino Concedo, &c. are the words of his Charter.

This King Henry granted^g also to Milo one of the sons to Will. de Oxinsford, and the rest of his Brethren xxx s. per an. lands here in Chinton, w^{ch} William their father, who is also called Vicecomes, held of him; and namely the land of Swintle, given by the said King to them and their mother in exchange for what they had in Blochesham. Which Milo is he, as I guess, who was called Milo de Kincion, being a witness to many Charters in this County, about that time. But this land so given to the same Milo and his brethren, King Stephen had again from him, and gave^h it to the said Canons of Kenilworth at such time as he confirm'd to them the grant of the Church by King H. 1. Howbeit the Mannour it self continued in the King's hands; for it appearsⁱ that in 12 H. 2. Will. Bassett, then Shiriff of this Shire, accounted for the charge of making a Goale here: and in^k 23 H. 2. xi. marks and a half, were asselt: and received from this town for Aid to the King, under the title of Auxilium Burgorum & Villarum, & hominum, per Will. fil. Radulfi, Will. Bassett, & Mich. Belet, Justices Itinerant at that time.

In 4 R. 1. there was xiv li. xv s. viii d. bestowed in^l workmanship upon the Gaol here, by the Ks. speciall Precept, Herbert de Putot and William Babine (the one Lord of Hopstow, the other of Alborne in this County) being Overseers of the repair. But in 7 Joh. the King, having rendred Willardington to Hugh de Gurnay, from whom he had taken it, and bestowed it upon Hugh de Hervey, by way of exchange for his title in Willardington; upon condition, that if the said Hugh de Hervey could by any friendly agreement, or by course of law recover Willardington from the same Hugh de Gurnay, that then he should deliver up this back again to the King. Which was accordingly done: for I find that Hugh de Hervey did repossesse Willardington; whereupon the King having this again, by his Charterⁿ bearing date at Lincoln 28. Sept. 18. of his reign, granted it in Fee-ferm to Stephen de Segrave and his heirs (of whom in Caludon I have spoke) paying into the Exchequer yearly xii li. viz. at Easter vi li. and Michaelmasse vi li. being the ancient Rent that it yielded to the Crown.

After which, viz. in 4 H. 3. the same Stephen de Segrave obtained the Kings Charter^o, dated 28. Aug. for a Mercate here weekly upon the Tuesday. And the next year following did the King direct his speciall Precept^p to Thomas de Estleg and William Bassett, reciting, that whereas he had granted unto them his speciall Commission for the seizing of all the Demesnes and Eschaets which appertained to the Crown, they should not meddle with this Mannour, in respect that the same Stephen de Segrave had a Parent thereof from King John, which had been exhibited to him the said King. And in 11. of his reign, to fortifie his title, granted unto him a new Charter^q thereof, together with the like for the Tuesday Mercate, bearing date at Westminster, 10. Feb. the same year: confirming it again by another^r dated at Orford 26. Dec. 13. of his reigne, whereby he added the grant of an yearly Feate to continue for two days; viz. upon the Even and day of S. Peter and Paul. To which Stephen succeeded Gilbert de Segrave, and to Gilbert Nicholas his son and heir, who being in^s that rebellion with the Barons in 49 H. 3. and thereby forfeiting his whole estate, this Mannour, so eschaeting to the Crown, was by the King given^t to Edmund his son (afterwards created Earl of Lancaster): which Edmund soon after bestowed^u it on Raph le Butiller and his heirs, who thereupon had the King's, confirmation^w thereof, bearing date at Kenilworth 3. Oct. 50 H. 3. reserving the Rent of xv li. to be yearly payd into his Exchequer at Easter and Michaelmasse by even portions. Howbeit such application did the said Nicholas use towards the before specified Edmund, that he not only obtained^x this Mannour again the next year following, but extraordinary respects otherwise: Neither was Raph le Butiller without^y satisfaction, by way of recompence instead thereof.

After which, viz. in 7 E. 1. the same Nicholas, being certified^z to hold it in Fee-ferm of the King by the Rent of xii li. per annum, before express^a (in which Record it is said to be de antiquo dominio) had four carucates of land in demesne, two Windmills, and two Dove-houses, with a Court Leet, Gallows, and other Liberties, besides the Mercate: As also xxxvii. Sokemen^{*}, who held 31. yard land under severall Rents, and divers servile employments: And in 20 E. 1. had Free-warren^b granted to him in all his demesne lands here. But from this family of Segrave it divolved at length, by Eliz. a daughter and heir, to John de Monbray, as Caludon. (whereof I have already spoke) did; who in 29 E. 3. had a pardon^c for the Relief thereupon due by them to the King. And upon the partition of Monbray's lands betwixt the coheirs; viz. Howard and Berkley, comming to Berkley's share, was in 9 H. 7. assigned^d, in part of her dowrie, to Anne, the wife of Will. Marquesse Berkley. To which family it continued till of late years: for I find

1 Inq. per H. Norr. G. f. 70. a.

OF this place I have seen nothing till 7 E. 1. and then was it certifiedⁱ, that Nich. de Se- grave had 3. Tenants here, holding . . . yard land, by performance of severall services, it being a member of Kineton before spoken of. It should seem that those lands, which the Canons of Bentlwoth had within the precincts of Kineton, were in this Kineton-Parva: for in that grant^m made by King H. 8. to Ric. Andrews, and Leonard Chamberlain, and the heirs of Andrews, whereby the cap'tall messuage and site of this Mannour, and six yard land belonging thereto, are past unto them, it is said, that the same was part of the possessions belonging to that Monastery.

Brokehampton.

THIS Village situate on the bank of the little brook below Kineton, taketh its name from thence; and being originally a member of that Lordship, continued involved therewith till that King John gaveⁿ it to Raph de Thurbervill and his heirs, by the name of the Mannour of Brokehampton, to hold by the service of the 4. part of a Knights fee. Which Raph was a person of no ordinary note and trust, as it seems: For in 6. Joh. when Alice Countess of Warwick gave that great Fine, whereof in my story of the Earls I have made mention, to the end that she might continue a widow during her own pleasure, have the tuition of her children, and a reasonable dowrie, &c. the Shirff of this County was commanded^o, that for her payment thereof, and performance of what else was to be done on her part, security should be taken before him the said Raph; as also her Oath, in such sort as he should expound it. To him succeeded Lucas de Turberwill or Trublewill (for I find it both ways written) from whom this land being taken^p as an Eschaet (it seems) about the 12. year of King John, was in 1 H. 3. restored^q to Raph de Trublewill his brother, as belonging to him by right of inheritance: and yet forasmuch as it had been part of the demesns of the Crown (as a member of Kineton) was in 6 H. 3. through the advice of the Kings great Councell, re seized^r by the Shirff, as all other lands of that nature were.

How the said Raph made his agreement with the King appears not; but in 13. of his reign he granted^s and confirmed it to him and his heirs, together with seven yard land in Kintone, for the service of the fourth part of a Knights fee. Which Raph being dead in 16 H. 3. Alice his widow had an assignment^t of this land for her maintenance: but the next possessor^u thereof was Henry de Trublewill, and after him (though how I cannot discover) Thomas de Wapenbury (of whom in Wapenbury I have spoke) scil. in 20 H. 3. Which Thomas granted^x it to John Mile, who had issue^y Richard, and he Henry Mile; whose daughter and heir called Margaret was wedded^z to Will: de Welham, and over-lived him; being a widow^a in 30 E. 3. To this Margaret succeeded Sir John Brauncestre Knight, as owner of this Mannour, but whether by purchase or otherwise I cannot directly affirm: which John demised^b all or the greatest part thereof, to one Robert Dalby, and John Dalby his son in 31 E. 3. and afterwards sold^c it to Hugh Dalby, whom I conceive to be son to the said John.

Bineton in R. 2. time, and a person in much trust and imployment by the descendants of that Duke, as I shall shew anon. In 19 R. 2. he bore the office of Escheator for this County and Leicester-shire. In 20 R. 2. Thomas Mowbray Earl of Nottingham, and Marshall of England, by his Deed bearing date 10. Feb. in consideration of his good service, granted to him an annuity of x li. per an. during life, issuing out of his Mannour of Chacombe in Nottinghamshire; having in Octob. before (being then Governour of Calais in Picardy) constituted him, with John Styvele, his Attorneys to prosecute all suits for him, and answer whatsoever should happen in his absence. In 22 R. 2. he was constituted one of the Justices of Peace in this County; and in 17 H. 6. departed this life, leaving John Dalby his son and heir 32. years of age; who dying without issue, Ric. Dalby, his brother, became his heir. Which Richard was made Feodary to John Duke of Norff. in 32 H. 6. for all his lands, lying in the Counties of Leic. Warwick, Nottingham, Derby, and elsewhere within the Realm of England, the Counties of Notf. Suff. Suffex, and Surrey excepted, for the levying, collecting and receiving of all Reliefs and profits whatsoever accruing by such Knights fees as belong'd to the said Duke: As also his Receiver generall to collect all the Fees and commodities appertaining to him by reason of his Office of Earl Marshall of England, through every Barony and part of a Barony, according to the Statute therein made and provided; for which pains and travail therein, he was to have the one half of all the said profits, over and above his reasonable costs expended in that service.

This Richard in 38 H. 6. went over with Nich. Husee esquier into Picardy, for the custody of the Castle of Guynes, in respect whereof he had the Kings Letters of protection; but upon his recess to this his house at Bjokhampton, where he made his abode, the said protection was revoked; and died in 6 E. 4. leaving Robert his son and heir; from whom is lineally descended Richard Dalby gent. now Lord of this Mannour.

Cumbroke.

This, lying neer unto a narrow and deep valley, through which the little brook before specified runs, had thence its name; the word Cumbe signifying, in our old English, such a hollow place (as I have elsewhere shewed:) But there is very little that I find memorable in relation thereto, other than the dedication of the Church and Churchyard, by Simon Bishop of Worcester in H. 1. time, to the honour of God, the blessed Virgin, and St. Margaret, saving the right of the mother Church of Bineton: For I cannot see that it was a distinct Mannour of it self, but that the Mannours of Bineton and Bjokhampton did extend into it, as from sundry authorities may be observed; and therefore I shall passe it by, onely taking notice, that the Chapell in 26 H. 8. (for so it was then called) had the small Tithes and oblations of this Hamlet, belonging to it, which were valued at Cvi s. viii d. per annum.

Compton-Murdak.

This, taking its name, as all other Comptons do, from the situation in or neer some deep valley, hath had the addition of Murdak to distinguish it from the many other Comptons in this County, in regard that the family of Murdak were anciently owners thereof. In the Conquerors time it was possessed by the Earl of Mellent, and rated at vii. w. Domesd. hides, which were valued at vi li. there being then a Church; but in the generall Survey then taken, it is written Contene. From this Earl of Mellent it came to his brother Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick, with other great possessions in this County, as I have elsewhere often intimated; whose son and successor Earl Roger granted it, together with the advowson of the Church unto Robert Murdac and his heirs, towards the later end of H. 1. time, to hold by the service of one Knights fee, Will. Earl of Warwick confirming the same unto Roger son to the said Robert.

In 38 H. 3. Will. Murdac had a Charter of Free-warren granted to him in all his demesne lands in this place, and in Hethcote in Nottinghamshire: which Will. in 7 E. 1. had two carucates of ofland in demesne here, xv. Tenants holding severall proportions by sundry servile labours, and certain Rents; as also 3. Freeholders, and xvi. Cottiers. Being a Knight in 13 E. 1. he had his tryall at Warwick, before the Justices of Gaol delivery, concerning the death of one Raph le Bedel, for which he was questioned; and departed this life in 26 E. 1. leaving John his son and heir

Julian the daughter of Sir Philip de Garton Knight, but dyed in 9 E. 2. leaving issue John his son and heir 18. years of age; who was a Knight in 16 E. 2. and in 1 E. 3. constituted one of the two Justices for conservation of the Peace in this Shire; as also for putting in execution the Articles contained in the Statute of Winchester.

In 19 E. 3. he was in Commission for arraying of men in this County: and the next year following, being of the retinue unto Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, at such time as the said Earl was in France, and got that great honour by his valiant achievements in the battail of Cressy, and elsewhere, (as in my story of him is shewed) he bore for his Armes Or frette sable. The time of his death I do not certainly find, but to him succeeded Thomas his son and heir; who past away his interest in this Mannour in 44 E. 3. to Alice Perers, of whom our Historians make much mention, in regard she was Concubine to King E. 3. Which Alice being banisht by authority of Parliament in 1 R. 2. and all her estate confiscate, it was seized into the Kings hands, and committed to the custody of John Spenser: But in 3 R. 2. she being then wedded to Sir William Windsor Kt. the King out of the singular respects that he bore towards the said Sir William for his many notable services, and especially because he was at that time retained by Indenture to serve him in his Warrs with CC. men at Armes, and CC. Archers, under the conduct of Thomas de Wodstoke then Earl of Buck. (the Kings Uncle) for the expedition of Britanny, in which the said Earl was to be General; by his Letters Patent bearing date at Westminster. 15. Martii, wherein he reciteth, that the said Alice, whilst she was single, purchased the third part of this Mannour in possession, and two parts thereof in reversion, after the death of Alice the widow of Sir John Murdack Knight, granted it unto the same Sir William Windsor and his heirs for ever.

Which

Which Sir. William dying without issue male, his daughters became his heirs; whereof Joan the elder married ^w to Robert Skerne of Bington upon Thames, in whose right the said Robert became possessor thereof: and to strengthen his title therein, obtained a Release ^x from Arnold Murdak, brother and heir of Thomas Murdak, son to the above-mentioned Sir Thomas, bearing date 10 Febr. 6 H. 4. as was necessary: for I find that there had been an Entail ^z thereof made by the said Sir Thomas in 37 E. 3. Which Robert in 3 H. 6. did his homage ^z to Richard Beauchamp then Earl of Warwick for those lands held by him, here, of that Earl, by Knights service. But long it was not that Skerne continued possessor thereof, though how it came to passe, or the direct time when he parted with it, I have not seen: For certain it is, that about 20 H. 6. Richard Verney Esquire (afterward Knight) possessed it, and built a great part of the House, as it now standeth; wherein, besides his own Armes with matches, he then set up in a fair Canton window, towards the upper end of the Hall, the Armes of King H. 6. Queen Margaret, Humphrey Earl of Stafford (afterwards created Duke of Buck.) Henry Beauchamp Duke of Warwick, and the Lord Zouch, with some others, in such sort as they are represented in the foregoing page: by which it appeareth that he was one of those that adhered to the House of Lancaster.

This Richard Verney was the son ^z of John Verney, but whence I cannot tell; yet I find one John Verney Eschaetor ^b in Worcester-shire 17 H. 6. So also 2 Robert Verney, who held ^c half a Knights fee in great Wolsoford of the Baron of Stafford in 46 E. 3. and had issue William his son and heir. Llewellyn ^d Richard Verney of Wolverton Esquier, in 12 H. 6. yet am I not sure what relation any of these had to him. Most probable it is, that these Verneys of Compton are sprung from Simon de Vernai, who, in K. Richard the first's time, wedded Agnes the sister of Hervey Bagot (progenitor to the Barons of Stafford: for amongst the evidences of this Family, I have seen a grant ^e of certain lands in Wymshull in Com. Staff. by the said Hervey Bagot to the above specified Simon, with Agnes his sister in Frank marriage; but how to trace down the descent from that Simon to the said Richard passes my skill, except I had more light from Record, or private evidence. But till 21 H. 6. I find nothing of this Richard: howbeit then it appears that he began to have publique employment in this County; viz. in Commission ^f for conservation of the Peace, from that time till 14 E. 4. except for the six first years of E. 4. reign; being also a Commissioner of Array in ^g 38 H. 6. and in 39 H. 6. a Knight: Which Richard departed ^h this life in 5 H. 7. leaving Edmund his son and heir 49. years of age; who had speciall Letters ⁱ of Protection from Thomas Lord Stanley, Steward of the Household to King E. 4. dated 3. Nov. 8 E. 4. exempting him from being subject to any seizure for his Corn, Beeves, Muttons, or any thing else for the Kings Household provision, without payment of ready money for the same: and bore the office ^k of Eschaetor for this County and Leicester-shire in 21 E. 4.

In 2 R. 3. he was in ^l Commission for arraying of men; and by his Testament ^m bearing date 24. Feb. anno 1494. (10 H. 7.) bequeathed his body to be buried in the Conventuall Church of the Friers-Precursors at Warwick, betwixt the Altar of our Lady, and the Altar of S. Dominick, on the North part; appointing that by the care of his Executors, a Lamp should be continually maintained burning in the Chancel of that Church, before the Host: and dyed ⁿ 26. Feb. the same year, leaving issue Richard ⁿ H. 7. his son and heir then 30. years of age. Which Richard was in that esteem with King H. 8. that, being inform'd of some infirmity in his Head, he afforded him a speciall Licence ^o, bearing date at Wenlock 2. Jun. 8. of his reign, that he should wear his Bonnet at all times, and in all places, as well in the said Kings presence, as elsewhere, according to his own pleasure, without the interruption of any man whatsoever. And by his Testament bearing date 2. Oct. anno 1526. (18 H. 8.) bequeathed his body to be buried in the new Chappell on the North side of the Church, here at Compton, wherein his Monumentall Stone, with the portraiture of himself, his wife, and children in brass are yet to be seen. From whom did lineally descend Sir Grevill Verney, late of this place Knight, a gentleman accomplisht with singular endowments, and of a Noble and courteous disposition; who left three sons and one daughter, as the Pedegree here inserted doth shew: From the second of which, viz. Richard, a person happily qualified with a most ingenious inclination, I have received much assistance for rectifying the Map of this Hundred, as also in delineation of divers Monuments for adorning the present work.

When this town was depopulated I cannot directly affirm; but it seems to have been anciently: for I find that our Countreyman Rous hath Hist. MS. it in the list ^p of those whereof he so much complains.

Wellesburne Hastang.

Following this petty stream, I behold Walton-Maudslai on my right hand, and Walton-D'evill, and Wellesburne-Mountfort, on my left; all which are in the Parish of Wellesburne-Hastang, lying above a mile below them, whereof, according to my accustomed methode, I must first speak. In the Conquerors time there was no distinction betwixt these two Wellesburnes; but both being then included together, were joyned with Quintone in Gloucester-shire, and certified to be in the Kings own hand; having been held by King Edward the Confessour before the Norman invasion. In Domesday-book it is written Waleburne; but afterwards Walesburne, and Wtelesburne; so that 'tis apparent, that the little brook, upon which it stands, did at first occasion the denomination thereof; barne in the Saxon importing the same that torrens in the Latine doth. That the whole, which shortly after came to be two Lordships, was (inter alia) given by the Conqueror unto Henry de Newburgh, the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman line, is not to be doubted, considering that he was Founder of the Church, as when I come to speak thereof shalbe shewed.

This was originally granted by one of the ancient Earls of Warwick to Robert de Hastang, or some of his Ancestors, from whom William de Percy became enfeoffed of certain lands here, which afterwards afterwards were conveyed to Godfrey Giffard Bishop of Worcester, who possessed them in 7 E. 1. it being then called Wellesburne-parva; In which year I find^m that Walt. Giffard Arch-Bishop of York, Brother to the said Godfrey, past unto Henry le Fonne and Isabell his wife xxviii Mess. six yard land and xxx s. Rent lying in this place: But long it was not after this, ere that John de Strattelenges and Maud his wife became Lords thereof; for by a Charterⁿ bearing date at Wellesm. 20 Maii 18 E. 1. they had a grant of a percate here, weekly, every Munday; and an yearly Fair, to hold for two days; viz. the Even and day of the Apostles Peter and Paul: After which I can give no further account thereof, till 9 R. 2. that Sir John le Strange of Walton Kt. and Ma-bell his wife levied a Fine^o of xl. Mess. x. tofts, one Mill, eleven yard land, 17 s. Rent, and half a pound of Pepper lying in this place (then called by the name of Wellesburne le Strange) and in Wellesburne-Mountford, with the advowson of the Chantry in the Church here at Wellesburne le Strange; by which Fine the premises were vested in the two Vicars of Wellesburne and Walton.

Inq. per H. Nott. &c. f. 86. b.

As this was an act of trust; so also was there another in H. 6. time, whereupon Rob. Danvers, and the rest of his fellow Feoffees did entail^p this Mannour (with other lands) upon Sir Thomas le Strange Kt. and Eliz. his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies lawfully begotten, and for want of such issue, on the right heirs of the said Sir Tho- mas; which Sir Thomas had issue Thomas, and he two⁴ Daughters and heirs, viz. Anne and Margaret, as in Walton D'Eivile appeareth, to whom it descended; and hath ever since attended the succession of that Mannour, being now possessed therewith by Sir Charles Mordant.

The Church (dedicated to St. Peter) was originally built, as it should seem, by Henry de Newburgh the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman race; as also dedicated and endowed with glebe and Tithes by him and Earl Roger his son, as the Charter^r of the said Roger, and the confirmation^t of Earl Will. his son do testify; whereby also it appeareth that it was the Mother Church to the two Waltons, both the Wellesburnes, and Cherlecote; which E. Roger soon after bestowed^t it on the Canons of Banilwozth, whereupon they had the confirmationⁿ of K. H. 1. as also of^w Simon then Bishop of Worcester.

In an. 1291. 19 E. 1. it was valued^x at xxii. marks: howbeit the time of its appropriation I find not: but in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was rated^y at viii. l. over and above ix. s. v. d. allowed for Procurations and Synodals.

In this Church there was a Chantrye, founded, by one of the Hastangs, as is likely by their nomination^z of him to the Canons of Banilwozth, whom they presented thereto: but after 14 R. 2. that William, son and heir, to Sir John le Strange presented^a to it, through the default of those Canons, I have not seen any more thereof.

and Heybore in Wellesburne-grove for repair of his buildings and hedges, by appointment of his Forrester; And a fourth part of his wood at Badley.

And in 34 H. 3. Peter de Montfort (Grand-child to the said Henry) obtained a Charter of Freewarren to himself and his heirs in all his demesne lands here; as also in divers other places: but being slain in the Battail of Evesham 49 H. 3. there was a total seizure of his estate; at which time 'twas certified that he had two Carucates of land here, and x l. yearly Rent. To whom succeeded his son Peter; who in 4 E. 1. had m a Gallows here; as also Assize of Bread and Beer, with weifs: and in 7 E. 1. held it of the Earl of Warwick by the service of one Kts. fee; at which time he had xx Tenants here holding xix yard land a half, and fourth part, paying sundry Rents and performing divers services, as plowing, mowing, making and carrying Hay, raking Corn, and the like; unto whom he was to allow, at mowing time, a vessell of Beer containing 52 Gallons, and a Mutton or xii d. This Peter had then also five Freeholders, who held severall parcells of land under certain Rents and suit of Court: All which together with the Customary Tenants, before spoke of, had Common in Kingswood, with pannage for their Hogs, and certain proportions of wood for fuell. It was then likewise certified that he had Freewarren and a Court Leet here, by the grant of K. H. 3. Besides these Customary Tenants and Freeholders, it was then also found, that Will. the son of Thomas de Bishopston held half an acre of land here in demesne, and had 4 Tenants holding the vi yard land and 3 quarters, before specified, by sundry servile imployments; all which used to appear at the Court Leet held by the said John. Severall Cottiers had the same Peter also here, who performed the like services as the other Tenants did. All which priviledges of Court Leet, Freewarren, &c. were pleaded in 13 E. 1. and allowed.

From this Peter descended Guy, as the Pedegree in Wellesfort will shew; who taking to wife Margaret one of the Daughters to Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, in 22 E. 3. entailed it, with other lands, upon the issue of his body to be begotten on the said Margaret; and for default thereof upon the same Earl and Katherine his wife, and the heirs of him the said Earl: But this entail took not effect; for Guy dying without issue, Sir Baldwin Frevill and Sir Thomas Boteler Kts. by a Writ of Formedone recovered this and the other Lordships so entailed, as Cosins and heirs to P. de Montfort above mentioned; whereupon, by partition made betwixt them in 9 R. 2. it was allotted to the said Sir Thomas: But the issue male of this Sir Thomas extinguishing in Sir Ralph Boteler Kt. his son and heir (Lord Treasurer of England in H. 6. time) Sir John Norbury Kt. and Will. Belknap Esq. being the descendants of Eliz. and Joan his Daughters (as the Pedegree in Griff sheweth) became heirs to this inheritance. Which Sir John Norbury, with Edw. Belknap, Cosin and heir of the said William Belknap, divided Botelers lands betwixt them in 13. H. 7. whereupon this Mannour fell to the said Sir John; and from him, by Anne his Daughter and heir (wife to Ric. Hallywell) to Jane his Cosin and heir, wedded to Sir Edm. Bray Kt. which Jane dyed seized thereof 24 Oct. 5. & 6. Ph. & M. leaving Sir Will. Cobham Kt. Lord Cobham, son Wellesburne-Mountfort.

OF this place I make no question but that Ithurstane de Mountfort (of whom and his family I shall discourse in Wellesfort) was enfeoffed by the same Henry Earl of Warwick, or his son Roger, in H. 1. time, as part of thote x Knights fees and a fourth part, which he then had given to him by one of those Earls. To whom succeeded Rob. de Montfort his son and heir, by whose forfeiture it escheated to the Crown about the 22. of K. H. 2. reign: for at that time did the Sheriff account x li. for the half years Rent thereof: as also, according to the same rate in 23. 24. 25. and 30 H. 2. And in 31. H. 2. Mich. Belet (the then Sheriff) reckoned C s. layd out for C. sheep towards the storing this Lordship for the K^{ts}. use; vi s. for 5 Sows and a Boar; and xxxvi s. for 8 Cows and a Bull: In 33 H. 3. xxiii l. for the ferm thereof that year: And in 1 R. 1. xxiii l. xv s. was accounted for the same. But, the next year following, did Henry de Montfort (Brother and heir to Robert before specified) give a Fine to the K. of Cl. for which he obtained it again; and soon after enfeoffed Will. de Bissopelme and his heirs in C s. of land here, with Julian his Daughter in marriage; viz. six yard land held in Villenage, with the villeins residing thereon, and all the service of Robert the son of Clerenbald, and one yard land, which a Herdsman held, with the said Herdsman: as also the fourth part of all his Lordship here in Wellesburne, with Housbore,

IN the Conqst. time, this, being posselt by the Earl of Belmont, was certified^c to contain v. hides, and rated at vii l. having then a Mill of vi s. value; unto which Earl succeeded Henry Earl of Warwick, his Brother, in the enjoyment of this Lordship, as he did the most of his lands in this County; who, as 'tis probable, enfeofft Nich. de David will; (or D'Arville) therein; for, by what appeareth by and by, it will be evident enough, that the family of D'Arville, were afterwards owners thereof: And that there was a Nicholas de David villa in this County contemporary with that Earl, a Charter of his witnessed^d by the same Nicholas doth manifest; whereupon it became so distinguished from the other Walton: but more antiently it past by the name^e of Walton Theodoric, set in 23. H. 1. one Theodoric being then Tenant thereto, as I guess. To which Nich. succeeded Will. D'avill, of whom I find mention^f in 23. H. 2. And to Will. Walter D'avill, one^g of the Justices of Assize in this County in^h 11. 12. 13. 17. 19. 20. and 21. H. 2. As also one of the pledges for Thomas Earl of Warwick in 13. H. 3. upon security given for payment of his Relief. He was a Benefactor to the Nuns of Pinley in this County, by bestowing on them the tenth part of the Toll of his Mill here at Walton, and the tenth penny of the Rent thereof, in case he should let it to ferm.

To whom succeeded Rob. D'avill, one of the Commissioners in this County constituted, together with the Sheriff, to oversee the defects in all the Castles in 25 H. 3. and to certify the same to the King; which Robert in 27 H. 3. had suits with Henry de Nasford of Bereford. And to Robert, Walter D'avill, who in 36 H. 3. had a Charter^m of Free-warren granted to him in all his demesne lands here, as also in other places of this County, whereof I shall have occasion to make mention; and moreover in Paunton and little Barkworth in Lincolnsh. And the next year following underwent the officeⁿ of Escheator for this County. But the last of this family, that had to do here, was Reg. D'Eivill, who towards the later end of H. 3. time, sold^o this Mannour to one Simon de Winton, Brothers son, perhaps, to Sim. de Winton one^p of the Justices in the Court of Common Pleas and afterwards Bishop^q of Exeter: for it is confidently affirmed^r by some learned Antiquaries, that the said Bishop was born here; and for probability thereof I have seen a precept^s from K. H. 3. in 22. of his reign, directed to Ric. de Grey, then Constable of Beilsworth Castle, to deliver to Mr. Sim. de Winton four Oaks for the building of his House at Chesertown, which we know is very near to this place: And besides this do I find, that he was very often in Commission as a Justice of Assize in this County; viz. from 32 to 41 H. 3. But to return to Simon who purchased this Mannour of Reg. D'Eivill: he had issue^t Maud a Daughter and heir in Ward^u to Godfrey Gifford Bishop of Exeter 7 E. 1. and certified^x to be then owner of this Lordship, holding it of the Earl of Warwick by the service of one Knights fee. At that time the said Maud had 3 Cavacates of land, here, in demesne, a Watermill, with Free-warren and a Court Leet: As also severall Tenantes, who, besides a certain Rent which they payd, did performe divers services, as plowing, harrowing, washing and shearing sheep, mowing, reaping land the like. This Maud was the wife^y of John de Strete in 12 E. 1. and afterwards (as 'tis very probable) of John le Strange of Knokyn: for upon the death of the said John le Strange in 3 E. 2. it appears^z that he dyed seized of this Mannour in right of Maud his wife, John his son and heir being then 27 years of age. From which John descended Alan Strange Esq. who dyed^a seized thereof in 5 H. 5. it then extending^b into Walton-Munduir, Wellesburne-Strange, and Wellesburne Mountfort, leaving Alice his Daughter and heir xii years of age; of whom I know not what became; nor what relation Sir Thomas Strange Kt. had to her: but in 9 H. 6. do I find^d that the said Sir Thomas was posselt of this Lordship; and that Anne^e his grandchild and one of the coheirs, married^f unto Rob. le Strange second son of Henry le Strange of Hunstanton in Norff. (which Robert, about the beginning of H. 8. time, depopulated^g 7 Mess. and 1. Cottage here, and inclosed Clx. acres of land.) And Margaret the other, to^h John le Strange of Passingham, younger Brother to the said Robert, whereby the one moytie came to Sir Thomas le Strange, Kt. son and heir to the same Robert; and the other to Barbara le Strange, Daughter of John, and Sister and heir to her Brother Henry, (as the descendent here inserted sheweth) who became the wife of Rob. Mordant, son and heir to Will. Mordant of Hampsted in Essex (chief of the Prothonotaries of the Court of Common Pleas:) which Rob. in 32 H. 8. purchased^k of the before specified Sir Thomas Strange his moytie thereof, and of those other lands in this County of their ancestors inheritance: From whom they are descended to Sir Charles Mordant Kt. now living. I now come to speak of the Church, antiently a Chapell^r belonging to Wellesburne (as I have already observed) and endowed^r with glebe and Tithes at the time of its Dedication; the service to be performed therein being at the disposition^r of the said Mother Church; as a member^r whereof it came to the Canons of Kenilworth by the grant^r of Roger Earl of Warwick. In H. 2. time there was a conclusion made betwixt the Canons of Kenilworth and Will. D'arville touching the performance of divine service there; viz.^r that the said Canons should at their charges and care find a Priest for the dayly effecting thereof: For which consideration the said Will. D'arville gave in frank Almes to the said Monastery of Kenilworth and to the Church of St. Peter at Wellesburne xl acres of land in one part of the fields, and as many in another part: as also the Tithes of his Garden: And further allowed, that the Priest doing service there, should have pasturing for viii Oxen and two Kine, amongst his own Oxen and Kine; and likewise for fifty sheep with their lambs, and for his Horse: It being then also determined, that some one of the Inhabitants of Walton, in the name of the rest, should every year upon the Feast day of St. Peter and Paul, offer vi d. upon the Altar of the Church of Wellesburne by way of recognition of their Parochiall subjection: And as touching the sepulture of their dead it was concluded, that the Inhabitants of this place might take their choice, whether to be buried in the Church-yard of Wellesburne, or in the Chapel-yard here: And lastly that the said Will. D'arville should yearly give vi d. and his Tenants i. d. for every yard land they held, towards the repair of this Chapell.

This Rectory (for so doth my authority call it) was in 26 H. 8. rated^r at v l.

Walton-Mauduit.

AS Walton D'Eivill hath no distinction in the Conq^r. Survey by any additional name, neither hath this, but is there^r certified to contain x hides, having two Mills rated at xii. s. and Woods of 4 furlongs in length and two in breadth, all valued at x l. and then in the possession of the Earl of Wellest: Howbeit in H. 1. time it was called Walton-Splebert, perhaps from one of that name that then held it; at which time Roger Earl of Warwick posselt^r it, through some agreement made by Henry de Newburgh, his Father, with that Earl, as I have often intimated. But upon an Accord^r betwixt Godfrey de Luc Bishop of Winchester, and Walleran E. of Warwick, made in 2 Joh. it was assigned by the said Earl to that Bishop, to hold during the life of Maud Countess of Warwick, Widow to Earl William, in lieu of the Mannor of Cnoel in Wilts. of her dowrie, which the Bishop should have had in present possession: And afterwards given^r by that Earl, unto Alice his onely Daughter by his last wife, as her Marriage portion, and confirmed^r by K. John; which Alice being wedded to Will. Mauduit of Hanslope in Buckinghamshire (as in my story of the Earls is shewed;) who in that Rebellion with the Barons of 17. Joh. forfeited^r all; it was given away by the K. together with his Castle of Hanslope, and all his other lands, first^r to Falkefius de Breant; but within six weeks after^r to Robert de Mara, to hold during pleasure.

Yet was it not long that the said Will. continued so disposselt thereof; for in 1 H. 3. upon returning to his allegiance, he had all his lands restored^r to him again; and left issue William, who through his Mothers interest became Earl of Warwick, and, for eight hundred marks sterling, sold^r this Mannor to Sim. de Wanton Bishop of Exeter, reserving to himself and his heirs the service of the xxth part of a Kts. fee; which Bishop, shortly after, past away the inheritance of it by deed^r to John de Wanton his son, and to his heirs, reserving to himself and his heirs a pound of Cumin to be payd yearly at the Feast of St. Mich. and the said service of the xx. part a Kts. fee to the chief Lord. Which Joh. in 4 E. 1. had^r a Court Leet, with Assize of Bread and Beer therein; but departing this life shortly after, left it to Maud his Daughter and heir: which Maud in 7 E. 1. being in Ward^r to Godfrey Giffard Bishop of Exeter, was certified^r to be owner thereof, then holding it of the Earl of Warwick by the xx. part of a Kts. fee, having two Watermills and one Wind-mill here; as also two Carucats of land in demesne, and divers Tenants, who besides severall Rents they payd, performed sundry services, as mowing, making and carrying Hay; Reaping and binding Corn, with the like; for which they had at reaping time 52 Gallons of Beer, and iii s. iii d. in money, by custome. But after this, it came to the family of Strange, as Walton D'Eivill did; and so from Strange to Mordant, Sir Charles Mordant being now posselt thereof.

Long-Compton.

HAVING now done with Willesborne Parish, out of which this Brook, that hath been my guide for a while, passeth into Barlichway-Hundred, where it immediately meeteth with Aldon; I must now ascend to the head of Stoure, in the Southern nook of this Hundred: in following of which stream, with the branches that belong thereto, I shall view the rest of those towns therein, whereof I am to discourse. The utmost place, whose bounds extend to the Western bank of this torrent, is Long-Compton, lying in a deep valley, whence it had originally its name. In the Conq^d. time Gosfridus de Manneville being possessor of this place, it was certified⁹ to contain xxx hides, the Woods extending to two furlongs in length and as much in breadth, having a Mill rated at x s. there being then also a Church; all which were valued at xxx l. and before the Norman invasion possessed by Asgar S. alre: In whose line it continued for divers descents: But after the death of Will. surnamed Mandevile, the last Earl of Essex of that name, Maud his Sister and heir had the Honour of Essex, with this Mannour and other lands of her said Brother's inheritance, being first married to Henry de Bohun (created * E. of Hereford 28 Apr. 1 Joh.) and afterwards to Roger de Annesferra, or D'antsey; which Roger and Maud in 13 H. 3. past away the one moiety of this Lordship, together with the Mannour House unto Hubert de Burgo Earl of Kent; and the other, excepting the Mannour House, to Will. Marefchall Earl of Penbrooke. After whose death in 15 H. 3. Richard Marshall, his Brother and successor in that Earldom, giving security to the K. for his Loyalty, had livery thereof: but discontents shortly after arising betwixt the K. and him, he got unto Ireland, and there raising a flame of Rebellion, was wounded and taken Prisoner; of which hurts he dyed^a.

It should seem that the said Richard past away his interest here to Raph Pipard; for this I take to be it, which was afterwards called Wetton juxta Chiriton, whereof I shall speak particularly anon; therefore I will now go on with that Mannour which Hubert de Burgo had. In 15 H. 3. he obtained a Charter^b to himself and his heirs for a weekly Mercate here, upon the Munday, and a Fair every year, to begin on St. Peter's Eve, and to last for three days. But being raised to greater honour, he experimentally found the slipperiness of that high station: for the King (incensed against him, as our Historians do manifest) not onely removed him for his office of Justitarius Anglie, but otherwise so persecuted him, that he was constrained to flee^c privily to the Abby of Wotton in Surrey, there to hide himself. Nay that was not all; for being sought for, and fleeing to Sanctuary for his preservation, he was pulled out thence by the power of armed men, and carried Prisoner to the Tower of London, with his feet tyed under the Horse Belly; his money extorted from him and his lands seized, saving what the K. permitted his wife to have for her maintenance: whereupon this Lordship coming so into the K. possession, Maud (the widow of Henry de Bohun Earl of Hereford) before specified, who had the title of Countess of Essex, gave a Fine^d of Cl. for to have the benefit of the Year and Day therein, which belong'd to the King; and that the Houses should not be pulled down, nor the Gardens spoiled, in regard that it was held by the said Hubert immediately of her, and so consequently by Erichaet to fall into her hands: But afterwards the K. became reconciled^e to him again; so that he had restitution^f of his lands, whereof John de Burgo, his son (though he did not succeed him in the Earldome) inherited^g the greatest part, if not all, (I presume.) Amongst which he had two parts of the moiety of this Mannour; and in 31 H. 3. came to an agreement^h with Margerie Countesse of Kent, widow of Hubert before specified, for her thirds: all which were rated at xlii. per an. upon the Extent^m made of them in 50 H. 3. for his then taking part with the Rebellious Barons.

But the said John, in 2 E. 1. passing away to the K. and his heirs divers Lordships, lying in the Counties of Notf. Essex. Suff. Dorset. Cambz. Somers. Dorst. and Surrex. amongst them, granted this Mannour, reserving to himself an estate onely for life: So that in 7 E. 1. the King, being owner thereof by the said grant, had^o then two Carucates of land in demesne, and xlii. tenants holding severall proportions, under certain Rents and performance of divers services, as plowing, mowing, harrowing, thrashing and the like: As also a Court-Leet, Gallows, Free-warren, and other liberties. At the same time it was found^p that Raph Pipard had one yard land and a half in this Lordship, which he held of the Earl of Hereford, together with a certain Water Mill, and a wood containing xii acres: as also xxxi. Tenants holding divers proportions of land by certain Rents, and severall servile labours; together with a Court-Leet, Gallows, and Free-warren. And that the Nuns of Stodole, in Derfordshire, had then a Carucate of land here, granted to them by Geffrey de Craucumbe in pure Alms; which Geffrey obtained it of the said Earl of Hereford: As also ix. tenants holding severall proportions of land by performance of servile work; and three acres of land in demesne, bestowed on them by Hubert de Burgo, before mentioned, for the enlarging of their Court; and likewise a Court-Leet, and Free-warren.

At that time likewise did the Prior of Wotton hold^q 7 acres of land here in demesne, which he had of the gift of Geffrey de Langley; & he from Gilbert Earl Marshall; and he of the Earl of Hereford. And likewise John de Compton (a Priest) two yard land, of one Robert Fitz-Nicholas, paying to Raph Pipard a half peny for all services. As also two yard land more, of the Hospitall of St. John in Derford, given thereunto by one Will. de Compton a Priest, who obtained the same from Will. de Mandevile, for which he payd to the Nuns of Stodole vi s. viii d. per an. And half a yard land of the Nuns of Burkeley in pure Alms, for iii s. But being so in the K. possession, it was 10. Feb. 9 of his reign, granted^r to Eustace de Hacche, to hold during pleasure, for the Rent of xli li. to be yearly payd into the Exchequer. And the 28 of May following, unto^s Hugh de Plessers for life. In which demise to Eustace de Hacche it is called Compton in Bennemerth, but in the other Compton-magna; which Hugh de Plessers and Raph Pipard did in 13 E. 1. challenge^t to have here in Common, with the Priores of Stodole, a Court Leet, Assize of Bread and Beer, Gallows, Weyfs, and to be exempted from suit to the Hundred or County Court: But because it was found, that they had exercised these liberties in severall, they were amerced for their false claim. Howbeit, after this; viz. in 27 E. 1. the said K. by his Letters Pat.ⁿ bearing date at Canterbury 10 Sept. amongst other lands and Mannors assigned it to Margaret his Queen, as part of her dowrie. And by another Charter^w bearing date at York 16 Nov. following, granted it to John de Mohun, and Alehs wife, and to the heirs of the said John, to be held of him the said K. and his heirs, in exchange for all those lands, which the same John had within the County of Wiltshire in Freland, or elsewhere within that Realm; the value of this being then xl. li. xviij s. vi. d. ob. per an. In recompence whereof he made other assignments to his said Queen, as by his Pat.ⁿ doth at large appear.

Touching that which Raph Pipard had here in Compton, being thenceforth reputed a Mannour, I find it was in 3. E. 2. (inter alia) granted by the same Raph to Edm. le Butiller and his heirs, to enter upon after the decease of him the said Raph: and that from the said Edmund it descended to James his son and heir, created Earl of Devon 2 E. 3. Which James, the same year, had a Charter^b of Free warren granted to him in all his demesne lands here. In whose family it continued till the beginning of E. 4. time, that James Boteler, Earl of Wiltshire (son and heir to James Boteler the fourth Earl of Devon) being advanced^c to that Honour in the time of his Father (2. 27 H. 6.) adhering stoutly to the Lancastrian interest, and so participating in the hard fate which befell that House, became attainted^d in the Parl. of 1 E. 4. But then the K. by his Letters Pat.^e bearing date at Westm. 20 Febr. in the first year of his reign, reciting the notable services which Sir Walter Devereux Kt. whom he had newly advanced to the degree of a Baron, had performed on his behalf in sundry Battails against K. Henry the 6. and his Complices, and particularly against Henry D. of Exeter, Jasper Earl of Penbrooke, and this James Earl of Wiltshire; in consideration thereof, granted it to the said Walter and the heirs male of his body; together with the Mannour of Sutton-Courtney in Berkshire, and other great possessions. Howbeit, Thomas, Brother and heir to the said Earl, finding favour with K. Edw. being shortly after restored^f by Act of Parl. to his lands, had it again: whereupon it descended^g to his Daughters and heirs; viz. Margaret married to Sir Will. Bullein Kt. and Anne the wife of Sir James St. Leger Kt. After which, scil. temp. H. 8. Bullein's moytie was past away unto certain Feoffees to the use of Sir Will. Compton Kt. from whom is lineally descended the now Earl of Southampton, (as in Compton-Wiltshire is shewed) the present owner thereof.

I now return to that Mannour here, which was granted to Mohun in E. 1. time. This continued in that line till the reign of H. 4. but then Sir John Mohun Kt. dyingⁱ without issue male, it came by partition^k to Ric. le Strange, son and heir of John le Strange of Knokyn, by Maud the youngest of the three Daughters and coheirs of the said Sir John Mohun: which Richard dyed seized thereof in 27 H. 6. leaving Sir John Strange his son and heir; who departing this life without issue male, Joan^m his Daughter and heir, by marriage with George eldest son to Thomas Lord Stanley (afterwards Earl of Derby) brought it to that family; Edw. Earl of Derby, son and heir of Henry, proving his age, having liveryⁿ thereof accordingly in 14 Eliz. To which Edw. succeeded his Brother Will. Earl of Derby, who in our time sold it (as I have heard) to Will. Earl of Southampton Grandfather to the present Earl, now owner thereof.

That the Church, here, is of no less antiquity than the Britains time, I shall vouch the authority of an old Historian,^o whereby it will appear, that the payment of Tithes was very ancient, if his relation have credit with my Reader. About the year of our Saviours incarnation DCiii. St. Augustine, being arriv'd in England to preach the Gospell, came hither; whereupon the Priest of this Parish repaired to him, and made a complaint that the Lord of the Town, not paying his Tithes, though admonished, was by him excommunicated, and yet stood more obstinate: St. Augustine therefore convening him for that fault, demanded the reason of such his refusal. Knowest thou not (quoth he) that they are not thine, but God's? To whom the Knight answered, Did not I plow and sow the land? I will therefore have the tenth sheaf as well as the nine. Whereupon St. Augustine replied, If thou wilt not pay them, I will excommunicate thee; and so, hastning to the Altar, publicly said, I command that no excommunicate person be present at Masse. Which words were no sooner spoke, than that a dead man, that lay buried at the entrance into the Church, immediately arose out of his Grave, went without the compass of the Church yard, and there stood still during the time of Masse. Which being finished St. Aug. went to him, and said, I command thee in the name of God that thou tell me who thou art. To whom he made answer, I was Patron of this place in the time of the Britains, and though frequently warn'd by the Priest, yet never would pay him my Tithes, and so dyed excommunicate, and was thrust into Hell. Which answer occasioned St. Augustine to command him to shew where the Priest was buried that so excommunicated him; who, being accordingly directed to his Grave, said, To the earth that all men may know that life and death are in the hands of God, to whom nothing is impossible, Arise in his name, for we have need of thee! Who thereupon came out of his Grave, and stood before them. To whom St. Augustine said, Brother dost thou know this man? yes quoth he; but I would I had never known him. for he was always a Rebel to the Church, a withholder of his Tithes, and even to his last a very wicked man, which occasioned me to excommunicate him.

Augustine replied, Brother, thou knowest that God is mercifull, therefore we must have pity on this miserable creature, who is the image of God, and redeem'd with his blood, having so long endured the pains of Hell. Whereupon delivering to him a scourge, he kneeled down, and craving absolution with tears, had it granted; and so by St. Augustine's command, returning to his Grave again, was immediately resolved to dust. Then said St. Aug. to the Priest, How long hast thou been buried? Above an hundred and fifty years, quoth he.

How hast thou fared hitherto? Well, quoth the Priest, enjoying the delights of eternal Life. Aug. Art thou contented that I should pray unto God that thou may'st return again to us; and by thy preaching reduce many souls unto him, that are deceived by the Devil? Far be it from thee, O Father (quoth the Priest) that thou shouldest so disturb my quiet, as to bring me back to the troublesome life of this World. Aug. Go thy way then, and rest in peace, praying for me, and for the Universall Church of God: So accordingly entering his grave, he fell also to dust. Then turn'd S. Augustine to the Knight and said, Wilt thou now pay thy Tithes to God, my son? Who trembling and weeping fell at his feet, and, confessing his Offence, craved pardon; and shaving himself, became a follower of S. Augustine all the days of his life.

Hoc miraculum (saith my Author) videbitur illis incredibile, qui credunt aliquid Deo esse impossibile; Sed nulli dubium est, quod nunquam Anglorum duras cervices Christi iugo se submississent, nisi per magna miracula divinitus sibi ostensa.

But descending to later times, and of more certainty, I find^p, that about the beginning of King Steph. reign, Geffery Magnavil gave this Church to the Monastery of Walden in Essex, which he had newly founded. In an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) accounting xii. marks per an. which the Canons of Walden had out of it; as also certain Pensions to the Nuns of Burley (in Berk.) and to the Chapell of Wellesby, it was valued^u at xxiii. marks; and afterwards, sc. Non. Dec. an. 1316. (10 E. 2.) appropriated^r to the said Monastery of Walden by Walt. de Myndenston Bishop of Worcester. And in 26 H. 8 the Vicaridge rated^r at xiii^{vi} viii^d, the Procurations and Synodals then payd out of it being xi^s vi^d.

That which the Canons of Walden had here, was after the dissolution of that Monastery granted away by the King to Thomas lord Audley, Chancellor of England and his heirs, by the name of a Mannour, together with the Rectory of this place: but it came again to the Crown, as it seems; for in 4. & 5. Weston juxta Chiriton.

That this was originally a member of Long Compton, I have in my discourse of that place already intimated. From Marshall Earl of Devonshire it came^v to Raph Pipard, and from him to one John de Weston (soe called from his residence here, as I guesse) which John in 7 E. 1. held^x it of the said Raph by the fourteenth part of a Knights Fee, having then two carucates of land in demesne; as also one Water mill, with certain Tenants holding 8 yard land of him by several services, as plowing, sowing, reaping, making malt, and the like; but with his said Tenants made two appearances, yearly, at the Court Leet of the said Raph. at Compton. paying iii^s to him at the Feast of S^t Martin, and iii^s at Warth. which John de Weston in 27 E. 1. entailed^y this Mannour after his own decease, upon John de Broughton and Kath. his wife, and the heirs of the said John de Broughton; whereupon the said John, within two years following, obtain'd a Charter^z of Free-warren to himselfe and his heirs in all his demesne lands at Broughton, (near Wanbury) in Oxfordshire; as also here and other places in this County.

Howbeit after this till E. 3. time, I find no farther mention thereof, worthy the notice; but then was it settled^a upon Raph Earl Stafford and Will. de Peito for their two lives; and afterwards upon S^t John de Peito K^t. son of the said Will. and Alianore his wife, and John the son of the said John, and it was then involved with Long Compton: but it seems that the family of Mohun were owners thereof very timely; for I find that Will. de Moion and Agnes his wife gave^b the Church to the Monastery of Bredlington, whose grant King Henry 1. confirmed: Howbeit, he or his were dispossessed again, though it appears not how: perhaps by K. Stephen; for in 3. Steph. divers of the great men being in A. mes on the behalf of Maud the Emperesse, this Will. then fortified^c and held his Castle at Dunster for her: but further do I find nothing thereof till 9 R. 1. that Raph de Welleford accounted^d xv^{li} for the ferm thereof, it being in the Kings own hands as an Eschaet: Which forfeiture was made by Joelinus de Pomeria a Norman, as by the Record^e of 6 Joh. appears, where its particular extent (as of all other, the lands of such Normans, which, it seems, were seized on by the King) is certified; viz. in Rent of Assize viii^{li} xv^s; the arable land in demesne being 3. carucates, consisting of xxiii Oxen, and the other stock xxi. Oxen, iii. Horses, viii. Hogs, five Kine and a Bull, five Sows and a Boar, and CC. Sheep; so that the yearly value of all, was rated at xv^{li}.

In which 6th. year, King John bestowed it upon, or rather restored^f it to Reginald de Mohun, accepting the coin and stock then upon it, which he appointed to be prized and otherwise disposed. To whose posterity it continued whilst the male line lasted; and in 20 H. 3. was held^g by Reginald de Mohun, the second, by the service of one Kts. Fee. Which Reginald in 36 H. 3. Having License^h from the King to stop and inclose a certain Road way lying through his Park here; assigning another without the compass thereof, upon condition that passengers might not receive prejudice, left issue John, who in 7 E. 1. hadⁱ here three carucates of land in demesne, with xvii. Tenants holding severall proportions of ground, performing certain services, as thrashing, plowing, gathering Nuts, &c. As also a Court Lect, Free-warren and Gallows; and a Wood inclosed, in which it was then found that the King ought to have paid^j for xl. Hogs, and one Boar, from the Feast of S. Mich. untill Martinmasse, as belonging to his Freehold in Long Compton. Which John de Mohun dyed^k the same year, whereupon this Mannour, then rated at Lⁱ per an. being in the Kings hand, in regard of the minority of his son, was granted^l to Almaric de St. Amand, to hold till the heir should come of full age, in part of satisfaction for C. marks per an. given by the King to the said Almaric, to be received out of his Wards or Eschaets; whose name was also John, and his residence here, as it seems: for in 17 E. 2. I find^m him in the list of those Knights, and men at Armes of this County then certified into the Chancery.

Howbeit, in 6 E. 3. it cameⁿ again into the K. hands, by reason of the minority of the son and heir of that John; and was committed^o to the custody of Will. Ayermin Bishop of Exeter, who did great repairs upon the Mannour house. But at length the issue male of this branch of that family, failing; for the last S^r John Mohun had only three daughters and heirs: viz. Elizabeth wife to Will. Mountacute Earl of Salisbury, Maud married to John le Strange of Knokyn, and Philippa to Edw. D. of Bozke; upon partition made betwixt them, it fell to the said Elizabeth; who dyed^r without issue, it came to be divided betwixt Richard Lord Strange, son to the above specified Maud; and to Philippa Dutchesse of Bozke: which Philippa accordngly held the moitye thereof during her life; but dying^s without issue in 10 H. 6. it descended^t to the said Lord Strange, as her nephew and heir: and so from Strange to the Earls of Derby, by a daughter and heir, as Long Compton did; Edw. Earl of Derby being seized^u thereof in 14 Elz. To whom succeeded Will. his brother, who sold it unto Raph Sheldon of Beoley Esq; Grandfather to William, the present owner thereof.

The Church (dedicated to S. Michael) being given^w to the Canons of Bredlington in H. 1. time, by Will. de Moion and Agnes his wife (as hath been already intimated) was in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued^x at xx. marks. It seems that the said Canons of Bredlington granted back the patronage thereof to the Mohuns; for it appears that they and their heirs presented thereto: but in 26 H. 8. it was valued^y at xx^{li} over and above xi^{li} allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

Ascot.

IN this parish of Whichford are two Hamlets, viz. Ascot and Stourton: but of Ascot, which takes its name from the Eastern situation thereof, I have not seen any other mention than what is in the Record of 7 E. 1. wherein it appears, that John de Mohun had xviii. Tenants here (it being no distinct Mannour, but a member of Whichford) who held several proportions of land by performance of sundry servile employments; as plowing, harrowing, mowing, and the like; and payd certain Rent besides.

Stourton.

THIS Village hath its name from the brook called Stoure, upon the bank whereof it is seated; and being originally a member of Whichford, was granted away by one of the Mohuns to Will. Cumin, or some of his ancestors, as it should seem by what I shall shew by and by. But the first mention I find of it, is in 5 H. 3. Where Will. Hose and Margaret his wife brought an Assize of Novel disseisin against Alice de Mohun, for certain lands, and two Mills lying in this Village. To which Will. Cumin succeeded Margerie his daughter and heir, wedded to John de Cantilupe, who brought thereby the inheritance of this Mannour to that Family, and in 7 E. 1. held it of John de Mun by the service of two parts of 2 Knights fee, having two carucats of land here in demesne, and xviii. Tenants holding several proportions by certain Rents, and services of husbandry; in which Record it is called Porton, by reason of its Northern situation, as I guess. But these Cantilupes had their seat at Smitfeld in this County, where I purpose to speak historically of them; and whereof the heir general, in E. 3. time, married to S^r Thomas West K^t, who by that means became Lord of this Mannour.

It appears by the return of a Writ of Ad quod dampnum, that Q. Phillipa, wife to K. Edw. 3. had a purpose to have given this Mannour to the Monks of Westminster; perhaps in respect of its nearness to their Mannour of Sutton in Gloucestersh. and yet environed with this County; but it took not effect; for I find that John Harwell (of whom and his family I shall speak in Wotton-Warren) purchased it of S^r Thomas West and Joan his wife, in 20 R. 2. And in 10 H. 6. Roger Hurewell of Moreball, and Will. Harewell of Benley in Arden, were certified to be Lords thereof.

Cheriton.

Following the course of Stowe I come next to Cheriton, which originally was a member of Bratles, and therefore is not particularly mentioned in the Conquerors Survey. Before the first of King John I have not seen any thing thereof in Record; but then did Henry Falconer and Anora his wife, recover^m the patronage to the Church here; yet whether in his own or his wives right I know not; for she wasⁿ a widow, and called Anora de la More, and had a daughter named Sara, an heir, whose tuition the said Henry had. Neither am I certain how Falconer's interest here went away; but in 10 H. 3. Lucia the daughter of Reginald de Clifton brought an Assize^o of Novell disseisin against Henry then Earl of Warwick for the same advowson. Which instances, though they are most proper to be made when I come to speak in particular of the Church, I have the rather inserted here, because they give some light to the succession of the Mannour, whereunto in those times the patronage of the Church was, except very rarely, belonging.

But for want of better help, whereby a perfect discovery might be had, I am constrained to make use of them, being not able to manifest, so exactly, as I would, through what paths the succession of it went, till the Lucies became Lords thereof. In 20 H. 3. William Bonchivallier answered for part of a Knights fee here, then certified^d to be held of the Earl of Warwick; andⁿ in 36 H. 3. Raph de Wylinton: which Raph in that great defection of the Barons, towards the later end of H. 3. time, wasⁿ in Armes against the King, and of the retinue to Geffrey de Lucie; and in 52 H. 3. held^d this Mannour by the service of a Knights fee of the Earl of Warwick, as of the Mannour of Bratles; whose Tenants in 7 E. 1. did their suit^t twice a year at the Court Leet for Bratles. To this Raph succeeded John de Wylinton, who in 9 E. 2. held^d a half and a fourth part of a Knights fee here, of the said Earl: But the next possessorⁿ thereof was Sir William de Lucy Knight, viz. in 3 E. 3. Since which his posterity, of whom I have spoke in Cherlecote, have succeeded him therein, to this day.

The Church in anno 1291. 19 E. 1. was valued^x at viii. marks: and in^y 26 H. 8. at xii li. out of which was payd for Synodals and Procurations ix s. vd. ob.

Barton on the Heath.

OF this place the onely mention in the Conquerors Survey is, that one Grim held at that time half a hide of land, here, of Robert de Stafford, then valued at xx s. but in that Record it is written Bertone, which is a Saxon word, & signifieth the same that in some places we now call a fold-yard, yet intendeth all such barnes and out-buildings as belong thereto. I am of opinion that the E. of Spelent, or Turchill de Warwick had something here at the same time, though no particular instance be made thereof in Domesday-book, in regard that afterwards, Thomas de Arden was found to hold part of a Knights fee here, of the Earl of Warwick. But there is so little light in those elder times from Record, touching this place, that I can give but a slender account thereof. In King John's time one Simon de Barton was impleaded² for certain lands here, descended to him from Ranulph de Barton, his grandfather; yet whether the said Ranulph or his Ancestor were enfeoff^d of the whole Mannour, or onely of some lands here, by one of the Barons of Stafford, I will not take upon me to determine; for in 20 H. 3. it is apparent, that Thomas de Arden answered for the fourth part of a Knights fee here, held of the Earl of Warwick: And in^b 36 H. 3. Robert Marfchall, and Ric. le Eyr had the same fourth part of the said Thomas; at which time all that was^o found to be held of the Baron of Stafford here, was but the xvth part of a Knights fee, then posselt by Richard le Frankleyn.

To the descendants of which Rob. Marshall it continued till Queen Elizabeth's time; one whereof, scil. Robert, past^d away the advowson of the Church, and some lands here, to Nicholas Marell of Carleton in Lincolne (com. Linc.) in 11 E. 2. but afterwards they had it again, and wrote their names Marshall, alias Bery; Of which line without doubt, was Edw. Bery, who upon the death of his father 5 E. 6. was^o 26. years of age; and past^d it away to Will. Underhill of Bolton, who dyed^d seized thereof 31 Martii 12 Eliz. leaving William his son and heir xiv. years of age and upwards.

But in this Family of Underhill, it continued not long; for clear it is, that one of the Berryes had it again; of whom it was purchased by Walter Overbury, a younger son to Sir Nich Overbury (of Bourton on the Hill in Com. Glouc. Knight) about the later end of King James his time: which

Upon a Marble Gravelstone in the Chancell this Inscription.

Here lyeth buried the bodies of Edmund Bury and Eliz. his wife; which Eliz. was the seventh daughter of Edward Underhill of Nether-Stratford in the County of Warwick Esquier. The said Edmund deceased the xxii. day of January 1558. but the said Elizab. surviving the said Edm. took to her second husband Thomas Sawyer of Raundis in the County of Northampton Gent. whom she outlived, and then returning into Warwick-shire, her native Countrey, and desiring after this life ended, to have her body layd in the Chancell in the Parish Church of Barton on the Heath in the County of Warwick aforesaid, with the body of the said Edmund her first husband, she caused this stone to be prepared An. Dom. 1608. as a memoriall of the said Edmund, Elizabeth, William, John, and Margaret.

Wolford-magna.

Domes. IN the Conquerors time Robert de Stadforde held vii. hides in this place, within the precinct whereof were a Church and a Mill; which Mill was then rated at xx d. and the whole at C s. having been part of the possessions of one Waga, a great person, before the Norman invasion, as in Wotton-Warren appeareth. Besides this part which the said Robert then held himself, there were 4. hides more; two whereof were held of him by Orduui, and valued at L s. and the other two by one Aluine rated at xxx s. all which were the freehold of the said Aluine in Edward the Confessors time.

In the generall Survey¹, at that time made, the name of this town is variously written; viz. in one place Uolwarde; and in the other Uolwarde, where the U is mistaken for an r: But for the original occasion of the name, my opinion is (however the corruptness of pronunciation have by time thus altered it) that it was from its being the seat or habitation of one Ulf, or Wulf, a frequent appellation in the Saxons time; and that the later syllable warde should be Wurthe the d being thus stricken through s, which makes it th; for then it signifieth the same that wozth doth, id est habitatio, as I have elsewhere instanced; the a being pronounc'd o, and written accordingly by us in these Southern parts. And now that the same syllable is is here made soyde, it is from the like error in writing futably to the vulgar pronunciation, as on the contray Lapwozth (for so we yet call it and write it) is recorded by the name of Lapefozde in Domesday-book.

That this Lordship continued in the line of Stafford (descendants from the above mentioned Robert) till H. 8. time, I could give instance by a multitude of authorities, if need were; But I shall onely here take notice of what is memorable of them in relation to this place.

In 13 Joh. Herveus de Stafford answered^m for one Knights fees here, it being reputed as a part of his Barony, and written Uolewarthe. But in 19 H. 3. upon the like occasion it is recorded by the nameⁿ of Uolewozth; and in^o 36 H. 3. Uulleward. How it comes to passe I know not; but in 13 E. 1. one Richard Chance claimed^p a Count-Leet, Assize of Bread and Beer, Gallows, and Weyfs here by Prescription, and had them allowed: which Richard in 9 E. 2. was certified^q to be Lord of this place. Neither can I understand upon what title John de Upton, and Joan his wife had an interest in the fourth part thereof, which in 10 E. 2. was entailed^r upon the issue of the said John by the same Joan: but certain it is, that if it were out of the possession of the Barons of Stafford, it was not long, and very probably in trust onely; for in 25 E. 3. Raph Earl Stafford entailed^s it upon Hugh his son, and the heirs of his body by Philippa, the daughter to Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick. By which Barons and Earles of Stafford I find, that sundry persons were enfeof of good quantities of land here; for it appears^t, that in 20 E. 3. Adam de Greneville held half a Knights fee of them, lying here, and in Burnington; Robert Verney half^u a Knights fee, here onely, in 46 E. 3. William Clerke^w half a Knights fee in 10 R. 2. and William Ingram one^x Knights fee, in 16. and^y 22 R. 2. But as there is nothing in this world permanent; so this Lordship, after such a long continuance unto that Noble Family before specified, was in 12 H. 8. past^z away by Edward Stafford Duke of Buckingham to Richard Bishop of Winchester and others, to the use^a of Sir William Compton Knight, and his heirs; From whom the Earl of Porthampton, now Lord thereof, is descended, as in Compton-wingate appeareth.

The Church (dedicated to S. Michael) was given to the Canons of Stone in Staffordshire by Robert de Stafford, grandchild to Robert, who lived in the Conquerors time. But in 26 H. 3. there was a suit^d betwixt the Prior of Kenilworth, (unto which the Monastery of Stone was a Cell, as I have elsewhere manifested) and Hawise the widow of Richard de Gloucester for the advowson thereof, which she claimed as her Dowrie, and thereupon called to warrantie Gilbert son and heir to the said Richard, who came in, and pleaded a Fine levied of five hides of land in Wolward, whereby the said advowson remained to the said Richard and his heirs with part of that land: And because the Prior was in England, and did not put in his claim, demanded judgment. Whereunto the Prior answered, that both before that Fine was levied and after, he was in possession of the same, & presented thereto: And because there was no suit betwixt the parties for the said Advowson, but for the five hides whereunto it belonged not, he said, that the before mentioned Fine ought not to hurt him; and produced the Charter of Raph fitz Stephan, Ancestor to the said Gilbert, whereby he confirm'd the grant of that Advowson to those Canons of Stone, which Robert de Stafford chief Lord of the Fee had made to them: And though the said Gilbert replied, that after that grant so made Raph fitz Stephen presented to the Church, yet was it adjudg'd for the Prior.

Which Advowson continued to the Canons of Stone till 51 H. 3. but then, being past away by them to the Warden and Scholars of Merton-Colledge in Oxford, was appropriated to that Colledge on the Calends of June anno 1268. 52 H. 3. by Godfrey Giffard Bishop of Worcester; and in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) was, with the Chappell of Burmington valued^s at xxvi. marks. After which there was another Appropriation^b thereof made to the said Colledge by Thomas Cobham Bishop of Worcester 13. Cal. Aug. 16 E. 2. And in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was rated^t at viii li.

Wolford-parva.

IN the Conquerors time this was part of the Earl of Wessex's possessions, and of him then held by one Radulphus, at which time being certified to contain 4. hides and a half, and rated at xl s. I find it written Wolwarda, one Aluric having been owner thereof before the Norman invasion. From the said Earl of Wessex it came to the Barons of Stafford: but the direct time when the family of Ingram, which to this day enjoys the greatest part of it, were enfeoffed thereof by any of them I cannot declare, though certain it is that they had it very antiently: for I find, that in 3. Joh. Engeram de Wlwarth (doubtlesse one of that line) levied a Fine of lands here: and in 36 H. 3. it appears^k that the same Ingeram held half a Knights fee, here, of the Baron of Stafford; which proportion his posterity also had, as by sundry Inquisitions^l is evident. But the Record^m of 7 E. 1. expresseth that one Thomas de parva-Woleward was Lord thereof, and that he held it of Cecily de Mucegros, and she of John de Boys, and he of Elene la Zuche, and she of the King: which Thomas had at that time two yard land here in demesne, with certain Freeholders and Cottiers.

Nevertheless, were the posterity of the Barons of Stafford reputedⁿ Lords of it; and in 12 H. 8. did Edward Duke of Buckingham levie a^o Fine thereof, together with the Mannours of great Wolford and Wltho, unto Richard Bishop of Winchester and others, as in great Wolford I have already intimated: yet it seems that the Ingrams had a Mannour here; for so it appears^p after the death of Richard Ingraham Esquier in 5 Eliz. Of which Mannour Hastang Ingram is Lord at this day. At present this Village hath not many Inhabitants, but antiently it consisted^q of 43. families.

tained v. hides, wherein was a Mill rated at x s. but the value of all was certified at C s. whereof one Godwin was owner before the Norman invasion. In 13. Joh. I find it in the list of those places within this County whereof the Barons of Stafford were Lords; and that it answered for one Knights Fee as part of that Honour, being held in 36 H. 3. by Adam de Greneville of Hawisla de Wulleward, and by her of the Lord Stafford: which Adam bore for his Armes a bend betwixt six Lions rampant; and in 52, 53, 54, and 55 H. 3. was in Commission for taking Assizes of Novell disseisin in this County: From whom descended William de Greneville, who for his Rebellion in E. 2. time forfeited this, with other Mannours that he had in Wiltshire & Somersetshire, which were thereupon seized; yet through the Kings favour he obtained them again, and had a grant of this in tail to himself, and Lucie his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies lawfully begotten; but for want of such issue on John the son of Richard de Rodeney and his heirs.

After this, viz. in 12 E. 3. it appears, that John de Wolverton, and Lucia his wife levied a Fine of this Mannour, as also of the Mannour of Southwyke in Wiltshire, selling them upon John de Greneville and his heirs; whereby it seemes that they were of the inheritance of her the said Lucia, in respect of the warrantie against her heirs. And in 17 E. 3. did William the son of Edmund de Greneville release to the said John, all his right and interest in these Mannours: But in 46 E. 3. I find that Humphrey Stafford of Southwyke posselt it, in right of his wife (daughter and heir to Greneville, as I guesse.) From which Humphrey, descended Sir Humphrey Stafford Knight, who by his Testament dated 5. April. 1 H. 5. gave (inter alia) to the Church here at Birmingham lx s. And from him Sir Humphrey Stafford of Hoke in Dorsetshire 10 H. 6. whose grandchild Humphrey, created Lord Stafford of Southwyke in 4 E. 4. as alio Earl of Devonshire in 9. of that Kings reign, revolting from the King in the Battail of Banbury the same year, was cut shorter by the head. After whose death, having no issue, Alianore the wife of Thomas Strangways Esquier, one of the daughters of Alice, Aunt to the said Earl, became a coheir to his inheritance; to whom (inter alia) this Mannour of Birmingham was allotted: which Thomas had issue by her Sir Giles Strangways Knight, who in 32 H. 8. levied a Fine hereof to Henry Annesley Gentleman, but to what uses I know not; nor through what hands, it hath since past.

Ditchford-Frery.

Below Birmingham is Stoure augmented by a little stream, which having its rise in Worcester-shire passes by Ditchford-Frery, and Stretton upon Josse, and then joyns therewith. In the Conquerors time this, being posselt by Robert de Stadford, contained two hides, which one Brian then held of him, with a Mill rated at lxviii d. and all valued at iv li. having been the freehold of Leovic in Edward the Confessors days. But the first mention I find of it after that time, is in 31 H. 2. where it appears that Adam de Standon had a suit with Roger de Dikeford for half a Knights fee here. And next, that in 16 H. 3. there was a Fine levied betwixt Hervens de Stafford and Vivian de Standon for the customes and services which he the said Hervey required of him for two hides of land here, being half a Knights Fee: which Vivian, shortly after this, parted with his interest, here, unto one Fraricus de Dychesford, covenanting that the same Fraricus and his heirs should performe to him the said Vivian, and his heirs, the service of half a Knights Fee, and pay 4 s. yearly to them at the Feasts of Easter and S. Michael the Arch-Angell by equall portions.

Hereupon was it called Dicheford-Frery, for distinction from the other Dichefords near at hand, and lying in Worcester-shire: but in 9 E. 2. it was reputed a Hamlet of Wolsford: about which time there was a Fine levied betwixt John de Brailes of Dicheford, and William Burle and Margerie his wife of the fourth part of this Mannour; whereupon two parts of that fourth part were settled upon the said John and his heirs; and an Agreement made betwixt them, that the third part of the fourth, which Eliz. the Widow of John de Dicheford held in dower of the inheritance of the said Margerie, and ought to come to her after the decease of the said Eliz. should, from and after the time of such her departure out of this life, remain to the said John, & the heirs of his body; and for want of such issue to Joan the daughter of John de Dicheford, and her heirs. And by another Fine levied betwixt the said John de Brailes and Joan his wife Pl. and Henry Wastes of Dychesford and Elene his wife Desorc. of the fourth part of this Mannour, two parts of the said four were settled upon the said John and Joan, and the heirs of their two bodies, it being then concluded that the third part of the said fourth, which Maud the widow of Roger de Dicheford held in Dower, of the inheritance of the said Elene, should, after the decease of her the said Maud, wholly remain to the said John and Joan, and the heirs of their two bodies, and for default of such issue to the right heirs of John.

By all which it appears that John de Dicheford (descended from the before mentioned Fraricus without question) left issue certain daughters and heirs, whereof Joan was the wife of John de Brailes, Margerie of William Burle, Elene of Henry Wastes, and the fourth, viz. Maud of Blythe, as I guesse: For in 19 R. 2. Thomas Blythe of Blythe in this County, passing away all his lands in this place and Stretton super Josse unto Henry de Sutton and Margaret his wife, and the heirs of the said Henry, maketh mention, that they descended to him by right of inheritance, after the death of Maud the daughter to John, and sister to Thomas de Dicheford. But of the grants unto the said Henry Sutton, made by such others as had interest here, I have not seen any, except of Giles Shukburgh; who by his Deed dated at Wolshamcote on S. Peter's day 9 H. 4. released unto him all his right herein. Which Henry Sutton left issue onely daughters, whereof Alianore became the wife of Geoffrey de Allesley (of Little Lawford in this County:) to which Geoffrey and Alianore and the heirs of their two bodies, did Margaret the widow of the said Henry, by her Deed bearing date at Little Lawford on the Feast day of S. Lawrence, grant this Mannour, with remainder to Margaret her daughter then widow of Edm. Dalby, and the heirs of her body. But the next posseffour thereof, that I have met with, was Will. Willington of Bercheston Esquire, who having divers daughters and heirs, and all match't into good families of this County, as in Bercheston I shall shew, left this Mannour to Mary the wife of Will. Sheldon Esquire, as it seems; for their posterity do enjoy it at this day.

The Church, or Chapell, here (dedicated to S. Giles) though now there is scarce any signe where it stood, was subordinate to the Church of Wolfsord, and as a member thereof appropriated to Merton-Colledge in Orford (as in Wolfsord is shewed:) whereof all I have seen memorable, other than the Presentations and Institutions here inserted, is, that in 17 H. 6. there was an Agreement made betwixt the Warden and Fellows of that Colledge, and Geoffrey Allesley, and Alianore his wife, Patrons of this Chapell, in right of the said Alianore, touching the perception of Tithes and Buriall of the dead, which the said Warden and Fellows claimed to belong unto the said Church of Wolfsord: The substance of which Agreement was thus; viz. that the perpetuall Incumbent of this Chapell, should for ever, in consideration of the premises; and all Pensions and exactions; as also in token of subjection to the said mother Church, pay yearly ii s. in the said Church of Wolfsord, upon the xixth of July (which is the day of the Dedication of the same) to the said Warden and Scholars, and their successors for ever.

THIS place, having its name from the Street-way, on which it lyes, was by the Conquerors general Survey^a computed for viii. hides, six whereof were at that time possest by Gislebertus filius Turroldi, and then held of him by one Walter, wherein stood the Church, being then valued at Cx s. having been the inheritance of Chenuard and Brietric in Edm. the Confessours days. But the other two, whereof the same Brietric was possest before the Conquest, at that time belonged to Osbernus filius Ricardi; and, being held of him by the before specified Walter, were valued at xxx s. As to the succession of that part which belong'd to the above mentioned Gislebertus, I can make no discovery for a long time; Neither then doth it seem to clear as I could wish, the Series of the Patrons that presented to the Church, affording me the best light.

The first intimation I find^b of it, is in 20 H. 3. where half a Knights fee in this place is certified to be held of Raph de Todneye; yet who it was that then so held it; is not exprest: but in 36 H. 3. it appears^c to be William le Bretun. The next that had to do here, I mean in this part, was^d Walter Pykerell, yet not reputed Lord of the Mannour, though he had the advouson of the Chapell; so that, considering that the Abbot of Wobesley was shortly after certified to be Lord of this town (as I shall more plainly shew by and by) I may, without much presumption conclude, that by one means or other the Monks of that Monastery obtained a large proportion in this part thereof, after that Walter Cumin (as I shall declare anon) had given them all that he had here. Which Walter in 10 E. 2. levied a Fine^e of what he had here, and in Willsborough; viz. two mess, three carucates of land and eight marks Rent, with the advouson of the Chapell, whereby he entailed it upon the issue of his body by Agnes his wife, the remainder to John de Leicester Priest. But it seemes that Pykerell had no children by that woman; for Leicester enjoyed it according to this Entail, and presented to the Chapell, as will appear anon. From whom it came to Roger Hillary, who had free-warren granted to him in all his demesne lands in this place, (and in Staffordshire) 4. Maii 18 E. 3. and^f held what he had here of the Earl of Warwick by the fourth part of a Knights fee. Which Roger was a Kt.^h and had issue Sir *Roger*ⁱ, who dying^k childlesse in 1 H. 4. Sir John Rochford Knight, son^l of Saer de Rochford by Joan his elder sister; and Eliz. daughter to Will. de la Plaunch, by Eliz. his other sister, became his heirs: which Eliz. had^m 4 husbands, First Sir John Bermingham Knight, Secondly, Sir John Russell Knight, Thirdly, Sir John Clinton Knight, and Lastly Robert Lord Grey of Rotherfelde: whereupon, by partitionⁿ betwixt these co-heirs in 13 H. 4. the said Eliz. had (inter alia) this Mannour allotted to her; but dying without issue in 2 H. 6. the posterity of Sir John Rochford became her heirs, as to it; viz. Joan the wife of Sir Robert Roos Knight, Margaret the wife of Frederick Tilney, and Alice of John Gibthorp: Betwixt whom partition being made, it was assigned to Joan; for Sir Robert Roos presented^p to the Church in 5 H. 6. and dyed^q ult. Sept. 20 H. 6. leaving Margaret the wife^r of Thomas de Pinchbeck, and Alianore, his daughters^s and heirs; heirs; which Margaret was afterwards married to John Wittelbury. But from Witlebury it, ere long, devolved to Sir Richard Clement Knight, by Anne a daughter and heir, as I guesse by the Presentations.

The other part of this town, posselt by Osbertus filius Ricardi in the Conquerors time (as I have shewed) was by Osbertus filius Hugonis, grandchild to the said Osbern, granted to Hugh Hubald (progenitor to the Hubauds of Ipstep) and his heirs, to hold by the service of one Foot-man in the Marches of Wales, for 8. dayes yearly, upon xv. days notice: which Hugh past it away to Walter Cumin, reserving the said service, Osbertus filius Hugonis confirming the grant. But it continued not long in the line of Cumin; for Walter Cumin, son to the said Walter, gave it to the Monks of Bordesley; at which time it was accounted three hides, whose grant Henry Hubald, of whom it was held, confirmed for the yearly Rent of x s. and the before specified service of a Foot-man &c. which was to be performed in the guarding of Ricardus-Castle, as that Charter testifieth. But it seems that the Monks of Bordesley obtained more lands here in Stretton besides these; for in 4 E. 1. I find that they had 4. hides; and in 9 E. 2. were certified to be Lords of the town; which being the greatest part thereof, continued to them till the dissolution of that House; but soon after, scil. in 37. H. 8. was past out of the Crown, together with the Grange, unto Thomas Badger, Thomas Fowler, and Robert Dyson: From whom it came at length to one William Freeman, who in 1 Eliz. dyed seized thereof, leaving John his cosin and heir xv. years of age.

In anno 1291. 19 E. 1. the Church here, was not valued; but in 14 E. 3. I find it rated at iii. marks and a half; yet is there no mention of it in 26. H. 8.

Barcheston.

Some, being increast with this torrent, which passes by the skirts of Stretton, halseth Northwards, and on its Eastern bank leaveth Barcheston, with Willington, a petty Hamlet. Part of this town, viz. two hides and a half, belonging to Will. fil. Corbucionis in the Conquerors time (of whom in Stadley I have spoke) was then held of him by one Johais, and valued at xl s. having a Mill therein rated a C d. But the residue, viz. one hide and half a virgate, Aluric then held of the King, which is certified in the generall Survey amongst the lands of Ric. Forestarius, and valued at xl s. All which, with the two hides and a half, before exprest, was the freehold of one Wiching in Edward the Confessors dayes. In Domesday book it is written Berricestone in one place, and Berticestone in another; and was of so much note in those antient times, that it gave name to one of the Hundreds then in being, as I have elsewhere already observed.

Whether it were any of the descendants of the before recited Johais that became first enfeoffed thereof by the posterity of Corbucion, I cannot affirm, but do conclude that he was common Ancestor to the family of Whitacre, and thence had first his surname, as in Whitacre-superior I have manifested: Of which family was also Simon, who likewise assumed his surname from hence, and wrote himself Dominus de Berchestone, as in sundry old Records I have seen. To whom succeeded Rich. de Barchestone in 6. Joh. and after him Simon, Henry, and Alexander: Then Richard in E. 2. time; whose name in 17. of that Kings reign is in the list amongst those Esquiers, which were certified as men at Armes of this County, and bore a Crosse engrailed: And lastly Thomas and Alexander, temp. E. 3. all Lords of this Mannour. Which Alexander, in 26 E. 3. was in Commission with other persons of quality, for the levying and collecting of a xv. and tenth; so also in 34 E. 3. and in 45 Ed. 3. for the assessing a Subsidy of 1061 li. 07 s. in this County: But from him can I not clearly discover the successive Lords of this Mannour untill John Durant became owner thereof in 8. H. 6.

After which John I find one Thomas Durant in E. 4. time; then William in H. 7. but nothing memorable of them, other than that they were gentlemen, for so is John recorded * in 10 H. 6. and W. Will. in * 12 H. 7. Which W. Will. had issue Henry Durant, who by his Deed y bearing date 14. Sept. 23 H. 7. sold this Mannour to W. Willington, son b to John Willington of Todnam in Gloucester-shire, and he of a W. Willington of the same place, son b of another John; descended, as 'tis probable, from that Raph de Wylinton, who lived in E. 1. time (of whom I have made mention in Chritton, Betleswozth, and Walsingham) of which line I conceive that John de Wylinton and Raph de Wylinton were, who in the times of King Edward 3. and R. 2. had successively Summons to Parliament amongst the Barons of this Realm.

Of this W. Will. Willington I find, that being a wealthy Merchant c of the Staple, and settling himself here at Bercheston, he depopulated d the town in 24 H. 7. making inclosure of 530. acres of land; so that there was no more than 64. acres left for tillage, which were used by him as belonging to his Mannour-house there, and mannaged with one Plough: And that he had a very fair estate in lands in this County; as also in Orford and Gloucester-shires; but having no issue male advanced his seven daughters in marriage to divers good families; viz. e Margery to Thomas Holt of Aston juxta Birmingham Esquier, and afterwards to Sir Ambrose Cave Knight, Godith to Basill Fielding of Pettingham Esquier, Elizabeth to Edw. Bonington of Latford Esquier, Mary to W. Will. Sheldon of Beoley Esquier, Margaret to Edw. Greவில் of Wiltcote Esquier, Anne to Francis Mountfort of Kinghurst Esquier, and Katherine, first to Richard Kempe, secondly to W. Will. Catesby of Lapworth Esquier, and lastly to Anthony Throkmorton a younger son to Sir George Throkmorton Knight. And that by his Will, f which bears date 25. Martii anno 1555. he disposed of his body to be buried here at Bercheston, having a fair Monument in the Church, as I shall shew by and by. But upon the partition betwixt these coheirs, this Mannour came to Sheldon, as it seems; for his posterity (of whom I have made some mention in Wiltcote juxta Chritton) doe enjoy it at this day.

The Church (dedicated to S. Martin) in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) was valued g at xxviii. marks; but in h 26 H. 8. at no more than xiii li. vi s. viii d.

Willington.

IN this village did Robert de Stadford possesse one hide and a half at the time of the Conquerors generall Surveyⁱ, then valued at xx s. and held of him by one Lavein, but had been the freehold of Dodo and Leuric before the Norman invasion: The residue had Gisbertus de Gand (a great man in Lincolnshire,) which was all he posselt in this County, and extended to no more than one hide, one virgate and a half: and being held of him at that time by one Fulbric, together with a Mill, was valued at xx s. having been the inheritance of Alnuardus in Edward the Confessor's days. In that Record it is written Ullabintone. Howbeit, after this till 36 H. 3. I do not find a syllable more thereof; but then, amongst the Fees of the Lord Stafford, it is certified^k that Richard de Bartone payd xxx d. for Scutage here; and in 56 H. 3. Robert de Hamme was Lord of it, as appears by a Release^l made by him and Mabell his wife to the Nuns of Sewardlee (in Com. Northampt.) of such suit of Court as he claimed of them for the lands they held of him, and his said wife within this village. Which Robert in 7 E. 1. held^m of the King four yard land, here, in demesne by the service of the seventh part of a Knights Fee, and suit twice a year to his Court at Long Compton; for of that Mannour, it seems, it was then a memberⁿ, and in 15 E. 1. in the possession^o of John de Hamme son to the said Robert. But in 9 E. 2. the whole village was reputed^p a Hamlet of Bercheston.

Which John departed^q this life in 13 E. 2. leaving Robert his brother and heir, then Parson of Kurtwent, lx. years of age; who in 17 E. 2. sold the inheritance of this Mannour to Thomas de Hamme. Which Thomas gave a Fine^r to the King of five marks for licence to make that purchase, it being held^s in Capite of the King, by the service of the fourth part of a Knights Fee; and no more belonging^t thereto than one mess. half a carucate of land, and xi s. Rent of Assize per annum. But after this do I find no more mention thereof for a long time, other than amongst the Knights Fees held of the Lord Stafford, where it is certified^u that Robert Holewey held half a Knights fee in this place (written Uolpington) and that the depopulation, here, hath been very ancient^x.

Honington.

THIS is one of those towns that Earl Leofrik, in the first year of King Edward the Confessors reign, gave^y to the Monastery of Cobentre, at the Foundation thereof, and in the Conquerors time was rated^z at five hides, having four Mills yielding liv s. iv d. per annum; but the whole value is, by the Survey then made, certified at x li. wherein it is written Hantone: From which time forwards, till the generall dissolution of the Monasteries, it did continue to that Religious house, so that there is not much remarkable thereof, other than that in 33 H. 3. the Monks demised^a it unto Raph de Leicestre Canon of Litchfield to hold during his life, together with the advouton of the Church; and that in 41 H. 3. they obtained a Charter^b of Free-warren in all their demesne lands here: As^c also that the Tenants thereof, besides their severall Rents, performed sundry services, every other day from the Feast of S. John Baptist till Michaelmasse; but if the Lord would employ them in mowing before Midsummer day, then to allow them for their work: For which services they were to have one Mutton, or viii d. with viii. loaves of Bread, and a Cheese, as also iv d. in money, they being to carry Hay out of the Lords meadow, and to mow with one man a piece for a day and a half: And moreover, that each of them should come to the Lords Reap with all his family excepting his wife, where he was to reap two lands and carry them; but to perform no other service for that day: And likewise plow four times in the year, scil. two selions a piece; as also sow and harrow the same, having seed found at the Lords barn; And lastly to harrow two days a piece, giving x. Eggs and i d. for every Alehouse; and repair the Lords Pool as often as need should require. All which said Tenants were to pay unto the Lord xvii s. iv d. for ancient Aid, and for carriage of Fish iii s. iv d. per annum. As also vi s. viii d. for maintenance of his Corn-cart; and every two yard land to carry one load of wood from Backwood to this town; in which week they should do no other work: but none of them to sell his Horse-Colt without Licence of the Lord.

The Cottiers, being xvi. in number, did then also perform such like services; every of them paying four Hens, one Cock, and five Eggs, which they were to carry unto Cobentre. Of these Freeholders was Nicholas Trimenell the Chief, who held a seven yard land of the said Monks by the service of the tenth part of a Knights Fee. All which before specified, was with the Rectory and advowson of the Vicaridge, in consideration of 786 li. - 07 s. - 06 d. past to Robert Gybbes of Honington gentleman, and his heirs 28. Apr. 32 H. 8. to hold in Capite by the tenth part of a Knights Fee, paying 04 li. 07 s. 04 d. ob. yearly to the King his heirs and successors. Which Robert dyed & seized thereof 10 Aug. 5. & 6. Ph. & M. leaving issue Robert his son and heir 30. years of age, who was the father of Sir Raph Gibbs Knight, and he of Sir Henry Gibbs that now enjoys it.

The Church (dedicated to All Saints) was in anno 1291: 19 E. 1. valued at xv. marks, the portion, which the Monks of Cobentre had out of the Tithes belonging thereto, being then rated at iii. marks, and appropriated to them by John Thoresby Bishop of Worcester 25. Febr. anno 1350. (25 E. 3.) whereupon ten marks per annum, was reserved for maintenance of the Vicar and a Pension of x s. yearly to the said Bishop and his successors, the same appropriation being confirm'd by the King five years following: about which time the said Monks granted to the Prior and Convent of Worcester an yearly Pension of xliii s. iv d. to be paid on the Quinsime of S. Mich. forever, in recompence of such damage as they should sustain by reason of the said Appropriation: But it seems there was some alteration afterwards made in these Pensions; for in 26 H. 8. that paid to the Bishop of Worcester was xxvi s. viii d. per annum; that to the Monks of Worcester xx s. and that to the Archdeacon of Worcester iv s. v d. ob.

Bradmore.

This place, taking its name from the flat and low situation thereof, is a member of Honington. In 36 H. 3. (for before that time I find no mention of it) Will. de Timor, and John de Bradmore held the tenth part of a Knights Fee here, of the Monks of Cobentre. Which Monks in 7 E. 1. had six Tenants here, holding x yard land by the like Rents and services as those of Honington performed: But by the Act of Dissolution in 30 H. 8. it came with Honington to the Crown, as parcel of the lands belonging to the Priory of Cobentre: and so, being involved with that Mannour in the Patent to Robert Gibbs, is now the inheritance of Sir Henry Gibbs before specified.

Idlicote.

Northwards from Honington, but at a little farther distance from the bank of Stoure, stands Idlicote; which in the Conquerors time being posselt by Rob. de Stadford, and by the generall Survey certified to contain five hides, was valued at viii li. having been the freehold of Anegrin, and Ordric before the Norman invasion. In that Survey it is written Etelincote, which shews that its originall denomination proceeded from some antient dweller there, in the Saxons time. But from the said Robert, or Nicholas his son, was this Mannour past to Geffrey de Clinton Chamberlain and Treasurer to King Henry 1. and by him, upon his Foundation of the Monastery of Kenilworth in this County, given (inter alia) thereunto. In that Charter it is written Itellicote, but afterwards, for the most part, Itellicote: which grant was confirmed by the said Nicholas de Stafford, who acquitted the Canons of Kenilworth from the service of one Knights Fee, whereby the same Geffrey held it of him; in consideration whereof he gave to this Nicholas, v. marks of silver, and to Maud his wife ii. marks.

In 7 E. 1. the Canons of Kenilworth, being Lords thereof, had 3. carucats of land here in demesne, and a Windmill: as also severall Tenants holding xv. yard land and a half by certain Rents and services; scil. plowing mowing, making Hay, &c. together with a Court-Leet, and Court Baron: which privileges with certain others, viz. Gallowes, Weifs, and to be quit of all secular exactions, suits to the County and Hundred Courts, and from Common amerciements, did they claim in 13 E. 1. by the grants of divers Kings, and had the same allowed: And in 19 E. 1. obtained a Charter of Free-warren in all their demesne lands here: But upon the generall dissolution of the Monasteries it came to the Crown, and was soon after; viz. in 33 H. 8. past away, together with the advowson of the Church, unto Thomas Cawarden Esquier, and and Eliz. his wife, and the heirs of the body of the said Thomas lawfully begotten. Which Thomas left no issue, as I suppose; for it reverted to the Crown, and in 4 Eliz. was granted^y to Ludowik Grevill and others; but soon after to Underhill, as it seems; for in 12 Eliz. did Will. Underhill dye^z seized thereof, leaving Will. his son and heir xiii. years of age and upwards; whose granchild, S^r Hercules Underhill Knight now enjoys it.

The Church (dedicated to S^t James) was in an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) valued^a at vii. marks, the Canons of Henilworth then having a portion out of the Tithes thereof, to the value of x s. But in^b 26 H. 8. at xiii l. vi s. viii d. there being at that time ix s. v d. yearly paid by the Incumbent for Synodalls and Procurations.

Whatcote.

Below Whatcote is Stowe more augmented by a rivulet that hath its rise about the foot of Edghill; on the South side of which torrent stands only Whatcote, whereof I purpose next to speak. This in the Conquerors Survey is written Quatercote, and certified^c to contain v. hides, having then a Church; and was at that time posselt by Hugh de Grentemaisnill, the value thereof being vii l. but before the Norman invasion it was the inheritance of one Toti. From which time till 7 E. 1. I have not met with any light whereby the successive owners thereof may be discovered; howbeit, then I find^d that John le Lou and Philip his son were Lords thereof, as also Patrons of the Church; and that they held it of the Abbot of Westminster by the service of half a mark. And moreover, that they then had two Carucates of land in demesne, with a Court-Leet, and all other privileges that the said Abbot had; and likewise 8 Tenants holding severall proportions of land, paying certain Rents, and performing sundry servile imployments. After this, viz. in 3 E. 2. Philip le Wolf, or Lou (for I find he is the same man) and Margery his wife levied a Fine^e of the moiety of this Mannour, by which it was settled upon the heirs of her the said Margerie; Whereupon I suppose it to have been of her inheritance, and that Amicia the wife of John le Lou, and she were sisters: which being so, then will it appear by what I shall shew in Hampton in Arden, that they were heirs to Richard de Arden.

It seems that the whole interest that the same John le Lou and Amicia had in this Mannour came to the said Philip and Margery; for in 9 E. 2. Philip le Lou is certified^f to be Lord thereof; whose name also I find^g in 17 E. 2. amongst those Knights and other men at Armes in this County then returned into the Chancery. In 3 E. 3. it appears, that the said Margerie, then his Widow, entailed it by Fine^h after her own decease, upon Will. the son of John de Heyford, and Amicia his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies; but for lack of issue by them, on John the brother of the said William, and Lora his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, with remainder to John the son of Robert VVolf and his heirs. By which entail the moiety thereof divolvedⁱ to Joan the wife of John, son to Richard de Foxcote, who past^k it away, together with the advouson of the Church, unto Thomas de Morehall Clerk: But it was not long after, that the whole Mannour became the possession of Edmund Earl of Stafford, who being slain^l in the battail of Shrewsbury 4 H. 4. Anne his widow had it, inter alia, assigned^m to her in dower. After which the posterity of the said Earl enjoy'd it till 12 H. 8. that Edw. D. of Buck. past it to Richard Bishop of Winchester, and others, to the use of S^r Will. Compton Knight, from whom the Earl of Northampton, now Lord thereof, is descended.

The Church (dedicated to S^t Peter) being originally endowedⁿ with half a yard land, was in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.)^o valued at vi. marks and a half; the advouson whereof in 3 E. 2. had Philip le Lou and Margerie his wife Licence^p from the King to grant unto the Nuns of Winley in this County: Nevertheless they did not so dispose thereof; for in 41 E. 3. Thomas de Morehall had the like Licence^q to passe it to the Canons of Little-Palvern in Worcestershire, and they leave to appropriate^r it; which was performed the 5. of June, an. 1368 (42 E. 3.) by Will. Wittlesey Bishop of Worcester. Another Instrument^s of the like nature

But notwithstanding all this, those Canons of Malverne never took benefit of these appropriations; for it continued a Rectory, and in 26. Oxhill.

ON the North side this torrent lyes Oxhill, in the Conquerors Survey^w written Oxselbe; and, being posselt by the same Hugh de Grente- maisnil of whom I have made mention in Whatcote, was then certified to contain x. hides, having a Mill rated at xvi^d. but the value of all together was xi^l. and before the Norman invasion belong'd to the same Toli, who had Whatcote. After this, viz. in H. 2. time, Engelram de Dumart became owner thereof, whose sisters named^x Emma and Aeliz, by reason of his death without issue, succeeded^y him in the inheritance of it, and had livery thereof in 31 of that Kings reign. Upon what occasion it was that K. John seized upon it appears not; but in 18 of his reign, the Shiriff of this County received command^z to deliver possession thereof to Thodoric de Whicheford, to whom he had given it; in which Record^a it is written Thodeschulbe: howbeit in 3 H. 3. Thomas de Periton had restitution^b thereof as heir to Engelard Dummarish (five Dumart) his uncle. Which Thomas departing this life in 11 H. 3. Adam his son and heir had livery^c of these lands in Oxschelste (for so it is written) of his inheritance; and the next year following was^d acquitted of the Scutage for half a Knights fee here due upon the expedition of Barry: which Adam bore^e for his Armes Barry of six peices, and upon a Canton 3. barrs wavye. But from the family of Periton it divolved to S^r Will. de Keyns K^t by Margaret a daughter and heir (as the Descent sheweth:) which S^r Will. had issue Robert, who in 7 E. 1. held^f it of the King in Capite by the service of one Knights fee, having one carucate of land in demein, and five Tenants holding severall proportions by performance of certain servile labours, and payment of particular Rents: As also divers Freeholders.

It was likewise then found^g, that the Prior of Ware had one yard land here, and the Monks of Bordesley 2 carucates, and 6 virgates, bestowed on them by Geffery de Beningworth; three virgates by Nich. de Donington, one by Ric. Clerke, and one by Rob. Dumbard: As also that they had ix. Tenants holding sundry proportions by several Rents and servile employments, with a Court-leet by the grant of K. H. 3. Which Family of Keyns, being of eminent note, posselt^h Dodford in Northamptonshire, Combe-Keynes, and Tarent-Keynes in Dorsetshire, and other lands of good value, heldⁱ by Barony; but afterwards for want of issue male this Mannour divolved to Cressy, through a coheir, Sir John Cressy of Dodford before specified being owner of it in^k 10 Henry 6. who departing^l this life without issue in 31 H. 6. Alianore the wife to S^r Humfrey Stafford of Graston Knight, and Isabell the wife of S^r Thomas Chaworth Knight were found^m his heirs. Whereupon, by partition made betwixt Chaworth and Stafford it was allotted to the said Alianore, as it seems; for I findⁿ that upon an Affize of Novell disseisin brought by John Hatheyk, who claimed an estate in tail thereof, as heir unto Keynes, he recovered it against her in 2. E. 4. and that afterwards by his Deed^o of bargain and sale, bearing date 4. Jan. 21 E. 3. in confide-

Below Driftill about a mile, lies Nether Pillerton, which containeth in its parish Ober-Pillerton, and Sperton-Boteler. In the Conquerors time Hugh Earl of Chester had 1 hide and 3 virgates of land here, then held of him by one Waleran, and valued at xxx^s. which before the Norman invasion was the inheritance of Hugo Camerarius: But the residue of this town, at that time posselt by Hugh de Grememaisnill, and written Pillardotune, contained x. hides, besides the woods extending to one mile in length, and as much in breadth; there being a Mill rated at v^s and a Church; all which amounted to xviii^l. and in Edw. the Confessors dayes was the freehold of one Baldwin. It was not long that these two great men; sc, Hugh Earl of Chester, and H. de Grememaisnill, continued owners thereof; for King H. 1. (as it seemeth) gave the same, either to Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick, or else to Earl Roger son to the same Henry, as may appear by the certificate^b made in 12 H. 2. Where Willel. Earl of Warwick (inter alia) declareth, that he held it by one Knights Fee de veteri Feoffamento, and that Robertus fil. Willelmi was his Tenant thereof: which Robert I take to be the man, who is written^c R. de Pilardinton, being Founder^d of the little Monastery at Pine in this County.

Howbeit, others there were that bore the surname of this place, as ^e Gerold de Pilardestone, in 16 H. 2. Roger de Pilardinton in ^f K. John's time. Steph. de Pilardestone, and Richard^h his son and heir temp. H. 3. But none of these were Lords of the place for ought I could ever discern: for certain it is, that one Gilebert de Wasevill posselt it in R. 1. time, and by committing Felony, whereof he was convicted, forfeited his whole estate; which occasioned the King to seize^k upon this Lordship, and bestow it upon Hugh de Hercy. But not long after came Waleran Earl of Warwick to the said King Richard, and petitioned for the same as his right, forasmuch as the forfeiture thereof belonged to him, in regard it was of his Fee, and obtained it accordingly; yet at the King's request, that the before specified Hugh de Hercy might enjoy it, did thereupon make a^m grant thereof to him.

Unto which Gilb. de Wasevill I findⁿ that Hugh de Gornai was the immediate Tenant thereof, and that upon a suit in the Kings Court in 5. Ioh. Ostert de Renerai recovered^o the possession of it against him the said Hugh: but within 3. dayes after that, Geffery Fitzpiers, then Iusticiarius ^p Anglae; had command^q to restore it unto Hugh de Hercy: Nevertheless H. de Gornai retained it for a while, so that the said Hugh de Hercy was exposed to a suit^r at law for it; for in the same year wherein the suit was commenced, it appeareth, that the King, to make satisfaction to Gornai, to whom he formerly had given possession of it, commanded^s that the Sheriff of this County should deliver unto the said Hugh de Hercy seisin of the Mannour of Bineton, which he had before granted to him in exchange for Pillardinton, upon condition, that if the said Hugh de Hercy could obtain Pillardinton of Gornai, either by a friendly agreement, or a lawfull triall, that then Bineton should revert to the King. By which of these means it was that Hercy had it, I cannot directly tell; but that his posterity enjoy'd it, is very certain.

This Hugh de Hercy gave for his Armes^t only a labell of 5. points; and left John his son^u and heir in ward^v to Thomas Bassett in 13 Joh. From which John descended John de Hercy (I suppose his grandien) who in 7. E. 1. held^x this Mannour of the Earl Warwick, by the service of one Knights Fee, having at that time one carucate^y of land in demesne, and seven Tenants holding severall proportions by particular Rents, and sundry servile employments: But this John had no issue, as I guesse; for in 35 E. 1. he settled^z it, after the decease of himself and Lettice his wife, upon Thomas Wandak and Alice his wife, and the heirs of the said Thomas, covenanting to receive of the same Thomas, during his own and his said wives life, six quarters of Wheat, and six quarters of Barley; and bore for his Armes^z a Fesse, with a labell of 3. points in chiefe. From which, Hercy was it, for a long time, called Pillerton-Hercy, by way of distinction from the other Pillerton, called Pillerton-Priors.

To the before specified Thomas Wandak succeeded John, betwixt whom and Will. Spine there was a suit^a for the title to this Mannour in 29 E. 3. the said Willel. recovering the possession of it, against him the said John and Katherine his wife, as also against Thomas Paynell & others. After which, the next mention thereof, that I meet with, is by a Fine^b levied in 48 E. 3. betwixt Thomas de Wencote, and Alice his wife Plaintiffs, and Henry de Erynton and Kath. his wife Deforc. Whereby the said Henry and Kath. for themselves and the heirs of the said Katherine, quitted all their interest therein to the same Thomas de Wencote and Alice, and the heirs of the said Alice for ever: in consideration whereof the same Henry and Katherine were to receive yearly during their lives x l. sterling: so that 'tis not unlike but that the said Alice and Kath. were daughters and coheirs to the above specified John Wandak: Yet how it comes to passe I cannot well imagine, but the year ensuing the said Fine so levied, John de Hastings Earl of Pembroke was found^c to dye seized thereof, Anne his widow having it (inter alia) assigned^d to her in dower. So likewise did^e John de Hastings son and heir to the said Earl in 13 R. 2. leaving Reginald Grey of Ruthin his cousin and heir. But in 2 H. 4. I find^f that the heirs of S^r John Thornbury Knight, held a Knights Fee here of the Earl of Warwick; and that in 10 H. 6. S^r Philip Thornbury of Wygrave in Com. Hartford Knight was Lord^g of this Mannour: As also that in 36 H. 6. Richard Thornbury Esq; with Thomas his son, demised^h it to Hugh Dalby Gent. for certain years: Howbeit, all that I have farther seen relating thereto, is that in 34 H. 8. there was a Fine levied thereof betwixt Willel. Whorwood Esq; Plaintiff, and John Mawdley Esq; and others Deforc. but to what uses I know not: And that in 1. & 2. Ph. & M. the Q. grantedⁱ to Willel. Rice Esq; the moytie of the same, which had escheated to the Crown by the attainder of S^r Ambrose Dudley Knight.

Touching the Church (dedicated to the blessed Virgin) I find, that in King John's time there were great suits^j betwixt the Monks of S. Prots and Thomas Bassett, who had the wardship of John son and heir of Hugh de Hercy, for the right of Presentation

sentation thereto the Monks pretending that the said Hugh de Hercy gave them the perpetuall patronage thereof: but in 14 Joh. they came to an Agreement^m, whereby they concluded to present joyntly to the Rectory; and likewise to the Vicaridge by consent of the Parson; so that the Vicar should pay yearly to the Parson 4 marks, saving always the right of the said heir, and of the Monks. In an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) it was valuedⁿ at xx. marks; out of which the Prior of Ware had a portion of Tithes amounting in value to 7. marks and a half. Upon what title it was I know not, but I do find, that Thomas de Tyldinton, a Priest, recovered^o by a tryall at Law against John de Hercy the advowson thereof, which he after past away to Guy de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, by his Deed dated^p at Cluncley the Wednesday after the Feast of S. Mich. an. 1309. (3 E. 2.) whole son and heir, viz. T. Beauchamp Earl of Warw. in 8 E. 3. gave^q the said advowson to the Canons of his Coll. Church at Warwick; who, within 7. years after, obtained an appropriation^r of the fruits thereof, from Wolstan then Bishop of Worcester, bearing date at Hertlebury 6 Dec. an. 1341, (15 E. 3.) which was so granted by that Bishop towards the support^t of their charge in building of the Steeple of the same Collegiate Church, there being by him then reserved out of the same a congruous portion for maintenance of a Vicar, to the value of xii. marks, and a yearly Pension of half a mark to himself and his successors, to be payd at the Feast of S. Mich. the Archangell: the Monks of Worcester, having an annual Pension^u also granted to them to Kal. Aug. 23 E. 3. by the Canons of the said Coll. Church for their indemnity in respect of the said appropriation.

In 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge being valued^v at viii^l there was an yearly Pension^w of iii^l. vi^s. viii^d. payd to the Monks of Shene out of it; as also xli^s to the Bishop of Worcester, and xvi^s. viii^d to the Monks of Worcester, by composition issuing out of the Rectory.

Over Pillerton.

This also being part of the possessions of Hugh de Grentemaiskill, in the Conquerors time, was by him given^x to the Monastery of St. Ebrulf in Normandy, founded by his brother Robert, and two uncles, sc. Will. and Robert, sons of Gerot: In the confirmation of which grant by King Will. the Conqueror, it is called^y parva Pillardenton. The extent thereof, by the generall Survey taken at that time, was vi. hides and one virgate of land, then valued at x^l. and posselt by 4. Theins in Edw. the Confessors dayes. But the revenue of this Lordship was received and disposed of by the Monks of Ware in Hertfordshire (a Cell^z to the said House of S. Ebrulf) who, in 7 E. 1. held^b two carucates of land here in demesne; and had xxi. Tenants holding severall proportions by payment of certain Rent, and performance of sundry services, as plowing, mowing, making Hay and the like: As also two Cottiers and four Freeholders.

After this, upon the valuation^c of the Priors Aliens lands in 1. 2. & 3. R. 2. it was rated at viii^l. xiii^s. i^d per annum, and at the dissolution of those Houses (whereof I have spoke in Wolston) given by K. H. 5. to the Priory of Shene in Surrey then newly founded^d by him. But at the generall dissolution in 30 H. 8. coming to the Crown, it was in 35 of that Kings reign, sold^e out to Geffrey Shakerley Esq; who had License^f the same year to pass it unto . . . Holt. In 2. & 3. Ph. & M. there was a Fine levied^g thereof, betwixt Richard Cliff and others Pl. and Christopher Lee and others Deforc, and in 3. & 4. Ph. & M. another Fine^h betwixt Henry Ward Pl. and the same Christoph. Lee and others Deforc. the said Henry having purchasedⁱ it from Lee: which Henry died^k seized thereof 16 Dec. 1. Eliz. leaving Will. Ward his son and heir 19. years of age.

The Priest serving in the Chapell here, had Tithes to the value^l of v^l per an. in 26 H. 8. for his salarie.

Halford.

This placetaking its name originally from the forde or passage through the river Stoure, at first called Aldoford (i. e. the old Ford) hath had the H. added thereto by use in pronunciation. In the Conquerors Survey there is no particular mention of it; neither can I perfectly discover of what place it was then a member: but certain it is, that Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick, or Roger his son, were posselt thereof, and that from one of those Earls Will. Giffard had it granted to him in H. 1. time; for it appears^m that the said Will.

held two Knights Fees of Will. Earl of Warwick in 12. H. 2. de veteri Feoffamento; and that this Lordship was part thereof, is clear enough from the grant which the same W. Giffard made to the Canons of Kentworth of one hide of land here, either in K. Steph. or H. 2. time: but whether that Rob. de Halford, who held half a Knights Fee, here, of the Earl of Warwick in 20 H. 3. was descended from the said Will. Giffard, I cannot affirm.

The Record of 36 H. 3. expresses, that the heirs of Andrew Giffard then held that half Kts. Fee of the said Earl. And in 7 E. 1. Margerie de Cantelupe held one Watermill here of the Earl of Warwick by the service of one Knights Fee, having at that time two servants, as also certain Free holders here. It was then likewise found, that one John de Ereggewithe held three acres of land in this place of H. de Halford, by homage, and the service of finding for xxxvi. poor people on every Christmase day, sc. each of them a loaf of Bread, a Herring, and a flaggon of Beer. And that the glebe belonging to the Church consisted of two yard land, the Bishop of Worcester being then Patron thereof: as also that the whole town did their suit to the Kings Court Leet held for the Hundred of Bineton. And in 7 E. 1. it was certified that S^r Robert Burdet Knight, held one Knights Fee here of Alan la Zousche. And in 9 E. 2. that John de Fosse held the fourth part of a Knights Fee here of the Earl of Warwick: which Knights Fee so held by S^r Rob. Burdet was in 2. E. 3. held by another Rob. Burdet of Robert de Holand as in the right of Maudⁿ his wife, one of the daughters and coheirs of Alan la Zousche of Stoby de la Zousche. As for the lands here, which belong'd to the Canons of Kentworth, they were after the dissolution sold by the King to John Pope and his heirs 8 Feb. 36 H. 8. for 150^l. 13^s 08^d. Which John aliened them again the same year unto Rob. de Halford: but of the residue I cannot give any farther account.

In An. 1291. (19 E. 1.) the Church was valued at vii. marks, the portion that the Canons of Kentworth had out of the Tiches belonging thereto, being then rated at five marks: but in 26 H. 8. it was esteemed at xiii^l. vi^s. viii^d. the Synodalls and Procurations deducted thereout amounting to viii^l. xi^s. ob. the Pension to the Canons of Kentworth x^l. and that to the Monks of Shene, viii^s.

Nether-Eatendon.

A little below Halford, Stoure leaveth Nether Eatendon on its Eastern bank; within the precincts of which parish are the Hamlets of Over-Eatendon, Fulstrop, and Thorndon. There is no doubt but that the name of this place was originally occasioned from its situation, Ca in our old English signifying water, and dune, or don an ascending ground; for at the foot of an hill, and near the river doth it stand.

After the Norman invasion Henry de Feriers (progenitor to that great family afterwards Earls of Derby) possess'd it, the extent thereof amounting to xviii. hides, then valued at xxi. as appears by the Conquerors Survey; and of him did one Salswalo hold it, at which time there was a Church and a Mill; to whose posterity in the male line it hath continued even to this day, being the only place in this County that glories in an uninterrupted succession of its owners for so long a tract of time; and till the reign of King Henry 3. was their principall seat (though their possessions in other Counties Counties were very large) whence also they were denominated; but afterwards fixing at Shirley in Derbyshire, they assumed their surname of that place, which hath ever since been appropriated to this antient Family.

But of this Safuuald, whose name argues him to have been of the Old English stock, as some think, I have not much to say, considering that we have little light of History, and nothing of Record for other discovery, farther than the generall Survey before mentioned, and the Registers of Abingdon and Kenilworth; the one of which testifieth that he gave the Tithes of Wildeleste to the Monks of Abingdon, and the other that he founded the Church here at Catendon; for it plainly appears^a that he endowed it at its Dedication: But I do conclude that he was an eminent person, forasmuch as he did not only possess^c this great Lordship, but also Eschmerth in Northamptonshire, part of Wintona in Lincolnshire, with Hafun, Hoga, and Etetwell in Derbyshire. For as most of the English were totally bereft of their antient patrimony, so few of them were permitted to enjoy any more than a part thereof, and to hold the same by military, or other service from their new Lords (as in my Introduction is manifested) And if I may guesse at his greatnesse by the extent of his estate, which we see amounted to xviii. hides in this place, I must conclude him to have been no lesse than a Thane in the Saxons time, when not much more than five hides of land, as the learned Selden observes, was the estate of some which had that dignity. But leaving this worthy person (in regard that at so great a distance no more can be discerned of him) I come to Henry, his son^b, who was a witness^h to the foundation Charter of Perevale Abby (made by Robert de Ferrers, granchild to the before specified Henry) in K. Steph. time: as also a devout Benefactor to the Canons of Kenilworth; for by the consent of Robert Earl Ferrers (his Lord) and for the good estate of him the said Earl, his wife and sons; as also for the remission of his own sins, and the souls-health of his Ancestors, successors, parents and freinds, he gaveⁱ them the Church of this place, with all the Glebe and Tithes thereto belonging: which grant of his was confirmed^k by the said Earl; but dyed without issue, as it seems; for plain it is, that Henry the son to his brother Fulcher succeeded^l him in the inheritance, and conferred^m on the Monks of Wiltwas the land of Thenbroc: Which Henry, though he had issueⁿ Fulcher, yet constituted his younger brother, Sewall, his heir, de Baronis Fulcheri & Henrici (id est of the lands of his father and uncle) by Fine^o in the Court of Will. Earl Ferrers his superior Lord, levied in 4 R. 1. and perhaps by the power of that great Earl, as more favouring Sewall: which Baronies extended to nine Knights Fees, whereof 4. belonged to Fulcher his father, and 5. to the before specified Henry his Uncle, as the red Book^p in the Exchequer testifieth.

This Saunwaldus, or Sewallus, (for he is both ways written) being a Knight^q, and by reason of his residence here called^r Sewallus de Etendon, did not only disclaim and remit to the said Canons of Kenilworth all his interest that he had in the patronage of this Church; but for the health of his soul, and of the soules of his two wives, gave thereunto a certain peice of ground called Odder-croft, containing 18 acres; and another of x. acres lying in Ober-Catendon: as also 3. acres of land adjoyning to the said Odder-croft. To the Canons of Derley in Derbyshire he gave^u certain lands called Aldewerch; and to the Monks of Lutbury two parts of Hoga (now called Holon) in that County. To which Sewall succeeded Henry his son and heir, called Henricus filius Sewalli, who attended^v William Earl Ferrers in the Kings Army, when he sailed into Wolaton, which was (as I take^w it) in 4 Joh. And in 7 Joh. by virtue of the Kings Precept^y had livery made to him of the Mannour of Conesoure in Derbyshire, whereof he had been disseised during his absence in that voyage, as it seems. This Henry likewise created^z an Altar, dedicated to S. Nicholas, in the Church here at Catendon, and gave^a divers particular parcells of land thereto, for the maintenance of a Chantry Priest to celebrate divine service thereat, for the health of his own soul, and the soules of his wives, as also of his childrens souls every day except on Thursidays, and the Feast day of S. Nicholas; on which day the said Priest was particularly to celebrate to that Saint. And in augmentation of the maintenance for the said Priest, he gave^b the tithe of the Toll of his Mill here, and an annuity of 5^s. whereof 4^s was to be received by the Priest for his own use, and xiii. for the Lampe in the said Church of Catendon; reserving power for himselfe and his heirs to present to the said Chantry, as often as by death it should become void.

To him succeeded^c Sewallus, commonly called Sewallus filius Henrici, who was a Knight^d, but dyed^e before the 44 of H. 3. And to him James his son and heir, the first of this family that assumed the surname of Shirley; for by that appellation he had Free-warren granted^f to him in all his demesne lands, as well at Shirley in Derbyshire 31 H. 3. as in 39 of the same Kings reign, here^g at Catendon in this County. Which James being afterwards^h a Knight, had issue Raph his son and heir, who in 7 E. 1. held^k this Mannour of Edm. Earl of Lanc. the Kings brother, by the service of two Knights fees, having at that time three carucates of land in demesne, here; and xii. Tenants holding several proportions by sundry services: As also divers Freeholders. The same year he was Sheriff^l of the Counties of Nottingham and Derby. In 9 E. 1. being presented before the Justices Itinerant, because, being of full age, and holding a whole Knights fee, he was not a Knight, he procured^m the Kings Letters Pat. as to the respiting thereof for five years: And in 22 E. 1. upon the grant made to the King in Parliament of a Subsidy for the support of his wars, was, with Thomas de Garshale constitutedⁿ a Commissioner for the assessing and collecting thereof within this County. In 28 E. 1. he had the custody^o of the Counties of Salop. and Stafford, with the Castle of Shrewsbury committed to his charge. In 29 E. 1. he had summons^p with divers other great men, to attend the King at Warwick upon Twede on the Feast day of St. John Baptist's Nativity, well appointed with Horse and Armes to march against the Scots.

In 3 E. 2. he was constituted⁹ one of the two Justices in this County for the Goal delivery at Wartwick: And in 5. E. 2. served as a K^r for this Shire in two Parliaments, the one¹ held at London, and the other¹ at Westm.

Being one of the Coroners in this County (an office of great note in those days, as I have elsewhere intimated,) he had, through want of health, a discharge¹ from that employment in 6 E. 2. but in 8 E. 2. was Governour^u of Bozeaton Castle in Derbyshire; and in 16 E. 2. one^w of the Commissioners in this County for levying a xvth. In 17 in^x the list of those Knights and men at Arms whose names were then certified into the Chancery: and in 20 E. 2. departed^y this life, leaving Raph his son and heir, who having been in^z Commission for the assessing and collecting a xvth and xth granted in the Parl. of 11 E. 3. was in 12 E. 3. appointed^a to assess and collect the Scutage then due to the King for the Scotch expedition in the first year of his reign: and in 14 E. 3. served^b in the Parl. then holden at Westm. as one of the Knights for this shire.

To which Raph succeeded S^t Thomas Shirley K^r of whom I find nothing memorable but his death, which hapned^c before the 36 of E. 3. and that by Isabell his wife, he left issue Hugh, who being a Knight in 1 H. 4. and the same year (by Pat.^d dated at Westm. 20 Martii) made Master of the Kings Hawks of all sorts, was a Justice of Peace in this County in^e 2 H. 4. and the next ensuing year constituted^f one of the Commissioners to enquire of such persons as were disturbers of the Laws and spreaders of false reports. Upon this Hugh and the heirs male of his body, did the last Lord Basset of Drayton (his uncle by the mothers side; for he therein calls^g him his nephew) in 13 R. 2. entail^h all his lands, whereof he was seized in Fee simple (as the Peoffment thereupon madeⁱ to Walter-Skirlaw Bishop of Duresm and others, bearing date 16 Jan. manifesteth) provided that he should bear the name and Arms of Basset; with remainder to Will. de Stafford, brother to Edmund Earl Stafford &c. but performing not the conditions, he did not quietly enjoy them, the same Earl (being found heir to the rest, through an old Entail^k made of them by Raph Lord Basset, his grandfather, in 13 E. 3.) opposing him therein. Howbeit at length was there an^l Agreement made betwixt the sayd Earl and the same S^t Hugh; viz. that S^t Hugh should quietly enjoy the premises; but both of them being slain in the battel of Shrewsbury, 4 H. 4. before it could be sealed, the difference about that matter continued betwixt their heirs, untill King H. 6. so decided it many years after, as that S^t Raph Shirley Knight, son and heir to the before specified S^t Hugh, should quietly enjoy them, according to the true meaning of that Accord; viz. the Mannours of Radcliff super Soze, and Colton-Basset in com. Nott. Rakdale, Willows, Radcliff super Wareke, Barrow super Soze, and Watton in com. Leic. as also those of Westhall and East-Hall in this County; many of which remain to his descendants at this day,

But I return : This S^r Hugh was made ^m cheif Warder of Wigbam-Ferrers Park, by John of Gant D. of Lancaster ; and in 22 R. 2. Constable ⁿ of Donington Castle by Henry Duke of Lanc. (afterwards King by the name of H. 4) and having wedded ^o Beatrice sister and heir to John de Brews (of West-Pelton in Suffex) was slain ^p on Saturday, being the Eve of S. Mary Magd. 4 H. 4. in the battel of Shrewsbury, fighting on the Kings part, leaving the said Beatrice a Widdow: of whom I find, ^q that in 9 H. 5. she furnisht the K. with an Elquier (by name John Hayteley) as also 3. Archers to serve on Horseback with him in the said Kings wars beyond Sea, for three quarters of a year. To this S^r Hugh succeeded Raph his son^r and heir, then xii years of age ; who in 3 H. 5. being retained ^r to serve the King then in person with his Army in Guyen, with six men at Armes and xviii Archers (the famous Battail of Agincourt then hapning ;) and the next^r year following with viii men at Armes and xvi Archers, was honoured with the dignity of Knighthood about that time ; for in 8 H. 5. being then Shiriff ^u of the Counties of Pottingham and Derby, I find him so stiled.

Unto this Sr Raph, and the heirs male of his body, did the Feoffees of Raph Lord Bassett of Djaston, in 2 H. 6. release ^v all their interest in the Mannours of Colton-Basset, Radcliffe super Soze in com. Pott, Rakdale, Willows, Radcliffe super Wreke, Barroto super Soze, Duntton, and Wattson in com. Letc. as also in the Mannours of West-halle and Challe in Sheldon in this County. After which, viz. in ^x 10 H. 6. he had his residence at Radcliffe super Soze above mentioned, and left issue, by ^y Joyce the daughter and heir to Thomas Bassett of Willesford Esq; Raph^z his son and heir, who by Margaret^a the daughter and heir of John Staunton (of Staunton-Harold in com. Letc.) had issue John, and dyed^b on the Feast day of S. Steph. 6 E. 4. Which John having wedded ^c Alvanore the daughter to Sr Hugh Willoughby of Middleton K^c dyed^d 18 Marti 3 R. 3. leaving Raph his son and heir 26 years of age ; who for his great valour in the battel of Stoke 2 H. 7. was made ^e a Banneret ; and in 7 H. 7. retained^f to serve the said King in his wars beyond Sea for one whole year, with his Custrell and Page, as also four Demilances, and xl Archers on foot, receiving for his said men at armes, Custrell, and Page xviii^l per diem ; for every of the said Lances ix^d, and Archers vi^d.

This S^r Raph in 13 H. 7. for his Relcif was charged^g with 5 K^s Fees, for his lands in Shepey, Hone, Bradley, Polgrave, and Witch-over, one K^s Fee in Willesford, and Wingeworth, and the fourth part of a Knights Fee in Stanton-Harold : and having by his Testament^h bearing date at Stanton-Harold 2 Jan. 1516. 8 H. 8. appointed, that a thousand Masses should be sayd on the day of his burying, or shortly after, for his soul, but not assigning any certain place for his Sepulture ; within four dayes after. viz. 6 Jan. dyedⁱ seized of this Lordship of Ober-Catendon ; as also of Pether-Catendon, and Pewton-Regis in this County ; of Rakdale, Willows, Ratcliff super Wreke, Whattton, Duntton, Stanton-Harold, and Boxton in com. Letc. Barnham in Suff. Easter-Leek, and Sutton-Bontington in Pottingham-Wires : as also of Shirley, Willesford, Cadneston, and Hoone in Derbyshire, leaving Francis his son and heir within^k age, afterwards in Ward^l to S^r Will. Compton K^c. which Francis in E. 6. time resided^m at his Mannour of Willesford in Derbyshire, and had issue John his son and heir, who took to wife Iane the only daughter and heir of Thomas Lovet Esq; but dyedⁿ in his fathers life time, leaving issue George, who inherited^o the Mannours of Atwell in Portsmouthshire, Bottlebridge in Huntingdonshire, South-Pewton in Drifordshire, and Dorington in Gloucestershire, through his mothers right.

Which George was created^p Baronet 22 Martii 9 Jac. (at the very first erection of that dignity by King James :) and having a Court-Leet granted^q to him and his heirs 23 Martii 16 Jac. within this Mannour, which also extended to his Tenants in Ober-Catendon, Fulredy, Whattcote, and Almington, in this County, left issue S^r Henry Shirley Baronet his son and heir, and S^r Thomas Shirley Knight, a great lover of learning, and especially affected to Antiquities, in the study whereof he hath attained to much Knowledge, and thereby given no small lustre to this antient and worthy Family. Which Sir Henry wedded the Lady Dorothe sister and one of the coheirs to Robert Deyereux the last Earl of Essex ; by whom he had issue Sir Charles Shirley his son and heir, who dyed unmarried, and Sir Robert Shirley now Lord of this Mannour ; and through his mothers right inheritor of great possessions heretofore belonging to the said Earl of Essex.

The Church was given to the Canons of Kenilworth by Henry, sonne to Sasunalo that lived in the Conquerors time (as I have already intimated) In 6 Joh. upon the vacancy of the Priory of Kenilworth, the King presented^r Hugh de Wells Archdeacon of Wells thereto (who was shortly after Lord^s Chancelour.) But about the later end of King John's time, Silvester then Bishop of Exeter appropriated^t it to the said Canons, reserving a competency for maintenance of the Vicar ; scilicet not less than C^{per annum} : Which Appropriation was confirmed^u by Pope Gregory the ninth, an. 1228. 12 Henry 3. In anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was valued^v at xxi. marks, the Vicars portion at that time being vi. marks and a half : but in 26 H. 8. I find^x the Vicaridge rated at xli xlii s. iiii d. ix s. v d. ob. being then payd out of it for Procurations and Synodals.

In the body of this Church be severall marble grave-stones, whereon are portraitures in brasle; viz. the first of a man in a gowne, with his wife, over whose heads are two coats of Armes.

1. a Cheveron betwixt 3 tresfoiles.
2. party per cheveron arg. and sable, 2 Moresocks, of the second, in chief.

And at their feet a plate, with this Epitaph.

Here lyeth buried under this stone Edward Underhill sometime gentleman, of this Town, with Margaret sometime his wife; which Edward dis- leased this World the fift day of November an. D. 1561. On whose souls Jesu have mercy, Amen.

On another this Inscription.

Here lyeth buried the bodies of Thomas Underhill of this Towne Esquier, and Elizabeth his wife, who lived married together in perfect amitie above 65 years, and had issue between them 11 Children: viz. xiii. sons and viii. daughters. She dyed 22 Junii An. D. 1623; and he the 6 day of October next after. Their frugality in provision for their Children, their charitable disposition to relieve the needy, and great bounty in hospitalty was a pleasing spectacle to their neighbours, and may be an alluring president to their posterity. As they lived to the liking, and with the love of mortal men so they dyed in the true service and love of the Immortall God. The poore, their Tenants, Neighbours and freinds will for a time bewaile the want of them; but the Angels of Heaven and Saints of God will perpetually resjoyce in the company of them: for God they feared, God they served, God they loved, and to God they dyed. Their warfare in Gods Church militant in earth hath been short, but their glory in his Church Triumphant in heaven will be eternall.

Upon another marble with portraitures in brasle, whereon there are two Escocheons of Underhills Armes, empaling a Cheveron betwixt three battel-Axes, is this Inscription.

Here lyeth William Underhill of the Inner Temple of London Gentleman, of Edward Underhill Esquier second sonne; and Ursula his dearly beloved wife, youngest daughter of John Congreve of Stretton in com. Staff. Esquier, whose life was a spectacle unto all honest virtuous and obedient wives, and she dyed the xiiiith day of May An. Dom. MDLxi. upon whose souls Christ have mercy, Amen.

Under their portraitures is one son and 4 daughters, whose names are there exprest; viz. William, Dorothe, Elizabeth, Margaret, Anne.

In the North Ile are other grave-stones with these following Epitaphs.

Here lyeth Jane Underhill daughter of Thomas Underhill of Nether-Etington, who dyed the sixth day of July an. Dom. 1566.

Against the North wall is a plaine monument of Free-stone, over which hangeth a Tablet with this Inscription.

An Epitaph and true report upon the death of Anthony Underhill, the son of Thomas Underhill of Nether-Etington, who dyed the xvith day of July An. dom. 1587.

Anthony Underhill lyeth buried here in stone
It were but vaine for to obscure his name
Though no man write the death of him alone
Yet heaven and earth will still record the same, &c.

In the South Ile is there of late erected a very beautiful monument with Corinthian pillars of Black marble, and the statue of a Lady excellently cut, lying betwixt them.

On the south side of it is this Inscription.

Eatendon superior.

OF this Village, containing 3 hides in the Conq. time, did Turchil de Warwick possess 1 hide, y^d Domel. w^{ch} Ermenfridus then held of him, having been the, z^{lib}. freehold of Almarus before the Norman invasion. Another

Another did² at that time belong to Hugh de Grentemaisnill, being then held of him by one Baldwine: but the third, then held of the King by Ordric, was wast, and reckoned amongst the lands of Ric. Forestarius. To this Ric. Forestarius succeeded Will. Croc (as in Chefferton I have shewed) who^a enfeoffed Francis de Bishopston thereof, to hold by the service of keeping a certain Dog: which hide, in 33 H. 3. was posselt^b by Bardalsus de Cesterton, who had it in^c marriage with the daughter of Will. de Bishopston (a descendant from the said Francis.)

After this; viz. in 36 H. 3. it appears^d that the heir of Thomas de Etindon held the seventh part of a Knights Fee, here, of Sewall de Etindon, and he of the Earl Ferrers; (which shews, that part of Nether-Edindon extended into this.) And that in 7^e E. 1. Henry de Brandeston had xx. Tenants in this Village, holding severall proportions of land: As also, that Thomas the son of Thomas de Etindon had two yard land and a half in demesn, and certain Tenants holding other lands of him by particular Rents, and divers servile employments, besides some Freeholders: And^e moreover Jordanus de Pilardintone four yard land, held of John de Warwick, by the service of a pair of Gloves; which John held it over of William le Boteler, and he of the Earl of Leicester: But this (I believe) was part of that proportion, which Hugh de Grentemaisnill had in the Conquerors time, as a-bovesaid; as was that (without question) which Henry de Brandeston held: For in 27 E. 1 upon the death of Hugh de Brandeston it is evident^f, that he had much land in this Village; whereof xii. Tenants held xii. toftes, and twelve yard land in Villenage, then valued at vi li. as also, that he the said Hugh to held them all of William le Boteler of Wemme by the service of the fourth part of a Knights Fee: And that the Progenitor of Boteler was enfeoffed thereof, either by Hugh de Grentemaisnill himself, or by Robert Blanchmains Earl of Leicester, who wedded the daughter and heir to the said Hugh (as I have elsewhere observed) there can be no doubt.

Afterwards, viz. in 20 E. 3. John Lord of Over-Edingdon held^h the seventh part of a Kts. Fee, here, of the Earl of Lancaster: From which time till 23 H. 8. I find not a syllable of this place worthy the taking notice of in an historical way: But then did Thomas Porter posseltⁱ a good part of it, by the name of the capitall messuage and certain lands in Over-Edingdon, and dyed^j seized thereof; leaving Fouk Porter his son and heir within age: which Fouk departing^k this life 28. Febr. 12 Eliz. left Simon his son and heir, 19. years of age.

In 4 E. 1. there was a Chantry founded^l in the Chapell of our Lady within this Village, by William de Ichington, who gave thereunto one messuage, one toft, one yard land and a half, two acres of meadow, and four marks yearly Rent with the appurtenances in Over-Edindon and Netwold, for the maintenace of a Priest to sing Masse dayly there, for the health of his soul; as also for the souls of his Ancestors, and all the faithfull deceased: the Ordination^m of which Chantry was made xii. Cal. Maii anno 1316. (10 E. 2.) by the Prior & Convent of Kenilworth, unto whom the Church of Edindon inferior was appropriated (as I have already observed) upon the Petition of the said William de Ichington the Founder, then Vicar of Nether-Edindon before specified, at the instance of Thomas Earl of Lancaster, for the health of the souls of the said Earl, and of his father and mother, and of Sir Robert de Holland; as also for the soul of the said William de Ichington. By which Ordination it appeareth, that the said Earl and his heires were to present thereto, so oft as occasion should be; but that the Chantry Priest, there celebrating, should not receive any Offerings or Tithes from the Parishioners, nor administer the Sacraments to them in prejudice of the mother Church: And that upon these Festivall days, underwritten, he should repair to the said mother Church (at Nether-Edindon) and there celebrate divine service; viz. Christmasse-day, Candlemasse-day, Palm Sunday, Good-friday, Easter-day, Ascension-day, Whitsunday, Trinity-Sunday, the Nativity of S. John Baptist, the Assumption of our Lady, All-hallown-day, and the day of the Dedication of the said Church: And moreover that he and his successors should in the Chapter house at Kenilworth always make Oath of their fidelity to the said Canons of Kenilworth upon admission thereto; as also to perform all and singular the Articles above mentioned. Which Ordination was confirmedⁿ by Walter de Maydenston Bishop of Worcester, with the Prior and Monks of that Church.

To this Chantry did Henry de Brandeston also give^o viii s. yearly Rent issuing out of two messuages, and two yard land lying in this Village of Over-Edindon: So that the revenue belonging thereto in 26 H. 8. was valued^p at vii li. vi s. viii d. the Rent of xviii d. per annum, being then payd out of it to Francis Shirley Esquier: But in 37 H. 8. at vii li. viii s. iv d. the like Rent of xviii d. per annum, being reckoned as due to Shirley, and xviii d. more payable to the Bishop of Worcester to be deducted.

Fulridy.

IN the Conquerors time did the same Ermenfridus, who held one hide of land in Over-Edindon, of Turchill de Warwick, hold of him another in this place, as appears^r by the generall Survey, in which it is written Fulref: But the Progenitors of Shirley were antiently enfeoffed thereof, as it seems; for in 36 H. 3. it was certified^s, that one Robert de Fulri held half a Knights Fee, and the fixt part, here, of Sewall de Etindon; and in 7 E. 1. that John de Weston held it of Raph de Shirley by the service of half a Knights Fee: Which John then had half a carucate of land in demesn, and two Tenants holding certain lands by servile tenure, with some Freeholders. But after this, viz. in 20 E. 3. John Dimok, and John Bardolf, answered^t for half a Knights Fee here, held of the Earl of Lancaster, and the Lord Stafford: Howbeit, I do not find that this was ever reputed to be a distinct Mannour of it self, but that the Mannour of Nether-Edindon did extend^u into it; and that the Inhabitants thereof do their suit to the Court-leet at Nether-Edindon, granted^v by King James to Sir George Shirley Baronet, in 16. of his reign.

Thorndon.

This Hamlet, long since depopulated, being a member of Nether-Catendon is not particularly mentioned in the Conquerors Survey, but was posselt therewith by Shirley's Ancestors; for in 36 H. 3. it appears, that William de Bissopesdon held three parts of a Knights Fee, here, of Sewall de Etendon; which argues, that Fraricus de Bissopesdon, Progenitor to the said William (of whom in Fulridg I have made mention) was first enfeoffed thereof by the Ancestors of the said Sewallus. In 7 E. 1. this William de Bissopesdon (for I suppose it might be he) was Lord hereof, and held it of Raph de Etendon (for so it seems that Raph de Shirley was called, when he resided at Catendon) by the service of half a Knights fee, and had two carucates of land here in demesne, with xv. Tenants holding seven yard land and a half, by severall Rents and sundry servile employments. But of this family of Bissopesdon I shall particularly speak in Bissopesdon, where the descent is inserted.

In 13 E. 2. John de Bissopesdon had a Charter of Free-warren to him and his heirs in all his demesne lands here; from whom it descended to Sir William Bissopesdon of Alscote in Com. Glouc. Kt. who in 10 H. 6. held it by half a Knights Fee: which Sir William in 17 H. 6. entailed it, with divers other lands, upon his issue by Philippa his wife, with remainder to his right heirs. After which I have seen no more thereof, save that in 18 H. 7 Thomas Nevill Esquier dyed seized thereof, leaving William his son and heir 27. years of age; and that, about the later end of Queen Eliz. reign, John Watson of Bretton in Com. Wilts. gent. (nephew to John Watson Bishop of Winchester) posselt it; whose son sold it to Leves Hobdy, of late years.

Lambcote.

OF this place, originally a member of Catendon inferior, I do find no mention till 34 H. 8. but then was it past out of the Crown, by the name of a Mannour, and lately belonging to the dissolved Monastery of Kenilworth, unto Richard Andrews Gentleman, and Leonard Chamberlain Esquier, and to the heirs of Andrews.

I Must now passe over to the Western side of Stoure, to observe the rest of those places, which remain in this Hundred to be spoke of; and in so doing, am to skip over a long and narrow tract of land, that is part of Warwickshire, and yet wholly environ'd with this County: therefore before I go farther, it will not be amisse to give some probable reason (for apparent proof I have none) why this and such parcells so encompassed (as is frequently seen) became thus severed from the Counties wherein they lye; which, in short, I conceive to be no more than this; viz. that they, being originally (I mean before the division of Counties was absolutely made and settled) belonging to some great person, whose residence was far distant; and in the old assessments rated there, continued always afterwards so tax; and for that respect have been, and are still reputed part of those Shires. And that this was the first ground thereof, will be evident enough from the instances that might be given therein through sundry parts of this Realm, as in this particular here before us; where it is cleer, that Woburnton, with those Hamlets belonging thereto, viz. Udbelinton, Blackwelle, and Darlingscote; together with Wobbold (anciently a member thereof) were parcell of the lands heretofore belonging to the Church of Worcester, founded before K. Alfred's time, that the condition of our Counties, as now they are, was absolutely settled: As also Goldscote, and Alber-Pariton belonging to the Monastery of Perwoze, of which place 'tis most like they were members long before that ancient Abby was erected. But all I have now to take notice of, in this Hundred, is Ilmington, Whitchurch, and Atherston super Stoure, with the small Hamlets belonging to them.

Ilmington.

This containing the Villages of Compton-Scorsen, and Forcote, and rated at ix. hides by the Conquerors Survey, whereof eight were at that time posselt by the Earl of Spellent, and prized at xii li. and the odde hide by Robert de Stadford, valued at L. s. is in two places of that Record written Almedone, and in the third Udbelinton; so that whether it had the name originally from the ancient owner thereof, as the later imports, or from the high situation, as the former doth seem to imply, I cannot well determine: but in that part, which the Earl of Spellent had, there then stood the Church.

Of this Mannour was the Progenitor of Robert de Harecourt enfeoffed (as it seems) either by the said Earl of Spellent, or one of his descendants; for in 5. Joh. it being seized into the Kings hands amongst the rest of those lands, which belong'd to the Normans (in respect that the Dukedome of Normandy was then recovered out of the possession of King John, by Philip surnamed Augustus, King of France) xiii li. land thereof was given by the said King, to Owen fil. Davidis, in exchange for his land of Ellesmere. In that Record it is written Almedone; but the next year ensuing, being extended, together with the rest of those lands, which had belong'd to the Normans, and were then so seized on, the Rent of Assize there, amounted unto xiv li. setting aside the Lord's Aid and the profits of his Court: And it was then certified, that there might be maintained four Ploughs of xl. Oxen, 500. Sheep, 4. Kine, 3. Horses, and 24. Hogs, it having been used to be let to ferm for xx li. with the like stock upon it. After which seizure King John bestowed it upon Simon de Montfort (first of that name) Earl of Leicester: but he being disherited and banished for adhering to the French, John de Harecourt, a famous Baron, (saith my Author) with the Archbishop of Roan, interceding with King H. 3. in behalf of the Earl, and making then his Claim to this Mannour, obtained it, by the consent of the said Earl, who had posselt it ever since the Normans lost their lands for their subjection to the above specified King of France.

I suppose that his name was Richard de Harecourt, and not John; for by the Record of 5 H. 3. it appeareth, that Richard de Harecourt making Fine with the King for all the lands in England, which belong'd unto the above specified Robert de Harecourt his father, and did by inheritance rightly belong to him the said Richard, had restitution of this Mannour by the Kings Precept dated from the Tower of London 6. Jan. that very year. Howbeit, notwithstanding this restitution to Harecourt, Simon de Mountfort Earl of Leicester (scil. the second of that name) held the possession, as it should seem; for I have seen his originall Deed, whereby he granted & quit claimed Domino Johanni filio Ricardi de Harecourt Normanni (are the words) all his right therein, with the advouson of the Church, reserving to himself & his heirs the service of one Knights Fee, and the inheritance of the Court-Leet, with all other Royalties: And another grant of his, whereby he passed to Sir Peter de Montfort and his heirs xli. lands of his demesne, here, according to an indifferent and lawfull extent, together with the Mannour-house and Warren; as also all Homages, Rents, Reliefs, and free customes belonging thereunto, for the service of one Knights Fee to him the said Earl and his heirs. This Peter de Montfort was a great man in this County, as when I come to Beldesert shall appear; and had issue Peter, who in 56 H. 3. obtained of Sir John de Harecourt Knight (before specified) a full grant^a of this Mannour to himself and his heirs, having possession thereof delivered accordingly in May Anno 1272. the same 56. year of K. H. 3. as also the Kings Charter^b of confirmation bearing date 10. Junii following.

Which Peter in 7 E. 1. held^c it of the Earl of Leicester by the service of one Knights Fee, having at that time 4. Carucates of land in demesne, Free-warren, Court-Leet, Gallows, and other priviledges; together with xxxix. Tenants holding 26. yard land by payment of severall Rents, and performance of certain services; as also viii. Cottiers and iv. Freeholders. From whom descended Sir John de Mountfort Knight, who in E. 3. time wedded Joan the daughter and heir to Sir John de Clinton of Colshill, as by the descent in Beldesert will appear: And from him Sir Baldwin, who in H. 6. time had great suits with Sir Edmund his brother, by the Fathers side, touching the title to this Lordship, which the same Sir Edmund, in disherison of Sir Baldwin, endeavoured to hold; the Story whereof I have set forth in Colshill, in regard that Mannour was then in question upon the same title. But the last of the Mountforts, that possessed this Lordship, was Sir Symon, son and heir to the above specified Sir Baldwin; who being attainted in 11 H. 7. (as in Colshill I shall also shew)

the inheritance thereof, inter alia, elchaeting to the Crown, was by the said King 1. Dec. 12 H. 7. bestowed^d on Sir Reginald Bray Knight (a great favourite in those days,) who dying without issue, Margerie the onely child of his brother John, wife to Sir William Sands Knight, became his next^e heir: Which Sir William (afterwards Lord Sandes) did his^f homage for the same in 31 H. 8. But it continued not long in the family of Sandes; for Thomas Lord Sandes, son and heir to William, past^g it away to Thomas Andrews Esquire, since which time I have seen no more of it.

The Church (dedicated to the blessed Virgin) was in anno 1291. (19. E. 1.) valued^h at xxx. marks, (there being at that time a portion of 1. mark, issuing out of it to the Monastery of Cheesham:) but in 26 H. 8. at xxx li. out of which the Synodals and Procurations payd, amounted to xs. v. d. and the yearly Pension to the said Monastery of Cheesham vi s. viii d.

Compton-Scorfen.

THIS, as all other Comptons taking its name from the situation thereof, in a deep narrow Valley (as I have elsewhere observed) being possessed by Robert de Stadford in the Conquerors time, was then certified^k to contain six hides, five whereof Warinus then held, which were valued at C. s. and the sixth Aluinus, then rated at x s. In the generall Survey it is in one place written parva Contone, and in the other Contone without any distinction at all. Howbeit, after this till 36 H. 3. I do not directly find who was owner of it; but then did Robert de Haleford answer^l for half a Knights Fee, which he held here of Roger le Poer, and he of Ernald de Bois, and he of the Lord Stafford; in which Record^m it is called Hethin-Compton. After this, viz. in 7 E. 1. it had the nameⁿ of Scorfen added thereto, at which time Robertus filius Petri was Lord thereof; and held^o it of Thomas de Stoke, Jordan Cathelewe and Felicia his wife, by the service of half a Knights Fee de parvo feodo Stafford, as the Record hath it; having at that time three yard land in demesne, and three Tenants holding certain lands by payment of sundry Rents, and performance of severall base services.

I am of opinion that this Peter abovementioned, father to the said Robert, was surnamed de Valle; for clear it is that the Family of that name, whose principall seat was at Lodinton (neer Stratford) were owners of this place from E. 1. time till 34 E. 3. and that^p Peter de Valle in this County temp. H. 3. who preceded the same Robert, had first to do here, is also apparent, which makes it the more likely. Which Robert de Valle possessed it in^q 9 E. 2. being afterwards a Knight, and so was Robert his son and heir (as in Lodinton is shewed) Which Robert the younger having issue John that died childlesse, John Burdet of Arrow, and John Norriss (who were his sisters sons, as the descent in Lodinton manifesteth) became^r his heirs: But the direct time when partition was made of the lands, which descended to these coheirs, I have not seen: howbeit certain it is, that this Mannour was allotted to Burdet; for the Entail^s made by Thomas Burdet Esquier, temp. E. 4. doth shew, that he was solely seized of it: After whose attainder Margaret his widow had restitution thereof by force of that entail; and so it descended and continued to his posterity, till Robert Burdet of Bramcote (in this County) his great grandson, by his^t Deed bearing date ult. Sept. 37 H. 8. in consideration of 1300 li. sold it to William Sheldon of Weston in this County, and Robert Palmer of Curton in Com. Glouc. Yeoman.

Foxcote.

THIS, having been antiently a member^w of Almondton, and possessed therewith by Peter de Montfort in 7 E. 1. (before which time I have not seen it named in Record) was then held^x by the same tenure; all the Tenants which the said Peter had here, being ix. in number, holding 8. yard land of him by certain Rents, and severall base services; doing their suit twice a year at the Court-

Leet held for the Honour of Leicester. In which Family it continued a great while; for Sir William Montfort of Colmhill possessed^y it in 10 H. 6. but it hath been long depopulated^z.

Whitchurch.

THIS containing the Hamlets of Crimscote, Crimpton, and Bzoughston, was in the Conquerors time reputed for two Mannours, and possessed by the Earl of Melfent; the extent thereof by the generall Survey then made, being certified at seven hides, where it is written Witceerce, having two Mills and a Church, and the value of all rated at viii li. x s.

That this was part of that which Henry de Newburgh (the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman line, and brother to the said E. of Melfent) had of that Earl's lands, is not to be doubted, forasmuch as 'tis plain, that the Ancestor of Peter de Montfort became enfeoffed thereof in H. 1. time, it being questionlesse part of those x. Knights Fees and a fourth part, which Thurstan de Montfort in 12 H. 2. certified^a, that he then held of William Earl of Warwick de veteri feoffamento; for in 20 H. 3. the said Peter de Montfort held^b it of the Earl of Warwick by the service of one Knights Fee. After which, viz. in 32 H. 3. there being some difference betwixt the beforespecified Peter and Simon de Montfort Earl of Leicester, then Lord of Almenston (whereof I have lately spoke) touching the bounds of each Mannour, the King directed his Precept^c to the Shiriff of this County to cause perambulation to be made there, betwixt them: Whereupon in 34 H. 3. this Peter obtained a Charter^d of Free-warren in all his demesne lands here: but being slain in the battail of Evesham anno 49 H. 3. fighting against the King, this (with the rest of his lands) was seized^e on: which, nevertheless, by the Decree called Dictum de Henilworth, came to Peter his son; who in 7 E. 1. held^f it of the Earl of Warwick by the service of one Knights fee, having four carucates of land in demesne, as also divers Tenants holding severall proportions by certain Rents and servile employments; together with a Court-Leet, and Free-warren, Which Peter in 13 E. 1. exhibited his claim^g for those privileges, and likewise for a Gallows, with Assize of Bread and Beer; producing King H. 3. Charter for the Free warren manifesting that himself and his Ancestors had enjoyed all the rest of those immunities time out of mind, and had allowance of them accordingly.

To this Peter succeeded John, and to him Peter (as in Beldefert is shewed) which last mentioned Peter, in 20 E. 2. entailed^h it, with other lands, upon John de Montfort his son by Lora de Ullenbale (a Concubine.) Other Entails do I also find thereof; viz. on Guy de Montfort (the legitimate son to the said Peter) and Margaret his wife, daughter to Tho. de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, and the heirs of the body of the same Guy begotten on her the said Margaret; and for lack of such issue on the said Thomas E. of Warwick, and Katherine his wife, and the heirs of the said Earl. Which Guy departing this life without Children (as in Beldefert shall likewise be shewed) the said Earl in 35 E. 3. entailedⁱ it again; as also divers other Lordships in this and other Counties upon

Thomas Beauchamp his eldest son, with severall remainders : But notwithstanding all this, the heirs generall of John de Montfort (father of the last recited Peter.) scil. Sir Baldwin Freuill, and Sir Thomas Boteler Knights, recovered it, with other lands, by a writ of Formedone, through the advantage of a preceding^m Entail ; but making partition betwixt them in 9 R. 2. as coheirs and heirs to Sir Peter de Montfort, it was allottedⁿ to Boteler ; whose heirs, at length, marrying to Norbury and Belknap (as the descent in Giff sheweth) and their lands thereupon divided betwixt Sir John Norbury Knight, and Edward Belknap Esquier, this Mannour (inter alia) was in 13. Crimscote.

OF this place is there no particular mention in the Conquerors Survey; neither have I seen any thing thereof till 7 E. 1. at which time Peter de Montfort held^w it, with Whitchurch (whereof originally it was a member, without question,) having divers Tenants, holding their lands by performance of sundry servile employments, and some small Rents, together with certain Freeholders : with which Lordship it came to Sir Edward Belknap, who possess^x it in 1 E. 6. As for the name, I am of opinion that it first proceeded from some ancient Inhabitant here, in the Saxons time, though anciently it be written in a various manner; scil. Benemarcote, Belmescofe, Belmiskote, and Benempscote; but of its Owners I can say no more.

Wimpston.

THis being also a member^y of Whitchurch, and possess^z by the Family of Montfort, therewith, was heretofore written Wilmeston, Wilmeston, and Wilmston; and yet is reputed as part of that Mannour.

Broughton.

THis Hamlet, antiently written Wooton, and so called by reason of its situation near the Stoure, which passeth on the Western side thereof, was originally a member of Whitchurch, as may be inferred from the Roll^a of 20 E. 3. howbeit till^b 6 E. 2. I have not found any mention thereof;

thereof; but then did John de Whitechurch hold lands here to the value of x li. And in 8. E. 3. Sir Robert de Vale Knight, possessing it (with Compton-Scorfen) entailed it upon John his son and heir, who had his residence here, and dyed seized of it in 36 E. 3. leaving John Burdet and John Norrys his colins and heirs, as in Ludinton may be seen: To which family of Burdet it continued till 10 H. 8. that Sir John Burdet Knight, past it away to George Throkemorton Esquire and others.

Atherston super Stoure.

THIS place standing a little lower, and on the same side of the Stoure, hath that distinction, scil. from the said River, by reason that there is another town called Atherston on the North part of the County. And being one of those towns which Odo Bishop of Batour had of (his half brother) the Conquerors gift in this Shire, was by the generall Survey^e, then taken, certified to contain 4. hides, and to be held of the said Bishop by one Corbin, having a Church; as also a Mill which yielded x s. and x. sticks of Eeles; but the whole valued at iv li. In that^e Record it is written Codicestone, which shews that it had its originall denomination from one Edvics in the Saxons time.

It seems that the Ancestor of Raph de Ruperiis was antiently enfeoffed thereof, and by the K.^{tis} like, in regard of the said Bishop's forfeiture^e. Whether Roger de Ruperiis first enjoy'd it, I am not certain, though in King John's time he had^e it; but being a Norman he was dispossessed^e thereof by K. H. 3. by reason of his adhering to the K. of France, and subjecting himself, with what he had in Normandy to his obedience: whereupon the King gave it to Godfrey de Crauncumbe; which Godfrey had also a grant^m of it from Raph de Ruperiis above-mentioned; who thereby reserved to himself and his heirs a pair of gilt Spurs, to be paid yearly at Easter for all services; which grant the said King confirmed^e: but there it is written Adertcheitan, and Adertcheitone: howbeit afterwards, scil. in 32 H. 3. the King bestowed^e the inheritance thereof on Geffrey de Langley (of whom in Witley I have spoke;) in which Charter he calls it Eschaeta nostra de terris Normannorum; making also mention that he had it of the said Godfrey in exchange for Stamfozham in Northumberland.

To this Geffrey succeeded John de Langley, his grandchild, in the possession thereof; who in 7 E. 1. held^e it of the King in Capite by a pair of gilt Spurs, having at that time two carucates of land in demesne, and seven Tenants holding seven yard land, paying severall Rents and performing sundry servile labours: as also a Court-Leet. But from this John, (by some private agreement, it seems) was it passed to Geffrey de Langley, his younger brother; for the said Geffrey, being posselt thereof in 15 E. 1. and impleaded^e for certain lands here, at that time, by Fouk de Lucy, called^e his said brother John to warranty. Which Geffrey, being a devout man, became signed^e with the Crosse for a voyage to the Holy Land in 55 H. 3. In 22 E. 1. he was one^e of the Knights of the retinue to Edmund Earl of Lancaster; upon whom being attending at such time as he agitated a Peace betwixt the then King of France and his brother King Edward of England, he was sent^e with Letters by the said King of France to recall the Constable of that Realm then upon his march into Cascoign with an Army; and afterwards, returning to England, released^e to the Monks of Stoneley x li. per annum of that annuity of xx li. which had been reserved to Geffrey de Langley, his father, when he granted to them the Mannour of Staberton in this County: whose descendants^e in the male line enjoyed this Lordship for divers generations, John being the last of them, that I find, who at the death of William his father in 22 E. 4. was^e about 13. years of age: but dyed without issue, leaving Alianore his sifter and heir, as it seems: for in 12 H. 7. it appears, that John Clavelke and Alianore his wife levied a Fine^e of this Mannour, whereby it was conveyed to Richard Emplon and his heirs, with warranty against her the said Alianore and her heirs. After which it came to Thomas Morton Esquire, who in 37 H. 8. past^e it to Thomas Hunk; which T. Hunk dyed^e seized thereof in 5. & 6. Ph. & M. leaving Robert his son and heir of full age. To whom succeeded John Hunk Gentleman, who dying^e seized of it in 1 Eliz. left Ursula his daughter and heir six years of age, afterwards married to Raphe Lidkote.

The advouson of the Church was given^e in K. John's time to the Monks of Wenksbury by Roger de Ruperiis, but never appropriated to them. In an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) the Rectory was valued^e at vi. marks; so likewise in 14 E. 3. but in 26 H. 8. at xiii li. vi s. viii d. out of which was allowed for Procurations and Synodals xii s. and iv s. yearly Pension to the Monks of Wenksbury.

BARLICHWAY HUNDRED.

THAT all this tract, which is now reputed Barlichway Hundred, was in the Conquerors time stiled by the name of Ferncumbe Hundred, I have already, elsewhere, manifested; though where it is that the particular place, then called Ferncumbe, lyes, I am yet to learn: but that it is in some deep valley, the late syllable, viz. Cumbe, doth sufficiently declare. The first mention that I meet with, where it is called Barlichwei Hundred, is in ^a 21 H. 2. the Shiriff accounting viii. marks for murder, then payd to the King out of it. In ^b 24 H. 2. vii s. x d. is reckoned for the like offence, it being then written Barlingetwei Hundred. In ^c 29 H. 2. xl s. for the like: But in King John's time the Ferm^d thereof was x. marks; the Shiriffs Aid vi li. xii s. and the Warth-money half a mark. And in the 21 H. 3. William de Lufsey, then Shiriff of this County and Leicester-shire, accounted^e for the Ferm thereof x. marks; For the Shiriffs Aid vi li. For the profits of the Leet xliii s. iv d. and for Warth-silver half a marke, all for the Kings use; in whose hands it hath continued ever since.

But there is no place whereof this Hundred takes the name, other than a little plot of ground, about eight yards square, now inclosed with a Hedge, and situate upon the top of a Hill in the middle way between Haseles and Winton (being about a mile distant from each of those towns) and about half a mile from Temple-Grafton; which is reputed to be the very place where those three Parishes do meet; the Court being there kept for part of this Hundred twice a year; scil. the wednesday after Easter, and the wednesday after Michaelmasse, by ancient custome, and the stile thereof Barlichway-Greve, parcell. Hundredi de Barlichway; but by the vulgar called Barly-Greve-Court: Howbeit at this time there are no more than these Towns that do owe suit thereto; (divers other, which formerly have appeared thereat, having had Court-Leets granted to the Lords of them, to be kept within their severall Mannours; viz. Winton, Boxton-Bagot, Boxton-Limfi, Wolbardington, Langley, Offord, Walsentmoze, Aine-magna, Haseles, Walcote and Upton (juxta Haseles) and one Tenement in Temple-Grafton.

For the rest of this Hundred there is also a Court-Leet kept twice in the year; viz. on the Saturday after Easter, and Saturday after Michaelmasse, at a place called Wedon-Crosse in the Parish of Ipoley, scil. on the outside thereof neer to Red Ditch in Worcester-shire, where the basis of the Crosse yet remaineth; the stile of this Court being Wedon-Crosse parcell. Hundredi de Barlichway, and the Towns that owe suit thereto, no more than Abbots-Salford, Donington, Cock-Webington, Wood-Webington, Wetheley, Kinnerton, Stundley, S^r John's in Stundley, Ipoley, and Blackmerth. Which Courts are held in the name of the High Shiriff for the time being, who keeps a Court-Baron at the severall places abovementioned, as well as a Leet, in respect that many doe hold of the King as of these particular Mannours. But through the corruption of the Bayliffs of the Hundred, who have frequently taken money of divers to spare their appearance, there is now such a neglect in resorting to them, that except it be the Constaibles, or Thirdboroughs of those Villages, scarce any one else comes thither.

The Liberty of Pathlow.

THIS having the title of a Hundred in the Conquerors time, as appears by the generall Survey^f then taken, where it is written Patelau Hundred, in ^g 21 H. 2. answered v. marks by way of Fine, for concealing one Roger, who had been with the Kings Enemyes (that being the time when Henry the Kings eldest son was in Rebellion, as our Histories do manifest) and in ^h 5 Joh. was assent at two marks for Murther, about which time the *Ferm*ⁱ of it came to xl s. It seems that the Bishops of Worcester had antiently the benefit thereof granted to them from the Crown, by reason that a great part of the lands, which lay within the same, was of their Fee: but when such concession was first made, I have not yet found; howbeit, in 4 E. 1. 'tis apparent^k, that the then Bishop had Return of Writs, Assize of Bread and Beer, with other Royall customes therein; the same Record having this expression, Hundredum de Patelow est Episcopi Wigorn: à quo tempore, & Quo Warranto Juratores nesciunt: but a little after, under the title of Hundred. de Patelow, in the said Roll, there is this recorded, Dicunt quod istud Hundredum est in manus Episcopi Wigornia, ut putatur per Chartam Regis Henrici ultimi, & valet per annum vi. marcas. And further, Dicunt quod Episcopus Wigorn. habet Returna Brevium, placita Namii-vetiti, Furcas, Assisam Panis & Cervisia per totum Hundredum istud, nesciunt quo Warranto.

But in 13 E. 1. Godfrey Giffard, then Bishop of Worcester, being then summoned^l to shew by what warranty he claimed Return of Writs, with Assize of Bread and Beere therein, and pleading only Prescription, the Kings Atturney replied^m, that Return of Writs was such a Royalty annex unto the Crown, that it could not be severed therefrom, without speciall grant thereof by Charter; and required Judgment for the King, whether in this case the Bishops Prescription should be allowed. Whereupon the Kings Justices demanded, that a Jury should inquire what seisin the said Bishop & his Predecessors had thereof; who, upon their Oaths certifie, that they had been in possession time out of minde; by reason of which Verdict the Bishop was then dismissd. And in 9 E. 2. it was foundⁿ, that the Bishop of Worcester was Lord of this Hundred (for so it was then stiled:) by which Record it appears that Stratford super Avon, with the Hamlets belonging thereto; Hampton super Avon, with the like Hamlets; As also Witton and Clepton, Henley, and Welbelsert, together with the town of Lapworth, were then reputed within the same.

But about the 13th year of King Edw. 3. John de Peyto junior (of whom in Chesherton I have made mention) obtained a grant^o of it for life; together with the Mannour of Stratford super Avon, from Wolstan then Bishop of Gloucester, for the Rent of lx li. per annum to be payd to him the said Bishop and his successors: which Lease, being made without the Kings licence, became void; and not only so, but the King for that trespass seized^p them into his hands: Howbeit, regranting^o them to the said John, he past^t over the Bailiwick of it to the said Bishop and his successors, for ever; In consideration whereof, and for his service and Counsell, impenso, & in Com. Warwici impofterum impendendo, he got an Annuity^t of xxx li. for life, from that Bishop: whereupon, by an Inquisition^t, then taken, it was certified that there did belong to the said Hundred a certain Court called Cylput, held every three weeks: as also Return of Writs, and the execution of them; Fines, and Amerciaments, with the goods & Chattells of all Felons and Fugitives therein. After which, till 3 E. 6. it continued in the possession of the Bishops of Gloucester; but then, viz. 9. Julii, was it granted^a away in Exchange for divers lands in Gloucestershire, by Nicholas Heath, the then Bishop, unto John Dudley Earl of Warwick and his heirs; which John being attainted in 1. M. (as in my Story of the Earls of Warwick is shewed) it escheated to the Crown; and was by Queen Eliz. in 4. of her reign, passed^u, inter alia, unto Ambrose Dudley E. of Warwick & the heirs male of his body: which Earl failing of issue, it return'd again to the Crown, and was by King James granted to Sir Francis Smyth of Wotton-Wawen Knight, and his heirs; whose son Sir Charles Smyth now, scil. anno 1640. enjoys it.

But the place, which gives name to this Hundred or Liberty, is a Tumulus, or heap of earth situate in a Lane on the top of an Hill, upon the left hand the road leading from Wotton-Wawen to Stratford super Avon (about the midway betwixt those two towns, and about a Bow-shoot from the said road) in the very way betwixt Warwick and Alcester; which High way thwarther the other road; neer unto it being certain inclosed grounds that lie within the Parish of Aston-Camlow, and bearing the name of Pathlows to this day. To this place there is a Court-Leet as also a Court-Baron belonging, and kept twice in the year, Infra mensem Pascha, & infra mensem Michaelis, as all other Leets are, but no certain day assigned for the same, nor is the place, where they are kept, always one and the same; but being in the Lane beforementioned, is commonly made choise of in that part, where the Hedges are the best shelter from the winde; the Stile of the Court being Hundred. Sive Libertas de Pathlows; and the Towns and Villages, within this Liberty, these, scil. Wotton-Wawen, Henley, Ullenhale, Fullbroke, Hampton super Avon Hatton super Avon, Alboston, Loxley, Stratford-vetus, Clepton, Witton, Wilmecote parva, Drapton, Dodwell, Shottesley, Ludington, Ingon, Welcombe, Widg-town, Udington, and Rien-Clifford; whereof divers are depopulated, as in my discourse of them will appear.

Of these, at this day, only do suit; viz. Wotton-Wawen, Ullenhale, Loxley, Witton, Ludington, Drapton and Wilmecote parva: Besides divers, who owe suit thereto in respect of tenure; howbeit, neglect in appearance hath almost lost it. But the Bailiffe of the Hundred of Warlichway doth usually answer at all Assizes and Sessions for this Liberty, being made use of by the Lord thereof, for conveniencies sake.

Having said thus much in relation to the particular Hundred of Warlichway, it self: and in generall touching the Liberty of Pathlows (the bounds whereof the Map doth shew) I shall first begin my next discourse, of the Towns and Villages therein contained, with Honiley, which lyeth in the very North-East corner thereof; and thence go on Southwards till I touch upon the bank of Avon.

Honiley.

Till H. 3. time I have not seen any certain mention of this place; but then; scil. about the beginning of that Kings reign, did Richard Peche (of whom in Hampton in Arden I shall say more) obtain^a a great share of this Lordship from Henry de Beresford, scil. that whereof Raph de Grafton was enfeoffed by Waleran Earl of Warwick; and of another part, which he the said Raph had by the grant of Hugh fil. Willielmi (Lord of Hatton;) both parcells being exprest by certain metres and bounds; viz. bordering on the said Earls Parke (called Mednocks) as also upon the Park of Kenilworth; and so extending to a torrent called Opebrook, &c. All which the said Richard Peche was to hold to himself and his heirs of the beforespecified Henry de Beresford and his heirs, by the service of xii d. yearly, to be payd at Easter, and a pair of Gloves at the Feast of S. Michael the Arch-Angell. Of these lands severall^b confirmations were made to the same Richard Peche, by Margery sister to the before specified Raph de Grafton, and Felicia daughter to her the said Margery: But the residue of this Lordsh^p (then written Hunlegh) with the advowson of the Church, did William de Arden give^c to the said Richard Peche in frank marriage with Hawise his daughter; which, perhaps, was at first a part of Hampton in Arden, and involved therewith in the Conquerors Survey: in whose family it continued till H. 4. time, that Margaret the daughter and heir to Sir John Peche, brought it with divers other fair Mannours, in marriage; unto Sir William Mountfort of Colmhill Knight (as by the descent in Hampton will appear;) whose grandson, scil. Sir Simon Mountfort Knight, being attainted in 11 H. 7. (as in Colmhill is shewed) this, with the greatest part of his possessions, came to the Crown; and in 12 H. 7. was granted^d to Gerald Earl of Wiltshire and Eliz. S. John then his wife, and the heirs male of their two bodies lawfully begotten. After which, viz. in 18 H. 7. they obtained a Charter^e of Free-warren in all their demesne lands here.

Which Earl leaving issue by the said Eliz. Sir James Fitz-Gerald Kt. attainted in 28 H. 8. (as in Blackwell I have manifested) it escheated again to the Crown; and was granted to Sir Thomas Palmer Knight, a martiall man, as it seems; for I find

After which the Queen, in that very year, granted it to Michael Throkemorton Esquier, and his heirs, who dyed seized thereof 1. Nov. 5. & 6. Nevertheless I have heard, that the same . . . Hill, of whom in Blackwell I have spoke, having obtained a long Lease thereof (together with Blackwell) from Sir *T. In an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) the Church dedicated to S. John Baptist being valued but at 1. mark, was not taxed in 14 E. 3. propter paupertatem, as the Record^r expresseth. And in 26 H. 6. it appeareth, that all the profits belonging thereto were so small, as that they sufficed not to maintain a Priest; but that the Cure was usually served by some Frier that came from Wrothall and received the same, with other offerings from the Parishioners.

Wrothall.

Southwards from Hontley, somewhat above a mile, stands Wrothall, of which there is no particular mention in the Conquerors Survey; neither of Watton; whereof it was originally a member: Nor is there probability that they were at that time involved with any other place that lyeth neer them; the barrenesse of the soil, though woody, perhaps giving occasion that they were not then taken notice of. But insisting not on probabilities, I shall descend to such certain authorities, as I have seen, to discover the first possessor thereof: and therefore because the Monastery of Nuns was very anciently here founded, viz. in K. Stephen's time, as I shall further shew anon, I will here exhibit the substance of what is to be seen in an historicall Manuscript^m, penned about King Edward 4. time by some Priest or Officer belonging to the said Nunnery (as I guesse;) whereby not onely the first Lords and owners of the place will appear, but the occasion and circumstances touching that Foundation; which, though some may think wholly fabulous, in respect of the Miracles wherewith it is so much deckt; yet, setting them aside, and well considering the Story, a body of Truth is not hard to be discerned therein; the substance whereof is as followeth. viz.

That one Richard, shortly after the Norman Conquest, holding the Lordship of Watton, and likewise this place of Wrothall, of Henry then Earl of Warwick, had issue a son called Hugh, who was a person of great stature, and bore the same Armes that the Monatforts of Waldesfort (near Hentley) in this County did (scil. Bende) with a fesse gules for his difference, being a branch of that Family, as was thought. Which Hugh going to warfare in the Holy Land, was there taken Prisoner; and so continued in great hardship there for the space of seven years: But at length considering, that S. Leonard was the Saint to whom his Parish-Church had been dedicated, and the many miracles that God had often wrought by the merits of that his glorious Confessor, made his addresses by earnest Prayers to him for deliverance. Whereupon S. Leonard appeared to him in his sleep, in the habit of a black Monk, bidding him arise and go home, and found at his Church a House of Nuns of S. Benet's Order: But the Knight awaking took this for no other than a dream, till that the same Saint appeared to him a second time in like manner: Howbeit, then, with much spirituall gladnesse rejoycing, he made a Vow to God and S. Leonard, that he would perform his command. Which Vow was no sooner made, than that he became miraculously carried thence, with his Fetters, and set in Wrothall woods, not far distant from his own House; yet knew not where he was, untill a Shepherd of his own, passing through those thickets, accidentally found him; and after some communication (though he was at first not a little affrighted, in respect he saw a person so overgrown with hair) discovered all unto him. Whereupon his Lady and Children, having advertisement, came forthwith to him, but believed not that he was her husband, till he shewed her a piece of a Ring, that had been broken betwixt them; which, so soon as she applied to the other part in her own custody, closed therewith. And shortly after, having given solemn thanks to God, our Lady and S. Leonard; and praying for some divine revelation where he should erect that Monastery, so promised by his said vow; he had speciall direction where to build it, by certain stones picht in the ground, in the very place where the Altar was afterwards set. After the structure whereof, two of his daughters were made Nuns therein, a Lady from the Nuns of Wilton being fetcht to direct them in that their Rule of S. Benedict.

But from this Legend, I shall proceed with its endowment with lands, &c. as I find the same declared in our publique Records, or have observed from any private evidence. Wherein, first, I must take notice how munificent the pious Founder himself was: Of whom it appears, that heⁿ gave thereunto totam terram loci de Wrothall, with a large proportion of lands and woods thereabouts, all mentioned either by particular names, or by metes and bounds, (the rehearſall whereof, for brevities ſake, I omit) together with the Church of Watton, and whatſoever belonged thereto: as alſo all that land in Watton, which Aytropius had; and ſo much of his (the ſaid Founder's) roialty in Watton, as lay betwixt the two little brooks there, together with many other particulars lying in that Lordſhip.

Of the Benefactors, Roger Earl of Warwick gave the Church of Shukburgh in this County, with its appurtenances, as alſo four yard land: And Roger Lord of Shukburgh xx. acres of Incloſure in that place. In Burton, Robert Lord of Burton gave one yard land, with acres of Incloſure; as alſo one yard land and a half lying in Radford. And Raph, the ſon of Wigan, the Kings Maſtall, certain lands adjacent to Worſhall, called Baldecote, or Killecote, with divers Incloſures ſituate betwixt the ſaid Killecote and Burhey: as alſo all the woods and plain adjoining thereto on the one ſide, and unto the Park of Hugh ſil. Ricardi (the Founder) on the other. Out of Wardon in Northamptonſhire did Richard Foliot likewise grant thereunto xxiv s. yearly Rent: And out of Winkley in Com. Leſc. Robert Earl of Leiceſter the Rent of x s. And to all theſe did King H. 2. adde the gift of x. marks yearly Rent, for the health of his ſoul, and the ſouls of his Father and Anceſtors, to be payd out of his Exchequer annually at the Feaſt of S. Michael, untill he ſhould beſtow on them as much in ſubſtance ſome other way: which was by King H. 3. in 43. of his reign performed, fix marks yearly being assigned to them, to be received from the Biſhop of Worceſter and his ſucceſſors; and the other four marks from the Shiriff of Warwickſhire. In Shrewſley they had half a hide of land given to them by one Henry de Waltham; and in Hafeley certain lands by Aytrop Huſtang, for the health of the ſoul of Cecilie his wife.

This is the ſubſtance of what I have ſeen touching their poſſeſſions: all which were confirmed by King H. 2. Ric. 1. King John, and H. 3. with many privileges and immunities, as by their particular Charters may appear; and which the ſaid Nuns claimed in 13 E. 1. together with a Court Lect, Gallows and Weiſs, both in Worſhall and Watton, whereof they had allowance accordingly. But all the reſt, which is memorable, relating to this Monastery (whereof I have taken notice) till the diſſolution thereof, is, that upon Tueſday the Even of S. Luke, anno 1290. (18 E. 1.) Godfrey Giffard, the then Venerable Biſhop of Worceſter, made his viſitation here, and preach't upon this Text, Non eſt talis mulier ſuper terram, &c. And that upon the ninth of July anno 1315. (9 E. 2.) Walter de Maydenſton, then Biſhop of the ſame Dioces, dedicated the Church, here, together with the high Altar. Which new Dedication, being ſo long after the ſaid Monastery was founded, argueth plainly, that it was then rebuilt by the Nuns; for unleſſe there had been a new fabrick erected, or at leaſt an enlargement and alteration of the old, by new walls and a roof, it had not been proper.

And now that I am thus come to mention this Dedication, it will not be amiſſe (I think) to ſay ſomething briefly of the Order and Ceremonies antiently uſed in the like Dedication or conſecration of Churches, herein making uſe of the learned Durandus his Rationale Divinorum for my authority; who, firſt, diſcourſeth of the cauſe from whence ſuch conſecrations had their originall; Secondly, by whom; and Thirdly, wherefore the Church is dedicated; and what as well ſuch Dedication, as all and ſingular that is performed therein doth ſignify.

Firſt, therefore as to the cauſe and occaſion whence the Dedication of Churches proceeded, he obſerveth; that Moiſes, by the command of God, made a Temple and conſecrated it, with a Table and an Altar; as alſo brazen veſſells and utenſils for the ſervice of God; not only hallowing it with divine prayers, but by the anointing with holy Oyle, as the Lord had appointed: for it is written, that the Lord commanded Moses that he ſhould make Chriſme wherewith to anoint the Tabernacle, as alſo the Ark of the Teſtament in the Dedication thereof. Alſo Solomon the ſon of David, by the Command of God, built the Temple, with an Altar, and conſecrated all things thereto for the ſervice of God, as is to be ſeen in the book of Kings. That Nebuchadnezzar called together all his Nobles at the Dedication of the Brazen Statue which he had made; And that the Jews, as Burcardus, lib. 3. c. Judei, obſerves, did not ſacrifice to God, nor offer up unto him their divine ſupplications, in any other places, than ſuch as were ſpecially dedicated to him. If therefore (ſaith my Author) they which lived under the ſhadow of the Law did do thus; how much more ſhould we to whom the light of Truth hath ſo appeared, and grace is given by Jeſus Chriſt, build Churches to God, adorn them the beſt we can, and with divine Prayers, and holy Unctions conſecrate them, with the Altars, Veſſells, and Veſtments, and all things elſe pertaining to Gods worſhip, according to the institution of Pope Felix the third. Secondly, it is to be obſerved, that none but the Biſhop, onely, hath authority to dedicate Churches and Altars, in regard he beareth the Image of Chriſt the Chief Biſhop, ſpiritually dedicating, without whom we cannot be eſtabliſht in grace: for he ſaith, Sine me nihil poteſtis facere; And the Pſalmiſt, Niſi Dominus aedificat Domum, &c. whereupon the Councell of Carthage prohibited, that no Priſt, or any perſon of an inferior Order ſhould do it.

To theſe, why a Church not firſt endowed, and with what hath been lawfully acquired, ſhould not be dedicated, he addeth divers reaſons to the Conſtitutions of ſacred Canons, which here, for brevity, I paſſe by, and come to the third point; viz, wherefore it is dedicated. Firſt (ſaith he) that the Devill and his power may be expelled: whereupon Gregory in his Dialogues Lib. 3. Cap. 30. reports, that when a Church that belonged to the Arrians, being to be rendred to the faithfull, was to be conſecrated, and the Reliques of S. Sebaſtian & S. Agatha were taken out of it; the people, then aſſembled there, perceived a Hogg running to and fro amongſt them; which being driven out of dores could not be diſcerned of any man, whereat they grew much amazed. By this (ſaith he) God ſhewed that the unclean Inhabitant ſhould depart thence &c. Secondly, that all perſons, flying for refuge thereto, ſhould have ſafety, as may be read in the Canon of Gregory, Et ob hoc Joab in tabernaculum fugit, & Altaris cornua apprehendit.

hendit. Thirdly, that Prayers may there be heard; whereupon in the Prayer at Masse, Concede ut omnes qui huc deprecaturi conveniunt, ex quacunque tribulatione, consolationis tue beneficium consequantur. So also did Solomon pray at the Dedication of the Temple, as is to be seen Kings lib. 3. cap. 8. Fourthly, that prayes may be therein made to God. Fifthly, that the Ecclesiastique Sacraments may be there administred; whence the Church it self is called a Tabernacle, quasi Taberna Dei, wherein the divine Sacraments are contained and ministred.

tion of Churches.

It rests now, in the fourth place, to be spoken after what manner the Church is consecrated, every person being put out, and the Deacon onely shut in. The Bishop standing before the Church door, consecrateth Holy Water, but not without salt: in the mean time, within, xii. Torches being lighted before xii. Crosses painted on the walls of the Church, the Bishop, with the Clergy and people following him, go thrice about the outside of the Church, and with a branch of Hyssope sprinkleth the Walls thereof with Holy Water; at every time, as he passeth by the Door, smiting the threshold with his Pastorall staff, and saying Tollite portas, &c. and the Deacon within answereth, Quis est iste Rex gloria? To whom the Bishop replyeth, Dominus fortis, &c. But the third time, the Door being unbolted, he enters in with a few of his Officers, the Clergy and people standing without, and saith Pax huic Domui, and rehearseth the Letanies. Afterwards in the pavement of the Church he makes a Crosse with Ashes and Sand, whereupon all the Alphabet is written both in Greek and Latin Letters. And then again doth he consecrate other Holy Water with Salt, Ashes, and Wine, and halloweth the Altar; as also anoint the xii. Crosses, depicted on the Walls, with Chrysm. I shall here omit the reasons given by this learned Author for these particular Ceremonies, they being many and large; referring my Reader, if he desire further information therein, to the Book it self.

That such solemn Consecration of Churches was anciently practised, we have an eminent example in that worthy Christian Emperour Constantine; who, having finished a House for the service of God at Jerusalem, assembled ² the greatest part of the Bishops in Christendom for the consecration thereof; which thing they did at his request, each of them most willingly setting forth that Action to their power; Some with Orations, some with Sermons, some with the sacrifice of Prayers unto God for the Peace of the world, for the Churches safety, for the Emperours's and his Children's good. The like is recorded by ^h Athanasius concerning a Bishop of Alexandria, in a work of the like devout magnificence.

Nor doth the solemn Dedication of Churches serve onely to make them publique (as the reverend Hooker well observes) but further also to surrender up that right, which otherwise, their Founders might have in them, and to make God himself their owner: For which cause at the erection and consecration, as well of the ^k Tabernacle as the Temple (saith he) it pleased the Almighty to give a manifest signe, that he took possession of both. Besides it notifieth ^l in solemn manner, the holy and religious use, whereunto it is intended such Houses should be put. Which things the Wisdom of Solomon did not account superfluous;

for he knew how easily that which was meant should be holy and sacred, might be drawn from the use whereunto it was first provided: He knew how bold men are to take, even from God himself; how hardly that House would be kept from impious prophanation: He knew, and wisely therefore endeavoured by such solemnities to leave in the minds of men that impression ^m, which might somewhat restrain their boldnesse, and nourish a reverend affection towards the House of God. For which cause, when the first House was destroyed, and a new instead thereof erected by the Children of Israel, after their return from Captivity, they kept the Dedication ⁿ, even of this House also with joy. The argument ^o which our Saviour useth against prophaners of the Temple, he taketh from the use whereunto it was solemnly consecrated: And as the Prophet Jeremy forbiddeth ^p the carrying of burthens on the Sabaoth, because that was a sanctified day: so because the Temple was a place sanctified, our Lord would not suffer, no ^q not the carriage of a vessell through it.

These two Commandements are in the Law conjoyned, Yee shall keep my Sabaoths, and reverence my Sanctuary, out of those the Apostles words, Have yee not Houses to eat and drink? albeit Temples, such as now, were not then erected for the exercise of Christian Religion: It hath been neverthelesse not absurdly conceived, that he teacheth what difference should be made between House and House, what is fit for the dwelling place of God, and what for man's habitation he sheweth; requireth that Christian men at their own Houses take common food, and in the House of the Lord none but that food which is heavenly; he instructeth them, that as in the one place they use to refresh their bodies, so they may in the other learn to seek the nourishment of their souls; and as there they sustain temporall life, so here they would learn to make provision for eternall. Christ would not suffer that the Temple should serve for a place of Mart; nor the Apostle of Christ, that the Church should be made an Inne: when therefore we sanctifie, or hallow Churches, that which we do is onely to testifie, that we make them places of publique Resort, that we invest God himself with them; and that we sever them from Common uses. Thus far M^r Hooker.

I come now to speak of the Altar; which (as my Author ^u saith) is to be consecrated for three respects; First, for the offering of a Sacrament there to God, Genes. cap. 8. Edificavit Noe Altare Domino, & tollens de cunctis volucribus & pecoribus mundis obtulit super Altare: for this Sacrament is the Body and Blood of Christ, which we offer in memory of his Passion, according to that Precept, Hoc facite in meam commemorationem. Secondly, for that the name of God is there to be called upon; whereupon Genes. 12. Edificavit Abraham Altare Deo, qui apparuit ei; & invocavit ibi nomen Domini: And this invocation, which is made upon the Altar, is properly called the Masse. Thirdly, to sing there, Eccles. 47. Dedit illi contra inimicos potentiam, & stetit fecit contra Altare Cantores, & in sono eorum fecit dulces modulos.

After this manner and order is the Altar consecrated; First, the Bishop begins, Deus in adiutorium meum intende: Afterwards he halloweth Water; then doth he make Crosses with Holy Water at each corner thereof; which being done, he goeth seven times about it, and sprinkleth seven times also Holy Water upon it with a branch of Hysope: Then doth he sprinkle the Church again, putting the remainder of the Holy Water at the foot of the Altar. All this being performed, four Crosses are made with Chrysme at the four Angles of the Sepulcher, wherein the Reliques ought to be deposited. Each Relique are put into a Cabinet with three grains of Frankincense, and so layd up in the Sepulcher, and a tablet put over them with a Crosse made upon the midst thereof. These things being done, the great stone which covers the Altar is fitted for it, and then annointed with Oil in 5. places, and after the same manner with Chrysme: Then is it confirmed on the front with a Crosse made of Chrysme; and Incense is burnt in 5. places thereof: After which it is clenfed and covered with clean linnen, and lastly the Sacrifice celebrated thereon.

Now the reason and signification of all these Ceremonies follows, which I here, for brevity, omit; resolving to speak a word or two of the cause wherefore Churches do bear the name of some Saint (by which many of them are yet distinguished) although the Consecration or Dedication were unto none but to God alone; wherein I shall make use of S. Augustine's testimony^w. To them (saith he, speaking of Angels and Saints) we appoint no Churches, because they are not to us as Gods. Again, The Nations to their Gods erected Temples, we not Temples unto our Martyrs as unto Gods; but memorialls as unto dead men, whose spirits with God are still living. So that hereby is clearly manifest, that as they were dedicated to God alone, so was it in memory of some speciall Saint; either (as M^r Hooker^y observes) because by the ministry of Saints it pleased God, there to shew some rare effect of his power, or else in regard of death, which those Saints having suffered for the testimony of Jesus Christ, did thereby make the places, where they died, Venerable. Thirdly; for that it liked good and vertuous men to give such occasion of mentioning them often, to the end that the naming of their persons might cause enquiry to be made, and meditation to be had of their virtues.

And I have seen a very antient transcript^z of a Decree made by Robert de Winchelsea Archbishop of Canterbury in his Metropolitall visitation, temp. E. 1. which was confirmed by Walter Reynold his immediate successor, whereby it appeareth (inter alia) that the parishioners, throughout all the Archdeacons of his Province, were appointed to see, that the Image of that Saint, to whose memory the Church was dedicated, should be always erected in the Chancell of every Parish-Church. But these, as all other Images, which stood heretofore in Churches, being pulled down (as we know) either in King Edw. 6. or beginning of Queen Eliz. reign, hath left the name of such Saint in many places forgotten; So that now, except it be by keeping the Festivall called the Wake (whereof in Stratford super Avon I have spoke) which usually is observed the Sunday following the Saints day to whom such Dedication was, there is very little memoriall thereof; considering how, of late time, the fury of some out of a pretended zeal to Reformation, hath battered the windows in pieces; in more places whereof the portraiture of such Saint was depicted, than of any other whatsoever, as I have frequently observed.

But I now return to this Religious House of Wrothall; from the ruine and destruction whereof; as also of the Church and Altar before specified, no Consecration or Dedication, were it never so solemn and sacred, could affright that barbarous generation, which under the power and authority of K. H. 8. subverted this, and the rest of those goodly structures of that kind, wherewith England was so much adorned: as a preamble whereunto was that fatal Survey^a in 26 H. 8. made; whereby it appears, that the value of this then extended to lxxii li. xii s. vi d. above all reprises, Sir Edward Ferrers Knight, being high Steward thereof, and his Fee iii li. vi s. viii d. per annum; And that there then was every Maunday-Thursdai distributed to poor people for the Founders soul, in Bread and Herrings, with xiii d. in money, the sum of xx s. After which, viz. the next year following, was it dissolved with the rest of the small Houses, by Act of Parliament, Anne Little being then Prioreffe, and having a Pension^b of vii li. x s. per annum granted to her by the King, during life: but the rest of her fellow Nuns were exposed to the wide world to seek their fortune: And in 36 H. 8. granted^c, inter alia, (I mean the site thereof) with the Church, Belfrey, Church-yard, and all the lands in Wrothall thereto belonging; as also the Rectory and Tithes of Wrothall unto *Rob. Hatton.

His place, having its first denomination from the Heath, near which it was situate; and so, for facility of expression, contracted from Heath-ton into Hatton, is not at all mentioned in the Conquerors Survey: neither indeed do I find any thing thereof sooner in Record, than what is express'd in those grants, which were made to the Monastery of Worhall, of the Church and lands here, by Hugh fil. Richardi the Founder of that House; which I judge to be about the later end of H. 1. or beginning of King Steph. time. However, that this, with Worhall (which was originally a member hereof, as is there manifested) was possess'd by Henry de Newburgh, the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman line, I have not only the MS. history of Worhall for my authority, but a strong and most evincing circumstance in further testimony thereof, viz. the certificate made by Will. Earl of Warwick in 12 H. 2. whereby it appeareth, that the said Hugh held of him ten Knights fees de veteri feoffamento; id est whereof he was enfeoff'd in H. 1. time, whereof this place was (questionless) a part, it being his principall seat, and the place whence he assumed his surname; to the Charters of which Earl he was frequently a witness. But having already spoke at large of that eminent and pious work of his, viz. the Foundation of Worhall Nunnery, I shall here goe on in taking notice briefly of what otherwise I have found memorable of him; which is, that he confirm'd the Mannour of Bentworth in this County to the Canons of Bentworth in King H. 1. time; and gave unto them certain lands in Willington; all which the said King ratify'd.

To the Priory of Warwick he gave the Church of Snotfeld; and to the Nuns of Polestworth confirm'd the grant of Oldbury, which was of his Fee, being bestow'd on them by Walt. de Hastings and Hathewis his wife.

But the issue male of this Family extinguishing, (as the Descent sheweth) and this Lordship thereby coming unto daughters, part thereof divolved by Margerie, one of the coheirs, to the Clintons; but the residue of the Nuns of Worhall and the Canons of Stadley had. Which part so coming to Clinton, was by Sr. Thomas de Clinton Knight, grandchild to the before specified Margerie, given by the name of his Mannour of Hatton, and Beaufale unto James his younger son, and to his heirs, reserving to the said Sir Thomas and his heirs a peny to be paid yearly at Christmas, for all secular service and demands whatsoever. But it should seem that James quitted his title therein to John his elder brother's son: for in 13 Edw. 1. the said John commenced suit against Will. de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick for the whole Mannour, excepting two messuages, and two yard land therein, in which the said Earl claimed right by virtue of a grant from Hamon le Strange: However, the Earl pleading that he held but a third part thereof, whereas the other challenged the whole, had, by reason of that advantage the better in the suit; so that the said John, within a short time after, came to an Agreement with him; and paid unto him one mess. 1 Mill, 27. acres of land, 4 acres of meadow, 11. acres of wood, 7 Rent, and the Rent of 2 li. of pepper, with two pair of Gloves, price 11 yearly; quitting wholly also all his title and claim that he had to this Mannour. To whose posterity it continued till 3 H. 7. that all the lands belonging to that great Earldome were given up to the King by Anne Countesse of Warwick (as in Warwick I have more fully shewed:) Since which I have not seen any more thereof.

That which belong'd to the Nuns of Worhall, being in E. 6. time reputed for a Mannour, was then in the Kings hand.

In an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) the Church (dedicated to the holy Trinity) was valued¹ at five marks, and had a portion of iii s. issuing out of it to the Canons of Warwick; but in 14 E. 3. at vi l. xiii s. iii d. being not presentative.

Shrewley.

This Village is in the parish of Watton; and, being posselt by Hugh de Grentemaisnill in the Conquerors time, was then certifiedⁿ to contain three hides, valued at xxx s. the woods thereof extending to one mile in length, and half a mile in breadth; all which, before the Norman invasion, had been the freehold of one Toli. But soon after this, Rob. Earl of Leic. (the first of that name) had it, and enfeofft Ernald de Bois thereof, as it seems: for in a grant^o which the said Ernald made to the Nuns of Pinley, of one carucate of land here, in Strabestie (for so it was then written) he expresses it to be by the consent of Rob. E. of Leic. his Lord: which grant the same E. for the health of his own soul, and the souls of his father and mother, as also of the soul of K. H. 1. confirmed^p.

The next mention I find thereof, is, that in 6 H. 3. Magr. Henry de Waltham had livery^q of those lands here, together with the rest in Willeby which Will. fil. Wigani, his uncle, held of the K. in Capite. And in 33 H. 3. I find that John de Screveila held^a a yard land in this village of the King by Sergeantie, in Capite: which John was Lord of the Mannour, as it seems; for in 13 E. 1. it appears^t, that Fouk de Lucy had kept a Court-Leet, here, in prejudice of the said John, he holding of the King by Sergeantie; and that the said Fouk had without authority erected a Gallows in this Village; wherefore it was determined that the said Gallows should be pulled down, and that the same John might enjoy his Court-Leet again. Nevertheless, upon the death of the said Fouk de Lucy in 31 E. 1. I find^t, that he dyed seized of this Mannour, and held it of Maud the daughter and heir of John de Skrevele, Will. de Lucy his son and heir being then 26. years of age. But the said Will. enjoy'd it not accordingly; for Maud the wife of Walt. de Culy (whom I conclude to be her that is before exprest) having licenseⁿ from the King, in respect of the tenure in Sergeantie, sold^w it for CC li. to John de Dufford and his heirs in 1 E. 2. Which Sergeantie^x was to find one armed man with an Hauberk on Horseback in the Kings service for the space of xl. days; viz. to ride personally with the K. in his expedition for Wales.

Which John de Dufford was a Knight^y in 3 E. 2. and in 6 E. 2. sold^w it to Philip the son of Philip de Gayton, who departed^a this life in 9 E. 2. leaving his two sisters his heirs; sc. Juliana, the elder, wife^b to Sir Thomas Murdak Knight, and Scolastica (the younger) wedded^c to Godfrey de Meaux, being also heirs^d to their brother Theobald: Of the moitie whercof, the said Scolastica had livery in 10 E. 2. she being then a widow. But all that belong'd to Julian (as I can find) was but one carucate of land, which eschaetted to the Crown by reaton of her forfeiture^e, in conspiring with Sir John Paux Knight, to murder her husband, for^f which she was burnt: the inheritance whereof was given^h by the King to Henry Earl of Lanc in 23 E. 3. it then passing by the name of one messuage, 26 acres of land, and one roode of meadow, a pasture called Berry-moze, and x s. iii d. ob. Rent. Neither did that which her sister Scolastica had here goe any longer by the name of the moitie of the Mannour: for in 27 E. 3. she was foundⁱ to dye seized of one messuage, xx. acres of land, 3 acres of meadow, and viii s. Rent, held of the King in Capite by the eighth part of a Knights fee, leaving Sir John de Meaux Knight her son and heir then xl. years of age. When Sir John sold the same, before the 38 of E. 3. to Nich. Fililode and Will. Fililode his brother; passing it by the name of the moitie of the Mannour of Shreveffe (Nich. having but an estate for life and the inheritance to Will.) The custody of which moitie was in 6 R. 2. committed¹ by the King to John Horewode, one of the Grooms of his Chamber. in respect that John Fililode, heir to the said W. was under age: which John dyed^m seized thereof 1 H. 4. leaving Giles Fililode, his Uncle, his next heir; who departedⁿ this life in 2 H. 6. Katherine the widow of John Blike being found^o his sister & heir.

To whom succeeded Ric. Blike her son and heir, who had livery^p thereof in 4 H. 6. and to him Richard^q; and to Ric. Humfrey^r. But the last of the Blikes, that had to do here, was John Blike Gentleman, who sold^s all his interest to John Oldnale in 4 E. 6. by the name of one mess. CC. 2. acres of land, xl. acres of meadow, C. acres of pasture, x. acres of wood, and lxxx. acres of Heath and Furs, part thereof lying in Pinley: all which in 4 Eliz. the said John Oldnale conveyed^t to Thomas and Clement Walford.

But besides this moytie, and the other, which so came to the coheirs of Philip de Gayton, 'tis certain that the Lucies of Cherlecote had a Mannour here: for in 16 E. 3. the Lady Eliz. the widow of Sir Will. de Lucy Knight, had a grant^u thereof, together with the Mannour of Cherlecote, made by Sir Will. de Lucy Knight, son to the said Sir Will. to hold during her life: in consideration whereof she released her interest in other lands, which she had right to have held. And it is plain by sundry^w Records, that the posterity of the said Sir Will. Lucy posselt it till H. 7. time; but how much longer I find not.

Beaufale.

This is also in the parish of Watton, and by the Conquerors Survey^x certified to contain half a hide, being at that time posselt by Odo Bishop of Batcur (the Kings half brother) but then^y held of him by one Wadardus, and under him by Geroldus, the woods containing two furlongs, and the whole valued at xx s. In that Record it is written Brothelle: But very shortly after this, it came^z to the hands of Hugo fil. Ricardi (also Lord of Watton, as hath been shewed) and so, by Margerie his grandchild and heir, to Osbert de Clinton: which Osbert had issue Osbert, and he Thomas, by whom the inheritance thereof was given (together with Watton) to James de Clinton his younger son. Whether this grant to James proved invalid, or that he quitted his title therein to John his elder brother's son, I know not; but certain it is, that the said J. pass'd it (with Watton) unto W. de Beauchamp E. of Warw. and his heirs: And for the better strengthening of their title did Maud Countess of Warwick after the death of the said Earl her husband purchase from Sir Hamon le Strange Knight all his right therein; which Hamon had

But it continued not long in the Family of Hastang; for Aytrope Hastang, grandchild to the before specified Hunfridus, in consideration of lxxx marks of silver, sold^h it to Will Turpin, a gentleman of the Kings Bedchamber; reserving from the said W. and his heirs, to him the said Aytrope and his heirs, the like service as was due by him to his Lord for the same; viz. the half and the tenth part of a K^s Fee: By which grant the said Aytrope also covenanted, that every of the heirs to the said W. H. 3. the King remitted^l to Thomas de Cherlecote the Scutage then due from him; viz. for half a Knights Fee, and a fourth part; where he is called Thomas de Cherlecote Videlius Magistri Stephani de Lucy; which shewes he was Lucie's servant, though in what capacity is hard to say: And in 20 H. 3. accepted^m of 5 marks instead of xx, which were due from him unto the Exchequer for divers defaults of his in the Iters of the Kings Justices: But this Thomas came to an untimely end, for he was strangledⁿ by three of his own servants; viz. two men and one woman; and afterwards cast into a pool here at Haseley; which, till the murder was found out, occasioned such a suspicion that he had drowned himself, that his goods and Catalls were seized into the Kings hands, and then valued at 71 li. 05 s. 04 d. But the truth at last appearing^o, the Murderers had their demerits by judgment of the Kings Justices, and restitution was made of those his goods unto his heirs, to dispose of for the health of his soul.

To him succeeded Thomas his son and heir; who by a Charter^p bearing date 3 Maii 51 H. 3. had free-warren granted to him in all his demesne lands here. This Thomas was^q one of the Commissioners for the Gaol delivery at Warwick in 53 and 56 H. 3. so also in 1. 2. and 3 E. 1. In 6 E. 1. he was Sheriff^r of this County and Welshshire; and in^s Commission likewise for the Gaol delivery at Warwick; as also in^t 11. 12. and 14 E. 1. In 15 E. 1. he was constituted^u one of the Commissioners in this County for conservation of the peace, and taking care that the statute of Winchester should be observed. The same year, and the two next years following, he was again^v one of the Justices for the Gaol delivery at Warwick: in severall of which years, he is indifferently written, sometimes Thomas de Cherlecote, and sometimes Thomas de Haseley, and was a Knight^w. But his son and heir; sc. Robert past^x away his title in this Mannour to Guy de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick in 30 E. 1. to whose posterity it continued till all the lands belonging to that Earldome came to the Crown in 3 H. 7. (as in Warwick I have manifested) out of which it was granted^y, together with the Castle of Warwick and many other Lordships, by King E. 6. 22 Junii 1. of his reign unto John Dudley Earl of Warwick and his heirs; and in 3 E. 6. past^z back to the King by the said Earl (inter alia) for lands in Oxfordshire and other Counties: Howbeit, the next year following he had it again, with the rest, in exchange^a for certain Mannours in Northumberland and elsewhere.

But upon the attainder of the said John (then D. of Northumb) in 1. Maria, the Q. granted^b it to Mich. Throckmorton, Esq; and his heirs; who aliened^c it the year ensuing to Clem. Throckmorton his Nephew (third son to Sir George Throckmorton of Coughton, in this County Knight) who had issue Job Throckmorton, one of those notable Zelots in Q. Eliz. time; of whom, with some other of the like spirit, Mr. Cambden in his Annals of that Queens reign (an. sc. 1588) hath this expression— Hi itaq; & in Hierarchiam, & in Prasules, probrosos editis libellis, quibus tituli erant Martinus Prasulibus exitiosus, vel Prasulomastix, Minerali, Diotrephes, Demonstratio disciplinæ &c. calumniis & convitiis virulentissimis adeo scurriliter debacchati sunt, ut authores non* Claverdon.

Ascending another torrent, which meeteth with that last spoke of, a little below Haseley, I come to Claverdon. In the Conquerors time this, being posselt¹ by the Earl of Meillant, contained 3 hides, and was valued at iiii li. the woods whereof were a mile in extent; but in Edw. the Confessors dayes, it was the Freehold of one Bovi. From which Earl, as most of the lands which he had in this County did, it came to the hands of Henry de Newburgh, his brother, (the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman line) as is evident enough: And in 9 Joh. was (inter alia) assigned^m for the dower of Alice the widow of Waleran Earl of Warwick; so also in^o 26 H. 3. to Ela the widow of Thomas Earl of Warwick: which Ela in 36 H. 3. obtained a Charter^p of Free-warren in all her demesn lands here; and purchased^a certain other lands, in this place, of Sir Henry de Lodbroke Kt. which she gave^r to the Priory at Warwick.

After this, viz. in 13 E. 1. Will. de Beauchamp claimed^a a Gallows, with Assize of Bread and Beer in this Mannour, by Prescription which were allowed: And in 9 E. 2. was it assigned (inter alia) as part of the dowry of Alice, widow unto Guy de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick. To the posterity of which Earls it continued till 3 H. 7. but then coming to the Crown (with all the rest of the possessions belonging to that Earldome) was by K. H. 8. in 26 of his reign, leased^a to Reg. Walsford for xxi years: But King Edw. 6. 22 Dec. 1. of his reign, granted^w the inheritance thereof, together with the Castle of Warwick &c. unto John Dudley Earl of Warwick: After whose attainder in 1 Maria, the said Q. made a Lease^x thereof for xl. years at the Rent of xxvii li. iiii s. i d. ob. to Clem Throgmorton of Haseley Esquier: But in 4 Eliz. did Ambrose Dudley, then Earl of Warwick, obtaine a Pat.^y thereof, together with the Castle of Warwick &c. to himselfe and the heirs male of his body; who dying without issue, it returned to the Crown, and was afterwards purchased by Thomas Spencer Esquier, a younger son to Sir John Spencer of Althorpe in com. Northampt. Knight. Which Thomas, having likewise obtained a Lease from the Dean and Chapter of Worcester of certain lands in this place, built a very fair House thereupon; and for the great Hospitality which he kept thereat, was the mirrour of this County: But having no issue male, seled this Mannour (inter alia) upon Sir Will. Spenser Baronet, son and heir of Sir Thomas, and he of Sir Will. sometime of Warnton in Dr- sozshire (his third brother.)

Touching the Church (dedicated to S. Michael) it appeareth², that Roger Earl of Warwick in 23 H. 1. gave to his Collegiate Church of Warwick, then newly founded, two parts of the Tithes issuing out of the Inclosures in this parish, and likewise of the paunage of all the woods belonging thereto: And that in an. 1291 (19 E. 1) it was valued^a at xv. marks and a half, the Vicars portion being then six marks and a half: Which Vicaridge in 26 H. 8. was rated^b at vi li. the Procurations and Synodalls, issuing out of it, being viii li.

Kington.

This is that place (as I conceive) which I find written Cinton in the Conquerors Survey^c, and there certified to have been at that time posselt by the Earl of Spellent, and to contain one hide and a half, which was then wast, and valued at no more than v s. But the extent of the woods is not there recorded; howbeit the valuation of them is put at x s. which, with the rest had been the freehold of Britnod before the Norman invasion. All that I have further seen of this place is, that the Abbot of Woddesley had very antiently two carucates of land here; for which in 4 E. 1. he was presented^d to have withdrawn his suit xx. years before that time: but by whom or when it was given, I am not very sure: And that after the dissolution of the said Monastery, the same land, by the name of the Grange, Mannour, or Ferme of Kington &c. was granted^e to Clem. Throkemorton Esq; and Alex. Avenon and their heirs in 37 H. 8. Which Clem. dyed seized thereof by the name of Kington-Ferm, or Grange in 16 Eliz.

Langley.

IN the Conquerors time this being posselt by Rob. de Stadford, was of him held by one Judichel, and by the Survey then taken, certifiedⁱ to contain 1. hide and a half, having woods belonging thereto of one mile in length, and half a mile in breadth; all which were valued at xl s. and had been the freehold of Ernvi in Edw. the Confessors dayes. Howbeit, after this till 13 Joh. I find³ no more mention of it, and then it with Porton, being part of the Honour of Hervie de Stafford, in this County, answered for two Knights Fees. But, it seems, that one of the Curleys (Lords of Porton Curley) was enfeoffed thereof by some of the posterity of the before specified Robert de Stadford; for in 23 H. 3. Will. de Curley confirm'd^h to the Monks of Woddesley all the lands which had been granted to them within the Territories of Langle of his Fee: And in 26 H. 3. heldⁱ one Knights Fee here and in Porton of Robert de Stafford.

To deduce the succession of its possessors, exactly, I cannot; therefore what I have disjointedly found thereof must satisfy. In 17 Edw. 2. Sir Henry de Lodbroke Knight wrote^k himself Dominus de Langele; and within two years after Will. Vanhan had the same title, as by his deed^l with his seal of Armes thereto annexed; viz. a Cross within a border both engrailed, doth testify. And in 39 Edw. 3. was there a Fine^m levied of this Mannour, between Sir Baldwin Frevill Knight, Pl. and John the son of Sir John Trillow Knight, and Joan his wife Deforc. it being of her inheritance; whereby it pass to the said Sir Baldwin for life. But in 10 Henr. 6. Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick was Lordⁿ of it: And, shortly after that, John Arden of Mark-hall Esquier, who, upon the marriage of Thomas his son and heir, settled^o it (inter alia) upon him. Which Thomas in 1. & 2. Phil. & M. levied a Fine^p thereof, but to what uses I know not.

The Chapell here, (as also that of Porton-Limesi) antiently belong'd^q to the Church of Uttoston-Warren; but in the year 1257. by a special Agreement^r made betwixt the Prior of Uttoston and the then Rector of the Church of Claverdon it was concluded, that from thenceforth, the said Chapells with all the Tithes, as well great as small; arising within their precincts, should belong to the Church of Claverdon; as also that the Inhabitants of this Village and Porton should bury their dead, and receive the Sacraments there: In consideration whereof the Rector of Claverdon, and his successors were to pay, for ever, unto the Prior of Uttoston and his successors in the Church of Wavens-Uttoston 5. marks, and 8^s yearly upon the Feast days of St. James the Apostle, and St. Martin by equal portions, or within two dayes following: which agreement was confirmed^s by Maugerius Bishop of Uttoucester upon Fryday, being Saint Peters day, the year abovesaid. When or how the difference grew betwixt the Successors of the said Rector and Prior, I know not: but I find, that about 22 H. 7. the Arch-Deacon of Uttoucester, as Rector of Claverdon, and the Provost and Fellows of Kings Colledge in Cambridge, successors to the said Prior, came to a new Agreement^t; viz. that the said Rector of Claverdon and his successors should themselves pay to the said Provost and Fellows, and their successors xl s. yearly Pension at Easter and Michaelmasse by even portions, in right of their Rectory of Wavens-Uttoston; which Agreement bears date 1. Februarii anno 1506. (22 Henry 7.)

Norton Limesi, alias Norton Superior.

Following this little brook I come next to Porton-Limesi, standing upon an ascent on the Northwest side thereof; but it is not at all mentioned in the Conquerors Survey, which makes me conclude, that it was then involved with Uttolbardington, being the very proportion which Rob. de Stadford then held in that place: For in 13 Joh. Where the Fees belonging to the Honour of Stafford, in this County, are recorded, "Langeleg and Porton (which I take to be this Porton) are certified for two Knights Fees: And afterwards; viz. in 36 Henr. 3. is it also joyned with Langele, Will. de Curli (of whom I have spoke in Woddesley) answering^w for one Knights Fee in both these places. But in 9 E. 2. it was reputed^x a Hamlet of Fulbroke, and written Porton-Limesi, for distinction from the other Portons. It seems that the Earls of Warwick became posselt of it in E. 3. time, if not before; for in 46 E. 3. it appears^y that the Knights Fee here in Langle above mentioned, was held of Raph Earl Stafford by Thomas Beauchamp then Earl of Warwick, and so^z likewise by the succeeding Earls of Warwick.

The Chapell here (dedicated to the holy Trinity) was^a antiently dependent upon the Church of Uttoston-Wavens, but long since annexed^b to the Parish Church of Claverdon,

THis place was given^e to the Monks of Worley, in K. Steph. time, by Will. Giffard, and confirm'd^d by Roger Earl of Warwick; but the reason why it is not particularly mentioned in the Conquerors Survey is, because it was then involved with Brilles, of which Mannour it was accounted for half a hide, as the Charter^e of its confirmation, made by Will. Earl of Warwick (son to Earl Roger) doth testifie. After the dissolution of which Monastery it was granted^e out of the Crown (inter alia) to Clem. Throkemorton Esquier, and Alex. Avenon, and their heirs, by the name of the Mannour, Ferm, and Graunge called Songer-grange, and is now posselt by *Clem.
Throkemorton of Haseley Esq*; great grandchild to the said Clement.

Paulines-Heath

OF this place all that I have seen^s, is no more than that the Canons of Saint Sepulchers in Warwick were seized thereof in 42 H. 3. But I do not find that those lands, then so called, did continue that name, or were reputed a Mannour.

Pinley-Priory.

ON an ascending ground, upon the North side of that torrent rising about the skirts of Claberton, stands Pinley, which was antiently a member^h of Rowinton, and granted
(as I guesse) by Robert the first Earl of Leicester of the Norman line (who posselt Hugh de Grent-maisnill's lands, whereof Rowinton was part)
to Robert Boreler of Overley in this County:
which Robert, as it seems, ense oft R. de Pilardinton thereof, who was the Founder of this little Monastery: For in the Confirmationⁱ made by Simon Bishop of Worcester, as also of John Pagham, and Alured, his immediate successors (who lived in K. H. 1. and K. Steph. times) there is recitall, that the said R. de Pilardinton gave to God and the Nuns of this place totam terram de Pineleia assensu Roberti Pincerne de Overleia.
Whether there were any formall Charter of its Foundation, I much doubt; but if there were 'tis no wonder, through the various changes of its possessors since the dissolution, that it is lost:
And for enroulment in our publique Records, I am sure there is none, it seldome hapning that such small Houses went to the charge thereof.

I come now to the severall Benefactors that they had. In Pinley, Will. the son of Wigan Mareschall gaveⁱ them half a yard land. In^m Shrewley Ernald de Bois one carucate; and Robert de Tayden a certain Tenement containing a full carucate. In⁺ Walsall Manduit VValeran Earl of Warwick gave the tithe corne.
In^{*} Walsall Daivil Walt. de D'avill the tithe of his Mill. In Claberton severall parcells of land were givenⁿ, some by Waleran Earl of Warwick, in a place called Crudshale; and the rest by Nich. de Crudshale. In^o Rowinton Will.

the son of VWill. de Freynuse gave a meadow.
In^v Langeley VWill. de Curley, and his Tenants several parcells. In Whitcote, the Nuns of this House had one yard land and a half granted^a by Sir John le Lowe Knight. In Whitchurch an yearly Rent of xiii. quarters of Wheat, and xiiii.
quarters of Barley, which they purchased^o of Peter de Montfort, Lord of that Mannour: which Family of Montfort (whose seat was at Belbesert) were very devout Benefactors to this Monastery: for I find^t that Thurstan de Montfort gave thereunto the tenth part of all the victualls spent in his House; viz. Bread, Beer, Flech, Fish, and whatsoever was drest in his Kitchin; and that Peter his son obtained^t the patronage thereof
from Roger de Pilardinton in H. 3. time, whereof he had a confirmation^u by VValter de Cantilupe
Bishop of Worcester: which Tenth of Victuall, the said Peter also allowed all the days of his life;
and so likewise Peter the son of that Peter untill 5 E. 1. Wherefore I am of opinion, that the Rent-Corn, above mentioned, was by him settled, as is before exprest, in lieu thereof. And in 3
E. 2. Philip le Lou, and Margerie his wife, gave^w the perpetuall advouson of the Church of Whitcote in this County. Within the precinct of Fulbroke-Park had^z they also two Tofes, one yard land, one Croft called Hoppetstrott, one meadow called Latomes-meadow, and half an acre in Wodemicotw, with an Isle called the Spill-dantis compassed about with the River Abon; but of whose grant I find not.

And that the hearts and hands of many people,
in antient time, were free and open to such devout Votaries, we have innumerable examples: Neither did there want Instruments to stir them up thereto, as here, by severall Indulgences, one^y of Hubert Archb. of Canterbury an. 1195 (7 R. 1.)
another^z by the before specified VValt. de Cantilupe
Bishop of Worcester an. 1253. and a third^a by Simon de VWanton Bishop of Exeter an. 1260, each of them vouchsafing pardon of Penance, for a certain number of dayes, for such sins, whereof the persons offending, making true confession, should be heartily lorry, giving something of their temporall substance to these Nuns. Divers immunities also, usually granted to such Religious Houses did King Henry 2. and King Henry 3.
vouchsafe unto them, as by their Charters^b may appear. But neither could the pious and strict lives of these innocent Ladies; nor the priviledges of those Kings preserve them from that generall ruine, which hapned in 27 and 30 H. 3. As a preparatory to which work was that Survey^c in 26. of his Reign, whereby this House with all that belong'd thereto, was rated at xxiii^{li} vi^s iii^d.
over and above the Reprizes; whereof xvii^{li} iii^d per an. was reckoned to be yearly distributed in Almes to poor people, for the soul of Sir Peter de Montfort, one of their Benefactors, and xii^s for the soul of Sir Raph de Sudle Knight another; Roger VVigston Esq; being then high Steward thereof, having a Pension of xx^s per an.

And the next year ensuing followed the dissolution of it, with the rest of the small Houses, by Act of Parliament; whereupon Margerie VVigston, d
the then Prioress, obtained an annuity^d of iii^{li} ii^s per an. during her life; but the rest of her Covent nothing. After which, sc. in 36 H. 8. the King, c by his Letters Pat. bearing date 15 Oct. in consideration of 342^l 11^s 00. sold to *VWill. VVig-Budbroke.

Following this little stream I come next to Budbroke, which in the Conq. time was possessed by Raph de Limesi, a great man in those days (as in Itchington longa I have intimated) though he had no more land in Warwickshire than five hides in this place, whereunto belong'd a Mill, valued at ii^s. and woods of a mile in length, and three furlongs in breadth; as also seven Houses in Warwick, yielding vii^s Rent per an. all which were valued at viii^s. and were the inheritance of Edwine Earl of Mercia before the Norman invasion. In Domesday book it is written Budebroc, and tis like had its name originally from the mudiness of that petty stream, Bude in the Brittain signifying the same with immundus in Latine.

But the posterity of the said Raph de Limesi continued not long owners of it; for in 22 H. 1. I finde that Roger Earl of Warwick had it; which makes me presume, that lying so near to Warwick Henry de Newburgh, the first Earl of the Norman race (and father to Roger) obtained it. From which E. Roger was it past (as it seems) to Geffery de Clinton (Founder of Kenilworth Castle, and the Monastery there, as I have elsewhere shewed) for it appears that Geffrey de Clinton, son to the said Geffrey, upon his gift of the Church, here at Budbroke, to the Canons of Kenilworth, conditioned with them to pay a mark of silver yearly to the Collegiate Church of our Lady in Warwick, in performance of an Agreement made long before, betwixt the said Geffrey his father, and the Canons of that Church: and plain it is that the same Earl Roger, upon his foundation of that Collegiate Church, gave this of Budbroke thereunto, together with all the Tithes of the Town. To which G. de Clinton, (as by the Descent in Coltwill appeareth) succeeded Henry his son and heir; who in 2 Job. in consideration of xx. marks of silver, one Palfrey, and one Ring of Gold, granted two Knights fees here in Budbroke unto Hugh de Bardulf; which Hugh immediately past them away again to John de Curly, and his heirs, for xl. marks of silver.

But it seems that Rob. de Curli, Father to the said John and Will. had an estate in this Lordship by some grant from the said G. de Clinton, as when I come to speak of the Church may be discerned (being contemporary with G. de Clinton the second, and witness to one of his Charters,) of which Robert the last mention that I find is in 1 R. 1. And of John, his son, the first, that for adhering to the Kings enemies in 6 Job. he had all his lands seized upon. This was (as I guess) for deserting him in Normandy, whereupon ensued the totall loss of that Duchy: for in the Record of 33 H. 3. Budbroke is said to be de terra Normannorum: but these lands so seized, did Will. Curly, brother to the said John, obtain from the said King, for C. marks fine and one Palfrey.

Which Will. became eminently employed in his time. In 5 H. 3. he was constituted one of the Justices of Assize for determining the difference betwixt Philippa Marmion, widow of Robert Marmion, and Rob. Marmion son to the said Robert, touching her dowry in Tamworth and Spoleton; and from 6 till 11 H. 3. a Justice of Assize in this County. To the Monks of Bozelsley he gave two acres of land in Corlchestun; and left issue Will. his son and heir, one of the Justices of Assize also in this shire, for sundry years: and likewise in Commission for the Gaol delivery from 27 till 37 H. 3. Which Will. confirm'd to the Monks of Bozelsley all the land that had been granted to them of his fee, within his Lordship of Langley, his Seal of Armes being a Labell with 4. points standing in the place of a Bend sinister; and left issue two daughters, his heirs, Alice the wife of Peter de Nevill, and Ioan of Rob. de Haftang: From whom descended Theobald de Nevill, and John de Haftang, who were certified to hold 1 Knights Fee here of Will. de Odingsells in 23 E. 1.

But it seems that the inheritance, which belong'd to the two daughters above specified, came at length to be divided betwixt their heirs: for I find in 7 E. 2. and afterwards, that this Mannour of Budbroke became wholly possess'd by Haftang; and in E. 3. time was past away in Exchange, together with other lands; unto Thomas Beauchamp Earl de Warw. f. being thus possess^r of it, granted ^o the same to one 12. a. M^r John a Canon there, to hold during life; with o lb. f. 10. a caution that in acknowledgment of the mother Church (id est the Coll. Church above said) whereof it was a member, he should once every year within the quinzime of S. Michael distribute xv^s amongst the Communicants of this parish.

 But shortly after this, there growing some difference betwixt Rob. de Curly, Lord of the Mannour of Budbroc (as I have already intimated) and the before specified Canons, in the presence of certain persons delegated by the Bishop of Worcester, to be Judges thereof, the said Rob. rendred ⁿ up to them all his title and claim therein, acknowledging it to be only a Chapell belonging to that mother Church: By which recognition of his, it also appeareth ^q what Glebe and Tythes then apper-tained thereunto; viz. lx. acres of Inclosure of the said town, on one part of the feild, and as much on the other, together which the Priest's dwelling house, and Crofts antiently belonging to the Church: as also all the Tithe of Budbroc, aswell

 of the demesn as otherwise; and of Hampton, Posyton, and Crebecuo; together with the Tithe of the Mill and Pool: all which were belonging to the said Church from the time of Geffrey de Clin- ton, formerly mentioned, who is there stiled Ve- tus Camerarius, in regard that his son Geffrey was also Chamberlain after him.

By this Agreement doth it also appear, that the Vicar of Budbroc, and his successors should be presented to the said Church by the Canons of Warwick, yet not without the good liking and approbation of the before mentioned Rob. de Curly and his heirs: But for better confirmation of this Church to those Canons, did Will. de Curly quit ^r all his right to them therein in 12 H. 3. In ^s MS. in 1291 (19 E. 1.) being valued at xvi marks, the Cath. 12 portion out of it, belonging to the said Canons H. 3.
 was certified to be xv^s. But in 41 E. 3. the con- MS. in dition thereof stood thus; viz. ^t that it was a Pre- Scab.

 that the prebend did Present a Rector or Parson de Warw thereto; which Parson presented a Vicar, who 57. a.
 served the Cure, and had a competent portion assigned unto him by the Bishop, the value of what the Rector then had, being x^{li} per an. Howbeit, after this, viz. in an. 1398. 22 R. 2. there was a new u Ex Reg.
 Appropriation ^u made thereof to the said Canons of D. & Co
Warwick by Tidemans Bishop of Worcester, Wigorn. f

Hampton-Curli.

THIS taketh its name from the high situation thereof, bean, in our old Emglissh, signifying the same with altus in Latin: for originally those of this name were called and written Heantone, and afterwards by corrupnesse in pronunciation, Hantone, Hamtone, and Hanton; the addition of Curli thereto being to distinguish it from the severall other Hantons in this County, because the Curlies were antiently Lords thereof.

In the Conquerors Survey there is no mention of it, in regard it was involved with Budbroke, whereof it is still a member, and had a Chapell² in K. Stephens time belonging to that mother Church: which Chapell was built (without question) by Robert de Curli, of whom I have spoke in Budbroke; for it is manifest, that in his time, and by him partly, it became endowed² with glebe at the Dedication of the Church-yard; viz. three parts of one yard land inclosed, given by him; and two Acres a piece out of every yard land in the field, by each of his Tenants: whereunto did one Auschetell adde^b two acres, lying on one side of the Field, and two on the other; the Priest serving therein having, of ancient custome, out of the Town-woods House-bote, Hey-bote, and Fire-bote. And as this Hamlet was a member of Budbroke, so did the possession thereof continue to the Lords of that Mannour, being past away therewith, in exchange, to Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick in E. 3. time, from

John de Hastang (as in Budbroke appeareth) Neither hath it been ever since severed.

Norton-Curli, alias Norton inferior.

OF this place I have not found any mention till King Stephens time, and then is it named^c as a member of Budbroke, the family of Curli (antiently owners of it) giving occasion of that additionall distinction thereto: From whom it came to Hastang; and from Hastang to the Earl of Warwick in E. 3. time, as Budbroke did, where my authorities for proof thereof are cited. But after the 10. of H. 6. at which time it was (with Budbroke and Hampton-Curli) posselt^d by Ric. Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, I have not seen any more thereof as a Mannour.

Grove-Park.

THE first mention I find of this place, is in 29 E. 1. where Henry de Pinkeni granted^e to the King (inter alia) the homage and service of Will. de Curli, and his heirs, for one Knights Fee held of him here; in which Record it is called la Grobe, that is to say the Grobe; shewing, that it took its name originally from being a thick wood of high Trees, for in that sense we still use the word. By the same Record above cited 'tis also evident, that it was at first a member of Budbroke, and so dividing to Theob. de Nevill, son^f and heir to Peter (by Alice, one of the daughters and coheirs of Will. de Curli, as the Descent in Budbroke sheweth) in 12 E. 1. was by the said Theobald granted^g to Philip de Gayton and Scolastica his wife, for life, with remainder^h to Saier de Rochford, son and heir of Raph de Rochford. But, in the end, Thomas de Hastang, descended from Joan the other daughter and coheir to Will. de Curli (as the Descent in Lemington-Hastang manifesteth) obtained it by purchaseⁱ in 11 E. 3. from John Hakluyt and Alice his wife, in whom it seems the inheritance thereof was, the said Alice being the daughter and heir^k of Theobald de Nevill above specified.

What interest it was that Hugh le Despenfer, the elder, Earl of Winchester, had therein I know not, though it appears^l, that at the time of his death he was seized of it; whereupon the King granted out a Comm^mission to enquire: neither what was done therein can I find: but certain it is, that the family of Hastang for a time enjoy'dⁿ it, Saier de Rochford before specified, by his Deed^o bearing date at Westminster, the Munday next after the Feast of S. John Port Latine 28 E. 3. totally releasing unto Sir John Hastang Knight, all his title and right therein. Which Sir John Hastang, being the last principall male branch of that Family, left issue two daughters and heirs (as in Lemington-Hastang appeareth) by whom, I suppose, it was past away about the beginning of R. 2. time, to Thomas Beauchamp then Earl of Warwick: for the Lodge in the Park (which I take to be that which is now the Mannour-House) was built^p by him the said Earl in 17 R. 2. who dyed^q seized thereof in 2 H. 4. In the posterity of which Earl it continued till 3 H. 7. and then coming to the Crown, with all the rest of Warwick and Spenser's lands, as in my story of the Earls will appear, was by King Edward 6. in 1. of his reign, granted a-way together with the Cattle of Warwick, and sundry other lands in this County, unto John Dudley Earl of Warwick and his heirs: After whose attainer it return'd again to the Crown; and therein continued till Queen Elizabeth by her Letters Patents in 8. of her reign, disposed of it to Robert Dudley Earl of Leic. and his heirs. Which Earl in 23 Eliz. past it back to the said Queen.

Having now done with the Parish of Wobbesley, descending lower towards the bank of Avon, I come to a little Brook, which, rising betwixt Snitfeild and Wolverton, and passing by the skirts of Porton-Limesi, falleth into Avon near to Shireburne: Of these I shall therefore speak in their order.

Snitfeild.

This, perhaps, had its name originally from the old English word Snide, which signifies a cutting or incision, as probably here may have been, to divide the ground before there was any habitation at all. In the Conq. time it was posselt by the Earl of Wellest, and esteemed at four hides, there being then a Church, and the whole rated at Cs. In the generall Survey then taken, it is written Snitfeild, having been the freehold of one Saxi before the Norman invasion. That it came to Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick, brother to the same Earl of Wellest, with the rest of those lands in this Shire, which he then had, there can be no doubt: for in 23 H. 1. Roger Earl of Warwick, (son to the said Henry) being owner of it, gave to the Collegiate-Church at Warwick one hide of land lying here, with two parts of the Tithes of all the Inclosure; as also of the paunage of those woods, which belong'd to this Village. It seems that Hugh fil. Ricardi (of whom in Warwick I have spoke) being enfeoffed hereof by the same Earl Roger (for in King Stephens time he gave the Church to the Canons of S. Sepulchers in Warwick) granted this Mannour to Will. Cumin, who in H. 2. time wrote himself Dominus de Snitenesfeld; to whom succeeded Walter, his brothers son, as the Descent sheweth.

Which Walter gave to the Monks of Wobbesley certain lands lying here, adjoining to Songer before specified; as also in Stretton super Fosse; but his son Walter, being in rebellion against King John, forfeited his lands, which were seized on for that offence: howbeit in 1 H. 3. returning to obedience, he had restitution of them again. Of these Cumins was Will. the last male branch; who being dead in 18. Job. Margerie his widow (and an heir) then took to husband Will. de Hastings. Which Will. Cumin left issue a daughter and heir called Margerie, within age in 13 H. 3. and in Ward to Will. de Cantilupe, but afterwards married to John de Cantilupe a younger son to the said Will. who in 36. H. 3. was certified to hold one Knights fee, here in Snitfeild of Thomas de Clinton, the said Thomas holding it over of the Earl of Warwick. This John, having his seat here, obtained to himself and his heirs, of King H. 3. a Charter bearing date at Worcester 24. Sept. 41

H. 3. for a weekly Mercate at this place upon the Wednesday; and a Faire once every year, to hold for three days; viz. the Even, day, and morrow of S. Kenelm. After which, Margerie, wife to the said John, surviving her husband, did in her widowhood release to the Monks of Wobbesley the suit, which by their Attornies they had used to make to his Court at Snitfeild, for the lands they held within that fee.

To the said John de Cantilupe and Margerie succeeded another John, who in 25 E. 1. received summons, with divers other great men, to attend Edward the Kings eldest son, then Lieutenant to the King for defence of the Realm, at Petewcastle upon Tine upon S. Nicholas day, to march against the Scots; and the next year following was in that memorable battail of Falwick; as also in 1 E. 2. assigned one of the Commissioners for conservation of the peace in this County; and for causing the Articles in the Statute of Winchester to be observed: so also in 3. 7. and 9 E. 2. In 5, 6, 7. 10. and 11 R. 2. he was one of the Justices for the Gaol delivery at Warwick. In 9 E. 2. being a Knight he bore for his Armes 3. Leopards heads jeffant flower de Lis, Or. To whom succeeded John his son and heir, called John de Cantilupe junior; who in 12 E. 2. was also a Knight, but after that year I find nothing of him, and therefore do conclude, that he dyed shortly after, his father being then alive; For in 17 E. 2. the said Sir John de Cantilupe, the elder, entailed this Mannour upon Thomas West, and Alanora his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies; paying to him the said Sir John and Maud then his wife xl li. sterling, yearly, during their lives; with remainder, for want of issue by the said Thomas and Alanora, to the right heirs of the said Sir John, which Alanora nore was daughter and heir to the said, Sir John de Cantilupe.

It seems that Sir John de Cantilupe dyed that very year; for before the end thereof it appears, that the same Thomas and Alianore obtained a Charter^x, bearing date at Westminster 7. Maii, for the change of the Wednesday Mercate, weekly here, unto Tuesday, and enlarging the Feire unto eight dayes, beginning on the even of S. Kenelm as above said; and granting^y also unto the said Thomas and Alianore, and the heirs of their two bodyes, Free-warren in all their demesne lands here: which Thomas was^z one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament held at Westminster the same year. To these Thomas and Alianore succeeded Thomas their son^a and heir, who was a Knight, and past^b away this Mannour, about the beginning of R. 2. time, to Sir William Beauchamp Kt. and his heirs, in exchange for the Mannours of Pelwenton-Tony, and Stretoford-Tony in Wilt-shire, but reserving an yearly Rent of x li. per annum out of it, to himself and his heirs.

Which Sir William being he that was Lord Bergavenny (and brother to Thom. Earl of Warwick) dyed^c seized thereof in 12 H. 4. leaving Richard his son and heir 14. years of age: But some entail there was, or other settlement hereof in remainder, after the death of Joane, wife to the same Lord Bergavenny, upon Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick and his heirs; for it appears^d that she held it during her life; and the said Earl Richard afterwards: By which means it came at length to the Crown, through the attainder of Edward Plantagenet Earl of Warwick in H. 7. time; and was (inter alia) granted^e out, to Richard Morison Esquire, and his heirs 29. Aug. 37 H. 8. who sold it^f the next year following to John Hales (of whom in Cobentre I have spoke) which John, being a wealthy man, through a beneficiall^g Office that he had, whereby he acquired a great estate, especially in Monastery lands, and living unmarried inricht his kintred much (as elsewhere I have in some sort shewed) disposing of this Lordship to Bartholomew his third brother, who dyed^h seized thereof 15. Febr. 41 Eliz. leaving Bartholomew his son and heir thirty years of age: which last mentioned Bartholomew being afterwards made a Knight by King James, and having no issue, did, in consideration of 1500 li. payd in hand, and 500. marks at his death, where he should appoint, settle it upon Stephen Hales of Pewoland Esquire (his neer kintman) and his heirs; whose grandchild, scil. Stephen, now enjoys it.

The Church (dedicated to S. James) was given toⁱ the Canons of S. Sepulchers in Warwick by Hugo fil. Ricardi, about King Stephens time, as I have already intimated: But in 20 H. 2. there growing a Controversie betwixt the said Canons and William Cumin, then Rector thereof, the same was determined^j by Roger Bishop of Worcester, and Adam Abbot of Cobham, as Delegates from Pope Alexander the third, in this manner; viz. that the said William should yearly pay to those Canons, in the name of this Church, one mark of silver yearly within the Oktaves of S. Michael; and when it should become void, that Walter Cumin, the Patron, and his heirs might present thereunto; but, that the Parson presented, before he did receive institution, should give security to the said Canons, by his corporall Oath, to make just payment of that sum, yearly, unto them.

In anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) this Church was valued^k at xx. marks, the Canons of Warwick receiving one mark, as a Portion, out of the same: but about 17 E. 2. Walter Stapleton Bishop of Exeter obtained^l the perpetuall Patronage of it, from Walter de Cantilupe; and made an exchange^m thereof, unto the Canons of Warwick before specified, for certain messuages and lands, lying without Temple-barr in the Parish of S. Clement Danes, within the suburbs of London, together with the advowson of the said Church of S. Clement: at which time the said Canons had the Kings license forⁿ appropriating thereof to their own use, it being accordingly effected by^o Thomas Cobham Bishop of Worcester, 3. Id. Junii 1325. (18 E. 2.) and the Vicaridge ordained^p by Adam de Orleton, his successor, 14. Jan. 1330. 4 E. 3. which Vicaridge was in 26 H. 8. valued^q at x li.

impression of the Seal, which hath been esteemed by skilfull Antiquaries for a badge only used by those who had made a journey to the Holy Land. To the said Walter succeeded Peter, who being a Knight ² in 7 E. 1. as also one ^a of the Justices for Gaol-delivery at Warwick, was in 33 E. 1. one of^b the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament then held at Westminster, which Peter had^c issue John, William, and Peter; as also Thomas, Parson of Lobenhams in Leicester-shire, and Founder ^d of the Chantry at Stretton super Dunsmoze in this County. But all these dying without issue male, Elizabeth daughter to the last Peter became his heir, and was first^e the wife of John Erme, but afterwards of^f Eustace de Folwill.

By which John Brome she had issue William, upon whom this Lordship was entailed ^e in 10 E. 3. who, being within age at the death of his father, became Ward ^h for the same to Sir Thomas West Kt. (by right of descent from Alianore his mother, daughter and heir to Sir John de Cantilupe of Snitfeld; Corbicon's Fees being settled on the Ancestor of that Sir John de Cantilupe, as in Stodley I shall shew.) which Sir Thomas West, in consideration of C.s. and at the solicitation of some friends of the said William, first quitted ⁱ his said custody; and afterwards, upon the request of William Breton, released ^k also his right to the said summe. But how this Mannour past from Brome I yet know not: howbeit, long it was not afterwards ere that the said William Breton become owner thereof, as by his severall feoffments ^l made in 35, and 43 E. 3. appeareth; in the later whereof he stiles himself a Knight. But the next that posselt it, though I have not seen how, was John Boteler; who in 8 H. 4. wrote ^m himself Dominus de Wolbardon: which John sold it (as I suppose) to the Earl of Warwick, or to certain feoffees for his use: for in 10 H. 6. Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick was certified ⁿ to be owner thereof: from whom it descended to Anne his daughter, as heir to Henry D. of Warwick her brother of the whole blood, wife to Richard Nevill Earl of Salisbury, and in her right of Warwick (as in my story of the Earls appeareth.) Which Richard and Anne in 8 E. 4. according to the appointment of the before specified E. Richard, express by his last Will and Testament, caused assurance ^o to be made thereof (inter alia) to the Dean and Canons of the Collegiate Church in Warwick and their successors. After the dissolution whereof in 37 H. 8. it was past ^p out of the Crown, 13. Julii the same year, unto Clement Throkemorton Esquier, and Alexander Avenon, and their heirs: which Clement dyed seized of it 13. Dec. 16 Eliz. leaving Job his son and heir 28. years of age; who sold it, soon after, to William Baylies, and Thomas Staunton Gent. for within two years after I find that they kept ^q a Court-Baron here, as Lords thereof, the grandchild of which Thomas now enjoys it.

The Church (dedicated to the blessed Virgin) being in anno 1291 (19 E. 1.) valued^r at x. marks, was reedified, it seems, in E. 2. time; for it appears^r, that Walter de Maydeneston Bishop of Worcester dedicated it, with the high Altar xi. Cal. Julii 9 E. 2. But in 26 H. 8. I find it^r rated at viii li. the Synodalls and Procurations then issuing out of it being ix s. v d. ob.

Shirburne.

N^{ear} to the conjunction of this torrent with ~~Abon~~, stands ~~Shireburne~~, which had its name originally from the said brook, Scipeburne, in our old English signifying a clear running stream; for so is this. In the Conquerors Survey this "Village (written ~~Scireburne~~) was certified to contain two hides and a half, then valued at L. s. and posselt by the Earl of ~~Deilant~~, having been, before the Norman Invasion, the freehold of ~~Edricus~~ and ~~Levegot~~: From which Earl it came to Henry de Newburgh Earl of ~~Warwick~~, with other lands in this County of a great extent; whose son, Earl Roger, gave ^u half a hide and two parts of the Tithes of the Inclosure, here, unto his Collegiate Church at ~~Warwick~~, upon the Foundation thereof in 23 H. 1. But the residue of this Lordship, with the Mill, did he bestow ^x upon the Knights ~~Templars~~; which part, by the Survey ^y taken in 31 H. 2. was valued at iii li. viii s. v d. the Tenants at that time thereof, being by custome to mow three days, and reap three, for their Landlords, having their dyet given them: as also to mow their Meadow here, and to make the Hay at their own charge; and upon ~~Christmasse~~ Eve to pay ii d. for every yard land, or four Hens, at their choice.

Which ~~Templars~~ in 32 H. 3. had a Charter ^z of ~~Free-warren~~ granted to them in all their demesne lands here. But after this, upon the suppression and expulsion of the ~~Templars~~, Guy de Beauchamp Earl of ~~Warwick~~ seized ^a upon this Mannour as an Eschaet: howbeit, as all the rest of their lands came to the ~~Hospitallars~~ (as in ~~Walsall~~ shall be shewed) so did this; and by that means, at the generall dissolution by King H. 8. divolved to the Crown; wherein it continued till King Edward 6. 22. Apr. in the seventh of his reign, past ^b it away to Thomas Lucy of ~~Cherleote~~ Etquier, and his heirs, whose posterity do enjoy it at this day.

The Church (dedicated to ~~All Saints~~) being antiently appropriated to ^c the said Knights ~~Templars~~, yielded ^d vi s. viii d. yearly to the Canons of the Collegiate Church in ~~Warwick~~; and in 14 E. 3. was valued ^e at 5 li. but in 26 H. 8. there is no mention of it.

Fulbroke.

Following the stream of Abon I come next to Fulbroke, which perhaps had its name from the depth of the River there. In the Conquerors time, being posselt^d by the Earl of Mellent, it contained two hides, having then a Mill rated at xii s. but the whole was valued at lx s. and held by one Alfred, a woman, in Edward the Confessors days. But as Shirburne (last spoke of) with divers other lands that the said Earl of Mellent had in this Shire, came to Henry de Newburgh, his brother, so did this of Fulbroke, as it seems; for in 23 H. 1. Roger Earl of Warwick, son to the said Henry, gave^d to his Collegiate Church at Warwick, then newly founded, half a hide of land, and two parts of the Tithes of his demesne here; as also two parts of the Tithes of the Mill: and entfeost Geffrey de Turvill or his father thereof; for in 12 H. 2. Earl William his son certified^d that the said Geffrey held of him one Knights Fee de veteri feoffamento: and in 10 R. 1. I find^d, that William de Turvill posselt it. After which time till 20 H. 3. I have not met with any more mention of this place; and then it appears^d that Simon de Turvill, and Roger de Craft answered for half a Knights Fee here, and in Moderate; which half Knights Fee in 26 H. 3. was held^d by Roger de Craft and John Mice, and in 52 H. 3. by Henry Hubbard.

How it comes to passe I cannot yet discover, but plain it is, that this Mannour, about the beginning of Edw. 1. time, was the inheritance of Isabell, wife to William Gernun; which William and Isabell in 11 E. 1. sold^d it to William de Hynkelee and Alice his wife, and the heirs of the said William de Hynkelee; reserving to themselves and their heirs two Messuages one Mill, x s. rent, and two yard land; as also an annuity of six marks of silver yearly, to be payd at the Feast of S. Michael the Arch-Angell, together with the service of one Kts. Fee: which said service of one Knights Fee and Rent of six marks, with the homage and service due from Nicholas de Vvarwick and Joan his wife for the lands that he held in this Lordship, the said VWilliam Gernun and Isabell granted^d to VWilliam de Sutton in 21 E. 1. And the next year following did the same Nicholas de Warwick & Joan his wife obtain^d the whole Mannour of Alice the widow of VWilliam de Hynkelee before specified, in exchange for the Mannour of Stoke in Leicester-shire; whereof being so posselt, in 34 E. 1. he purchased^d of the King a Court-Leet here, to himself and his heirs; as also Assize of Bread and Beer, Infangthef, Gallows, and Weyfs, with other privileges; for all which he was to pay^d a certain Rent into the Exchequer, yearly, by the hands of the Shirriff for the time being.

Of this Nicholas his parentage I am not very certain, though I find his name in these parts in the times of H. 2. King John, and H. 3. but of himself tis apparent, that he was a man learned in the Laws, and wth Atturney generall to the King. In 5 E. 1. he attended VWilliam de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick in his Welch expedition. In 24 E. 1. he was^d one of the Commissioners assigned to enquire after certain malefactors that had trespassed in the Earl of Warwick's Park at Studley. (in this Shire) the said Earl being then in Scotland. In 32 E. 1. one of the Justices of Assize and Gaol-delivery; so also in 1. and 3. E. 2. and had issue two sons, viz. Nicholas and VWill. which Nicholas was he that wedded Elizabeth the daughter and heir of Richard de Loges of Chester-ton; of whom I find nothing farther memorable than what I have observed in Chester-ton, except his going^d into Wales, with divers other perions of quality in the Kings service in 15 E. 2. and that in 17 E. 2. he is in the list^d of those Esquiers and men at Armes in this County, whose names were then return'd into the Chancery. But VWilliam de Vvarwick (his other son) who bore^d for his Armes Sable 6. guttes Or, had this Lordship, though he kept it but a while; for in 18 E. 2. it appears^d, that John de Hastings Lord Bergavenny died seized of it, leaving Laurence his son and heir 5. years of age. After which (scil. the next ensuing year) it was, inter alia, assigned^d to Julian, then wife of Thomas le Blount, as part of her dowrie, by the death of the said John de Hastings her former husband, being then valued at xix li. xvii s. ii d. ob. and in like sort was enjoyed^d by VWilliam de Clinton Earl of Huntingdon, her third husband, who held it of the King in Capite by the payment^d of vi s. ii d. per annum for all services: the last of which family (viz. of Hastings) that enjoy'd it, was John de Hastings, son and heir to John Earl of Pembroke, who dyed seized^d thereof in 13 R. 2. without issue, leaving

Reginald Lord Grey of Ruthin his coſin and next heir, as the deſcent in ſhillongley ſheweth.

But by the entail of Haſting's lands (whereof in ſhillongley I have alſo ſpoke) it came to William Beauchamp Lord Bergavenny (a younger brother to the Earl of Warwick;) for I find that Joan his Lady built a ſumptuous Gatehouſe here, Hospitium nobilis Domini ſatis habile, ut Duci, ſuo adventu complaceret, ſaith Rous ^k: as alſo a Lodge called by the name of Bergavenny, which ſtood undemoliſhed about the later end of King H. 8. time, the ſaid Gate-houſe being ruin'd long before. The next poſſeſſor of it, that I find, was John Duke of Bedford (third ſon to King H. 4.) though how he obtained it I have not yet ſeen; who in 10 H. 6. held it by the fourth part of a Knights Fee. This Duke firſt made the Park, and built that little Caſtle of brick and ſtone, within the compaſſe of it, which was ſuch an eye-ſore to the Earls of Warwick, as Leland ^o affirmeth; and dyed ^p ſeized thereof in 14 H. 6. leaving King H. 6. (his nephew) his coſin and next heir, who in 28. of his reign granted the cuſtody thereof to John Talbot Lord Liſle, to hold during life, and to make uſe of the buildings therein for his own proper habitation at all times, except when himſelf ſhould be there.

Being thus in the Crown, I find that K.E. 4. in 2. of his reign, gave it unto Richard Nevill Earl of Warwick, and his heirs; after whoſe death, at Barnet-field, the Park was granted to George D. of Clarence, to hold during life; who ſhortly after obtained an eſtate in tail thereof to himſelf and the heirs male of his body: upon the attainder of which Duke in 18 E. 4. it was certified ^w, that the before ſpecified Caſtle of brick was ruinous; ſo likewiſe the Gate-houſe of ſtone, and the Lodge; as alſo a Chapell, which in times paſt had been a Pariſh-Church. After this, viz. in 2 H. 8. the cuſtody of the Park was granted to Thomas Lucy, then one of the Sewers to the King, to hold during pleaſure: But in 1 E. 6. John Dudley Earl of Warwick obtained the inheritance of it (together with the Caſtle of Warwick and divers other great Lordſhips) upon whoſe attainder, which hapned in 1 Maria. as I have elſewhere ſhewed, the Qu. ^z paſſed it unto Sir Francis Englefield Knight, to hold in Capite: Since which it is come to the Lucies of Cherle-cote by purchaſe, the laſt Sir Thomas having renewed the Park, and, by the addition of Hampton woods thereto, enlarged it much.

Touching the Depopulation here, I find, that it hath been very antient; for in 6 H. 6. there were but 4 Inhabitants: nay, very ſhortly after, our Countreyman Rous makes this complaint ^b, Apud ſulbroke (ſaith he) quondam erat Rectoria, Eccleſia deſtruiſur Villanis effugatis ſolum Manerium remanet, & reſiduum imparcatur (he means incloſed) per Johannem D. Bedfordiæ, fratrem Regis Henrici quinti, qui ibi edificavit turrim nobilem Caſtro aequipollentem, ſed modo quaſi nihil eſt: And a little further he goes on thus, — & per talem imparcationem via, olim ſecura, modo per ſepes & palos obtenebrata, fit latibulum latronum, carcer fidelium, locus multiformis ſupplicii, &c. Which Caſtle (being ruinous, as I have ſaid) was pulled down, in the beginning of H. 8. time, by Sir Will. Compton Knight, who had then the cuſtody of the Park; and the materials thereof carried to build his Houſe at Compton-towpate.

The Church in 14 E. 3. was valued at 1x. marks; but in 26 H. 8. no notice is taken of it, having been demolish'd before that time.

Hampton super Avon.

A Little lower, upon an aſcending ground, ſtands Hampton, heretofore called Biſhops-Hampton for the reaſons I ſhall forthwith ſhew, but of later times Hampton super Avon; which, being given to the Biſhoprick of Worceſter in the Saxons time, was then involved with Stratford super Avon, and by the Conquerors Survey certified to contain xii. hides, there being then a Church, as alſo a Mill rated at vi s. viii d. and Woods of a mile in length, and as much in breadth: all which, together with three Houſes in Warwick (as part thereof) were at that time valued at xx li.

Continuing to the ſaid Biſhops, it was in 33 H. 3. found to be one of the towns belonging to their Barony; and in 39 H. 3. Walt. de Cantilupe (the then Biſhop) obtained a Charter of Free-warren for himſelf and his ſucceſſors in all his demefn lands thereof. After which, viz. in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) the value of it, is thus ſet forth; ſcil. in Rent of Aſſize vi li. Three carucates of land at xx s. a carucate. One Dovecote at vi s. one Mill at xx s. The Pleas and perquiſits xx s. and the profits of the ſtore xx s. But in 3 E. 6. (for ſo long it continued to the ſucceeding Biſhops) did John Dudley Earl of Warwick obtain it (inter alia) in exchange, from Nich. Heath Biſhop of Worceſter, for certain lands in Worceſter-ſhire; and the ſame year parted with it again to the King for a more advantageous bargain of lands, lying in Oxford-ſhire, and elſewhere: but, having a deſign to repoſſeſſe it once more, he accompliſh'd his purpoſe the next year following, lowing, in exchange for lands lying in Northumberland, and other places : howbeit, his attainder shortly after ensuing, Queen Mary, in 3. & 4. of her reign, granted^m the inheritance thereof, together with the advowson of the Rectory unto Thomas Lucy of Cherlecoate esquire, whose posterity do enjoy it at this day.

The Church (dedicated to S. Peter ad Vincula) was in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) valuedⁿ at xlv. marks, there being then a Portion of xx s., to the Monks of Cobentre issuing out of it : But in 26 H. 8. I find it ratedⁿ at lv li. xiii s. iv d. vi s. viii d. being then allowed for Synodalls and Procurations, and iv li. for a Pension to the Vicar of Walsperton.

Hatton super Avon.

This had its name originally from the Heath near which it stood, and being a member of Hampton past with it to John Dudley Earl of Warwick, and since that to the Lucies of Cherlecoate, as the Records which I have cited in Hampton will manifest; but it hath been anciently depopulated, as our Countreyman Rous intimates^p.

Hunscote.

This is also in the Parish of Hampton super Avon, but long^a since depopulated. The first mention I find of it is in 8. Joh. where it appears, that William de Ludinton impleaded Walter fitz Raph for half a hide of land lying therein; who very shortly after past away all his interest here unto Thomas de Erdinton (of whom in Crofton I have spoke) which Thomas dyed seized thereof in 2 H. 3. whereupon it was committed to the custody of William Marshall Earl of Pembroke. From this T. de Erdinton it descended to Henry his great grandchild; who in 7 E. 1. was certifiedⁿ to be joint Lord thereof with one William de Bladintone, holding it of Margery de Cantelupe (of whom in Aven-Druet, I have made mention) by the third part of a Knights Fee, the said Margery holding it over of Theobald de Verdon, and he of the Earl of Warwick. It was also then found that the said Henry held at that time one carucate of land here of Will. de Stafford, and he of the said Margery, &c.

Which Henry in 23 E. 3. did his homage^w to the said W. de Stafford (then of Wromshull in Com. Staff.) for the lands lying here, so held of him as hath been said; viz. 1. mess. and 4. yard land in demesne, and two yard land in Villenage; acknowledging that he held them of him by the xiith part of a Knights Fee, and declaring it to be a member of Amulcote in Staffordshire, having been so granted to his Ancestour, Thomas, by the before specified Walt. fil. Radulfi, as above is expressed. All which continued in the family of Erdington for divers ages, as by severall^x authorities is manifest: but this was not the whole Mannour: for in 10 H. 6. it appeareth^y that Thomas Erdington Esquier had but a part thereof, and one Thomas Muston the residue, who in that Record is stiled Dominus de Huntescote: Both which parts, about King E. 4. time (as I guesse) were purchased by Sir William Lucy of Cherlecoate Knight,

2 Es. 8 H. for I find that he dyed ² seized thereof in 7 H. 7. leaving Edmund his son and heir; whose posterity doe still enjoy it.

2 Regist. Wigorn. in bibl. Cotton. f. 136. THis, lying on the other side the River, pertained to the Church of Worcester long before the Norman Conquest: for I find ^a that Bishop Oswold granted unto Eadric, his God-father, three mess. lying in this place, to hold for his own life, and to two such others as he should assign them unto; but after that to return unto the said Church of Worcester. In that grant, bearing date in the year DCCCLXVI. it is written Canalstune, which shews that the name originally sprung from some ancient possessor thereof, Eanulfus having been an appellation very frequent in those elder times: but after this it was injuriously taken and withheld from the Bishops by certain great men, for the space of many years, untill that S. Wulfstan (the venerable Bishop of that See) purchased it for a large summe of money of King William the Conquerour, and gave it to the Monks of that place in the third year of King William Rufus, as by his grant appeareth; which, for the solemnity of it, I have here inserted.

On the wall of the Church is this Monumentall Inscription.

Here lyeth buried the body of Nicholas Lane gent. who deceased the xxvi. day of July An. D. 1595.

Tidington.

This was also belonging to the Church of Worcester, in the Saxons time, and involved with Alveston (as I guesse:) for in the year 985. did Bishop Oswold, by the consent of King Ethelred, and Elfric Earl of Merca passe^p a Lease thereof to Eadric his servant for three lives, it then consisting of five dwellings: but in the Conquerors Survey there is no mention, in particular, of it: neither have I afterwards seen any thing thereof till 8 E. 3. that upon the taxation^q of a Fifteenth and Tenth it was certified to bear somewhat a greater proportion than Alveston; yet was it not a distinct Mannour of itself, but a member of that, and so past^r from the Crown in 33 H. 8. to the Dean and Chapter of Worcester before specified; and is at this day reputed parcell thereof.

Bridg-town.

This place hath its name by reason of the situation thereof so neer to Stratford-bridg: but the chiefest thing memorable in it is^f, that there hath been an Heremitage, whereunto the Chapell of S. Mary Magdalen in this village belonged; which Heremitage was antiently endowed^t with lands by some of the Powers of Ryen-Clifford, for reparation of the before specified Bridg: all which were confirmed^u thereunto by Thomas Power Esquier in 22 H. 6. who constituted^w one John Rawlyns to be Heremite there during his life, appointing, that he should yearly celebrate an Obit in the Parish-Church of Stratford before mentioned, upon the Eve of Corpus Christi, for the souls of the Parents and Ancestors of him the said Thomas Power. The donation of which Heremitage, upon the grant of Ryen-Clifford from Christopher Power to William Clopton in 5 H. 8. is therewith^x past to him the said William and his heirs; since when (and not before that ever I could see) this place hath been reputed a Mannour, the said William Clopton being certified^y to dye seized thereof 4. Jan. 1 Eliz. From whom is descended Thomas Clopton of Clopton, that hath the like right therein at this day: but the site of the Heremitage was in 3. & 4. Ph. & M. granted^z to the Hospitall of Savoy, in the Suburbs of London.

Loxley.

This place was given^a by Offa King of the Mercians unto the Church of Worcester about CCC. years before the Norman Conquest, and continued thereto till the time of King Canutus the Dane: but then the whole Realm being burthened with grievous taxes, and a Constitution made, that if any place did fail in payment by the space of 3. days of what was so exacted, he that should depofite the money to the Shiriff might presently possesse himself thereof; this, with divers other lands (whereof Ludington Dratton, and Wilcote in this County were part) was by that crafty advantage most injuriously taken from it; Sed Deus hanc sui rapinam absq; ultione non dimisit (saith the^b Monk of Worcester) nam unusquisq; eorum, qui huic fraudi operam dederunt, digna ultione percussi, aut luminibus privati, aut paralyfi dissoluti, aut in insaniam versi sunt; plurimi etiam semetipsos interfecerunt.

But at the Norman invasion one Eatstannus had the greatest part of it, as his freehold; which by the

the Conq. was disposed of (inter alia) to the E. of Spellent, as may appear by the generall Survey shortly after made, where it is written Locheslei, & certified to contain 4. hides, all which excepting one virgate held by Hugo fil. Constantii of Hugh de Grentemaisnill, and valued at v s. were rated at iv li. xv s. there being then a Church. Another hide, by the same Survey, may seem to have been here, though it be in that place written Lochelham, which was then in the Bishop of Worcester's hands, and rated at xxv s. But that which the Earl of Spellent had, came to his brother Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick, as it seems, with the rest of those lands in this County, which the same Henry and his posterity enjoy'd: for by what I shall shew anon, it will appear to have been of their Fee.

Whether Robert fil. Odonis, who lived in H. 2. time, was the first that had it by the Earl of Warwick's grant, or whether it were his father I am not sure; but that the said Robert posselt it, and made it the place of his residence, is out of doubt; for in his grant ^d to the Canons of Kenilworth, of Cxx. acres of his demesn lands here, with a messuage roft and croft, and ii s. Rent, which for xii. marks of silver he sold to them, he writes himself Robertus fil. Odonis de Lochesleia. And besides this so sold by him, he gave unto them, for the health of his fathers soul, whose body lay buried in that Monastery; and for the good estate of himself and his posterity, pasture for x. Oxen and C. Sheep in his demesn lands here. Which Robert left issue onely 3. daughters his heirs, whose matches and descendants I have here inserted.

Of Peter de Mora great grandchild to Rob. fil. Odonis, I find that he was a liberall Benefactor to the Canons of Kenilworth, for it appears ^q, that about 38 H. 3. he gave them the Mannour-house here at Lorley, and all his possessions belonging thereto, besides his lands at Westcote and Boxton-Bagot, with the advouson of that Church, Will. Mansell being then high Shiriff of this County, and a witnesse thereto; which was confirmed ^r to them by Will. Maucluit Earl of Warwick in 47 H. 3. And that the Canons of Kenilworth had here, in ^r 19 E. 1. one carucate of land, valued at xvi s. in Rent of Assise viii s. and one Mill rated at iv s. at which time the Monks of Worcester had xviii s. Rent of Assise in this Lordship. But it seems that the Ancestour of John de Waston (Lord of Walton D'eivile) was enfeoffed by the Canons of Kenilworth in the greatest part of this Lordship; for it appears that the said John held the same of them by Knights service: and in ^u 20 E. 3. Baldw. Frevill and William Trussell answered for half a Knights Fee in this place. Which Canons having a great share here, in 25 E. 3. purchased ^v of John the son of John de Peyto xiv. messuages more, with two carucates, five yard land, three acres of meadow, and x s. ob. Rent in this place. All which, together with the rest whereof they were posselt before, coming to the Crown upon the dissolution of that Monastery, was 28 Martii 33 H. 8. granted ^x to Thom. Cawarden Esq. and Elizabeth his wife, and the heirs of the body of the said Thomas; and afterwards coming to Lodowyk Grevill Esquier, and Francis Gyll Yeoman, was by them sold ^y to Edward Nevill Esquier, but continued not long with him: for in 12 Eliz. William Underhill dyed ^z seized of it, leaving William his son and heir aged xiv. years and six months.

The Church, being given to the Monastery of Stone in Staffordshire (which was a Cell to the Priory of Kenilworth) by Rob. fil. Odonis before specified; and confirmed ^a thereto by Baklia de Mora in 1 Joh. was in Edward 1. time rebuilt, and newly consecrated ^b upon the Sunday next after the Feast of S. Thomas the Martyr an. 1286. 14 E. 1. by Godfrey Giffard Bishop of Worcester, who then preacht therein upon this Text, Sanctificate domum hanc quam edificasti. In anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was valued ^c at x. marks, and the Vicaridge in ^d 26 H. 8. at 5 li. 6 s. 8 d. out of which was then allowed xii d. for Synodalls.

Stratford super Avon.

THIS place was above CCC. years before the Norman Conquest belonging to the Bishoprick of Worcester, and given thereto by Ethelardus a Viceroy in Worcester-shire, as is evident from the words of S. Egwine's Charter (the third Bishop of that See, and Founder of Evesham Abby) which I will here recite, Cum maxime florerem in diebus Ethelredi Regis Merciorum, capi eum benigne precari, ut mihi concedere dignaretur antiquum canobium, quod Flaundenburgh nuncupatur; quod sibi evenit ex hereditate sua uxoris, qua fuit Ostruthis vocata: Satis ille libenti animo quod poseebam concessit. Hoc canobium postea dedi Ethelardo sub regulo, qui erat, Rex illius Provinciae quae Witce dicitur, pro alio canobio quod Streathforde nominatur.

About an hundred years after it came thus to the Bishoprick of Worcester, Berhtuulf King of Mercia granted divers privileges thereto, the substance of whole Charter in respect of its great antiquity, and rarity I have here inserted. In nomine Domini (&c.) ego Berhtuulf, gratia divini largiente, Rex Merciorum, de remedio animae meae praecogitans, diem tremendum districti examinis ante oculos cordis mei componens; cogitans; quod aliquid de istius mundi regni perceptione promerit ipso in perpetuum elemosynam, ac libertatem Ecclesiasticam Deo vivo in aeternum erogarem; ideo, cum consensu & licentia Episcoporum & Principum meorum, & omnium seniorum gentis nostrae, donabo Heaberto meo venerabili Episcopo, huius libertatis privilegium, & eius familiae in Weger-nacestre, illius Monasterii bt Catne, quod appellatur Alstra Stretford, cuius quantitas est .xx. manentium, eo quod placabile pecunia acceptus fui, id est x. lib. argenti; ea conditione, ut libera permaneat in sempiternum soluta & liberata sit ab omni iugo humanae servitutis, ab omnibus secularibus tributis & vectigalibus, cum cunctis utilitatibus ad illam Ecclesiam recte pertinentibus, scil. campis vel silviunculis, pascuis vel pratis, fluminibus vel piscationibus, ab opere regali & pasture regis, & principis vel juniorum eorum, ab hospitum refectioe, vel venatorum etiam, eorumque Regis, falconum & aucuporum, & puerorum qui ducunt canes: Quid plura? ab omni tribulatione noti & ignoti, magni & modici libera ceteris. Istas in eum, quamdiu fides Christiana prebuerit apud Anglos in Britannia in se permaneat (&c.) esta est autem hac donatio Anno Domini incarn. D. CCXLV. Indict. VIII. in loco regali qui dicitur Tomeuorthig in Nativitate Domini (&c.)

It was thought (as Leland^f saith) that the Monastery, here mentioned, stood where the Church is now situate. By the Conquerors Survey it appeareth that Stratford was rated at xiv. hides and a half, and then posselt by S. Wolstan Bishop of that Dioces, there being at that time a Church; as also a Mill yielding x s. per annum and a thousand Eeles; but the value of the whole extended to xxv li. In that Record it is written Stradforde, the name having been originally occasioned from the forde or passage over the water, upon the great street or road leading from Henley in Arden towards London.

The next mention I find of this ancient Manour, is in that Register, belonging to the Bishop of Worcester, called his Domesday-book, composed about H. 2. time, where it is said to contain xv. hides and one yard land; whereof Frethricus de Bishopesdane held three hides, Stephen (le Poler) in Clifford two hides and a half; the Monk, (id est of Worcester) one virgate: Frethricus de one hide; Adam de Scetrive one hide and a half, &c.

That it was the possession of those Bishops for some hundreds of years in the Saxons time, may appear by what I have already said; And that it continued to their successors for many ages after the Norman invasion, I shall proceed to make manifest; not neglecting to take notice what advantages have accrued thereunto, either by their procurement from the Kings of this Realm, or were vouchsafed to it by their own speciall favours; whereof the weekly Mercate upon the Thursday is not the least; which, as it hath precedency in time, so doth it deserve the first mention; for it was granted^h by King Richard the first unto John de Constantis Bishop of Worcester 25. Jan. in the seventh year of his reign. Which Bishop immediately thereupon, by his own Deedⁱ reciting the said Charter of King Richard bestowed on his Burgesses of Stratford (for by that name he calls them) the inheritance of their Burgages, paying yearly for each of them to himself and his successors xii d. for all services at four times in the year; viz. at the Feast of S. Michael iii d. the Nativity of our Lord iii d. at Easter iii d. and at the Feast of the Nativity of S. John Baptist iii d. to every of which Burgages he thereby allowed three perches and a half in breadth, and twelve perches in length; and that they should be free of Toll, for ever, according to the custome of Wytholl; excommunicating all persons that should presume to make violation of those their privileges. All which, Margerius the next Bishop confirmed^k. Next unto whom succeeded Walter Grey, who, towards the later end of King John's reign, obtained a grantⁱ for an yearly Faire here, beginning on the Even of the holy Trinity, and to continue for the two next days ensuing; which Charter bears date 29 Oct. 16. Joh.

Touching the originall occasion of which meetings called Faires, let us hear what the learned Speiman^m hath observed—Cum autem Christiani ad insignes aliquas celebritates, praesertim encenia & dedicationes Ecclesiarum Festa annua peragenda convenirent: adesse utiq; Mercatores solebant, sua mercionia sub ipsis Ecclesiis atq; in caemiteriis distrasuri. And a little below he thus goes on.—Pariter vero convenisse ium ad merces vendendas tum ad emendas Mercatores quam plurimos; atq; ita Festum cum Nundinis, Nundinas cum Festo miscuisse. Tunc enim non solum advolant ipsi parochiani (saith he) sed & vicini plurimi; majorq; semper frequentia pro Ecclesia & villa dignitate. And further he takes notice, that this ill custome in the succeeding ages increast much, not onely by the concurrence which the Parishioners themselves had thither at that time, but but even multitudes from the neighbouring Towns; and that the meeting was always the greater, as the dignitie of the Church and Town became more eminent than ordinary; as of S. Peters at Westminster, S. Bartholomew's in Smithfield, S. Cuthberts at Durresme, &c. Neither (saith he) is it a hard matter to guesse by the Faire day, in case it have been ancient, to what Saint the Church is dedicated: And that this is so we have also an evident testimony here, the Church of Stratford being dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

For the authority usually given, by speciall Charter, to keep such Faires or meetings, he also gives a very good reason—Cum vero ex tanta hominum frequentia (saith he) periculosi saepe tumultus orirentur, tenendarum Feriarum prerogativa solius Principis diplomatibus est indulta. As for the antiquitie of the word Faire, which shews of what great continuance the thing it self hath been, it is no lesse then from the Britans, Faire in their language (which Doctor John Davies in his Britannico-Lat. Vocabularie, derives from the Greek word φειω, being the same with merces in Latin) signifying as much as Nundina, Forum and Mercatum doth. And that such Faires were frequently kept upon the Sunday in former times, as this here had used to be, is evident by this instance which I shall give. In the year of our Lord 1200 (being the second of King John's reign) the Abbot of Flay, a man both devout and learned, came into England (saith my Authorⁿ) and preaching very zealously in sundry parts, amongst other of his pious doctrines, he prohibited the keeping of Faires, and portates on the Lords day—Nundinas^o vero & Mercata Dominice diei adeo interdixit, quod omnia ferè quæ diebus Dominicis per Angliam fieri consueverant, constituerentur in una hebdomada sequentium feriarum: Sicq; Dominicis diebus fidelis populus divinis solummodo vacans obsequiis, omne opus servile penitus abdicavit: verumtamen tempore procedente pleriq; ut canis ad vomitum sunt reversi. You see, after a while, his preaching was quite forgot, as appears plainly here; for this Charter, for a Faire to be kept on Trinity Sunday, was about xiv. years after those good documents of that holy Abbot. Nor indeed do I see that this prophane usage was left, till by a Statute^p law made a long time after, scil. 27 H. 6. all such goods or merchandize, which should be exposed to sale upon Good-Friday, Corpus Christi day, Ascension day, All Saints day, the day of the Assumption of our Lady, Whitsunday, Trinity Sunday, or other Sunday (the four Sundays in Harvest excepted) were to be forfeited to the Lord of the Libertie or Franchise, where such Faire should happen to be kept. But the restraint for keeping them in the Church-yards, (antiently usuall) was much elder; viz. by the Statute of Winchester 13 E. 1. cap. 6.

Having spoken thus much as to the first occasion of Faires; viz. the concourse of people to keep the Festivall of the Churches Dedication; it will not be amisse (I think) to say something of the Feast of Dedication it self, now vulgarly called the Wake,

That these Feasts were ancient we have the testimony of holy Scripture, Facta sunt encenia, id est festa dedicationis in Hierosolimis (saith *S. John*⁹) & Jesus ambulabat in templo in porticu Solomonis ad confirmationem illius festivitatis. And S. Augustin in his Homily upon that Text saith, Illum diem quo Templum dedicatum est, Judæi solenniter celebrabant. That they were originally kept on the same Saints day, annually, unto whose memory the Church was dedicated, there is no scruple to be made: which dutie so performed by Christians, was by S. Basil^t termed λατρίαν τῷ θεῷ, and with all τιμωρὰς τῆς ἐκκλησίας. id est a worship of God, and a reverence to the Martyrs. Neither can we judge lesse than that the pious and devout munificence of him that was the Founder and endower of the Church, was likewise then gratefully remembered. Of the service used in that solemnity I shall not make rehearfall, referring my Reader to Durandus^t, where it is particularly described: but to the end it may appear how it came to passe that the yearly celebration of that Festivall was, and yet is called the Wake, I shall briefly make some discovery.

Antiquitus^t in precipuis festivitatis (saith the same Author) duo nocturnalibus agebantur officia, & populus, qui ad festa venerat, tota nocte in Dei laudibus in Ecclesia vigilabat, quod adhuc Romæ, & in plerisq; locis in magnis festivitatis, præsertim Sanctorum patronorum Ecclesiarum observatur. And in another place he says—Et vocabatur Vigilia, quia habuit initium à Pastoribus vigilias noctis super greges suas servantibus. And he goes on—Sed quia lessores & Cantores conveniebant, & turpibus Cantilenis, & saltationibus, & commensationibus, & potationibus, & fornicationibus intendere ceperunt; propter hæc & multa alia inconvenientia quæ fiebant, hujusmodi Vigiliæ sunt interdictæ, & institutum ut loco earum fiant Jejunia, quæ Jejunia adhuc retinent nomen officii; nam communiter Vigiliæ & non Jejunia nuncupantur.

The substance of this I have found Englished in an old Manuscript Legend of S. John Baptist, as followeth.—And ye shall understand and know how the Evyns were first forso in old time. In the beginning of holt Chirche it was so that the pepull cam to the Chirche with candellys benyng and wold Wake, and coome with light toward night to the Chirche in their debotions; and astir they fell to lecherie and songs, daunces, harping, pyping, and also to glotony and sinne, and so touned the hollnesse to cursydnes: wherefore holy faders ordeined the pepull to leve that Waking, and to fast the Evyn. But hit is callyd Vigilia that is Waking in Englysh, and it is callyd the Evyn, for at Evyn they were wont to come to Chirche.

Howbeit, the direct time when this prohibition for coming so to Church in the Evening was made, hath not as yet appeared to me; but I do conclude it to have been very antient: for though Simon Islip Archbishop of Canterbury in the year 1362. (36 E. 2.) by vertue of that appointment^u made by Pope Gregory the ninth for observation of some speciall Holy days, and leaving the rest thus, quas singuli Episcopi in suis Diocæsisbus cum Clero & Populo duxerint solenniter venerandas,^w comanded that Solennitas Dedicationum Ecclesiarum Parochialium, & Sanctorum in quorum honore Ecclesia parochiales dedicantur, according to the Canon Law Dist. 1. cap. 16. 17. Dist. 3. cap. 1. yet there is no doubt to be made (considering what is before exprest) but that such solemnities of the Churches Dedication were no lesse antient than the primitive times of Christianity, and annually kept for many ages upon the same Saints day to

to whose memory such dedication was made; but in proceſſe of time certain inconveniencies being found in the obſervance of thoſe very dayes, eſpecially ſuch as hapned in Harveſt, when a little neglect may occaſion much loſſe, many of them were by ſpeciall authority from the Biſhop, for that very reaſon altered, and the ſolemnity transferred to the next Sunday following, or ſome other Sunday; as I have ſeen (for inſtance) of Ladcaſter and Biſhop-Wilton in Yorkſhire, where the Churches Feſtivall of the one, being on the 28, of Auguſt, was in the year MCCC. xiv, aſſigned to be kept on the Sunday next enſuing the Feaſt of the Decollation of S. John Baptiſt; and of the other², which fell out on the fifteenth of September, to be obſerved the Sunday enſuing. Which alteration, forasmuch as it broke the ancient courſe and order, perhaps occaſioned, for uniformities ſake, that Injunction of King Henry, made in the year 1536. (28. of his reign) whereby with the common aſſent and conſent of the Prelates and Clergy of this his Realm in Convocation lawfully aſſembled (amongſt other things) he decreed, ordained and eſta- bliſhed, that the Feaſt of Dedication of Churches ſhould in all places throughout this Realm be thenceforth celebrated and kept on the firſt Sunday of the month of October for ever, and upon none other day. Since which time that Rule hath been obſerved in divers places (as I have particularly taken notice) eſpecially where the Saints day unto whom the Church was dedicated hapneth in the Winter time; but where it falls out in that time of the year that the weather is warm and proper for merry meetings, it is generally ſeen that the ſaid Feſtivall is yearly kept on the Sunday next following ſuch day, though not by commemoration of the Saint in any particular Church ſervice; but by holding up the Cuſtome of Feaſting amongſt friends and good neighbours, with the exerciſe of dancing and other ſports, which time is now uſually called the Wake through moſt parts of this Kingdom.

But returning to Stratford, and the ſucceſſive Biſhops that were Lords thereof, I find, that William de Bleyſ, then being Biſhop, procured a Charter^a for another Faſte, to be kept, here, on the Eve of S. Auguſtin, and on the day & morrow after; which Feſtivall falls yearly on the ſeventh Cal. of June (being the 26. of May;) And within xvi. years after, Walter de Cantilupe obtained another^b to be yearly kept on the Eve of the Exaltation of the Holy Croſſe, the day, and two days following (viz. 14. Oſt.) which Charter bears date at Wincheſter 23. Dec. 24 H. 3. This indeed hath continued till the preſent times, frequented by multitudes that come from far and neer unto it, the Toll whereof was very antiently leaſed^c for ix s. iv d. and the Toll of the Mercate at^d xvi s. per annum; which Walter ſate Biſhop for divers years, & in 39 H. 3. obtained a Charter^e of Free-warren for himſelf and his ſucceſſors in all their demein lands here, bearing date at Sperton 2. Apr. Another Faſte likewise did Godfrey Giffard (when he was Biſhop) procure, in 53 H. 3. to be held for three days, viz. the Eve of the Aſcenſion of our Lord, commonly called Holy Thursday, and upon the day and morrow after. And moreover the next year following got a new Charter^f for renewing the Faſte again on the Eve of Trinity Sunday (ſo granted by King John, as aforeſaid) and to continue for three days after.

Touching the revenue which the ſaid Biſhop had here in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) I find^h that it was in Rent of Aſſize xx li. two carucates of land rated at xx s. one Mill yeilding C. s. the pleas and perquiſites lx s. and the profits of the ſtore xx s. But it ſhould ſeem that the ſaid Thursday Mercate grew in time to be neglected; for it appears, that Walter de Maydenſtane, made Biſhop of Worceſter in 2 E. 2. did in the very firſt year of his conſecration obtain a new Charterⁱ for one to be kept upon the ſame day every week; and added alſo another Faſte thereto, to begin yearly on the Eve of S. Peter and Paul (being at the later end of June) and to hold for xv. days. Which Charter bears date at Wincheſter 4. Martii 2 E. 2.

And now that the Mercate became thus ſetled, it was not long ere that the Paving of the town began; for in 5 E. 3. did one Robert de Stratford, (then Parſon^k of the Church of Stratford, but afterwards highly advanced, as I ſhall ſhew by and by) procure a Patent^l for taking Toll for the ſpace of four years, upon ſundry vendible commodities that ſhould be thicker brought for ſale, towards defraying the charge thereof: which Patent being directed Ballivis & probis hominibus villa de Stratford ſuper Avone expreſſeth, that it was obtained ad requiſitionem dilecti Clerici noſtri Roberti de Stratford; And was afterwards twice renewed at the request of the ſaid Robert; viz. in 8 E. 3. for four years longer, and in^m 10 E. 3. for two years more.

This Robert de Stratford was afterwards Archdeaconⁿ of Canterbury; next^o Biſhop of Chicheſter, and then Chancelour^p of England; brother likewise^q to John de Stratford Archbiſhop of Canterbury, of whom I ſhall ſpeak anon; who aſſuming his ſurname from hence (being the place of his birth) bore a more than ordinary affection thereto. In 13 E. 3. John de Peito junior (who was a Lawyer, as in Cherterton I have ſhewed) obtained a Leaſe^r for life of this Mannour, from Wolſtan then Biſhop of Worceſter, at the Rent of lx li. per annum. But little is there memorable of the ſucceeding Biſhops relating to this place till 3 E. 6. that Nicholas Heath paſt^s it away to John Dudley Earl of Warwick in exchange for certain lands in Worceſterſhire; which, Earl the ſame year, parted^t with it to the King, upon an advantageous bargain for lands in Oxfordſhire, and other places; but with an eye to have it again, as it fell out he had in 7 E. 6. by another exchange^u. Upon the attainder of which John, in 1. Maria (being then Duke of Northumberland;) this, called by the name of the Mannour of Old-Stratford with the reſt of his lands, eſchacting to the Crown, was immediatly granted^x by the Queen to Joan his Dutcheſſe; but afterwards, ſcil. in 3. & 4. Ph. & M. to^y the Hoſpitall of Savoy in the ſuburbs of London.

The next thing I am to take notice of concerning this town, that is by the Kings Letters^z Patent bearing date 28. Junii 7 E. 6. it was made a Corporation, conſiſting of a Bailiff and Burgeſſes, who were to bear the name of Aldermen, and to have a Common Seal, &c.

The Church, here, (dedicated to the holy Trinity) is of a very antient ſtructure, little leſſe than the Conq. time, as I gueſſe by the fabrick of the Tower-ſteeple; but part thereof, beſides, hath been rebuilt at ſeverall times; viz. the South Ile by² John de Stratford

Stratford Archbishop of Canterbury about the beginning of Edward 3. time; the Quire^b by Thomas Balsall Doctor in Divinity and Warden of the same Church, being then Collegiate, in E 4. time: and the North and South Crosse by the Executors of Hugh Clopton (sometime Lord Mayor of London) in H. 7. time. The Rectory, as it extended to the Chapelryes within the Parish, was in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued^d at xxxv. marks: but the Patronage thereof, belonging to the Bishops of Worcester, was purchased^e by John de Stratford Archbishop of Canterbury in 10 E. 3. from Simon Montacute then Bishop of Worcester, which Archbishop gave it to the Chantry founded by himself in a certain Chapell adjoining to the said Church on the South side, built by him to the honour of God, and of S^t Thomas the Martyr: for the appropriation whereof unto that Chapell, he gave^e unto the same Bishop of Worcester, and his Successors, in recompence of the damage, which they might thereby sustain, one mess. one carucate of land, and x s. Rent with the appurtenances in Perseley-Grove juxta Hampton super Avon, to the yearly value of x. marks. But there is no particular valuation of this Church in 26 H. 8. other than amongst the revenues of the Chantry before specified, which then had the reputation of a Colledge, whereunto it was appropriated. Neither was there any Vicaridge endowed till after the dissolution of the said Colledge, as by the Institutions thereto may be discerned.

HERE LYETH interred the body of John Combe Esquire, who departing this life the tenth day of July A^d D. 1614. bequeathed by his last Will and Testament to pious Charitable uses these summes ensuing, annually to be paid for ever; viz. xx s. for two Sermons to be preach^t in this Church. vi li. iii s. iv d. to buy ten gownes for ten poore people within the Borough of Stratford; and one hundred pounds to be lent to xv. poore tradesmen of the same Borough from three years to three years, changing the parties every third year, at the rate of 50 s. per annum; the which increase he appointed to be distributed towards the reliefe of the Almes-poor there. More he gave to the poore of Stratford xx li. Virtus post funera vivit.

On the North side of this Quire is a very large and goodly Monument raised neer four foot high from the ground, and curiously carved: The portraiture in brasse fixt on a great Marble stone, which covereth it, hath been long since torne away, as also the Inscription on the verge thereof; but Leland affirmeth it to have been erected for Doctor Balsall sometime Deane of this Collegiat-Church, who built the said Quire as I have, in my discourse of the Church, already observed.

In one of the windows, as by M^r Belcher's notes I find, was written;

Thomas Balsall doctor of divinity recedised this quire and dyed anno 1491.

In the Arch betwixt the said North Ile and the Church, is there a fair tablet with the Armes of Clopton empaling Kyte and this Inscription.

To the memory of THOMAS CLOPTON of Clopton in the County of Warwick Esquier, and Eglentine his wife one of the daughters of John Kyte of Ebrington in the County of Gloucester Esquier. The said Thomas departed this life the 22th day of August Anno Domini 1643. The said Eglentine departed this life 22th day of November A^d Dom. 1642. They left issue two sons, John, and Thomas Clopton.

In the body of the Church lyeth in fair marble,

I come now to speak of the Chantry before specified, afterwards known by the name of the Colledge of Stratford super Abon. This was^h founded in 5 E. 3. by John de Stratford, already spoke of (then B^p. of Winchester) in the South Ile of the said Church, newly by him built; and consisted of five Priests, for whose maintenance he firstⁱ settled one messuage in Stratford super Abon, with the Mannour of Inge, in this Parish: which five Priests were to celebrate^k divine service, to the honour of God, in the said Ile or Chapell perpetually at the Altar of S^t Thomas the Martyr, for the good estate of the said John, and of Rob. de Stratford his brother (afterwards Archdeacon of Canterbury, Bishop of Chichester, and Chancelour of England, as I have already observed;) and for the souls of Rob. de Stratford and Isabell his wife, father and mother to the said John and Robert; as also for the good estate of Edw. 3. then K. of England, for the Bishop of Worcester, for the time being, and his successors; and for the souls of all the Ks. of England and Bishops of Worcester deceased; together with the souls of the Brethren, Sisters and Benefactors to the said Bishop of Winchester, and all the faithfull departed this life: Of which 5. Priests, two were to be perpetuall, and one of those the Custos or Warden of that Chapell, to govern the rest, and be called Warden of the Bishop of Winchester's Chapell at Stratford; & the other the Sub-warden: but the rest to be temporary, viz. removable at the pleasure of the said Warden. As for the particular Rules touching the government thereof, with the divine service specially to be celebrated therein, I shall for brevities sake omit their recitall, in as much as they are at large in the Register^l, and confirmed^m by Adam de Orleton Bishop of Worcester ix. Cal. Martii. 5 E. 3.

And now that the work of this Chantry was thus happily begun, there wanted no care in the pious Founder to enlarge its endowment: for in 7 E. 3. he gaveⁿ thereunto lxx s. yearly Rent issuing out of certain lands here in Stratford; and (being shortly after advanced to the Archbishoprick of Canterbury) granted^o the Patronage thereof in 10 E. 3. to Simon Mountacute then B^p. of Worcester and his successors for ever, purchasing^p the advowson of the Church of Stratford from the said Bishop, and adding it thereto; which was forthwith appropriated^q unto it, as I have already declared. And for the farther advantage of these his Chantry-Priests and their successors, did he obtain divers immunities and priviledges, both to themselves and their tenants; as appeareth by K. Edw. 3. Charter^r, bearing date at Westminster 26. Martii 11. of his reign, and confirmed by other succeeding Kings. And yet thinking all too little, did he more augment their possessions; giving^s unto them one messuage, and two carucates of land lying in Inge, before mentioned; three^t mess. and 6. tofts situate in Stratford super Abon, with^u 7. other mess. lying also there. The other Benefactors that it had were these, Adam de Styvinton of Stratford, who gave^v thereunto 4. acres of land lying in Ingen; Nicholas de Dudley, Parson of Kings-Swinford in Worcestershire, 4. ^x mess. 70. acres of land, 3. acres of meadow, and xv d. yearly Rent with the appurtenances in Dudley (Com. Wigorn.) with Common of Pasture for all manner of Cattell, except Goats, in the wood called Pensigned neer Dudley aforesaid; And John Noie and Rog. le Dis here Priests eight^y mess. three shops, and three tofts in Stratford above said.

The Houle of square stone, for the habitation of these Priests, adjoining^z to the Church-yard, was built^a by Raph de Stratford, first^b a Canon of Pauls, and afterwards^c Bishop of London; whose good affections to this town, (being his^d birth place) stir'd him up to that pious work, of which he began the structure in 26 E. 3. with ten Carpenters, ten Masons and their servants, as by the Kings Letters Patent^e of speciall protection to them, till the same should be finished, appeareth. And after this did King H. 5. in 1. of his reign, grant thereunto an ample Charter^f of priviledges, wherein that of King E. 3. is recited and confirmed: So that now, being thus fitted with a Mansion, as also their revenues and immunities much increased, it was not long ere it had the reputation of a Church Collegiate; for by that title^g was the Custos, or Warden thereof, presented in anno 1423. 1 H. 6. unto which, Thomas Balshall D^r of Divinity, and Warden in E. 4. time, added a fair and beautiful Quire, rebuilt^h from the ground at his own costs; on the North side whereof he lyeth entombed, under a goodly raised Monument, whereupon his portraiture in brasle, with an Inscription was set, which are now utterly torn away.

To whom succeeded Raph Collingwode, D^r likewise in Divinity and Dean of Litchfield; who pursuing the pious intent of the said D^r Balshall, which was not in his life time accomplished, institutedⁱ to the honour of Almighty God, the Holy Trinity, the blessed Virgin, and S. Thomas the Martyr, by the consent of Sylvester Gygles then B^p. of Worcester, four Children Choristers to be daily assistant in the celebration of divine service in that Church, as also nominated and admitted by the Warden for the time being; which Choristers, by his said Ordination, should always come by two and two together into the Quire to Mutens and Vespers, on such days as the same were to be sung there, according to the Ordinale Sarum; and at their entrance into the Church, bowing their knees before the Crucifix, each of them say a Pater noster and an Ave. And for their better regulation did he order and appoint, that they should sit quietly in the Quire, saying the Mutens and Vespers of our Lady distinctly, and afterwards be observant to the Offices of the Quire: That they should not be sent upon any occasion whatsoever into the town; That at Dinner and Supper-times they should constantly be in the Colledge to wait at the Table: and to read upon the Bible, or some other authentique book; That they should not come into the Buttry to draw beer for themselves or any body else: That after Dinner they should go to the singing School; and that their School-master should be one of the Priests or Clerks appointed by the discretion of the Warden, being a man able to instruct them in singing to the Organ: as also that they should have one Bed-chamber in the Church, whereunto they were to repair in Winter time at 8. of the Clock, and in Summer at nine; in which lodging to be two Beds wherein they were to sleep by couples; And that before they did put off their clothes they should all say the prayer of De profundis with a loud voyce, with the prayers and orisons of the faithfull; and afterwards say thus, God have mercy of the soule of Rauf Colyngwode our Founder, and Master Thomas Balshall a speciall benefactor to the same.

And for the maintenance of these Choristers, he enfeoff^k S^t Edw. Grevil K^t. Jo. Grevil Esq. & others, k Ibid.

in certain lands, situate in Stratford, Drayton, and Binton within this County; which Feofment bears date 7 Octob. 7 H. 8. But it was not long after that this Colledge, thus compleated, came to ruine with the rest, as a preparative whereunto was that Survey¹ in 26 H. 8. by which the revenue of the lands and tithes belonging to it, is certified to amount to Cxxviii l. ix s. id. At^m which time, besides the Warden (sc. M. John Bell) and the Sub-warden, there was one Priest who served the cure for the Parishioners, and had vi l. xiii s. iii d. salary, 3 Chaplains, 3 Clerks, and 4 Choristers, whose severall salaries, for brevity, I omit to mention; Robert Porter being then Steward of their Court, whose fee was xx s. per an. and Hugh Reynolds their Bayliff, who had also xl s. annuity. Howbeit, at the suppression thereof in 37 H. 8. (by the Statute made that year) I find another Surveyⁿ taken, where the yearly value is certified to be no more than Cxxvii l. xviii s. ix d. Anthony Barker being then Warden, and having a stipend of Lxxvii l. v s. v d. per an. Out of which was paid to D^r Bell, then Bishop of Worcester (the preceding Warden as hath been observed) the yearly summe of xxii l. for a Pension. The site of which Colledge in 4 E. 6. was granted^o to John Earl of Warwick and his heirs; who being attainted in 1 Maria (as I have elsewhere shewed) it came again to the Crown, and therein continued long (it seems) for in 18 Elizabetha Ric. Comingsby had a Lease thereof, granted^p to him by the Queen for 21 years.

The Gild of the Holy Crosse.

The next thing, whereof I have taken notice in this town, is the Gild of the holy Crosse; but the originall of this Fraternity I do not find recorded; neither have I teen any formal Foundation thereof till 4 H. 4. Whence it is evident, that such meetings were at first used by a mutuall Agreement of friends and neighbours, and particular Licenses granted to them for conferring lands or Rents to defray their publique charges (in respect that by the Statute of Mortmain such gifts would otherwise have been forfeited) as in this place may be discerned: For in 5 E. 3. several persons of this town had¹ leave to amortize divers particular petty Rents thereunto, which they charged upon certain Houses and lands situate within the compasse thereof: And in 7 Richard 2. one Richard Fille, (an Inhabitant of this place) gave¹ thereunto eight mels, one toft, and half a yard land lying in Stratford, Cliffoz, and Shotriche without Licentie; for which respect they were seized into the Kings hands: but in such great request did it grow, within a short time after, that K. H. 4. by his Letters Pat.^r dated at Westm. 8 Junii in the 4th year of his reign, reciting that whereas Thomas Aldbury Clerke, Nich. Sauser jun. and Thomas Compton sen. stood enticost of xx mels. 3 shops, 4 s. 4 d. Rent, half a yard land, and the moytie of 2 Burgages with th'appurtenances, lying within the towns of Stratford super Avene, Bruggeton, and Ruyne-Cliffoz, to the use of this Fraternity, which being antiently begun had continued till that time without the Royall Licentie; and that divers lands and Rents had been given thereto, which K. E. 3. by his Letters Pat. dated 12 Nov. 5 E. 3. confirmed; the said King therefore taking into consideration the devout intention of the Founders and Continuers thereof, then gave License to the said Thom. Nich. and Thom. and to the rest of the Brethren and Sisters of the same Gild, that they and their successors might not only continue the same; but if they should think fit, make and begin a new Fraternity, of themselves and others to the honour of the Holy Crosse and S. John Baptist. And that the Brethren and Sisters thereof, for the time being, might from year to year choose 8 Aldermen out of their said Fraternity, which said Aldermen, and their successors should have power to elect a certain Master and two Proctors of their Gild for to govern the lands and revenues thereto belonging.

And that the said Feoffees might assigne the said Messuages, Lands, and Rents to the said Master and Proctors and their successors for ever, to provide two or more Priests to celebrate divine service for the good estate of the said K. H. 4. Queen Joan his Consort, of Nich. de Bubbewith the said King's Chaplain; as also of the Master, Proctors, Aldermen, Brethren, and Sisters thereof, which then were, or should after that time be; and for the good estate of all the Benefactors and maintainers thereof: And moreover for the souls of the said K. Henry, Joan his Consort, Nich. de Bubbewith, and of the Master, Proctors, Brethren, and Sisters thereof after their departure out of this life: as also for the souls of the father and mother to the said King, of Constance his late Queen, and of all the faithfull deceased: Which Pat. was confirmed¹ by King H. 6. at Westminster xv Junii 7 H. 6.

To which Gild also, were Henry Lisle of Gorbult in this County Esq; with Eliz. his wife Benefactors; who in E. 4. time gave¹ thereunto the Rectory or Chapell of Little-Willmescote, with all the Tithes thereto belonging; appointing that the Priest at his first Masse every day in the same Gild should say De profundis before the sacred Lavatory, for the good estate of the said Henry and Elizabeth, and for their souls after their departure out of this World; as also for the souls of their Ancestors for] the good estate of their posterity, and the health of their souls likewise after this life.

At the time of the general Survey taken in 26 H. 8. there were 4 Priests belonging to this Gild, each of which had 5 l. 6 s. 8 d. yearly salary; And a certain Clerke, who was Schoolmaster there, having x li. per an. wages. But by the Survey made in 37 H. 8. the Lands and Tenements, with the Tithes of Welcombe certified to belong thereto were valued in the whole at 50 l. 23 d. ob. per an. at which time it appeareth, that there was a manferr House for the Priests, having 5 Chambers, 1. Garden, and a Dovehouse appertaining to the same; and that one Dulam was Master of the Grammar School there, having x li. per an. annuity: as also that the four Priests of the said Gild had yearly salaries of Cvi s. viii d. apiece: And that the other Officers were these; viz. John Combes Steward of all the Lands and Possessions belonging thereto, having xx s. per an. Fee; a Cooke Serviter to the Priests x s. per an. a Clerk serving in the Chapell there liii s. per an. The Bayliff or Collector of the Rents xxvi s. viii d. per an. And there is this farther observable from the said Survey; viz. that once a year, at receiving the Officers accounts, there was a Feast made of ancient custome, to which the whole Fraternity with their Tenants and Fermors did resort, there being liii s. viii d. assigned for defraying the charge of it: That the annuall allowance for wine and wax spent in the Chapell was xl s. To the said 4 Priests for severall Diriges there sung vi s. viii d. And to 4 poor people, who were of the same Fraternity, and fallen to decay in their estates liii s. viii d. per an. amongst them.

Besides which, it further appeareth, that K. H. 4. before specified was accounted the Founder thereof; and that at the time of the said Survey one of the Priests belonging thereto, then Teacher of the Grammar School, did use to celebrate divine Service within a Chapell standing in the midst of the said town, in regard that the Parish Church, situate out of the town, was so far distant from a great part thereof, that many impotent and poor people could not well resort thereto. Which Chapell was reedified in a very beautifull manner (as is yet to be seen) by Hugh Clopton sometime Lord Major of London, and dedicated to the holy Trinity, towards the later end of H. 7. time, as appeareth by his Testament: but of him I shall speak more particularly in Clopton.

Stratford Super Avon.
Armes in the windows of this Chapell.

Armes cut in Stone on the Front of the Porch.

Armes cut in Stone on the Front of the Porch.

On the North side of this Chapell was a fair House built of brick and timber by the said Hugh, wherein he lived in his later dayes, and dyed. On the South side of which Chapell stands the Grammar School founded by one Johne a Master of Arts, born in this town, near which he had some patrimony that he gave thereto. And near to the said School stands an Almshouse, which before the dissolution of the Gild had x poor people maintained therein by that Fraternity of the Holy Crosse before spoke of. Which School and Almshouse by the Letters Pat. of incorporating this Town in 7 E. 6. were appointed to be continued and maintained, the Inhabitants having then granted to them for that purpose all the lands and possessions which belong'd to the said Gild, excepting the House formerly mentioned, which was by the same K. past away the precedent year unto Thomas Reeve and George Cotton Londoners, and their heirs, to hold of the Mannour of East Greenwich in Socage.

Besides all this, here is at Stratford a fair Bridge of stone, over Avon, containing xliii arches, with a long Causey at the west end of it, walled on both sides: which Bridge and Causey were so built in H. 7. time by the before specified Hugh Clopton, whereas before there was only a timber Bridge and no Causey, so that the passage became very perillous upon the overflowing of that River. One thing more, in reference to this ancient Town is observable, that it gave birth and sepulture to our late famous Poet Will. Shakespere, whose Monument I have inserted in my discourse of the Church.

I now come to the particular Hamlets that are within the compasse of this large parish, being x. in number; viz. Welcombe, Inge, Clopton, Bishopston, Drayton, Dodwell, Shottery, Ludington and Rupn-Clifford; of all which in their order.

Welcombe.

This place had its appellation, originally, from the Spring rising in that deep valley, which now beareth the name of Welcombe; but there is no other mention of it in Record, that ever I could see, than the bare nomination amongst the Hamlets within the Hundred of Pathlow in the Rolls for collection of the xv and tenth in 8 E. 3. 20th H. 6. and the like; and in the Survey of 26 H. 8. it being a member of the Mannour of Old-Stratford.

Inge.

This was also originally a member of Old-Stratford, and signifyeth in our old English a meadow, or low ground, the name well agreeing with its situation. The first mention that I find of it is in 20 H. 3. occasioned by an Assize of Novell disseisin brought against John Comyn, by one Mund Giffard, for a water-course here: but that it was first a member of Hampton super Avon there is no question to be made, and granted in Fee by some of the Bishops of Gloucester to the Ancestor of Adam de Crombe: for by an authentique Register

gister^p in the Bishop of Worcester's custody, it appeareth that the said Adam held in this place 5 hides of that Mannour: and amongst the witnesses to a Deed made by James the son and heir of John de Clopton, temp. E. 1. there is one Simon Riled^q Dominus de Wyng, which Simon was son^r to the same Adam de Crumbe, and in 2 E. 3. sold^t this Mannour to Rob. de Stratford then Parson of the Church at Stratford, Will. Harewell having then an estate therein for the life of Joane his wife; which estate the said Robert purchased^u of them in 4 E. 3.

It seems that this purchase so made by him, was for the use of his brother, viz. John de Stratford then Bishop of Winchester &c. as I have in Stratford observed; for the next year following did he passe^v over his title therein unto him; who having obtained License^w from Adam de Orleton then Bishop of Worcester (of whole Fee it was) thereupon granted^x it unto the Chantry then newly by him founded at the Altar of S. Thomas the Martyr in the South Ile of Stratford Church, whereof I have already spoke. To which Chantry it continued till the dissolution thereof; and then coming to the Crown was by K. E. 6. in 2. of his reign granted^y unto Ric. Pallady Gent. and Francis Foxall Citizen and Mercer of London, to be held in Capite by the xth part of a Kts. Fee. Which Ric. and Francis past it away shortly after to Thomas Hawkyns, alias Fisher, of Warwick; who in 1 Maria sold it to Will. Clopton Esquier.

Clopton.

It is somewhat probable that this was originally a member of Stratford super Avon and so, consequently, belonging to the B^s of Worcester; for I find^z that S. Oswald B^p. of that See in K. E. the 1st Edw.'s time, by the consent of the Covent of Worcester, granted to one Eadric his servant 3 M. fluages and a half, lying here, for three lives; and afterwards to return to the Church of Worcester. But these ere long, became alienated from those B^s as it seems; for by the Conquerors Survey^a, where it is certified to contain 5 hides, it appeareth that it was then part of the p^{ss}essions of Rob. de Stadford, (but written Clostone by mistake of the transcriber) which 5 hides were then valued at 1st and held of him by one William; and that in Edw. the Confessors days Ode and Aileva had the inheritance thereof.

In 13 Job. being accounted^b for 1 Kts. Fee, I find it rank^c amongst those that belong'd to the Barony of Stafford in this shire: but how or when it pass'd from any of those Barons to the family of Mountfort I have not seen; howbeit, that some of them possess it 'tis cleer; for Peter de Mountfort in H. 3. time granted^d it to James de Clopton and his heirs, by the name of his Mannour of Clopton, with a certain place adjoyning called the Grove, excepting onely out of this conveyance 1 mess. 8 yard land and a half, 105 acres of land, and 7. acres of meadow; and excepting a certain place in Grove with pasturage for ten Oxen and Kine, and 2 Horses; all which he had formerly granted to Isabell de Norton and Edm. de Norton her son: By which grant to the said James and his heirs; he reserved to himself and his heirs x s. of silver to be yearly payd at the Feasts of S. Mich.

th'Arch-Angell and the Annuntiation of our Lady by even portions, in lieu of all services saving for-reign, and 3 appearances in the year at his Court of Beldefert.

This James de Clopton was son^e of John, and he of Rob. de Clopton; which Robert and his Ancestors, assuming their surname from this place, were antiently Inhabitants here, as it seems before they became owners thereof. But Walter, grandchild to the said James, assumed^f the surname of Cockfield, being owner of Cockfield in Essex, where he then then had his residence. He was also called ^h Marshall, (perhaps in respect of that office in the Kings household) and by these two names, scil. Cockfield ^{alias Marshall}, did James his grandfather settle upon him and his heirs this Mannour house at Clopton, with the greatest part of his lands in this Village, and in that place called the Grove; Isabell de Norton before specified in 8 E. 1. releasing unto him all her right in the lands, which she had so obtained from Sir Peter de Montfort as is before express.

To which Walter succeeded Walter his son and heir, and to him John, who residing here reassumed the surname of Clopton; and having License ^m from John Carpenter Bishop of Worcester, about the beginning of Edw. 4. time, erected an Oratory within this his Mannour house, for himself and his own family: but within few years after Thomas Clopton his son and heir built a fair Chapell here, and made special suit to Pope Sixtus the 4th for leave to have divine service celebrated therein, which was accordingly granted to him and his heirs 14 Cal. Aug. an. 1474.

Of this family (and a younger brother to the same Thomas) was Hugh Clopton; who being a wealthy Mercer in the City of London, bore the Office of Lord Mayor in an. 1492. 8 H. 7. and was a special Benefactor to the town of Stratford super Abon; for at his own costs he built that fair Bridge of Free-stone, consisting of xiiii arches, with the Causey at the west end thereof, substantially walled on each side; and made a Way 3 miles from Aplebury towards London, and one mile on this side that town: And by his Testament appointed that his Executors should finish that beautiful Chanell of the holy Trinity in the said town of Stratford, the Fabrick whereof was begun in his life time. He bequeathed also C. marks to be given to xx poor Maidens of good name and fame dwelling in Stratford, sc. to each of them five marks a peice at their marriage; and likewise C^t to the poor householders in Stratford; as also L^{ib} to the new building the crosse Ile in the parish Church there. To the Colledge of Stratford super Abon CC^{li}. To the poore householders in London C^{li}. To poor Maidens marriages in London C^{li}. To poor Schollars; viz. three at Oxford and three at Cambridge, every one xx^s the quarter for 5. years. To the Hospitall of S^t Thomas of Acres xx^{li}. To the Hospitall of Bethlem xl^s. To the other Hospitalls xl^s a peice. To the Prisoners of Bedgate vii^{li}. To those of Andgate vii^{li}. To those of the Kings-bench 4^{li}. To those of the Marshalsey 4^{li}. To the Chamber of London in recompence for disobeying his oath, which he observed not, or misused xl^{li}. To the common Box of the Mercers x^{li}. To the Fellowship of the Venturers, resident in Zeland, Brabant, or Flanders v^{li}. Flemish. To the Fellowship of the staple at Calais x marks. To divers of his kindred C^{li}. a year; some 5^{li} per an. a peice; and the portions of any deceasing to be spent in repairing of Bridges, High-wayes poor Churches, poor Householders, and the like charitable uses.

This Testament bears date 8 Sept. 12 H. 7. By which also he bequeathed his body to be buried in the Chapell of S. Katherine in the parish Church of Saint Margaret Lothbury within the City of London, in case he should depart this life in London, or within twenty miles thereof; but if at Stratford super Abon, or in Warwickshire, then in the Church of Stratford, within the Chapell of our Lady, between the Altar there, and the Chapell of the Trinity next adjoining thereto; and for his Funerall appointed four Torchcs, with 4 Tapers and no more; two of which after the solemnizing thereof, and of his Months-mind, to remain for the high Altar. And further directed that his Executors should provide an honest Priest to serve within that Church where his body should happen to be buried, for the space of xx years next ensuing his decease, there to pray for his soul, and for the souls of John his father, Agnes his mother, and all Christian souls: And that the said Priest should be bound to say thrice every week, during the said xx years, Placebo and Dirige, with Commendations, taking every year for his salary, if he served in London, xi marks; and if at Stratford upon Abon ten marks per an. And dying a Bachelor 15 Sept. 12 H. 7. was buried in the Church of S. Margaret in Lothbury, according to his said appointment.

It seems that being a very wealthy man, he got this Mannour of Clopton from his elder Brother's posterity; but deceasing without issue it came to them again, Will Clopton being found his cosyn and heir, who had livery thereof in 19 H. 7. Which Will. was owner also of Cockfield in Essex; for by a pardon that he had in 5 Henr. 8. he is stiled Will. Clopton de Clopton in Com. VVarw. armiger; alias Will. Cockfeild de Cockfeild in Com. Essex ar. From which Will. descended Will. Clopton Esq; who had two daughters and heirs; viz. Joyce the wife of Sir George Carew K^t created Lord Carew of this Clopton 5 Maii 3 Jac. and Earl of Totneis 7 Febr. 1. Car. who dyed without issue; And Anne married to Will. Clopton of Sledwick in the Bishoprick of Durham descended by a younger branch, from the Family before specified.

Bishopston.

OF this place there is no mention in the Conquerors Survey, because it was a Hamlet pertaining to Stratford; and therefore, belonging to the Bishop, gave occasion that it had the name of Bishopdone at first attributed thereto, the situation being at the foot of an indifferent Hill, as the syllable done or dune imports. In King H. 1. time Frethricus de Bissopdone was enfeoffed thereof by Sampson then Bishop of Worcester, as may seem by that Certificate which his successor made in 12 H. 2. in these words Isti sunt feoffati de dominico a tempore Sansonis Episcopi; Frederic de Bissopdon 1. mil. (Sc.) This Frethric (or Eraric; for so he is sometimes written) lived to a great age, there being mention of him in 9 R. 1. and had issue Will. his son and heir; who being a Knight and in that Rebellion with the Barons against King John, was of the retinue to Walter de Beauchamp, one of the principall of them, for which his lands were seized into the King's hands, but returning to obedience he had restitution of them in the last year of that King's reign. To whom succeeded Will. who had severall employments of much trust and note, in his time, within this County. From 11. till 20 H. 3. he was frequently in Commission as a Justice of Assize. In 16 H. 3. he, with John de Lodbeoc were constituted the King's Elchaetors here. In 21 H. 3. he was in Commission for the collecting of a xxxth and in 56 H. 3. one of the Justices for the

To him succeeded Sir Thomas de Bishopdon Knight his son^a and heir; and to Sir Thomas Sir William: howbeit of these I find little else notable than that they were Knights. But the next was Sir John de Bishopdon, who served in the Parl. held at Worce in 12 E. 2. as one of the Knights for this shire, being then seized of these Lordships, viz. Bishopston, Bishopswode (viz. Bushwode) Lapworth & Thorndon in this County; Larksfote in Gloucestershire, Little Cokesey, Herdelwyk, Peperwell, and Wareley in com. Wiltsh. in all which he had Free warren granted to him by a special Charter^a bearing date at Newcastle upon Tine 26 Sept. 13 E. 2. In 14 E. 2. he was^a a Knight, and in the Rebellion with Thomas Earl of Lanc. for which in 16 E. 2. he had pardon^p for xii Pence. In 18 E. 2. he was in^a Commission for conservation of the peace in this shire, and to take care that the Articles contained in the Statute of Winchester were observed. In 1 E. 3. he served^a in the Parl. at Westminster as one of the Knights for this shire; and was in Commission^f for the levying a xvth. and tenth in this County; So also in 2 E. 3. for^a collecting of a xxth. In 4 E. 3. again one of the Knights for this shire in the Parl. held at Westm. and the next year following constituted^w one of the Justices for conservation of the Peace.

Bearing a special affection to the Hospitall of St John Baptist in Warwick, he gave^x thereunto the moyle of the advowson of the Church of Morton Merhull in this County; and having wedded^z Beatrice the daughter and heir of John de Sheldon, dyed^a in 14 E. 3. being at that time^x Bayliff to the

K. in his Forrest of Leckhay in Gloucestershire, which he held by grand Sergeantie, leaving Roger his son^b and heir; which Roger bore^c for his Armes bende of six pieces Or and Azure, with a canton ermine, and dyed leaving issue Alice his daughter and heir wedded^d to Walt. de Clodshale (of which Walter and his family I shall speak in Saltley) whereupon this Lordship of Bishopdon came to John, brother to the said Roger, by virtue of an Entail^e made in 11 E. 3. whereby Sir John de Bishopdon Knight seised it, with other lands, upon his issue male by dame Beatrice his wife. Which last mentioned John, being a man of eminent parts, was in 32 E. 3. constituted^f Chancelour of the Kings Exchequer, and took to wife^g Isabell the daughter of Sir John Streich Knight. To whom succeeded^h Thomas, and to him Sir Will. Bishopdon Knight, Sherffⁱ of this County and Leicestershire. in 5 H. 5. and in 6 H. 5. constituted^k one of the Commissioners for arraying of men in this Shire. Of this Sir Will. I farther find, that being retained^l by the Earl of Warwick for the fortifying of Calais, he served in that employment with one Launce and two Archers amongst the Knights that then were under him, taking for his Launce and one Archer xxⁱⁱ per an. and for the other Archer x. marks per an. without their diet: but he resided, for the most part at his Mannour of Alscote in Gloucestershire; and having in 17 H. 6. entailed^m this, with divers other Lordships; on the issue which he should beget on the body of Philippa his wife, left only two daughters his heirs; scil. Eliz. and Philippa, the former marriedⁿ to Thomas Palmer of Holt in Leicestershire, from whom likewise, by a daughter and heir, the Newells of Holt are descended: the other^o to Sir Will. Catesby Knight. Who in her right had this Mannour of Bishopdon, which by the attainder of Will. Catesby in 1 H. 7. (whereof in Lapworth I have spoke) came to the Crown; and in 3 H. 7. was, inter alia, granted^p by the King to Sir John Risley Knight, and the heirs male of his body: but by a speciall Act^q of Parl. in 11 H. 7. was restored unto George Catesby Esq; son and heir to the said Will. together with the rest of his said Fathers forfeited lands: whose grandchild, viz. Sir Will. Catesby K^r in 24 Eliz. sold^r to sundry persons the particular Tenements within this Lordship; amongst which one was past to Will. Askew of Lapworth, by the name of the Mannour; which Will. afterwards sold it to Andrew Archer of Tanworth Esq; from whom it descended to his son and heir, Sir Sim. Archer Knight, and by him was lately granted to John Greene and Thomas Greene yeomen, and their heirs, who being Inhabitants here, are yet posselt thereof.

The Chapell here (dedicated to St Peter) is very antient, as may appear by the Ordination^s thereof, made in K. John's time, in the presence of Mauritius then Bishop of Gloucester, by S^r Will. de Bishopdon Knight who gave thereunto in pure Almes of his own demesn xiiii acres of land in one field, and as much in another; as also 4 acres of his land held by servile tenure: and pasture for 8. Oxen in what places soever his own Oxen should graze, excepting in his meadows: and moreover covenanted with Mauritius then Parson of Stratford super Avon, that he and his Tenants there, would sustain all the charges concerning the said Chapell; viz. in building it up, keeping it in repair, and providing the Chalice, Books, Lights, Vestments, and all other necessities therein: and that the mother Church of Stratford should receive the whole tithes of Corn and Flax throughout the parish of Bishopston, with the bodies of the dead, and all Oblations to be made in the said mother Church, with Mortuaries, after Mass celebrated in the said Chapell: but all other Obventions and small Tithes given by the said Knight and his Tenants, the Priest serving in that Chapell to receive: which Priest and his successors, to be thenceforth appointed by the Parson of Stratford for the time being, had "in 37 Henr. 8. the small Tithes of this Village for his salarie.

Drayton.

This, long before the Norman Conquest belonging to the Bishoprick of Worcester (as a member of Stratford) was in the days of K. Cnutus, through the power of the Danes, taken from them, as by the Register^w of Worcester appeareth, where it is written Dractun: but the next mention I find of it (for it is not specified in the Conquerors Survey) is in H. 2. time, Geffrey de Clinton (the second) then restoring^x it to one Giffard de Lucerna, as heir to Rob. de Lucerna, his brother, unto whom he had given the inheritance thereof in lieu of speciall service that he had performed to the said Geffrey in his Castle of Simili and elsewhere, to hold by the service of one Kts. fee; granting also, that Herbert son to the said Giffard, and his heirs should hold it of his said father and his heirs by the same service. From which time till the days of K. H. 3. I have not seen any more thereof; but then, viz. in 20 of that Kings reign, did Sim. de Drayton hold^y half a Knights Fee here of the Earl of Warwick; so also in^z 36 H. 3. And in 1 E. 1. was Raph de Lodington seized^a of 4 yard land and a half here, which he held of the King by the Rent of xx^s per an. payable at Michaelmas only; but soon after it appears^b that these 4 yard land and a half were held by the said Raph. of Will. de Beauchamp E. of Warwick by the service of the eighth part of a Knights Fee, and the Rent of xx^s yearly to the King; and that it was part of the land belonging to the Normans, which was so seized on, as in Wilmecote I have spoken.

Shortly after this I find that Ric. de Peito (of whom in Chelsterton I have spoke) had two yard land here, granted^c to him and his heirs by Royse Trussell, which she purchased of Walt. de Lodington; for which land Anabill, the daughter of Walter son of Will. de Lodington, commenced suit^d against him the said Ric. and the above specified Walter in 6 E. 1. How or when this Ric. de Peito increast his estate here I have not seen; but that his descendants enjoyed a considerable part of this Village, these subsequent instances will shew; scil. John de Peito sen. in^e 20 E. 3. the xth part of a Knights Fee; and John de Peito, his son, with Beatrix his wife, 1 mess. 2 carucates of land, 4 acres of meadow, and xxx^s Rent, here and in Dodwell, of Sir Will. Trussell Kt. which continued^f to his posterity for many ages.

Dodwell.

This petty Hamlet I take to be a member of Draston; for I find no mention at all of it in Record, other than in those Inquis. which specify the lands in Draston belonging to the family of Peito, in all which it appears that they extended likewise into this.

Shotery.

This village was given to the Church of Worcester by K. Offa about DCCCC. years since, it then containing 33 Houses, as by his Charter, whereof I have here inserted part, may appear, + Regnante imperpetuum domino, universitatis creatore, ego Offa Rex Merciorum aliquam partem terra, id est xxxiii. casatorum in jus ecclesiastica libertatis Wigornensis concedens libentissime largior: ejusdem agelli nomen est Scottarit, quem tamen agrum flu. vio quem dicunt Afen constat interlui, &c. But in the Conquerors Survey there is no mention of it, in regard that, being then belonging to the Bishopr. of Worcester, it was involved with Stratford: Of which Bishoprick in H. 2. time, I find^h that Adam de Scettriva held here one hide and a half of land; but little else have I seen memorable of it till E. 3. time, that Ric. son and heir of Ric. de Baginden grantedⁱ to Rob. de Stratford (Parson of Stratford) his whole right and title to all his lands therein that descended to him by inheritance from his father; which grant bears date at Stratford super Abon the Tuesday next after the Feast of St. Mathew the Apostle, 6 E. 3. Whether this was it, which afterwards past by the name of the Mannour of Shotersche I know not; but certain it is that the said Robert de Stratford by his deed^k bearing date on Saturday the feast of All Saints 28 E. 3. (being at that time Bishop of Exchester) entailed this his Mannour of Shotersche upon John de Bishopston, and Isabell the daughter of John Stretch and the heirs of their two bodies, and for lack of such issue to return to him the said Bishop and his heirs.

The next mention of it, that I meet with, is^l that in 17 R. 2. the Monks of Chelham, having without the royall license seized it into their hands as part of the possessions of Thomas Newnham Clerke, their bondman, by reason whereof it became forfeited to the Crown, the K. thereupon granted it to Sir Will. Arundell Knight, to hold and enjoy so long as it should continue in the Crown for the cause aforesaid. Divers conveyances do I also find, ⁿ about that time, of this Mannour; viz. in 17 R. 2. by the same S^r Will. Arundell to John Prat, Thomas Wells Clerke, John Pycard and Will. Venlock Esq; and in 8 H. 4. by the said T. Wells and the rest to John Olney Esq; and his heirs: as also the same year by the said John Olney to Ric. Earl of Arundell, Sir Thomas Burdet and S^r Allured Trussell Kts, with others: but all these were only in trust, as I conceive; for John Harewell Esq; (of whose family I shall speak in Cotton-Warren) being posselt thereof in 4 H. 4. had the same year a License^o granted to him from John Clifford then Bishop of Worcester to have divine service celebrated by a fitting Priest in the Oratory within his Mannour house here at Shoterech; which License bears date 29 Martii an. 1402 (4 H. 4.)

o Clif. f. 8. a

Here we see (and so it alwaies was upon the like permission) that the License for this Oratory was for a fit Priest to celebrate divine service therein; which care of the Bishop was not without great reason, and the authority of an Imperiall Constitution of no less antiquity than the famous Emperour Justinian; which forbiddeth men to have the sacred mysteries administred in their private Chapells, least under that pretence Hereticks should do secretly those things which are unlawful: in which consideration he therefore commandeth, that if they would use their private Oratories otherwise than onely for their private Prayers, the Bishop should appoint them a Clerk whom they might entertain for that purpose: All which is plain by later Constitutions made in the time of Leo; It was thought good (saith^r the Emperour) in their judgement which have gone before, that in private Chapells none should celebrate the holy Communion, but Priests belonging unto greater Churches; which order they took, as it seemeth, for the custody of Religion, lest men should secretly receive from Hereticks, insted of food, the bane of their souls, pollution insted of expiation.

To the descendants of which John Harewell did this Mannour continue so long as the male line lasted; and then by partition⁹ made betwixt the Sisters and coheirs of Thomas Harewell, bearing date 4 Feb. 25 H. 8. was it allotted to Agnes the wife of John Smith one of the Barons of the Kings Exchequer, in whose line, together with Wotton-mawen before specified, it still continueth.

Ludington.

His place being in the Saxons time belonging to the Bishoprick of Worcester, and by the power of the Danes, in the reign of Canutus, with other lands taken^r from that Church, was in Edw. the Confessors time posselt^r by 4 Theins, and reputed for two Mannourss, but after the Norman conquest by the Earl of Shelton, being esteemed at xii hides by the Survey^r then taken, which were held of him by 4. Knights and valued at vi l. In which Survey it is written Luditone, having had its originall appellation from the name of some antient possessor thereof, as I guess. From this Earl it came to Henry de Newburgh (Earl of Warwick) his Brother; and was granted by him, or Earl Roger his son, to the ancestour of Rob. de Valle in H. 1. time, as that certificate^u made by Will. Earl of Warwick in 12 H. 2. doth manifest; at which time Rob. de Valle held it of the same Earl by the service of half a Kts. fee; in whose line it continued till the issue male failing, it came by a daughter and coheir to Burdet, as the descent here inserted doth shew.

Of these, the third Robert was a Justice^w of Assize in this County in 17 and^x 20 H. 3. and his son Robert a Kt. y in 21 E. 1. as also in 3 E. 2. in Commission^z for assessing and collecting a xvth. and tenth; and afterwards a Coroner in this County; but being not able to attend that office in respect of his great employment for severall eminent persons, the Shiriff in 14 E. 2. had command^a to cause another to be chosen. To which Robert succeeded his son, called Rob. de Vaal jun. who went^b in that Welch expedition of 15 E. 2. which

I take to be it that was occasioned by the difference betwixt John de Monbray, Rog. Mortimer, c Pat. 18. E. 2. p. 1. in d. m. 35. and Hugh le Despenser the younger, touching the land of Gowher in Wales. This Robert was in 18 E. 2. constituted^c one of the Commissioners for conservation of the peace in this County, and for taking care that the Articles contained in the Statute of Winchester should be observed; and in 20 E. 2. and^e 1 E. 3. one of the Justices for the Gaol delivery at Warwick; as also a Commissioner^f for assessing and collecting a xxth. in this County; and in 7 E. 3. being a Kt. bore^g for his Armes a Fesse chequy betwixt 3. Lions rampant. d Pat. 20. E. 2. in d. m. 5. e Pat. 1. E. 3. p. 1. in d. m. 23. f Pat. 1. E. 3. p. 3. m. 18 in ced. g Ex autog. penes Ioh. Ferrers.

(leaving John Burdet and John Norrys his Cosens and heirs) murdered as it seems; for I find that Will. Abbot of Evesham had in 39 E. 3. a pardon^m for the same: by means whereof the inheritance of this Lordship came at length to Burdet, though an estate therein some other persons had for a while: for in 2 H. 4. John Wyard (of whom I shall speak in Alspath) was certifiedⁿ to hold the 4th part of a Kts. fee here, in right of his wife, of the Earl of Warwick; and in 11 H. 4. Rob. Castell had Freewarren granted^o to him in all his demesne lands here, and in Alspath aforesaid: And in 10. H. 6. it was found^p, that Sir Thomas Burdet of Arrow in this County Kt. together with John Welsh of Sheldestey in com. Wigorn Gent. held two messuages and 2 yard land here by the service of the 4th. part of a Kts. fee: To which Sir T. Burdet the whole right in this Mannour came at length to be fixed, as by his Feoffment^q thereof in 21 H. 6. appeareth; and so descended to his great grandchild Ric. Burdet (as the Pedegree in Arrow sheweth.) To whom succeeded Anne his daughter and heir married^r to Edw. Conway Esq. by which means the inheritance hereof devolved to their posterity, *Edw. Warden of the Chantry at the Altar of S. Thomas the Martyr in the said Collegiate Church, of one Morg. John Pebworth Priest 20 Apr. an. 1420.

Ruin-Clifford.

IN the Conqueros time Rob. de Stadford posselt one^w hide and 1 virgate of land here, then held of him by one Hugh: but before the Norman invasion it was the freehold of Saward; the rest of this Hamlet being a member of Stratford, as I shall shew by and by. I am of opinion that the posterity of the said Hugh residing here, assumed from hence the surname of Clifford; the last male branch of which family, that continued owners hereof, was John de Clifford, who in H. 3. time past^x away all his lands here to Raph le Power Son of Margerie his Sister, which makes me conclude that he had no Children of his own. It is very like that Hugh le Poer an assistant^y to the Barons against K. H. 3. became Husband to her the said Margerie; for I find that the same Hugh was seized^z of two Carucates of land lying here in Clifford: Neither is it to be doubted, but that Steph. le Pober, who held² two hides and a half of land in this place, temp. H. 1. (then called Clifford-minor) of Margerie de Bohun, was lineall ancestour to the said Hugh; which Margerie had a grant^b of them from Simon Bishop of Worcester, they being parcell of his Mannour of Stratford.

That it continued for many descents in the family of Power, is apparent, Christopher Power, son and heir of John Power being the last; who by his deed^c bearing date 12. Feb. 5 H. 8. granted it to Will. Clopton of Clopton in this County Esq. and his heirs: the last of which Cloptons that dyed^d seized thereof being Will. Clopton of Clopton aforesaid in 7 Eliz. But the next that posselt it was^e John Combes; which John left issue^f Edward, who dyed 16 Junii 39. Eliz. leaving 3. daughters and heirs; scil. Joyce the wife of Francis Cornwell, but formerly of John Garnet, Anne, and Elizabeth.

Milcote.

BEING now on the South of Avon, I come to Milcote, situate on the very border of this County, being within the Parish of Utterton in Gloucestershire. This in the Saxons time belonging to the Bishoprick of Worcester (as a member of Stratford doubtless) was by violence wrested^h from it in the time of Canutus the Dane; yet afterwards did Elstanus and Wulstan, both Bishops of that See, reenjoy it again till the Norman invasion: but then Egelwine Abbot of Evesham, a powerfull man with the Conqueror, being no less than a Judge in those parts, having by purchase obtained the one half thereof from him that had posselt himself of it, promised the Bishop, that if he would give him leave to have his part for a term of years, he would not onely pay him a certain Rent for it; but at the end freely restore unto him the other half therewith; wherunto the Bishop assented: Howbeit, after that the Abbot had thus got it into his hands, he held it whilst he lived without payment of any thing at all; And after the Norman invasion Odo Bishop of Balue (the Kings Brother) with the rest of the lands belonging to that Abby: But at the time of the generall Survey one Stephen hadⁱ it, the extent thereof being certified at 3. hides, which were valued at L s.

It should seem that it came shortly after to Raph Boteler (of whom in Overley I have spoke) for I find that upon the foundation of his Priory at Alcester in 5. Steph. he gave^k all the Tithes of this his Lordship thereto. But it continued not to his posterity; for in 12 H. 2. Geoffrey Martell posselt^l it, and shortly after that one Madiho; and in 30. H. 2. the King by Eichaet^m, at which time the Shiriff accountedⁿ x l. for the ferm thereof, and Liiti s. payd^{*} for xvi. Oxen towards the storing of it for the King's use. Howbeit, about the beginning of K. John's time it was given by the K. to Geoffrey de Hauvill, as appeareth by that Precept^o to the Shiriff for delivering possession thereof, in which it is written Mellescot (yet formerly Melcote). But Hauvill had not the inheritance of it, as is evident by the Letters Pat.^p of K. H. 3. dated 4 Martii 15. of his reign, whereby he granted to the said Geoffrey, that if Joan his wife should chance to overlive him, she should hold it during her life, paying two marks yearly into his Exchequer. Which Joane survived him a great while, for by the King's Charter^q bearing date 10 Junii 29 H. 3. whereby he granted it to Geoffrey de Langley (of whom in Pinley I have spoke) the said two marks per an. due to the Exchequer during her life, were transmitted to him the said Geoffrey and his heirs; who, having the inheritance of this Mannour then bestowed on him to hold by the service of a fore Sparhawk to be payd yearly into the Exchequer for all secular services and demands whatsoever, the next year following obtained a Charter^r of Freewarren (inter alia) in all his demesn lands here, though he was not then in possession thereof, Hauvill's widow being at that time living: which fore Sparhawk, so reserved, was accordingly payd^s, as I could by many more authorities make manifest.

To this Geoffrey succeeded John de Langley his grandchild, who in 13 E. 1. claimed^t here a Court Leet, with Assize of Bread and Beer; alledging that K. H. 3. was seized of those Liberties at that time when he gave the inheritance thereof to the same Geoffrey, and that they past in generall words by that grant: But to this the King's Atturney answered, that during the time that Geoffrey de Hauvill and Joan his wife held it by the grant of K. John, the K. and his Bayliffs were posselt of those Liberties; and after the death of her the said Joane he seizing the Mannour into his hands, granted it onely to the said Geoffrey and his heirs, as appeareth by his Charter; so that by reason of this Answer the said John de Langley had a further day given him to make good his challenge. From which John de Langley it descended^u to Joan the daughter and heir of Geoffrey his grandchild, first married to John the Son of Sir Alan Cherleton of Apley Kt. and afterwards to Sir John Trillow Kt. (as by the Descent in Pinley appeareth) which Sir John Trillow and Joan in 42 E. 3. were certified^w to hold it of the K. in Capite by that payment of the fore Sparhawk or ii s. per an. for all services.

Howbeit, after the deccase of this Joan without issue, Sir Iohn de Peto Kt. being Colen and next heir unto her, entred ^x upon it without due proccels of Law, and demised ⁱ it to Raph Earl Stafford, Hugh de Stafford his son, Ric. de Stafford Brother to the said Earl, and Alice Perers, to hold for terme of their lives, and the longer liver of them; for which trespass they had a pardon ^z from the K. in 47 E. 3. but the inheritance thereof did Sir Iohn Worth Kt. recover ^a against the said Sir Iohn de Peto, and the rest, in 50 E. 3. as his right by descent from the before specified Sir Iohn Trillow and Joane; and the next year following, by speciall License ^b for that purpose, entailed ^e it by Feoffment upon the issue of his own body, and for want thereof upon Sir Walter Beauchamp Kt. and the heirs male of his body, with remainder to the right heirs of the said Sir Iohn Worth: which Sir Iohn dying ^d without issue in 14 R. 2. Sir W. Beauchamp became posselt thereof; by ^c vertue of the said Entail. But it was not long ere that the said Sir W. Beauchamp, and all the rest that had right therein past it to Will. Gre-vill of Campden in Gloucestershire; who to strengthen his title, obtained a Release ^f from the said W. de Peto Colen and heir to Geffrey de Langley, bearing date at Spilcote 5 Nov. 22. R. 2. which W. Gre-vill being so posselt thereof entailed ^g it, in 3 H. 4. on the issue male of his body by Joan his wife, and for want of such issue upon his other Sons, and the issue male of their bodies successively; scil. Iohn, Lodwick, and Wil. with remainder to his right heirs.

Of this name, viz. Greyvill or Greynvill (for both ways it is written) there was of an elder date in this County, as in Burmington I have shewed; but whether that they of Campden were of the same line I cannot say: and therefore of what family this Will. Gre-vill was, I am yet to learn; as also what is memorable of him other than his death, which hapned ^h in 2 H. 4. at Campden above specified; in the Parish Church whereof he lyeth ⁱ buried, leaving Joane his wife, Sister ^k of Sir Philip Thornbury Kt. surviving, who lived ^l a long time after, and Iohn his son and heir, but by a former wife, as may seem by the Entail before mentioned; which Iohn resided ^m also at Campden, and being Shiriff ⁿ of Gloucestershire and the Marches of Wales in 6 H. 4. bore ^o for his Arms Or, upon a Cross engrailed, within the like border ^p points in the dexter quarter. This Iohn wedded ^q Joyce, Sister to Hugh, but daughter of W. alt. Cokesey; by reason whereof, Thomas her grandchild became heir to Cokesey's lands, as I shall shew by and by. But Iohn the son and heir to the same Iohn and Joyce dwelt ^r at Cherleton-Regis in com. Glouc. and by the death of Joane his grandfather's second wife, hapning in 28 H. 6. came to posselt ^s this Mannour of Spilcote (which she held during life) where making then his residence, he became first a Justice of Peace in this Shire, from the last year of K. H. 6. reign; then, scil. in 1. E. 4. Shiriff ^t of this County and Leicestershire. In 5 E. 4. he was Knighted. In 13 E. 4. he again bore the Office of Shiriff ^u for these Shires; in which year he had livery ^v of the lands descended to him by the death of his mother: and in 17 E. 4. being then Shiriff ^w the third time, bore the same cote that his father did, excepting the Annulets upon the Cross, as by his Picture, together with his wife, both kneeling in their surcotes of Armes in the East Window of the Parish Church at Winton in this County, appeareth: but departed ^x this life 6 Aug. 20 E. 4. and was buried in the Church of Wetton super Abon, as may seem by the direction of his Testament ^y; leaving Thomas his son ^z and heir, and two daughters; viz. ^a Anne and Margaret: which Thomas, in respect of the inheritance he enjoyed by descent from his grandmother, assumed the surname ^b of Cokesey; and having forthwith livery ^c of his said fathers lands, being then 26 years of age, (residing here at Spilcote), was the same 20 E. 4. constituted ^d Shiriff of this County and Leicestershire; and at the Coronation of K. H. 7. one ^e of the Knights of the Bath, then created; concerning which Order, I shall here take leave to make a short digression.

That the making of Knights, by this solemn manner of Bathing, and other sacred Ceremonies (notwithstanding the originall thereof, cannot now be discerned) is of no less antiquity than the times of our ancestors the Saxons, is not (I think) to be doubted: for though in that mention made by ^f Will. Malmesb. of K. Alfred making his grandson Athelstan a Knight, he instances no more than the purple Robe, with the Sword and rich Belt; yet 'tis apparent, that when Geffrey of Anjou, in order to his marriage with Maud the Empreß, onely daughter to our King H. I. was made Knight at Roan, by the same K. Henry, on Whitsunday an. 1227. (27 H. 1.) it is said by ^g Iohn the Monk of Spurmonster, that he, with xxv. Ecquires,

quires, then attending him, were Barbed, according to ancient Custom: Illucescente die altera Balneorum usus, uti Tyrocinii suscipiendi consuetudo expostulat, paratus est (saith he.)

And concerning Robes, and other ornaments, goeth thus on: *Comperto Rex à Cubiculariis, quod Andegavensis, & qui cum eo venerant ascendissent de Lavacro, iussit eos ad se vocari. Post corporis ablutionem ascendens Comitis Andegavorum generosa proles Gaufridus, bysso retorta ad carnem induitur, Cyclade auro texta supervestitur, Chlamide conchylii, & muricis sanguine tincta tegitur, caligis holofericis calceatur, pedes ejus solatariis in superficie Leucentos aureos habentibus muniantur. Ejus verò consodales, qui cum eo militiæ suscipiende munus expectabant, universo bysso & purpura innovantur. And moreover: Talibus itaque, ut pretaxatum est, ornamentis decoratus, &c. adducti sunt Equi, allata sunt Arma; distribuntur singulis prout opus erat; There being put upon him harness of double Mail, and gilt Spurs, a Shield of the Lions of Anjou hung on his neck; a rich Helm on his head, and an armed Spear put into his hand; and lastly a Sword out of the King's store, ab antiquo (saith he) ibidem signatus, in quo fabricando Fabrorum superlativus Galannus multa opera & studio desudavit: And that thus armed, he mounted a Spanish Horse, which was also first given him by the King, the Feast that belong'd to his reception of this dignity (called Festum Tyrocinii) being honoured with Tournaments and Maïques, which lasted no less than seven days.*

Of which Courtly Ceremonies, most plain it is, that the use hath continued ever since, even through all ages, till towards these later times, though (perhaps) in some particulars varied: For it appears that King John, in 6 of his reign, being to confer this dignity on Thomas Sturmy, directed his Writ to the Sheriff of Warwickshire, for to make preparations to that purpose; which runs thus: *Præcipimus tibi, quod facias habere Thomæ Sturmy, valetto nostro, unam robam de Scarletto, cum quadam penula de byssis, & aliam robam de viridi, vel burnetta, & unam Sellam, & unum par Loicnorum, & capam ad plumam, & unam culcitram, & unum par lintheorum, quoniam ipse fiet miles. And of K. H. 3. his Knighting Alexander the third K. of Scotland (on Christmas day an. 1252.) at York and xxii. more with him, being the day preceding the said Alexander's marriage of Margaret, daughter to K. Henry, Math. Paris saith thus: *Baltheo donavit militari, qui omnibus vestibus pretiosis & excogitatis, sicut in tam celebri Tyrocinio decuit, ornabatur.

But as these Courtly Ceremonies, have been thus antiently used, so were there also sacred, as is evident by the testimony of Ingulphus; viz. a solemn Confession, Vigils in the Church, Receiving the Sacrament, offering the Sword on the Altar, with redemption of it, and the Bishops Abbots, Monks, or other Priests, putting it on him that was to be thus created; as by what he expresseth touching Hereward an English Gentleman (Lord of Waine in Lincolnshire) upon his return out of Flanders, when he was made a Kt. by Brand, his Uncle, then Abbot of Peterborough: Quoniam Anglorum erat consuetudo (saith he) quod, qui militiæ legitime consecrandus esset, vesperâ precedente diem suæ consecrationis ad E- piscopum, vel Abbatem, vel Monachum, vel Sacerdotem aliquem contritus, & compunctus, de omnibus suis peccatis, confessionem faceret; & absolutus, orationibus & devotionibus, & afflictionibus deditus, in Ecclesia pernoctaret; in crastino quoque Missam audiret, Gladium super Altare offerret, & post Evangelium, Sacerdos benedictum Gladium collo militis cum benedictione imponderet; & communicatus ad eandem Missam sacris Christi mysteriis, denuo Miles legitimus permaneret.

And that this usage of offering the Sword at the Altar, continued in after times, together with the reason thereof, we find very evident from Jan. Sarisburiensis — unde jam inolevit consuetudo, solennis (saith he) ut eadem die qua quisque militari cingulo decoratur, Ecclesiam solemniter adeat, Gladioque super Altare posito & oblato, quasi celebri professione factâ, seipsum obsequio Altaris devotat, & Gladii, id est officii sui regem Deo spondent famulatum; neque necesse est ut hoc proficiatur verbo, cum legitima professio in litia facto eius videatur inserta. And Petrus Blesensis who lived in the same age (scil. temp. H. 2.) further explaineth the same: Hodie Tyrones (saith he) ensos suos recipiunt de Altari, ut proficiantur se filios Ecclesie, atque ad honorem Sacerdotii, ad tuitionem pauperum, ad vindictam malefactorum, & patriæ liberationem Gladium accipisse.

All which, the learned Selden (from whose discourse upon this subject, the substance of what I have said, is gathered) supposeth to be continued, under the name of Vigils, upon that solemn Knighting of Geoffrey of Anjou before specified: So that, from what hath been said, we may clearly conclude, that as well the Sacred as Courtly Ceremonies, used at the conferring this dignity, have been very antient; and, very probably, observed in such sort, as by this following Narrative (being a translation from an ancient tract thereof, in French) may be seen: whereunto, for its better illustration, the following Figures, (delineated from a fair Book, in which they were drawn in much larger proportions, and in Colours, about K. Edw. the ivth time, by the great care and curiositie of that learned and worthy person, my singular friend Edw. Dylke Esq. and in his Notes upon Upton, already made publick) are here added.

Here followeth the order, and manner of creating Knights of the Bath, in the time of Peace, according to the Custom of England.

I. WHen an Esquire comes to Court, to receive the Order of Knighthood, in the time of Peace, according to the Custom of England, he shall be honourably received by the Officers of the Court; sc. the Steward or the Chamberlain, if they be present, but otherwise by the Marshalls and Ushers. Then there shall be provided two Esquires of Honour, grave and well seen in Courtship, and nurture; as also in the feats of Chivalrie, and they shall be Esquires, and Governours in all things relating to him, which shall take the Order above-said.

1st. In. ph. 11.

2. And if the Esquire do come before Dinner, he shall carry up one Dish of the first course to the King's Table.

3. And after this the Esquires Governours shall conduct the Esquire, that is to receive the Order, into his Chamber, without any more being seen that day.

4. And in the Evening the Esquires Governours shall send for the Barbour, and they shall make ready a Bath, handsomely hung with linnen, both within and without the Vessel, taking care that it be covered with Tapistrie, and blankets in respect of the coldness of the night. And then shall the Esquire be shaven, and his hair cut round. After which the Esquires Governours shall go to the King and say; Sir it is now in the Evening, and the Esquire is fited for the Bath, when you please: whereupon the King shall command his Chamberlain, that he shall take along with him, unto the Esquires Chamber, the most gentile and grave Knights that are present, to inform, counsell and instruct him touching the Order, and feats of Chivalrie: And in like manner, that the other Esquires of the Household, with the Minstrells, shall proceed before the Knights, singing, dancing, and sporting, even to the Chamber dore of the said Esquire.

5. And when the Esquires Governours shall hear the noise of the Minstrells, they shall undress the said Esquire, and put him naked into the Bath: But at the entrance into the Chamber, the Esquires Governours shall cause the Musick to cease, and the Esquires also for a while. And this being done, the grave Knights shall enter into the Chamber without making any noise, and doing reverence to each other, shall consider which of themselves it shall be that is to instruct the Esquire in the Order and course of the Bath. And when they are agreed, then shall the chief of them go to the Bath, and kneeling down before it, say with a soft voice: Sir! Be this Bath of great honour to you; and then he shall declare unto him the feats of the Order, as far as he can, putting part of the water of the Bath upon the shoulder of the Esquire; and having so done, take his leave. And the Esquires Governours shall attend at the sides of the Bath, and so likewise the other Knights; the one after the other, till all be done.

6. Then shall these Knights go out of the Chamber for a while; and the Esquires Governours shall take the Esquire out of the Bath, and help him to his Bed, there to continue till his body be dry; which Bed shall be plain, and without Curtains. And as soon as he is dry, they shall help him out of Bed; they shall cloath him very warm, in respect of the cold of the night; and over his inner Garments shall put on a Robe of Russet with long sleeves, having a Hood thereto like unto that of an Hermit. And the Esquire being out of the Bath, the Barbour shall take away the Bath, with whatsoever appertaineth thereto, both within and without, for his Fee; and likewise for the Coller (about his neck) be he Earl, Baron, Banneret, or Batcheler, according to the Custom of the Court.

7. And then shall the Esquires Governours open the dore of the Chamber, and shall cause the antient and grave Knights to enter to conduct the Esquire to the Chapell: And when they are come in, the Esquires sporting and dancing shall go before the Esquire, with the Minstrells, making melodie to the Chapell.

9. And being entred the Chapell, there shall be wine, and Spices ready to give to the Knights and Esquires. And then the Esquires Governours shall bring the said Knights before the Esquire to take their leave of him; and he shall give them thanks, all together, for the pains, favour and courtesie, which they have done him: and this being performed they shall depart out of the Chapell.

8. Then shall the Esquires Governours shut the dore of the Chapell, none staying therein except themselves, the Priest, the Chandler and the Watch. And in this manner shall the Esquire stay in the Chapell all night, till it be day, bestowing himself in Orisons and Prayers, beseeching Almighty God, and his blessed Mother, that of their good grace they will give him abilitie to receive this high temporall dignitie, to the honour, praise, and service of them; as also of holy Church, and the order of Knighthood. And at the Day-break, one shall call the Priest to confess him of all his sins, and having heard Mattines and Mass, shall afterwards be commended, if he please.

10. And after his entrance into the Chapell, there shall be a Taper burning before him; and so soon as Mass is begun, one of the Governours shall hold the Taper untill the reading of the Gospell; and then shall the Governour deliver it into his hands, who shall hold it, himself, till the Gospell be ended; but then shall receive it again from him, and set it before him, there to stand during the whole time of Mass.

11. And at the elevation of the Host, one of the Governours shall take the Hood from the Esquire, and afterwards deliver it to him again, untill the Gospell in principio: And at the beginning thereof, the Governour shall take the same Hood again, and cause it to be carried away, and shall give him the Taper, again, into his own hands.

12. And then, having a Penny, or more, in readiness, near to the Candlestick, at the words verbum caro factum est, the Esquire, kneeling, shall offer the Taper, and the Penie; that is to say the Taper to the honour of God, and the Penie to the honour of the person that makes him a Knight. All which being performed, the Esquires Governours shall conduct the Esquire to his Chamber, and shall lay him again in Bed, till it be full Day-light. And when he shall be thus in Bed, till the time of his rising, he shall be cloathed with a covering of Gold, called Singleton, and this shall be lined with blew Cardene. And when the Governours shall see it fit time, they shall go to the King and say to him: Sir! when doth it please you that our Master shall rise? Whereupon the King shall command the grave Knights, Esquires, and Minstrells, to go to the Chamber of the said Esquire, for to raise him, and to attire and dress him, and to bring him before him into the Hall. But before their entrance, and the noise of the Minstrells heard, the Esquires Governours shall provide all necessaries ready for the Order, to deliver to the Knights, for to attire and dress the Esquire.

And when the Knights are come to the Esquire's Chamber, they shall enter with leave, and say to him: Sir! Good morrow to you, it is time to get up, and make your self ready; and thereupon they shall take him by the Arme, to be dressed, the most antient of the said Knights reaching him his Shirt; another giving him his Breeches, the third his Doublet; and another putting upon him a Kirtle of red Tartarin: Two other shall raise him from the Bed, and two others put on his nether stockings with soles of leather sowed to them: Two other shall lace his sleeves, and another shall gird him with a Girdle of white leather without any Buckles thereon: Another shall combe his Head; another shall put on his Coife; Another shall give him his Mantle of silk (over the Bases or Kirtle of red Tartarin) tyed with a lace of white silk, with a pair of white Gloves hanging at the end of the Lace. And the Chandler shall take for his Fees, all the Garments, with the whole array and necessities wherewith the Esquire shall be apparelled and clothed on the day that he comes into the Court to receive the Order: As also the Bed wherein he first lay, after his Bathing, together with the Singleton and other necessities: In consideration of which Fees, the same Chandler shall find at his proper costs, the said Coife, the Gloves, the Girdle, and the Lace.

13. And when all this is done, the grave Knights shall get on Horsback, and conduct the Esquire to the Hall, the Minstrells going before, making Musick: But the Horse must be accounted, as followeth: The Saddle having a cover of black-leather, the bow of the Saddle being of white wood quartered. The Stirrop-leathers black; the Stirrops gilt; The Paitrell of black leather gilt, with a Cross patè gilt, hanging before the breast of the Horse, but without any Crooper: The Bridle black, with long notched Reines, after the Spanish fashion, and a Cross patè on the front. And there must be, provided a young Esquire, courteous, who shall ride before the Esquire, bare-headed, and carry the Esquire's Sword, with the Spurs hanging at the handle of the Sword: and the Scabberd of the Sword shall be of white leather, and the Girdle of white leather, without Buckles. And the Youth shall hold the Sword by the point, and after this manner must they ride to the King's Hall, the Governours being ready at hand.

14. And the grave Knights shall conduct the said Esquire; and so soon as they come before the Hall dore, the Marshalls and Huishers are to be ready to meet him, and desire him to alight: And being alighted, the Marshall shall take the Horse for his Fee, or else C. s. Then shall the Knights conduct him into the Hall up to the high Table; and afterwards up to the end of the second Table, untill the King's coming, the Knights standing on each side of him, and the Youth holding the sword upright before him, between the two Governours.

15. And when the King is come into the Hall, and beholderth the Esquire ready to receive this high Order, and temporall dignitie, he shall aske for the Sword and Spurs, which the Chamberlain shall take from the Youth, and shew to the King: And thereupon the King, taking the right Spur, shall deliver it to the most noble and gentile person there; and shall say to him: Put this upon the Esquire's heel; and he kneeling on one knee, must take the Esquire by the right Leg, and putting his foot on his own knee, is to fasten the Spur upon the right heel of the Esquire; and then making a Cross upon the Esquire's knee, shall kiss him: which being done, another Knight must come, and put on his left Spur, in like manner. And then shall the King, of his great favour, take the Sword and gird the Esquire therewith: whereupon the Esquire is to lift up his Armes, holding his hands together, and the Gloves betwixt his Thumbs and Fingers.

16. And the King putting his own armes about the Esquire's neck, say, Be thou a good Knight, and afterwards kiss him. Then are the antient Knights to conduct this new Knight to the Chappell, with much Musick, even to the high Altar; and there he shall kneel, and putting his right hand upon the Altar, is to promise to maintain the rights of holy Church, during his whole life.

17. And then he shall ungirt himself of his Sword, and with great devotion to God and holy Church, offer it there; praying unto God and all his Saints, that he may keep that Order, which he hath so taken, even to the end: all which being accomplished, he is to take a draught of Wine.

18. And at his going out of the Chappell, the King's Master-Cook, being ready to take off his Spurs, for his own Fee, shall say: I the King's Master-Cook am come to receive your Spurs for my Fee; and if you do any thing contrary to the Order of Knighthood (which God forbid) I shall hack your Spurs from your heels.

19. After this the Knights must conduct him again into the Hall, where he shall sit the first at the Knights Table, and the Knights about him, himself to be served as the others are: but he must neither eat nor drink at the Table, nor spit, nor look about him upwards or downwards, more than a Bride. And this being done, one of his Governours having a Handkerchief in his hand, shall hold it before his face, when he is to spit. And when the King is risen from his Table, and gone into his Chamber, then shall the new Knight be conducted with great store of Knights, and Minstrells, proceeding before him unto his own Chamber; and at his entrance the Knights and Minstrells shall take leave of him, and go to Dinner.

20. And the Knights being thus gone, the Chamber dore shall be fastned, and the new Knight disrobed of his attire, which is to be given to the Kings of Armes, in case they be there present; and if not, then to the other Heraulds, if they be there; otherwise to the Minstrells, together with a mark of silver, if he be a Knight Bachelor; if a Baron, double to that; if an Earl, or of a superior rank, double thereto. And the russet Night-cap must be given to the Watch, or else a Noble.

23. Then is he to be clothed again with a blew robe, the sleeves whercoft to be straight, shaped after the fashion of a Priest's: and upon his left shoulder to have a Lace of white silk, hanging: And he shall wear that Lace upon all his Garments, from that day forwards, untill he have gained some honour and renown by Arms, and is registred of as high record, as the Nobles, Knights, Esquires, and Heraulds of Arms; and be renowned for some feats of Arms, as aforesaid; or that some great Prince, or most noble Lorde, can cut that Lace from his shoulder, saying: Sir! we have heard so much of the true renown concerning your honour, which you have done in divers parts, to the great fame of Chivalrie, as to your self, and of him that made you a Knight, that it is meet this Lace be taken from you.

21. After Dinner the Knights of honour, and Gentlemen, must come to the Knight and conduct him into the presence of the King, the Esquires Governours going before him; where he is to say: Right noble and renowned Sir! I do in all that I can give you thanks for these honours, curtesies, and bountie, which you have vouchsafed to me: and having so said, shall take his leave of the King.

22. Then are the Esquires Governors to take leave of this their Master, saying: Sir! We have according to the King's command, and as we were obliged, done what we can; but if through negligence we have in ought displeased you; or by any thing we have done amiss at this time, we desire pardon of you for it. And on the other side! Sir, as right is, according to the Customs of the Court, and ancient Kingdoms, we do require our Robes and Fees, as the King's Esquires, companions to Bachelers, and other Lords.

Having said thus much, of this ancient and honourable Order, I return to the before specified Sir Thomas Cokeley.

The next year following (sc. 2 H. 7.) he was made a Banneret^h for his good service done in the Battail of Stoke: and in 4 H. 7. one^l of the Commissioners for making choice of Archers in this County to be sent into Britanny for releif of that Dutchy. The next year was he constituted^k one of the Justices for Gaol delivery in this County; and in 6 H. 7. a Commissioner^l for arraying of men in defence of this Realm, then in danger of an invasion by Charles the ixth. King of France; being also from the 6th. to the 12th. of H. 7. in Commission^m of the Peace in this Shire upon the severall renewings thereof. But Leland saith, ⁿ that he was a Rissler and slew a Bastard-son of Stafford of Worcestershire, notwithstanding the great brag that the Staffords bore in that County. This Thomas dyed^o in 14 H. 7. leaving Rch. Russell and Rob. Winter his Coheirs and heirs, ^p as the Descent in Wylke sheweth; by which it seems that his two sisters above specified had no issue: whereupon this Mannour, by force of the entail made in 3 H. 4. refocted^q to John Greவில் great grandchild to Lodowik, second son to the first William; which Lodowik took^r to wife Margaret the daughter and heir of Sir Gil s Arden Kt. by whom he had the Mannour of Dzaltton, near Banbury in Orfordshire, where he dyed 28 Aug. an. 1438. (17 H. 6.) and is interred^s, leaving Will. Greவில் his son and heir, who departed^t this life within two years after. To which Will. succeeded . . . Greவில், who wedded^u Catherine the sister and coheir to Rch. Pointz, by whom he had issue the same John Greவில், heir to this Lordsh p by Sir T. Cokeley's death without issue male, as above said: which John in 15 H. 7. was^x one of the Justices for the Gaol delivery at Warwick; and in^y 17. and^z 18. in Commission of the Peace in this County.

To whom succeeded Edm. his son and he r, first constituted^a a Justice of Peace in this Shire in 1 H. 8. and shortly after Knighted^b, but dyed in 20. H. 8. without any thing else memorable of him, and was buried^c in St. Annes Chapell: in the Church of Wotton super Avon, according to the appointment of his Will, leaving issue John^e his son and heir, and Fonke^d a younger son, of whom and his posterity I shall speak in Beauchamps. Corrc: which John was^e one of the Kts. for this Shire in that Parliament of 30 H. 8. so fatal to the Religious Houses; and being Knighted^f at the Coronation of K. Edw. 6. dyed^g 25 Nov. the year following, leaving Edm. his son and heir 30. years of age, who married^h Margaret one of the daughters and heirs to Will. Willington of Bercheton in this County, and dyedⁱ a Kt. 24 Dec. 2. Eliz. To whom succeeded Lodowik his son and heir then 22 years of age; who being an ambious spirited man, procured License^k from Q. Eliz. k Pat. 9. in 9 of her reign, to make a Cattle here at Mill-cote, and to call it Mount-Grevill, which accordingly he began to do on the top of the Hill above a quarter of a mile Southwards from the old Mannour house, as is to be seen by part of the fabrick yet standing: and therefore the better to support his greatness, though he had very fair possessions in this and other Counties, he eagerly coveted the estate of one . . . Web a wealthy Bachelor, who had been his servant, and then was Tenant to him at his Mannour of Dzaltton in Orfordshire; for obtaining whereof he plotted the murder of him, and forged a Will to entitle himself thereto (as from credible tradition I have heard.)

To accomplish which execrable design, he invited him to his House at a Christmas or Easter season, there to make merry (then residing at Seatoncote in Gloucestershire) and having so train'd him thither, hired two of his servants to strangle him in his bed; which being accordingly effected, he caused it to be given out in the House that the old man was fallen very sick, and not like to live; whereupon the Parson was sent for to write his Will, and one of the Murtherers convey'd into the bed with the dead man, about whom the curtains were close drawn, and he dolefully groaning as not like to continue long; so that being in this seeming weak condition, as not able to give directions how the Will should be made, all spoken by him (with a counterfeit voice too) was by way of answer to questions; viz. how and to whom his estate should be disposed, which (in short) was to his Master, meaning Lodowik Greவில், excepting a Legacy to an Attorny in Banbury; whose mouth thereby being stoppt, no one else, as he thought, would expect any thing, or at least not go about to question the Will: which being accordingly effected, and the company desired to depart the room, that the sick man might repose himself a little, the News of his death was soon after spread in the House, whereupon people were called up, who finding him dead in the bed, took order for his buriall.

And now that all this Pageant was over, Master Greவில் thought himself secure enough of his large Legacy. But to the end we may see how divine vengeance ceases not to prosecute such bloody actions, though carryed on with never so much closeness and subtilty, the discovery of this wicked murder was, ere long, thus brought to light. One of the Assassins being in his Cups at Stratford, dropt out some words amongst his pot-companions, that it lay in his power to hang his Master; which expression being, by one that heard thereof, related to the other Murtherer, he presently acquainted Master Greவில் therewith; who thereupon resolving to prevent the danger of any such further babbling, advised that he should be closely made away; and for effecting thereof, within a short space following, sent them both out in the night season upon some pretended business, by which means the other took his advantage to dispatch him, and cast his body into a pit of water, which afterwards floating was discovered by passengers; and upon enquiry when and with whom he had been last seen, the villain was brought in question, who forthwith confest the whole business, thereby detecting his Mr. throughout; for which they both had their tryals at Warwick, where Mr. Greவில், to prevent the loss of his his lands, stood mute, and so having Judgement to be prest, suffered death accordingly.

To whom succeeded Edward his son and heir in the inheritance of this Lordship, and other lands of great worth. Of which Edward I have heard, that in his younger years, inadvertently shooting an Arrow upright out of a long Bow, it fell upon his elder Brother's head, and kill'd him; and that their Father was so little sensible of this sad mishap, that he made a jest of it, telling him that it was the best shoot he ever shot in his life: but whether it was the judgement of God to put a period to the line of Lodowik before mentioned, for that horrid murder of Web and one of his servants, or for what else I may not take upon me to judge: certain it is that the whole estate came in short time after to be strangely wasted; for so great were Sir Edm. Grævil's debts, and leaving issue onely Daughters, that his lands were exposed to sale by Sir Arthur Ingram a Poskeshire Kt. (Husband to Mary the fifth of them) and this Mannour then purchased by Lionell Earl of Arundel, whose son and heir now enjoys it.

Dorsington-parva.

This, though it be in the Parish of Welford in com. Glouc. is in Warwickshire, and in the Conquerors time was posselt by the same Stefanus, who then had Wilcote, being certified to contain 1 hide, which one Ordric held before the Norman invasion. With Wilcote also it came to Geffrey Martell, and so likewise to Hauvill and Langley, as the Records I have there voucht will manifest: but after the 4th. of E. 3. I have not found any farther mention at all of it in Record, till 9 H. 8. that Maud Rous Widow was certified to have converted CC. acres of land, lying in this place, from tillage to pasture in 17 H. 7. and decaying three Ploughs, being then posselt of the Capitali messuage. From which Maud did descend Sir John Bromie of Ragley Kt. (as in Ragley appeareth) who in 3 E. 6. posselt it.

Binton.

This, being situate on the brow of an Hill, about half a mile distant from the River Abon, was one of the towns which S. Egwyn gave to the Abby of Chesham upon the foundation thereof in the year 709. but in the time of K. Ed. the martyr wrested from it (with other great possessions) by Alferus a potent Ruler in these parts, who expelled the Monks and placed Canons there, disposing of this place to certain of his Knights: so that upon the Conquest by D. William, it was given to some of his Normans; for it appears by the generall Survey, soon after made (where it is written Beminton) that Will. fil. Corbucion (of whom in Stodley I shall speak) held two hides here, and had 4 quarters of Corn and 8 sticks of Eeles out of his part in the Mill; and 3 quarters of Salt from Wiche as appurtenant to his part of the Mannour: all which being valued at xxx s. were the freehold of one Edricus before the Norman invasion. The residue of this town was then posselt by Gerinus, Urso de Abitot, and

Osbernus filius Ricardi, that which Urso held extending to two hides, with a Mill rated at ii s. was valued at xls. having been the freehold of Ervi in Edm. the Confessors days: but the certain proportion which belong'd to Osbernus cannot be discovered, forasmuch as it is certified and valued in gross, together with what he had in Hilborough; all which one Lodric was owner of in the Saxons time.

But the next mention I find thereof is in 1 Job. a Fine being then levied betwixt Alex. de Bereford and Henry de Deniton of lands here; which Henry, as a witness to a deed of lands in Graston is written Henricus de Buvintona; so that doubtless the first n in the name of this place is mistaken, and that it should be an n: for in 20. H. 3. it is likewise written Bubintone, at which time Henry de Buvintone held 2 parts of 2 Kts. fee here of the Earl of Warwick, and Nich. de Buvinton a fourth part: So also in 36 H. 3. where Raph de Buvintone, then held the 5th. part of 2 Kts. fee here, of Will. de Carrilupe, unto whom Corbicon's fees were granted, as in Stodley shall be shewed. Of this family was one Henry de Buvintone the last heir male, to whom succeeded Alice his Daughter and heir, wife of Elias de Wonecote, which Elias wrote himself Lord of this place in 21 E. 1. so also in 9 E. 2. and had issue Will. de Wonecote, owner thereof in 19 E. 2. which Will. about the later end of E. 2. time, being one of the Coroners in this County, was in 1 E. 3. found insufficient to bear that Office, and removed: and in 20 E. 3. certified to hold a Kts. fee in this place of the Lord Stafford.

But from this Will. having not seen any private evidence, I cannot exhibite a perfect succession, nor shew directly when Elias de Wonecote before mentioned brancht from the house of Wilmecote, near Stratford super Abon: howbeit, that he so did I am confident enough, in regard that upon the death without issue of Eliz. Daughter and heir to John de Wynecote, which hapned in 24 E. 3. Will. de Buvinton is found to be her Colin and next heir, and at that time lx. years of age. Of this line was Tho. de Wynecote, a Commissioner with others for collecting a Subsidy in this County in 2 R. 2. as also Walt. Wynecote, who by the name of Walt. Wynecote, of Benington Gent. was in 10 H. 6. certified to hold 8. mels. & 12. yard land, here, by the service of half a Kts. fee. To whom succeeded Ric. Wynecote L. of this Mannour in 11 E. 4. But the last of them that had to do here was Tho. Wynecote, who in 23. H. 8. sold this Mannour with the advouson of the Church to Sir George Throkmorton Kt. by whom it became disposed of to Nich. Throkmorton his second son: which Nich. by the name of Sir Nich. Throkmorton Kt. past it to Will. Walter Esq. in 1 & 2 Ph. & M.

This Will. Walter, being of Wimbleton in com. Sur. dyed seized thereof 10 Sept. 29 Eliz. leaving Will. his son and heir 40 years of age; from whom descended Sir Will. Walter Kt. who had issue James that dyed young, and two daughters; viz. Eliz. married to Sir John Sackville of in com. Cantii Kt. & Catherine to Knighton Ferrers Esq. son and heir to Sir John Ferrers of Dunsburne in com. Herts. Kt. whose marriage being without her Fathers consent, occasioned him to settle this Mannour, with the rest of his lands in Warwickshire, upon his Sister Catherine and her heirs; who had issue by the said Mr. Ferrers one onely daughter ter married to . . . Fanshaw son and heir to Sir Thomas Fanshaw of Ware-Park in com. Herts. Kt. of the Bathe, she her self taking to her second husband Sir Sim. Fanshaw Kt. Brother to the said Sir Thomas.

Besides the Mannour, already spoke of, there were certain lands lying in Binton, which anciently belong'd to the Abby of Woblesley, and w^h in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) were certified to be one Calucate with two Dovehouses, but by whom given to that Monastery I know not: howbeit these, by the name of the Mannour or Grange, called Binton-grange in 35 H. 8. were granted out of the Crown (inter alia) to Francis Sheldon Gent. and his heirs, who the same year past them away to Sir George Throkmorton above specified, by which means they were sold with the Mannour and advowson above said to Will. Walter, and are now come to Mr. Fanshaw, therewith. But that which here belong'd to Osbernus fil. Ricardi in the Conquerors time, was afterwards posselt by the family of Hubaud, who had lands in Wylbozow, close by; for in 6 E. 2. after the death of John de Hastings, it appears^w that John Hubaud held half a Kts. fee of him, here and in Wylbozow: the like being evident^{*} in 49 E. 3. after the death of John de Hastings Earl of Wembroke.

The Church in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) was valued^{*} at xiii. marks, and in² 26 H. 8. at viii l. over and above x s. v d. ob. for Procurations and Synodals.

the Church having been long ago devoured by depopulation, whereof our Countryman Rous,^b who lived about 200 years since, makes no small complaint.

To the posterity of Grentemaisnill it continued not; for such was the alteration made upon the advancement of Henry de Newburgh to the Earldom of Warwick (towards the later end of the Conquerors reign) that as the greatest part of those possessions, which the E. of Spellent his Brother had in this County, were conferred upon him; so also had he a share of these that Hugh de Grentemaisnill then enjoyed, of which this place was part, as is evident by that Certificate^c made in 11 H. 2 where Will. Earl of Warwick expresseth, that Osbert Trussell then held it of him by the service of one Kts fee, and that it was de Veteri Feoffamento, id est whereof the ancestor of the said Osbert had been enfeoffed temp. H. 1. and so consequently by the said Earl Henry: By which also I gather, that the same Osbernus was he to whom it had been granted, and (in all probability) grandfather to the said Osbert surnamed Trussell, who held it in 11 H. 2. as is above exprest. From this Osbert is it, that the severall families of Trussell; viz. of Cablesdon and Atton-Trussell in Staffordshire; of Flore and Gayton in Northamptonshire; of Aylmesthorpe in Leicestershire, and of this and other places in Warwickshire are descended, as the Pedegre (which I have the rather here inserted, because I shall speak historically in relation to some of them) doth shew.

Of Will. son an heir to Osbert I find, that he wedded Agnes^d one of the Daughters and coheirs to Rob. fil. Odonis of Lorley in this County; whose inheritance was distributed^e to them in 25 H. 2. and that he confirmed^f to the Monks of Combe certain lands lying in Cotes (id est Coton juxta Church-Ober) which he had in right of his said wife. To him succeeded Ric. Trussell, who was of the retinue^g to Walt. de Beauchamp in that Rebellion of the Barons against K. John, towards the later end of his reign; for which respect his lands were seized on: but it should seem that at length he returned to his obedience; for I find that the Sheriff had command to restore^h them unto him again. This Richard gaveⁱ to the Monks of Stoneley a messuage lying in Lorley before mentioned, unto which grant his Seal of Arms is affixed, whereby it appeareth that he bore Frette with a labell of 6 points in chief; of which I have the rather taken notice, in regard that some of his posterity bore wholly frette for their Arms, as I shall shew by and by: And had issue Will. and Richard, which Ric. was slain^k in the battail of Evesham in 49 H. 3. fighting there on the Barons part; and for that cause were his lands in Wylberton and Willenhall in this County, together with this Mannour of Billesley, then seized^l on: but it seems he had no issue; for William his Brother went away with the estate: which William was a man of great account in his time, and added much to his own inheritance, by the marriage^m of Roesia Daughter and heir to William Pantulf of Cablesdon in Staffordshire.

The first mention I find of him is in "20 H. 3. where, upon the Aid for the marriage of, Isabell the Kings sister to the Roman Emperour, he answers for one Kts. fee, held in this place of the Earl of Warwick: but afterwards, viz. ° in 25. 26. and 27. in which office of Shiriffalty he then continued for the space of two years. In 37 H. 3. I find him a Justice of Assize in this County; so also in 39. and 40 H. 3. In the later of which years, as also in 41. Commissioners by the K. to enquire and certifie the truth therein. Whether it were he or his son Will. I am not sure, but I rather suppose it to be him that adhered to Thomas Earl of Lancaster, Guy de Beauchamp E. of Warwick and others in the murder of Piers de Gaveston; for in 7 E. 2. I find that Will. Trussell, with those Earls and others, had his pardon^a for that offence. In 8 E. 2. he was constituted Shiriffe^b of this County and Leicestershire; and wedded^c Maude the daughter and heir^d to S^r Varin Manwaring Knight, by which means the Mannour of Wernicham and divers other Lordships in Cheshire and elsewhere came to this Family; but was dead^e in 10 E. 2. leaving his wife alive, afterwards married^f to Sir Oliver de Burdeaux a neer servant^g to K. Edw. 2. and 3. sons; viz. John, Will. and Varine, all Knights: which Oliver had his residence here; for in 17 E. 2. I find him in the list^h of those Kts. and Esquiers of this County, whose names were then certified into the Chancery.

But John was of Cablesdon in Staffordshire; and in 9 E. 3. gaveⁱ x^l yearly Rent issuing out of his Mannour of Rode in Cheshire to 3. Priests daily celebrating divine service in the Parish Church of Wernicham, beforementioned, for the health of his own soul, as also of his mothers; and the souls of all the faithfull departed. In 12 E. 3. he had Licen^kse to make a Castle of his habitation there. In 16 E. 3. he wrote^l himself of Adon, and his brother Will. of Cablesdon; and bore^m for his Armes Or frette gules, with a besant on each joyn of the frette, and for his Crest an Ases head couped, issuing out of a Coronet. By his first wife he had issueⁿ Sir Will. Trussell of Cablesdon Kt. who in 20 E. 3. being in Calceign upon the Kings immediate service had a special Patent^p of protection for all his servants and goods; and in 27 E. 3. a pardon^q for beating of Will. Musard, then Lord of Wolbarington in this County, and killing one of his servants. In 30 E. 3. he attended Edward the black Prince in his French expedition; and behaved himself so valiantly in that memorable battel of Poitiers, wherein he was one of those that fought neer unto his person, that the said Prince, in consideration thereof, gave him an annuity of x^l per an. during his life, to be received out of his Exchequer at Chester; and after that another annuitie of x^l more, as by his Charters^r, the one bearing date 15 Dec. 37 E. 3. and the other 26 Aug. 40 E. 3. which the K. confirmed, doth appear: At which time the K. granted to him a Licen^sse to impark his wood at Shybride-Pales in Shropshire, and to make a Castle of his Mannour house there.

In 33 E. 3. he again attended^u Edw. Prince of Wales into France; and in 1 R. 2. was retained by Indenture^w to serve the K. in his French wars with 40 men at Armes, of which number himself with two other Knights to be part, and the rest to be Esquiers, all well and fittingly arrayed for that Voyage, wherein John of Gant D. of Lanc. commanded in chief, his Army consisting of three thousand men at Armes and 3000 Archers: for which service the said Sir Will. was to receive the accustomed wages of War. In 3 R. 2. I find him again retained^x to serve the said King as Governour of the Castle of Calais for the space of one whole year, beginning at the Feast of All Saints, with 19 men at Armes, 20 Archers, and 10 Hobelers; of which number ten men at Armes, and ten Archers were to serve on Horsback and to be well and sufficiently accounted for the war: And for this service to receive for himself ii^s per diem, for every of his men at Armes i^s per diem, for his Archers on Horsback ix^d per diem, for his Archers on foot vi^d and for his Hobelers viii^d. But before the expiration of this year he died; viz. on^y Sunday in the first week of Lent, leaving Eliz. daughter of Sir Alured Trussell (one of the retinue^z unto T. Beauchamp Earl of Warwick) by Catherine his own daughter, his next heir, not fully 8 years of age; which Eliz. was afterwards married^a to Sir Baldwin Frevill Knight, and dyed^b without any issue: unto whom Margaret daughter of Sr. Will. Trussell (second brother to Sir John before specified) was found next heir, she being then the wife of S^r Fouk Pembridge Knight. Which Margaret dying^c also issuelesse, on S^r Barnabas day 3 H. 4. left a fair inheritance to Will. Trussell son of Laurence, son of Sir Warine Trussell Knight, the third brother to the above mentioned Sir John.

As for this Mannour of Willelme it was by Fine levied^d in 6 R. 2. betwixt Sir Alured Trussell Knight Plant. ff. and the same Sir Fouk Pembridge Knight; and Margaret his wife Deforc. entailed upon the said Sir Alured and the heirs male of his body, unto whom it accordingly continued till of late time that it was sold away, as I shall shew by and by. But of this Sir Alured and his descendants I shall respite what I have to say for a while, and take a view of the other branches of this ancient family, some of which had fair estates in this County, though their principall seats were elsewhere: And of these I will first begin with S^r Will. Trussell, brother to the abovesaid S^r John. In 7 E. 3. he was constituted^e Governour of the Castle of Beaumaris in Northwales. In 8 E. 3. Shirriff^f of Anglesey, and Governour^g of the same Castle, both for life; and in 9 E. 3. Eschaetor^h for all the Counties from Trent Southwards. But I am not sure that any more of the historicall passages, wherewith I have met, do concern this Sir Will. Trussell, being rather of opinion that they belong to Sir Will. the son of Sir Edmund; and therefore have I referred them to him, of whose line I purpose to speak in the last place; and shall now come to Sir Warine and his descendants.

This Sir Warine heldⁱ Willesley during his life by Lease from Sir John^h his elder brother; and resided here, as it seemes; for in 15 E. 3. being then a Knight, he had License^h granted by Wolstan then Bishop of Worcester, that himself and Maud his wife might have divine service celebrated by a fitting Priest in a private Chapell here, so that it should be without prejudice of the mother Church; which License was to continue only for two years. To him succeeded Laurence his sonⁱ and heir, who by marriage^m with Maud daughter and heir to Sir Thomas Charnells of Aylmesthorpe in Com. Leic. much increast his estate, and amongst other lands of her inheritance had the Mannour of Wilton in this County, as in my discourse of that place is shewed. Which Laurence had issue by her Sir Will. Trussell Knight, who by the death of Margaret the wife of Sir Foulk Pembridge Knight, daughter of Sir Will. Trussell of Aton-Trussell before specified, and heirⁿ not only to her fathers estate, but also, at length to the lands of Sir John Trussell her Uncle (as hath been already shewed) became posselt of Cubledon and Aton-Trussell, with divers other Lordships lying in the Counties of Staff. Salop. Northampton. Berk. Posff. and Essex; and left issueⁿ Sir^h Thomas, and he another Sir Will. Sheriff^p of Staffordshire in 6 H. 5. but had his residence in Leicestershire (at^h Aylmesthorpe) in H. 6. time.

Which Sir Will. Trussell in 11 E. 4. being then the Kings servant in the Office of Valet de Chambre, had a grant of the custody of the Kings private Pallace at Westminster for life; But afterwards seil. in 14 E. 4. he was one^t of the Kts. for the body to the same K. &c. retained^t by Indenture to serve him in his French wars, for one whole year, with six spears, himself accounted for one, and Lx. Archers well and sufficiently armed and arrayed; taking for himselfⁱⁱ per diem wages, xii^d per diem for the other Spears, and for the Archers vi^d. In 15 E. 4. he bore the Office of Sheriff^u for this County and Leicestershire, and dyed^w 22 Jan. 20 E. 4. seized of the Mannours of Aton-Trussell, Wedenhale, Shiriff-Hales, and Thriff-Haly lying in the Counties of Staff. and Salop. Waburne in Posffolk; Shotesbroke in Berk. Aylmesthorpe in Com. Leic. Langport, Eston-Mauduit, Perston, and Thorp-Malesours in Com. Northampton. Benington and Wenington in Essex; as also of this our Willesley in Warwickshire (but how that comes to passe I doe not apprehend) leaving Edm. his son^x and heir, who departed^y this life 10 Junii 14 H. 7. Eliz. his daughter^z and heir being then not much above two years of age, whose wardship and marriage in 22 H. 7. was granted^b by the King to John Vere then Earl of Orford, and to John Vere cosyn of the said Earl; which John married her, and became afterwards Earl of Orford; in whose family most of the lands of her inheritance continued till of late time.

I now come to Sir Edmund Trussell Kt. (second son to Will. by Ryese the daughter and heir to Will. Pantulf of Cubledon) He married^c Margaret the daughter to Walt. de Osewile, and left issue Will.^d and Edmund^e, which Edmund having to do at Spencestre and other places in this County (as shall there be shewed) was a man of some note and action as well as his elder brother: for I find^f that he assisted Guy de Beauchamp E. of Warw. and his complices in the murder of Piers de Gaveston. It seems that he and his brother had committed some high misdemeanour about the 16 of E. 2. for that year did the K. by a speciall Pat. & dated at Posff. 20 Sept. appoint Robert de Digby to pursue, arrest and seize upon them. In 12 E. 3. being then a Knight,^h he founded a Chantry at Wilt. Posff. (as I have there shewed) and gave for his Armesⁱ argent a Crose fleur gules debraissed with a bend. . . . but whether he left any issue or not, I cannot determine. So likewise was Will. his elder brother a K^t in 12 E. 2. and then gave for his Armes^j Argent a Crose fleur gules: but his principall seat was at^m Flore in Northamptonshire, though he also posselt Posff. Bagot, and Puthurst in this County. This is the man that was employed by the Commons in that wofull convention of theirs in 20 E. 2. called by themselves a Parliament; who pronounceth the words of Deposition to that unhappy King in this manner, as Knightonⁿ relates, Ego Will. Trussell vice omnium de terra Anglia, & totius Parliamenti Procurator, tibi Edwardo reddo homagium prius tibi factum; & extunc diffido te, & privo omnipotestate Regia & dignitate, nequaquam tibi de cetero tanquam Regi pariturus.

There are some circumstances that induce me to think, that he did repent of this strange fact, or at least that he did abhominat that cruell murder of K. E. 2. which so soon followed his said depofal; for though his lands were seized^v on as a Rebell by King E. 3. after the beginning of his reign; yet upon his submission in the Parl. held at Winchester, he was received into favour again, having had restitution of them, and pardon^w for his offence; which, as I conceive, was for adhering to Edmund Earl of Bent, brother unto the murdered King, at that time, when being made to believe K. Edm. the second was alive, he designed the delivery of him from imprisonment: for^x during that Parliament held at Winchester 1 E. 3. was the said Earl of Bent arrested, and lost his life for that buisnesse. It seems he was a man of great abilities; for immediately upon receipt of his pardon the King made him his Secretary,^y & sent him Embassadour^z to the King of Arragon to treat for a marriage betwixt Peter his son and heir, and Alianore sister to our K. Edward, which took not effect: After which I find him employed as a Commissioner in this County and Leicestershire upon sundry occasions; viz. in 6 E. 2. for the Gaol delivery at Warwick. In 10 E. 3. for hearing and determining cases of Felony and other misdemeanours. In 11 E. 3. for declaring the Kings purposes to the Clergy and Laity upon their lending money to prevent war betwixt England and France. In 12 E. 3. for conservation of the peace in this County; as also in the Counties of Worcester and Orford. In 19 E. 3. again for conservation of the peace in this County: In which year being of the Kings Councell, as the Pat. expresseth, he had a grant^z of xliⁱⁱ per an. fee to be received

To which Will. succeeded Theobald, and to him John; of whom and his descendants, I shall here say no more than that he was Lord of Solihull in this County, about the latter end of E. 3. and beginning of R. 2. time, in right of his wife (as when I come to that place shall be manifested,) whose issue male became shortly after extinct: so that Sir Alured Trussell Knight (his brother) became Lord of this Mannour, it being settled upon him and the heirs of his body in 6 R. 2. as I have already shewed; and was one of the most eminent men in Warwickshire of his time: for it appears that he served as one of the Knights for this shire in the several Parliaments of 1. 2. and 4th of H. 4. held at Westminster: as also in 9 H. 4. at Gloucester; and was Sheriff^c of this County and Leicestershire in 4 H. 4. In 9 H. 4. he was constituted^d Eschaeror for these Counties: in 6 H. 5. one^e of the Commissioners of Array in this Shire: In 7 appointed^f with others to treat with the people for lending money to the King, and both in K. Lee Alderman of London: which S^r Robert having so purchased it, new built a great part of the Mannour House, and made it his chief seat, being a Justice of Peace in this County a great part of *K. Temple-Grafton.

THIS, containing the Villages of Ardens, Grafton, and Willesborough, was one of those towns given^m to the Abby of Evesham shortly after the foundation thereof; but through the oppression of certain potent men, with divers other lands belonging to that Monastery, was takenⁿ away from the Monks long before the Norman Invasion; so that upon the Conquest by Duke Will. it became disposed of to some of his followers: for by the generall Survey^o shortly after made, whereby tis certified to contain 5. hides valued at 4^{li} I find that Osbernus fil. Ricardi (of whom I shall speak in Aston-Cantlow) possessed it at that time, there being then a Church; and that one Gilebert was his Tenant thereto: as also that Mervin, Scotin, Toti and Tosti held it in Edw. the Confessors dayes: but in that Record it is written Graftone the f being mistaken for an s: for out of doubt it was originally both written and called Graftone, or Graefetone, having its appellation from bushes, which in our old English were called Greves. Whether the Monks of Evesham did ever actually enjoy it again, is hard to say, though it be plain that much of their ancient possessions was afterwards, through the prudence of some succeeding Abbots regained: but but certain it is that Abbot Mauricius (who lived in the reigns of K. Will. Rufus and H. 1.) made a grant thereof to Raph Boteler of Oberley (a great man in these parts) Howbeit, long was it not after, ere that one Bernard de Grafton became owner of it; for by the grant of a messuage, here, from Henry the son of Rob. Parker, unto Geffrey Pancefot and his heirs (scil. about K. R. 1. time) which messuage is said to be de feodo Henrici Bernardi, no lesse may be inferred.

I have not yet seen by any Record till 26 H. 8. that it had the name of Temple-Grafton; for anciently it was called Grafton superior, and by that name I find it in 20 E. 3. and that which is now called Arden's Grafton, Grafton inferior: By which name, viz. Temple-Grafton it might be supposed that the Knights Templars were sometime seized of all, or a great part of this town: howbeit I do not discern that they had any thing to do here, either by that Survey taken of their lands in an. 1185 31 H. 2. or in that of 1 E. 2. which was after the dissolution of their Order: but in truth it was the Knights Hospitalars, upon whome the Templars lands were bestowed, who were posselt of it: some whereof they had by grant from Henry the son to Bernard de Grafton before specified, as appeareth by their publique Instrument bearing date an. 1189. 1 R. 1. whereby they gave to Simon de Arden and his heirs half a hide of land lying in this place, being all or part of that which they had acquired of the said Henry, paying to them and their successors xii^d per an. for all services; so that at the decease of him and his heirs, the third part of the Chattells, which should happen to be upon that land, might for the health of his soul remain to their house.

But though Henry was son to the before specified Bernard, he was not his heir, as I conceive, but rather Raph de Grafton, of whom I find mention in 33 H. 2. and 7 R. 1. betwixt which Raph and Will. Picot a fine was levied in 1 Joh. of one hide of land lying in this place. Which Raph was dead without issue before the 6 year of K. John; for then did Raph Boteler of Oberley give a Fine to the K. of an C^s that he might seize those lands, which the said Raph de Grafton held, untill it should be determined by a legall triall, whether he had more right to them than Henry de Beresford. What title it was that the said Raph Boteler challenged I find not; but plain it is that he prevailed nor; for Henry de Beresford enjoyed it, having obtained the interest that Margaret daughter to Will. de Grafton, brother to the before mentioned Raph, had therein, excepting one hide given to Margaret her mother in marriage, which was of the Abbot of Evesham's fee; in consideration of which grant and quit claim, the same H. de Beresford covenanted to maintain her with all necessaries during her life, and to take care of Will. her son, and Felicia her daughter, that they should be disposed of in a convenient fashion. Upon the death of which Henry without issue, all that he had here descended to Henry de Nafford, son of his sister Dionysia; which in 36 H. 3. was certified to be held of the Earls of Warwick by the service of half a Kts. Fee.

Howbeit, the posterity of Nafford enjoy'd it not long; for it is evident that the Hospitalars became posselt thereof shortly after; and in 31 H. 3. obtained 2 messuages, 10 acres of land, and one acre of meadow from one Thomas de Salopesbiri and Idonea his wife; so that in 9 E. 2. they were certified to be sole Lords of this Grafton, and to hold it of the Earl of Warwick by the service of one Knights Fee. But as all the rest of their possessions came to the Crown by that grand dissolution in 30 H. 8. so did this; and was shortly after purchased from the K. by Will. Sheldon Esq; and John Draper, by the name of the Mannour of Temple-Grafton, with the Rectory, and advowson of the Vicaridge. It should seeme that upon partition of the lands past in that Pat. to the said W. Sheldon and J. Draper (for much more in this and other Counties is thereby granted) this Mannour was allotted to Draper; for I find that the said J. Draper disposed thereof to Rob. Draper a younger son; and of the Rectory, with the advowson of the Vicaridge to his son Richard, which Richard departing this life 2 Apr. 8 Eliz. left Anne the wife of Will. Kempson, and Isabell the wife of Ric. Gennens his sisters and heirs: but of the Mannour did Rob. Draper dye seized 13 Junii 5 Eliz. leaving Will. his son and heir two years of age and upwards: which Will. married Margaret the daughter of Anthony Sheldon of Broadway in Com. Wigorn. and, having no issue by her, serled it upon Brace Sheldon, second son of Will. eldest brother to her the said Margaret; whose son and heir now enjoys it.

Of the Church (dedicated to S. Andrew) I do not find any valuation in an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) but upon collection of the Nones of Sheaf, Wooll and Lamb in 14 E. 3. it was rated at vii^l xlii^s iiii^d and in 26 H. 8. certified to be appropriate to the Hospitalars, who (it seems) found some Stipendiary to serve the Cure, unto whom there was no certain allowance assigned.

and one virgate of land, which were valued at xxx^s and posselt by Will. fil. Corbucionis, of whom Leu-ric and Eileva then held it, whose freehold it had been in Edw. the Confessor's dayes. After which; viz. in H. 2. time, Raph de Grafion enjoy'd it, as it seems; for it appears that Margar. de Grafion, neice and heir to the said Raph, sold³ 3 hides lying in this place (for they are said to be de feodo Petri de Stodelei) to Will. de Arden in th^x year of K. John's reign; whose posterity continuing Lords thereof, gave occasion that it was called Arden's Grafion: which W. de Arden in 52 H. 3. was certified¹ to hold it of the Earl of Warwick by the service of half a Kts. fee; to whose widow, sc. Agatha it was assigned¹ in dower in 4 E. 1. the extent thereof being thus recorded¹; viz. a Mannour House with a garden, Clx acres of land and pasture; four yard land held in Villenage, each yard land yeilding x^s per an. and the Rent of xii^d and a pound of pepper from the Freeholders. By the same extent¹ it also appeareth, that one Alanus de Grafion then held 1. yard land in this Village, reckoned for the 5th part of a Kts. fee, and lyable to forrein service upon occasion. But it seems that this Hamlet came to the hands of K. Edw. 1. and probably at that time when Knoll and other lands in this County were by a kind of exchange past unto him from one of Arden's heirs: for in 20 E. 1. the same King gave^w it therewith to the Monks of Westminster for the celebration of Q. Alianor's Anniversary (as in Knoll is manifested) to whom it continued till the general dissolution by K. H. 8. and was then purchased^x from the Crown by Will. Sheldon Esq; and John Draper, together with Temple Grafion, the possession whereof (for ought I know to the contrary) it hath ever since accompanied.

In this Village had the Monks of Evesham a portion of land granted¹ to them by Wegeat one of our reputed Earls of Warwick before the Norman Conquest; which was confirm'd² to them by Ufa his successor, about the year of Christ 964 And in 6 E. 6. did one Roger Swift die² seized of a certain capitall mcs, lying in this Hamlet, called Allen's land, wherunto belonged 500 acres of land, 300 acres of Meadow, 40 acres of Pasture 20 acres of wood, and 200 acres of Heath and Furs, leaving Frances Swift, daughter of his son Edw. his cosyn and heir; which Frances (when the Inquis. after his death was taken) was^b 8 years of age; and afterwards became the wife^c of Edw. Kempson Gent. second son to Will. Kempson of Temple Grafion, and had issue^a George Kempson.

Hillborough.

THIS having been anciently given to the Monks of Evesham, together with Grafion, as I have there observed; but wrested from them in the Saxons time, was soon after the Norman Conquest enjoyed^c by Urso de Abetot, and Osbernus fil. Ricardi, as by the generall Survey then made appeareth, wherein it is written Hildeborde and Hildeberend, that which the said Urso held being then certified¹ to contain 1. hide and a half, rated at xx^s, having been the Freehold of one Ernu in E. the Confessor's dayes: But the certain proportion, which Osbernus had, cannot be, well known, in regard it is confounded with what he held in Bent- tone (now called Binton) all which is there rated at 3. hides and a half, and were held of him by one Hugh (as in Binton is already shewed) the Mill here being of the same antiquity, if not greater. Whether those Monks ever actually reposelt it again, I cannot affirm; but certain it is, that Abbot Robert, who lived² in the beginning of K. Will. Rufus his reign, made a grant^h thereof to one Will. de Sevecurte, who held it not long as it seems: for it is evident, that about the time of K. Steph. or H. 2. Peter de Stodleg (progenitor to the family of Corbizon) and Henry de Montfort were owners of a great part thereof; and that immediately upon the Foundation of Wordestey Abby, the same Peter gave¹ to that Monastery x acres of land lying here, it being in his grant written Hilburgetworth: And about the same time did the said Henry grant^k also to the Monks of that House, fishing in the river of Abon, and free passage with their boat through his floudgates here at Hildeburweth, but not the fishing of the said floudgates.

I am of opinion, that the greatest part that Osbernus fil. Ricardi had here, came as soon to the ancestors of Hubaut, as Ipsey did, where I shall more fully speak of that ancient Family: howbeit till 3 Joh. I have not seen any thing of them in relation to this place; but then doth it appear that Henry Hubaut and Peter Corbizon levied a Fine of lands to the use of the Monks of Wordestey; which portion of Corbizons was in 13 Joh. certified¹ to be held also of the Honour of Ricards Castle (belonging to the descendants of the same Osbernus) by the fourth part of a Kts. Fee: But the whole, lying here in Hilbertworth, held of that Honour, was half a Kts. Fee; for so it appeareth^m in 20 H. 3. and inⁿ 39 H. 3. yeilded vi s. vi d. ob. yearly Rent to the heir of Will. de Cantilupe, as a member of Aston-Cantilupe in this County, whereof the extent was then certified; which at length came wholly to the said Henry Hubaut: For that which Montfort had, he granted^o it to Peter Corbizon before specified, from whom all that he could lay claim to, was recovered^p by the same H. Hubaut upon a tryall in the King's Court at Westminster; so that in 20 E. 3. this, with Ipsey were joyn'd^q together and accounted for one Kts. Fee, being then held of Hastings E. of Pembroke (as heir to Cantilupe) by John Hubaut lineall heir to the before specified Henry: but afterwards I find^r that they were severed again, and Ipsey certified to be held by the whole, and this by the one half of a Kts Fee. To give instances from the authority of Record, that the descendants of the said John Hubaut have successively continued Lords of this Mannour, I shall not need, for as much as they are posselt of it at this day; and therefore referring my Reader to Ipsey, where I have inserted their Pedegree, I hasten to Bidford.

Bidford.

THIS was ancient demesn of the Crown, being posselt by K. Edw. the Confessor, and retained by K. Will. the Conqueror, as appears by his general Survey, wherein it is certified, that he had v. hides of land here, with 4 Mills yeilding xliii s. iii d. and 150 acres of medow: as also that the woods belonging thereto were then accounted to be 4 miles miles in length and one mile in breadth. In that Record it is written Bedesford: But besides what the King had here, it appears that the Bishop of Batour (sc. Odo half brother to the Conq.) then held two yard land and a half, with certain woods also, containing two furlongs in length and one in breadth; all which were valued at x s. having been the freehold of Ernulf and Ernegrin before the Norman Invasion. Of that which belong'd to the Crown, I find that Maud the Empreſſe (in K. Steph. tim) made the first diminution, by granting to the Monks of Wordestep, upon her foundation of that Abby, all that was of her demesne in this Mannour (totum dominicatum Budesfordie are the words) whereof, it seems, two of the Mills were part; for so doth the confirmation Charter of her said gift, made by K. Ric. the first in 1. of his reign, import; whereby he reserved a power to repossesse that demesne, whensoever he should bestow on them other lands of as good value: but I do not discern that he or his successors ever did it; for the Monks enjoy'd the same, even till the dissolution of that Monastery, as I shall further shew by and by.

As for the residue of this Mannour; id est the Tenancies of all sorts, it continued in the Crown till King John's time, the Inhabitants being at several seasons, during K. H. 2. reign, excoiled to give Aid to the King upon sundry occasions (whereunto his Tenants in antient demesne were then lyable) viz. in 15 H. 2. towards the marriage of his daughter, four marks; in 19 H. 2. upon a taxation made by the Justices Itinerant, 7 marks; in 20 H. 2. xlv s. viii d. upon the like; and in 23 H. 2. C s. upon another Aid assent by the then Justices Itinerant. But, upon the marriage of Joane daughter to K. John, unto Lewelin Prince of Northwales towards the later end of his reign, was it given by that King unto the said Lewelin; for in 17 Joh. the Shiriff of this County had command, that Thomas de Erdington, and Walt. le Pober should survey it, and deliver the extent thereof to the Attornies of the said Lewelin, and to his use: And in 2 H. 2. the K. directed his precept to the then Shiriff that he should make livery thereof to the same Lewelin; expressing that King John his father had so given it to him in marriage with the before specified Joane; the account of its value for one half year being then lxxvi s. Which Prince of Wales, being thus possesse hereof, in 4 H. 3. obtained a grant from the King for a Mercate to be kept here every Tuesday, weekly; But the Tuesday being soon found to be an inconvenient day; within xx. days following, the Shiriff received command for proclaiming it to be held upon the Friday. After which it was not long ere the said Prince gave it away (inter alia) with Helene his daughter in Frank marriage, unto John surnamed Scot, nephew to Ranulph Earl of Chester by the said Earl's eldest sister: but upon the said Lewelin his breaking out in Rebellion, the King taking no notice of such his disposal thereof, caused it to be seized on; howbeit, when manifestation was made of the same grant, the Barons of the Exchequer received command that the said John Scot (who was then Earl of Huntingdon) should quietly enjoy it.

But the next possessor thereof, of whom I find any mention, was Baldwin Wake, in right of Hawisia his wife, it being of her inheritance [daughter, as I take it, to Humfrey de Bohun jun.

who married Joane one of the daughters and heirs to Rob. de Quincy, third son of Saier de Quincy Earl of Winchester by Helene the widow of John Scot Earl of Chester and Huntingdon; for Humfrey de Bohun, who was taken in the battaill of Evesham in 49 H. 3. had lands here, and in Brome for upon the purchase of it made by Rob. Burnell Bishop of Bathe and Wells in 8 E. 1. from the said Baldwine and Hawise, there is speciall warranty against the heirs of her the said Hawise. Which Bishop having so obtain'd it, within two years after procured a new Charter from the King for the weekly Mercate upon the Fryday bearing date at Westm. 24 Nov. 10 E. 1. And another also of the same date for Free-warren in all his demesne lands here: and dying seized thereof left Sir Philip Burnell Knight (son of his brother Sir Hugh Burnell) his colyn and heir. Which Sir Philip had issue Sir Edw. who deceased in 9 E. 2. without issue, leaving Maud his sifter and heir, first married to John Lovell, and afterwards to Sir John Handlow Knight (as by the Descent in Brome appeareth) Which Sir John Handlow and Maud entailed this Mannour upon the heirs male of their two bodies (wherein at that time Aliva the widow of Sir Edw. Burnell had an estate in dower) and for default of such issue to the right heirs of her the said Maud.

By virtue whereof, upon the death of the same Aliva, which hapned in 37 E. 3. Nich. son of the said Sir John Handlow and Maud (which Nich. assumed the surname of Burnell) had livery thereof; and dyed in 6 R. 2. leaving Sir Hugh Burnell Knight his son and heir 26 years of age, whose son Sir Edw. Burnell Knight, dying in his life time without any issue male, it returned to the right heirs of Maud the sifter and heir of Sir Edw. Burnell Knight before specified; viz. Henry Lovell Lord Morley, lineal heir to her the said Maud by Sir John Lovell Knight, her first husband above mentioned. Which Henry, being also tenant in tail (sc. to the heirs male of his body) and dying without issue, the estate therein came to Francis Viscount Lovell, his brothers son, and his heirs. How it came to passe I cannot tell; but certain it is, that in H. 6. time Joane Beauchamp Lady Bergavenny and others, had an interest in this Mannour; during which they demised it to Thomas Harewell, and granted the inheritance thereof in reversion, unto Thomas Earl of Salisbury, and others: all which was (I suppose) but in trust, in regard it descended to the same Henry Lord Morley, as I have shewed, and so came to the said Francis Viscount Lovell; upon whose attainder in Parliament, about the beginning of H. 7. reign, it escheated to the Crown, & therein continued till 6 H. 8. that the King by his Letters Pat. dated 24 Martii granted it to Gerard Danet, one of the Esquiers for his body, and Mary his wife, and to the heirs male of their two bodies: which Gerard and Mary had issue Sir John Danet Knight that dyed in his mothers life time; leaving Leonard his son and heir, 29 years of age at the death of the said Mary his grandmother. Which Leonard in 6 Eliz. had a confirmation of his estate herein granted to him by the Queen; as also of the Friday Mercate every week; with the grant of two Faires yearly.

I come now to that Mannour, which belong'd to the Monastery of Wordestep. In 13 E. 1. the Monks of that House were questioned for holding a Court Leet here, and clayming Assize of bread and beer therein, who pleaded Preicription for the same; whereupon the Jury certified, that one of the preceding Abbots of Wozdley, about an hundred years before that time, built divers houses upon this their Lordship, and placed certain Freeholders there; and that he and his successors had kept a Court Leet, and had Assize of bread and beer in this place; whereupon the Monks were permitted to enjoy those privileges. The extent of what they had here was in an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) certified^o to be v. Carucates of land, then valued at x^a a carucate, and two Mills rated at xx^s. All which, by the name of a Mannour, (together with the site of Wozdley Abby &c. after the surrender of that House to the K. use) was, by a special Fine levied in Trinitie Terme 30 H. 8. by John Byley Abbot of Wozdley, and the Covent of that Monastery passed unto the said K. his heirs and successors for ever: who, being accordingly seized thereof, by his Letters Pat.^o dated 1 Junii 37 H. 8. granted it (inter alia) to Tho. Badger, Tho. Fowler and Rob. Dyson and their heirs, there being at that time a certain mansion named Widsoyd Grange, with three Mills called the Grange Mills reputed parcell thereof, together with the Tithes of the said Grange and fishing in Abon, to be held by the xxth part of a Knights Fee.

It should seem that these Patentees made some partition of the lands so passed to them by K. H. 8. and that thereupon this Mannour with th^e appurtenances was allotted to the said Thomas Badger; for by the Inquis.^o taken after his death it appears, that by his last Will and Testament, bearing date 15 Oct. 13 Eliz. he gave the inheritance of the Grange before specified to Thomas his son and heir. To Will. his younger son and his heirs a House and Land in Widsoyd; and to Ric. and Edward his other sons and their heirs, the three water Mills, and other lands: which Thomas, the son of Thomas, dying^o seized of the said Mannour 8 Feb. 38 Eliz. left Will. his son and heir then 23 years of age.

In 23 H. 1. two parts of the Tithe issuing out of the Inclosures here, were given^o by Roger Earl of Warwick to the Collegiate Church of Warwick, then newly by him founded; in which Tithes the said Earl claimed interest, as it seems, by reason of the Church of Salfozd, within the Parish whereof Widsoyd was by him supposed to be. Whether it were really so or not, I will not stand to argue; but sure I am, that though Bernard, the first Prior of Kenilworth after the foundation of that Monastery, challenged this as a member of Salfozd (whereof I shall speak in its proper place) the strongest title thereto that the Canons of that House had, was the grant^o of the said King Henry in these words; Ecclesiam queque de Wudisford, de meo dominio, quam Bernardus Prior dirationavit fuisse de parochia sua de Salfozd; unto which Simon then Bishop of Worcester soon added his confirmation^o, as also Baldwin his successor in H. 2. time.

About the beginning of King John's time there was controversie betwixt the Canons of Kenilworth and the Monks of Wozdley about the third part of the Tithes of all that the said Monks had in tillage within this their Lordship of Wudisford, and for all the Tithe corne of certain particular grounds there: whereupon appeal being made to the Pope (c. Innocent the 3.) who appointed the Abbots of Wingswone, Bristol, and Baintham to hear and determine the same, it was concluded^x that the said Monks of Wozdley should thenceforth pay to the Canons of Kenilworth, in lieu of all Tithes due from them to the said Church of Wudisford xxxvii s. yearly within the Octaves of S. Michael; the said Monks further promising^o, that if at any time afterwards the Monastery of Wozdley should receive Tithes within the parish of Wudisford, that they would without contradiction pay the tenth sheaf of Corne to the Church of Wudisford; which Agreement was so made and ratified An. D. 1206 (8 Joh.) But it seems that the Canons of Warwick before mentioned, were not utterly justified out here, notwithstanding the said grant made by K. H. 1. to those of Kenilworth: for by the Certificate^o made in an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) upon that general taxation of the Churches, that they then received xx s. as a portion issuing out of the fruits thereof; at which time this Church was valued^o at vii marks and a half: but the absolute appropriation of it to the use of the said Canons of Kenilworth, was not till 9 E. 2. by Walt. Maydenston Bishop of Worcester, whose Instrument^o to that purpose bears date at Hampton super Abon xvi Cal. Feb. an. 1315, at which time the Vicaridge was endowed^o, the fruits thereunto assigned being then valued at xxv. marks; and the said Church expressed to be ab antiquo, tanquam Capella ad Ecclesiam de Salfozd dependens: In consideration of which Appropriation so made, id est to recompence the damage which might redound to the said Bishop and his successors thereby, the Canons of Kenilworth then granted^o to him in the name of Procuracion the summe of four marks of silver, payable every third year upon the Feast day of S. Mich. th^e arch Angell: and xx s. yearly to the Monks of Worcester (as the Bishop's Chapter) in the name of a Pension^o, to be paid at the Feast of the Annuntiation of the blessed Virgin.

In 14 E. 3. this Church (dedicated to S. Laurence) was valued^o at xi l. but in 7 H. 6. at xi li. vi s. viii d. And in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge^o at viii li. the Synodalls and Procuracions issuing out thereof then amounting to ix s. v d. ob.

King's Brome.

THIS, though now a distinct thing from Burnell's Brome, was not formerly so. In the year from our Saviours incarnation 711. being given^k by Ceolred K. of Mercia (son of K. Ethelred) to the Monks of Cheesham, it was after the Norman Conquest wrested^l from them by Odo Bishop of Batheur (half brother to K. Will.) and by the generall Survey^m certified to contain four hides, which being held of him by one Stefan were valued at Lx s. By that Recordⁿ it appears that five free men were owners of it before the said Conquest; so that considering what is already express^t, it must then be concluded that they held it of those Monks of Cheesham. Which Odo gave^o it to Osbernus fil. Ricardi (of whom in Aston-Cantelup I have spoke) who mortgaged it^p to Egelwyn Abbot of Cheesham for four markes of gold; and because he would not repay that sum, gave it for ever to that Abbot: but when the said Odo and Egelwyn were both dead, the said Os seized^q upon it again, and withheld both the land and money.

It seems that Raph Boteler (who first had D. versley in H. 1. time) got some title, soon after, therein; for upon his Foundation of the Monastery at Alcester, in 5 Steph. he gave^r the Tithes hereof thereto. What right it was that he had, 'tis certain that the same continued to him but a while; for evident it is, that in 12 H. 2. Geffrey Martellen enjoy'd it, being then amerc'd^s for some certain purprestures made here; yet was he but the Kings Tenant to it, as the Shiriff's accompt^u of 16 H. 2. manifests, where he answereth C s. to the Exchequer for the ferm thereof payd by the said Geffrey.

After this, viz. in 33 H. 2. I find^w that the then Shiriff accounted lxviii s. viii d. for the issues of this place, which but a little before one Will. de Crikkelade had held: And in 1 R. 1. Cv s. for the profits thereof, still mentioning the same W. de Crikkelade's possessing it: yet in 9 R. 1. where the Shiriff accounts for the ferm of the moitie of Alencester, under the title de Escetie, this of Brome is joyned therewith, and certified to have been belonging to Henry de le Pome: (of which Henry, &c. what he was, I have express^t my opinion in Alcester.) But hitherto I cannot distinguish these two Bromes; and therefore whether that spoken of by these Records, which I have cited, do mean both of them involved together, I am not able to determine: yet after this, viz. in 23 H. 3. I find that Robert the son of Hamon de Brome, payd his Relief for 7 yard land in Brome, which doth shortly appear to be this King's Brome: for in 7 E. 1. it was certified^a that the same Robert, about the Feast of S. Gregory 3 E. 1. enfeoff^b M^r Will. Pickerell of one mess, four yard land and a fourth part in King's Brome for the xth part of a Knights Fee, and that he had formerly, viz. temp. Regis Joh. & H. 3. aliened three yard land to several persons named in the same Inquisition: which Rob. notwithstanding what he thus past away, dyed^b seized of three yard land in this place with a House thereupon, leaving Robert his son and heir three years of age.

But after this I find little more memorable in relation to this Village, forasmuch as sundry persons became interested in several parts thereof; Will. le Boteler of Dversley having^c one yard land and a half held by 3 Freeholders; Walt. Pikerell^d 1 mess. 1 carucate of land, 3 acres of meadow, and xv s. iii d. yearly rent, held of the K. in Capite by the tenth part of a Kts. Fee, whereof he had been enfeoff^e by Will. Pikerell (his uncle) before specified. Which Walter past^e the greatest part thereof to Peter de Leicester; who was certified^f to dye seized of a certain Mannour here, held of the K. in Capite by the tenth part of a Kts. Fee. Besides these it appears that Ric. de Stanford purchased other lands here; for upon his death in 14 E. 2. I find^g that he held one toft, with 4 yard land and a half, here, of the K. in Capite, by the service of a pair of Tongs to be paid yearly into the Exchequer by the hands of the Shiriff of this County; which lands came^h afterwards, by marriage of Stanford's heirs to the Families of Hartwell and Morehall.

Burnell's Brome.

THIS Mannour, together with Widsozd was purchasedⁱ in 8 E. 1. by Rob. Burnell Bishop of Bathe and Wells, of Baldwine Wake and Hawise his wife, being of her inheritance, as may seem by the warranty^k against her heirs: which Bishop obtained a Charter^l of Free-warren, within two years after, for himself and his heirs in all his demesne lands here and left it to Sir Philip Burnell his nephew to whose descendants it continued together with Widsozd.

'Tis very like that the Burnells having here a Mannour house, situate with such great advantages for pleasure and profit, sometimes made their abode here, though their principall seat was at the Castle of Holgate in Shropsh. but I do not find that any of them had employment in this County, except S^r Hugh Burnell, who was in Commission for the Peace here, from 1 H. 4. till^m he dyed. That they were men of great note appears by these instances, viz. that from 5 E. 2. till his death, Sir Edw. Burnell, was summonedⁿ to Parl. with the other Barons: so also^o S^r Nicholas from 24 E. 3. and S^r Hugh from 7 R. 2. Which S^r Hugh departing^q this world in 8 H. 5. had his sepulture^r in the Quire of the Abby at Hales Owen under a goodly Tombe of Alabaster built in his life time, near to Joyce his wife, daughter and heir to the Lord Botetort of Worcester Castle in Worcester-shire, whose Armes he quartered^s, though the

Robert was produced, manifesting that the Tithes, with the parochial rights of the Court (id est the Mannour house) did belong to the said mother-Church of Welnesford. In ^q 20 H. 3. upon collection of the Aid for marriage of the King's sister to the Rom. Emperour, it answered for one Knights Fee, being there certified under the Fees of Hugh de Albini, and expressed to be held of him by Corbeth; But in ^q 26 H. 3. it is recorded to be of the Earl of Gloucester his Fee, and then held by Rob. Foliot. What right it was that Corbet had here I know not; but it seems that he did not quietly enjoy it: for first I find that in 32 H. 3. Roesia Foliot brought an Assize of Novell disseisin against Will. Corbet, for lands here; and in ^q 45 H. 3. Joan Foliot an Assize of Mort d'ancestor against him for this Mannour: which Will. Corbet was of Chadstep-Corbet in Worcestersh.

I am of opinion that this Joane Foliot was daughter and heire to the before specified Robert, and married to Ric. de Willamescote; for by a pleading in 52 H. 3. I find that the said Richard and Joan his wife had to do here; and in ^q 4 E. 1. the said Ric. was presented for withdrawing his suit due to the Hundred Court for this Village. To which Richard succeeded Henry de Willemescote; that sold this Mannour to John de Bloxam in 35 E. 1. Who in 18 E. 2. past it away to Will. de Beresford; which Will. died seized of it in 20 E. 2. Whereupon it was (inter alia) assigned to Margaret his widow in dower. In the family of Beresford (whereof I shall speak in Langley) it continued for some descents, S^r Baldw. de Beresford Knight, grandchild to the before specified Will. having Free-warren granted to him in all his demesne lands here. But it seems that this S^r Baldw. having no issue male of his body, the reversion thereof after the decease of Eliz. his wife, was settled upon Thomas the son of Philip St. Clere; for upon her death in 1 H. 6. the said Thomas was found to be next heir thereto, though what relation he had to him in blood, I am not very certain: which Thomas in 13 H. 6. dyed seized of it, leaving Eliz. Alianore, and Edith his daughters and heirs; Eliz. being afterwards married to Will. Lovell, Alianore to John Gage, and Edith to Ric. Harecourt Esquiers. But farther as to its succession can I say no more, than that it was, about the beginning of Q. Eliz. time, purchased by the Lady S. John widow to S^r Edw. Griffin of Dingley (Attorney Generall to Q. Eliz.) for S^r Ries Griffin her son by the said Sir Edward: which Sir Ries left issue Edward his son and heir now owner thereof.

It should seem that a good proportion of this Hamlet was antiently belonging to the family of Morehall (of Morehall juxta Wellesford) for in 20 E. 3. Amicia de Morehall, with Will. de Audley were certified to answer for one Knights Fee here; held of Will. Corbet, and by him of the Honour of Gloucester; and so divolving to Clopton as the Mannour of Morehall did, was past therewith by S^r Will. Clopton Kt. to Thomas Crewe Esq; for life: After which, Sir John Burgh Kt. held it for life, as Tenant by the Curtesie of England, being of the inheritance of Joane his wife daughter and coheir to the said Will. Clopton: which Joane had likewise severall daughters and heirs (as in Morehall is shewed) amongst whom this with the rest of her lands were divided.

The Chapell here is very antient, having been founded by Will. Foliot in H. 2. dayes; to whom succeeded Robert before mentioned. About the beginning of K. John's time there was one R. Foliot Parson here, betwixt whom and the Monks of Welnesbury there growing some dispute, as to the right of the Tithes arising out of the Court, or Mannour House, an Agreement was made, and confirmed by Malgerius then Bishop of Worcester, to this effect; viz. that the Monks should thenceforth receive two parts of the Tithe Corn, as they had formerly wont to do, with the moitie of the small Tithes: and that the said R. and his successors should have the third part, with the other moitie of the small Tithes: as also all the Tithe Hay of the Lord's demesne, together with the Tithe of such land and other goods as Will. Foliot, the pious Founder of the same Chapell, did charitably give thereto.

Having now past through all those places of note in this Hundred, which border upon Abbon; descending by the banks of that fair stream farther westwards, I find it, about two miles below Bloxford, increased by another pleasant River called Arrow, which rising near the Lickey Hills in Worcestersh. enters this Hundred at Ipstep, and so passing Southwards by Alcester, at length is united with it near Saltford, as the Map will shew. But touching the original occasion of its name, the antiquity of it being so great, I shall only make a guesse; which is, that it might take its first appellation by similitude, as that most famous Armenian River Tigris did from the swiftness of its course; for an Arrow was by the Medes called Tigris, as we find in Strabo lib. xi Geograph. And that the current of this is very speedy, need not to be doubted, if we consider from what a lofty ascent the water falls, wherewith by every great showre it is always augmented: Howbeit, before I speak of Ipstep in particular, I must not omit to take notice of Hewell-Grange, standing in the utmost nook of this Hundred, westwards; as also of those small Hamlets, Tutnell and Coble, situate within the Parish of Earbick, whereof the Chancell is in this Hundred, though the body of the Church be in Worcestersh.

Hewell Grange.

This being given to the Monks of Bordesley in Worcestersh. (near unto which it is situate) by Maud the Empreffe, upon her Foundation of that Monastery; and in 19 E. 1. rated together with Lee (called in the Record Lega) at 7 carucates of Land, and every carucate at 1 Mark, having then a Dovehouse valued at 100 per an. was with the site of the before-specified Monastery, and all that belong'd thereto, passed to the K. in 30 H. 8. by a Fine, which John Biley the then Abbot, with the Covent of that House levied to the use of the said K. his heirs and successors: and by him, together with the whole Abby, granted in exchange, within 4 years following, unto S^r Andrew Windsor K^t Lord Windsor, for the Mannour of Stanwell in Com. Midd. with its appurtenances, lying in the Counties of Midd. Surr. Buck. Berks. and Southampton. Since which time the successive Lords Windsor have made it one of their principal seats, and some of them had sepulture in the Chancell of Earbick, as their Monuments do testify, a lively representation whereof, through the tender respect of the present Lord Windsor to the memory of his noble ancestors, I have here exhibited, foras much as the Chancell, wherein they stand, is in this County, though the Church be in Worcestersh.

Tutnell and Cogley.

OF these two Hamlets there is very little mention in Record, other than the grant of them to the King by that Fine from the Abbot and Convent of Wobbsley; and their disposall, with Hewell, to the before specified Lord Windsor, as the Patent before cited imports.

Ipseley.

THIS was posselt in the Conquerors time by Osbernus fil. Ricardi (of whom in Aston-Cantilupe I shall say more) and of him then held by one Hugh, having at that time a Church; as also a Mill rated at xvi^d, and woods extending to one mile in length and half a mile in breadth, all which were valued at xl^s; but before the Norman Invasion it belonged to Earl Algair (of whom in Cobentre I have spoke.) I am of opinio that this Hugh was progenitor to that antient family of Hubaud, which hath continued Lords of this Mannour in a lineall succession till now: for in H. 2. time I do find one Hugh Hubald tenant unto Osbernus fil. Hugonis, grandchild to the before specified Osbernus, though we now do, and for a long time through corruptnesse in expresseion have pronounced it Hubaud, changing the H into n, as is frequent in the Northern parts, and thereupon so written it to this day. But the first that I meet with in this Countie surnamed Hubold is Will. Hubold in 5 Steph. whom I suppose to have been son to the first Hugh, and father to the said Hugh Hubald, for the time and other circumstances will well enough bear it. To which Hugh succeeded Henry, whom I find sometimes written Hubald, and sometimes Hubant; and to him another Henry, though I cannot perfectly distinguish where the first ceased; wherefore I have, upon consideration of the time, seated him for part of H. 2. Ric. 1. and King John's reign, and accordingly have framed the ensuing Pedegree.

gain a Commissioner for the Gaol delivery at Warwicks; sc. in 53, 54, 56 H. 3. 1, 2, 3, 6 and 7 E. 1. In 13 E. 1. being questioned for withdrawing his suit from the County Court, and claiming a Court Leet within this his Mannour of Wpseley; by one Inquis. it appears that he disclaimed any such challenge; yet by another^h, whereby John de Hastings was required to shew by what authority he exercised that libertie in his Mannour of Aston-Cantilupe, and extended it into this of Wpseley, it is evident, that Will. de Cantilupe the elder, together with this Henry had done it in K. Henry. 3. time, whereupon that Prescription was allowed; which Cantilupes were great men, and having an eminent seat there, coveted to get the observance of those neighbouring Inhabitants, as it seems, pretending that this Lordship was immediately held of that their Mannour of Aston, and it of Ricard's Castle, in regard that all of them were possess'd by Osbornus fil. Ricardi in the Conquerors time: For though by some Inquisitions it is said to be held of Ricard's-Castle, yet in others was it found to be held of that Mannour; and at last, viz. in 1 E. 1. whether by the potency of Cantilupe, or whether by agreement with Mortimer of Ricard's-Castle, (heir to Osbornus fil. Ricardi, as in Farnborough is shewed) I know not, was certified to be held of George de Cantilupe; and so also in 15 E. 1. of John de Hastings (heir unto Cantilupe) upon the death of the same Henry Hubaud himself, and at severall times after.

To which Henry, who was a Knight before he died, succeeded John Hubaud, within age at his Father's death; for in 12 E. 2. did Sir Eymerie Pauncefote K^t grant and sell to S^r Will. Lucie of Cherlecofe K^t the marriage of the said John, to the intent that he should take to wife Margaret the daughter of the said S^r Will. Lucie; which it seems he did accordingly, as may appear by a Fine levied in 14 E. 2. whereby two parts of this Mannour were settled upon the said S^r Emeric and Joan his wife, for the life of the said Joan (whom I suppose to have been mother to the same John) and afterwards to return unto the same John Hubaud and Margaret, and the heirs of the said John. This John Hubaud, with many other persons of quality, was in 15 E. 2. employed into Wales upon the Kings service, for which he had special Letters of Protection. In 13 E. 3. he was a K^t, and in 18. one of the Commissioners, in this County, assigned to enquire what persons were seized of Lands to the yearly value of C s. and so upwards to a thousand pounds per an. over and above reprises and to certify the same. In 19 E. 3. he had Summons to furnish himself with Horse and Armes against the Feast of S. Laurence to attend the King in his French Expedition: and was also assigned one of the Commissioners of Array in this County, as to the providing of Archers for that service: but he then went not, as it seems; for I find that within 3 months after such his Summons, the K. receiving advertisement that he was somewhat weak in body, so that he could not well undergoe that employment, as also that two of his sons were then in his service beyond Sea; viz. the one in Brittany and the other in Gascoign, he had a special exemption from that voyage.

Ipsley

On the North side of the Chancell is this Monument.

On the South side of the Chancell.

Here lyeth the bodies of John Hubaude of Ipsley knight and of Mary his wiffe the yongest daughter of George Chrosmorton knight Which John deccased the xxiiith of December in the yere of our lord god 1540 and the said Mary deccased the xxiiith day of March in the yere of our lord 1541 upon whole soules Ihu have mercy Amen.

In 20 E. 3. he was again appointed * one of the Commissioners in this County for arraying of Clx. Archers for the Wars of France; as also assigned one of the Collectors of a xvth and xth then granted in Parliament for the Kings service, and bore ² for his Armes Sable a Cheveron betwixt 3. Leopards heads jessant flower de luces Argent: which coat was assumed by him or his Ancestors for their relation to Camille in the tenure of this Mannour, without doubt. To this Sir John Hubaud succeeded John his son and heir; of whom all that I find memorable is, that in 29 E. 3. he ² was one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament then held at Westminster: And to him Thomas, a Commissioner^o in 2 R. 2. for assessing and collecting of a Subsidy in this County, then granted to the King in Parliament; which Thomas had issue Richard Hubaud Esquier, who is ranked ^c amongst those persons of chief note in this Shire, that in 12 H. 6. Made Oath for observance of certain Articles concluded on in the Parliament then holden, and bore ⁴ for his Armes the three Leopards heads without a Cheveron, with a labell of 3. points in chief: But after him I have not seen any thing very memorable of this family, relating to their publique employments, untill Queen Eliz. time, that John Hubaud Esquier, a person highly favoured by Robert Earl of Leicester, who bore so mighty a sway in those days, was by him in 14. of the said Queens reign, pro bono consilio, favore, & fideli amicitia multipliciter impenso & impenderao (as are the words of his Charter^c) constituted Constable of Kenilworth Castle, and chief Steward of all his Mannours and lands lying in this Countie; as also in the Countiees of Salop, Worcester, and Montgomery; and chief Ranger of all his Forests, Parks, and Chafes within those Lordships, having the Fee of x li. per annum granted unto him during life for that service.

The Church (dedicated to S. Peter) was in anno 1291. (19 E. 1. valued^t at xii. marks: so also in 14⁵ E. 3. but in^h 26 H. 8. at xii li. at which time the Procurations and Synodalls were ix s. v d. ob.

In the body of the Church, towards the North side, is there a raised Monument, but of a much meaner structure than either of those in the Chancell (which are represented on the last page) for it is onely of plaine stone-work with an Alabaster cover, whereon is the portraiture of a man and woman graved, and this Epitaph on the Verge;

Here lyeth the bodies of Nicholas Hubaud Esquier, and Dorothe his Wife; the which Nicholas deceased the second day of May in the yere of our Lord M D llii; and the said Dorothe deceased the xvith day of May in the yere of our Lord M D llii. Upon whose soules God have mercy Amen.

Studley.

Descending lower on the same side of Arroto I come to Studley, within which Parish these places of note are situate; scil. Mappleborough, Skilts, Holt and Madoxgre. In the Conquerors time the greatest part thereof, viz. four hides (in which also stood the Church and a Mill) was possessed by Will. fil. Corbucionis, whereunto belonged a Furnace yeilding annually xix. Horse-loads of Salt, and woods extending to one mile in length, and half as much in breadth: All which were then estimated at C s. having been the freehold of Swain before the Norman Invasion. But the other part, which in Edward the Confessors days belonged to Godric, and at that time to Will. Buenvasleth, containing onely one hide besides the woods, that were three furlongs in length and two in breadth, and valued therewith at x s. was held of him by one William.

Of the before specified Will. fil. Corbucion, I find that he was a man of eminent note in this County, having^k lands in Alminton, Kineton, Sekinton, Wiltshaw, Hadenhall, Moxingham, Weston, Coundon, Barcheston, Mappleborough, Ecclethall, & ibid.

Grafton, Binton, Bereford, Colberton, Bearley, and here at Studley, where he or some of his descendants had a Castle, as by the ruines thereof is evident, and thereat their principall seat, though they had likewise fair possessions in Berk. and Staffordshire: I am of opinion that this William was Shiriff of this County for some part of William the Conquerors reign; for upon that confirmation to the Monks of Worcester, of Alveston in this County, and the Mill at Salewarp in Worce- stershire, originally given to them by S. Wulfstan, the said King directed his speciall Precept¹ unto Henry Earl of Warwick, Urso de Abetot, and this Will. fil. Corbucion, for their quiet enjoyment of those places, which Urso was then Shiriff of Wor- cestershire, as elsewhere I have manifested. To the said William succeeded^m Robert Corbusceon, who in H. 1. time, upon the Dedication of the Church of Ecclethale, gaveⁿ certain Glebe thereto. And next unto him Peter (his brother as I guesse)
 who in some authorities is written^o Petrus filius Willielmi, and in others Petrus Corbezou, as also Petrus de Stodley: which Peter was a witness^p to severall Charters of Margaret Countesse of War- wick, and^q of Earl Roger her son; and in 12 H. 2.
 held^r ten Knights fees and a fourth part of William Earl of Warwick de veteri feoffamento: whence I conclude, that whatsoever William his grandfather did possesse in the Conquerors time, upon erection of Henry de Norwiche to the Earldom of War- wick, the same was given to that Earl; and that he newly enfeoffed the said Peter thereof: but it seems he kept them not long; for I find that he passed^s them back to Earl Waleran, brother to the said William.

This Peter was a most devout man; for to the Monks of Worcester he gave^t lands in Wilbozough;
 To^u the Knights Templars the Mill here at Stod- ley, and certain lands besides: And moreover was the pious Founder of that Monastery for Canons Regular here in Studley, whereof together with its particular endowments, benefactors, and dissolution I shall speak by and by. But to him succeeded Peter his son^w & heir, who left very little here to his descendants: for it 2 Joh. he sold to his Tenants of this Mannour, all his wood called the Hape, to the intent that they and their heirs should have Common of Pasture therein for their Cattell, saving onely to himself and his heirs the paunage and agiltment for Hogs. Besides this it appears^y that he gave to Henry de Montfort (Lord of Beldefert) a large proportion of lands, here, with Emme his daughter in Frank marriage;
 and likewise divers tenements and particular parcels of ground in exchange for that which the said Henry recovered at Wilsburgewerthe (now Wil- bozough) in the Kings Court at Westminster by a triall at Law: And moreover to Thurstan Mont- fort, son to the said Henry, the intire Park of Stodley, with severall other tenements. So that, accounting also the homage and services of certain particular Tenants in this place, which together with the advouson and patronage of the Priory, he granted^z to William de Cantilupe, I do not find that he left his posterity much more than the bare name of the Mannour: for those of the Inhabitants here, that held of Cantilupe, by reason of the grant to him so made as aforesaid, appeared^a at his Court-leet for Alton-Cantilupe, and did partake with the Tenants of that Mannour in sundry other priviledges.

Of the particulars which Montfort had here, I find^b this mention in 24 E. 1. Upon the Extent of John de Montfort's lands; viz. that he had ix s.
 yearly Rent, payable from five Freeholders at the Feasts of S. Michael and the Annunciation of our Lady; as also a Park and a certain Meadow held of the Earl of Warwick by the fourth part of a Knights Fee; which Park was then in the hands of the said Earl, as it seems; for that very year did there a Commission^c issue out to certain persons to enquire who those were that had entred therein and killed his Deer. But these came at length to William Beauchamp Lord Bergavenny, in such fort^d as the Castle of Beldefert and town of Pen- ley did. As to what the Templars had here, the extent thereof, upon the death of Guy de Beau- champ Earl of Warwick, was signified^e to be one mess, one carucate of land, ten acres of meadow, two Mills and xxx s. Rent; all which he had seized into his hands, and held during his life as superior Lord of the Fee, upon the suppression of that Order in 4 E. 2. But it was not long after, that the Knights Hospitalars posselt the same, with the rest of the Templars lands, as in Balghall shall be manifested. That which the heirs of Cantilupe had here, was held of them by the third part of a Knights Fee, John the son of William de la Hay
 to holding^f it of John de Hastings Lord Berga- venny in 18 E. 2. from whom it came^h to William Beauchamp before specified, with much more of Hastings lands.

And touching the Mannour, the substance of what else I have seenⁱ, is, that Peter Corbison
 in 29 E. 3. enfeoffed the then Vicar of Studley
 therein, together with pasturage for a Horse called a Hackney, in a meadow there known by the name of Castle-meadow, to be tyed and flitted with an iron chain, from the Feast of the Purifi- cation of our Lady untill the said meadow should be mowed; reserving an yearly Rent of three broad Arrow heads to the chief Lord of the Fee for all services. Which Peter Corbison had issue^k one only daughter and heir called Felicia, married^l to John Barret of Shelshull, unto whom the said Vicar of Studley past^m the premisses in 9 R. 2. which John and Felicia left also a daughter and heir weddedⁿ to Atwood, who had onely issue Female, one whereof became the wife^o of Hunt in H. 8. time; from whom Hunt, who now possesseth the site of the before specified Castle, derives his descent.

The Church, being given to the Canons of Studley upon the Foundation of that Monastery, as shall anon be shewed; and in anno 1291, (19 E.
1.) valued^p at xv. marks and a half, was very an-tiently appropriated to the Priory here; and in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge rated^q at viii li. not in Tithes, but a meer stipend^r payable by the Canons to the Incumbent for the time being,

In this Church there hath been a Chantry founded in 7 H. 4. by Thomas Middlemore of Edgbaston, for a certain Priest to sing Masse daily at the Altar of the blessed Virgin, on the South part of the same Church, for the good estate of him the said Thomas during this life, and the health of his soul after his departure hence: as also for the souls of his Father and mother, and all the faithfull deceased. Which Chantry was endowed with Lxxx. acres of land, x. acres of meadow, and xliii s. iv d. yearly Rent lying in Studley above mentioned: the revenues whereof in 26 H. 8. were rated at iv li. xliii s. iv d. which sum in 37 H. 8. was yearly received by the Priest belonging thereto, at the hands of M^r Robert Middlemore, notwithstanding he did not duly attend here, but sung in other places at his pleasure.

This was first founded in King Stephen's time, by Peter Corbicon (otherwise called Peter de Stodleg, in regard of his residence here) for Canons Regular of S. Augustin's Order, at a place called Wiltun near Wiche in Worcester-shire; and by him endowed with the Churches of the same Wiltun, as also of Stodley, Coston (now Cough-ton in this County) Salperton in Gloucester-shire, and all other Churches of his Patronage, after the death of the Incumbents that had been presented thereto by him the said Peter or his father; and likewise with half the town of Wiltun before specified, three Houses in Worcester, and two Furnaces of Salt at Wiche, and the Tithes of all the rest of his Salt there: And moreover with half the Tithes of all his demesne lands in Tikenapetre in Com Wigorn, the whole proportion of his efforts there, with a Meadow, and the oblations called Chirset of that village; and likewise of C. acres of his demesne lands in Salperton before specified; of the Chapelry of his own House; and all thereto belonging, with the freedom from Toll, Tak and many other exactions. Which Canons rested not long at Wiltun, but were translated hither; with an assignation unto them of the Churches above-specified, and an addition of the Church of Anedeburne with the Chapell of Doymetun in Gloucester-shire, and the Chapelry of his own House there: as also the grant of divers particular lands; viz. one yard land in Stodley situate on the bank of the river Arrow, with two curtilages thereunto belonging (which I take to be it whereupon the Monastery was built:) all his lands lying below the high way leading from Wozdley to the bounds of Ip-ley; a Meadow called Brunham; a grove of Alders lying betwixt Stretford and Wastford; a Mill that Edwin Brochard held; lands which had been belonging to one Aschetill, with the wood adjoining; the land of Eluric the Clothier, and the wood situate betwixt Alan's land and that of Roger de la Haye, with certain other lands which appertained to Robert Meriam. And over and above all this, he gave them CC. acres of his demesne lands lying in Salperton before specified; scilicet C. acres in the East field, and C. acres in the West: Confirming likewise his former grant of the said three Houses in Worcester; half the Tithes of Tikenapetre, with the efforts, Meadow, and Chirchset before mentioned; as also the Tithes of his Salt at Wiche, with the two Furnaces there.

But as the greatnesse of this family much diminished in the time of Peter Corbicon son and heir to Peter the Founder, so did also the glory of this Monastery: for it appears, that at such time as the Patronage thereof was granted by the said Peter unto William de Cantilupe and his heirs, the revenues of it were so wasted by ill guidance and government, that there were no more than three Canons then left therein: Neverthelesse, by the pious care and munificence of him and his posterity, it soon came to flourish again: For besides the grant of those his possessions in Shottwell (in this County) which he had acquired from Eustace de de Mortem and John Wandard, with a House and Curtilage, he vouchsafed unto them the privilege, that ^d whensoever their House should happen to be vacant by the death of their Prior, they should as freely proceed to a new election of another, as any Collegiate Church in such cases used to do; first only craving the Licence of him the said William and his heirs; and after the election so made, then humbly desiring his or their assent thereunto. And moreover, that whereas by Custome in some Monasteries of England, the custody during the vacancy appertained to the Patron; he notwithstanding granted unto them, for him and his heirs, that whensoever any such vacancy should happen, the Sub-Prior and Celerer for the time being, should in the name of him the said William and his heirs, have the custody thereof, so that both or one of them did first repair unto him or his heirs to receive the administration thereof at his or their hands; but that the Bishop nor any other should have ought to do therewith. All which concessions and immunities were ratified by William Witlesey Bishop of Worcester, as his publique Instrument dated here a Stodley upon the day of S. Sylvester the Pope Anno 1364. (38 E. 3.) doth testify.

To which William de Cantilupe succeeded Will. his son and heir, who followed the steps of his devout father in bounty to these Canons, as appears by ^e his grant of lands to them, lying in Aston-Cantilupe, to the value of x li. per annum, for the support and maintenance of a certain Hospitall erected by his father neer the Gate of this Monastery, where impotent people might have relief and entertainment. Which William likewise bestowed upon ^f them xx s. yearly Rent, issuing out of certain lands in Snarkeston (in Com. Leic.) held of him by Raph de Charnells, with pasturage for eight Oxen, two Kine, and one Horse in his own demesne Pasture of Buchme and the Rene: granting them also power to hold a Court for their own Tenants as freely as ever he himself used to do. And further added ^g the Church of Hemeston in Debonshire of his patronage; as also all those efforts, with their appurtenances, lying within his Park at Shelthall, as they are bounded with the High-way leading from Spernoze towards Aston; together with the perpetuall patronage of the Church at Aston, as also certain lands situate in the Village of Trente. And lastly obtained a Charter ^h from King H. 3. dated at Westminster 22. Dec. 26 H. 3. whereby he granted to them, that their woods lying within the Forest of Jfekenham might be free to themselves, and no Officer of the Kings belonging to the Forest, to intermedle therein, nor presse upon them for hospitality or entertainment without their own good liking.

From other Benefactors they had as followeth; viz. in Perdeley (Com. Wigorn.) 33. acres of land given by William Cumin, antiently Lord of that Mannour: as also a certain proportion there and in Oze, conferred on them by William de Edricheston. In Ippeley some quantity by Thomas le Barbour; In Aldestwelle by Peter de Afferugge; In Wilton by John le Koter. A place called the Vineyard, here in Stodley, by Peter de Montfort. All those lands in Wike, within the precincts of Coughton, by Constance the daughter to William a Parke (sometime wife of Sir Simon de Colton Knight) in her widowhood; which lands she had in frank marriage of her father's gift: and certain lands in Batton, given by John de Stodley and Robert de Freynuse. All which are confirmed, with divers privileges, as the Charters¹ of King H. 2. H. 3. and Edw. 3. do manifest: as also by a Bull of ^m Pope Gregory the ix. bearing date 7. Kal. Martii Anno 1228. (12 H. 3.) whereby likewise they had a speciall immunity from payment of Tithes for any of their lands which they did or should hold in their own occupation. Nor may I omit to take notice that the Lady Eva de Cantilupe, widow to the last William, gave ⁿ unto them lands lying within her Mannour of Lodestwell in Debonshire of C s. per annum value, with the homage and services of sundry Freeholders there; as also an yearly Rent of xx s. per annum, issuing out of the said Mannour, payable at the Feasts of S. Michael, and th' Annunciation of our Lady by equall portions.

But notwithstanding that grant of the Church of Aston-Cantilupe, so made by the said William de Cantilupe as aforesaid, some advantage was afterwards taken to the legality thereof; inasmuch as Queen Eliane, who had the wardship of John de Hastings (one of the heirs to George de Cantilupe) in 4 E. 1. recovered ^o the Advowson thereof in his right: Howbeit in the end, the said Canons obtained it by an exchange, ^p for certain lands lying within the precincts of Aston-Cantilupe, which they past to the said John de Hastings, about the 24. of E. 1. in lieu thereof. And yet I do not perceive that they enjoy'd it long; for plain it is by what I have elsewhere shewed, that the Canons of Marstoke, in this County, had it even till the dissolution of that Monastery.

And being thus inriched with such fair and ample possessions, as by what hath been said appeareth, they began to rebuild their Church, as may seem from the Dedication ^q thereof by John de Mone-muth Bishop of Landaff, then Suffragan to Renaud Bryan Bishop of Worcester 3. Non. Junii anno 1308. (1 E. 2.) But after the male line of Cantilupe was so extinguishd as aforesaid, the Patronage of this Monastery, upon partition ^r betwixt the Coheirs, reverted to William la Zouche of Haringworth, unto whom one of them was wedded. Which William in 20 E. 3. became also a Benefactor thereto, giving ^s one mess. 4. acres of land, with 51 s. rent lying in Stodley and Mertone within this County. From which time till the dissolution thereof I find nothing else given thereto, other than the free Chapell ^t of S. Mary Magdalen at Sponne neer Cobentre, with the lands thereto belonging, by King Edw. 4. in 14. of his reign, to pray for the good estate of him and his Queen, as also of Edward Prince of Wales his eldest son, and for their souls after their departure out of this world, together with the soul of Richard Duke of York his late father, and all his Ancestors.

Upon the Survey taken in 26 H. 8. the yearly revenue belonging to this Religious House, over and above all Reprizes, was certified ^u to be Cxxv. l. iv s. viii d. ob. Amongst which deductions I find ^w xlvi s. viii d. yearly Rent payable to the Parson of Strentham in Com. Wigorn. to be distributed in Almes, and to defray the charges of the Obit annually kept there, for the Lady Elizabeth Russell one of the Benefactors to this Monastery. For the Obit of John Bassett, another of the said Benefactors, yearly vi s. viii d. For the Obit of William de Cantilupe xiv s. viii d. To be distributed in Almes to poor people yearly within the Parish of

After which it continued not long in the Crown: for in 30 H. 8. Sir Edmund Knightley Sergeant at Law had a grant of the site thereof, together with the Mannour of Studley thereto belonging, and some other lands, to hold in Capite by the tenth part of a Knights fee, paying viii li. xi s. ii d. yearly into the Exchequer in the name of a Tenth. Which Sir Edmund departing this life ff 2. Sept. 34 H. 8. left the five daughters of his brother Richard Knightley of *Upton in Com. Betwixt whom it came to be divided, as by the distinct parts which these sisters had therein doth appear^c. Whereof the site of the Monastery fell to Knotsford, being posselt by his descendants at this day.

Mapleborough.

This (with the greatest part of Studley) being posselt^d by Will. fil. Corbucionis in the Conquerors time, and of him held by one Goisfridus, did then contain onely one hide besides the woods, of one furlong in length and as much in breadth, all valued at xv s. having been the inheritance of one Leviet before the Norman Invasion. But after this I do not find that it retained the name of a Village; for the next notice that I have taken thereof, is in 19 R. 2. where mention is made of it as a part of Stodley, Thomas Midlemore of Cogboston being them certified^e to hold two mess. 400. acres of land, 60. acres of Meadow, and xxviii s. Rent of Assize therein. Which lands in 10 H. 6. were found^f to be in the possession of John Midlemore of Cogboston (before specified) Esquier, and held by the fourth part of a Knights fee, being in the Record called the Mannour of Stodley, and to this day enjoyed by his posterity, lying contiguous to that large piece of wast called Mapleborough-green, which is the only place that now retaineth any thing of that antient name, but was heretofore called the Hap-wood as may seem by the endorsement^g upon that deed of Peter the son of Will. Corbucion of Studley to the Freeholders there, in 13 E. 2. confirming the grant of Peter his Ancestor, made in 2 Joh. for Common of Pasture in that place, as in Studley I have observed.

g Ex vet. exempl. penes . . . Hunt de Studley.

Skilts.

This was antiently a Grange belonging to the Priory of Studley and written Skyllis-grange; but the first mention I have found thereof is in a Perition^h to the Bishop of Worcester temp. H. 6. by Thomas Atwode, right heir of blood (as he there stiles himself) to Peter Corbicon the Founder of that Religious House; wherein he complains against Thomas Bedull the then Prior, for keeping a Paramour here; viz. Joane, wife to one John Greene, by the connivence of her husband; to which Joane he sundry times resorted in secular apparell, allowing her Wheate, Malt, Wooll, and other things whereby the Monastery was much impoverished.

It seems that upon Partition betwixt the heirs female of Knightley, to whom th said Priory of Stodley came after its dissolution, as I have there observed, it fell to James Dufflyd in right of Frances his wife, one of those coheirs; for in 3 E. 6. did William East and others, purchaseⁱ it of the said James, together with a fift part of the Mannour of Stodley; and in 2 Eliz. sold^k it to Will. Sheldon Esquier, by the name of two messuages 600. acres of land, 60. acres of Meadow, 600. acres of Pasture, 120. acres of Wood, and 100. acres of Heath and Furrs; all which he imparkt for Deer, and the on South side thereof built a very beautifull House of brick, whereof his posterity (of whom I have spoke in Welfton juxta Chiriton) are posselt at this day.

This being that which belong'd to the Knights Templars, and after to the Hospitalars (here in Studley) was in 34 H. 8. part^l out of the Crown to Sir Edmund Knightley Knight, but I find it not called by the name of Holt, till 4 E. 6. and then was it certified^m that Henry Rish-ton Esquire dyed seized thereof 14. Junii 3 E. 6. by the name of the Mannour or Capitall mess. called Holt, with the appurtenances in Stodelegh; and 2. mess. 300. acres of land, 50. acres of Meadow, 200. acres of Pasture, and 60. acres of Wood, and underwood to the same belonging, leaving John Rish-ton his son and heir then 18. years of age. From which John in 2. & 3. Ph. & M. it wasⁿ conveyed to Raph Rish-ton gent. who the next ensuing year part^o it to Sir John Southworth Knight.

Padongre.

Padongre.

THis was originally a member of that part of Stodley, which belong'd to Corbicon, and came afterwards to Cantilupe: for in 6 E. 2. I find it certified, ^p that Ric. fil. Ricardi held the sixteenth part of a Knights Fee here, of John de Hastings then deceased, which was valued at xiii s. iv d. but little else have I further seen thereof than what tends to the same effect.

Coughton.

Following the stream of Arrow I come next to Coughton, which, containing within its Parish the Hamlets of Samburne and Witke, was in the Conq^s. time possess'd by Turchill de Warwick, of whom one William then held it; and by the generall Survey, wherein it is written Cotune, certified ^q to contain three hides of land, having a Mill valued at xxxii d. as also one House in Warwick yeilding viii d. per annum, at which time the Meadows here were estimated at ten acres, and the Woods at six furlongs in length, and four in breadth, wherein there was feeding for 50. Hogs: all which being valued at L s. had been the freehold of Untonius in Edward the Confessors days.

That this was part of those lands belonging to the said Turchill, and which were disposed of to Henry de Neuburgh, the first Earl of Warwick after the Conquest, I am induced to believe from consideration of the tenure; forasmuch as it appeareth by sundry authorities to have been held of the succeeding Earls, as I shall have occasion to give instance by and by. From which Earl I suppose Peter de Stodley (sometimes written Peter Corbicon) had it: for it appears ^r that upon his Foundation of the Priory at Stodley (in H. 1. or King Stephen's time) he gave the Church to that House: but it was not long after, ere that a certain family, who assumed their surname from hence, were possessors of it: Of which, Ranulph de Coton is the first that I meet with: who held ^f also a Knights Fee elsewhere of the Monks of Evesham in 12 H. 2. This Ranulph had issue ^t Simon de Coton, who towards the latter end of King John's reign was in that Rebellion with the Barons, and of the retinue to ^u Walter de Beauchamp, for which his lands were seized; but upon his return to obedience he had restitution ^w of them again. Which Simon gave to ^x the Canons of Alcester, in this County, a certain place in his Woods here at Coton, whereupon to erect a House for Hogs; as also one load of Wood for every week in the year.

To him succeeded another Simon, who in 5 H. 3. confirmed ^z to the Canons of Stodley their right in the advowson of this Church at Coton: which Simon was a Knight ^a; but having no issue male left his two daughters his heirs, Cecilie ^b married to John de la Mare, and Joan ^c to William de Spinetto: whereby, it seems, that this Lordship came by partition to Spine; for I find that Roger de Spine son ^d to the said William and Joan, past ^e away the inheritance of it to Godfrey Giffard Bishop of Worcester in 17 E. 1. by the name of one mess. and three Carucates of land, but the Bishop kept it not long; for by his Deed ^e bearing date at Winton on the Feast day of S. Luke the Evangelist ^f 375. b.

21 E. 1. he granted and quit claymed all his right therein, by the name of the Mannour of Coton, unto William son of William Spine and his heirs, which William, I suppose to have been a younger brother to the same Roger. By what right it was, that Simon son to Rob. de Bruylli came to have an interest here, I cannot directly tell; yet out of doubt it is that some title he had; and if I may guesse thereat (for authority I have none) I should imagine, that he was descended from Cecilie the other coheir of Simon de Coton before spoken of: but leaving this to further scrutinie, I proceed to what is apparent; viz. that the same Simon in 36 H. 3. held ^g half a Knights Fee in this place of the Earl of Warwick; and that about the 20 E. 1. he made a grant ^h of this Mannour unto William de Luda Bishop of Elp: Howbeit I find that within a short time after (for the Deed bears date at Thorp Watervill in Northamptonshire the Wednesday next after the Feast of the Nativy of the blessed Virgin 26 E. 1.) Sir William Tuchet Knight ⁱ released to the before specified William Spine and his heirs all his right in this Mannour, which formerly belonged to the above mentioned Simon de Bruly.

To this William Spine (the second) succeeded another William, who in 9 E. 2. was certified ^j to hold the half Knights Fee in this place, before mentioned, of Guy de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, and departed ^k this life in 10 E. 2. leaving William his son ^l and heir: which William had divers notable employments in this County for a great part of Edward 3. reign. In 19. he was one of ^m the Commissioners appointed about the arraying of Archers for the French Wars. In 20, 22, 23, and 26 E. 3. for levying and collecting the Fifteenths and Tenths then ⁿ granted to the King in the Parliaments of those years. In ^o 29, 31, and 33. E. 3. for conservation of the Peace, and taking care that the Statute of Labourers should be duly put in execution; and bore ^p for his Armes Sable a Chevron Argent betwixt 3. Crescents Or. Which William left issue Guy de la Spine, who being a Knight ^q in 11 R. 2. served as one of the Kcs for this Shire in these severall Parliaments of that King's time; viz. in that of 11. R. 2. held at Westminster; in 12. at Cambridge; in ^r 14. and 15. at Westminster. In which 15. year he was constituted ^s one of the Commissioners in this County for arraying of men; in 21. Eschaetor ^t for this County and Leicestershire, being at that time of the Earl of Warwick's retinue; and in 22 R. 2. Receiver ^u generall unto Thomas Holland D. of Surrey (who then had the Earldom of Warwick in his hands, as I have elsewhere shewed.)

In 1 H. 4. upon that great change, notwithstanding the relation that he had to the Duke of Surrey, he was made Eschaetor ^v for Warwick and Leicestershires: So also the ^w same year, and in ^x 4 H. 4. a Commissioner for arraying of men in this County; and left issue two daughters, his heirs; viz. ^y Alice wedded unto William Tracy of Wobington in Gloucestershire Esquire, and Alianore to John the son of Thomas Throkmorton Esquire, by which marriage this Lordship of Coughton coming to the line of Throkmorton, hath continued therein to this day.

Kings of England, of Katherine late Queen of England, and for the soul of John Throkemorton before specified, Thomas his father and Anne his mother, with their Ancestors, and all the faithfull deceased.

Which King also, in consideration of the good service performed by the said John Throkemorton deceased, to himself, and to Henry the fourth and fift, his father and grandfather, late Kings of England, in the Office of Chamberlain of the Exchequer, gave^a further license to them the said Thomas and Alianore, that they or either of them, or the heirs of the longer liver of them might found a Chantry of one Priest to sing divine service every day during the world at the Altar of the B. Virgin in the Parish-Church of Fladbury before specified, for the good estate of him the said King, and of all those above mentioned, and to endow the same with lands to the value of x li. per annum. Till the time of the said Thomas Throkemorton it seemes that this family was not wholly posselt of Coughton; but then did John Tracy, son and heir of Alice the other daughter and coheir of Sir Guy Spize, by his Deed^b, bearing date 29. May 27 H. 6. grant unto him the said Thomas and his heirs that moitye thereof by inheritance belonging to him. Of which Thomas, all that I have seen further memorable is, that in^c 5 E. 4. he underwent the Office of Shiriff for this County and Leicester-shire; and that he departed^d this life in 12 E. 4. leaving Robert his son and heir xxi. years of age, whom I find a Justice of Peace in this County from 2 R. 3. till towards his death, as by the renewing^e of those Comissions at severall times appeareth.

In 2 H. 7. this Robert made^f the Park here at Coughton, inclosing^g therewith a certain Common ground called Wike-wood; whereunto he afterwards added^h Samburn-beath, and Spiney's-Leps, lying within the said Lordship of Samburne: and the same year was a Commander inⁱ the Kings Army at the battail of Stoke. In^k 5. 6, 15, 17, 21, and 23 H. 7. he was in Commission for the Gaol delivery at Warwick. In^l 6 H. 7. for arraying of men, against the preparation made by Charles the eight King of France then threatening England with an Invasion. In 10 H. 7. he received summons^m, with divers other persons of quality to appear before the King in person upon the Feast day of All Saints the same year, to receive the Order of Knighthood, upon advancement of Henry the Kings second son to the Dukedome of Borke, and creating him Knight of the Bath; in honour whereof these were to be made Knights of that Order: yet do not I find by any Commission, that he had the title of Knight attributed to him tillⁿ 17 H. 7. That he was a man of singular piety, the sundry bequests contained in his Testament^o do sufficiently manifest; and of no lesse devotion, as may seem by his Pilgrimage to the Holy Land, which in 10 H. 8. (having seeld his estate) he undertook; but dyed^p beyond Sea in that journey. By which Testament, bearing date on the Feast day of S. Philip and Jacob; anno 15 18. (10 H. 8.) he bequeathed his body to be buried in the Parish Church here at Coughton, under the Tombe in the midst of the Church, in case he should dye within this Realm; appointing that not above vi li. xiii s. iv d. should be spent at his said buriall and Months mind, and that to be given to Priests celebrating thereat; nor any entertainment in meat and drink for other, than such Priests and Clerks, with poor people that lived by Almes.

And further directed, that forthwith after his buriall there should be said for his soul in the Monasteries of Studley and Cheetham xxx. Masses of Jesu, every Priest saying such Masse to have iv d. for his labour. And moreover willed, that the East window of the Chancell at Coughton should be glazed at the charge of his Executors, with the story of the Dome; as also that xx s. should be given to the glazing of the East window of the North Ile there, with the representation of the seven Sacraments; and as much for the East window of the South Ile, that to be of the seven works of Mercy. He also willed that the Image of our Lady should be set on the North side, at the end of the Altar in the said South Ile: and the Image of the Angell Gabrael on the same side of the Ile, at the pillar between the Ile and the Chancell, with a Roll in his hand of greeting, looking towards our Lady: And at the South end of the said Altar, the Image of S. Raphael painted and gilded: And that in the North Ile, at the North end of the Altar, the Image of the Trinity to be placed, and at the South end the Image of S. Michael; all which Images to be richly painted and gilded.

And besides this, he further willed, that certain lands, to the then value of xvi li. per annum, purchased by him of sundry persons there named, should be put into the hands of Feoffees, to the use of a Priest to sing perpetually in the North Ile of Coughton Church, for his soul and the souls of his Ancestors; and that thenceforth the said Ile should be called the Trinity Chapell, and the Priest the Trinity Priest; which Priest also to teach a Grammar School freely for all his Tenants Children, and to have yearly thereof viii li. and his Chamber; but the residue of the said xvi li. to be payd monthly to five poor men dwelling in the Almshouse here in Coughton; viz. every one vii d. a week and his Hout-room for ever; the residue viz. viii s. viii d. to go to the reparation of the Almshouse. And that the said Priest should every Sunday say a Masse of the Trinity, Wednesday Masse of Requiem, and Friday Masse of Jesu, in case he were disposed; and once in the week Drige for his soul and all Christen souls, except the dayes before rehearsed fell upon double Festivalls. Which poor men, so to be placed in the said Almshouse, to be chosen out of those that had been his Tenants, or serving men at the discretion of his son and heir, and heirs successively. Advertising his son and heir, that if he should to amortize this land for those uses, it would be a meritorious deed, and for which he should have Gods blessing and his; and adjuring that none should break this his Will under pain of the Churches Curse. Whereunto, when he was upon his Pilgrimage to the Holy Land (as I have said) he added, that Anthony his son should have his best ambling Horse to offer at S. Thomas Hospitall in Rome for a Mortuary, his son Michael his next best Horse: and that his goods, which he had sent before to Florence, should be divided betwixt the said Anthony and Michael. Which Will was dated 10. Aug. anno 15 18. and proved 9. Nov. anno 15 20.

To this Sir Robert succeeded George his son and heir, who being a Knight^q in 17 H. 8. was one of those that attended^r in Court at that solemn Coronation of Queen Anne in 25 H. 8. and in 18. and

Rot. P. de 35 H. 8. executed the office of Shiriff for this
ifd. an. County and Leicestershire. This Sir George built that stately Castle-like Gatehouse of free-stone, here at Coughton, intending (as it should seem) to have made the rest of his House suitable thereto:
and having erected a fair Monument for himself, and the Lady Catherine his wife standing towards the North-side of the Chancell, as I shall shew
by and by, bequeathing his body to be buried under the same, departed this life in 1. Maria,
as may seem by the Probate of his Testament, leaving issue a fair offspring. Of which I find that Robert the eldest was Shiriff of this County and Leicestershire in 1. M. being then a Knight.
That Clement the third son, was of Waseley in this County (of whom and his descendants I have there spoke.) That Nicholas, the fourth, was a Knight, and in 1. Eliz. employed as Ambassador to Francis
the second King of France, and Mary Queen of Scots his consort, to expostulate the matter with them for assuming the Armes of England in their quarterings: and afterwards scil. in anno 1567. 9
Eliz. into Scotland; at which time the said Queen was most barbarously kept in prison by her rebellious subjects, where and when they exorted a resignation of the Regall power from her,
unto which he having perswaded her to subscribe, signified to Queen Eliz. that it was of no validity,

forasmuch as she had been constrained thereto by the terror of a bale imprisonment.

His other negotiations I shall not stand to particularize, referring my Reader to M^r Cambden's Annals of Queen Eliz. reign, Anno scil. 1570. 2 lb.p.193.
where he speaks of his death; and unto Stow's Survey of London for his Epitaph on a fair Monument of Alabaster, wherein his statue in armour is cut, situate on the south side of the Chancell in St Catherine Creechchurch near Algate, within that City. But touching the other sons of the said Sir George I find not much memorable, except it be of Sir John his seventh son, Knighted by Queen Eliz. in the first year of her reign, whose Epitaph upon his Monument in the Chancell here at Coughton doth sufficiently declare his eminency and worth. Which Sir John had issue Francis, at-tainted in 26 Eliz. for Treason layd to his charge, as having conspired, God knows what, in behalf of the Queen of Scots. To the before specified Sir Robert (eldest son of Sir George) succeeded Thomas, and to him John; and to him Sir Robert Throk-morton Baronet, erected to that dignity by Letters Patent bearing date at Pottingham 1. Sept. 19.
Caroli; and to him Sir Francis now living: whose severall marriages the Pedegree before inserted sheweth.

The Armes which were lately standing in the windows, being onely such as had been set up at the new glasing of them, in Sir George Throkmorton's time, I have purposely omitted, in regard they were no other than such as be in the windows of the Mannour-house, whereof I have taken notice.

Samburne.

OF this place, having its originall denomination from that little Sandy brook nigh unto which it stands, I find very ancient mention, viz. in anno DCCXIV. it being then (inter alia) given to the Monastery of Woburn by Egwin Bishop of Worcester upon the Foundation thereof; and in the Conquerors Survey^h certified to be parcell of the lands belonging to that Monastery; at which time it contained three hides valued at xxx s. the woods extending to one mile in length and half a mile in breadth. The Monks of which House, clayming a Court-Leet here, with other priviledges in 13 E. 1. by Prescription, which were allowed, continued owners thereof till the dissolution of that Monastery: After which King H. 8. by his Letters Patent bearing date 10. Dec. in 32. of his reign, sold^k it by the name of the Mannour of Samburne to Robert Throkmorton Elquier, and his heirs: by whom, with Coughton beforementioned, it is posselt at this day.

Wike.

THIS was originally a member of Coughton, for ought I could ever discern: But the most ancient mention I find^l of it is in H. 3. time; where it appeareth that Constance the daughter of Will. de Parco had lands therein, given with her by her father in Frank marriage unto Simon de Colton. After which, scil. in 6 H. 3. there was a^m Fine levied of half a hide of land here, betwixt Robert de Verdun Plantiff, and the said Simon and Constance Deforc. But all that I have else seen of this place, is, that in 32 E. 3. Will. de Peto releasedⁿ to Nich. de Lichfield Clerke, and his heirs, all his right therein, where it is called the Mannour of Wike, lying in the town and fee of Cokton: Howbeit, there are few at this day that know where it lyes, it being totally depopulated and included within Coughton Parke.

Spernall.

Passing to the other side of Arrow, I come next to Spernall, antiently written Spernoure. This in the Conquerors time being in the possession of William Buenvasteth, and held of him by one Hugh, was then rated at two hides, having a Mill of 4 s. besides 7. stickes of Eeles: all which, with the extent of the woods, containing three furlongs in length and one in breadth, was valued at 21 s. I am of opinion that this, with the rest of those lands which the said William Buenvasteth had in Warwickshire, came by some agreement to Henry de Newburgh the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman line; for plain it is, that the ancient Earls of that stock, were Lords of it; and that the Durvassals had a grant^p thereof from one of them, to hold in Sergeanty; viz. by the service of giving attendance upon the Earl and his heirs, at the Castle of Warwick, or at their Mannour-houses of Claverdon, Tanworth, and Sutton, at which of them he or they should happen to reside, upon Christmases-day, Easter-day, and Whitsun-day, then and there to perform the service of Chief Butler at those times, and receive a certain fee for the same.

The first of which family that I have met with from any good authority, is William Durvassall, whose antiquity is no lesse^a than H. 2. time (as I guesse) for I find that John Durvassall his son and successor, had great employment in this County from 11 H. 3. sometimes as a Justice of Assize, and sometimes of Gaol-delivery: and that in 16 H. 3. he was constituted one of the Commissioners for assessing and collecting from the Inhabitants of this Shire, the fourtieth part of all their movable goods for the Kings service: In 19 H. 3. a Commissioner with John de Lodbroc, for assessing a Tallyage upon all the Kings demefn lands in this County, excepting Burroughs, Towns, and Cities. In 25 H. 3. associated with the Shiriff and some eminent persons, to see what defects were in the King's Castles within this Shire: and in 26 H. 3. assisted the said Shiriff and others, in the executing a Commission for assessing and imposing the quantity and quality of Armes upon the Inhabitants thereof; as also for conservation of the peace: About which time likewise I find^y that he was a Knight, and Steward to Thomas Earl of Warwick: as also a benefactor to the Monastery of Wotton, by granting^z thereto certain lands lying in Bulkeley neere Benley in Arden.

To which John succeeded Sir Roger Durvassall Knight, and to him Philip, who had issue Thomas (as the descent sheweth) which Thomas was one of the Coroners in this County about the beginning of E. 2. time. But there is little, else memorable, that I have seen, relating to this family, the issue male whereof extinguished about the later end of E. 3. time; and therefore to make a perfect discovery how the succession of this Mannour pass through the female branches, is beyond my skill, forasmuch as I find some contradiction in the severall Records relating thereto; some of them making good the descent as it is here drawn; and others shewing^b that one William Spennore, who dyed about the fifth year of King Henry the 4. was seized thereof as Tenant for terme of life, the reversion pertaining to Walter Holt, as son and heir of Alianore, daughter of Nicholas Durvassall. Nor what this William Spennore was, do I yet know; for he is written also Will. Durvassall dominus de Spennore: but he was a man of some note in that time: for in 5 R. 2. he served^c as one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament then held at Westminster, so^d also in 7 R. 2. in the Parliament held at Salisbury. In 8 R. 2. he was one of the Commissioners of Array in this County. And in 18. again one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament held at Westminster.

But leaving his parentage thus uncertain, I shall descend to the next possessor of this Mannour; viz. Walter Holt before specified, then in minority (and son^e to John Holt of Bardeley) who accomplishing his full age in 5 H. 4. had livery thereof; and shortly after enscoted John Reve Vicar of Coughton thereof; who departing this life before the estate was past out of him, Thomas Reve his brother became intitled thereto as his heir: which Thomas quitted all his right therein unto William Wybbe Esquier, and his heirs, as by his Decd bearing date the Wednesday next after Easter 7 H. 6. appeareth. But it was not long after this, that John Throk-morton Esquier (of whom I have spoke in Coughton) having an affection thereto, in respect of its vicinity to him, obtained it by purchase; viz. the one moytieⁱ from Henry Beaumont and Joan his wife (which Joan was grandchild and one of the coheirs to William Durvassall (as the descent sheweth) and the other^k from William Vernon and Margaret his wife in 21 H. 6. it being of her inheritance^l, though whose daughter I cannot directly affirm. Since which time it hath been possessed by the descendants of the said John Throk-morton, and continues theirs to this day.

Of the Church, antiently but a Chapell^m unto Coughton, I findⁿ, that Henry Bishop of Worcester, temp. R. 1. appointed that the Canons of Stabley, as in the right of their Church of Coughton, should have the buriall of all such the Inhabitants here, as were not of a free condition; and that shortly after that Ordination so made, the most part of them, being Tenants by bond-service, dyed of a violent Pestilence; in respect whereof, the Lords of those lands were necessitated to dispose of them to others, not of the like quality: whereupon in proceſſe of time there grew controverſie betwixt the Nunns of Cokehull, and the same Canons of Studley touching the said right of sepulture, by reason that those Nuns had obtained^p the advowson of this Chapell from those Canons in 11 H. 3. But about the 30 E. 3. Reginald Bryan then Bishop of Worcester composed the difference, ordering^p that the Canons of Studley in right of their Church of Coughton, should have the buriall onely of such whose residence then was or should be upon that land formerly so held in Villenage, and the Nuns of Cokehull of the rest.

In anno 1291. 19 E. 1. upon the valuation of the Churches then made, it was certified^r, that the portion which the Canons of Studley had at that time out of this Church, amounted unto xxv s. and that of the Nuns of Cokehull xx s. But after this, viz. in 38 E. 2. I find^r that William Witlesey Bishop of Worcester sealed the matter of Tithes here, betwixt those Nuns and the Parson of this Church, as by his Instrument appeareth: and that in 26 H. 8. the Rectory was valued^r at 4 li. the Synodalls and Procurations then amounting to ii s.

whom in Motton-Warren I shall speak, came with it also to Rob. de Stadford by the Conqueror's gift;
and by the generall Surveyⁿ then taken was cer-

Rob. fil. Odonis was ownerⁿ of it, who had three daughters and heirs, whereof Margerie the yongest, marrying^x to William Bagot, brought part thereof to him: which continuing to his posterity for some descents, and they residing here, gave occasion that it had the addition of Bagot usually put thereto, for distinction from the severall other spoysons in this County; the other copartners with Bagot in this place, being Trussell and de Mora, descended from the said Rob. fil. Odonis by his other daughters, as in Lorley is manifested. Of which, William Trussell in 36 H. 3. was jointly^r certified to hold half a Knights Fee here, with Robert Bagot, held of him the said Peter and his heirs, paying vi d. yearly to the Church of Lockfle at the Feast of S. Michael, towards the maintenance of a Lampe there.

I am of opinion that William Bagot, Shirriff^b of this County and Leicester in 44. and 45 H. 3. and afterwards from 47. to 56 H. 3. (for the greatest part of those years) was son to the before specified Robert Bagot, and had his residence here at Spoxton. Which William was certainly a person of singular fidelity to the Crown, otherwise so great a trust would not have been committed to him in those turbulent times: wherein his diligence appeared to be such, as that the King, by his special Precept^d bearing date at Kenilworth 25. Sept. in 50. of his reign, required the Barons of his Exchequer, that he should receive no prejudice for not making his account at Michaelmasse shortly ensuing, forasmuch as he was then in attendance upon his person there, that being the time when the Castle underwent a six months seige, as I have elsewhere shewed. To whom also the King about the same time granted^e the custody of all the Castles, lands, and tenements of Robert de Ferrers (Earl of Derby) then in Rebellion; signifying his Royall pleasure to all the Tenants of those lands, that they should be answerable to him concerning them, accordingly. Neither was he in lesse reputation with Edw. 1. as it seems; for in the second year of that Kings reign, he had Commission^f with William de Beauchamp then Earl of Warwick, Roger de Clifford and others, to go unto the Ford of Montgomery in Wales, the month after Easter, and there to hear and reform such things as were amisse, contrary to the Articles of Peace betwixt the said King and Lewelin Prince of Wales.

This William Bagot, being also of Hyde in Staffordshire, bore^h for his Armes Arg. two Cheverons azure, and had issue William, Robert, and Hervey. Of these, William was a Knightⁱ and in 24 E. 1. in consideration of an hundred and thirty marks sterling, sold^k this Mannour to Roger de Coningsby and Joane his wife and their heirs; Will. his father then (stiling himself quondam Dominus de la Hyde in Stafoord) confirming^l the grant: and so also Hervey Bagot brother to the said Will. the younger. Which Roger Coningsby being thus possessor thereof, in 32 E. 1. obtained a^m Charter of Free-warren to himself and his heirs throughout all his demesne lands here: and having a speciall relation to Sir Philip Marmion of Tamworth Castle in this County, was the Executor of his Testamentⁿ; whereby it appears that he had a grant from the Monks of Sperevale, (to whom the said Sir Philip had been a Benefactor) that himself and his heirs might present a fit Clerk for the increase of their Covent, to be shorn a Monk, in that Abby, there to celebrate divine service for the soul of the said Sir Philip perpetually: and after the decease of that Monk, to present others successively to the worlds end. Which Roger, observing the affection of those Monks so freely shewed therein, out of his abundant gratitude and pious inclination, gave them towards the ornament of their Church, all the Vestments that belong'd to the Chapell of the before specified Sir Philip Marmion: and left issue John Coningsby his son and heir. Which John in 17 E. 2. was certified^p in the list of those Esquiers and other men at Armes of this County, whose names were then returned into the Chancery; and bearing^q for his Armes Gules 3. Cones Argent, was in 18 E. 3. one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament then held at Westminster, and in 31 E. 3. a Commissioner^r for putting the Statute of Labourers in execution throughout this County. But in 39 E. 3. he departed^s this life, leaving William his son^t and heir, and Alice a daughter, married^u to John de Lee. Which William being a Knight^x before his death, dyed^y without issue, and was buried^z in the White Friars at Calest. Whereupon Alice his sister became his heir, and possessor this Mannour, leaving it to William de Lee her son and heir; from whom it descended to Alice his daughter and heir, first, the wife of Thomas Stokes, and afterwards of Richard Archer Esquier. But dying without any issue, the inheritance thereof resorted to Thomas Coningsby, great grandchild unto Thomas, son of William, second son of Roger de Coningsby and Joan, the first purchasers before specified, as next heirs at Law to the said Alice. From which Thomas Coningsby doth Thomas, now of this place, derive his descent.

How it comes to passe I know not, but the Trussells of Willesley have been reputed Lords of this Mannour for a long time, and had also an interest in the advowson of the Church, as by some Records^a and other authorities appeareth.

The Church (dedicated to the Holy Trinity) was granted to the Canons of Kenilworth by Peter de Mora about 38 H. 3. and presented to, by them onely, for many ages: and in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued^b at vi. marks and a half; but in 26^c H. 8. at vi li. the Synodalls then issuing out of it, being xii d. per annum: yet was it never appropriated to those Canons, that I could discern; Neither have I seen how the Trussells came to the patronage thereof.

nus predicavit illis regnum Dei.

Which S. Egwin that thus preacht to the Inhabitants here, whom plenty of worldly wealth had made so vitious (as my Author observes) was the third B^p. of Worcester, and the pious Founder of that goodly Monastery at Evesham, about the year of Christ DCC. whose endowment thereof, together with those munificent concessions made there-unto by Kenred his kinsman, as also by K. Offa, were confirmed in a generall Synod^d held at this place, at which were present Bertwald Archbishop of Canterbury, and Wilfrid Archbishop of Exeter.
Howbeit, this Synod is there said to be in loco qui Alne dicitur; yet from what Capgrave before recited hath exprest, and the judgment of that learned man, it need not be doubted but that this was the place; and, originally called Alncester (as 'tis very like) from its situation so neer the river Alne, the confluence whereof with Arrow is close by the Southern side of the town, as the Map doth shew. And of the same opinion is Leland, judging that the old town stood most by the side of that stream: And so do the Inhabitants; by tradition
still say, though the greatest tokens of buildings are now found in that field lying Southward of the town, towards Arrow, which from the dark colour of the ground is called Blackfield, or Black- lands at this day.

Nevertheless though it was a place of so great antiquity and no lesse eminency, as by what hath been said appears, there is no mention of it at all in the Conqueror's Survey; neither till H. 1. time have I seen so much as the name of it in our publique Records, where then I find it by the title of Francus Burgus Domini Regis (meaning that King) which addition of Burrough continued to it long after; for in 23 H. 2. it payd 4. marks Aid to the K. amongst other the Burroughs of this County. But in the account of Bertram de Verdon, Shiriff of this Shire in 22 H. 2. (as also divers years before and after) where he answers x li. for the ferm thereof, I find it placed under the title de Escae- tis: And in severall years after till 1 R. 1. is the said ferm accounted for under the like title: in most of which the words of the Record run thus; viz.
de extru de Alencestre qua fuit Comitibus Reginaldi.
Now who this Comes Reginaldus was, and by what means he became so posselt of it, I shall here declare.

It is not unknown to those, who are any whit acquainted with the Story of our Kings, that King
H. 1. had a large illegitimate offspring by certain Concubines; amongst which one is said to have been a daughter and coheir to Sir Robert Corbet
Knight, upon whom he begot a son called Regi- nald, advanced to the Earldom of Cornwall by King Stephen in the fift of his reign. To this Sir Robert, for that fair Damsells sake, did the said King give Alcester, the inheritance whereof, had it not been diverted, would have legally descended to his two daughters and heirs; whereof the one, viz.
the Concubine, was wedded to Henry Fitz-Her- bert the King's Chamberlain, and had issue by him a son called Peter; and the other to William Botereil (or Botreaux.) But it seems the King's favour to his Bastard son was such, that Peter Fitz- Herbert could not obtain the moiety lawfully belonging to him: for cleer it is that the said Earl Re- ginald enjoy'd it; and so in all probability should Henry

Alcester.

Returning back to the stream of Arrow, it brings me next to Alcester, a place whose great antiquity, the old foundations of buildings, Roman bricks, and coines, both in gold, silver and brasse, which even in our time have been frequently there found, do sufficiently manifest. To which notable tokens may be also added that ancient Roman way, viz. Wenild Street, which coming from Winnemouth (neer Derby, and Lichfield), extends it self over a nook of Sutton-Park, and the great wast called Colfield, crossing the river Tame
about a mile above Aston juxta Birmingham;
and thence thwarting the Countrey (as the Map sheweth) runs in a streight line hither, being still called Ackle-Street for a great part of the way. Neither doth its name import lesse, the later part thereof; scil. Cestre or Cester. (an expression used by our Ancestors the Saxons) denoting a City or fortified place: for so it was as Capgrave observes—Erat namq; (faith he) juxta Evesham

Ric. 1.

Henry his son, had he not been guilty of some great offence (adhering to the King's enemies in POITOU, as it should seem) by reason whereof it was seized into the King's hands, as an Eschaet; immediately upon the death of his Father, which hapned in 21 H. 2. After which, viz. in 9. R. 1. under the title likewise of de Eschaetis, did the Sheriff account for the Ferme of one moytie (together with the like part of Brome) the Record expressing thus, qua fuerunt Henrici de la Pennel; which Henry was the same man (without doubt) for that he had a son called Henry is manifest; and that the said Earl had a Mannour in Cornwall, called Penhel, whereof tis to be presumed, by reason of his birth or habitation there, he might assume that surname, there is probability enough.

From whence I conclude, that notwithstanding the due title thereto was in Fitz-Herbert (as I have shewed) yet by reason that the said Earl actually held it, upon advantage taken against his son, it was seized into the King's hands, and the profits thereof accounted for by the Sheriffs for divers years, as I have already intimated: But at length it was disposed of by King John (as I guesse) to one Hamon Falconer; for upon the said King's grant thereof to Peter Fitz-Herbert in the sixth of his reign, in consideration of xx. marks Fine by him payd, care was taken that the said Hamon should be furnished with other lands, to as good value, out of the said Kings Eschaets. The Record, whereby the said Peter had seisin of it, expresseth the same thus; viz. medietatis Manerii de Alencester, quam pater suus tenuit: By which it should seeme, that before the Earl of Cornwall had it, Henry Fitz-Herbert was, in right of his wife, posselt thereof. But the rest was cleerly enjoyed by Will. Boterell, in right of Alice his wife, the other daughter and coheir also to the said Robert Corbet, and continued to the posterity of the said William, of whom and his descendants I shall speak anon: which moyties became not united of many ages: In the mean time therefore whilst they were thus in severall hands, let us see what is observable, either touching the persons that posselt them, or the place it self; and first of Peter Fitz-Herbert and his successors.

This Peter, after he had so obtained the eschaeted moytie, as above said, grew exasperated for that large Scutage exacted by the King for maintenance of his Army in Poitou (16 Joh.) for which the Barons broke out into Rebellion, and therein continued during the life of that King, by reason whereof, his lands here in Alencester were seized, and committed to the custody of Will. de Camvill: but in 1 H. 3. returning to obedience, he had restitution of them again. It seems that King H. 3. requiring the arrears of that Scutage; in the fifth of his reign, this Peter was questioned for six marks due thereupon, but had his discharge for the same, in regard he produced testimony that he had maintained Souldiers at his own costs in the said Army at that time: In which year he had also the Kings Letters mandatory to his Tenants, requiring their contribution to him, according to the rate of x.s. for every Knights Fee, towards the defraying of that charge he was at in attendance upon the King at the siege of Witbam Castle. In 13 H. 3. he had Letters of protection for a journey beyond Sea, wherein he was also to attend the King.

This Peter confirm'd to the Monks of Alcester, whatsoever lands they were posselt of in this place, granting unto them freedom of paunage for their Hogs in his Woods here, with timber out of the same woods for their necessary occasions, and Common of pasture for their Cattell; and left issue Herbert, commonly called Herbertus fil. Petri, who in 25 H. 3. came to a composition with Emma the widow of the before specified H. Falconer (there called Hamo de Brome) for her thirds in this moytie: which Herbert shortly after past away all his right in the said moytie to Robert de Chann-dys, who held it in 33 H. 3. Howbeit this was not the inheritance, as it seemes; for that did Walt. the son of Will. de Beauchamp purchase of Reginald son to the same Peter Fitz-Herbert in 56 H. 3. whereupon was reserved the forrein service of half a Knights Fee. After which time the posterity of the said Walter enjoy'd it for very many ages, having a goodly Mannour-house here, whereat frequently making their residence, they had sundry eminent employments relating to this County; for which respect purposing to speak historically of them, I have inserted the ensuing Genealogie.

This Walter was brother to William de Beauchamp, the first Earl of Warwick of that Family; and being signed with the Croffe for a Pilgrimage to the Holy Land in 53 H. 3. had a Legacy of CC. marks bequeathed to him by his Father, towards his better performance of that Holy Voyage. In 21 E. 1. he obtained a Charter bearing date at Canterbury 14. Julii, for an yearly Faire to be held at this his Mannour of Alcester for eight days; viz. on the Even of S. Giles and seven days following. In 26. of the same Kings reign, he had Summons (amongst other great men) to appear at Barleol upon the Even of Pentecost, well furnished with Horse and Armes, to march against the Scots; and was the same year with the King in that eminent battail of Falkirk. In 28 E. 1. he had Freewarren granted to him in all his demesne lands here at Alcester; as also at Wotwylk, and severall other places in Warwickshire; at which time he was Steward of the King's Household. In that memorable Certificate sent unto the Pope by all the Peers of England sitting in the Parliament at Lincoln 12. Febr. 29 E. 1. whereby they asserted King Edward's superiority over the Realm of Scotland, the name of this Walter is there subscribed, with the addition of Dominus de Alcester; whence I guesse that he then resided here. It seems that the time for the Faire here, so obtained as aforesaid, was found inconvenient: for in 30 E. 1. in exchange thereof, the King granted another Charter to him, for to translate the same unto the Even of S. Faith the Virgin, and to continue seven days following. In 31 E. 1. he attended the King again into Scotland, as appears by his being in person at that notable siege of Haerlabe-rok.

But of this Sir Walter (for he was a Knight) I find no farther mention worthy the taking notice of, other than that he wedded Alice the daughter of Tony, she being allied to him in the fourth degree of consanguinity; which marriage was long after ratified, and the Children begot betwixt them decreed legitimate, by Godfrey Giffard Bishop of Warwick, as having authority from the Pope, in as much as they knew not of the impediments at the time of that contract made: And that about the 31. of E. 1. he departed this life,

But I come now to Sir William the elder brother; of whom it appears, that in 16 R. 2. he was made Constable of the Castle of Gloucester; In 3 H. 4. This Sir William took to wife Catherine one of the daughters and heirs of Gerard Willelmi, and left issue Sir John Beauchamp Knight, who in 17 H. 6. upon the death of Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, was constituted one of the Commissioners unto whom the Guardianship of all his Castles and lands, during the minority of Henry his son and heir, were granted: and in 22 H. 6. purchased of Thomas Botereux the other moyle of this Mannour of Alcester, which had continued in that Family for divers descents, as I shall shew anon. And being now intire Lord of the whole, in 25. of the same King's reign, obtained a speciall Charter; which, reciting that he the said John and his Ancestors had time out of mind enjoyed a Court-Leet of all their Tenants and Inhabitants within this town, to be kept twice every year; viz. once after Easter, and once after Michaelmasse; as also Weyfs, Streys, and all other privileges to a Leet belonging; together with a Mercate upon the Tuesday every week, and a Faire, yearly, on the Sunday next after the Feast of *S. And moreover in consideration of the good and acceptable services performed unto that King, and to King Henry the first his father, had he by the same Charter, a grant of sundry other privileges; viz. Return of Writts, and all other Mandates, Precepts, and Attachments belonging to the said King his heirs and successors, his Justices, Escheators, or other Commissioners, Steward and Marshall of his household; as also of all Summons of the Exchequer, levying of Estreats from the said Exchequer, chequer, execution of Writts and Attachments, &c. all which thenceforth to be performed and executed by the said Sir John and his heirs, or such Officers as he or they should appoint within this town, and precincts of the Mannour: so that no Shiriff, Coroner, Bayliffe, or other Officer belonging to the King, should have ought to do there. To which was further added, that the said Sir John and his heirs should have cognisance of all Pleas belonging to any of the King's Courts, touching such lands and tenements as are within this town and Mannour; of Debts, Accompts, Trespasses, Covenants, Contracts, and causes of Contracts, arising within the limits of them: as also of Assizes of Novell disseisin and Mort D'ancefor, Jurates, and Certificates of all lands and tenements within the same, to be held before the Steward to him and his heirs, here, for the time being. And likewise full power and authority of holding, hearing, and determining before their Stewards, without any speciall Writ from the King, Pleas of Pie ponders, and all other Pleas of Debts, Accounts, Trespasses, Covenants, Contracts and other Controversies whatsoever, arising within this town and Mannour, or their precincts, although they exceed the summe of xl s. value; and to make out Proesse against such persons as shall be lyable to any action or distresse by his and their own Officers and Ministers, and to attach their persons within the said town and Mannour and precincts of them, in case they have not goods whereby to be summoned and distreined.

And moreover that the said Sir John & his heirs should have the privileges of Infangthef, and Outfangthef, the goods of Felons & Fugitives, and all such as are condemned & put in exigend for Treason or Felony; as also the Chattells of persons outlawed, whether it be at the King's suit or at the suit of the party, with the Chattells of those that are Felones de se, or any way confiscated: And likewise all Fines, and Redemptions, Issues, Amerciaments, and Forfeitures; with Fines for license of concord, Tear, Day, Strepe, and Wast, of all his and their Tenants, as well resident as not resident within this town and Mannour, and their precincts, in whatsoever of the King's Courts they shall happen, &c. And that neither the King's Steward, Marshall, Coroner of his Household, Clerk of the Mercate, for the time being; nor any servant or Officer belonging to any of them, shall have power to meddle within the same, or the precincts thereof: nor any Purveyor to take any thing there, from him the said John, his heirs, or any the Inhabitants of this place. And further that all the Tenants thereof, as well resident as non-resident, should be for ever quit of Toll, Stallage, Pontage, Pavage, Murage, Kayage and Chiminage in all places, as well by Land as Water, throughout the whole Realm of England, and elsewhere within the King's dominions: And lastly that he and his heirs should have another Faire yearly within this Town, beginning on the Even of S. Dunstan, and continuing for two dayes following. Which ample Charter bears date at Westminster xviii Nov. in the year before specified.

After which ere long, viz. in 28 H. 6. was he made Lord Treasurer of England, but in that Office he continued not long; as also a Commissioner for conservation of the Peace and assessing of Subsidies in this County: but in these (I presume) he acted little, in respect of his other great employments, being a Baron of this Realm, and summoned^m to severall Parliaments in the said King's time. By his Testamentⁿ bearing date ix. Apr. An. 1475. 15 E. 4. he bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Church of the Dominican Friars at Alcester, in a new Chapell to be made on the North side of the Quire: To which House of Friars for his buriall there he bequeathed the value of xx. marks to be had in vestments and stuff, besides a pair of Organs of his own; residing at that time at Chelchith in the County of Wiltshire: Appointing that a Priest of that Friery should daily say Masse at the Altar within the said Chapell before his Tombe, after the Order of a Trentall, for his soul, and the souls of his Father and Mother, Brethren, and Sisters, his Children and Ancestors souls; and especially for the souls of Sir John Fastolf Knight, Will. Botreaux, and all Christian souls; taking by the week for the said Masse to daily to be said viii d. for evermore. Which Chapell and Tombe, with his statue thereon in Alabafter, he did by the said Testament ordein that his Executor should cause to be made; and^o departed this life the same year, leaving Sir Ric. Beauchamp Knight his son and heir, then 40. years of age; who in the private Chapell of this Mannour-house here (called^p by the name of Beauchamps-Court) having speciall License^q from the Bishop of Gloucester, wedded Eliz. the daughter of Sir Humphrey Stafford Knight, by whom he had issue three daughters, that were his heirs; viz. Eliz. married to Sir Robert Willoughby Lord Brook (first summoned to Parl. by that title in 7 H. 7.) Anne to Ric. Ligon, and Margaret to Will. Rede: which Sir Robert had^r in her right this Mannour of Alcester in partition, and dyed^s seized thereof 10 Nov. 13 H. 8. leaving Eliz. Anne and Blanch his cosins & next heirs; viz. daughters of Edw. Willoughby his son by the before specified Elizabeth.

Of which daughters, so in minority, Eliz. the eldest was committed to the tuition of Sir Edward Grevill of Spilcote Knight; who obtained her wardship (as I have by tradition^u been informed) with purpose to marry her unto John his son and heir: but she better affecting Fouke, the younger, became his wife; to whom she brought this Mannour of Alcester, with other lands: which Fouke much enlarged^v his Mannour-house at Beauchamps-Court, taking stone and timber from the then newly dissolved Priory at Alcester, for^w that purpose: as also his^x Park with part of the wast belonging to this Lordship, and bere the Office of Shiriff^y for this County and Leicestershire, in 34 H. 8. being then a Knight; so also in^z 1 E. 6. and departed^b this life 10. Nov. Anno 1559. (1 Eliz.) leaving issue Fouke his son and heir, and Robert a younger son: which Fouke was Knighted^c in 7 Eliz. (being then^d 29 years of age) In 12 Eliz. he came first into^e Commission for conservation of the Peace in this Shire; and departing this life in an. 1606. 4 Jac. left issu by Anne his wife, daughter to Raph Nevill E. of Westmerland, Fouke his son and heir. Which last recited Fouke having been a servant in Court to Q. Eliz. & made^f Under-Treasurer and Chancelour of the Exchequer by K. James; as also one of the privy Councill, and a Gentleman of his Bedchamber; in 15. of that King's reign, obtained a speciall Charter^g confirming all such liberties as had been granted to any of his Ancestors in the behalf of this Town, upon a new Rent of x s. per annum then reserved to the said K. his heirs & successors;

 with limitation of that Honour, for lack of issue male of his own body, unto Robert Greuill, son of Fouk, son of Robert before specified, a younger son to the first Sir Fouk.

This Fouk Lord Brook, obtaining the Castle of Warwick from King James, when it was in a very ruinous condition, bestowed so much cost in the repairs thereof, beautifying it with most pleasant Gardens and Walks, and adorning it with rich furniture, that, considering its situation, no place in this part of England doth compare with it for stateliness and delight: But delaying to reward one Hayward, an ancient servant, that had spent the most of his time in attendance upon him, being expostulated with for so doing, received a mortall stab on the back, by the same man then private with him in his Bed-chamber at Brook-house in London, 30. Sept. Anno 1628 (5 Car.) who, to consum-mate the Tragedy, went into another room, and having lockt the dore, pierced his own bowells with a sword. After which, viz. 27. Oct. the said Lord Brook's body, being wrapt in Lead & brought to Warwick, was there solemnly interred in a vault on the North side the Quire of S. Maries Church, under that beautifull Monument erected by himself, whereof I have there taken notice. To whom succeeded in this his Lordship of Alcester,
 and divers other lands of great value, the before specified Robert Greuill Lord Brooke, by vertue
 of a speciall grant, whereby they were so settled.

I now come to speak of that Family of Botreaux, which posselt the other half of this Mannour, till 22 H. 6. as I have intimated.

Robertus Corber,

Of Will. de Botreux, who married Alice one of the daughters and coheirs to Rob. Corbet, I find that he confirmedⁱ to the Monks of Alcester all that they there held of his Fee; and that he left issue Will. and Reginald; which second Will. in 6. Joh. gave^k two Horses for the great saddle, and one Porway Goshawk to the King, for license to marry Albreda the widow of John de Ingeham, daughter to Walter Waleran, over and above CCC. marks payd by her for the like permission. In^l 5 H. 3. he attended the K. in person with his Army at that memorable seige of Wistham Castle in Lincoln. Wtre; and, in consideration of that service, had the King's Letters mandatory for assessing Scutage upon his Tenants according to the rate of x s. for every Knight's Fee: but being a man of an active Spirit, I find^m that he did put himself in Armes with some of the Barons in 17 H. 3. when the Nobility grew discontentedⁿ that the K. received so many Poivins into places of power and trust, whereupon his lands here at Alcester were seized^o upon for so doing.

To him succeeded Reginald his brother^p & heir, who had livery of his inheritance in 27 H. 3. but adhering to the Barons in that great Rebellion of 49 H. 3. had this his Lordship of Alcester again seized^q on; which by the Decree called Dictum de Kenilworth (whereof I have elsewhere spoke) were restored again. Of this Reginald I have not seen any more, than that he died^r about the beginning of E. 1. time, leaving Will. his son and heir, who, doing his fealty, had livery^s of the inheritance descended to him. To whom succeeded another Will. who made this his place of residence, as it seemes; for in 17 E. 2. he was in the list^t of those Knights and men at Armes of this County, whose names were then certified into the Chancery, though his chief seat was at Botreux-Castle (alias Boffe-Castle) in Corn- wall: But the next that had to do here was Reginald Botreux, a younger son to the last Will. upon whom this Mannour was settled^u in 4 E. 3. and upon the issue male of him and Isabell his wife, with remainder to his right heirs. From which Reginald descended Thomas Botreux, who in 22 H. 6. sold all^w that he had here, by so ancient a succession, to Sir John Beauchamp of Polwyk, as I have already observed.

A word or two now of the Tenure, which it seems was by Sergeanty; for so doth it appear by severall authorities (scil. in^x 27 H. 3. &^y 33 H. 3.) Item dicunt (saith the Record^z) quod villata de Allencestre, ex utraq; parte debet respondere domino Regi per Sergeantiam, sed nescitur qualiter, nec per quod servitium: but afterwards I find it cleer; for in 32 E. 1. upon the Relief paid by Will. de Botreux for the moiety of this town, it is there said^a to be held of the King per servitium invenien- di medietatem Equitis armati, cum uno Equo dis- cooperto in guerra Regis. Of the homage and ser- vice reserved by Reginald Fitz-Herbert, upon his grant of the moytie of this Lordship unto Walter de Beauchamp & his heirs in 56 H. 3. I find that Her- bert fitz John, his grandchild, passed it over unto Guy de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, and his heirs, by his Deed^b dated at Westminster on Munday 5. Maii, 8 E. 2.

The Church, though at first given^c by Raph Bot-ler to the Monks of Alcester, upon the Foundation of that Monastery in 5 Steph. afterwards came to the Nuns of Cokenhill in Com. Wigorn. which Monastery was founded^d by Isabell the wife to William de Beauchamp the first Earl of Warwick of that Family; for the advowson whereof, the said Nuns were at suit^e with Peter Fitz-Herbert and Will de Boterell (Lords of Alcester) in 11. H. 3. after which time they quietly enjoyed it, as it seems by their Presentations thereto. In anno 1291 (19 E. 1.) it was rated^e at xii. marks, the portion which the said Nuns had out of it being two marks and a half. The like valuation do I find^e in 14 E. 3. It seems, that upon the rebuilding of it, the Dedication became altered: for in 11 H. 3. it bore the name of S. Nicholas; but in 6 H. 6. of S. Faith the Virgin, at which time the value was certified^k to be no more than xii. marks: but in 26 H. 8. it extended^l to xvi. l., there being yearly paid^m for Procurations and Synodals x s. v d. ob. per annum out of it, and xxvi s. viii d. as a Pension to the Prioress of Cokehill.

In the South Ile,

Here lyeth the body of foulke Greynll knight and lady Elizabeth his wife, the daughter and heire of Edward Willoughby Esquier, the sone and heire of Robert Willoughby knight lord of Broke, and lady Elizabeth one of the daughters and coheires of the lord Beauchamp of Powick, w^h foulke dyed the 2^d day of November, Anno dni 1447, and the laide lady Elizabeth his wife departed the 12^d day of the year of our lord God 1447. of whose soules god have mercy, Amen,

Armes in the windows of the Church.

1 Beauchamp of Powick.
 2 Beauchamp impaling Ferrers.
 3 Beauchamp quartering Misset.

Within this Parish Church were two Chanteries, the first in a Chapell of our Lady, founded by one of the Botelers of Oversley (I suppose John; for in 15 E. 1 he presented to it) the Priest serving there being to sing Mass every day at six of the Clock in the morning, and to pray for the souls of the Founders. To which Chanterie did Petronill the Widow of Rob. Squyer of Alncestre in 7 E. 3. give 3 Messuages, xvi acres of land, 4 acres of meadow, and xx s. Rent, with the appurtenances, lying in Alcester, for divine service to be celebrated there, for the soul of E. 2. late King of England; as also for her own and her husbands souls, their children, ancestors, and all the faithfull deceased: the revenue whereof was in 26 H. 8. certified to be yearly worth vi l. out of which certain Rents were deducted: but in 37 H. 8. vi l. v s. ix d.

The Priests belonging to this Chantry were successively presented thereto by the Botelers of Oversley before mentioned, and afterwards by the Nevills, untill 6 H. 7. that Sir Will. Beauchamp of Alcester and others, obtained the patronage thereof.

The other Chantry was founded in 36 E. 3. by John the son of Giles de Beauchamp, for one Priest to sing Mass daily, and do divine service in the said Church, at the Altar of All Saints; for whose maintenance he gave xi Messuages, one shop, xi acres of land, and 4 acres of meadow lying here in Alcester: But in 7 H. 4. this Chantry had an addition made thereto, by two Priests; John Weston and Rob. Canill, who gave 4 messuages and 4 acres of land thereto, lying also within the precincts of Alcester; so that in 26 H. 8. the value of all its revenues extended to iiii l. xiii s. viii d. per an. but in 37 H. 8. to no more than iiii l. xii s. over and above reprises.

Now come to the Monastery, whereof there is scarce any memoriall left amongst the Inhabitants, the very ruins being all dig'd up, and Corn sowed where it sometime stood; and that the place may not be forgotten, I shall here (before I come to speak of its Foundation) describe where it lyes; which is about half a mile North from Alcester, encompassed with a moat on the West and South sides, and on the North and East with the river Arrow, making the site thereof a kind of Island, which containeth somewhat more than two acres according to our usuall measure (as I guess.)

This, at the frequent instance of Simon Bishop of Worcester, and G. the then Prior, being founded by Raph. Boteler of Oversley in the year of our Lord MCXL. (5 Steph.) upon that piece of ground so encompassed with water, as I have said, and therefore called the Church of our Lady of the Isle, was dedicated to the Holy Trinity, and to the honour of the Blessed Virgin, St. Anne her mother, St. Joseph, St. John Bapt. St. John the Evang. and All Saints, for the health of the souls of K. Will. the Conquerour, Maud his consort, K. Will. the younger, K. Henry the first, Q. Maud his consort, K. Steph. Q. Maud likewise his consort; Roger de Bellomont and Atheline his wife, Rob. Earl of Mellent and Isabell his wife, Rob. Earl of Leicester and Avice his wife; with their sons; as also of Walleran Earl of Mellent: And moreover for his (the said Raph. Boteler's) own soul, and the soul of Avice his wife, with their Parents, ancestors and successors souls; by the advice and consent of the before specified K. Steph. Rob. Earl of Leic. and Walleran E. of Mellent and of Robert and Geffrey sons to the said Raph; Robert a Monk of Worcester being constituted the first Abbot, there, upon Martinmas-day in the year abovesaid: The same Founder then ordaining, that after the death of this Abbot, another should be chosen in the Chapterhouse at Worcester, or out of this at Alcester, as should be thought most meet.

And for the maintenance of the Monks here serving God, he endowed it with the before specified Isle, together with his Lordship of Cockmerse, and whatsoever he did possess in Pebworth, viz. 4 hides and a half; and moreover with all his lands of Waltfod, Cumbyge, and Wlincshesfelde, with their appurtenances, excepting Lx s. yearly Rent, which the Abbot of this House was to pay to the Monks of Wec in (Posmandy.) And further did he grant thereunto the Chapell of his Castle at Oversley, with the Churches of Alcester, Glen, Teingworth and Overton, and whatsoever appertained to them; the whole Tithe of his Lordship of Oversley in lands, Vineyards, Woods, Parks, Meadows and Fishings: Half the Tithe of his Lordships of Pebworth and Cherlertune; Two sheaves of that of Ragley: All the Tithes of Dozinton, Milecote, Wzome, and Whitlaccasfod: As also his Mill of Grobert, and the half of his three Mills at Oversley; Appointing, that whosoever should govern here, for the future, as Abbot, he should not mispend the revenues of the Monastery upon his secular kindred; but for the poor, and in Hospitality: nor grant away the inheritance of any the lands belonging thereto: And (which is not the least memorable) he might not make any other Knights nisi in sacra veste Christi, in qua parvulos suscipere modestè caveat; but that maturos, seu discretos, tam Clericos quam Laicos providè suscipiat, as are the very words of his Charter: whereby 'tis evident, that about this time the restriction began, which prohibited Ecclesiastick persons to make Knights; which (it seems) they had antiently used to do; and as by what I have said in Milecote, touching the sacred and Courtly ceremonies, formerly exercised in conferring that dignity, appeareth.

Which ample Charter being confirmed by the before specified Robert Earl of Leicester (his immediate Lord) as also by K. Steph. and Henry the second, begot a fair increase of its possessions, through the munificence of sundry other persons: viz. xx s. Rent yearly issuing out of Impingeham, given by Geffrey one of the sons to the said founder; the Church of Wolep in Worcestershire: by Geffrey de Limesi; the Church of Pebworth in com: Glouc. by Ric: Frevill, with one yard land in Overton, and the Tithe of his Salt at Witche: the Church of Edwington, by Rog. de Watervill, and one hide of land in Rypton, in this County, lying adjacent to Wetton, with a meadow situate under that town, and some other lands there. Neither must I omit to take notice, that Simon de Colton, and Alexander de Kynewarton bestowed on these Monks, each of them a load of wood for Fewell, to be weekly taken out of their Woods at Coaton (now Coughton) with liberty for them to erect Hogs-cotes in the same Woods: All which gifts were ratified by the said K. H. 2. After this, viz. in 35 E. 1. had they Lx. acres of Heath, or wast, lying at Winstoke in Shrop-

Shropshire, with the aduouſon of the Church of Pinſtroke, given^p unto them by Will. le Boteler of Wem, with power to incloſe the ſaid waſt: as alſo Common of paſture for viii Oxen, vi Kine with their calves of one year old, and CC ſheep, in his Waſts and Woods at Pinſtroke; but with condition that the ſaid Will. and his heirs might make improvement at their pleaſure in thoſe woods and waſt, without the lawfull contradiction of the ſaid Monks. And over and above all this, was there an annuity of C s. per an. given^q thereunto by the ſaid Will. le Boteler, iſſuing out of certain lands and burgages lying in Shaſtesbury in com. Dorſ. for the performance of Divine ſervice, Almes, and other pious works, for the health of his ſoul, as alſo of the ſoul of K. Henr. the 4th.

But after this I do find very little increaſe of its revenues from any other Benefactors; nay rather ſuch a diminution, through the ill government and negligence of ſome Abbots; by waſting the ſtock upon their lands, and borrowing of money, that in 10 H. 6. upon^r a Complaint made by William the then Abbot, that their debts were ſo great, as, in caſe they ſhould ſpeedily be required, himſelf and his Covent could not poſſibly ſubſiſt; the King, upon mature advice with his Council, by his Royall authority, ſeiſed^t the whole Monastery into his own hands, and forthwith committed^t the government thereof to the care of Humphry D. of Glouc. (his uncle) Thomas Biſhop of Worceſter, Sir Will. ap Thomas Kt. John Weſton Sergeant at Law, Will. Lucy Eſq. Will. Donington Rob. Hall, and Thomas Buſhell, for to order and diſpoſe of all things belonging thereto to the beſt profit and advantage. But (it ſeems) that theſe Commiſſioners effected little therein, whatſoever they indeavoured: for in 22 H. 6. the ſame K. by another Pat.^u reciting that this Houſe was grown ſo poor, through the improvidence of the preceding Abbots, that the preſent yearly profits belonging thereto, did not exceed the ſum of xl. marks, granted Liſenſe to Ric. Burton, the then Abbot, to apply himſelf to the Pope for obtaining ſuch a capacity as might redeem it out of that extream debt and poverty: yet neither did this do any good: for in 5 E. 4. I find that the K. by his Letters^w Pat. expreſſing that this Monastery, being of his patronage, in right of the Dutchy of Lancaster, was through divers miſfortunes, and the negligence of many Abbots, come to ſuch a low condition, that there then was not, nor of a long time had been, any Monk to bear the Abbot company; And that the revenues wherewith it had been originally endowed, by reaſon of ſuch detriments, as in the ſucceeding times had hapned, were ſo diminished that they would not maintain ſo many Monks as at the Foundation thereof were appointed, nor perform due Hoſpitality, and other works of piety; did upon full conſideration of the premiſſes, to the honour of the individuall Trinity, and the Bleſſed Virgin; as alſo for the augmenting God's ſervice in the Abby of Cheſham, and ratifying a congruous maintenance for ſuch a number of Monks in this Abby, as by the Foundation were limited, the keeping of Hoſpitality, &c. grant unto Richard then Abbot of Cheſham, and his ſucceſſors, the right of patronage and aduouſon hereof, to the intent that he and his Covent ſhould procure it to be united, and appropriated thenceforth to the ſaid Abby of Cheſham: which union was accordingly made, the enſuing year, by John Carpenter then Biſhop of Worceſter, as appears by his Inſtrument^x bearing date 2 Apr. an. 1456, (6 E. 4.) whereupon Ric. Tuttebury, the then Abbot hereof, made his reſignation^y to the ſaid Biſhop Apr. 22. an. 1467. (being about a twelve months after) inſomuch as after this time it was only a Cell to Cheſham, and ſo reputed^z at the time of that generall Survey taken in 26 H. 8. when the revenues thereof, over and above reſpriſes, were certified^a to amount to no more than Lxxl. vii s. xi. d. and ſo became ſuppreſſed amongſt other the ſmaller Houſes by Act of Parl. in 27, H. 8.

Whereupon T. Cromwell Earl of Eſſex, who had been ſo active an Inſtrument to accompliſh the ruin thereof, with all the reſt, obtained^b it: but he having ſoon after a ſad reward^c for ſuch his ſervice, it came again to the King, who forthwith demised^c the ſite thereof, with all the lands and Rents belonging thereto, lying in and about Alceſter, Coughton, Kimerton, and Erhall to Fouk Grevill Eſquire; which Fouk ſoon after fell to pulling it down for enlarging his Houſe at Beauchamps Court (as I have there intimated.) But the inheritance, was paſt^d out of the Crown in 36 H. 8. unto one Will. Sweſter and John Sweſter, and the heirs of John; and in 4. & 5. Ph. & M. purchaſed^e by the ſame Sir Fouk Grevill.

All that I have further to ſay in relation to this place, is concerning the Free-School, ſituate in the field on the South ſide the town, towards Arroto. This was founded by Walter Newport of Holdenby in com. Northampton gent. who by his laſt Will and Teſtament^f bearing date 12. Junii 34. Eliz. gave the ſum of 400 l. to buy lands or ſome annuity to the value of xx l. by the year, or more, to be employed to the uſe of a School for the teaching of poor mens children, either at Awſeter or Herberge, as his brother in law Forteſcue and Wagſtaffe ſhall think beſt (for thoſe are the words.) Whereupon accordingly did the ſaid Mr. Will. Forteſcue ſettle a Rent charge of xx l. per an. for that purpoſe, to be received out of his Manour of Wetheley, in this County, for ever.

largest its Chanell; unto the head whereof I must now ascend, which will guide me through the midst of this Hundred, wherein the rest of those places, to be discoursed of do, for the most part, lye situate.

Tanworth.

THis, though it is so far distant from Willes, was antiently a member thereof, and so consequently within Kington Hundred, whereof it still continues: Nevertheless, in regard that the Rivers are my principall guides, I shall here take notice of it; in the first place observing, that before the Norman Conquest, Edwyn Earl of Merca posselt it, as part of that great Lordship; so that it being then assesse therewith, it was not severed from it, when the antient Hundreds (whereof I have elsewhere spoke) became altered to what they are now. And being thus involved with Willes, it is not particularly mentioned in the Conquerors Survey, though there is no doubt but that it extended to no small part of those xlvi. hides, which Willes is in that Record certified to contain: for the woods belonging to that spacious Lordship were then certified to be no less than three miles in length and two in breadth, whereas the Country about Willes is for the most part Champion, and this meerly Woodland. But being seized on by the K. with the rest of Earl Edwine's lands, it was with Willes and other great possessions, given to Henry de Newburgh upon his advancement to the Earldom of Warwick, as I have elsewhere intimated: Howbeit, the first mention that ever I saw thereof, is in that confirmation^h of the Church to the Canons of Kenilworth, made by Simon Bishop of Worcester, towards the later end of K. H. I. reign; wherein what is now the Church, was then called Capella de Tanewrtha, and passes as a member of Willes, being disposedⁱ of to those Canons by Roger Earl of Warwick, son and successor to the before specified Henry. And continuing to the succeeding Earls, it was in 9 Joh. (inter alia) assigned^k to Alice the widow of Earl Waleran, to hold in dower during her life; and in 26 H. 3. to Ela the widow of Earl Thomas: and after this, viz. in 31. H. 3. upon the Agreement betwixt Will. Mauduit and Alice his wife, and John de Plesssets and Margerie then Countess of Warwick his wife (which Alice was Aunt and heir to the said Countess) it was one of the Mannours seeld^m upon the same John de Plesssets for life, in case he survived the said Margerie.

But Ela the Countess being then living, it rested in her possession, who had a Charterⁿ of Free-warren granted to her for life, here, and in the rest of the Lordships of her dowrie, bearing date 2 Nov. 36 H. 3. Which Ela afterwards marrying to Philip Bassett, had in 49 H. 3. not only a Confirmation^o for her enjoyment hereof, during her own life, by Will. Mauduit then Earl of Warwick, but likewise a grant^p that the said Philip her husband might hold it during his life, in case he should survive her. Howbeit, in 13 E. 1. I find that Will. de Beauchamp, then Earl of Warwick, claimed a Court Leet, Assize of Bread and Beer, Free-warren, Gallows, Infangthef, Tumbrell, and Weifs within this Lordship by Prescription; all which were^q allowed: whereby, it seems, that he had then possession thereof, though the before specified Ela was then alive; by some Agreement, 'tis like; for she did not totally quit her interest here till 17 E. 1. but then, by her Deed^r bearing date at Winep (1 Junii) she passed over, and releast the same unto him. In 9 E. 2. being in the King's hands, by reason of the minority of Thomas son and heir to Guy de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, and valued at xxxiv l. xvi. s. iiii d. ob. per an. it was, with the Castle of Warwick, and the rest of his possessions, in regard of the notable services performed by the said Earl, as the grant imports, assigned^t to his Executors for the use of the said Thomas.

But, notwithstanding that assignation, it was (with divers other great Lordships, part of the possessions of the deceased Earl) again resumed into the Kings hands, and in 11 E. 2. disposed^u of to Hugh le Despenser the elder, to hold till the heir should accomplish his full age. After which, viz. in 18 E. 3. did T. de Beauchamp, the succeeding Earl^v entail it, together with the Castle of Warwick, and divers other Lordships, upon his issue male (where the names of his severall sons are recited.) To whose posterity it continued till 3 H. 7. (as in my discourse of those Earls is manifested) but then coming to the Crown, was by K. H. 8. in 36 of his reign, in consideration of 630 l. 16 s. 2 d. granted^w unto Sir George Throgmorton Kt. to be held in Capite by the xxth part of a Kts. fee; in whose Family it continued till Thomas Throgmorton, Esq. by virtue of an Act of Parl. in 2 Jac. sold it to Andrew Archer Esq. whose son and heir viz. Sir Sim. Archer Kt. now enjoys it.

That the Church (dedicated to St. Mary Magd.) was originally but a Chapel belonging to Willes, and therewith granted to the Canons of Kenilworth in H. 1. time, I have already shewed: but in 3 Joh. it had the reputation of a Church, if not before: for then by an Agreement^x betwixt those Canons and Waleran Earl of Warwick, touching the future Presentation thereto, it was determined, that whensoever it might happen to be void, the Earl and his heirs should nominate a Clerk to the Canons of Kenilworth, and they to present him to the Bishop; and that the said Canons should thenceforth receive out of it, at the hands of the present Parson incumbent, a yearly Pension of two marks of silver, upon the Feast days of St. Mich. the Archangell, and the Annunciation of our Lady by equall portions, and a stone of Wax on Candlemass day, for ever. About that time I find^y, that John Arch-Deacon of Worcester, being Parson here, had a Vicar under him called Roger de Warwick, the son of one Godwin, presented thereto by the Canons of Kenilworth; which Vicar did then pay to the said Arch-Deacon, yearly, in the nature of a Pension, two Marks at Easter and Michaelmass by equall portions, and to the Canons of Kenilworth other two Marks and a stone of Wax, as antiently they had used to receive out of the same. But all the Glebe belonging thereto, was not given at the first Foundation thereof; for it is evident^z that Walter the son of Peter de Wolwardington; did, about the beginning of H. 3. time, grant unto Richard Lungespe the then Incumbent and his successors, in pure Alms, a certain Messuage with the appurtenances, situate here in Tanworth; the witnesses to his grant, being Rob. de Lexington, Johann de Nevill, and Gilbert

In An. 1291 (19 E. 1.) this Church was rated at L. marks; but in 9 E. 2. the advowson thereof, being assigned to Alice the widdow of Guy de Beauchamp E. of Warwick, as part of her dowrie, it was valued at no more than xxx Marks. After which, viz. in 14 E. 3. the interest that the said Canons and Earl had therein, was past away to Will. de Clinton Earl of Huntingdon; that of the Canons upon the Sunday next after the Feast of St. Mathew the Apostle, reserving to themselves and their successors the Pension of two Marks and a stone of Wax yearly: at which time also they granted to them a Messuage adjoining to the Church yard (which was part of the Glebe:) And that of the Earls by Thomas de Beauchamp then E. of Warwick & Martii the same year: all which was confirmed by the King: Whereupon the same Earl, on the first day of May next ensuing, bestowed that advowson with the appurtenances on his Priory of Martoke in this County, then newly founded by him, as I shall hereafter shew: whereunto likewise the before specified Earl of Warwick, and Canons of Kenilworth did seal Releases of their severall interests, scil. the Earl on the Thursday being the Feast day of St. Luke the Evang. and the Canons on the Feast day of S. Vincent the Martyr in 15 E. 3. reserving still the said Pension of two Marks and a stone of Wax to themselves and their successors for ever: after which ere long, the said Canons obtained an appropriation thereof (scil. ult. Dec. the same year) from Wolstan Bishop of Worcester; whereby it appears that the perpetuall Vicar, having the cure of souls here, was to have a competent portion assigned unto him out of the fruits of the Church, extending to xx marks sterling per an. but that the said two marks per an. and the stone of Wax to the Canons of Kenilworth should be duly paid: And moreover that a Pension of two Marks per an. should be paid to the Bishop of Worcester and his successors: and to the Prior and Monks of Worcester and their successors xx s. per an. whereupon ensued the Ordination of the Vicaridge, made by the same Bishop and dated at Bertlebury xi Martii an. 1341. (16 E. 3.)

In 26 H. 8. the Rectory here was certified to be worth iii l. xiii s. iii d. per an. being so let at that time by Indenture: and the Vicaridge vi l. xiii s. iii d. per an. which Rectory, with the advowson of the Vicaridge, was (inter alia) past out of the Crown, together with the dissolved Monastery of Martoke, unto Charles Brandon D. of Suff. ult. Sept. 30 H. 8. And from the said Duke, excepting the advowson of the said Vicaridge, conveyed to Rob. Trapps, with Martoke also; being since sold viz. 2 Oct. 44 Eliz. to the before specified Andrew Archer, by Will. Poulet son of the Lord Giles Poulet, and Mary his wife, one of the daughters and heirs of Nich. son to the before specified Rob. Trapps: Which advowson coming by mean conveyance unto Will. Stanley L. Monteagle, was by him 12. Jan. 12. Eliz. aliened unto Ellys Aynsworth of Bolton in com. Lauc. Gent. whose son and heir, by his deed bearing date 4 Oct. 21. Eliz. conveyed it to John Addenbrook of Beolep in com. Wigorn. yeoman: which John 12 Oct. 27 Eliz. past it to the same Andrew Archer.

In this Church were two Chantries, the one at the Altar of the blessed Virgin, and the other of St. Katherine. Of these, the former was founded by Robert Folewode, first Vicar of Tanworth after the Church became appropriated to the Canons of Makstoke: which Rob. by his Deed bearing date at Tanworth on the Feast day of S. Gervasi-us and Prochadius 19 E. 3. granted to one Ranulph de Folewode, and the heirs of his body, his capitall Messuage, with all the lands and tenements thereto belonging, heretofore posselt by one Will. de Lec, and situate in a place called Beaumunt; as also another mess. sometime belonging to Ric. de Pirychull, both in this Parish; to the intent that the said Ranulph, and his said heirs should find a competent Priest of good conversation, chosen by the twelve principall Inhabitants of the town, to celebrate divine service daylie in this Church, at the said Altar of the Blef-sed Virgin, for all the living and dead of this Parish; as also for the Benefactors to the said Church and Chantry. Which Chantry-Priest, for the time being, was every year to take his Corporall Oath on the Feast day of St. Mich. the Archangell, in the presence of him the said Robert, his heirs and successors, that he would faithfully performe such service as abovesaid; and likewise daily say a Placebo and Dirige, with a speciall comendation of him the said Robert, by name, and his heirs:
and if the said Ran. de Folewode did happen to depart this life without issue of his body, that then the Messuages, beforementioned, should remain to John de Lodbroke, and the heirs of his body, upon the like termes; and so for default of issue by him, to John le Archer, with these severall remainders, in case of issue failing; viz. to Henry de Sidenhale, Rob. de Crewenhale, John Wodard, Will. Dolfyn, Will. Gower, Ric. Alleyn, Thomas Wystan, and
Ric. atte Berne, and the heirs of their bodies. To which Feoffment were witnesses Sir Peter de Mont-fort, Sir Edm. de Trussell, Sir Rog. de Aylesbury, and Sir Thomas Blancfront Kts. with others: The lands of this Chantry being in 37 H. 8. valued^p at Touching the other Chantry I find^q, that in 14 R. 2. one Thomas Collins, of this town, gave to Thomas Archer, John Fullwode, and others, divers lands, for to find two Priests celebrating divine service, here, for ever: all which being forfeited to the King, in regard of such disposall made of them without the Royall License, contrary to the Statute in that case made and provided, were thereupon given away by K. Ric. unto one John Swet, who having a desire to assign over his right and state in them unto Rose Mountfort (then a great woman in this Parish) obtained a Pat.^r from K. H. 4. in the first year of his reign, whereby the said K. gave them unto her and her heirs for ever, to the intent that she and they should provide and maintain two Chantry-Priests to celebrate divine service daylie in this Church, at the Altar of our Lady before mentioned, as well for the good estate of the said K. Henry during this life, and afterwards for the health of his soul, and the souls of his Mother, and Queen deceased, as for the soul of the said Rose, and the souls of her ancestors and heirs, and other Benefactors to the said Chantrye. Which Rose by her Deed^r bearing date 8 Maii in the same year, reciting the grant so made to her as abovesaid, gave those lands unto John Blaken-hale, and Ric. Boys, Priests serving at the before specified Altar, to hold to them and their successors, Priests of that Chantry, to celebrate divine service there for ever, according to the limitations before mentioned.

The advouson of which Chantry descended by the said Rose Mountfort to the Catesbies; but by reason of the attainder of Sir Will. Catesbie in 1 H. 7. was granted^r in 3 H. 7. to Sir James Blount and to the heirs male of his body. In 26 H. 8. the lands belonging thereto were valued^u at xiii l. vi. s. viii d. per an. but in^w 37 H. 8. to no more than vii l. vii s. iiii d. at which time I find it certified, that this Parish was xx miles in compass, so that in case of Plague or ohter sickness there; the Priests belonging thereto did use to assist the Vicar in ministring the Sacraments, and Sacramentals. The lands of both which Chantries, were granted^x in 7 E. 6. to Keneelm Throkemorton, Clem. Throkemorton, and John Throkemorton Esquires and their heirs.

I now come to the particular places of note within this Parish; viz. Umbrellade, Wonspath, Cley Hall, Codbarow, Chestwikes, Betlestworth, Lodbroke's-Mannour, Sidenhale, and Crewenhale; of which in their order.

THIS, being onely an antient Mannour house, was in H. 2. time, partly given^y by Henry de Vilers (Sewer to Will. Earl of Warwick) unto Rob. Archer and Seliit his wife and to the heirs of Seliit; in which grant it is termed terra de Umbrellade, and the said Robert called Rob. Sagittarius; and partly by Roger de Hulehale, to her the said Seliit onely. From which Robert and Seliit I have on the next page represented the line-all descendants, with their matches, clearly warranted from the originall Charters and evidences of this antient Family, whose principall seat it still continues.

Of William the son to Rob. and Seliit I find, that he had a grant of much land, here in Tanworth, by Valeran Earl of Warwick about the beginning of K. John's reign, which is set forth by speciall boundaries according to the use of those times: and likewise a Bull^a from Pope Gregory the ixth for a peculiar Chapell at this place, bearing date in 19 H. 3. In the Windows whereof are yet standing, and of no less antiquity than E. 3. time, the Arms of Beauchamp E. of Warwick, Clinton Earl of Huntingdon, as also of this Family, as they were then set up in the Glafs. Which Will. left issue John; who, being Champion^b to Thomas Earl of Warwick, obtained a speciall Charter, from the said Earl, to himself and his heirs for freedom to hawk and hunt every where, within the territories of Tanworth, excepting the Park, and to exercise all other Liberties, belonging to the said Earl, within Wonspath and Umbrellade, paying therefore unto him and his heirs xii broad Arrow heads & a couple of Capons, at Whitsontide yearly. This John had issue John, and divers other children, whereof Thomas was Lord Prior^d of the Hospitall of St. John of Jerusalem in England in 14 E. 2. which John, the younger, matching with Margery the daughter of Sir Will. Traci of Wodington in Gloucestershire (an eminent family in those parts) left issue John, and Thomas. Of which Thomas I find, that, having been in that Rebellion with Thomas Earl of Lancaster in E. 2 time, he obtained a pardon by the means and intercession of his Uncle, the Prior of S. Johns.

But to the before specified John succeeded Thomas; and to him another Thomas; who by his deed bearing date the Munday next after the Feast of the Purification of our Lady 49 E. 3. did, for the reverence he bore to the said blessed Virgin, as also to S. Thomas the Martyr, and All Saints, and for the health of his and his wives souls, and of the souls of Thomas le Archer his Father, Margaret his Mother, his ancestors and heirs, and all the faithfull deceased, grant License to Ric. de Montfort and others, to amortize certain lands lying in Lantwozth and held of him, for the founding of a Chantrie in the Chapell of our Lady and S. Thomas the Martyr within the Church of Lapwozth, (as I shall there more fully shew) which Thomas was one of the Esquires to Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, as appears by the said Earl's grant bearing date at Worcester 20 Martii 1. R. 2. whereby he conferred upon him, by the title of dilectio nobis Scutifero Thomas le Archer, pro bono & laudabili servicio quod nobis impendit, & impendet in futurum (for so are the words of his Charter) a certain yearly Rent of Ci s. iiii d. issuing out of sundry tenements of the said Earls, in Worcester, to enjoy during his life: and in 21. R. 2. was in Commission for the assessing and collecting a xvth. and xth. then granted to the K. in Parliament. This Thomas wedded Agnes the daughter to Sir Walter Cokesey of Worcester-shire, and had a special Indulgence from Pope Boniface the ixth. for the making choice of a Confessor, that might pronounce plenary remission to them, of all their sins, whereof with contrite hearts they should make confession at the time of their deaths.

To him succeeded Richard, his son and heir, who took to his first wife Alice the daughter to Will. Hugford of Spelteton in Shropshire, and at length heir to her brother, being then the widow of Sir Thomas Lucy of Charlecote Kt. from which Lady the Families of Lucie and Archer are both descended. Which Richard was one of those persons of note in this County, who in 7 H. 5. had command to serve the King in person for the defence of the Realm; all those then required so to do, being such as did bear ancient Arms by descent from their Ancestors (as the words of the Writ do import.) But afterwards marrying severall other wives; viz. Margaret the widow unto Thomas Newport of Ercall in Shropshire, by reason whereof he resided there upon her jointure; and Alice the daughter and heir to Will. Ley of Stotfold in Staffordshire, he was in 20 H. 6. constituted Shiriff of Staffordshire. In 35 H. 6. suggesting that he was to attend the King's service at Warwick upon Twede, under the command of Henry Percy Earl of Northumb. then Captain of the said town and Castle, he had a Patent of protection dated 8 Junii: but the King being advertised that he did not go with the said Earl accordingly, revoked it. In his later time he lived at Stotfold before mentioned, and there made his Testament 18 Jan. 9 E. 4. whereby he bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Church of St. Mary Magd. here at Lantwozth; giving unto the fabrick thereof four marks, and appointing that xii pounds of VVax should be burnt about his Hearse on the day of his Funerall: as also that there Betlesworth.

THe first mention I find of this place is in the Charter ^r made by Will. Earl of Warwick in H. 2. time, to Roger de Vlethale, of that circuit of ground called Monkspathe, already spoke of; wherein he gives to the said Roger, quicquid habuit in Betheleswortha, scil. totum tenementum quod Ricardus senior, & Ric. junior de se tenuerunt. Whether this were the grant, whereby that past, which was afterwards reputed the Mannour, I know not; if not, then did this continue unto the family of Vlethale, and went with Monkspathe (as 'tislike) unto John le Archer, as involved therewith, though not particularly mentioned. But for that which afterwards was reputed the Mannour, it was about the beginning of H. 3. time, granted ^r by Raph de Wilinton unto Rog. Durevassall. Which Roger making thereat his residenc, did, by reason of its remotenels from the Parish Church (whereunto in Wintertime, the ways were bad) in 41 H. 3. obtain Licence ^u from Pope Alex. the 4th, to build a Chapell here, and to have a Priest for the celebration of divine service therein; Nicholas Longespe, at that time Rector of Tanworth, likewise assenting thereto; but reserving, ^{*} in consideration thereof, from the said Roger and his successors, to the said Mother-Church of Tanworth, a Wax Candle of half a pound weight to be yearly payd on the Feast day of S. Mary Magdalen.

From this Rog. Durevassall descended Nicholas (as in Spernoure I shall shew) who together with Rose his wife were jointly seized ^w hereof: but he dying, and leaving her a widow, she became the sole owner of it, and was married ^x to Ric. de Mountfort: Howbeit, after the death of the same Nicholas, Will. de Spennore, his Brother, made entry therein, and disseised ^y the said Richard and Rose, so that suits grew betwixt them; yet at last they came to an Agreement ^z, whereby (it seems that Mountfort was to enjoy it: by which means it came to the Catesbies, as the Pedegree in Tanworth will shew, Robert Catesby senior being seized ^a of it in 36 H. 6. from whom descended Ric. Catesby Esq. who in 25 H. 8. sold ^b it to Thomas Green, whose great grandchild now enjoys it.

Lodbroke's Mannour.

That this was antiently belonging to some of the Family of Lodbroke, is not to be doubted; howbeit till 8 H. 4. I have not met with any mention of it: but then it appears ^c that Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick possessed it in R. 2. time, and that it was held of the King as of the Honour of Peverell: From which Thomas, dividing to the succeeding Earls, it came in 3 H. 7. to the Crown, with the rest of their lands (as in Warwick may be seen) and continued therein till 36 H. 8. that Sir George Throgmorton purchased it ^d, with the Mannour of Tanworth; since which time it hath accompanied the possession of that Lordship.

OF this place I can say little, other than that there was a Family which took their denomination thereof, and did bear ^e for their Arms a Fesse betwixt three Cressants, in 7 R. 2. By a daughter and coheir of which Family, it came ^f in 4 E. 3. to Fulwode of Clep Hall, and by one of them was sold to Hugford of Hentwood; in whose line it continued till John Hugford late of Hentwood, sold it to Nath. Cookes of Ingen near Stratford.

THere was also a Family that assumed their name from hence, as antiently as H. 3. time, and bore ^g for their Armes Nebule Arg. and sable, upon a Fesse gules three broad Arrow heads Or; of which I have seen ^h five descents in the male line; the last whereof was John de Crewenhale, who had one onely daughter and heir married ⁱ in H. 6. time, to Will. Parker of Chartley in Staffordshire: which Will. had issue ^k by her Thomas, and he Thomas, and he John Parker, who dyed ^l 18 H. 8. leaving issue Alice his daughter and heir, wedded to Thomas Greswold, second son to Ric. Greswold of Solihull in this County, from whom the Greswolds of Cobington, who now enjoy this place, are descended.

Packwood.

ALine, having thus past that large Parish of Tanworth, enters the Hundred of Barlichway; wherein, before it hath gone two miles, the access of a petty stream called Sillesburne, which hath its beginning in the nook of Kineston Hundred, before mentioned, about the edge of Packwood, enlargeth its Chanell. This place (sc. Packwood) lying in the utmost corner of Barlichway Hundred, and bordering upon Hemlingford, is reputed to be a member of Kineston Hundred, and as it hath in all Taxes antiently payd therewith, so doth it still; the reason whereof I conceive to be, because it was originally a member of Walperton (whereof I have already spoke) though it lye at so great a distance from thence, and so consequently belonging to the Monks of Cobentre; which was no strange thing, considering what I have said in Tanworth relating to Wyalles. Yet the first mention that I do find in Record of it, by name, is in 7 R. 1. where Philip de Kingtone levied a Fine thereof to Roger de Cherlecote: But it afterwards came again to those Monks (it seems) for in 41 H. 3. upon that grant ^m of Freewarren, which they had in divers of their Mannours, this of Packwood is instanced for one: and in 44 H. 3. upon the appropriation ⁿ of all the Churches, and Tithes, which which were within any of their lands, it is there enumerated amongst the rest. Howbeit, that which chiefly shews it to have been a member of Walsperton, and so consequently to have past therewith to the Monastery of Cobentre, upon the very Foundation thereof by Earl Leofrike, is the Record^o of 7 E. 1. where, it being certified that the Prior of Cobentre was Lord of both (for they are there joined together) it is said thus, Et tenet per Cartam & Warrantum S. Edwardi Regis, & per confirmationes plurimorum Regum.

At which time (viz. 7 E. 1.) the Monks had here two Carucates of land in demesne, and two tenants, which held one yard land by performing divers servile labours, being subject to what tax and exaction the Prior was pleased to impose upon them: As also six Freeholders, who held two yard land and a half under severall Rents, and suit of Court twice in the year; and at the same time a certain Park inclosed, with an Outwood, and not within the precincts of any Forest. But to put it out of all doubt, that it was a member of Walsperton, I shall vouch one more authority, viz. the taxation^o of the Temporalities belonging to the Religious houses in an. 1291. 19 E. 1. where it is said thus Prior de Coventre habet apud Pactwode, quod est membrum de Walsperton duas carucatas terra, & valet Carucata x s. & de redditu Assise vii marc. & unum molendinum aquaticum, quod valet vi s. viii d. & de placitis & perquisitis ii s. The metes and bounds of which Mannour are exactly set forth in the Leiger^r book of Cobentre, where divers other things relating thereto (that for brevity I omit) are to be found.

As for the particular privileges that the Monks had here, I shall not need to recount them, forasmuch as in Cobentre it appeareth what they were, throughout all their Mannours in 13 E. 1. In 26 H. 8. upon the Survey then taken the value of what the before specified Monks had in this place, was thus certified; viz. in Rent of Assise ix s. v. d. In lands, tenements pastures, and a Mill, xiiii l. viii s. iii d. and the ferm^u of the Mannour vii l. xiiii s. iii d. Out of which was allowed^u to Thomas Hugyn then Bayliff, an Annuity of xxvi s. viii d. But coming to the Crown at the generall dissolution in 30 H. 8. it was by the said King's Letters^x Pat. bearing date 8 Feb. 35. H. 8. past (inter alia) to Will. Willington (then of Warcheston Esq.) and Will. Sheldon (of Beoley, who had wedded one of his daughters) and to the heirs of the said Will. Sheldon, together with the advowson of the Church, to be held in Capite. Which W. Sheldon granted it to Rob. Burdet of Bramcote Esq. who died^y seised thereof 11 Jan. 2 E. 6. leaving Thomas his son and heir^{xvi} years of age: which Thomas had issue^z Robert; who, in consideration of two thousand pounds, demised^a it to Thomas Spenser Esq. (late of Claverdon) for 2000 years, by which means it came to Sir Will. Spenser of Parnton in com. Oxon. upon whom a great part of the said T. Spenser's estate was settled.

The Church (dedicated to S. Giles) antiently appropriated to the Monks of Cobentre, as I have already intimated, was long after, viz. in H. 6. time, reputed^b but for a Chapell (Walsperton doubtless being the mother Church) and therefore not Presentative; the Curate having then allowed^c unto him for his annuall Salary, the small Tithes, with the Altarage; the Tith Corn and all living Mortuaries being received^d by the said Monks. All which Tithes and Oblations, together with the Glebe, being allowed to the Curate for his stipend, were in 26 H. 8. valued^e at C s. per an. In 30 Eliz. (amongst divers other things) there was a grant^f made by the Queen to one Ed. Wymerke, of the Chapell here, by the name of libera Capella de Pactwode cum pertinentiis: but this (as I conceive) is of the same nature as those Patents were to Tipper and Daw, apprehending it to be concealed land.

Lapworth.

This, being given^g to the Bishoprick of Worcester by Kenulph K. of Merca, in the time of Denebert the ixth. Bishop of that See, continued thereto till the days of K. Canutus the Dane: but Brightegus the then Bishop, being sent into Saxony, to conduct Gunnilda the King's daughter, wedded to Cono the Emperour; having a speciall servant called Hearlewinus attending upon him in that journey, as a reward for his pains and travail, bestowed upon him this Village, then reckoned for no more than half a hide, reserving xii^d. yearly to be payd at the Feast of the Assumption of our Lady in acknowledgement of the Church its right, as the Register^h of Worcester manifests, where it is written Lappaworthin; so that after that time the Bishops had no more to do here. In the Conquerours time Hugh de Gretemasnil held it, as appears by the generall Surveyⁱ then made, in which it is written Lapetoze, and certified to contain 1 hide, the woods extending to two miles in length, and 1 in breadth; the whole being valued at xx s. But immediately before the Norman invasion, it was the freehold of one Baldwinus; who afterwards being glad to stoop (as most others then did) became Tenant thereof to the said Hugh, as an antient Register belonging to the Bishops of Worcester sheweth, wherein it is written Lappetorte, and said to be de Soca Episcopi, being held of the Bishops Mannour of Widestratford.

From hence till K. H. 3. time, having no light from Record to guide me, I must, by what appears afterwards, onely guess at the most probable course of its succession; which, I conceive was thus; viz. that with the rest of Gretemasnil's lands, it came by the daughter and heir of that Family, to Rob. firnamed Blanchmains, Earl of Leicester in H. 2. time (unto whom 'tis manifest that she was wedded) and that the ancestour of Henry Pipard, who lived in H. 3. time, obtained it by Feoffment from that Earl, or the said Henry himself from some of his descendants: for certain^k it is, that those Earls of Leicester were superior Lords hereof; and that this Henry was possessor of it, I have testimony^l enough. But the first particular mention relating to him, that I have met with, which hath any date, is in 20 H. 3. where it appears that there was a Fine^m levied betwixt him and Nichola his wife on the one part, and John Comin, Geffrey Corbizon, and Julian his wife, on the other; of two yard land here: And there is no doubt but that this was his seat; for in sundry Deeds, which I have seen, he is nor onely stiled Capitalis Dominus Feodi de Lapworth; but it is evident that that there was a Mannour house, here, in those times.

It should seem that he was a man of the superior rank; for in 25 H. 3. I find him in Commission^o for the Gaol delivery at Warwick, and likewise one of the Justices of Assize; so also in 26. and 31. H. 3. In 34 H. 3. he bore the office of Eschaetor in this County. In 36 H. 3. he was again one of the Justices for the Gaol delivery at Warwick, and left issue two daughters his heirs, viz. Dionysia the wife of Sir Rob. de Harecurt Kt. and Cecilie married to Sir Thomas de Bishopden Kt. upon partition made betwixt which coheirs, this Lordship fell to Dionysia, as it seems; for I find^u that in 49 H. 3. it was in the hands of Sim. de Mountfort Earl of Leicester, in respect of the minority of Will. de Harecurt son and heir to the said Robert: which Will. about the beginning of E. 1. time, granted^w unto Henry de Braunteston and his heirs, a certain part of his Court and Capitall mansion here, viz. that lying towards the West from the great gate by the Wall, which (then) extended to an Oak standing before the dore of the old Grange, with the advouson of the Church, and the homage and service of sundry Freeholders: To which Deed is his Seal of Arms affixed (scil. Or two bars gules) And after this did the said Will. grant^x (or rather confirm) unto Sir Will. de Bishopden, his nephew (viz. son and heir of Sir Thomas de Bishopden) certain lands lying here, which Henry Pipard, before specified, had formerly given to Sim. Bagot of Preston together with the advouson of the Church; and divers other lands, lying also here in Lapworth, which the said Sir Will. de Bishopden, and Sir Thomas de Bishopden Father of the said Will. had obtained from sundry other persons; for which grant he reserved to himself and his heirs the Rent of one barbed Arrow to be paid yearly at the Feast of Pentecost for all services.

Of Henry de Brandeston, above mentioned, I find, that he was a Priest or professor in some learning, for he hath the addition of Magister,^y and that he granted^z this Mannour to Hugh de Brandeston, his brother, and Margaret his wife, and to the heirs of their two bodies lawfully begotten: which Hugh, (being a Knight^a in 13 E. 1. had in 21 E. 1. a Charter^b of Freewarren granted to him in all his demesne lands here; & from 23 till 27 E. 1. was every year one of the Commissioners for the Gaol delivery at Warwick: But after the death of Edmund Earl of Lancaster in 25 E. 1. it was certified^d that the said Sir Hugh held this Mannour of him by the service of half a Kts. fee, doing homage and suit to the Court held for the same Honour of Leicester every three weeks; and that all his Tenants did use to repair to the Court Leet belonging to that Honour. And upon his death, which hapned in 27 E. 1. it appears^e that the extent of what he had here, in Lapworth, over and above the Mannour, was 3 Carucates of land, every Carucate containing 3 Virgates, and every Virgate xvi acres, Henry his son and heir being then 16 years of age. Which Henry, in 11 E. 2. acquired^f from Hugh de Lodbroke Parson of Blaby in Leicestersh. the inheritance of another Mannour here, whereof Letice daughter to him the said Henry had an estate for life, by grant from the said Parson. But after this it was not long ere that the same Henry past^g away one of these Mannours to Sir John de Bishopden Kt. as appears by his deed, and a special Mandate^h directed to all his Freeholders, and Customary Tenants, here in Lapworth, for to attourn unto him, which I conceive to be that called Wishwood Hall; for at Wishwood (there written Wispwode) doth the same bear date in 14 E. 2.

To which Henry succeeded Hugh his son and heir, whom I findⁱ frequently stiled Dominus de Lapworth, having in 11 E. 3. obtained a Lease^k thereof from Sir John de Bishopden Kt. for xl. years. In 33 E. 3. being constituted^l one of the Commissioners of Array in this County, he bore^m for his Armes two Bars with a bendlet over them, and dyed in 36 E. 3. as it should seem; for then doth it appearⁿ that Sibilla his wife was a widow; leaving issue 3 daughters, viz. Beatrice^o a Nun at Worhall, Agnes wedded^p to Philip de Aylesbury, and Rose to^q Richard de Montfort; betwixt which two last mentioned daughters, his inheritance here became divided^r in 43 E. 3. and that of Letice, their Aunt, in 47 E. 3. (Which Philip de Aylesbury was Lord of Edston in this County.) This Ric. de Montfort (a younger son to Sir Peter de Montfort by Lora de Aitley a Concubine, as in Waldesert appeareth) after his marriage with the above mentioned Rose, resided here at Lapworth as I think; for I find^s that he frequently wrote himself of this place. In 37 E. 3. he was^t one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parl. then held at Westm. and in 46 E. 3. he and his wife came to an Agreement^w with Phil. de Ailesbury and Agnes his wife, for their moytie of this Mannour; by which it appears, that they the said Ric. and Rose should hold it during their lives, paying to the before specified Philip and Agnes a Role yearly at the Feast of the Nativity of St. John Bapt. but that after their deceases it should return to the above mentioned Philip and Agnes, and the heirs of the said Agnes.

In 47 E. 3 this Ric. de Montfort founded^x a Chantrie here at Lapworth (as when I come to speak of the Church shall be shewed) In 48 E. 3. he was in^y Commission for assessing a Tenth and xvth. in this County, then granted to the K. in Parl.

y Ex Comp. Ball. War. Com. penes W. Peirpoint ar. 2 lb. of the Earl of Warwick's Courts for his lands in Poshtamptonshire, about the later end of R. 2. reign, and Atturney² generall for prosecuting their affairs in the Exchequer in 5 H. 5. Of this John I find that he bore² the Armes of Lodbroke (scil. Azure a cheveron ermine) quarterly with his own; whereby it should seem that some Ancestor of his married a daughter of that Family, through whose right, after the issue male was extinct, he did it. Neither is it unlikely, in respect of that entail of Lodbroke upon Will. de Catesby, his Father, as in my discourse of that place is shewed: and that he wedded^b Emme the daughter and heir of Rob. de Craunford, by whom the Lordship of Abby-Legers (in Com. Northampt.) came first to this Family. Which Emme with John her son (for Will. the elder Brother was then dead) in 13 H. 4. obtained a Charter^c of Free-warren to themselves and their heirs in all their demesne lands of Rodburne, Lodbroke and Shukborough in this Countie; as also of Abby-Legers, Walton, and Wafford in Poshtamptonshire.

d Pat. 5. H. 5. p. 1. in d. m. 26. This second John was in^a Commission for conservation of the Peace in this County in 5 H. 5. & in 6. ^c for arraying of men, being the first of the Family that had to do here in Lapwozth, (as hath been already observed.) To him succeeded Will. his son and heir, constituted^f Shiriff of Poshtamptonshire in 21 H. 6. with which office he had the custody of Poshtampton Castle assigned unto him. In 30 H. 6. he came into Commission^g for conservation of the Peace in this County (so continuing^h for the remainder of that King's reign.) And being again made Shiriffⁱ of Poshtamptonshire, had the like charge of the same Castle. I am of opinion that he was Knighted that very year; for in the next mention I find of him, viz. the year following, he is so^k stiled. In 34 H. 6. he became the third time Shiriff^l of Poshtamptonshire, and Governour of that Castle; and having been one of the Sewers^m to K. H. 6. had two wives, first Philippaⁿ one of the daughters and heirs to Sir Will. de Bishopden Kt. and secondly Joan^o daughter of Sir Thomas Barre Kt. and Alice his wife (Sister of John Talbot Earl of Shrewsbury, but widow of Humsfrey de la Bere) departed^p this life in An. 1470. 10 E. 4. lying buried at Abby-Legers before mentioned. By which wife he had issue Will. his son and heir; and by his second wife John Catesby of Althorp in Poshtamptonsh. as also Thomas Catesby, from whom those sometime of Wavers-Person in this County did descend. Which Will. being a great Favourite to K. Ric. 3. was made Squier^q of the Body to him, and, in 1 of his reign, constituted^r Chancelour of the Marches for life, and one of the Chamberlains of his Exchequer.

s 1b. in dor. fo. m. 16. The same year was he also made^s one of the Justices of Peace in this County, and a Commissioner^t to enquire of any Insurrections here, or in Leicestershire; and the next year following a Commissioner^u for the Gaol delivery at Warwick; in which he had a grant^w from the said King, bearing date under his Signet at Wentworth Castle 28 Maii, of an hundred Oaks to be taken within the said Ks. old Park of Wentworth, and Carl's-wood in Wentworth, within this County; and 500 Trees for Railes in Lodbrokes-Park, (within the said Lordship of Wentworth,) for making his new Park here at Lapwozth. But following the fortune of that King, and stoutly fighting for him at Wentworth field, he was there taken Prisoner, and beheaded^x at Leicester within 3. days following; where, before his Execution he made his Testament,^y as followeth,

After which, viz. in the Parl. begun 7 Nov. 1 H. 7. ensued his attainder, whereupon all his lands eschaeting to the Crown; this Lordship in 3 H. 7. was bestowed^z on Sir James Blunt Kt. and the heirs male of his body. To this William succeeded George his son and heir, who in 10. H. 7. having Livery^b of divers lands, descended to

Father and Mother to the said Margaret; and being by Act of Parl. held the year following, restored to his Father's forfeited possessions, whereby this Lordship came again to that Family, wedded ^d Elizabeth daughter of Sir Richard Empson Kt. (one of the great Projectors in H. 7. time) and by his Testament bearing date 8 May 19 H. 7. bequeathed his Body to be buried in the Church of Ambp-Legers before the Image of the holy Trinity, in his Chapell there; appointing that two marble stones, price of each vi l. xiii s. iiii d. should be brought thither, one to be layd upon his Father and Mother, and the other upon himself, as a memoriall for him and his wife: The Probate whereof bears date two years after, which shews that he dyed about the latter end of 20 H. 7. leaving William his son and heir, by reason of his minority, in ward to John Spenser of Wormleighton, who departed this life about the 10th. of H. 8. leaving Richard his Brother and heir, in ward also to Sir *Will. Which Richard having been one of the Kts. for this Shire in that Parl. of 30 H. 8. so fatal to the Monasteries; and the next year following Shiriff, and so also in 37 H. 8. being then a Knight, had two wives; scil. ^a Dorothe daughter to Sir John Spenser, Knight and Eliz. daughter to Will. Astell (one of the daughters and heirs to the Lady Jane Bray) and departed this life 4 May 7 E. 6. leaving William his grandchild and heir (for his eldest son William died in his life time) Which William being likewife a Knight, and residing much at Wuthrope, underwent the Shiriffalty of this County in 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000.

The Church (dedicated to St. Matthew) being given about the later end of K. H. 3. time, by Will. de Harecourt, son of Rob. de Harecourt (of whom I have already made mention) unto John the son of Peter de Glen; and by the said John granted to the Warden and Schollars of Merton Colledge in Oxford. was by them past over to King Edw. 1. Which King in 4. of his reign, conferred it on the Provost and Canons of the Hospitall of Montchensy, as by his Charter bearing date 24. Nov. appeareth. But it seems that thoe Canons had little benefit by this grant; for I find that the same K. by another Charter, bearing date 4. Junii the year ensuing, rendred and restored it to the Warden and Schollars of Merton Colledge above mentioned. After which, viz. in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was valued at xvii marks and a half: but in 26 H. 8. at no more than x l. per an. the Procurations and Synodals yearly payable out of it, being x s. v. d. ob.

In 47 E. 3. there was a Chantry founded^a in a certain Chapell adjoyning to this Church, by Ric. de Montfort, Roger de Ulbarve, Roger atte Greene of Lapwozth, and Richard Dolfyn a Priest; and by them endowed with two messuages, two carucates of land, twelve acres of meadow and xvi s. Rent, all lying in Tonewozth; for maintenance of a Priest to sing Masse there every day to the honour of the blessed Virgin, S. Thomas the Martyr, and All Saints, which lands were then called by the name of Modardes-Lond, Heath-land, and Lyfferley-field, as appeareth by the Earl of Warwick's Licence^b for amortizing of them, whereby also he gave authoritie to the said Richard Montfort and the heirs male of his body, to present a fit Priest thereto, as often as cause should require; but in default of such issue male, he the said Earl and his heirs to do it. After which establishment so made, the said Richard de Montfort and his fellow Founders, by their Deed indented^c bearing date at Tonewozth the Tuesday next after the Feast of the Epiphany 49 E. 3. setled the said lands and Rent upon John Jori the first Chantrie-Priest there, and his successors, to celebrate divine service daily in the said Chapell of our Lady, and S. Thomas the Martyr. for the souls of Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, the Lady Katherine his wife, William Witlesey late Archbishop of Canterbury, Sir Peter de Montfort

Knight, and Margaret his wife, Sir Baldw. Frevill Knight, Henry de Wolfrigeston late Vicar of Tonewozth, Sir John de Montfort Knight, Isabell late wife of Richard de Montfort, Hugh de Brandeston and Christian his wife, Nicholas Durvassall, and John de Honyngton: and for the good estate of T. de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, son and heir to the before mentioned Earl, and Margaret his consort, Sir William de Beauchamp Knight, Sir John de Clinton Knight, Sir Baldw. Frevill Knight, son and heir to the said Sir Baldwin, Sir Henry de Arderne Knight, Richard de Periton Priest, John Harewood Priest, Lora* de Astley, Baldwyn de Montfort, the Lady Alice de Langley, Richard de Montfort and Rose his wife, Thomas le Archer, Philip de Aylesbury and Agnes his wife, Roger de Ulbarve and Alice his wife, William de Montfort Clerk, Richard Dolfyn Priest, Richard Lyndsey Priest, Roger de Green of Lapwozth, and John Anketill, and for every of their Children during this life, and for their souls after their departures hence, and the souls of all the faithfull deceased: the value of which lands, over and above reprises, in 37 H. 8. were rated[†] at Ciii s. ix d.

Besides what belong'd to this Chantrie the Church of Lapwozth had certain lands^d given thereto in 18 H. 6. by George Ashby the Elder; viz. one messuage 12. acres of land, and one acre of meadow, then in the occupation of Thomas Hilton, and Agnes his wife: and another mess. with fifty acres of Land, five acres of Meadow, 31. acres of Pasture, five acres of Wood, two acres of Moore, and vii s. vi d. Rent, lying in Lapwozth and Pathurst; All which were granted by the said George, to Raph Perot then Parson of that Church, and his successors, to provide a certain Lamp to burne there, and to performe other works of Charitie: But these by Act^e of Parliament in 1 E. 6. coming to the Crown (with all others of that kind) were past[‡] away to . . . Grey in 18 Eliz. as concealed lands.

Before I leave Lapwozth there are two things which I desire to cleer; the one is, how it comes to passe, that it lying so far distant from Kineton Hundred, is neverthelesse reputed to be parcell thereof: and the other touching Washwode (which is a small Village of some scattering Houses, within the precinct of this Lordship) upon what reason it is in the parish of Old Stratford, so many miles from it, and in another Hundred. To the first I answer, that Lapwozth coming by descent from Grentemaisnill to the old Earles of Lancaster, and that Earldom being at length swallowed up in the Duchy of Lancaster, it was antiently joyned with those towns in Kineton Hundred, which were certified[§] under the title of Lancastria Ducatus; viz. Alminton, Forcote, Catendon, Thozndon, Fenni-Compton, Drshulf, Wachebroke, Merton-Boteler, and Compton-wynzate; and so still continuing in all assessments, and otherwise, is accounted part of that Hundred: And yet in 9 E. 2. it was reputed^h as part of the Hundred (now called the Libertie) of Wathlow, as Stratford still is.

And to that of Washwode I say, that it having long before the Norman Conquest been parcell of the possessions pertaining to the Bishops of Gloucester, as Stratford and Lapwozth were, and not disposed by the Conqueror, with Lapwozth, to H. de Grentemaisnill, but continuing to that Bishoprick, was held by some of the succeeding Bishops shops as part of the demesne of Stratford (their chief Mannour in this County) being a meer Wood, and therefore called Bishopswode, and so, through corruptness of pronunciation, Bushwode. It seems that Frethric de Bishopden was enfeoffed thereof, together with Bishopden, by Sampson Bishop of Worcester in H. 1. time; for I find that he afterwards quite claimed his right therein, and so did William his son and heir, to John de Constantii (Bishop in 9 R. 1.) and his successors; so that ever after it continued to that Bishoprick as a member of Stratford, untill Nich. Heath Bishop of that See, in 3 E. 6. past it, with Stratford, unto John Dudley Earl of Warwick; of which Mannour it still continues a member. But that which is now called Bushwood-Hall, hath no relation to it, being the Mannour-house of Lapworth, and indifferently stiled Lapworth-Hall, or Bushwood-Hall, because of its situation near Bushwood.

Kingswood, partly in the Parish of Lapworth, and partly of Rowington.

OF this place, by the name of the Mannour of Kingswood, I have not seen any particular mention in Record till ^m H. 5. time, it having been anciently part of the possessions belonging to that great Family of Montfort (Lords of Belbafert in this County) as may appear from what I have observed in Wellesburne-Mountfort, where it is taken notice of as a Wood lying at Badley (unto which it is contiguous) and there it did passe with Wellesburne; to that, it seems, it had long before that time been reputed a member thereof, which is the reason why to this day it is accounted part of the Constabulary, though so far distant thence: But from these Montforts, by a daughter and coheir, it came to Butler, as Wellesburne did; and in 13 H. 7. to Edward Belknap, (then of Sperton, juxta Wolsion in this County Esquire) upon a partition made betwixt him and Sir John Norbury Knight of all Butler's lands. Which Edward, by his Deed bearing date 16 Jan. in the year abovesaid, sold it to Nich. Brome of Badley-Clinton Esquire; from whom it devolved with that Lordship to the Family of Ferrers, and is so possessed at this day.

Rowington.

FOLLOWING this petty torrent, which cometh from Lapworth, it soon leads me into the Hundred of Warlshway again, where it forthwith meets with another little brook that hath its rising in Hemlingford Hundred; on the Western side whereof, Rowington (vulgarly called Rotonten) is situate, whereof I am next in order to speak. This town standing upon a rocky ground, had originally its name from thence, as may seem by the ancient Orthographie thereof, viz. Rochintone; for so it is written in ^p the Conqueror's Survey, where it is certified to contain three hides, having a Church, and woods belonging thereto, then esteem'd at one mile in length, and half a mile and eight furlongs in breadth: All which, having been the freehold of one Ballawin in Edward the Confessors days, were then possessed by Hugh de Grentemaisnill, and held at that time by Roger his under-tenant. But from Grentemaisnill it soon returned to the Crown (though by what agreement I have not seen) For certain it is that King Henry 1. had it in his hands, and gave it to the Abby of Reading in Berkshire, of his Foundation; whose grant, together with the Church, King H. 2. (his grandchild) confirmed. In the succeeding times I find it variously written, viz. Rubinton, Ruchinton, Rokintone, and Rowintone; and in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) that the extent of what the Monks of Reading had here, was found to be three carucates of land, valued at x s. a carucate, two water-Mills and one Wind-Mill rated at vi s. viii d. In Rent of Assize xi li. and that the profits of their own store in this place amounted to one mark, and the Pleas and perquisites one mark and a half.

Whereunto some Freeholders in this town made a little addition; viz. Thomas de Rovere and Richard Goodman, by the gift of one mess. Lix. acres of land, with viii. acres and a half of Meadow, or the maintenance of one Monk, being a Priest, to celebrate divine service every day in the Abby-Church of Reading above specified, for the good estate of the said Thomas during his life in this world, and for his soule after his departure hence; as also for the soules of his Ancestors and heirs: All which lands were by them held of the Barons of Stafford, who answered to the King the fourth part of a Knights Fee for the same (upon occasion) as by sundry Records is evident. But after the dissolution of the greater Monasteries in 30 H. 8. John Oldnall, the next year following, obtained a Lease of this Mannour from the King for xxi. years: which Lease was, it seems, ere long surrendered; for in 35 H. 8. the King upon the marriage of Katherine Parr (his sixth and last wife) past it inter alia, unto her, as part of her jointure. Which Katherine dying in 2 E. 6. it returned again to the Crown, and in 7 E. 6. was by that King past away, with other lands, in exchange to John Dudley D. of Northumberland and his heirs; whose attainder hapning soon after (as in my story of him amongst the Earls of Warwick is shewed) Queen Mary became possessed of it, and in 5. of her reign granted unto the said John Oldnall another Lease for xxi. years, which he enjoyed not; for in 5 Eliz. the Queen past an estate for life therein unto William Skinner Gentleman, Alice his wife, and Anthony their son: but neither did this demise hold; for in 6 Eliz. the said Queen gave it to Ambrose Dudley Earl of Warwick, and the heirs male of his body, who dying issueless it came again to the Crown, wherein it remaineth to this day, having been since leased to sundry persons.

The Church (dedicated to S. Laurence) was in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued at xx. marks, the Vicars portion at that time being esteemed at viii. marks: but in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was rated at viii li. out of which the Synodalls and Procurations yearly payable, amounted to viii s. v d. ob.

Preston-Bagot.

Descending lower on the Western side of the before specified brook, I come to Preston-Bagot, which in the Conqueror's time Robert Earl of Shelton posselt; and by the generall Survey then made, wherein it is written Prestetone, was certified to be of a large extent; viz. x. hides, five whereof, with a Mill rated at xvi s. and woods of a mile in length, and half a mile in breadth, were in his own hands, and valued at Ls. which had been the freehold of one Turbern before the Norman invasion: the other five, of which Brinod was owner in Edward the Confessor's days, one Hugh then held of the said Earl, they being estimated at xl s. But that which now, and for a long time hath been reputed for Preston-Bagot, is of a narrower compass: for, out of doubt, the places where both Waldesfort and Henley do now stand, together with most part of what belongeth to them, whereupon there was no habitation, was taken out of it. This therefore coming from the said Earl of Shelton (as the greatest part of his lands in this County did) to his brother Henry de Newburgh Earl of Warwick, was disposed of in H. 2. time (as I gueffe) by William Earl of Warwick to Ingeram Bagot, from whom it had the present name for distinction from other Prestons: all which I conclude from severall circumstances, the succeeding Earles of Warwick being chief Lords of the Fee (as I shall shew by and by) and the said Ingeram being posselt of lands here at that time.

To which Ingeram Bagot succeeded Simon his son and heir, who in 20 H. 3. answered for part of a Knights Fee, here, held by him of the Earl of Warwick; and gave to the Monks of Rea- ding two Mills lying within this his Lordship.

Which Simon had issue Robert, and he a daughter and heir called Isabell married to Thomas de E-tingdon. From this Simon (or if not from some other) who was only the Instrument to convey it, as I think, did the Knights Hospitalars obtain it in H. 3. time; for in 36 H. 3. it appears that Simon de Stoke, and divers other, held one Knights Fee here, of the heir of the same Simon Bagot, and that the said heir held it of the Hospitalars, and they of the Earl of Warwick. And by the Record of 4 E. 1. it is manifested, that the Knights Hospitalars had it about 30 H. 3. for from that time had they withdrawn their suit due to the Hundred Court in respect thereof.

That this is but a small Village, may appear by what was certified in 6 H. 6. which is, that there was then but nine Housholders in it. But upon the generall dissolution of the Religious Houses in 30 H. 8. it came to the Crown, and was (inter alia) granted out to Edward Aglionby of Walsall Esquire, and Henry Hugford of Solihull Gentleman, and their heirs by Letters Patent, bearing date 26 Maii 7 E. 6. From which Edward and Henry, Clement Throkemorton of Halelep Esquire; purchased it, and dying seized thereof 13 Dec. 16 Eliz. left it to Job Throkemorton his son and heir, whose grandchild Clement now enjoys it.

The advowson of the Church (dedicated to All Saints) hath been long severed from the Mannour; for in 16 H. 3. it was granted to Pauline Peyvre, and confirmed to John Peyvre (son to Pauline, as I suppose) in 47 H. 3. by Robert de Maneby Prior of S. John's, the Hospitalars being then posselt of this Lordship: But from Peyvre it soon came to the Montforts of Waldesfort, as appeareth from the Presentations thereto: and so to the Frevills and Willughbys as heirs to Montfort. In anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) the Rectory here was valued at vi. marks and a half; and in 14 E. 3. at iv li. vi s. viii d. but in 26 H. 8. at no more than iv li.

Armes in the Chancell windows

Upon a grave-stone in the Church
this Epitaph.

Here lyeth John Rand ll, by birth a Somers-setshire man, sometime a Student of the Law, re-gardsfull of his own and publique Peace; who on the Purification of S. Mary in the yeare of our Redemption, dyed, 1626.

IN this Church there was a Chantry * founded by Peter de Montfort of Beldefert; who in 20
E. 2. gave xxx. acres of land, with a piece of meadow ground, as also v. s. vid. in silver, v. strikes of Muncorn, and one strike of Oats, to be yearly paid
by certain Feoffees and their heirs, therewith intrusted, for the finding of a Priest to celebrate divine service daily at the Altar of our Lady within this parish-Church, for the health of his soul, and the souls of his Ancestors and successors.

Haselholt.

THIS, if it were ever a place of habitation, hath now no appearance thereof, being onely certain grounds so called, having had its name from the situation, Holt in our antient English importing a Grove of Trees standing on high: Nor till 50 H. 3.
have I found it mentioned, but then doth it appear that Peter de Montfort (slain a little before in the battail of Evesham, as in Beldefert is shewed) had four marks of Rent issuing out of this place. After which, viz. in 14 E. 1. it was with Beldefert and divers other Lordships, entailed by Peter de Montfort (son to the said Peter) upon the issue of his son John by Alice the daughter of William de la Planché, the extent thereof being half a Knights Fee, and held of Roger de Moubray. But in 13 H. 4. William de Beuchamp Lord Bergavenny dyed seized of it, together with the Castle and Mannour of Beldefert, whereof it was then reputed a member, the reversion of it belonging to William Boteler of Sudley, and Baldwin

the son of Sir Baldwin Freville Knight, as heirs in tail.

Beldefert.

ON the East side of the last mentioned brook,
runneth a Hilly tract, bordered with deep Vallies on each part, the point whereof maketh a kind of Promontorie, whose ascent being somewhat steep, gave occasion of the fortifying
there, at first, considering its situation in these wood-land parts, where through the opportunity of so much shelter, advantage was most like to be taken by the disherited English, and their offspring, to make head, for their redemption from the Norman yolk. 'Tis not unlike but that this mountanous ground may be it which we find by the name of Doncle in the Conqueror's Survey; for, as that is therein recorded to be in the Earle of Mel-lent's possession, and ranked next unto Preston (before spoken of) so doth the name argue no lesse, don and dune in our old English signifying a Hill: But if it were so, this now called Beldefert is of a larger extent than that could be; for that was then certified but at one hide, having a kind of Parke, or inclosure containing halfe a mile in length and
as much in breadth; all which was valued at xxx s.
having been the inheritance of Alwoldus in Edw.
the Confessors days: Therefore, in case it were so,
it must be concluded that a great part of the before specified Preston was afterwards added to it.

d Domefd.
lib.

From this Earle of Melent most sure it is, that the greatest part of what he posselt in these parts, came soon after to Henry de Newburgh, his Brother, the first Earle of Warwick of the Norman line; who thereof, and of divers other fair Lordships enfeoffed Thurstane de Montfort, his neere kinsman. Which Thurstane, finding it so capable of Fortification, erected thereupon that strong Castle, whereunto, by reason of its pleasant situation, the French name Beldefert was given; which continued; the chief Seat of his Descendants for divers ages; but at length, through coheirs, coming to such Families whose principall mansions were in other places; to prevent the advantage, which in the times of civill dissention betwixt the Houses of York and Lancaster might have been taken on either side to the prejudice of its owners (as I conceive) was either demolished, or suffered to go to ruine; so that now there is not only any one stone visibly left upon another, but the very Trenches themselves, notwithstanding their great depth and widenesse, are so filled up, as that the Plough hath sundry times made furrows in every part of them, to the great advantage of the industrious Husbandman, whose pains, through the ranknesse of the soil, hath been richly rewarded with many a plentiful crop.
But of this Thurstane, and his posterity residing here, I will now speak historically.

gave the Church of Compton as a Prebend to the Church of our Lady in Warwick: And after that, was the grant of Margaret Countesse of Warwick (widow to the said Earl) made to the Canons of Kenslowth, testified by him; as also the Foundation of that Collegiate-Church in Warwick by Earl Roger in 23 H. 1. and divers other grants. Which Thurstan, in King Stephen's time obtained a Charter from Maud the Empreffe for a Hermitage at this his Castle of Beldefert, to be weekly kept upon the Sunday, a transcript whereof from the originall I have here, for the rarity of it, inserted.

Of this Thurstan it appears¹, that he dispossessed the Monks of Thorney in Cambridgeshire, of certain lands lying in Wenge (in Com. Rutl.) which his brother Robert had bestowed on them by the consent of the Earl of Warwick, of whose Fee they were; neither would he make restitution thereof, nor discharge a debt in money, which his said brother owed to the Abbot, nor a Legacie that he gave to that Monasterie, till King Stephen by his speciall Precept, threatned him, that if he did not speedily do it, the Earl of Warwick should com-pell him, and in case of his neglect, the Bishop of Lincolne should see it done : whereupon he performed what had been so commanded, granting to the said Monks by his speciall Charter^m, for the health of his soul, with the soules of his wife and sons, and especially for the soul of his brother Robert, and all his Ancestors and successors, the half of the said town of Wenge, with the moitie of the Church and Mill, excepting the Fee of Raph fitz Nigell, and Thurstane his (the said Thurstane's) Elquire. For which grant (or rather confirmation) the said Monks gave to Robert his son a manc^{*} of Gold. That he was a man of great note and power may easily be guessed by this his feat, were there nothing else to manifest it : but to make it more evident, I shall instance what is recorded upon that Certificateⁿ made by William Earl of Warwick in 12 H. 2. which is, that he the said Thurstane then held of him ten Knights Fees and a fourth part de veteri Feoffamento, id est, whereof he had been enfeoffed in H. 1. time : Howbeit, after 16 H. 2. I find no more mention of him, neither can I discover whom he married; but Henry de Montfort was his eldest son, who reobtained^o possession of the Mannour of Wellesburne in this County, in 2 R. 1. whereof he had been disseised by King H. 2. which Henry was a Benefactor to the little Monastery at Wotton-Wawen (hard by) giving^p thereto his Mill at Benley, with a messuage, and some small proportion of land there; and to the Monks of Wordestey, to whom he granted^q certain Fishing in Avon, about Hillborough.

To him succeeded Thurstane de Montfort, who had great suits^r in King John's time, with Ensfice de Stutevill, and Nich. de Stutevill, for part of Cottingham and other lands and Knights Fees in Warwickshire. This Thurstane in 16. John. had the King's Precept^s directed to his Tenants that held of him by military service, to pay him Scutage, in regard that he had imployed Souldiers, in person, for the warr of Poitou; and bore^t for his Armes Bendé of six pieces Or and Azure, as by his Seal appears. He also confirm'd^u to the Monks of Thorney what his Ancestors had granted to them in Wenge : before mentioned : To the Nuns of Pinley, in this Countie, he gave^w the tenth part of the povision in victuall for his Household; viz. Bread, Beer, Flesh, Fish, and other things pertaining to his Kitchin : whose munificence therein was so highly esteemed, that he and his posterity were reputed^x for no lesse than Founders of that Religious House. Upon his death in 18 John. the wardship of Peter his son and heir, together with the custody of his lands, was comitted^y to William de Cantilupe. Which Peter, in 11 H. 3. obtained a Charter^z bearing date 10 Febr. for a weekly Perccate at this his Mannour of Welfesfert, upon the Munday (that granted to Thurstane his Ancestor being grown out of use, I presume) By the same Charter was there also a Franchise granted to him and his heirs, at this place, to be yearly kept for three days; viz. the Even, day, and morrow after the Feast of S. Giles; the Shirriff of this County having comand^a to proclaim it accordingly : But, it seems, he was not out of his wardship at that time; for the same year did the said William de Cantilupe (his Guardian) procure^b authoritie from the King, for receiving reasonable Aid from all the Tenants of the said Peter in this his Mannour of Welfesfert and Benley.

This Peter, upon the King's transfretation with his Army into Gascoign, in 27. of his reign, had power to receive^c Scutage of all his Knights Fees that he held of the Earl of Warwick, according to the rate of xl s. per Scutum : but being of a turbulent spirit, he ever sided with the rebellious Barons of that age, who the better to shadow their disloyall practises, first plotted their meetings, under colour of exercising themselves in martiall Tourneaments, which were forbidden by the King, who well foresaw the danger that might ensue; yet such was their boldnesse, as that, notwithstanding the same Prohibition, they met^d at Cambridge, amongst whom he made one; whose lands thereupon, for that disobedient contempt, were presently seized^e on : By which timely care of restraining them, all things were fairly quieted again, at least in shew; so that, within three years after, he, and many more of those haughty Spirits, attended^f the King in person into Gascoign. And that he was a person of great qualitie, in those times, may appear by the Agreement betwixt him & William de Beauchamp, then E. of Warwick, for an inter-marriage betwixt each of their eldest sons and eldest daughters; whereupon they obtained a speciall Patent^g from the King that in case either of them did die before the accomplishment of such marriage, and that his heir should be in minority, the intended match might, notwithstanding, hold, saving to the King onely the custody of the land. Which Patent was so granted to them 20 Aug. 32 H. 3. immediatly before that voyage for Gascoign. After which, viz. in 34 H. 3. he obtained a Charter^h of Free-warren in all his demesne lands here, and in divers other places: and in 35 H. 3. was constitutedⁱ Governor of Boystan-Castle in Derbyshire.

But amongst these his secular actions, I may not omit to tell what I find of his pious works; which is, that, about this time, he confirm'd^k what his Ancestors had granted to the Monks of Thorney, within his Lordship of Wenge in Rutl. And, for the health of his soul, and the soul of Alice his wife, as also of his Father, Mother, Ancestors, and friends, whose bodies lay buried in the Priory of Studley, gave^l to the Canons of that House all his demesne land called the Vineyard, situate within the Lordship of Studley. In 37 H. 3. he obtained the King's confirmation^m of a marriage for one of his sons, with Agnes the eldest daughter to Roger Bertram of Plitford (a great Baron in the North.) In 40 H. 3. he was sent Ambassadorⁿ from the King into France. In 41. being made Warden^o of the Marches towards Montgumert, for his better performance of that service, he had^p at the instance of Prince Edward, the custodie of the Counties of Salop. and Staff. as also the Castles of Salop. and Wuges, to dispose of the profits therein arising, as he should think best during the continuance of the Warrs with Wales; so that for the first year he was to hold those Counties, he should answer nothing to the Exchequer, but at the years end make his Account in the King's Wardrobe. In the next year following he was constituted^q Governour of the Castles of Wuges and Ellesmere in Shropshire. In 43 H. 3. he attended^r the King into France, and bore for his Armes^s Bendé of six pieces Or and Azure: yet all these high favours and Acts of trust from that King towards him, could not allay the heat of his proud and lofty stomack; For no sooner had the Rebellious Barons made head at^t Oxford, where they forcing the King's assent to their disloyall and unjust just Ordinances, caused a choise of xxiv. persons to be made, by whose discretion the Kingdom should be governed, than that this Peter shew'd himself the most forward amongst them, being not onely one^w of those xxiv. so chosen to rule, as aforesaid; but when all the rest of them, except himself and four others, calmly considering the great confusion, variance, and perill, then imminent, by reason of that strange rupture, were content that those Ordinances should be made void, and the King restored to his former condition, he joyned^x with them in opposing thereof.

Howbeit, so confident was the King, that his own candid intention towards them had wrought a change in their affections, that in January following he sent him Summons^y to appear at Hereford, on Munday next after the Feast of the Purification of our Lady, well furnished with Horie and Armes to oppose the power of Leuelin Prince of Wales, then in Rebellion: But I make a question whether he obeyed this Precept or not; for in the beginning of April next following, he was^z in Armes against the King at Portsmouth, with a multitude of the other rebellious Barons, and there taken, upon the storming of that town by the King's forces on the fite of that month; together with his two^a sons Peter and Robert, who were all sent Prisoners^b to the Castle of Winsoze. Which distresse moved them and the rest to hearken unto termes of accord with the King, from whom they soon obtained peaceable conditions (so softened was his Princely heart with their seeming fair intentions for the future) whereupon by his Precept^c to Drogo de Barentine, then Constable of Winsoze Castle, dated the 17. of the same month of May, he appointed that the said Peter and his sons before specified, should be immediately set at liberty: But loe the perfidiousnesse of these Conspirators; for within two dayes following, they gave the King battail^d at Lewes in Sussex, where (through the Prince his too eager pursuit of that part of the Rebels Army which he had routed) he lost^e the day and was made their Prisoner^f: But having elsewhere toucht the particulars of this Story, I will now go on with what concerns this Peter de Montfort: and that it may appear, how he was one of the most considerable persons in that Rebellious pack, shall give severall instances from the speciall trust and employment he then had in the sway of the Realm.

Shortly after this Victory at Lewes, so obtain'd, they agreed^g amongst themselves, that ix. Persons should be nominated to exercise Regall power, whereof three, at least, to be constantly resident in Court, for disposing of the custody of all Castles, and other affaires; with the nomination of the Chancelour, Justices, Treasurer, and all other Officers, great and small, tending to the government of the Kingdom; of which number this Peter^h was one: which persons, so appointed, madeⁱ use of the great Seal, transacting all things, touching the state of the Realm, in the King's name; and amongst other their doings constituted Commissioners^k to the King of France, and the Popes Legate, to reforme (as they term'd it) and settle the Kingdom, whose names I shall here recite; viz. Henry de Sandwich Bishop of London, Walter de Cantilupe Bishop of Gloucester, John of Oxford Bishop of Winchester, Hugh Despenser Justice of England, Peter de Montfort (before specified) and Richard de Mephem Archdeacon of Exford:

In which Commission, bearing date at Canterbury the Saturday after the Feast of the Nativity of our Lady (scil. 8. Sept.) there was a more especiall power given to our Peter, than any of the rest; that is to say, that whatsoever he should swear to do, the King must be bound by it. Dantes in super prefato Petro potestatem jurandi in animam nostram, quod nos quicquid ipse in premissis nomine nostro duxerit faciendum, ratum habeamus & acceptum (for these are the words thereof.) And after this, by another^l Commission, bearing date at Dover 24. of the same month of September, was the said Peter singly sent to the before specified Legate, to treat with him privately about those things, with desire that he might make as quick a return as might be: the intent of all this application to the Legate, being no other than to daub up their disloyall dealings towards the King, with fair and specious pretences to the Pope, least he should thunder out his Curles against them.

But, besides these eminent employments, I find, that by the same authority of the King's great Seal, he had the custody^m of Whipton Castle in Shropshire committed to his charge, by a Patent dated at Woodstocke 19. Decembris, and the next day following, ofⁿ Hereford Castle, to which, about the midle of May, they removed^o the King; and on the twentieth of that month made out a Precept^p to Walter de Evereus, then Shiriff of Herefordshire, for delivering the issues of that Countie to this our Peter, for the better strengthning of that Castle. And that nothing for conveniency to him in these his high transactions should be wanting, he had by the same authority a grant^q of Prince Edward's lodgings at Westminster. But loe the instability of earthly greatnesse, especially such as is raised by disloyall subjects upon the designed ruine of their rightfull Sovereign; for it was not many days after, that the Prince, making^r his escape from this Castle of Hereford, like a suddain flash of lightning broke through a cloud, raised such a powerfull Army, that on the day^s before the Nones of August following, he came upon the whole strength of those Rebellious Barons at Evesham in Gloucestershire like terrible thunder, where, obtaining a compleat Victory, this our famous Peter de Montfort, with divers more of the principall persons in that Tragedie, was slain^t. Whereupon the then Shiriff of this County (sc. William Bagot) had command^u to extend this Lordship, and the rest of his lands in these parts; but propter resistantiam inimicorum^v, as the Record expresseth, being not able to do it, the K. directed a Commission^w to the Abbot of Wobesley and Prior of Stodley, to take notice of the particular number of acres, of Land, Meadow, Wood, and Pasture, and the value of each; as also of those that held in villenage, with the Rents and services of the Freeholders, and to certifie the same into his Exchequer.

This Peter wedded^x Alice the daughter of Henry de Aldithley, and left issue Peter, William, and Robert; which William had^y the Mannour of Uppingham in Rutl. of his Fathers gift, and Robert other lands^z in that Countie; who, notwithstanding his activenesse on the Barons part, with his Father, was afterwards received^a into grace with the King. Having now done with his Story, I can do no lesse than observe, that in him was this Family in the Meridian of its glory, which thenceforth daily faded; for being the fourth in descent from from Thurstone, who was first enriched with such fair possessions by his kinsman, the Earl of Warwick's gift; and honoured with many employments of special trust; through the great favour of his sovereign, being puffed up with blind ambition, which prompted him to a confederacy with the Rebellious Barons of that age, he became partaker of that deserved destruction, which befell them. After which, the lustre of his descendants, though no whit abridg'd of their ancient Patrimony (in regard of that indulgent Decree called Dictum de Benilworth, which admitted them to grace upon favourable terms) began daily to diminish, till in the like fourth descent his male line was in a manner extinct, much of the ancient inheritance, with this Castle, their principall seat, then devolving to other Families by daughters and heirs; and the memorie of his name preserved only in an illegitimate offspring, as by the Pedegree is clearly shewed.

I now come to Peter his eldest son. This man siding with his said Father in those Rebellious actions before specified, was with him taken prisoner^b at Portsmouth in 48 H. 3. being, as it seems, the Commander in Chief of the Forces there met; for no lesse doth an Historian^c of that time testify—Horum erat precipuus Petrus de Monteforti junior (saith he) qui ad castrum confugerat, sed in castro reddidit se: Nevertheless, being enlarged^d (as I have already shewed) the next mention I find of him is, that he was again taken^e in the battail of Evesham (wherein his Father lost his life) and thereupon committed to^f Thomas de Clare, unto whom his forfeited lands were granted; whereof he the said Thomas received the benefit according to the Dictum de Benilworth, before mentioned: but shortly after, notwithstanding these his demerits: was not only admitted to grace and favour with the King, who by a speciall Patent^g dated 28. Jan. 51. of his reign, released unto him omnem indignationem & animi rancorem, ratione turbationis, &c. (for those are the words) but besides his paternall inheritance, into which he was, by the said Decree, again so reinvested, had restitution^h of an Annuity of Lv li. per annum to be paid out of the Exchequer to himself and his heirs, which had been formerly granted to his Father, in lieu of certain woods lying in the Forest of Rutland, wherein he had quitted his title to the said King.

After which I find, that resolvingⁱ on a Pilgrimage to S. James, in Gallicia, he^k constituted Humphrey de Hastang, and Richard de Wrenbull, or one of them, his Attorney to transact his affairs in the mean time: but whether he went the same year or not (being 56 H. 3.) I am not certain; for in 3 E. 1. he had another^l License to that purpose; and, within a short space, grew in such esteem with King Edward, that being employed^m in his service for the warrs of Wales 5 E. 1. in 8. of that King's reign, he grantedⁿ unto the renowned Queen Eliane, the marriage of John his son and heir, with power that she should dispose of him, in that kind, to whom she pleased: and in 11 E. 1. attended^o the King in that Welch expedition, wherein those parts were wholly reduced^p to obedience, for which service he was acquitted^q of L li. debt due by him to have been paid into the Exchequer. This Peter altered his coat of Armes, from what his Father and grandfather bore, changing their Bendé of six pieces to Bendé of ten, but retaining the Colours; and departed^r this life in 15 E. 1. leaving issue John his son and heir, and Elizabeth a daughter, afterwards^s married to Will. I. son and heir of Simon de Montacute; for which Lady there is yet standing a very beautiful Monument of Marble, with her statue cut to the life, on the North side of the Quire at Christ Church in Oxford (heretofore the Conventuall Church of S. Fridiswides Monasterie there) where there was afterwards a Chantrie of two secular Priests founded to^t celebrate divine service daily for her soul, and for the souls of the said William de Montacute; as also of John Bokyngham Bishop of Lincolne, Sir Peter de Montfort, her father, the Lady Maud her mother; and of John de Montacute, William de Montacute Earl of Salisbury, Simon de Montacute Bishop of Ely, Edward de Montacute, Alice de Aubeme, the Lady Mary Cogan, Elizabeth Prioresse of Walthwell, the Lady Hawise Barent, the Lady Maud Abbess of Werkling, the Lady Isab. II a Nun of Werkling, children of him the said Sir William de Montacute and her: and moreover for the souls of Sir Thomas de Furnivall her second husband, Sir Peter Limfie her kinsman, and Simon Isp; and for the souls of all her parents and friends.

But of the said John de Montfort, do I find very little memorable, other than that he took to wife^u Alice the daughter of Will. de la Planché; by whom he had issue John and Peter, with two daughters, viz. Eliz. and Maud, whose issue came to possess a great part of the inheritance pertaining to this family, as I shall shew anon: for John their elder brother, who was one^x of the murtherers of Peirs de Gaveston, having in 7. E. 2. received his Pardon^y for that offence, marcht with our English Army into Scotland, and there lost^z his life in the battail of Birtwistle, without issue, Peter the other brother having none legitimate. Which Peter (for I am next in course to speak of him) was first in^a Holy Orders; but after his brother's death, enjoying a fair inheritance, notwithstanding his sacred function, was so dispensed with (as it seems) that he betook^b himself to the world and became a Knight^c: And standing loyall to King E. 2. in the time of that great defection, when so many adhered to Thomas Earl of Lancaster; had a joint Commission^d with Will. de Beauchamp and Roger de Aylesbury for the safe custody of the City of Exeter. In 20. of that King's reign he was made Governour^e of Warwick Castle, then in the King's hands, by reason of the Earls minority. In 18, 19, 25, and 26. of E. 3. one^f of the Commissioners for conservation of the Peace in this County. In^g 20. for arraying of Clx. Archers; and in^h 29. for putting the Statute of Labourers in execution.

This John took to wifeⁱ Margaret daughter of the Lord Furnivall, but by her had issue no more than one onely son called Guy; betwixt whom and Margaret one of the daughters to Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, there was a marriage in 21 E. 3. by vertue of a speciall dispensation^k from Roger Northburgh Bishop of Coventry & Litchfield, having authority from Pope Clement the sixth for the same, in regard they stood allied in the third and fourth degrees of Consanguinity; which marriage was designed^l by the said Peter and the Earl, for the better founding a league of friendship betwixt them and their posteritie, in regard that many suits had been betwixt their Ancestors, by reason

son that their lands in divers places lay contiguous. Shortly after which marriage there was an estate in tail^m made of this Castle and Mannour, with divers other Lordships lying in this Countie, as also in the Counties of Staff. Which Thomas having obtained such an estate thereof in reversion, in 35 E. 3. But all this while was Sir Peter de Montfort living; who having had certain issue by an old Concubine^o, called Lora de Ullenhale, in E. 2. time, (daughter^p to one Richard Astley of Ullenhale) took care for their advancement, as may appear by those possessions they enjoyed, whereof I have taken notice in due place: And being grown an old man, made his Testament^q, bearing date on Saturday next after the Feast of the Conception of our Lady anno 1367. (41 E. 3.) by which he bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Church of the Friers Preachers at Warwick, whereunto he gave x li. that the said Friers should pray for his soul. To the Nuns of Winley he gave x. marks for the like purpose; and to the Lady Lora de Astley (his old paramour) then a Nun there, Cs. To Sir Baldw. Frevill, the elder, Kt. (his kinsman) xx li. To his son Richard de Montfort all his silver and gilt plate; as also all his goods moveable and unmoveable, lying in his Mannours of Binghurst in this Countie, and of Odes in Wiltshire; bequeathing C li. to be given to certain Priests to pray for the souls of his Father and Mother, and all the faithfull deceased; and appointing that every of his old servants should be rewarded at the discretion of his Executors, and within two years after, died; for the Probate of his said Testament bears date 19. Cal. Feb. anno 1369. (43 E. 3.) Of which Peter all that I have seen farther memorable, is, that in 20 E. 2. he gave^r certain lands and Rent for the finding of a Priest to celebrate divine service daily in the Parish-Church of Bretton-Bagot, for the health of his own soul, as also the souls of his Ancestors, & successors (whereof I have more particularly spoke in my discourse of that place.) But that which I have to say of his posterity, I reserve to be spoken in Colshill, where they settled by the marriage of John his eldest illegitimate son, with Joan the daughter and heir to Sir John de Clinton Knight. And shall now returne to make enquiry through what hands this Castle and Mannour hath since past.

But it should seem that Frevill did not afterwards make such an assignation to Butler of any lands to equalize the interest he had here in Beldefert; and that in default thereof, there was another partition, by which Butler had the site of the Castle and the Park wherein it stood, and certain other lands in Beldefert, with the advouson of the Church (all which past by the name of the Mannour of Beldefert) together with the town of Henley as parcell^x of the Mannour of Beldefert: for by an Inquis. y taken after the death of Sir Raph Boteler of Sudley Knight, in 13 E. 4. it appeareth, that he dyed seized of all these, leaving Sir John Norbury Knight, and Henry Belknap Esquire his colins and heirs (as by the Descent in Casse appeareth) From which Sir John and Henry did King Edward the fourth in 17. of his reign obtain it, as by an Obligation^z in two thousand marks, wherein they the same Sir John and Henry became bound unto the said King, to release all their right and title therein, by the name of the Mannour of Beaufort with the appurtenances, four Messuages, four Gardens, two Acres of Land, CCCC. acres of Meadow, a thousand Acres of Pasture, CCCC. acres of Wood, and xii li. of Rent, with the appurtenances, in Beaufort, Henley, Whitley, and Ullenhale, unto John Bishop of Worcester, Anthony Wydevile Earl Rivers, and others, to the use of the said King, appears. And in 21 of his reign constituted^a Thomas Frebody Receiver to his Highnesse thereof, together with other Mannours in these parts: From which time it continued in the Crown, till King Edward 6. by Patent dated 22. Dec. in the first year of his reign, past^b it away by the name of the Mannour of Henley in Arden, alias Henly Beaufort, with two Parks thereunto belonging, unto John Dudley Earl of Warwick, and his heirs. Which coming again to the Crown in 1. Maria by his attainder (whereof I have elsewhere spoke) was by Q. Elizabeth in the fourth of her reign, granted^c to Ambrose Dudley then Earl of Warwick, and the heirs of his body: who dying issuelesse, it returned again to the Crown; from whence Alderman Cawdwell, a Londoner, purchased the site of the Castle, with the Park wherein it stood, in our time.

the wife of Hugh Willoughby, the third sister, being found his heirs: Betwixt whom Partition^c also was afterwards made: by vertue whereof (as it seems) this, by the name likewise of the Mannour of Wobesert, was allotted to Aston; for I find that Sir Edward Aston of Wickfall in Com. Staff. Knight, son of Sir Walter, being seized thereof, sold it^f in 36. Eliz. to Francis Smyth of Wotton-Wawen Esquire and his heirs; who in 15 Jac. obtained a Charter^s of Free-warren in all his demesne lands here, and dying seized thereof, left it to Sir Charles his son and heir (since created Lord Carrington) the present owner thereof.

Of the Church (dedicated to S. Nicholas) I find no mention at all in that Taxation of Anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) But in 14 E. 3. the^h Record runneth thus, Ecclesia de Wobesert non extenditur propter paupertatem, sed valet per annum xl s. and in 26 H. 8. it was ratedⁱ at viii li. there being at that time ii s. yearly payable out of it for Procurations and Synodals, and ii s. as a Pension to the Church of Wotton.

Henley.

IN speaking of this place next, I shall somewhat thwart my accustomed order, in regard it is in the parish of Wotton-Wawen: but considering that it hath so anciently belonged to the Family of Montfort, whereof I have last discoursed; and that it lyes so neer unto Wobesert, whereunto I conclude that it was in some sort antiently annexed, I have thought it most proper to be here taken notice of. In the Conquerors Survey there is nothing at all of it, in respect it is there involved with Wotton, whereof it was originally a member, and granted (as I conceive) by one of the Barons of Stafford to the first Montfort that leased himself at Wobesert. Nor till King Stephen's time, that Maud the Emperesse granted to Thurstan de Montfort a Mercate at that his Castle, formerly (spoke of, was there any habitation here (as I guess) the first building having been occasioned (as is most probable) for reception of, and accomodations to Mercate-people, it lying at the very foot of the Hill whercon the said Castle stood, and upon the common Road leading from Stratford super Avon to Birmingham: for the soonest mention that ever I could meet with of it, is in a grant^k of the Mill to the Monks of Wotton, by Henry de Montfort, in H. 2. time. And the next to that is in 5 H. 3. where Peter de Montfort had a grant of^l a Mercate here, upon the Munday every week; and an yearly Faire for two days, viz. the Even and day of S. Giles; whereof he was to take benefit till he should come of age. In which Record it is called Hanley, but in truth it ought to have been written Heanley, as the ordinary sort of people doe still pronounce it; for that was its originall name, and occasioned from the ascending ground, whereunto it is so neerly situate, hean in our old English signifying high.

Which dayes for the Mercate and Faire, being one and the same with that of Wobesert, granted to the said Peter and his heirs in 11 H. 3. (though here exprest apud Manerium suum de Hanley, and there apud Manerium suum de Wobesert) doth much fortifie my former conjecture: but as for the manner of the grant, they onely thus differ; viz. that in this place it is limited to him alone, and to continue till his coming of full age; and in the other to him and his heirs: from whence may also be inferred, that in 11 H. 3. he was out of minority. In those days it yielded^m xv li. per annum Rent, the Toll and the Eschaets being valued at five marks; but after the battail of Clitham, it answered very little, inⁿ regard it was then burnt. In 13 E. 1. I find, that Peter de Montfort, son to the said Peter, claimed^p to have here divers Liberties, viz. Gallows, Assize of Brad and Beer, as also a Mercate and Free-warren within this his Mannour; and for the Mercate and Free-warren produced the Charter of King H. 3. but for the rest pleaded Prescription, which was allowed: And in 24 E. 1. that upon the extent of John de Montfort's lands, he dyed^q seized thereof, it being there termed Burgum de Henlepe; as also that there were then Lxix. Burgeses, which payd vii li. xviii s. x d. ob. Rent; and likewise a Park, with two Water Mills; and moreover that the Pleas and perquisites of Court, extended to Lviii s. all which were held of Edmund Baron of Stafford, by the service of iii s. or one pair of Scarlet Hoie.

It seems that the Mercate here, grew in time to be well frequented; for in 10 E. 3. the Inhabitants of this town procured License^r from the King to take Toll of all corn and other comodities brought hither to be sold for the space of 3 years, towards the defraying their charge of paving the streets; which work being not then compleated, they obtained another^s Patent for the like Toll for the space of three years more: Neither did this allowance finish the said paving; for in 6 R. 2. they had a third Patent^t for taking Toll in like sort during the terme of five years more.

As to the entail of this Mannour, whereby the remainder, for lack of issue by Guy de Montfort, was settled upon Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of War- wick, and the heirs of his body, I shall not need to say more than what is exprest in Waldesfort: neither when or how the inheritance thereof was passed out of the said Earl, or his son: But certain it is, that Sir William Beauchamp Lord Bergavenny held it for life: for by the partition^u made betwixt Sir Baldwin Frewill, and Sir Thomas Boteler in 9 R. 2. (whereof in Waldesfort I have spoke) so much is intimated, and an accord then made betwixt them, that the same Sir Baldwin should have this Mannour of Penley, intirely, after the death of the said Sir William Beauchamp, in case he did passe to him the said Sir Thomas other lands of as good value; which it seems he did not do; for it is most cleer, that the heirs of Boteler afterwards enjoy'd it; and that Sir Raph Boteler Knight, Lord Sudley, by an ample Charter^w in 27 H. 6. wherein is recited, that himself and his Ancestors, possessors of this town and Mannour, used to have a Court-leet of all their Tenants, and other persons resident within the same, twice every year, there to be held, with Weyfs, Estreys, and whatsoever else to a leet belonged: as also a Mercate every Munday, all which were then confirmed; had moreover a grant, that himself and his heirs, by their Bayliffs, or Officers, should within the precincts thereof, have Return of Writts and Precepts, and Summons from the Exchequer, Extrajts, and Precepts of the Justices of both Benches, and Itinerant, together with Attachments, aswell of Pleas of the Crown, as Bills and Precepts of the Steward, Marshall and Clerke of the Opertate of the said King's household, his heirs and successors; so that no Shiriff nor other Officer should have power to enter therein, concerning any execution of their Office: As also of Infangthef, Outfangthef, Goods of Felons and Fugitives, or of any condemned persons: and that no Purveyor for the King's Household should take any thing there, of him the said Sir Raph or his Tenants, or any person resident within the precincts thereof. All which Tenants the said King did thereby acquit of Toll, Stallage, Pontage, Pavage, Poundage, Murage, Kaiage and Chiminage, in whatsoever places throughout the Realm: And lastly that he the said Raph, and his heirs, should have here every year 2. Festes, scil. one on the Tuesday in Whitson-week, to continue for two dayes following, and the other upon the Feast-day of S. Luke the Evangelist, and two days after: which Charter bears date at Westminster xvi Maii. the year above specified.

From which Family of Boteler it came by daughters and heirs to Sir John Norbury Knight, and William Belknap Esquire, and so accompanying the possession of Waldesfort (as by the authorities, which I have there cited, may be seen) returned to the Crown by the death of Ambrose Dudley Earl of Warwick, without issue; and continued therein, till that King James by his Letters Patent bearing date 23. Sept. 17. of his reign, past it^x to John Lord Digby and his heirs, with divers Mannours and lands lying in other Counties, in consideration of 13000 li. allowed him by his Majesty towards the defraying of his charges in his Spanish Embassie.

The Chapell here (dedicated to S. John Baptist) was built about the 41. year of King Edw. 3. as appears by the confirmation^y thereof then made by William Witlesey Bishop of Worcester; in which is exprest, that it was erected at the sole charges of the Inhabitants, in regard of the large distance, and foul ways in Winter-time, betwixt this Village and the Parish Church of Wotton-Warren; and by the consent of William de Senye then Prior of Wotton (unto which Religious House the said mother Church of Wotton was appropriated) and Will. de Perton the then Vicar: which Inhabitants and their successors had authoritie then given them by the same Bishop to provide and maintain a fitting Priest at their own proper charges, for celebration of Divine service there, so that the Vicar of Wotton, for the time being, might wholly receive and take all Oblations, arising in the said Chapell, upon Christmas day, Candlemas day, Easter day, and S. Peter's day (being the day of the Dedication of that Church) and for Churching of Women, at any time, in the said Chapell: But of all other profits arising upon the said days, or any other throughout the year, the Vicar to have two parts only, and the Prior the third. And that the Priest belonging to this Chapell might have power, so often as occasion should be, to Church Women there, to administer the Sacrament to such old & decrepite people as could not go to the said Parish Church, and to perform all other parochiall rites therein, buriall for the dead only excepted. For the performance of all which, the Priest for the time being, at his first admission thereto, was to oblige himself by his corporall Oath, in the presence of the Prior of Wavens-Wotton and the Vicar, lest the said Church of Wavens-Wotton should be dampnified. And that all good people might be the more stirred up to contribute towards the charges for the fabrick hereof; as also for the Bells, Books, Lights, Vestments, and other Ornaments belonging thereto, the said Bishop by that his publique Instrument, which bears date at Hertlebury 5. Cal. Aug. Anno 1367. granted to every one that would be open-handed therein, an Indulgence of xl. days; all which was confirm'd by^z the Prior and Monks of Worcester.

About two years after, there was a purpose by one William Fishyde of this town, to found a Chantrie in a Chapell, then newly intended to be built here, for one Priest, to celebrate Divine service daily, for the good estate of the said William, as appears^a by that preparation to a License for amortizing of three messuages, situate in Penley aforesaid, to that end: but whether it were performed or not, I make a question; for I have seen no more of it.

In 26 H. 6. there was an Hospitall here built, for the relief of poor people and strangers; towards the support of which charge, John Carpenter, then B^l. of Worcester, granted out an Indulgence^b to endure for three years, on the behoof of all such as should make contribution. Some think that the Gild-House situate on the North side of the Chapell, is the Hospitall here spoken of; For in the Chapell before mentioned, there was a Gild founded^c by Raph Boteler (Lord Sudley) which Gild had four^d Priests belonging thereto, who were to pray for the Founder's soul. But upon the^e Survey taken in 26 H. 8. there were no more than two Priests serving therein, whereof one had an yearly stipend of vli. vi s. viii d. and the other of vli. Howbeit, in 37 H. 8. upon the Extent of the lands belonging thereto, which were then valued at xxvii li. iii s. iii d. it appears^f, that there were three Priests^g whereof one had a stipend of Cx s. per annum, and the other two of Cs. a piece; as also an Organist, who had xl s. annuity. Before the

the dissolution of this Gild, it was a custome (as I have heard) that upon all publique occasions (as Weddings and the like) the Inhabitants of this town kept their Feast in the Gild House, before specified; in which they had most kind of Household stuff, as Pewter, Brasse, Spits, Andirons, Linnen, Tables, &c. and Wood out of the little

Park at Beloeferst, for fewell; those which were at the charge of the Feast paying only vi s. viii d. for the use of them: But now all is gone except the Pewter, which being in the Chapell-Wardens custody, they lend out for iv d. a dozen when any Feast is made.

Wootton-Wawen.

Following this petty stream, I come next to Wootton (commonly called Wootton-Wawen) a Parish of a very large extent, containing these Villages and places of note; viz. Aspley, Moxley, Ford-Hall, Crowley, Willenhale, Botley (Henley in Arden already spoke of) Whitley, Foxwode, Coton, Bearley, Slesburne, Wawensmoore, Wyche, and Dfford; of all which in their order. As for the name, there is no question but that it was originally occasioned from the situation, being amongst woods; and so, for the more facility of pronuntiation called Wootton instead of Wootton, having the addition of Wawen (for distinction from another Wootton in this County) in regard that one Wagen (commonly called Wawen) Lord thereof before the Norman Conquest, had his seat here. This Wawen was a man of great quality in his time; for, being one of the witnesses to Earl Leofrik's Foundation Charter of the Monastery at Cobentry in 1^o Edwardi Conf. he is rankt with other eminent persons, and after his name these words added, viz. & multi alii Primates in Anglia, quorum hic nomina notare fastidiosum esset: Neither doth the extent of his lands argue lesse; for by the Conqueror's generall Survey it appears, that Wara (now called Church-Dwer) Wolbarde, Wlesho, Doytone (now Doyton-Bagot) Willenhale, Dfford, and this Wootton were all his; and perhaps much more, though there not recorded.

But it being the fate of the native English, in a manner totally, to be dispossessed of their inheritances, to make way for the Normans advancement, this Wagen (or Waga; for so his name is written in Domesday-book) was outed of all those places before specified; which, with divers other fair Lordships*, lying in the Counties of Berk., Dorset, Hampshire, Stafford, Salop, Lanc., Derby, and Suff.

were bestowed by the Conqueror on Robert de Stadford, paternally descended from that great and noble Family of Tonei, being son (as I think) to Roger de Tonei, totius Normannia Signifer; as also Brother to Raph de Tonei, who came into England with Duke William, and fought stoutly on his behalf in the battail against King Harold; in which I need not make question, but that this Robert also was: for my Author, having mentioned the said Raph and some few others of the highest rank; addeth these words, aliq; quamplures militaris prestantia fama celebratissimi, & quorum nomina Historiarum voluminibus inter bellicosissimos commendari deceat. In consideration therefore of that notable service, I shall conclude, that he was rewarded with such vast possessions, in the severall Counties before mentioned; amongst which this town of Wootton, with the rest of Wagen's lands were part: but making choise of Stafford for his principall seat (where he had a strong Castle, as is evident) assumed his surname from thence.

The extent of this Wootton was then certified to be 7. hides, there being at that time a Church, and two Mills; and the woods belonging thereto, containing two miles in length and one in breadth; which, with all the rest, were valued at iv li. In the line of which Robert, it continued till the death and attainder of Edward Duke of Buck. temp. H. 8. But the story of that noble Family I reserve for another work, and shall here take notice only of what I find thereof in reference to this place; which is no more, than that in 13 E. 1. Nich. Lord Stafford obtained a Charter of Free-warren for himself and his heirs in all his demesne lands here: And that in 2 Edw. 2. Edmund his son, dying seized of this Mannour, was certified to hold it, together with Wleshe in this Countie, and certain lands in Staffordshire, of the King in Capite by Barony; scil. to find three armed men, with Horses compleatly harnesssed for service, service, in the Warrs of Wales during the space of xl. days, at his own proper charges. After the death of which Duke, Thomas Grey Marq. Dorset, obtained it (inter alia) from the King; first for life, and afterwards to himself and the heirs male of his body. Which Thomas had issue Henry Marq. Dorset created Duke of Suff. by King Edw. 6. (as in Attley is shewed) but attainted in 1 Mar. r. 2. whereupon this Mannour was granted by that Queen to Sir John Grey Knight, and Mary his wife and their heirs 3 Junii 2 & 3. Ph. & M. 7. 8. From whom Dame Agnes Smyth, the Widow of Sir John Smyth Knight, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, and Francis Smyth, son and heir to the said Agnes, purchased it 1. Mar. r. Eliz. which Francis died seized of it 3. Sept. 4 Jac. whose grandchild Sir Francis Smyth Knight; having in 15 Jac. obtained a Charter of Free-warren in all his demesne lands here, left issue Sir Charles Smyth Knight, his son and heir (now Lord Carington) the present owner thereof.

Besides this Mannour here in Wootton, that continued so long in the line of Stafford, there was another, which belonged to the Family of Harewell for many descents, but had not the reputation of a Mannour (for ought I have seen) till of later time: For the original of it grew by divers petty purchases of severall parcells of land in the times of King Edw. 1. and E. 2. made by one Richard de Stanford and Idonea his wife; which Richard is stiled, in most of the deeds that I have seen Magister Ric. de Stanford Clericus; and left issue John his son and heir, who in 23 E. 3. being one of the Commissioners, in this County, for assessing and collecting a xvth and xth then granted to the King in Parliament, and in 27 E. 3. Coroner in this Shire, bore for his Armes a Fesse, and upon a Canton in the dexter part of the shield, a martlet, as by his Seal appears; and had issue John, as also Maud a daughter married to Roger de Harewell, brother to John Harewell Bishop of Bath and Wells towards the later end of E. 3. and beginning of R. 2. time: which Maud became her brother's heir, and posselt all those his lands: whereunto by marriages of severall heirs, and otherwise, her descendants made so fair an addition, as that they were rankt amongst the superior gentry of this Shire: therefore, having something to say historically of them (this being their principall Seat) I have inserted the following Pedegree, extracted out of the Evidences of the before specified Lord Carington.

Of John Harewell, son and heir to Roger and Maud, I find, that he being elected one of the Coroners in this Countie in 16 R. 2. upon his complaint to the King that the choise was not according to the tenour of the Statute of 3. E. 1. Cap. 10. which provideth that those to be chosen ought to be sage and wise Knights, that might know how to undergo, and that would attend the said Office, a Precept was directed to the Shiriff to make a new election in his full Countie, wherein the form of the said Statute should be exactly observed. In 1 H. 5. he was Eschaetor for this County and Leicestershire. In 5^o one of the Councell to Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick. In 7 H. 5. employed by Commission with other persons of quality, to treat with the people here for a loan of money to the King; and from 9 H. 5. till his death, a Justice of Peace in this Shire. He bore for

This William was a trusty friend to the House of Lancaster (as it seems) for upon the regaining of the Kingdom by King H. 6. he had the custody^o of this Countie and Welchestershire; and before the end of that his Shirivealtie, fought stoutly on King Henry's part at Barnet field; in which battail being taken prisoner^r, he was thence carried to Windsoy Castle; whereupon also his lands were seized by the King, and bestowed^r on Humphrey Stafford Esquire, to hold during the King's pleasure: But after a while, through the solicitation of his kinsman John Leighton Esquire, made with John Talbot then Earl of Shrewsbury, he was released^r of his imprisonment, and restored to his lands: For which favours the said Earl had first xl li. that the same John Leighton promised to give him for obtaining his enlargement & lands; and xl. marks more, which he exacted^o over and above. But after this, in 14 E. 4. he was constituted^o one of the Justices of Peace in this County; yet I do not find that upon the next renewing of those Commissions, or ever after, that he had the like employment during King Edward's reign: howbeit, in 2 R. 2. he was appointed^x one of the Commissioners of Array in this Shire. All that I have seen more of him is, that in 16 H. 7. he founded a Chantry in the Friars Preachers at Warwick (of which I have particularly spoke in my discourse of that place) and that departing^y this life 2. Dec. the same year, he was there buried^z, leaving John his son and heir 30. years of age.

Which John in 18 H. 7. being constituted^b one of the Justices of Peace in this County, was, the same year, made Constable^c of Warstoke Castle by Edward Duke of Buck. and by his Testament^d bearing date 8. Apr. Anno 1505. (20 H. 7.) gave to the said Duke (whom he there calls his Lord) his great Dun Horle for a Heriot: and by Anne his wife, daughter^o and heir to Richard Middleton had issue two sons and five daughters, whereof Thomas the elder dyed^e without issue before 3 H. 8. and William was^z a Priest; whereupon the sisters came to inherit; viz. ^h Elizabeth, Anne, Brigit, and Agnes: for Maud the Eldest, wife of John Leighton, dyedⁱ without issue before the partage was made betwixt them. Of which, Elizabeth, first the wife of Anth. Raleigh, and afterwards of Leonard Rede, had for her share the Mannours of Bea-cra-combe and Copland in Somersetshire, and vi s. viii d. yearly Rent issuing out of the Mannour of Thongland in that County. Anne wife to James Clifford of Frampton in Com. Glouc. the Mannours of Knoll and Woseley in the Counties of Somerset and Salop. as also certain lands in Sturminster-Marshall in Dorsetshire, and Billingley in Shropshire; with iii s. annuall Rent issuing out of Stentre in Com. Salop. and vi s. per annum out of the Mannour of, Thongland in that Countie. Brigit the wife of Thomas Ashton of Ashton in Cheshire, the Mannours of Abley, Water-Caton, and Longnoze in Staffordshire, the Mannour of Billingley in Shropshire, and certain lands in Walleflow, before mentioned, to the value of ten marks per annum, with xlii s. iv d. yearly Rent issuing out of the said Mannour of Thongland. Agnes the wife of John Smyth, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, for her part, this Mannour of Wootton (called Lucies Mannour) and the Mannour of Shoterich; as also certain lands in Stratford super Abon, Henley, Preston, and Cotton in this Shire with divers lands lying in Pickleton in Com. Glouc. the Mannour of Willinchop in Com. Salop. Lands in Hungerford, Postern magna, Postern parva, Mounslow, and Dydebery in Shropshire; and x s. iv d. yearly Rent issuing out of the before specified Mannour of Thongland: the same Partition^k bearing date 4 Febr. 25 H. 8.

From which Baron Smyth, by the said Agnes, is Sir Charles Smyth Knight, since erected to the dignity of Lord Carington, and now residing here, descended, as the Pedegree before inserted sheweth. Of whose Family I may not omit here to observe, what I have seen attested by Sir William Dethick sometime Garter principall King of Armes, and Robert Cooke (Clarenceux; viz. that the said John Smyth (the Baron) was grandchild to John Carington; and the said John Carington lineally descended from Sir Michael Carington Knight Standard-bearer to the famous King Richard the first in the Holy Land. And of this John Carington, as to the occasion that he changed his name to Smyth, they do specially certifie from the credit of an ancient Manuscript^l, written with the proper hand of him the said John in K. Henry the fourth's time; that in his youth he was bred up in Gascoigne under Sir Thomas Nevill in the service of King Ric. 2. and after the decease of an elder brother called Edmund, that he returned into England, where he was likewise entertained in the said King's service: but afterwards upon the depoll of the said King Richard by Henry of Lancaster, being constrained to flee into France, in regard that he took part with the Earles of Huntingdon, Salisbury, and Kent, &c. against the said Henry of Lancaster, after one years abode in Paris, he travailed, with one Robert Arden Esquire his companion into Italy; where they served under John Galeas Duke of Apollia, against the Emperour Rupert, and after the death of the said Duke, returned into Wybant, where they met with two English Friars going to Rome, from whom they received tidings, that William Cursion a younger son of Sir John Cursion, and cousin German to the said John, was Abbot of S. Osithes in Essex: whereupon he hasted towards England by Amsterdam; and arriving at Ipswich Anno 1404. thence presently sped to S. Osithes, where changing his name into Smyth, but privately making himself known to his kinsman the Abbot, was by him courteously entertained; who bestowed upon him good means, and advanced him in marriage to Milicent the daughter and heir of Robert Laynham, by Alice the daughter and heir to John Hend Major of London.

The Church (dedicated to S. Peter) was given

Ex to^m the Monks of Conchis in Normandy by Robert de Stadford (before spoken of) shortly after the Conquest of England by Duke William; and appropriatedⁿ to them by Roger Bishop of Worcester, 3. Non. Nov. Anno 1178. (25 H.2.) In Anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) it, with the Chapells belonging thereto, was valued^o at Lii. marks, the Vicars portion^p being at that time seven marks and a half: But in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was valued^q at xii li. out of which did yearly issue x s. v d. ob. for Procurations and Synodals.

[Now come to speak of that little Monastery of Benedictine Monks, which sometime stood here, and was one of those we call Priories Alien, having been a Cell to the Abby of Conchis in pozmanby;
Of which kind there were few that had any formall
Foundation, as in Wolston I have already shewed:
For the first grant to that forrein Monastery, by Rob. de Tonei (son doublets unto Roger who founded Conchis) and Nicholas de Stafford his son, Ord. vit.
was no other than verball, as it seems by that con- 450.a.
firmation thereof, which Rob. de Stafford, son to the same Nicholas, made in H. 2. time; wherein he makes mention that his said grandfather and father gave thereunto, this Church of Wotton, together with the Tithes and oblations of the whole town, and one hide of land adjoyning to the same Church, as also another hide called Doversele, and the lands which the Monks of Conchis had then in tillage here, in exchange for the Mannour of Edric-ston (now Edston) which at first belong'd to those Monks. But I make a question, notwithstanding the first grant, so made by the before specified Robert de Tonei, whether any Monks settled here till after his death; for in an Instrument^t, of later time, made by the Abbot and Monks of Conchis, whereby they constituted a Prior here, it is said to be de Fundatione nobilissimi domini Nicholai Stafford, which is some argument that he first erected their Mansion here.

Touching the appropriation of the said Church, made in 25 H. 2. to the peculiar benefit of those Monks, having already spoke in Wotton, I shall now endeavour the discovery of what farther augmentation they had by other Benefactors; wherein I find^t, that Robert the son of Herveus de Stafford gave unto them divers particular parcells of land lying in Allenhale; Henry de Montfort the Mill^u at Benley; Robert de Chauncumbe divers Lands^w in Spockle and Allenhale; Will. de Burley a yard^x land with a croft and messuage in Burley, with all his interest in the Chapell there;
Geffrey de Pauncesote and John Durvassall certain^y lands in Buckele (juxta Welbesert.) And to all these had they the addition^z of the Mannour of Monkenlane in Herefordshire; which, with severall other lands and Tithes in that Countie, were originally granted^a to the said Monks of Conchis
by Raph de Tonei (brother to our Robert) who in the confirmation of them made by Will. de Vere Bishop of Hereford in H. 2. time, is called^b Radulfus senior de Tonei.

As to the originall seizures (in generall) of the lands belonging to these Priories Alien, and the occasion thereof, having spoke in Wolston, I shall here only take notice of what concerns this place, in relation thereto. Of which the first mention, I find, is in 16 E. 3. where the K. by his special Precept^c directed to the Shiriff of this County, reciting, that whereas he had committed the custody of it to John the then Prior, for a certain ferme to be yearly payd into his Exchequer, during his Warrs with France;
and that the said Prior had neglected payment of that Rent accordingly, for which respect it was again seized into his hands; he had neverthelesse, at the humble request of the said Prior, who desired
no more than a competent allowance for himself, and one Monk then resident with him, commanded that the sum of iii s. by the week for himself, and xviii d. for his fellow Monk, might be duly

ly paid unto him, out of the issues thereof, during the time that it should continue under that seizure: But after this, viz. in 48 E. 3. there was another seizure made thereof, and the custody of it then committed to Hugh Earl Stafford, John Maubert the then Prior, and Frier Michael Cheyne Procurator generall to the Abbot of Couches. Which Prior Maubert, in 3 R. 2. obtained a speciall grant thereof to himself; with all the lands belonging to it, to hold during the said wars with France, paying XL l. per annum into the Exchequer. Perhaps he dyed soon after; for within three years following, the said ferme was granted to Robert Selby a Priest, and John de Burley junior, to hold during the continuance of the Wars before specified, paying xvii li. xiii s. iv d. yearly into the said Exchequer.

But in 22 R. 2. upon the augmentation made unto the House of Carthusians, near Cobentre, (then newly founded) with the grant of severall Priories Alien, in sundry Counties of this Realm (whereof I have there made mention) this of Wootton was one of those that the said King gave there to; though of that grant those Carthusians took little benefit; for shortly after K. H. 4. (by the depofall of King R. 2.) attained the Crown, taking into consideration, that these Priories-Alien were originally founded to the honour of God, and that through the frequent seizures of them into the hands of his Progenitors, by reason of the Wars with France, the Monks were driven away, and the Houses so wasted, that such divine service, as had antiently been establish'd therein, was wholly withdrawn; out of his pious care to rectifie the said abuse, did, by the assent of his Councell in Parliament, in the first year of his reign, make full restitution unto John Secrayn, then newly instituted and inducted Prior here, of all the possessions belonging to this House, granting it to him and his successors, for the like Rent reserved to the Exchequer, during the continuance of his Wars with France, as had antiently been paid to the House of Couches in times of Peace; upon condition that the same Prior and his successors, should thenceforth find and maintaine so many Monks, secular Priests, and other English Officers therein, as by the first Foundation of it were ordained to be, and paying all Tenths, Fifteens, and other Subsidies whatsoever, with the Clergie and Commonalty of this Realm, as often as there should be occasion.

Howbeit, after this, viz. in 4 H. 4. there was a new consideration had in the Parliament then held, touching these Priories-Alien; viz. that all should be again seized into the King's hands, excepting onely those that were Conventual; whereupon the Sheriff of this Countie had command to give warning unto this Prior of Wootton, and the rest within his limits, to appear in their proper persons at Westminster on the Ostaves of S. Hillary, and to bring with them, all their Charters and Evidences, whereby he himself and his Councell might be satisfied, whether they had been Priories Conventual time out of mind, or not. But notwithstanding this Act, they rested not long: for whereas the former seizures had been so made, onely upon pretence, that by transporting part of the revenues belonging to these English Cells, to those Houses in France, whereunto they were subordinate, the King's adversaries at such times as he had Wars with the French, were assisted; in the Parliament held at Leicester 2 H. 5.

it being considered, that though a small peace should be afterwards made betwixt England and France, yet the carrying over such summs of money yearly out of England to those foreingn Monasteries would be prejudiciall to this Kingdom, and the people thereof, there was an Act then made, that all the possessions in England belonging to the said Priories Alien, should thenceforth remain to the King and his heirs for ever, excepting such whereof there was speciall declaration then made to the contrary; al' entent (saith the Act) que divines services en les lieux avantdictz purront plus duement estre fait per gentz Anglois en temps avenir, que n'ount esté fait devant ces heures en icelles par gentz Francois, &c.

But this Proviso was not very punctually observed; for I find that Sir Rouland Lenthale Knight, having obtained certain Letters Patent from K. H. 5. by colour of an information, that this Priory was not presentable, instituable, nor inductible, thereupon entred into the possession of it, and received the profits; so that thenceforth no Divine service was there performed, contrary to the purport of that Statute of 1 H. 4. before mentioned; as also against the pious intent of the said Founders: So that in 16 H. 6. the King, taking into his consideration the premisses, to the intent that Gods service and all works of Charitie should be there devoutly performed, did for the good estate of himself, and for the souls of his noble Progenitors, his heirs likewise and successors, at the humble supplication of Frere John a Monk of the House of Conchis above specified, present him the said Monk to the Bishop of Worcester, to be instituted and inducted as Prior thereunto: And shortly after, to give satisfaction unto the said Sir Rouland Lenthale touching that matter, granted an annuity of xx li. to him and his heirs for ever, to be received out of the issues and profits of the Countie of Heresford.

But this new Prior had no long enjoyment thereof; for by Letters Patent, bearing date at Westminster 12 Dec. in 22. of his reign, did the same King bestow it upon the Provost and Scholars of his Royall Colledge in Cambridge, then newly by him founded; to have and to enjoy to themselves and their successors for ever. Which Provost and Scholars, about four years after, obtained a formall Release from the said Prior (by the name of John Conches a Monk of the Order of S. Bener, at Conches in Normandy, and late Prior of the Priory of Wavens-Wootton in the County of Warwick) of all his right, title and claim, that he had, or could challenge thereto, dated 18 Junii 26 H. 6. And for the better securing of their title, did the said Provost and Scholars in 1 E. 4. procure a speciall Patent from that King, of Confirmation, for this and other lands of that kind, which by the munificence of their pious Founder had been granted to them; the same Patent bearing date at Westminster 22 Febr.

Forde Hall.

This, lying within the precincts of Asple, was about the beginning of E. 1. reign granted ⁱ by Sir John de Somery (before mentioned) to one Roger de la Forde of Asple, and Agatha his wife and their heirs, the Rent of xii d. yearly, payable at the Feast of S. Michael and the Annunciation of our Lady by equall portions, being thereupon reserved; as also forrein service, and suit to the Court of him the said John and his heirs. Hence came it in succeeding times to be called Forde Hall, and in 5 R. 2. past ^k by the name of a Mannour from one Nicholas Prylle of Ludlow, to Henry de Bonnebury and his heirs; but at length came to John Fullwode, about H. 8. time, in ^l marriage with Joan the daughter and heir to Baldwyn Heath. Which John (being second ^m son to Robert Fullwode of Cley Hall, in Tantworth) had issue ⁿ John, and he a third John; who, by marriage with ^o Katherine daughter & coheir to Thomas Dabridgcourt of Langdon Hall, left issue ^p six daughters his heirs; scil. Frances the wife of William Noell of Welsborough in Com. Leic. Esquire, Elianor of Sir Edw. Hampden Knight, Alice of Sir George Fullwode Kt. Christian of John Hales Esquire, Grace of Angell Grey of Kingston in Com. Dorset. Esquire, and Katherine: which, Grace, upon the partition of that inheritance, had (inter alia) this for her share.

Aspley.

OF this place there is no mention in the Conqueror's Survey, and therefore I do conclude, that it was at that time involved with Wootton: Neither have I seen any thing of it in Record till ² 5 H. 3. that Alan de Berchefton impleaded Robert de Chauncumbe for certain lands here, wherein it is written Asple. That this Robert de Chauncumbe was then Lord of it, will appear by what I have next to say; viz. that in 15 H. 3. by a Fine levied ³ betwixt Gilbert de Segrave & Annabil his wife Plaintiffs, and the same Robert de Chauncumbe deforc. the said Robert; having given her the said Annabil, his eldest daughter, in marriage to the same Gilbert; and Milisent, the other, to Raph Basset, settled his lands lying in the Counties of Portsmouth, Warwick, Leic. and Lin. so as if he should fortune to have any other heir besides them two, the said Gilbert and Annabil, and the heirs of Annabil, to enjoy the moitie only of this Mannour of Asple, and the other moitie to go unto the said Raph Basset, and Milisent, and the heirs of Milisent for ever. But plain it is, that the said Robert de Chauncumbe had no other issue, so that upon such partition, as was afterwards made betwixt those coheirs, this Mannour of Asple, came wholly to Annabil: whereupon the before specified Gilbert de Segrave her husband, in 36 H. 3. obtained a Charter ⁴ of Freelwarren in all his demesne lands here, having an ancient Mannour-house upon it (as it should seem by the large moat) with a Park: yet did not her issue by the same Gilbert enjoy it: For being afterwards married ⁵ to Roger de Somery (whom she survived) in her full and lawfull widowhood, she granted ⁶ it unto John de Somery, her son by that husband, and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten; to be held of her and her heirs, paying unto her and Nicholas de Segrave her son and heir, and his heirs, a pair of gilt Spurs, or six pence at the Nativity of S. John Baptist yearly for all services.

Which John in 13 E. 1. claymed ^c a Court Leet here, with Affize of Bread and Beer therein, by Prescription, whereof he had then allowance: But at length it returned to the line of Segrave, and in 18 E. 3. was, with divers other Mannours in severall Counties, entailed ^d by Sir John de Segrave Knight, upon the issue of his body by Margaret his wife, and for default of such issue upon his right heirs. Which Margaret had it (inter alia) in

I Am of opinion that this, now bearing the name of Mockley, was part of that land, which Robert de Stafford granted to the Monks of Conchis (whereof in Wootton I have spoke) but of it I do not find any particular mention, till about E. 1. time, and that is also accidentally, Gilbert de Monkelee, and William de Monkelee, with Roger then Vicar of Wootton, being witnesses to a grant of certain lands in Buckle (lying hard by) made to the Monks of Wootton: whence I conclude, that having belong'd to those Monks, it therefore had the name of Monkelee, and that by shortnes of pronunciation it is now called Mockley. As part of the possessions therefore of that Religious House, was it in 7 H. 5. granted ^p by the King, with the Priory of Wootton, to Sir Rowland Lenthale Knight, and in 22 H. 6. past ^q therewith likewise, to the Provost and Scholars of King's Colledge in Cambridge, by the name of the Mannour of Polkele; and being confirmed ^r to that Colledge by King E. 4. is enjoyed accordingly at this day.

Ullenhale.

THis place, having been part of the possessions of Waga (of whom I have spoke in Wootton) in Edw. the Confessors days, was held by Robert de Stafford in the Conq. time; and by the generall Survey then taken, wherein it is written Holehale, certified to contain one hide, the woods being half, a mile in length, and one furlong in breadth, all valued at iv li. From which Robert, or his son Nicholas, did Roger Earl of Warwick obtain it (as it seemes) and enfeof^t thereof one Roger, who residing here, assumedⁿ the surname of Ullenhale; from whom descended certain male branches, which continued till Edw. 1. time, at the least; whereof one, viz. Robert, grandchild to the said Roger, wrote^w himself Dominus de Holehale, and in 36 H. 3. was certified^x to hold a fourth part of a Knight's fee here, of the Earl of Warwick. I suppose, by some circumstances, that this Mannour first came to the family of Mountfort about King H. 3. time: for I find that Peter de Mountfort did then confirm^y the grant of certain particular parcellis of land, lying here, given by petty Freeholders to the Monks Wootton: but the first positive proof that I have, which manifesteth Mountfort directly to have been Lord thereof, is in 32 H. 6. where one Richard Hawnell, who was^z enfeof^t thereof by Sir William Mountfort of Colwell Kt. releases^a his right therein to Humphrey Duke of Buck. and others: which Duke, with the rest, had likewise but an estate in trust thereof; for it appears^b that it came to the Crown in 10 H. 7. by the attainder of Sir Simon Mountfort Knight (as in Colwell shall be shewed) and was by the same King, in 12. of his reign, granted^c away, with divers other Lordships in this Countie, to Gerald Earl of Wiltshire, and Elizabeth S. John then his wife, and the heirs male of their two bodyes, K. H. 8. in 2. of his reign confirming^d the same.

From which Earl it descended to Sir James Fitz Gerald Knight, one of his sons by the said Eliz. But by his attainder in 28 H. 8. (as I have elsewhere shewed) returned again to the Crown; and in 1 Maria, was by that Queen granted^e unto Michael Throkemorton Esquire (a younger son to Sir Robert Throkemorton of Coughton Knight) who died^f seized thereof 1. Nov. 5 & 6 Ph. & M. leaving Francis his son and heir seven years of age:

which Francis had issue John Throkemorton of whom it was purchased in our time by Mr. Bolton a Citizen of London.

Here is a fair Chapell (dedicated to the blessed Virgin) wherein the Vicars of Wootton, for the time being) have of ancient time used^g to find a Priest at their own proper charge, to celebrate divine service. g Bouch. 706.

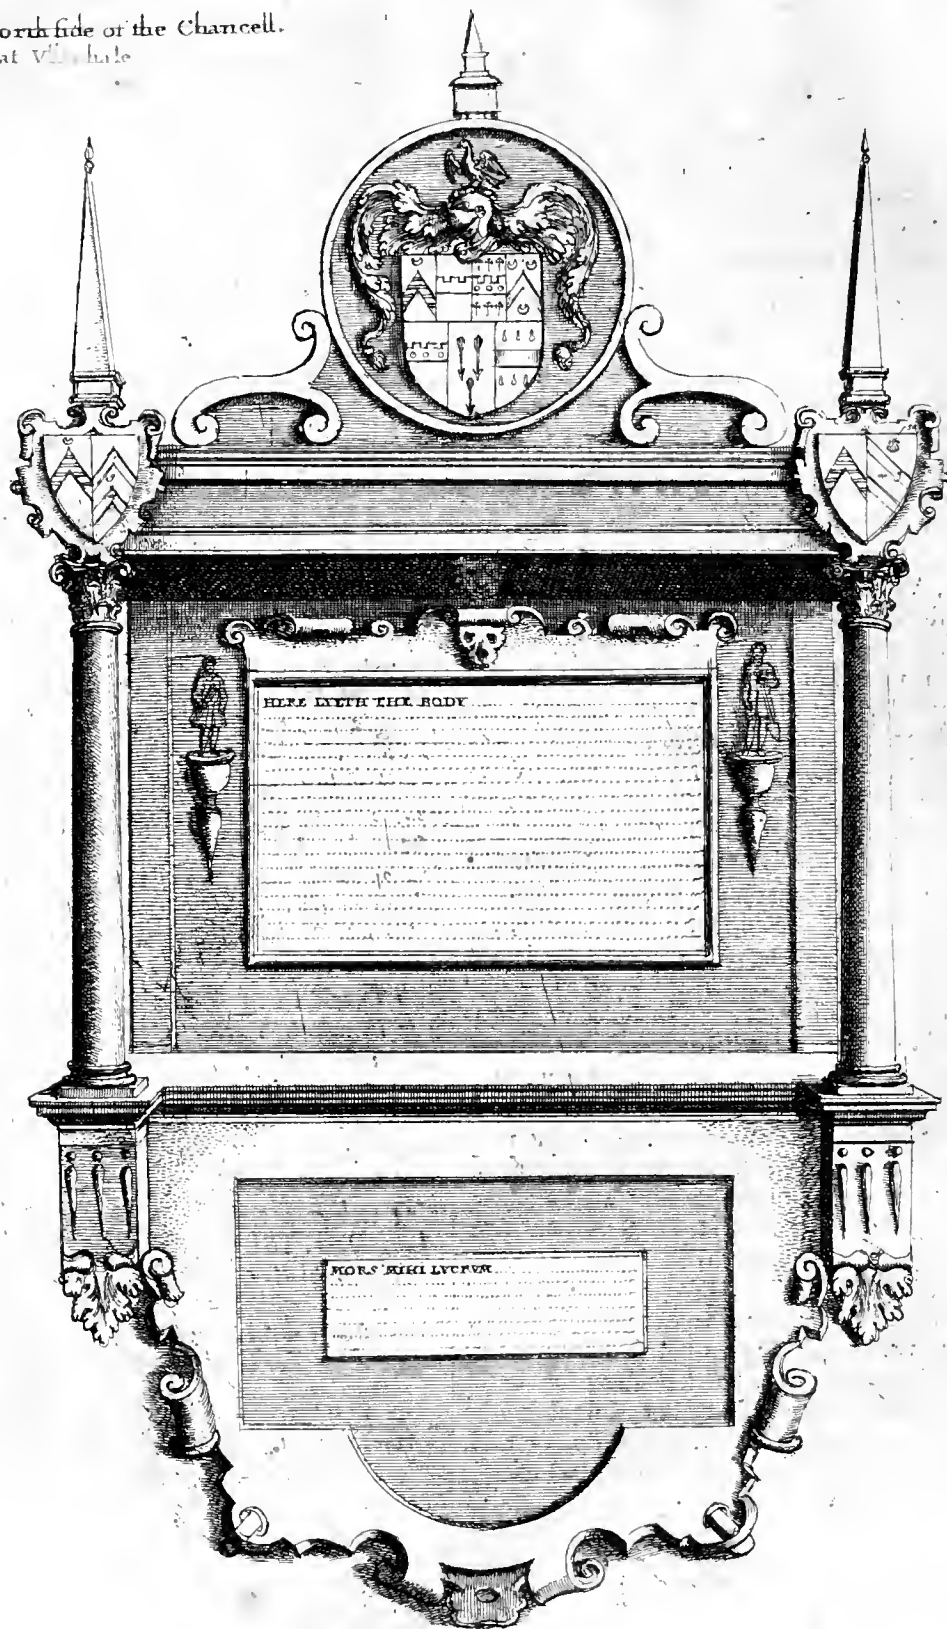

The Epitaph belonging to the Monument, represented on the next page.

Here lieth the body of Francis Throkemorton Esquire, borne in the Citie of Mantua, in Italy; son and heir unto Michael Throkemorton Esquire, and of Agnes Hide of Southamptonshire: which Michael was borne at Coughton-Court in the Countie of Warwick, and was youngest brother to Sir George Throkemorton of Coughton aforesaid Knight. And after that the said Michael had lived many years in Italy, in good and great reputation, with bountifull Hospitalitie, entertaining most of the Noble-men, and gentlemen of England that had occasion to come that way, and did returne into the Realm of England in the very beginning of the reigne of Q. Mary, and received of her gift the Mannours of Honiley, Blackwell, Packhurst, Winderton, Ullenhall in Ullenhall, and others, as appeareth by her Majesties Letters Patent, bearing date in the first year of her reign: And after went into Italy againe, where he departed this life, and lieth buried in S. Martin's Church in the said Citie of Mantua, under a fair Tombe. The said Michael married Judith Tracie, daughter of Richard Tracie of Stanway in the Countie of Gloucester Esquire, and of Barbara Lucy of Charlecote in the aforesaid Countie of Warwick, and sister to Sir Paul Tracie Baronet, and had by her six Children, whereof three, that is to say Francis, Michael, and Judith are departed this life without issue; and the other three are living; that is to say John, Michael, and Judith Anno Dom. 1617. & anno decimo quinto domini nostri Jacobi Regis Anglia.

Botley.

THis being originally a member of Wootton, is not taken notice of in the Conqueror's Survey; but the name, which is Saxon, shews it to be of greater antiquity; for Botle was the word which our Ancestors used in the same sense that we do Domus in Latine. In H. 2. time Robert de Stadford (possessor also of Wootton) gave ^h to the Canons of Kenilworth certain lands lying in this place, with the homages, and services of severall persons; as also to ⁱ Geffrey Malore, and his heirs all those lands, homages & services, which he likewise held of him here; reserving the payment of a Sparhawk to himself and his heirs, by the said Geffrey and his heirs: which Geffrey was of those Malories that resided at Tachebroke in this Countie. From whom descended John Malore, who in 9 E. 3. had Free warren granted ^k to him in all his demesn lands here.

and at Lachebooke before specified; as also at Walton on the Wolds in Leicestershire; and from him another John, who with Ankirell M. lore his son and heir, by their Deed bearing date the Thursday after the Feast of S. Michael the arch-Angell 22 H. 6. aliened it to Richard Archer Esquire, and his heirs; whose posteritie have ever since enjoy'd it, Sir Simon Archer of Tanwozth Knight, being the present owner thereof.

Whitley.

This being in the Conqueror's time posselt by Robert de Stadford, with Wootton, and then certified to contain three hides; was held of him by one Drago (which name we now call Drew) having then a Mill, & Woods extending to half a mile in length, and two furlongs in breadth; all which were valued at xl s. and before the Norman Invasion had been the inheritance of three brothers. Some have affirmed that this Drago was a Norman, and servant to the said Robert de Stadford, and that his posterity assumed the surname of Whitley, in regard of their residence here: as also that from this Family of Whitley came the Offords and Fulwoods; the one from Robert, who seating himself at Offord (whereof I shall speak anon) left that name to his descendants; and the other from Richard, who planting at a place in the parish of Tanwozth, then called Fulwood, but now Clea-Hall, had also thence that denomination: all which from antient evidences is likewise in some sort manifested.

Of this Family was one Thomas de Witeles, who had issue Robert; which Robert, in consideration of x. marks of silver, past away all his interest in this Lordship to Peter de Montfort, in H. 3. time, Sir Will. de Bishopesdon, Sir Thomas his son, and Sir Henry Pipard (all Knights) being witnesses thereto. After which the same Peter (sc. of Belbeseft) granted to Roger the son of Henry de Witeles and his heirs, all those lands and Rents which he the said Roger held of him within the precincts of this place; reserving for the same to himself and his heirs, the yearly Rent of two pair of white-Gloves at Easter and Michaelmasse for all services; and likewise Royall service for one yard land & a half with reasonable Aid for the making his and their eldest sons Knights, and marriage of their eldest daughters according to the custome of the Realm: as also suit of Court, viz at the severall Courts to be held after Michaelmasse, the Feast of S. Hillary, and Hokeday, upon reasonable Summons. But this Henry de Witeles was son to Roger the son of Thurstan de Cherlecome, and not of the line of Thomas de Witeles, and fixing here relinquish his paternal name, assuming his surname, thenceforth, from this place, as was very usual in those times to do.

In 13 Joh. I find that this Lordship (then certified as parcell of the Honour of Stafford) answered for three parts of a Knight's Fee; but in 36 H. 3. for no more than two parts, Will. Durevasfall and Rog. de VViteleg before mentioned, at that time holding it of Peter de Montfort and VVill. de Lucy, and they of Rob. de Stafford. Which Peter and his posterity were the only known Lords thereof, for some descents; for in 13 E. 1. the same Peter claimed Free-warren here (as in other his Lordships) which was allowed; and in 24 E. 1. John de Montfort his son and heir died seized thereof; at which time there were certified to be seven Free-holders, who yearly paid xxx^s ob. q. Rent, the Pleas and Perquisites being then valued at ii s. per an. And yet nevertheless did John de VVhitely in 38 E. 3. and 5 R. 2. write himself Dominus de Whitley; but this was as Lord mesne under Montfort, as I conceive. Which John had issue Ric. de VVhitely, who quitted all the interest that he had here, to Joan Beauchamp Lady of Bergabenny, and others, Feoffees in trust (I suppose) on the behalf of John Harewell a younger son to John Harewell of Wootton: For in 7 H. 5. this John Harewell wrote himself de VVhitely: and in 17 H. 7. John Harewell brother and heir of Nich. Harewell, eldest son to the said John, past it by the name of the Mannour of Whitley into the hands of John Grevill, Thomas Trussell and other Feoffees: But in 17 H. 8. Roger Harewell, son to the said John, in consideration of Lx li. by his deed bearing date 16 Martii, absolutely sold it to John Smith: which John in 22 H. 8. to strengthen his title the better, being at that time one of the Remembrancer's in the Exchequer, and afterwards a Baron of that Court, obtained a Release thereof, unto Sir Thomas Dennis Knight and others for the use of himself and his heirs, to whom it still, together with Wootton, continues.

Forwood.

The first mention I find of this place, is in 14 E. 1. where it was entailed by Peter de Montfort, with Hattholt, whereof I have already spoke: But I am of opinion that it was originally a member of Whitley. From which Peter descended John de Montfort, who in 24 E. 1. died seized of a certain messuage here, with a small Park, having 3 carucates of land in demesne, all held of the Lord Stafford, by the service of iii s. and suit to his three weeks Court at Wootton: but afterwards was it accounted as a member of Belbeseft

Edston.

IN the Conqueror's time this being posselt by the same Robert de Stadford, of whom I have made mention in Wootton & divers other places, was by the general Survey then certified to contain 5. hides, and valued at iii li. having Woods belonging thereto, which extended to half a mile in length, and half a furlong in breadth; but before the Norman invasion it was the freehold of Ailric and Wluinnys. As for the name, there is no question but that it sprung originally from some antient possessor of it in the Saxons time, called Edric, that being in those dayes an appellation frequently used; for in the before specified Survey it is written Edricestone. By the same Robert de Stadford it was given (as it seems) to the Monks of Conchis in Normandy; but afterwards, upon confirmation & settling all things in Wootton to those Monks, reassumed by Robert, grandchild to the said Robert, in exchange for certain lands in Wootton, as in my discourse of the Priory there, is manifested.

How and to whom it was passed from the descendants of this Rob. de Stadford, I cannot cleerly see; but by all circumstances it should seem that

Raph de Ruperis, a Norman, obtained it : For in 6 Joh. 'tis apparent that the King seized ^k it for his disloyalty, with divers lands elsewhere, which belong'd to other Normans, the occasion whereof I have toucht in Almington, and caused its value to be enquired of, which was then certified ^l at iv ^l, whereupon he directed his Precept ^m to the Shirriff, commanding him to make livery thereof to the Knights Templars, to hold at the same rate at which it was so estimated. But, it seems, that the Templars posselt it not long : for I find that the said King granted it shortly after to Godfrey de Craucumbe ; and that, by the forfeiture of the same Godfrey, it again eschaet'd ⁿ to the Crown : as also that in 12 and 13 Joh. it being then in the said King's hands, answered ^o for half a Knights Fee, as part of the Honour of Stafford : and continued in the Crown till 31 H. 3. About which time Peter de Montfort obtained it, as it seems ; for after that year I do not find that the Shirriff accounted to the Exchequer for the ferm thereof, and in 36 H. 3. it is apparent ^p that amongst the Baron of Stafford's Fees, collected upon the King's transference into Calcoth, it answered for half one, being then held by Will. de Edricheston of the said Peter de Montfort, and by him of the Lord Stafford. And in 50 H. 3. after the death of the said Peter (slain in the battell of Chebam, as in Weldestert I have shewed) it became extended ^q with the rest of his lands : but certain it is that the said Will. de Edricheston actually posselt it ; for in divers evidences he is stiled ^r Lord thereof.

And yet had the same Peter some other interest here ; for it appears ^s that he granted to the Monks of Wobbesley all his Common of pasture within the precincts of this Lordship ; viz. for xv. beasts, two Horses for draught, and CC. sheep according to the large Hundred ; which Commoning was, it seems, upon some barren and course land, in regard he covenanted with them, that if any part thereof should be reduced to tillage by himself, his heirs, or any of his Tenants, the said Monks might have free liberty to put on their Cattell upon it after the Corn sowed should be cut and carried away. So likewise had Will. de Cantilupe, but what or how I have not yet discerned ; for I have seen a grant ^t of his made to the said Monks of Wobbesley, as also to Will. de Burley, Will. de Edricheston, and to the Freeholders of Burley and Edricheston, and their successors, giving them authority to divide their fields in those towns into three parts, and dispose of them as they should think fit ; saving to him the said Will. de Cantilupe, his heirs and Tenants, Common in those fields during the Fallow year, and after the crop cut and carried away ; provided that the said Monks, with their Tenants of Burley, and Edricheston should have the like in those fields belonging to the before specified Will. de Cantilupe and his Tenants.

But after this it was not long ere that it came ^u to Sir Nich. Cyfrewast Knight, though by whom or when granted I have not certainly found. To which Nich. succeeded ^v Will. his brother and heir, who past ^x it away to Henry de Bray and his heirs, reserving a Clove gilliflower to be yearly payed to himself and his heirs for all services. Which Henry soon convey'd ^y it to Walter de Ailesbury and his heirs, for a penny of silver payable yearly to himself and his heirs at the Feast of S. Michael for all services ; these grants being both without date ; howbeit the last of them was before 13 E. 1. for in other persons of great quality to be at Warwick upon Twede on the Feast day of the Nativity of Saint John Baptist, well accoutred with Horse and Armes to attend the King in person into Scotland; and bore for his Armes Arg. a plain Crosse Azure, as by his Seal ^s and other authorities appeareth. To whom succeeded ^h Roger in the possession of this Mannour; yet I think he was not his eldest son, but rather Sir Philip de Ailesbury Knight, whose posterity fixed in Buckinghamshire, and bore the same Armes that Walter did; for Roger's coat had ⁱ a Labell of 3. points for distinction.

Which Roger in 15 E. 2. was one ^k of the four Commissioners assigned to choose out 600 able Foot-Souldiers within this County and Leicestershire; and one of the two to conduct them unto Belwcastle upon Tine, so that they might be there well armed and arrayed, on the Even of S. James the Apostle, to march in the King's service towards Scotland. In which year I find that he was joyned ^l with Peter de Montfort, and Will. de Beauchamp in the custody of the City of Worcester: and in 18 E. 2. that he, with Thomas Hastings (of whom I have spoke in Lemington) were appointed ^m to choose and arme 400 Footmen in this County, whereof C. to have Aketones and Hauberts, and CCC with Haketones and Bacinets, besides those which ought to be armed according to the Statute of Winchester. As also in 1 E. 3. that he was one ⁿ of the Knights for this Shire in the Parl. then held at Westm. and afterwards the same year constituted ^o Shiriff of this County and Leicestershire: so likewise in ^p 4 E. 3. in which Office he continued till 6 E. 3. and being ^q that year in the North parts of this Realm, with the Earl of Warwick, attending the King upon special services there, had his accompt, which he should have made at Michaelmasse, respited ^r till the Quinziesme of Easter following. In 7 E. 3. it appears ^s that he and Ric. de Eggbaston were assigned Commissioners for the choosing and arraying of certain Footsouldiers, within this County and Leicestershire, to march against the Scots: and that in 10 E. 3. he was one ^t of the Commissioners appointed for the receiving a Tenth from all the Towns, Cities and Boroughs of this Countie, granted to the King in his great Councell held at Nottingham the same year, for the defraying such costs and charges as had been sustained in defence of the Realm against the Scots; in which year he was likewise in ^u Commission of Oyer and Terminer concerning Felons and persons notoriously suspected.

In 11 E. 3. the King calling a Councell at Westminster, for preservation of the peace and tranquility of the Realm, whereunto were summoned ^v by speciall writt, and particular name, certain Knights from the several Counties; and Burgeses for the Burroughs, to appear the Fryday next before the Feast of St. Michael, with whom the said King resolved to have personall Treaty; amongst these was ^w our Roger de Aylesbury, with Ric. de VWhitacre and John Revell, for this County: but it seems that Ric. de VWhitacre appeared not; for upon assignation of their expences, for xv. dayes (being the time it lasted) the appointment to the Shiriff, is only ^y for payment of this Roger and John Revell; this being the year ^z preceding the said King's assuming the title of King of France, and quartering the Armes of that Realm with England: whereupon he took into his royal consideration, that the same might occasion him a War with the French, and proposed ^a the borrowing of money from the Clergy and people of England, for avoiding thereof; constituting ^b Commissioners through the several Counties, to declare that to be the reason of the said loan. And the next year following, being resolved of an expedition beyond Sea, for effecting his designes in France, summoned ^c the like Councell of his Subjects to be held at Westminster the moirrow following the Clause of Easter; whereunto were again appointed ^d to come, in the behalf of this County, the said Roger de Aylesbury, Ric. de VWhitacre and John Revell, there to consult about the conservation of this Realm in peace and safety during the King's absence.

In 13 E. 3. he served ^e in the Parl. then likewise held at Westminster, as one of the Knights for this Shire: but after this I find no more of him that is memorable, other than that he was ^f a Kt. and left issue Philip his son and heir, who bore ^g for his Armes a Bend gules over his Azure Crosse, and married ^h Agnes the daughter and coheir of Hugh de Brandeston (Lord of the Mannour of Lapworth) by whom he had issue Roger. Which Roger had very little to do in the affairs of the publique, other than as a Commissioner ⁱ in 6 H. 4. for collection of a Subsidy in this Countie: Neither had John his son any more than in the Office of Escheator for this County and Leicestershire in ^k 23 & 30. H. 6. And John, the son and heir of him, none at all; the Family being declined so much, that notwithstanding his descent as heir to Roger, before spoken of, who was a Knight, he wrote ^m himself no other than Gentilman. Which John being the last male branch of this house here at Edston, left issue Joane ⁿ a daughter and heir, wedded ^o unto Thomas Somerville of Somerville-Alton in com. Glouc. Esquier, whereby this Mannour, with the rest of his lands, came to that Family; in which it still continues, having been, since that time, their principal Seat, as appears by many authorities.

But touching the ancestors of this Thomas Somerville, I shall say little, in regard, that having their estate and residence in Gloucestershire, they are out of my limits: only of this I conceive fit to take notice, that they have been of a very antient continuance there, and no lesse eminent, as it seems: for one of them was a Knight ^p in 45 H. 3. being stiled Johannes miles de Alton Somerville, and bore ^q for his Armes upon a border 6 Leopards heads as by his Seal appeareth: whereunto his great graunchild Sir Will. Somerville Knight, in the beginning of Edm. 3. time, added ^r one more, Leopards head upon the border; and Sir John Somerville Knight his son and heir, altered it more, bearing ^s Argent upon a fesse gules 3 Leopards heads Or, betwixt 3 Annulets of the second; which coat hath been continued by his posterity to these very times. From whom descended John Somerville Esq; who in 25 Eliz. being a hot spirited Gentleman, and about 23 years of age, but a Roman Catholique by profession, is said to have been so far transported with zeale for the restoring that Religion, by the instigation of one Hall a Priest, that he resolved to kill the Queen, and to that purpose made a journey to London, and that upon his apprehension he confest his intent: but being arraigned, condemn'd and committed to Belwgate, within three days after, he was found strangled in his lodging. How far forth he was guilty of this, God knows; for with what a high hand things were were then borne through the power of Robert Dudley Earl of Leicester, is not unknown to most men : which Earl had a particular spleen against M^r Arden of Parkhall, father in Law to this Gentleman, as by sundry aged persons, of credit, I have often heard.

Bearley.

THis being written Burlei in the Conqueror's Survey, was then held of Rob. de Stadford by one Ailric, whose freehold it had been before the Norman invasion ; but the extent of it by that Record ^t is certified to be no more than 1. hide valued at x s. which was but the one half of what it had been rated at in Edw. the Confessor's days. By one of whose descendants (sc. of Stafford) was Cumin (antiently Lord of Snitfield) as I conceive, first enfeofft hereof, and by Cumin, Nicholas that assumed his surname from hence without doubt ; for in H. 2. time I find, that such a man there was ; and that he, with Will. de Burlei, his son, gave ^u to the Monks of Wordestey xx. acres of land, lying within the precincts of Claberton, and held of Walter Cumin, who confirm'd the grant. As also, that to the Church of Wootton, and the Monks of Conchis, they likewise gave ^x in 1 R. 1. all their interest in the Chapell here ; adding the grant of one yard land, with a Croft and Messuage. To which William succeeded John his son and heir, who quitted ^y his total interest and claim, in the said Chapell, unto those Monks ; and for its better confirmation, levied a Fine ^z thereupon in 5 H. 3. This John had issue ^a Will. de Burle, a further Benefactor also to the Monks of Wordestey, by granting ^b to them certain lands in Claberton, which he had recovered by a suit in Law in the Ks. Court at Westminster, and bore ^c for his Armes three Garbs with 3 flower de lices in Chief ; which shews what relation he had to Cumin, and Cantilupe, Lords of Snitfield successively.

To whom succeeded Hugh his son ^d and heir ; who gave ^e likewise to those Monks of Wordestey, one yard land lying here in Burley, but within the Fee of Snitfield ; and therefore confirm'd ^f by Margery de Cantilupe, and John her son. Which John, about the beginning of Edw. 1. time, withdrew ^g the suit that the Inhabitants of this place had usually done to the Hundred Court, unto his own Court held a Snitfield. So that I think there needs no question to be made, but that Cumin was first enfeofft hereof by Stafford ; to fortifie which my conjecture the more, I find that John de Cantilupe, son to the last mentioned John, was in 9 E. 2. certified ^h to be Lord of this place (id est Lord Paramount) and that this was then reputed a Hamlet of Snitfield. But farther than the before specified Hugh de Burley I cannot trace the succession of this Mannour in that family of Burley ; nor do I find when or how it went out of it ; the next possessor thereof, that I have discovered, being Will. the son of Nich. de Warwick (of whom in Fulbroke I have spoke) which Will. in 9 E. 2. sold ⁱ it to one Robert Moryn, an Inhabitant of Snitfield ; Which Robert had issue John ; who by a Fine levied ^k in 8 E. 3. setled it upon Margaret his mother, and John de Cumption her second husband, for their lives, with remainder to himself and his heirs.

After which time I have not seen any more mention of it, the reason whereof is plain enough ; viz. that it was swallowed up amongst divers petty Freeholders, by the purchase of their several Firms, as in many other places it falls out : so that the Lords of Snitfield, who were Superiour Lords here, have of later times been taken for the immediate Lords thereof, as in ¹ 10 H. 6. Joan Beauchamp Lady of Bergavenny, and in ^m 1 H. 8. the King. But now the reputed Lord thereof is the owner of those lands here, which were antiently given ⁿ to the Monks of Wordestey, and in 19 E. 1. S. Archer were estimated ^o at two Carucates. Which lands upon the dissolution of that Monastery, were in ^p 37 H. 8. (inter alia) past out of the Crown to Clem. Throkemorton Esquier, and Alex Avenon and their heirs, by the name of the Mannour, Grange, or Ferme of Burley, alias Burpley : And in 3 E. 6. purchased ^q of the said Clem. Throkemorton &c. by Will. Walter : From which William, it is come to Mr. Fansham, the now owner of it, in such sort as Walsperston, and Binton are.

Silesburne.

THis is a place lying near the little brook, which thwarterth the Road from Bentley to Alcester, whereupon antiently stood an Hermitage, but now there is no habitation near it.

Wawens-Moore.

OF this I find no other mention than the very name in ^r 9 E. 2. and ^s 8 H. 8. it being a member of Wootton.

Wyche.

Neither of this can I say any more, than that it was reputed ^t a member of Welsdesert in ^u 2 H. 5.

Offorde.

THere is no more now left here than a Mill, which being called Offord Mill, preserveth the memory of this place : but antiently there was a fair Mannour house, the vestigia whereof do appear in those grounds lying about a Bow-shoot Northwards from the Mill, in the nature of a round Fortification. In the Conqueror's time here was also a Village of divers Inhabitants, as appears by the general Survey ^v then taken, wherein it is recorded to contain 5 hides, with a Mill, and Woods of a mile in length and half as much in breadth, all which were valued at ^w iiii li. besides one carucate of Inclosure rated at ^x s. and then wholly posselt by Rob. de Stadford, mentioned in Wootton, but before the Norman invasion were the freehold of Waga, of whom I have there also spoken. To which Rob. de Stadford succeeded Nicholas, and to him another Robert, who in H. 2. time, enfeofft ^y one Robert the son of Matthew, and his heirs, of all his his interest in this Village, excepting the lands belonging to three Freeholders, there named; granting likewise to him, all that Wood lying on the left hand the ancient way leading from Wootton to Wootton-Bagot; to hold of him the said Robert de Stafford, and his heirs, by the service of half a Kts. Fee: in consideration of which grant, the said Robert received the summe of ten Marks, one Palfrey, and a labouring Horse, and Avice his wife two Bilantines. Whereupon this Robert, seating himself here, assumed his surname from hence: but it seemes he held the fourth part of a Knight's Fee, besides this, of the said Robert de Stafford; for in 12 H. 2. by the Certificate then made, it appears, that he held 3 parts of a Knight's Fee of him, whereof he had been enfeoffed since the death of K. H. 1.

This Robert de Offord wedded ² Agnes the second of the five daughters and coheirs of Peter de Mora, by Basilis his wife, the eldest of the three daughters and coheirs to Rob. fil. Odonis Lord of Lorley and Wootton (now Wootton-Bagot) yet am I not certain of any issue that he had: neither till 25 H. 3. have I seen more of this place; but then was Will. de Blancfront impleaded ^a for certain lands here, and in 36 H. 3. certified ^b to hold half a Knight's Fee therein, of the Lord Stafford. Which Will. Blancfront was ^c one of the Coroners for this County in 15 E. 2. and had issue ^d Walter, and he Henry, who wrote ^e himself Lord of this place in 31 E. 3. but resided ^f at Dotgrave in Bedfordshire. After this it returned again to the Family of Stafford, but whether by Eschaet or purchase, I cannot directly say, Humphrey Earl Stafford being owner ^h of it in 10 H. 6. Since which time having been enjoy'd by the possessors of Wootton-mawen, and being a depopulated place, little notice hath been taken of it; so that now it is accounted as part of Wootton Lordship, and accordingly held by the Lord Carington at this day.

Aston Cantlow.

Being now past that large parish of Wootton-mawen, I come next to Aston-Cantlow, situate on the Southern bank of Alne. Before the Norman Invasion, Algar Earl of Merca was ⁱ possessor hereof; but upon that great distribution then made by King William unto his friends and followers, this place with divers lands of a large extent, as well here as in other Counties, was conferred (as I guess) upon one Richard a noble Norman; for it appears by the generall Survey ^k begun about the xliiith year of that King's reign, that Osbernus fil. Ricardi then enjoy'd it, with several other fair Lordships lying in this Shire, as also in the Counties of Worcester, Hereford, Bedford, Salop, and Nottingham, whose principal seat was (as I also conjecture) at Ricard's Castle in Herefordshire; which being (doubtlesse) built by the same Richard, for better awing of the vanquishd English, did afterwards retain his name, and continueth it to this day. In that authentique Record ^l this place is written Estone, by reason of its Eastern site from Alcester (I presume) which was of a more ancient plantation: and the value thereof then certified to be vi li. being esteemed at v. hides, having a Church, as also one Mill, with Woods of a mile in length and as much in breadth: the Descendants of which Osbernus, I have put in Farnborough; for unto them did it continue but a while, Tankerville, who was Camerarius Normannie, possessing ^m it in 15 H. 2. yet no otherwise than as a Fermor to the King, as appears by some ⁿ Records.

But in 6 Joh. Will. de Cantilupe obtained ^o it with the corn and stock thereon, which the Sheriff was commanded to value, and according to the rate they should be prized at, to deliver ^p them unto him: and from hence had it the addition of his name joyned thereto, for distinction from the other Astons in this County. Here hath been ^q anciently a Park, and by the tradition of the Inhabitants, a Castle also, situate Southwards of the Church; but the Moat and banks thereof are now so levelled, that there is scarce any appearance of it: At which Castle, so far as the before specified William and his descendants had (without doubt) their principal residence, till by marriage with Eva, the daughter and heir of Will. de Braose, to Will. his grandson, the Castle and Honour of Bergavenny came to this Family, I have here thought fit to say something historically of them.

This Will. de Cantelu, or Cantilupe (for I find him both ways written) was a person of great eminency and power in his time. In 1 Joh. he had a discharge ^r for the Scutage then due from him. In 3, 4, 5, & 6 Joh. he was Sheriff ^s of this County and Worcestershire, and upon leaving that office, constituted Governour ^t of the Castles of Hereford, Wilton and Burrebach: Nay in those great differences betwixt the said King and Pope Innocent the 3. in 13 Joh. he is taken notice ^u of to have been one of that King's Chief Councillors and directors; and from the 12th year to the end of his reign, had again the custody ^v of the before specified Counties. In 15 Joh. he obtained the King's special Precept ^x to the Barons of his Exchequer, to respite their demand of CCCC. Marks debt, due by him; viz. CCC. marks for a Fine, which he was to have payd for the Wardship, and custody of the land of Henry de Longcamp's heir; and C. marks which the said King had lent him upon his Voyage into Almaine. In 16 Joh. he had ^y Scutage of his Tenants, in satisfaction for those fouldiers which were then maintained by him in Positou for the King's service; as also the same year was, amongst others, a witnesse² to that notable Charter granted by the said King to the Archb. of Canterb. and other Bishops, in behalf of all the Churches and Monasteries of England: and in 17 Joh. got a pardon² for a debt of CCLxii marks and xviii. which was by his own agreement to have been payd as a fine, for obtaining the Countesse of Eu-

reur in marriage for his son.

And yet, notwithstanding all these favours, it appears^b that in that great defection of the Barons, the same year, he forsook the King and adhered to them; but did not pe sit long in that error, as it seems; for shortly after, I find, that he had a grant^c of all the lands of Nich. de Verdon, and so also^d of Thurstone de Mountfort, great Actors in that Rebellion; and was made Governour^e of the strong Castle of Kentworth in this Countie, being then Steward^f of the King's household. Having thus shewed in what esteem he was with K. John, let us now take a view of his favour with K. H. 3. and of his eminency in those times. In 1. of that K. reign, he was^g in person with the royall Army at the siege of Mountfourell Castle in Leicester, and at raising^h the siege, which the rebellious Barons had made against the Castle of Lincoln. In 2 H. 3. again made Shiriff of this County and Leicester, in which office he continued^k till the 8th year of that King's reign. In 5 H. 3. he had the K. special Letter^l authorizing him to receive of the several Kts. Fees held of him x s. in respect that he was in person with the K. at the siege of Wibham Castle in Lincoln. In 6 H. 3. he had, by the Ks. special command, all the Castles that belonged to Reginald de Braose, deceased, committed^m to his charge, being then Steward to the K. as he had been to his father: but it seems that his chief residence was then at Kentworth Castle before specified; for no lesse doth the Recordⁿ, appointing him timber for repair of the buildings, for his habitation there, import: Howbeit, the same year, being made Governour^o of Hereford Castle, he had in December 8 H. 3. a discharge^p of his Shiriffalty here, and of the Custody of Kentworth Castle, which was thereupon delivered up to^q John Russell, unto whom also those Counties were then committed.

It should seem that, about this time, he adhered^r to the Earl of Chester, and some other of the Barons, who began to swell against the King, and give out big words on the behalf of that Earl, whose Castles the said King thought fit to sieze: but seeing themselves not strong enough to go through with their designe, were glad to submit: For which offence I do not find that the Ks. displeasure stuck long upon him, in regard that within 3 years after, by his Pat^s bearing date 18 Aug. he confirmed unto him this Mannour of Clon, which formerly did belong to Raph de Tankerville Chamberlain (of Normandy) with the Mannour of Woblesdon, that pertained to Gilbert de Vilers, to hold till such time as the said King should please to restore them unto the right heirs of the said Raph and Gilbert; which Mannours he the said Will. had first received by the grant of K. John, as the same Record testifieth: for confirmation whereof, as also for a Mercate and Faire here, he then gave the K. a Fine^s of xv. marks. And in 13 H. 3. received farther testimony of the King's favour, by a Pardon^t of xl. marks, due from him to have been payd into the Exchequer, for certain amerciaments laid upon him by the Justices Itinerant; and an acceptance of x. marks per an. till the C. marks lent unto him by King John, were satisfied, which summe the said King delivered unto him when he went on his Embassie into Almaine, as I have already intimated.

In 15 H. 3. he had another confirmation^w of this Lordship, extending also to his heirs; with a speciall Proviso, that if the said King or his heirs should afterward restore it to the heirs of Tankerville, he the said William and his heirs should have other lands of as good value in recompence thereof; that Charter of confirmation bearing date at Wenloc 26 Maii. Of which noble person I further find^x, that he obtained the Advouson and patronage of the Priory of Stapley (near this place, as I have there shewed) from Peter de Corbucon, heir to the Founder; whereunto he gave^y a fair portion of lands lying in Shottwell: That he also built^z an Hospitall at the Gates of that Monastery: That he bore for his Armes Gules 3 flower de lices Or, as by his Seal² appeareth, within the compasse whereof; scil. towards the lower part of the Shield, there is a Star, with a Cressant, which is a Badge (as hath been observed by judicious Antiquaries) of his service in the Holy warrs: And that he departed² this life 7 Id. Apr. 23 H. 3. being then very aged; leaving issue several sons, viz. William his son and heir, Walter a Priest^b and imployed^c by King H. 3. as his Agent to the Court of Rome, afterwards elected^d Bishop of Worcester, whose story I refer to Godwyn; John Lord of Snitfield in this Countie; and Nicholas,^e of whom I find no more than the bare mention.

Which Will. being a martial man as well as his father, and accompanying him^f at raising the siege of Lincolne Castle, in 1 H. 3. had in 15 H. 3. much of his father's estate past over to him, for which he then did^g his homage to the King: And in 24 H. 3. obtained a special Charter^h for exempting him from any suit to the County or Hundred Courts, Leet, Aid to the Shiriff and Hidage for all his lands in England. After which, viz. in 26 H. 3. he attendedⁱ the King in that his French expedition, which was so unprosperous: and having been in 28 H. 3. sent^k with other of the great Nobilitie, to sollicite the Prelates for an Aid of money, according to the Popes Letters on the King's behalf, was the next ensuing year one of those that went Embassador^l to the general Councell then held at Lions, there to complain of the grievous exactions used here in England by the Court of Rome, as well from the Clergie as Laitie, and to crave remedie for the same. Which William, bearing a devout affection to the Canons of Stapley before specified, gave^m to the Hospital of his Father's building there, lands to the value of x li. per an. lying within this Lordship; as also certain Rent and pasturage for Cattell, in Southernkeston, with the Church of Hemelton in Devonshire. And having besides all this, obtained a special Charterⁿ for exempting their Woods, situate within the Forest of Fekenham, from any view of the King's Foresters and Verderers; and been Steward^o to the King, as his Father was, as also a most faithfull Councillor^p, left issue by Milisent the daughter of Hugh de Gornay, Will.^q his son and heir, Thomas Bishop of Hereford (who in 34 E. 1. was^r canonized for a Saint) and Ju- lian the wife of Sir Rob. de Tregoz; and departed this

this life in 35 H. 3. immediately whereupon, William his eldest son, performing his homage, and giving security for payment of his Relief, which was C. li. had livery of his lands.

Which William in 37 H. 3. obtained a pardon from the King for pulling down the Castle of Penros, in Wales, belonging to John de Mone-muth; as also for five marks, at which this his Mannour of Aston was amerced, for protecting one Rob. de Shelfnill, who had been indicted for certain misdemeanors: and in 38 H. 3. was constituted Governor of Bobelt Castle in Brecknockshire. To the before specified Hospital, built at the Gate of the Priory of Studley, he gave the advowson of the Church here at Aston; and having wedded Eva one of the daughters and coheirs to Will. de Braose of Brecknock, with whom he had the territory of Upper Went, and other lands in England and Wales, departed this life in the flower of his youth, to the great grief of many, leaving issue by her the said Eva, George his son and heir, and two daughters. Of which George, (being scarce 3. years old at that time) I have found very little that is memorable, his death hapning before he arrived to years, whereby he could be qualified for any great action, viz. in Edw. 1. Therefore, whether the marriage betwixt him and Margaret the daughter of Edmund de Lacy was ever consummated, as their parents had designed, when he was scarce two years old, I cannot tell; but sure I am that he had no issue: for John the son of Henry de Hastings, and Milicent then the wife of Eudo (or Tuo) la Zouche, were found to be his sisters and heirs.

Which Henry being in minority in 36 H. 3. and in Ward to Guy de Luzignian the King's half brother, had the benefit of his marriage, then disposed of by the said Guy unto Will. de Cantilupe before specified, who gave his daughter Joane thus in wedlock to him. Whereupon by partition made betwixt those coheirs, the said Milicent had for her share the Castle of Totenesse in Com. Devon. the Mannours of Cyton in com. bedf. and Harlingworth in Northamptonshire. with other fair possessions in England and Wales; as also the advowson of the Priory of Studley in this County: And John de Hastings, the son of Joane beforementioned, had Bergavenny with the Castle and Honour (which were of the inheritance of Eva de Breause his grandmother) together with the Castle of Bilgaran in Com. Pembr. and amongst other large territories in England and Wales, this Mannour of Aston, then valued at Lix li. iiii s. i d. per an. all which were in the King's hands at the time of the said Partition made, by reason of his minority. But touching the Family of Hastings I shall speak historically in Fillongley, and therefore purpose to make no other mention of them here, than what particularly relates to this place.

In 12 E. 1. this John de Hastings claimed a Court-leet, with Assize of Bread and Beer, Wzifs, Gallows, and Free warren within this Mannour, by Prescription; all which were allowed. From which time this Mannour, was, for divers descents, enjoy'd by the posterity of the said John, as I could sufficiently demonstrate, if need were, except for so long as Will. de Clinton Earl of Huntingdon held two parts of it, in right of Julian his wife, widow to John de Hastings, father of Laurence Earl of Pembroke: After the death of which La- urence it appears, that it was held of the King in Capite by the service of one Foot souldier in the Warrs of Wales, with a Bow without a string, and a Helmet for his head, by the space of xl dayes, at his own proper costs, as often as there should be any hostility in Wales. From which Family of Hastings it descended not to the Lord Grey of Ruthin, through the heir female; but by virtue of a speciall Entail made by John de Hastings, E. of Pembroke, son and heir to the before specified Laurence (whereof in Fillongley I shall speak) was settled, together with the Castle and Honour of Bergavenny, and other large possessions, upon Sir Will. de Beauchamp K. second son to Thomas E. of Warwick and his heirs: Which William, bearing the title of Lord Bergavenny, dyed seized thereof in 12 H. 4. from whom it descended to Ric. Beauchamp Earl of Worcester, his son and heir; whose daughter and heir Elizabeth being wedded to Sir Edm. Nevill Knight (a younger son to Raph Earl of Westmerland) thenceforth summoned to Parl. as Lord Bergavenny, brought it, with other lands of a large extent, to that noble Family; wherein it hath ever since continued being enjoy'd by the right honourable John Lord Bergavenny at this day.

The Church (dedicated to St. John Bapt.) being given to the Canons of Studley (as I have formerly intimated) by the last Will. de Cantilupe in H. 3. time, was in an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) valued at xxxiii marks: which grant did not stand so firme but that the heirs of Cantilupe repossessed it again; for in 24 E. 1. it appears, that the said Canons granted to John de Hastings, then Lord of this Mannour, lands to the value of xlii li. per anlyng here, in exchange for the said advowson. Nay I find, that after this, the Family of Hastings, being potent, had it again from the said Canons: for in 19 E. 3. did Laurence de Hastings Earl of Pembroke passe it away to Will. de Clinton Earl of Huntingdon and his heirs; who immediately thereupon gave it to the Priory of Makstoke, then newly by him founded: whereupon the Canons of Makstoke obtained License from the K. for appropriating it to their House; which appropriation was accordingly accomplit, the same year, by VVolstan then Bishop of Worcester, as by his Instrument dated at Blockley 4 Oct. appeareth; and confirmed by his Chapter, by reason whereof, they had a yearly Pension of xlii s. iiii d. payable on the Feast day of the Annunciation of our Lady, granted to them: In which year was likewise an Ordination of the Vicaridge. But notwithstanding all this, it so fell out afterwards, that the Canons of Studley, by colour of their original title, got into the possession thereof again: whereupon great suits arose betwixt those of Makstoke and them: yet in the end they of Makstoke prevailed; who to strengthen their title, had the King's confirmation in 5 H. 4. For which they gave a Fine of Lxxi li. xi s. that they might enjoy it according to the tenor of the appropriation thereof so made to them as aforesaid. In 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was valued at x li. at which time the Synodalls and Procurations issuing out of it were x s. v d. ob.

In this Church there was antiently a certain Fraternity or Gild, consisting of the Parishioners only, being founded by them to the honour of God and the blessed Virgin, but it had no lawfull establishment till 9 E. 4. at which time upon the humble Petition of the Inhabitants, Licenseⁱ was granted to Sir Edw. Nevill Knight, then Lord of the Manour, that he should so settle and order the same, as that there might be a certain Priest maintained there, to celebrate divine service daily at the Altar of the blessed Virgin in the said Church, for the good estate of the said K. Edw. 4. and Eliz. his Consort, as also for the Brethren and Sisters of that Fraternitie, during this life, and for their souls after their departure hence, and the souls of all the faithfull deceased: which accordingly was effected, and lands disposed thereunto for that purpose, valued at vii li. ix s. ii d. ob. per an. in 37 H. 8.

Wilmecote.

IN the Conqueror's time Osbernus fil. Richardi posselt this place, it being then certifiedⁱ to contain three hides, which were valued at Lx^s. and at that time held of him by one Urso, but before the Norman invasion it was the Freehold of Leuvinus Doda. In that Survey it is written Wilmecote; the originall of which appellation did questionlesse proceed from the name of some ancient Inhabitant there in the Saxons time. But the next mention that I find thereof is not till 6 Joh. where it is written Wilmundecote, and certified^m to be part of those lands that the Normans had in England, which were then seized on for their adhering to the K. of France (as in Almundon I have already observed) one Brietto Camerarius being then Lord thereof, and Chamberlain of Bozmandy, as I gueffe; the value of it then consisting only in rent of Assize amounting to xlii^s per an. and no more. After which ere long one Will. de Wilmecote was owner of it, who (doubtlesse) took that surname from his residence here; for in 12 H. 3. it appearsⁿ, that he brought an Assize against Maurice Arch-Deacon of Gloucester touching the advowson of the Chapell belonging to this Village: yet in

I find that Raph de Lodinton had a good proportion here; viz. two yard land in demesne, with a Water Mill; as also 5 yard land in Villenage, all which he held of Sir Thomas de Camvill by the fourth part of a Kts fee; which fourth part in 25 E. 1. was certified to be held of Edm. Earl of Lancaster (the Kings Brother) by Robert de Vale, of whom in Lodington I have spoken already.

Ex vet. exempl. p. 25. E. 1. n. 51. But about that time was there one John de Wilmeccote Lord hereof; and shortly after him Henry de L'isle (of Shelfull in this Countie) who with Joan his wife in 9 E. 2. were found to hold half a Kts. fee, here, of the Earl of War. which half Kts. fee was of her inheritance, she being the heir to the before specified John de Wilmeccote. To which Henry succeeded John his son and heir, who in 10 E. 3. entailed this Mannour, with the advowson of the Chapell, upon the issue of his body by Mande then his wife, with remainder to his right heirs; by reason whereof it continued to his posterity, (whereof I shall speak in Shelfull) till 8 H. 7. but then was past away by Henry L'isle Esquire and Eliz. his wife to Will. Purchase and others, in trust (as I conceive) for Hugh Clopton Alderman of London; for I find that the said Hugh dyed seized thereof 15 Sept. 12 H. 7. leaving *Will. Newnham.

AS for the name of this place, it proceeded originally (without doubt) from the first habitation fixed thereat; whether it were one single House, or more, the syllable Ham with our Ancestors the Saxons, not onely signifying a House, but a neighbourhood of divers dwellings, as we may observe by the many towns that terminate in Ham, so that Neunham imports the same that nova habitatio doth. But of this little village I have not seen any mention at all in Record above 9 E. 2. where it is certified as a Hamlet of Aston-Cantelupe, of which Mannour it is still reputed to be parcell.

Little Alne.

om. This was also originally a member of Aston-Cantelupe, and antiently possessed by the Lords of that Mannour. It should seem that a great part of those lands, which were given to the Canons of Studley by some of the Cantelupes, do ly within the compass of this village, though in the grant they are said to be in Aston-Cantelupe; for upon the passing them out of the Crown in 1. Maria, they are granted to Anthony Skinner, by the name of the Mannour of Little-Alne, five Tenements, a water Mill, with a meadow, as parcell of the possessions of the Monastery of Studley: which Anthony dyed seized thereof 19 Nov. 1 Eliz. leaving issue George and William; which George dying without issue, Will. became heir to the estate, whose grandchild, Anthony now enjoys it.

Shelfull.

THE first mention I find of this place is in H. 3. time, upon the grant of a large assart to the Canons of Studley by Will. de Cantelupe, the third; where it is bounded upon the Park of Shelfull; which Park belonging to the Lords of Aston-Cantelupe, doth argue that it was antiently a member thereof: And out of all doubt, those Woods, or the greatest part of them, which are mentioned by the Conquerour's Survey to belong unto Aston, were imparted by the Lords of that Mannour, for their pleasure in Hunting, it being a mountainous ground most proper for Deer and Conies. But the extent of Shelfull was more than this Park; for in 6 E. 2. after the death of John de Hastings (Lord of Aston before specified) it appeareth, that Will. le Walsh held the sixth part of a Kts. fee of him, lying in this place: Howbeit till 14 H. 6. I have not seen it called a Mannour; but then, upon the death of Joan Beauchamp Lady Bergavenny, it carries that name: nevertheless it is reputed as a member of Aston-Cantelupe, and therewith belongs to the Lord Bergavenny at this day.

Hafeler.

Somewhat lower, but yet farther distant from the bank of Alne, stands Hafeler, containing these two petty Hamlets, sc. Walcote and Upton, which before the Norman invasion was the freehold of Elviet and Alric; but at the time of the Conquerour's generall Survey possessed by Nich. Balistarius, being certified to contain 5. hides, with a Mill rated at vi s. viii d. as also a Salt House of iiii s. Rent, and two quarters of Salt, all being valued at vi li. In that Record it is written Hafelobe, the stroke over the b. through the transcribers neglect, being omitted, for it should be Hafelobere. That the later part of the name, viz. Obere, which in our common speech signifies the same with supra, agreeth with the situation of the place, is evident enough; for it stands upon a notable ascent, almost every way; and if I may take leave to guess at the other part, I shall conclude that the same hilly ground, whereupon the town stands, being originally woody, and full of Hafells, as much of the Country thereabouts yet is, gave occasion thereof.

How it past from the before specified Nich. Balistarius, or his posterity, I find not; but in H. 2. time Nicholas de Pole, one of the King's Justices, was chief Lord here; whose descendants enjoyed it not long; for in 20 H. 3. it appertained ned to W. de Hastings, and upon the Aid, then gathered, answered for half a Kts. fee, amongst divers other lands in this Countie, then certified to be held of Hugh de Albinie: but in 36 H. 3. being posselt by one Rob. de Haselovere, is recorded to be held by him of the said Will de Hastings. I am of opinion that this Rob. de Haselovere is the same man, who is elsewhere called Rob. Lyvet; for certain it is that Rob. Lyvet was Lord of this town about that time; and it was not un-usuall in those dayes for men totally to relinquish their paternall names, and assume that of their residence insted thereof, or indifferently to use either. Which Robert died seized of this Mannour in 9 E. 2. then held, as the Record¹ expresse, of Will. de Hastings of Thormarton, by the service of a pair of white Spurs, price ii d. leaving John Lyvet his son and heir, of full age. It seems that one John de Chilterham came afterwards to have some interest here, perhaps in right of Alianore his wife; for I find that in 3 E. 3. the same John and Alianore aliened^m a third part thereof, with the advouson of the Church to John de Trillow and Katherine his wife, and the heirs of the said Katherine.

After which, viz. in 7 E. 3. Rob. de Stratford parson of the Church of Stratford, purchasedⁿ the whole from Henry the son of Rob. Lyvet; and in 10 E. 3. (being then Archdeacon of Canterb.) obtained^o all the interest that the before specified John de Chilterham and Alianore his wife had therein, together with the advouson of the Church; which he kept but a while, as it seems; for in 20 E. 3. Will. de Meldon accounted^p for the half Kts. fee, by which it was held (as hath been said) and presented to the Church, as Patron, about that time. But the next possessor thereof (concerning whom I have seen any authority) was Sir Almaric de S. Amand Kt. who to fortifie his title, got a Release^q from John de Pento, the elder, of all his right therein, which bears date at London on Wednesday next after the Feast of the Purification of our Lady 39 E. 3. and within 3. years after, a grant^r, or rather confirmation, as I think, from Nich. de Donnemney, likewise, of what title he had thereto.

From which Sir Almaric it was conveyed^s to Will. de Stoke and Thomas de Sekindon Priests; who by their deeds^t dated on the Feast day of St. Clement the Pope, 8 R. 2. past it away unto Thomas de Beauchamp then E. of Warwick and others: which Earl having the same year obtained the King's License^u for that purpose, by his speciall Charter^w dated at Warwick 20 Sept. 19 R. 2. bestowed it upon the Canons of his Collegiate Church in Warwick and their successors for ever. Notwithstanding which pious gift King R. 2. taking advantage^x of the attainder shortly after befalling that Earl (as in my story of him in Warw. appeareth) violated this his grant to those Canons, and gave^y it to Robert Gowsell Esq. to hold during life: But the depofall of that K. which followed soon after, revert that gift of his to Gowsell, whereby both the Earl himself became restored to all his possessions, and the said Canons to this Mannour, which in 26 H. 8. was valued^z at xix. l. vii s. viii d. and in 4 E. 6. (after the dissolution of that Colledge) passed^a out of the Crown (inter alia) to Sir Raph Sadler Kt. then Master of the Wardrobe, and Laurence Wenington Gent. and to the heirs of the said Sir Raph. to be held of the Mannour of St. Greenwiche in Socage.

The Church here, with the Church-yard, was founded^b by King to the honour of Christ, the blessed Virgin, St. Laurence and All Saints; and originally endowed^c with a House for the Parson, and two yard land lying in the fields of Haselore and Walcote; as also certain pasture grounds to the same belonging, with a certain place and croft lying opposite thereunto; And afterwards in King H. 2. time, augmented with an ample addition, which Nich. de Pole, one of the King's Justices and then Lord of this Mannour, by the consent of Maud his wife, with Robert and Raph his sons, both Knights, gave^d thereunto in pure Almes; viz. xi acres of his woods called Wildecombe, Wildegrove, and Rolowepe, with the land adjoining, and Common of pasture for viii Oxen in his pasture called Spertes; as also for four Kine and a Bullock in the pasture on the Heath for the Summer time. Besides which he gave thereunto, out of divers yard lands of his demesn, vi Bushells of Oats, and of an half yard land, 3. Bushells; as also a certain number of Cocks and Hens to be delivered on St. Martin's day, yearly, by the Tenants holding the same lands, together with Law-grist of his Mill, with the Tithe thereof Toll free; and libertie of Fishing on the banks of his water, upon Fasting dayes, with Shuf-net and Ese, and other Engines except draught Nets, in lieu of the Tithe of the water being in the Lords hands; but if it should happen to be let to ferme, then the Parson to have Tithe of all the great Fishes taken therein.

In an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) this Rectorie was valued^e at xv. marks; and in 15 R. 2. the advouson thereof granted^f by Thomas Beauchamp E. of Warwick to the Dean and Canons of his Collegiate Church in Warwick, and their successors: and appropriated^g thereunto by the Abbot of Chebam, deputed by Pope Boniface the ixth. 22. Oct. 1394. whereupon the Vicaridge was endowed^h: In 26 H. 8. the said Rectory, so appropriated, was valuedⁱ at xxi l. per an. the Vicar then having an yearly Pension^k, onely, of vi l. xiii s. iii d. payable by the said Canons of Warwick.

Walcote.

OF this small Hamlet, being a member of the last mentioned Lordship, I have seen nothing more than the bare mention, in a certain Recognition¹ made by the Inhabitants of Hateler temp. H. 6. of what Glebe and Tithes, with other profits, were then, and anciently had been belonging to the Church.

Vpton.

THIS Village stands upon an ascent, and by reason thereof had its name, as the first syllable thereof plainly imports. In the Conqueror's time it being posselt^m by Will. Buenaſleth, was then held of him by one Roger his Tenant, and in the generall Survey then taken, certified to contain 4. hides and a half, and written Optone, the Woods belonging thereto, being ten furlongs and xviii perches in length, and 1 furlong in breadth, and the value of the whole Lxx s. But before the Norman invasion 3. Freeholders of Earl Leuric had it. After this it came to one of the old Earls of Warwick, but how soon, appears not: By whom, it seems, that Boteler of Overſley was enfeofft thereof; for in 20 H. 3. Mauritius le Rotiller heldⁿ one Kts. fee here of the then Earl. From which Maurice, or his son (I presume) it was passed to Hugh Aguilun, who dying^o seized thereof in 12 E. 1. without issue male, and his four sisters, or their children, sharing his lands, it became allotted^p to Will. de Whitinton, son of Hamise his second sister: which Will. in severall grants writes^q himself Dominus de Vpton iuxta Hateloure; in one whereof, bearing date 19 E. 2. he is stiled^r a Kt. But from this Sir W. de Whitinton, after many descents, it divolved unto Guy VWhittington of Pauntley in com. Glouc. Esq. who held^s it in 10 H. 6. And from the said Guy, to Thomas VWhittington Esq. who died^t seized thereof in 38 H. 8. leaving six daughters and heirs, whereof Margaret the eldest was wedded^u to Thomas Throkemorton (of . . . in com. Glouc.) Blanch^w to John S. Aby, Anne^x to Bricius Berkley, Joane^y to Roger Bodnam, Alice to . . . and Eliz.^z to . . . Poole: betwixt whom I do not find that there was any Partition made before the 26 of Q. Eliz. reign.

Southwards from Hateler (but within the same Parish) is a Coppice wood, and in it a notable Hill, which is of such a steep and equall ascent from every side, as if it had been artificially made, so that it is a very eminent mark over all that part of the Country, and by the common people called Alcocks Arbour. Towards the foot whereof is a hole, now almost filled up, having been the entrance into a Cave, as the Inhabitants report: of which Cave there is an old wives story, that passes for current amongst the people of the adjacent Towns; viz. that one Alcock, a great Robber, used to lodge therein, & having got much money by that course of life, hid it in an iron-bound Chest, whereunto were three Keys; which Chest, they say, is still there, but guarded by a Cock that continually sits upon it: And that on a time, an Dr-ſozd Schollar came thither, with a Key that opened two of the Locks; but as he was attempting to open the third, the Cock seized on him. To all which they adde, that if one Bone of the partie, who set the Cock there, could be brought, he would yield up the Chest. But leaving this Fable to those that fancy such things, I come to a place not far from it, called Grove-hill, whence issueth a very pleasant Spring, which anciently bore the name of Caldwell, being remarkable for an Hermitage^b that stood close by it, and at the Foundation of Alceſter Priore, by Raph Boteler of Overſley, in K. Steph. time, was by him given^c thereto.

Great Alne.

HAVING now dispatch't on this side the River Alne, I must step to the other; where I am first to take notice of Great Alne, antiently written Roun Alne, and therefore corruptly now called Round Alne. This was given^d to the Monks of Winchcombe in com. Glouc. about the year of Christ DCCCIX. by Kenuſph King of Merſa, then Founder of that Monastery; and by the Conqueror's Survey,^e being certified to contain vi hides, having a Mill rated at v s. with woods of half a mile in length and four furlongs in breadth, was valued at iiii l. In that Record it is written Alne, being so called from the River, near unto which it is situate. Which Monks of Winchcombe had in 35 H. 3. Freeſwarren granted^f unto them in all their demefn lands of this Mannour. But of it I have seen no more worthy of note, other than, that, after the dissolution of that Abby, it continued in the Crown till 42 Eliz. and was then granted^g to . . . Stone and . . . Grynsford to hold in Capite.

Kinewarton.

THIS (doubtless) had its name originally from some possessor of it in the Saxons time, Kineward being an appellation in those days not unuſual. Upon the foundation of Cheſham Abby

Abby by Ecgrin Bishop of Worcester, in the year DCCXIII. from our Saviours incarnation, it was givenⁱ by him thereto, and in the Conqueror's Survey^k certified to contain 3. hides, which were at that time held of the Abbot by one Ranulf; whereunto then belong'd a Mill rated at iii s. the value of all being put at xv s. But in that Record it is written Chenebertone. To which Ranulf succeeded^l another of that name, called Ranulfus de Kinewarton, Brother unto William Abbot of Evesham in H. 2. time. Which Ranulph held^m the before specified 3. hides of those Monks, in demesne, and left issue Robert, who in 1. Joh. endowedⁿ Joane the wife of Ric. de Brusle with one hide thereof; concerning which there grew suits afterwards, betwixt the Monks of Evesham and the descendants of the said Richard and Joane; for in 34 H. 3. Rob. de Bruily brought an Assize^o of Novell disseisin against the Abbot of Evesham for 5. yardland here: but the Monks at last obtained Bruilye's interest by purchase^p in 10 E. 1. and, in 13. of that King's reign, claimed^q by Prescription, a Court Leet here, with Assize of bread and Beer, Weyfs, and divers ether privileges, all which were allowed.

After which, viz. temp. E. 2. Walter de Beauchamp granted^r to them one Messuage, 3. acres of meadow, and xl s. Rent, which he held of the said Monks by the service of x s. per an. But there is nothing more of note, that I have seen, concerning this Mannour, whilst it continued to the Monasterie of Evesham; nor after the dissolution of that Religious House, other than that it was granted^s out of the Crown 2 Junii 32 H. 8. to Anthony Skinner of London Gentleman, who dyed^t seized thereof 19 Nov. 1 Eliz. leaving George his son and heir 48 years of age, and William a younger son: which Will. by the death of his Brother without issue, became heir to the estate; from whom it descended to William his grandson; and of him was purchased by Sir Foulk Grevill Kt. Lord Brook, in our memory.

The Church, together with the Chapels of Alne and Witthelep thereto belonging, was given to the Monks of Evesham in H. 2. time, by Ranulph de Kinewarton, with the consent of Alexander his son and heir, for the health of the same Ranulph's soul, and the soul of Christine his wife, as by his Deed,^u which he presented upon the high Altar of that Monastery, for seisin thereof, appeareth: And in An. 1291. (19 E. 1.) with the Chapellies thereunto belonging, was valued^w at xviii marks, whereof Alne was then reputed one, out of which the Abbot of Witchcombe received an yearly portion^x of half a mark. This Church was new built, as it seems, about the 5th. of Edw. 2 reign; for I find, that Walt. de Maydston, then Bishop of Worcester, on the xv Cal. of July the same year, did consecrate and dedicate, both it and the high Altar; whereunto did belong^z, and had done time out of mind, a certain mess. and one yard land in Alne, as part of the Glebe. After which, viz. in 26 H. 8. this Parsonage was rated^a at x li. xiii s. iiii d. besides that of Alne.

Abby of Evesham at its foundation had by *S. Ec-

Arrow.

Descending lower by the bank of Aine, I come forthwith to its conjunction with Arrold; which, being the more eminent stream, carrieth on that name till it meets with Abon. The first place of note that presents itself to my view, below this confluence, is Arrold, taking its name from the River, on the West side whereof it is seated. Before the Norman invasion this, having been the freehold of one Leuinus, but by the Conqueror's disposal possessed by Odo Bishop of Bathur; half Brother to the K. (whose under-tenant thereof was one Stefanus, was, by the Survey then taken, found to contain 7 hides and a half, having a Mill prized at vi s. viii d. with Woods belonging thereto, that extended to a mile in length and two furlongs in breadth, all which were valued at iiii l.

That this Bishop adhered to Rob. Curthose, eldest son to the Conqueror, and for that respect was constrained to quit England, in the time of K. Will. Rufus, our Historians do shew at large; so that the said King then seizing his lands, gave this, as 'tis probable, to Roger Marmion; for it appears that the said Roger did possess it, and that from him it descended to Robert his grandchild; which Rob. past it away to Geffrey Marmion, his uncle; in consideration whereof the same Geffrey released unto him all his right that he had in the Fee of Manfer Marmion, as well in England as in Wales, according to the tenor of K. H. 2. Charter. To which Geffrey succeeded Albreda his daughter and heir, who granted this Lordship of Arewe to Will. de Camvill and his heirs, for the service of half a Kts. Fee; but afterwards became his wife, as it seems: The descendants of which Will. during the continuance of the male line, made this their principall seat, and after them the Bardets by marriage of the heir female of that Family. Which Will. de Camvill, being a younger son to Ric. de Camvill Founder of Combe Abby in this Countie, and by the marriage of the said Albreda invested with Marmion's right, obtained a Release from Raph Boteler of Overstep, of all his claim in this Lordship, touching which he had been impleaded by him the said Raph; and left issue, by the same Albreda, Geffrey de Camvill his son and heir (from whom the Camvilles of Clifton in Staffordshire descended, whose heir female called Isabell, in E. 3. time, was wedded to Sir Ric. Stafford Kt.) William his second son, who had this Mannour, as also Sekindon, and Thomas a Priest, as the Descent sheweth.

Which last mentioned Will. in 18 Joh. had a grant of the lands in Alencester belonging to Pe. Fitz Herbert, to hold during the King's pleasure: But this Will. incurring the King's fore indignation, for cutting down a Wood of his own, here at Arewe, it being within the precincts of Fekenhams Forest, had, for that offence, part of his lands seized on by the Sheriff; howbeit in 12 H. 3. in consideration of L. marks Fine, for payment whereof securitie was then given, obtained restitution of them again, and was received into favour: and in 16 H. 3. the better to fortifie his title to this Lordship, procured from Maurice le Boteler of Overstep (son and heir to the before specified Raph) a confirmation thereof, for which he gave C. s. sterling: But all that I further find of him is,

Kingle.

Of this place (contained likewise within the Parish of Kinewarton) the first mention that I find, is in 5 H. 3. where Stephen de Raggeleg grants to Ranulph Abbot of Cheesham and his successors CL. acres of land lying therein. After which, viz. in 13 E. 1. it appears that the Abbot of Cheesham made claim to a Court Leet here, and divers other privileges, by Prescription, in like sort as he did in Kinewarton and Wethel, which were allowed: But I perceive that it was originally a member of Wethel, and involved therewith in the Conqueror's Survey, though it be not particularly specified therein, part thereof having been granted with Wethel to the Monks of Cheesham at the Foundation of that Monastery; for no less doth the exchange made in 43 E. 3. betwixt the said Monks and John le Roux of Ragley, of certain lands here, import. Whether this, which Roux then had by that exchange, were all that belong'd to the Monks in this place, I cannot say; but I do not find any mention afterward, that they had more to do here: the extent whereof was 90 acres of land and 7 acres of meadow, as by the Inquisition taken in 3 H. 6. after the death of Will. le Roux appeareth. The next possessor thereof (that I have yet seen mentioned) was Ric. Burdet of Arrold Esq. upon whose issue by Joice his wife, it being entailed in 3 R. 3. descended, and is by that means come to the Lord Conway, with Arrold, whereof I am next to speak.

that in 19 H. 3. he was constituted^m one of the Justices for the Gaol delivery at Warwick; and that about the 25 H. 3. he withdrewⁿ his suit for this Mannour from the Countie and Hundred Courts, having got a discharge from Philip de Ascells, the then Shiriff, for his so doing, in consideration of half a mark to be yearly paid to him the said Philip and his successors.

To this Will. succeeded^o Thomas de Camvill; betwixt whom and Geffrey de Camvile (of Elstton) there was some controversie touching the Customs and services, which he the said Geffrey required of him for this Mannour, whereupon they came to Agreement^p in 3 E. 1. by which it was concluded, that for the time to come the said Thomas and his heirs should pay xx s. for Scutage levied after the rate of xl s. and for more or less according to that proportion: as also Homage and Relief when cause required. From which Thomas descended^q Sir Gerard de Camvile Kt. who in 19 E. 1. was employed^r into Scotland for the King's service; and so likewise in 29 E. 1. having then summons, amongst sundry other persons of eminency, to attend the K. at Warwick upon Twede, well furnished with Horse and Armes for to march into Scotland. Of this Sir Gerard is that fair portraiture, yet standing in a South window of the Church here at Artois, in his military habite of that time, and a Surcoat of Armes; who kneeling before St. George (the Souldiers Saint) implores his remembrance, as the scrol proceeding from his lips (viz. Qui fueram Miles recole me G. sancte) sheweth; which, where I speak of the Church, is lively exprest.

But after him I find mention^t of Henry de Camvill, at this place, for some few years about the beginning of E. 2. reign, though by what title I am not able to say: Perhaps, that being of the name, and a younger branch of this Family, he had got Elizabeth, daughter and heir to the said Gerard, into his power, with hopes to make her his wife, and thereby gain that fair inheritance belonging to her; for it appears^u that in 33 E. 1. she was under age, and that in 6 E. 2. upon a complaint by him made to the King, that Robert Burdet, Gerard de Sekindon, and others, had forcibly taken away Elizabeth his wife, residing here at Artois, together with his goods and Cattel, a Commission^w was issued out unto Henry Spigurnell, Nich. de Langelond, and Ric. de Chiseldon to make enquiry thereof, by the Oaths of honest and lawfull men, and to certifye the truth therein; so that it is not improbable that this Eliz. was the daughter and heir to the before specified Gerard de Camvile, whom the said Robert Burdet lawfully^x wedded, and through whose right this Lordship and other lands came to his posterity.

Having thus shewed how the Burdets were first posselt of this Mannour, where they afterwards seated themselves, for divers ages; and finding that they had lands in this Countie long before, I shall here take notice of what I have met with, in an historicall way, relating to them. The first of this name, of whom I have found mention, is Robert Burdet one^y of the witnesses to that notable Charter made by Geffrey de Wirce to the Monastery of St. Nicholas at Angers, which beareth date at Spontskirby, in this Countie, in the twelfth year of K. Will. the Conqueror's reign. Whether the said Robert was paternal ancestor to those of this Family whereof I am to speak, I cannot certainly affirm; but the next that I meet with, viz. William, who flourisht in H. 2. time, undoubtedly was. This being he that founded^z that little Cell at Aucote near Sekindon in 5 H. 2. (as when I come to speak thereof shall be manifested) was in 12 H. 2. certified^a to hold half a Kts. fee of Will. de Beauchamp (of Elmeley Castle in Com. Wigorn.) de veteri feoffamento: He was also a witness^b to the Charter made by Robert Earl of Leicester to the Monks of Combe, whereby he confirmed the Foundation of that Monastery, seated within his Fee; and gave^c to the Nuns of Polestworth certain lands called Coppenhall, (lying near Sekindon above mentioned) which Hugh his son and heir confirmed.

From which William descended Sir William Burdet Kt. who with the Shiriff and Richard de Mundelevill, was in 36 H. 3. a Commissioner^d for assessing a Tallage upon all the King's demesns within this Countie and Leicestershire, and bore for his Arms Azure two bars Or, as by the impression of his Seal^e and other authorities appeareth; within the compass whereof the Cressant and Star are put, as a Badge of his service in the Holy land: And gave^f to the Monks of Aucote xii d. yearly Rent, issuing out of a Tenement there, for the maintenance of a Lampe in the Church of our Lady and St. Blase at Aucote above specified, before the Altar of the Blessed Virgin, for the health of his soul, and of the soul of Alice his wife, and their ancestors: As also, when he lay upon his death bed, bestowed^g on them half a yard land lying in Rodcliffe, with a Water Mill there.

But the next of this line, of whom I have found any thing memorable, was Robert Burdet, one^h of the Justices for Gaol delivery at Warwick from 11 E. 1. to the 20th. of that King's reign; yet none of these had to do here at Artois; the next Robert, nephew to the last (by Hugh his Brother) being he that first settled here in right of Eliz. his wife daughter and heir to Gerard de Camvill, before spoken of. Which Robert in 12 E. 2. gaveⁱ three acres of land, parcell of his demesn, to William de Bremesgreve, then Rector of the Church here at Artois, for the enlargement of the Church-yard, as also of the Parsonage glebe; and was a man of much publick action in his time: for I find that in 14 E. 2. he served^k in the Parl. at Westminster as one of the Knights for this Shire: In 17. and 18^m E. 2. that he was one of the Commissioners for the Gaol delivery at Warwick, and in 19 E. 2. that he was againⁿ Knight for the Shire in the Parliament there held at Westminster.

This Robert, in 1 E. 3. had a Charter^o of Free-warren granted to him and his heirs in all his demesn lands here, and at Sekindon in this Countie, as also for those at Huncote and Spitpe in Leicestershire. The next year following he served^p in the Parliament held at Boke as one of the Kts. for this Countie; but before the end of that year, was constituted^q Shiriff for this Leicestershire, being also a Commissioner^r for the Gaol delivery at Warwick. In 7 E. 3. he was again in Commission^s for the like Gaol delivery at Warwick; as also by a special Patent^t, bearing date at Boke 4 Feb. the same year, had a License to impark his Woods here at Artois, and so

But Gerard had here his principall seat, and in 20 E. 3. served in the Wars of France, being then of the retinue to Maurice de Berkley, an English Baron. But about the 33 E. 3. the said Gerard departed this life, leaving John his son and heir under age, the custodie of whose lands, together with his marriage, was granted * in 33 E. 3. by Sir Ric. Stafford Kt. unto Ric. de Clodshale (of Saltley in this Countie) which John, by the death of John de Vale (his Uncle by the Mothers side) without issue in 34 E. 3. was found to be one of his Cosins and next heirs; and in 2 R. 2. being then a Kt. was constituted one of the Commissioners in this Countie for taxing a subsidie, at that time granted to the K. in Parliament.

To whom succeeded ^a Sir Thomas Burdet Kt. his son and heir, a person honoured with divers great employments in his time. In 5 R. 2. he was constituted ^b one of the Commissioners for arraying of men in this Countie, being then of the retinue ^c unto Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick. In 17 R. 2. he served ^d in the Parl. then held at Westm. as one of the Kts. for this Shire; so also in the Parliaments of 2. ^e and 8. ^f H. 4. In 3. H. 5. he was made Shiriff ^g for this Countie and Leicestershire. In 6 H. 5. again one ^h of the Commissioners of Array in this Shire; and the next year following, jointly intrusted, together with the Shiriff and some other select persons, to treat ⁱ with the people for a loan of money to the King. In 9 H. 5. he was in ^k Commission for assessing and collecting a Subsidie then granted to the K. in Parl. and left issue Nicholas his son and heir; of whom I find, that being one of those, who bearing Armes from his Ancestors, as the Writ and Return thereof specially intimates, he had Summons ^l to attend the King in person at Westminster upon Tuesday in the first week of Lent 7 H. 5. for defence of the Realm: Shortly after which, he was retained to serve the said K. in his wars; for by an Indenture ^m bearing date at Southwike 6 Maii 8 H. 5. it appears, that he received in hand from John Salverne Treasurer at Wars to the D. of Bedford, for himself, two men at Arms and seven Archers, xxix l. xis. vi d. for one quarters wages.

And continuing in those wars, in 3 H. 6. was one of those that defended ⁿ the town of S. James de Beburon situate on the frontiers of Normandy towards Wiltanp; and upon the siege thereof, by Arthur Earl of Richmond and Robert Constable of France, made a courageous saile, wherein 7 or 800 of the enemy were slain, 50 Prisoners, 18 Standards, and one Banner taken. In 15 H. 6. he was ^o a Knight; but being afterwards made ^p chief Butler of Normandy, and Governour of Cureux in that Dutchy, was slain ^q in the battail of Pontefice 18 H. 6. To whom succeeded Thomas his son and heir: which Thomas in 28 H. 6. being employed ^r in this Countie about levying the subsidie then granted to the K. in Parl. was from the 7th. to the fourteenth of E. 4. reign, in ^s Commission for conservation of the Peace: But in 17 E. 4. having incurred the King's displeasure for his good affections to the D. of Clarence, so strict were the eyes and ears that were set over him, that an advantage was soon taken to cut off his Head: for ^t hearing that the King had killed a white Buck in his Park here at Arewa, which Buck he set much store by, passionately wishing the Hornes in his Belly that moved the K. so to do, being arraigned and convicted ^u of high Treason, for those words, upon inference made that his meaning was mischievous to the K. himself, he lost his life for the same, his Body being buried ^v in the Chapell of All Saints within the Grayfriars Church near Petwgate, with this memoriall in their Martyrologe, viz. that he was valens Armiger Domini Georgii Ducis Clarencie.

After the death of which Thomas, their grew great suits ^x for this Mannour and other lands, betwixt Richard Burdet his son by a former wife, that had been for nearness of kindred divorced from him, and John Burdet his son by Margaret a later wife: For the said Thomas (by License ^y obtained from the K. in 12 E. 4.) had aliened his lands to his younger son, to the disherison of the elder, of which he became afterwards so sensible, that ^a as he was drawn from the Tower to the place of execution, espying his eldest son in Westchepe, over against St. Thomas Becket's Hospitall (now Mercers Chapell) he caused himself to be stayed, and there asked his said son forgiveness, and acknowledging the wrong he had done him, concluded that to be the cause of Gods vengeance then against him. But in that suit, before mentioned, the said John (the younger son) prevailed, Margaret his Mother holding ^a her ^a estate therein for life, who shortly after married to Thomas Woodhill. Howbeit, after this it was not long, ere that the before specified Ric. Burdet so wrought with his Brother John, as also with the said Margaret and her husband, that they levied a Fine ^b of this Mannour and other lands, whereby the same Richard became vested into the present possession thereof, the remainder to Thomas his son; and for want of issue by him, to Robert his other son, and the heirs of his body, and for lack of such issue, to the right heirs of Richard.

Which two sons died ^c young in their Fathers ^c life time, and Richard himself left no heir male: 6.

The consideration whereof much moving the said John; forasmuch as this Mannour, and the rest of those entailed lands were like to be transferred to another Familie, by Anne the daughter and heir of the same Richard, he exhibited a Petition ^d in Parl. to K. H. 8. about the beginning of his reign; wherein, the better to ingratiate himself, he set forth his adherence to Henry D. of Buckingham, in the behalf of Henry Earl of Richmond (afterwards King by the name of H. 7.) against Ric. 3. King in deed but not of right; alleadging that upon the miscarriage of that Duke in his said attempts, he himself was taken at Gloucester, and there kept Prisoner, and moved that the said Fine should be made void, so that himself and his heirs might enjoy this Mannour, with the lands before mentioned, in such sort as he and they should and ought to have done, had it not been levied.

This John Burdet was ^e one of the retinue unto Sir Edm. Howard Admirall in 4 H. 8. for scouring the Seas on the Southern coast of England; and in no small favour at Court, as it seems: for his Petition took such effect that he pursued ^f his claim to this Lordship, and all other the lands whereof his Father was seized, against Edward Conway and Anne his wife, daughter and heir to the before specified Ric. Burdet, as if there had been no such entail as hath been said. Which suits continued many years, to a very vast expence betwixt them, and ended not in the said Sir John Burdet's days (for he was a Knight ^g and dyed ^g in 20 H. 8.) But not long afterwards, viz. 20 Julii 22 H. 8. Thomas his son and heir, as also the said Edw. Conway and Anne submitted ^h this difference to the Arbitration of Clement then Abbot of Westham, Will. Prior of Gloucester, Roger Winter, and John Russell Esquires, who made an Award therein, viz. ⁱ that the said T. Burdet should quietly enjoy to himself and his heirs all the lands in Longdon-Travers and Petwbold in Com. Wigorn. And the said Edw. Conway and Anne his wife, and their heirs, those in Longdon in this Countie, as also in Belne and Ablench in Com. Wigorn. But this Award did not quiet them them, so that after new suits begun again above two years after, they made¹ choice of Sir Anth. Fitz Herbert, and Sir Will. Shelley Kts. then Justices of the Common Pleas, to determine the business; who taking upon them the decision thereof, thus stated it; viz. ^m that the said Thomas Burdet and his heirs should have the Mannours of Bromcote, Sekinton, Compton-Scotlan, and Wilmecote in this Countie; Longdon-Travers, Little-Longdon, Arminscote, and Peibold in Com. Wigorn, with Larkstoke, Pyulton, Debwoth, Quinton, and Arminscote in Gloucestershire, as also C. marks in money. And the said Edw. Conway and Anne, and their heirs, this Mannour of Arrow, with the Mannours of Lodington, Kingley, Almose, and Campl-hill in this Shire; Belne, Ablench, Cloodball, Apton-Wareyn, Apton upon Seberne with Beeley and Elmblygge in Com. Wigorn. All which have been enjoyed, ever since, accordingly.

This Edw. Conway wasⁿ a younger son to John Conway of Pottrithan in Com. Flint Esquire (where the principall branch of that antient Family still flourishes) and descended^o from Sir Henry Conway Kt. whose memory is still famous, for his military imployments under the conduct of Edm. Mortimer Earl of March and Ulster, about the beginning of K. Ric. 2. reign; and not without good cause, I presume: For having been first retained^p by the name of Henry Conway Esquire, to serve him during his whole life, as well in the times of Peace as in War, in consideration of L. marks sterling, to be yearly payd out of the Mannours, Castle and Lordship of Clifford and Gloucebury in Wales and the Marches thereof; and, for his singular demerits therein, received the dignity of Knighthood at the hands of the said Earl, he was by Indenture^q bearing date 1 Aug. 5 R. 2. again retained to do him service, as a Knight for the like terme; and in times of Peace to have diet for himself, one Esquire, one Chamberlain and 4. Grooms; as also Hay, Oats, Horschoos and Nayls for six Horses, or reasonable allowance for the same: And whensoever he should be required to make his attendance on the said Earl, for service of War, the like diet and Wages in lieu thereof, for himself, his Esquire, Chamberlain and 5. Grooms, with Hay, Oats, &c. for eight Horses; and allowance for so many men at Armes and Archers as he should bring to the said Earl for service of War, the like wages and reward as he gave to others of their quality. Having moreover, in consideration of the Surrender of that Annuity of L. marks, so granted as above said, the yearly Rent of XL. l. to be received out of the Seignory of Redetopyng in Wales, at the Feasts of S. Mich. and Easter by equall portions: The payment whereof was afterwards ratified by the King, as by his Letters Pat.^r bearing date at Westm. 12 Maii the same year appeareth, but assigning his receipt out of the Lordship of Dynebegh, which with the rest of the possessions of that Earl, then deceased, were then in the King's hands, by reason of his Son's minority.

I am of opinion that the marriage of the before specified Edward, with the said Anne the daughter and heir to Ric. Burdet, was occasioned by the means of his elder Brother, viz. Sir Hugh Conway Kt. second husband to Joyce, mother of the said Anne (as the Descent sheweth) the said Hugh being a man of no small note in those days;

For having received the honour of Knighthood at the Coronation of Eliz. wife to K. H. 7. he became a Counceller^r of State and Knight^u for the Body to that King, as also Treasurer^w of Ireland; and was retained^x in 7. of his reign to serve him in his wars beyond the Sea, with xx. men besides himself, being likewise a Justice^y of Peace in this Countie for severall years.

But I return to the before specified Edward, of whom all that I find farther memorable is, that being^z Gentleman huisher of the Chamber to K. H. 8. he had a speciall License^a under the Privy Signet, dated 12 Feb. 3. H. 8. to retain certain able men, voluntiers, for the King's service in his wars; and that he departed^b this life on the Thursday next after the Feast of St. Bartholmew the Apostle 38 H. 8. leaving John his son and heir 35 years of age and upwards, afterwards Kt. who wedded^c Katherine the daughter to Sir Raph Verney Kt. and by his Testament^d bearing date 22 Julii 6 E. 6. bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Church here at Arrow, Which Sir John had issue^e Sir John his son and heir, that took to wife^f Ellen the daughter of Sir Fouk Gre-vill of Beauchamp's-Court in this Countie: who, being a person of great skill in military affairs, was made Governour^g of Ditend by Rob. Earl of Leicester 29 Dec. An. 1586. (29 Eliz.) the said Earl being then Generall of the English Auxiliaries in behalf of the States of the united Provinces; and dyed^h 4 Oct. 1 Jac. leaving Sir Edward Conway Knight his son and heir, afterwards one of the principall Secretaries of State to King James; who upon the 22 of March 22 Jac. was first createdⁱ Lord Conway of Ragley in this Countie; Secondly^k 15 Mar. 22 Car. Vicount Killuliagh in the Countie of Antrim in Ireland; lastly^l 6 Junii 3 Car. Vicount Conway of Conway Castle in Wassernarvonshire, and left issue Edw. Vicount Conway his son and heir, now Lord of this Mannour.

The Church was granted^m by Robert Earl of Leicester to the Monks of Alcester in H. 2. time; but what right he had to dispose thereof, I will not stand to argue, forasmuch as they enjoy'd it not long, if ever they had to do therewith. In An. 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was valuedⁿ at xv. marks and a half; and in^o 14 E. 3. at x. l. vi. s. viii d. but in 26 H. 8. at xi. l. out of which was then payd for Synodals and Procurations ix. s. v d. ob.

SIR IOHN CONWAY OF ARROW IN THE

SONNE OF SIR IOHN CONWAY, WHOSE FATHER WAS EDWARD, WHO MARRIED

WHO WAS HEIRE TO THE LORD BROOKE AND LORD BEAUCHAMPE.

The Inscription cut in a plate of Brasse
fixed on the Coffyn of Edward Viscount Conway, whole body lyeth buried in this Church.

Here is the right honourable Edward Lord Viscount Conway and Kilnash, lord president of his Majesties most hon^{ble} privy Councell, Lord Lieutenant of the County of Southampton, and Captain and Gover-nour of the Isle of Wight, who discharged wth much honour and fidelity great offices of trust: At home principall Secretary of State, Abroad Ambassador extraordinary into Germany. His Strength was excised in honourable achievements of warre in the time of Queen Elizabeth; His age employed in Councell of State under K. James and K.
Charles: And having received the desert of virtue (Honour) to himselfe and his family, departed this life the 3^d of January, in the yeare of his redemption by Christ, 1630.

Ragley.

OF this Village situate in the Parish of Arrow, whereof there is no more than the Mannour house now left, there is not in the Conquerour's Survey any mention, forasmuch as it was then involved with Arrow; whence I conclude,
that with it Marmion became posselt thereof,
and afterwards Camvile, though Raph Boteler of Overslep, upon his foundation of the Priorie at Alcester, whereby he gave two Sheafs of his Tithe here, mentions the same to be de Dominio suo de Raggeles: For as those Monks of Alcester had little benefit of that grant, so doth it appear by sundry⁹ authorities in after-times, that Ragley was held of the Lords of Arrow; which argues that the possessors thereof were first enfeoffed by some of them, though when or how that was I am yet to learn: For till 5 H. 3. I have not seen any farther mention of this place; but then did one Stephen de Raggeles pass away one messuage lying therein, to the Monks of Ewelham, together with C. L. acres of land lying in Aingle.

But after this it came to the family of Rous; the first of which name, that directly appears to me to have been owner of it, being John Rufus in H.
3. time; and it is not unlike but that Thomas le Rous, who in 15 E. 2. was appointed one of the Commissioners for making choice of one thousand and eight hundred foot souldiers within this Countie and Leicestershire, and to conduct them to Newcastle upon Tyne to march against the Scots, being at that time Shiriff⁹ of these Counties, had his seat here, and was son to the same John.

To which Thomas succeeded another John, who being a man of the superior rank amongst the Gentry here, as may seem by his eminent employments, was in 46 E. 3. in Commission for levying

ing and collecting a xvth and xth then granted to the King in Parl. So likewise in ^x 48 E. 3. And in ¹ 51 E. 3. as also in ² 1 R. 2. was in Commission for arraying of men in this Shire: In ² 2 R. 2. for assessing of a Subsidie. In 3 R. 2. he served in^b the Parliament held at ~~Westm.~~ as one of the Knights for this Shire: and the same year he was made^c a Justice of Peace in this County, as also a Commissioner^d for arraying of men for the King's service: Nay so eminent he grew for his wealth and authority, that he built a stately Gatehouse of stone here at Raglep, and imbattailed it like a Castle; for which, being done without the King's License, he had, not only a speciall pardon^e in 5 R. 2. but a Commission to build the rest of his dwelling House here answerably, and to fortifie it with strong walls of lime and stone, in like sort embattailed. To which John succeeded Robert his son and heir, of whom there is little memorable: but John his grandchild, who came of age^f in 9 H. 6. was an active man in the world; for in 15 H. 6. he underwent the office of Eschaetor^h for this County and Leicestershire: In 28 he was in Commissionⁱ for levying of a Subsidie; then granted to the K. in Parl. As also from¹ 22 to 38 H. 6. inclusive, a Justice of Peace in this County; and dyed in^m 16 E. 4. leaving Thomas his son and heir 28 years of age. Which Thomas departedⁿ this world ult. Apr. An. 1499 (15 H. 7.) and lyeth buried in the Chancell at Quinton in Gloucestershire.

But Maud his wife had sepulture in the Chapell of our Lady within the Church at Alcester, as by her Testament^o appears, whereby she appointed a Tombe-stone of Marble to be layd upon her grave, with the portraictures of her husband and her self, with 5. sons and 5 daughters to be cut thereon.

From whom descended^p another Tho. who dyed if-fuleffe, so that Margaret his sister, the wife to Sir John Brome of Halton in Orfordshire (not Brown as Leland * calls him) became^q his heir: which Sir John had issue Sir Christopher Brome Knight, that dyed^r seized of this Mannour 31 Eliz. leaving George his son and heir of full age, who by his Deed^s bearing date 12 Aug. 33 Eliz. sold it to Sir John Conway of Arrow Knight, grandfather to Edward Vicount Conway the present owner thereof.

Overfley.

This is also in the parish of Arrow, but stands on the other side the River, on a notable ascent,
which gave occasion, at first, to its name, Over signifying the same in our English as super or supra in Latine doth. Having been^t the inheritance of one Britmar before the Norman Invasion, it was after the Conquest of England, with other lands of a vast extent, in this as well as other Counties, given^u to the Earl of Meillant (whom K. H. 1. advanced to the Earldome of Leic.) and by the general Survey then made, wherein it is written Ove- fley, certified^v to contain 3 hides, being then held of the said Earl by one Fulke, who had a Mill here at that time, valued at iiii s. and Woods belonging to this place, extending to three furlongs in length and one in breadth; which, with all the rest, were prized at xl s. Of this great Earl I find, that he had a Butler called Raph, Radulfus Pincerna de Legre- cestria he is writtten^x; who having obtained lands of good value here, and in Leicestershire, by the grant of his said Lord, and finding this place
so eminent for its situation, partly by reason of the Woods and Water, but most of all in regard of the naturall high and steep ascent of the ground
so near the bank of Arrow, made choise thereof for his principall seat, and built a fair Castle thereon, by whose ruines the strength & compasse it was of, may seem to have been of no mean consideration; and within lesse than a mile distant thereof (viz. on the Northside of Alcester) founded a Monastery for Benedictine Monks (of which I have already spoke) whereunto, amongst other his ample concessions for its endowment, he added^y the Chapell of this his Castle.

From this Raph is it that the Botelers of Ober-
fley (no lesse than Barons) did deduce their descent and had here their seat, till by marriage with Maud
the daughter and heir of Pantolf, Wemme in Shropshire with other large possessions divolved to them: After which it was not long ere that, by an heir female, this came to Ferrers, and so afterwards to Nevill, and Gascoine, as the Pedegree inserted in the next page sheweth.

To which Raph succeeded Robert his son and heir, called^z Robertus Pincerna de Overfleya, who joynd with his Father in^a founding the Monastery of Alcester before specified, and confirmed^b to the Nuns of Winley that grant which Joh. de Pillardinton made to them of the Land
whereupon that Religious House was situate, it being of his Fee. Which Robert had issue another Raph, who gave^c the Chapell of Stodon, with the Tithes, to the Canons of Leicester, and made head against King John, with the rest of the Barons; for

Nay so far was he in the King, s favour, that upon redemption ^{Pat.} of the lands (according to the Di- ^{55. H.} ctum de Henlsworth) by those which had forfeited ^{3. m.} them, whereby degrave came to repofsefse this ^{u 20.} Mannour again, the King in recompence thereof gave ^a him the summe of CCCC li. to be received out of the Fines and americiaments coming into his Exchequer: But the posterity of this Raph. had heir residence for the most part at Wemme, so that I have therefore the lease to say of them. Of these, William his son and heir was a munificent Benefactor to the Monks of Alcester; for he gave ^{w Ex autog.} them Lxx. acres of land (viz. of his Wast) lying at ^{in Offic.} Hynestoke in Schropshire, with power to inclose ^{Arm.} the same; as also the advowson of the Church, and Common of pasture for 8 Oxen, 6 Kine, and CC. Sheep in his Woods and Wafts belonging to that Lordship. Upon his death, which hapned ^x in 12 ^{Efc. 12.} E. 1. I find it certified ^y that he held this Mannour of Oberstep of divers Lords by several services; and that there was then a Mannour House with two Gardens, two water Mills, xii. acres of meadow, xii. acres of arable land, ii. s. vi. d. Rent from two Freeholders, four Cottages and three messuages he'd by Tenants in Villenage of the Honour of Leicester, by the service of half a Knights Fee, doing Scutage to the Earl of Leicester for half a Knights Fee upon occasion. As also

To whom succeeded Maurice his son and heir, one of the Justices of Assize likewise in this Countie in 13 H. 3. and in 16 H. 3. a Com-

This is at which after-ward ex-est to be in hitlax-rd. vide 6. 15. E. 7. 11.

also that within this Mannour of Oversley there was^a at that time a certain Messuage, with a Dove-house, two Gardens, Cxxvi. acres of land in two fields, and six acres of meadow of the Abbot of Ce-berham's Fee; and likewise x. Villains who held ten yard land, paying yearly x. marks xis. iiii d. And moreover a free Rent service therein of two Arrows; with vi. Cottagers paying yearly vii s. vi d. and two marks yearly by way of Tallage, but doing service to the Abbot of Ceberham yearly for the whole vi. marks; and for four acres lying here, to Hugh Aquilon i d.

And besides all this, that there was of the Abbot of Bordesley's Fee seven yard land, a Mess. and xix Cottages, with vi s. viii d. being a Rent service from two Freeholders: That there was also a Park, with two Gardens, paying to the said Abbot v s. per an. in recompence for Housebote which he had used to have there, as belonging to his Mannour of Bordesley. And lastly of the E. of Warwick's Fee a Rent of xx d. issuing yearly out of a certain Mill.

Unto which William succeeded John^b his son and heir, then but xvi. years of age, a grant^c of whose marriage Walter de Beauchamp (of Alcester) the same year obtained, in the behalf of Eliaore his daughter; and in case the said Eliaore should die before the accomplishment of that intended marriage, that then he might marry some other of his daughters. And^d moreover, that if the same John should depart this life before such marriage, that then the said Walter might have the like benefit of his next heir; and so from heir to heir till one of his daughters were wedded to one of those Butlers; or in case that such one should take a wife of his own choice otherwise, then to have the forfeiture due to the King thereupon. But this John died^e within 3 years following, so that whether the said marriage were compleated by him, or his brother Gawine (who was his heir) I make a question, so that the inheritance came to Will. the third brother, as the Descent sheweth. Which Will. in 25 E. 1. had Summons^f, with other great men, to be at London on Sunday next after the Octaves of S. John Bapt. well furnished with Horse and Armes to attend the K. in his expedition beyond the Seas; whose service was so grateful, that the next year following the K. in recompence thereof, acquitted^g to him the debt due by his Father for the Scutage of 3 Knights Fees, which Scutage ought to have been performed by Maud his grandmother in the service of Wales. in the tenth year of the same K. Edward's reign.

This last mentioned William died^h in 8 E. 3. leaving Will. his son and heir; who in 18 E. 3. by the solicitation of Will. de Clinton, then Earl of Huntingdon, obtained a special dischargeⁱ from the K. that he should not be compelled to bear Armes in respect of his impotencie, nor to take upon him the Order of Knighthood, against his own good will. And departed^k this life in 35 E. 3. leaving Will. his son and heir 32 years of age, and another son called William (as it seems) but whether by one wife or not, I cannot affirm. Which Will. the younger son, I take to be him that married Joan the sister and coheir of Sir John Sudley Knight, from whom the Butlers Barons of Sudley descended (as in Oriffe is manifested) For it is evident that^l Will. the grandchild to William and Ankaret, left issue Eliz. his only daughter and heir, who being wedded to Robert de Ferrers (a younger son to the Lord Ferrers of Chartley) brought this place, with Wemme and other lands of a fair extent, to her said husband, who was thereupon summoned^m to Parliament by the name of Rob. Ferrers de Wemme Chivalier; which Lordships (viz. of Oversley and Wemme) with other, of her inheritance, lying in the Counties of Salop. Leicester. and Warwick. were after her said marriage in 44 E. 3. entailedⁿ upon the heirs of the body of them the said Robert and Elizabeth, with remainder to her right heirs.

But in 4 R. 2. this Robert died^o, leaving by the same Eliz. Robert his son and heir 4 years of age; which Elizabeth continued not long a widow; for I find, that the next year following, she was the wife^p of John Say, and surviving him, afterwards became wedded to Thomas Molinton, who wrote^q himself Baron of Wemme, in her right: and that by her Testament^r bearing date 6 Jan. 1410 (12 H. 4.) whereby she bequeathed her body to be buried in the Church of the Crouched Friars near the Tower of London, she styles herself Elizabetha Ferrers Baronissa de Wemme, retaining the name of that husband, who was of the greatest dignity, a custome which I find that women have long used, and not yet left: and departed^s this life the same year, leaving Elizabeth the wife of John Greistoke, son to Raph Lord Greistoke and Mary the wife of Raph Nevill, a younger son to Raph Nevill Earl of Westmerland, her cosyns and heirs (as faith the Inquis.) viz. daughters of Robert, son to her the said Eliz. But I think it mistaken; For the Fine^t Roll of 13 H. 4. whereby this Mannour of Oversley, with Perston-Boteler in this County, and the Mannour of Tre-ley in Com. Staff. are assigned to the said Raph Nevill and Mary, for her purpart, she having at that time issue by him, directly calls her una filiarum & heredum pradisite Elizabetha: Neither is it very likely, that she should be her grandchild, as the Inquis. imports; for Robert the son of Rob. Ferrers, by her, was but 4 years of age in 4 R. 2. so that had he been then living, he could have been but 34 years of age: And to fortifie my opinion the Clause Roll^u of 9 H. 5. expresses as much.

To which Sir Raph Nevill (for he was a Kt.^v) succeeded John Nevill Esq. his son^x and heir by the same Mary, who dyed^y seized of this Mannour in 22 E. 4. leaving Sr. Will. Gascoine, Knight his cosyn and next heir (viz.^z son of Joane his daughter) then 30 years of age. Which said Sir Will. (being great grandchild to Sir Will. Gascoine, who served^a under the renowned H. 5. King of England in his French Warrs, and he son to that sometime famous Lawyer Will. Gascoine of Ganthorpe in Yorkshire, chief Justice of the Kings bench temp. H. 4.) was made^b K^c of the Bath at the Queens Coronation in 1 H. 7. From whom descended^d Will. Gascoine jun. of Custworth in the same County of York, who in 29 H. 8. past^e away the inheritance of this Lordship (with all other his lands in Warwickshire) to Sir Thomas Cromwell Knight then Lord Cromwell: which eschaeting to the Crown by his attainder^f in 31 H. 8. was in exchange for certain lands in Bedfordshire, and the summe of 774 li. 09 s. 02 d. granted^g unto Sir George Throkemorton Knight and his heirs 30 Maii 33 H. 8. From which Sir George is S^r Robert Throkemorton Baronet (of whom in Coughton I have spoke) lineally descended, who in 7 Caroli obtained a special Charter^h, for himself and his heirs, to hold a Court Leet here, and to have Free-warren, with certain other privileges.

But here, before I proceed farther, I may not omit to observe, that though the possession of this Lordship went thus from the line of Gascoine, yet is the honorary title thereof revived in his posterity: for in 4 Caroli, the King taking notice of Sir Thomas Wentworth of Wentworth-Woodhouse in Yorkshire Knight and Baronet, descended by an heir female from the said Sir William, to be a man of singular prudence, and eminent worth; and therefore resolving to employ him in the highest affairs of State, advanced him to the dignity of Baron Wentworth, of the same Wentworth-Woodhouse, Newmarket, as also of this Oversley; and afterwards to the Lieutenancy of Ireland, and Earldome of Stratford. Nor must I forget, that likewise from the same stock, viz. from Nicholas a younger brother to the Chief Justice Gascoine, before spoken of, is also sprung my special friend Richard Gascoine, late of Bramham-Wiggin in the said County of York Esq; a gentleman well worthy of the best respects from all lovers of Antiquities; to whose good affections and abilities in those studies, his own Family, and several others of much eminency allied thereto, are not a little obliged.

How long the Tithes of this Lordship were enjoyed by the Monks of Alester, in order to the grant made by Raph Boteler, Founder of that Monastrie, I am not certain; but in 26 H. 8. it doth not appear that they had them: And, by what I have otherwise seen, it is evident, that the Church of Arrolo (within the precincts of which Parish this place is) possessed them, till that Mich. Clerke, Parson there in Q. Eliz. time, grew to a Composition with Sir Rob. Throkemorton Knight, then Lord of Oversley, for the same; whereby it was concluded, that the said Sir Rob. his heirs and assigns, owners of this Mannour, should be exempt from payment of any Tithes whatsoever, arising within the compass thereof; in consideration of which immunity they should pay to the said Michaell and his successors the summe of vi li. of current English money, at the Feasts of the Annunciation of our Lady, S. John Bapt. S. Mich. th' Archangell, and the Nativity of our Lord, by even portions; but that the Parson of Arrolo for the time being, should receive all personal Tithes from the Inhabitants of the Hamlet called Oversley-green; and also the Title of certain parcellis of inadowing there particularly expressed.

Exhall.

This in Edw. the Confessor's days, having been the Feehold of one Swain, but after the Norman Invasion, with divers lands of a great extent in this and other Counties, bestowed by the Conqueror on Will. fil. Corbucion, was by the generall Surveyⁿ, wherein 'tis written Ecclethelle, certified to contain one hide and a half, valued at v s. and then held of the same William, by Turchill. To the posterity of which Corbucion it continued till King John's time, or thereabouts; but then Will. de Cantilupe obtained it from Ric. Corbucion (a younger son to Peter, as I guess, of whom in Standlee I have spoke) which Will. bestowed^k it on Sibill his sister and Geffrey Pancefor her husband, and the heirs of their two bodies: Howbeit there is little else that I have seen relating to the Mannour; which makes me suppose, that it was parcell'd out to Freeholders, and no Courts kept, whereunto they did any suit or service. But I find that Walter Pykerell in 26 E. 1. died seized of one Messuage and two yard land here, being of the Fee of Budiford: And that Peter de Leicester in 32 E. 1. held^m Lxxx. acres of land, lying here also, leaving Julian his sister and heir, then married to Walter de Bernthorpe: As also that in 10 H. 6. John Ippewell yeoman possessed two Messuages and three yard land here, which he held by the fifth part of a Knights Fee. And that in 37 H. 8. Eliz. Walsingham widow died^o seized of two Messuages and Lxii acres of land, lying in this place, leaving John Walsingham her cosin and next heir. But farther, I have not seen any thing of much note relating thereto, other than that the heirs of Corbison have been certified^p to hold the fourth part of a Knights Fee here of the Earl of Warwick, it being now reputed a member of Oversley, the Lord of that Mannour having the Royalty thereof.

Touching the Church, originally a Chapell^q belonging to Saltsford, and therewith given^r to the Canons of Kenilworth, I find that it was dedicated^t (to S. Giles) by Simon Bishop of Worcester in H. 1. time, as also then endowed with Glebe and Tithes, as by his confirmation^u, which I have thought fit here to transcribe, appeareth.

*Universis (&c.) Simon Dei gratia Wigorniensis Ecclesie minister humilis in Domino salutem. Confirmo, presenti pagina, donationem quam probi homines de Ecclesiala donaverunt Ecclesie predicti Manerii, in die qua eam dedicavi. Sciendum est autem, quod Robertus Corbusceon & ejus uxor donaverunt eidem Ecclesie imperpetuum, unam virgatam terra, cum prato ad tantum terra pertinente, & totam suam partem ejusdem Crofti, exceptis duabus acris, quas Wido erga eum excambiavit ad opus ejusdem Ecclesie, & cum moro sub crofto. Wido vero ex sua parte quatuor acras in campo & dimidium in prato; & Robertus similiter duas acras. Hanc donationem similiter omnes fecerunt cum Decimis suis plenariis eidem Ecclesie liberam & quietam ab omni seculari servicio. Et ego ex mea parte volo & precipio ut libera sit & quieta ab omni Episcopali consuetudine. Qui autem aliquid inde subtraxerit, sive minuire vel perturbare presumpserit, Anathematis gladio feriatur. Testibus Gervasio Archidiacono, Radulpho Priore de Stanesh. Pagano Capellano (&c.)*

And as it was a Chapelry to Saltsford, so had the said Canons of Kenilworth a ratification^w thereof, to them, by the before specified Bishop, with Releases^x from Raph de Budiford, and Sr Ric. de Ecclesiala Kt. of their right in the advowson thereof; which Sir Richard was the same man (as I take it) who in the grant to Will. de Cantilupe, formerly spoke of, is called Richard Corbusceon. Howbeit the fruits thereof were never appropriated to that Monastery; but continued still to the Parson serving the Cure therein. In An. 1291 (19 E. 1.) this Rectory was valued^y at x s. marks, but in 26 H. 8. at x li. at which time it appeareth^z, that there was a Pension of xiii s. iiii d. per an. yearly paid out of it to the Canons of Kenilworth; and ix s. v d. ob. for Synodalls and Procurations.

In a plate of Brasse, upon a raised Monument of free-stone, adjoining to the North wall of the Church, this Epitaph.

Here lyeth buried the bodies of John Walling-ham late of Erball in the County of Warw. Esq;
and Elenor his wife, one of the daughters of Humfrey Ashfield of Wythopp in the County of Derby Esquier: the same John deceased the xx of Jan. 1566 and the said Elenor deceased the.....

Wicksford (& More-hall.)

His place being part of the possessions belonging to those which were reputed Earls of Warw. in the Saxons time, was by Ufa, one of that number (whom my Author calls potens ho- mo, & Vicecomes super Warw. & Eshetre) given to the Monastery of Cebesham, together with his body to be there buried, about the year of Christ, 974.
(scil. 17 Edgari) but it so hapned that those Priests which were placed therein, upon the expulsion of the Monks by Godwine, a powerfull man, who had purchased of K. Ethelred (brother to K. Edw.
the Martyr) for CCC. manes of gold the inheritance of that Abby, granted it to Wulfgeat son and successor to the before specified Ufa for life;
upon condition, that it should afterwards return unto them with all the stock upon it: yet, notwithstanding this plain Agreement, did the successors to the said Wulfgeat detain it untill the days of K. Edw. the Conf. that Abbot Agelwyne purchased it again from Wygod a potent Baron, and successor to the same Wulfgeat, for a valuable price.
Being therefore thus repossessed by those Monks, it was under the title of the lands belonging to the Monastery of Cebesham, by the Conq. Survey certified to contain 5 hides; having at that time a Mill, prized at x s. and xx sticks of Eccles. with Woods of one furlong in length, and half a furlong in breadth, the whole being rated at L. But there it is written Witelabesford, which shews that the originall denomination proceeded from some anti-ent possessor thereof called Witelaf, a name not unusuall in those elder times.

After which, ere long, viz. about the beginning of K. Will. Rufus his reign, I find that Abbot Robert, without his Covent, past it away in Fee Ferme for 4 li. per an. unto Raph Boteler (of whom in Oversley I have made mention) and that in 4 E. 1. it was certified to the Justices Itinerant, that the Abbot of Cebesham held the Hundred of Wytlarford by grant from K. H. 3. for xv s. per an. and that the Hamlet had heretofore been of that Hundred, but was aliened from it about 30 years
sithence; as also that the said Abbot had Assize of Bread and Beer, with a Gallows within the same Hundred. Which Abbot in 13 E. 1. challenged a Court Lest here, with divers other priviledges by Prescription; but for the better justifying his claim exhibited the grant of K. H. 3. being an Inspec- imus of a Charter made by K. H. 1. whereby the said
K. confirm'd to the Monks of Cebesham the Hundred of Blackhurst, with all that thereto belonged:
which Hundred of Blackhurst I suppose to be the same that afterwards was called the Hundred of Wytlarford, as abovesaid; and 'tis like, did contain all the lands belonging to the said Monks of Cebesham in this County. But that which then had the reputation of a Hundred, and was called the Hundred of Wytlarford, being a Royalty which the K. resolved to keep, he demanded of the Abbot of Cebesham in the same 13th year of his reign; whereupon the Abbot disclaimed it to be an Hundred, alledging that Wytlarford was only a Mannour situate within the Hundred of Barlich- way, of which Hundred he acknowledged the said
K. to be in possession.

Touching the extent of this Lordship in 15 E.
1. upon the death of John le Boteler of Oversley, p Ejc. 15. I find it thus certified^p; viz. that the Mannour E 1 m. 31. House here, with a Dovehouse, Lx. acres of land, xii acres of meadow, two groves of Wood, and the Rent from the Freeholders, was valued at xxx s.

and that there were xii. yard land held in Villenage, yeilding Cx s. per an. all being held of the Abbot of Evesham in free Socage, paying iiii li. iiii s. iiii d.
ob. per. an. which differs not much from what is recorded^q in 19 E. 1. viz. *Coquinarius Abbas
de Evesham percipit apud Wiltblackford de Re-ditu Assis. 4 li. Et habet unum Molendinum quod valet vi s viii d.* Which Mannour is it that is now called Worcehall: The next mention whereof that I have met with, is in 2 R. 2. where Robert, Parson of the Church of Eccleshale, grants it to John de Morehale and Agnes his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies lawfully begotten, and for lack of such issue to Thomas de Morehall, with remainder to John de Clopton and his heirs. By which entail it should seeme that it came to the same John de Clopton; for it appears^r that Thomas de Crewe had to do here, in right of Julian his wife, mother to Sir Will. Clopton Kt. and widow (as I guess) to the same John de Clopton. Of which Thomas, in respect of his residence here, and relations to this County, I may not omit to declare what I find memorable.

Throkmore Milburge the Virgin here at Wiltblackford, giving ton Bar. to certain Priests to celebrate divine Service for the health of his soul C. marks, as also to poor people to pray for his soul the like summe, constituting E-lizabeith his siller, then Prioress at Chester (to whom he also gave C. marks) together with Will.
Clopton, and Joane his wife, his Executors; and departing^a this life the same year, lyeth buried under a very fair Monument of gray Marble, raised about 18 Inches from the ground, in the midst of that Chapell, whereon are the portraitures in bras-se of himself and his wife, as when I come to speak particularly thereof shall be shewed.

But the interest which he had here, was^b only for terme of life, by the assignation of Sir Will. Clopton before specified, in whom the inheritance rested:
which Will. having by a certain Feoffment^c, bearing date 7 Maii 7 H. 5. declared his intentions for the setting of his estate, dyed^d, leaving only two daughters his heirs; viz. Agnes the wife of Thomas Herberd, and Joane married to John Burgh;
betwixt whom the inheritance, descending to them,
was by Indenture^e dated 22 Febr. 22 H. 6. divided,
and this Mannour of Worcehall, with Wilt-blackford (inter alia) allotted to Joane, who left^f issue
by her said husband, four daughters and heirs; sc.
Eliz. married to Newport, Ankaret to John Leighton, Isabell to Sir John Lyngen Kt. and Sibill
to Thomas Mitton Esq.

The Chapell (dedicated to S. Milburge) now reputed a Parish Church, was originally belonging to Blackford, and therewith given^g by K. H. 1. to the Canons of Kenilw. shortly after the Foundation of that Monastery, and confirmed^h by several Arch-Bishops of Canterbury: but after that; viz.

in 5 Steph. Raph Boteler upon his foundation of the Priory at Alcester, gaveⁱ the Tithes of this place to that Religious house, though by what colour of right I find not. Which grants occasioned the Monks of Evesham to look about them, who being Lords of the Mannour, conceived that they had a good title to the patronage of the Cha-pell, whereunto they made their claim^k: but at last they came to this Agreement^l with the Canons of Benlwozth, viz. that the said Canons should yearly have the summe of viii s. which they had wont to receive for the Tithes of this Village, and whatsoever Parochial benefite they had used to have therein, excepting the Tithes of those lands, which particularly belonged to the said Monks of Evesham: In consideration whereof the same Canons of Benlwozth were yearly to pay to the Monks of Evesham X s. at the Feasts of S. Mich.
th' Archangell, and the Annuntiation of our Lady by equall portions, and to cause divine Service to be celebrated three days a week in the said Cha-pell, sc. Sundays, Wednsdays, and Fridays: which Agreement was confirm'd^m by Roger Bishop of Worcester in H. 2. time.

But thereof had not the Monks of Alcester any benefite; wherefore insisting upon their right in this Chapell, there was at length, a fair conclusion made betwixt the said Canons of Benlwozth
and them, in the presenceⁿ of John de Constantis
Bishop of Worcester, and others, at the appointment of the Archbishop of Canterbury, whereby it was concluded, that the Monks of Alcester should thenceforth receive the whole Tithes of the demesns of this Lordship for ever, and the Canons of Benlwozth the Tithes of that held in Villenage.
And in like sort, that the Monks should receive all the Tithes of Budeley (now called Worcehall) except of those lands which belong'd by inheritance unto Ris. de Eccleshale, Godfrey de Budiford, as also to Norman and Will. Parmentier at the time when this Agreement was made: Of which lands
the said Monks and Canons should divide the Tithe-Corn betwixt them; but the parochiall right, with the small Tithes of those 4 persons, and their successors, in the said lands, to belong to the Canons for ever.

The Chantry.

In 26 H. 6. one Will. Wolashull, obtaining Licenseⁿ from the King, founded a Chantry here,
for one Priest, perpetually to celebrate divine Service to the honour of our Lady and S. John Baptist, in the Chapell annex to this Parish Church, for the good estate of the said King, with Margaret his Queen, and of the said Will. during their lives in this World: as also for their soules after their departure hence, together with the souls of Thomas Crewe Esq; and Julian his wife, Sir William Clopton Knight and Joane his wife, their parents and friends; unto whose maintenance he gave in pure Almes, a certain dwelling House situate here in Wiltblackford, called Proffs-place, with a Close ad-joyning thereto, containing two acres. But by the Survey^o taken in 37 H. 8. I find it certified, that

In the midst of the same Ile is this monument,

Apley juxta Wicksford.

This is a depopulated place, and not mentioned in any Record, that I have seen, till 18 E. 3. that Gilbert Chasteleyn releaseth, to Sir Fouk de Bermingham Knight, all his right and title therein: nor afterwards till after the death of Thomas Crew (of whom in Wicksford I have spoke) at which time it was found: that he held it during his life by the assignation of Sir William Clpron Knight, together with Wicksford and Worehall: since which time it hath accompanied those places in point of succession; and is now posselt, with them, by the Throkemorton's of Coughton.

Salford-Priors.

Having thus taken notice of all on this side Arroto, I must passe over that River to Salford, which is the last and only Parish whereof I am now to speak, in this Hundred. This containeth the Hamlets of Abbots-Salford, Wood-Bevinton, Cock-Bevinton, and Dunnington; and had its name originally from a Salt Spring that hath been there, as the Inhabitants doe observe from one accessse of Pidgeons to the place where it was, which is now choakt up.

Upon the Foundation of the Abby at Cobham in the year of Christ DCCxiii. this place, by the name of Salford major, was given to that Monastery by S. Ecgvyn Bishop of Worcester: but it continued not long to the Monks; for it appears that in K. E. the Confessor's days, odeva wife to Earl Leofrike (of whom in Cobentre I have spoke) posselt it; and that after the Norman Conquest Leveve, a Nun, had it of the King's gift, in whose hands it was at the time of the generall Survey; and certified to contain three hides, there being then a Church, with a Mill rated at v s. and Woods containing two furlong in length, and half a furlong in breadth; in which Record it is written Salford, and valued at vii li. on the advancement of Henry de Neuburgh to the Earldome of Warwick, this Lordship was (inter alia) given to him, as it seems; for it appears that Earl Roger, his son and successor, possessed it; and thereof enfeoffed Geffrey de Clinton, to hold by the service of a Kts. Fee: Howbeit, Livitha the Nun, being thus outed, commenced her suit in K. Henrie's Court, and recovered it; whereupon the said Geffrey came to some agreement with her, and by her consent, with the good liking of the said Earl, gave it to the Canons of Kenilworth, upon his foundation of that Monastery: in Confirmation^x whereof, the same Earl, whose consent therein he had, acquitted to them the said Kts. service, and ratified the grant in the King's presence. And to the intent that no farther Challenge should be made by those that might pretend thereto, Margaret the Countesse (mother to Earl Roger) by the full consent of the said Earl and the rest of her sons, viz. Rotroc Bishop of Curcur, Rob. de Neuburgh, Geffrey, and Henry, for the health of Henry her late husband's soul, as also of her own, and her sons, added her Charter^y of confirmation, in regard of the interest she had in the moytie of it: In consideration whereof, Bernard the first Prior there, gave her xx marks of silver.

Which Canons of Kenilworth, being so possessors of this Lordship, had divers liberties and privileges therein; viz. Court Leet, Assize of bread and beer, Gallows, and Weyfs, for all which they pleaded^z Prescription in 13 E. 1. and had allowance of them; having therein, as it appears by the Record^a of 19 E. 1. four Carucates of Land, rated at xx s. the Carucate; xvii. in Rent of Assize, together with the Ferm of the Mill, & in Pleas and Perquisites two marks: in the demesne lands whereof they obtained a Charter^b of Free Warren in 11 R. 2. After the dissolution of which Monastery, it continued in the Crown, till that K. James (inter alia) past it to certain persons in trust for payment of his debts; who accordingly sold it unto Sir Simon Clarke Baronet, now owner thereof An. scil. 1640.

The Church being confirm'd^c to the Canons of Kenilworth by Simon Bishop of Worcester in H. 1. time, with Eccleshale and Withlakesford (then Chapells belonging thereto) and said to be of the same King Henry's grant; was also ratified^d by Thomas Arch Bishop of Canterbury in H. 2. time; by whose Instrument^e there is mention of a Chapell also at Little Salford (id est Abbots Salford) belonging thereto, and of a piece of glebe called Littleham (being a meadow) with Tithe of Salt; which shews that there hath been antiently a Salt Spring, there, that yielded good benefit. In An. 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was valued^f at xvi. marks, the Vicar then having a portion of x. marks, and the Abbot of Evesham xxx s. But in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was rated at x l. out of which the Procurations and Synodals then issuing, were xs. vd. ob.

Abbots Salford.

THIS, by the name of Salford minor, was given to^h the Abby of Evesham, at the foundation thereof by S. Ecgwyne in the year DCCxliii. And being possess'd by the Monks of that House in the Conqueror's time, was then certifiedⁱ to contain two hides, having a Mill rated at x^s and xx sticks of Eeles, all valued at Lx^s. Which Monks in 13 E. 1. claimed^k a Court Leet here, and divers other privileges by Prescription, and had allowance of them: But further of this Lordship, other than the description of its boundaries, which are here added^l, I have not seen any thing memorable whilst it continued to those Monks.

Limites in Salford Abbatis.

Hi sunt limites terra de parva Salford, qua de jure communi, & a tempore quo non existat memoria, pertinent ad matricem Ecclesiam, & parochiam Eveshamensis Ecclesie. Ex opposito parochia de Offenham, descendendo quo sicutus qui vocatur Smalcmeresuche qui cadit in Avenam, & dividit parochiam Salford Eveshamens. & parochiam de Herberton; & inde contra decursum fluminis ascendendo usq; in Offepole; de Offepole usq; ad vadum quod vocatur Benetord.

Till the dissolution of which Monastery this Lordship continued thereto; but then, coming to the Crown, was by the K. 9 Julii 38 H. 8. past (inter alia) to Sir Philip Hobby Knight and his heirs: which Sir Philip, the next year following, aliened^m it to Anthony Littleton Gent. After which it was not long ere it came to John Alderford Esq; (by purchase as I have heard) who left two daughters and coheirs; scil. Margaret the wife of Sir Sim. Clarke Baronet, and Elleanor of Charles Stanford, grandchild to Sir VVill. Stanford Kt. (sometime one of the Justices of the King's Bench) by Sir Rob. Stanford Kt. his second son: Which Charles had issue John, and he VVilliam, the present owner thereof.

About the time of K. H. 2. reign, there was an Agreementⁿ made betwixt the Monks of Evesham, and the Canons of Kenilworth touching the Chapell of this Little Salford; whereby it appeareth that the said Canons released to those Monks

Monks all the land which had been given to maintain divine Service in that Chapell, preserving always the first Composition made betwixt the Monasteries of Evesham and Kenilworth before the building of that Chapell. And as for the meadow which was given to this Chapell, the Monks by this Agreement granted, that the Church of great Salford should have that part of it, which lyeth betwixt the Water and the Foot-path leading from Salford Mill to Cliffe Mill, by the upper Foarde; but the other part of the meadow to continue as the demesne of the Abbot, upon condition that it might not be grazed or mowed before the whole meadow should be cut.

Wood-Bevinton & Cock-Bevinton.

These two petty Hamlets, being originally members of Salford Priors, were involved therewith, both in the Conqueror's Survey, and in the grant to the Canons of Kenilworth, as appears by that Certificate made in 9 E. 2, wherein by the name of Bybinton major, and Bybinton minor they were so reputed. Of which Wood Bevinton the said Canons did make a Lease to Will. Grey the elder, in H. 7. time; who in 21 of that King's reign, depopulated here, 6 Messuages and one

Cottage, xxx acres of arable land belonging to each Messuage, which he converted unto pasture. To whom succeeded Will. his son and heire, who, surrendering that Lease, purchased the inheritance thereof from those Canons, for a Fee-ferm Rent of xiii^{li} viii^s iiii^d per an. and in 10 H. 8. when the Statute of Inclosures was lookt into, reedified four of the said Messuages. Which Will. had issue Eliz. his daughter and heire, wife to Edward Ferrers, second son to Sir Edw. Ferrers of Badley-Clin-ton in this County Kt. who left only daughters, whereof Elizabeth, the eldest, was married to Thomas Randolph, son and heir to Thomas Randolph of Codington in Com. Buck. who purchasing the interest of the other Sisters, became intirey Lord of this Mannour, and left issue Ferrers Randolph his son and heir, now owner thereof.

Of Cock-Bevinton I can say no more, than that it is now posselt by Sir Simon Clerke Baronet, together with Salford, wherewith, I suppose, hath past ever since it was in the Crown.

Dunnington.

This is also a member of Prior's Salford, and involved therewith in all grants; by which means it is now posselt by the before specified Sir Sim. Clarke.

HEMLINGFORD HUNDRED.

The place whence this Hundred takes its appellation, is the Foard or passage over Tame, somewhat more than a flight shoot Southwards from Kingsbury Church; of which likewise the Mill, near unto it, is still called Hemlingford Mill: but antiently Colmill (that stands about the midst of the Hundred) gave name thereto, as appears by the Conquerors Survey^a; and to this day the Three-weeks Court held for the same Hundred is kept there. 'Tis very like that the original occasion of calling the Inhabitants to this place, whereupon the name came to be changed, was, for that some of the Ardens, whose seat Kingsbury long since was, being Shiriffs of the Countie, caused the meeting of the Hundreders there, in regard of their Vicinitie to it; but leaving this as a conjecture I come to its antiquity, the first mention that I find of its name, being in 8 H. 2. Where Raph. Basset, the then Shiriff, accompts^b for certain money by way of Amercement for Murther, paid out of it: and after this scil. in 16 H. 2. two marks were answered into the Exchequer for it pro placitis conceleatis; yet there it is written Sibbesocha de Humelisofo, and so are Chuchtelaw, and Chinton, all which had the title of Hundreds soon after: But, doubtlesse, it should have been Sirbesoca (the old Saxon p being mistaken for a p, as in Knightslow I have already intimated) which importeth as much as the Fraunchise, Libertie, or Jurisdiction of a certain company of men, suppose an hundred or the like number, coming from the Saxon rip or rippe, signifying a number, multitude, or company, and pocce a privilege, Libertie, or Jurisdiction.

And in 21 H. 2. xv. marks was accounted to the King for three Murthers, whereat it had been amerced, but there it is written Sibbesocha de Humelisofo the p being mistaken for a b, as before it was for a p. So also in 24 H. 2. Howbeit in 29 H. 2. & 1 R. 1. upon the like amerement for Murther, it is called Humelisofo Hundred, which manifests that the word Sirbesoca and Humelisofo do intend one and the same thing: After which it is constantly termed Humelisofo. But in K. John's time the Ferm thereof was xx marks, the profits of the Leet xli s. the Shiriffs Aid xvii li. xviii s. and the Warch money v s. Which Warch silver (now by corruption of speech called Wharfe money) I take to have been, at first, a certain payment for service of warding the King's Castles in this County, for antiently it is written Ward peny as by sundry authorities I could manifest.

In 21 H. 3. Will. de Lusey being then Shiriff accounted^c,

For { The Ferme thereof xx marks.
The Shiriffs Aid vi li.
The Leet xli s. iiii d.
Warch silver v s.

In 4 E. 1. by Inquisition^d taken before the Justices Itinerant, it was found that the profits of this Hundred, besides perquisites, amounted to xiii li. iii s. ii d. ob. per an. and the perquisites xx li. it being then in the King's hand. In 11 E. 2. the Bayliwick thereof was committed^k to one Will. Raymond, to hold during the Kings pleasure, paying yearly to the Shiriff of this County for the time being, as much as others had used to doe, so that he should keep the same Bailywick according to the forme of the Statute of Lincolne. Nor can I find that it was ever out of the Crown, untill 3 Eliz. that the Queen by her Letters^l Pat. bearing date 10 Jan. granted it, with all the rights belonging thereto, unto Brian Cave Esquier and Edw. Williams, and their heirs, to hold in Socage of the Mannour of East Grenetolch. To which Brian succeeded, in the possession thereof, Sir Ambrose Cave Knight, who dying^m seized of it in 10 Eliz. left Margaret his daughter and heir, then wife of Henry Knolls Esquier. Which Henry having issue by her two daughters and heirs, viz. Mary married to Will. Lord Pager, and Eliz. to Sir Henry Willoughby of Ritley in Derbyshire, by partition betwixt them, it was allotted to Elizabeth and is by the same Sir Henry accordingly enjoyed: the Towns that now owe suit thereto (I mean to the Leet) being these, viz. Berkswell, the three Wickenhills, Sheldon, Edgbaston, Curdworth, Spintworth, Kingsbury, Hurley, part of Perston juxta Kingsbury, Whateley, Holt, Slateley, half Willeccote juxta Tamworth, the half of Sekindon; in Austrey the Mannour sometime belonging to Barton Abby, Wadley-Endesoure, Anley, Hartshill, and Whitacre superior.

Tame fluvo.

Being now to speak of the particular places within this Hundred of Hemlingford, according to my accustomed method in the rest, I must follow the course of Tame, which having its rise from several heads about Dudley, and Walshall in Staffordshire, glides along with a slow and gentle course (whence perhaps it became at first so called, as Arrow was by reason of its swiftnesse) and entering it at Aston, moveth for a while Eastwards; but being augmented by divers petty streams, in its passage, bendeth at length Northwards, leaving the same, together with the County, at Tamworth, whereunto, as a farewell it giveth that name.

Aston juxta Bermingham.

This is a very large Parish, and containeth divers petty Hamlets and places of note, scil. Bechels, Pechels, Dudston, Dervatend, Bordesley, Hepbarnes, Saltley, Wardend, Castle-Bromwich, Park-Hall, and Water-Dyton, all lying on the South side of Tame, with Alston and Erdington on the North; of which in their order, and first of Alston it self.

This, for distinction from others of that name, is now commonly called Alston juxta Bermingham, but antiently it was written Estone, having originally had that name, perhaps, from the situation thereof Eastwards from Wedsbury in Staffordshire, a town of some note in the Saxons time. Before the Norman Conquest Edwine Earl of Mercia was Lord of this place; but upon that great distribution made by King William to his friends and followers, it with other vast possessions of the disherited English, lying in the Counties of Surrey, Berks, Bucks, Devon, Northampton, Worcester, and Stafford, besides much more in this Shire, was bestowed on William Fitz Ausculf (who had his principall seat at the Castle of Dudley in Staffordshire) and by the generall Survey then taken, certified to contain viii. hides, valued at C s. there being at that time a Church, with a Mill rated at iii s. as also Woods extending to 3. miles in length, and half a mile in breadth, all then held of him by one Godmund.

To which William Fitz Ausculf succeeded in the Barony of Dudley, and possession hereof, Gervase Paganell; who, dying without issue, left Hawise his sister and heir, wife to R. Someri, whereby the whole Barony of Dudley devolved to that Family. Which R. Someri by her had issue Raph Someri, who being possessor of this Lordship, as a member of the said Barony, gave unto Thomas the son of William de Erdington and his heirs, about the beginning of King John's time, his Mannour house here at Estone, with all the demesns; as also divers Tenements particularly mentioned in his Charter, to be held of him the said Raph and his heirs, by the service of a pair of gilt Sours, or the price of them, viz. vi d. payable at Easter for all services and demands whatsoever: Touching which Family of Erdington I shall speak historically in Erdington, where I have inserted the Descent, and therefore will here take notice of what only concerns them in reference to this place.

In 2 H. 3. this Mannour (together with Erdington) was assigned by the King, to Rose de Cocfeld, the Widow of the before specified T. de Erdington, for her present maintenance, till her dowry should be set out: howbeit, the next year following, the Shirriff had command, though for what reason appears not, to deliver possession of it unto Philip de Ascells, for the King's use, and that he should not permit William Grasse to meddle therewith, nor to make any waft or destruction in the land or woods belonging thereto. This being the utmost Lordship towards Staffordshire, and some dispute growing touching the bounds thereof; King H. 3. directed his Precept to the Justices Itinerant, in 20. of his reign; whereby, declaring it to be his royall pleasure, that there should be speciall and certain marks set forth, for the limits of each Countie, about the parts of this Eston in Warwickshire, and Hanneworth in Staffordshire; he gave command to the Shirriff of Warwickshire, to bring into Lichfield, upon Sunday next after the Feast of S. James the Apostle, xii. discreet and lawfull Knights, there to make and establish such metes and divisions, upon their Oaths; and the like to the Shirriff of Staffordshire for as many out of that Countie.

To which Thomas de Erdington succeeded ¹ Giles, and unto him Henry ²: which Henry, about the beginning of Edw. 1. reign, enfeoffed ³ Thomas de Maidenbach in this Mannour, bounded by the Rivers of Tame and Burne, as his Charter manifesteth: who being so possessor of it, in 13 E. 1. claimed by Prescription Assize of Beer, Gallows, Infangthef, Mifangthef, with a Court Leet, and Weyfs; As also that he and his Tenants should be free from any suit to the Countie or Hundred Courts, bounding his claim within the limits of those two Rivers before specified, and had allowance of them accordingly. After which, viz. the next ensuing year, did the said Thomas de Maidenbach obtain a Charter of Free-warren for himself and his heirs in all his demesns lands here. It seems he was a servant to the King; for in that grant the King calls him dilectus Valettus noster (our beloved Esquire) in 18 E. 1. he impleaded William de Bermingham for fishing in a part of his water, called Hoppsich to Scrafsod-bridge, within this his Libertie of Alston: And in 19 E. 1. was certified to hold this Lordship, together with Dudston, of Roger de Someri, as of his Mannour of Bordesley juxta Bermingham, by the Rent of ii s. viii d. payable yearly at the Feast of S. Michael for all services.

But all that I find farther of this Thomas de Maidenbach is, that being to attend the King in his voyage beyond Sea 14 E. 1. he had speciall Letters of protection granted to him; as also that he was a Benefactor to the Hospitall of S. Thomas the Apostle in Bermingham, by giving thereto ten Acres of Heath lying within this his Lordship of Alston; and that he departed this life without issue male; for by an Inquis. taken after the death of Isabel his widow in 12 E. 2. Joane, Sibill, Isabell, and Margaret were found to be his daughters and heirs, the youngest then being above xxi. years of age. Of which, Joane, shortly after, died issueless, so that by Partition made in 12 E. 2. the possessions of the said Thomas were divided betwixt the other three; viz. this Mannour of Alston, with the Mannours of Gerndon in Drfordshire, Wikes, and Sonde in Suffex, and Bergholtes in Suffolk; besides other lands and Rents lying in the Countie of Southampton: whereof Sibill, then the wife of Adam de Grymesarwe, had this Lordship for her share. Which Adam and Sibill had issue ⁴ John, unto whom the said Sibill his mother, by her Deed bearing date on the day of S. Lamberti the Bishop and Martyr 31 E. 3. gave the inheritance thereof; whereby it descended, after the decease of the said John, who dyed childless, unto his Cousin Maud Grymesarwe, daughter of John, brother to the before specified Adam: which Maud in 40 E. 3. past it unto John atte Holt of Bermingham, as her Charter dated here at Alston on the Sunday next before the Feast of S. Agapite the Martyr, testifieth; whose posterity (whereof I have inserted the Descent in the following page) do enjoy it to this day.

Which John Holt dyed childless, so that Walter his uncle became heir to the estate; who in 40 E. 3. and 1 R. 2. underwent the office of Eschaetor to the King, for this Countie and Leicestershire; a service in those days of great trust, and wherein none but persons of eminent worth and quality were employed: In the later of which years he was the principall Commissioner assigned in this Countie for levying and collecting a Fifteenth and Tenth, then granted to the King in Parliament. Of this Walter I find, that by a Feoffment^f to one Williams Whetele and other persons in trust, he setled this Mannour to the use of himself, and Margerie his wife, as also to his own right heirs; and that he departed^g this life, the said Margerie surviving; who the better to secure her estate, enfeoffed^h John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaster, Sir William Bagot of Baginton, and other persons of qualitie therein: And that he left issueⁱ John and William; which John, being heir apparent, made another Feoffment^k in Fee simple thereof, to the said Sir William Bagot: But William the younger brother, having great favour and countenance from King H. 4. in consideration of his good service done and to be done, as the words of the^l Patent import, obtained a grant of it from the said King, for life, in 1 H. 4. who challenged^m a legall title thereto, as son and heir to John Duke of Lancaster above mentioned, one of the Feoffees unto the before recited Margerie; in which Patent, the King calls him, Dilectus Armiger noster; whence I guesse that he was his servant before he attained the Crown.

But about this time the said Sir William Bagot was under a great cloud (as my story of him in Baginton will shew) by which means the said William Holt kept the possession thereof, with little opposall: Howbeit, in 5 H. 4. after time had shadowed the memory of his by-past actions, and that he had got a Releaseⁿ from the Bishop of

S. Davids, and other his Feoffees, of the interest they^b had to all his lands, he set afoot his title to this Mannour: but in conclusion there was a reference^c betwixt them, made unto Edward Duke of York, and Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, unto whose arbitrement they were contented to submit; and to that end bound themselves in CC li. bonds a piece. The particulars of their Award I have not seen; but by what afterwards appears, it is evident, that the said William Holt kept the possession thereof; for in 14 H. 6. he released^d unto John Warde of Little Bromwiche and John Shyngler, all his right therein; which John and John had been his Feoffees^e together with the said Earl of Warwick and others; and so, it seems, still stood, the possession continuing in himself; for the better corroborating of whose title, the next year after, did Andomare his nephew (who in truth was the right heir) release^f unto him all the right and claim he had thereto.

This William in 12 H. 6. was^g one of the chief persons in this County, choien to make Oath for performance of divers Articles concluded of in the Parliament then held, having the title of William Holt de Aston armiger: but for ought yet appeareth, the estate which he had by grant from King H. 4. was but for terme of life, so that the inheritance resting in the Crown, occasioned John Holt his nephew (scil. son to his brother Simon) in 19 H. 6. to procure a Patent^h thereof, with all the Liberties and privileges thereto belonging (and therein particularly exprest) for himself and his heirs, to be held of the chief Lord of the Fee, and not of the King in Capite. Which John being so vested therein, and taking notice of a certain Act of Reassumption made in the Parliament held at Westminster 29 H. 6. exhibitedⁱ his Petition to the King, that the same Act might not be prejudicial to him, nor unto Margaret his wife, nor the heirs or assignes of the said John, in respect of the Patent before mentioned, considering that it had been duly recovered (as the said Petition alledged) according to the course of Law before the Justices of the Common Pleas, in the tenth year of the same King's reign, by the said Aymer Holt, cousin and heir to the before specified Walter, against Will. Holt Esquire, then tenant thereof, by virtue of certain Letters Patent to him made, as aforesaid; which Petition was accordingly^j granted.

Of this John Holt I further find, that he was constituted^k Eschætor for this County, and Leicester in 16 H. 6. and became afterwards a meniall servant to the same King; who by way of reward for his fidelity and diligence, made him Ranger of Sutton Chase; the words of which grant^l being memorable, I shall here transcribe. *Rex, &c. Sciatis quod de gratia nostra speciali, ac consideratione diutini & continui servicii, quod humilia servitor noster Joh. North-Males in H. 8. time, as also in Commission for the Peace in this Shire the greatest part of that King's reign, wedded ^c Margerie the eldest of the seven daughters and coheirs to William Wil- lington of Warchellon Esquire (a wealthy Merchant of the Staple) who survived him, and afterwards became the wife ^u of Sir Ambrose Cave Knight, And by her left issue Edward Holt Esquire,
Which Edw. having had his education with Sir John St. Leger (then of Woeley Castle in in Com.
Wigorn.) as by his Fathers Will appears, was in 14 Eliz. constituted ^w one of the Justices of Peace for this County, and in 26 Eliz. Sheriff ^x; and died ^y 3. Febr. 35 Eliz.

Unto whom succeeded Thomas his son and heir,
then of full age, being made Sheriff ^z of this County, in 42 Eliz. and Knighted by King James, at his first coming into England; but afterwards, viz.

25. Novemb. 10. Jac. advanced ^a to the dignity of a Baronet; Of whom I may not omit to take this further notice; viz. that by him there was a fair Parke inclosed here, and a noble Fabrick therein created, which for beauty and state much excee-deth any in these parts; the building whereof was begun in Aprill Anno 1618. (16 Jac.) and finished in Aprill 11^o Caroli: As also that by his last Will and Testament he assigned CCC li. for the building of an Hospitall here at Aston, for five men & five women, appointing a Rent charge out of his Mannour of Erdington of LXXXV III li. per ann.
for their support: And lastly that he departed this life . . . Anno 1654. being then about LXXXIII.
years of age.

Ex an-

Holt,
The Church (dedicated to S. Peter & Paul) being given ^b to the Monastery of Petropoit-Paganell
in Buckinghamshire (commonly called Utk-Priorie) by Gervase Paganell Baron of Dudley, and Lord of this Mannour in H. 2. time, was appropriated ^c to them by Ric. Peche then Bishop of this Dioces; which appropriation Hubert Archbishop of Canterbury shortly afterwards confirmed ^d. But the Monks of that House thought not their title very secure, till they had got a ratification ^e thereof from Giles de Erdington in 15 H. 3.
for which he and his heirs were made partakers of all the prayers and pious works to be performed in that Monastery for ever. After which, viz. in 38
H. 3. there was an Ordination ^f of the Vicaridge, here, by Roger de Weseham then Bishop of Coventre and Lichfield, with the consent of the Monks of Petropoit-Painell and William de Kil- kenny the then Rector. By which Ordination, bearing date at Bretwood on the morrow after the Feast of S. Cecily the Virgin, it appears, that the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield were thenceforth to receive out of the fruits of the Rectory, the sum of xx. marks yearly, at the Feasts of the Annunciation of our Lady, and S. Andrew th^e apostle, by even portions: Howbeit, after this, scil. about six years, there was something more done as to the before specified Ordination ^g, by Roger de Molend
the succeeding Bishop.

In Anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) the Rectory was valued ^h at xl. marks, over and above the same Pension of xx. marks payable yearly to the Canons of Lichfield; and the Vicaridge ⁱ at vii. marks and a half. About the later end of E. 2. time, I find that the Nuns of Catesby in Com. Northamp.

made some title ^k to the third part of the Tiches belonging to this Church; but the Monks of Utk-foyd by a Writ of Right recovered ^l against them, and had a confirmation ^m of those Tiches accordingly, made by King Edw. 3. in 5. of his reign. Upon the dissolution of which Priory of Utkfoyd in 17 H. 8. this Rectory, with a certain Mannour here, belonging thereto, as the words of the Patent do import, were with that Religious House, and divers other small Monasteries (at that time likewise suppressed) given ⁿ to Cardinal Woolsey, for the endowing of his Colledges in Oxford and Ipswich, then begun to be erected. Which Cardinal did accordingly confer ^o what he had here at Aston, upon the Dean and Canons of his said Colledge in Oxford, then called Woolsey's Colledge. But that Foundation of the Cardinal, was soon after altered
by the King, who not only assumed the honour thereof to himself, but made great alteration in the endowment; yet what was so given here at Aston
continued, though not without a new ^p grant from the King, to John then Bishop of Lincolne and others, to the use of the same Colledge. Of the before specified Vicaridge I further find, that it, with the Chapell of Bromwich of xiv s. per an. value, was in 26 H. 8. rated ^q at xxi li. iv s. viii d. over and above iii s. payd yearly to the Dean and Chapter

Erdington's Chantry.

r Pat. 27. H. 6. p. 2. m. 18. IN 27 H. 6. Sir Thomas Erdington Knight founded a Chantry in this Church, for one Priest to celebrate divine service daily at the Altar of the blessed Virgin perpetually, for the good estate of King Henry the sixth, and of him the said Sir Thomas and Joyce his wife, during their lives in this world: and for the health of their souls, as also the souls of their Progenitors, Parents, and Benefactors, and all the faithful deceased: The revenues whereof, in 26 H. 8. were certified to be vii li. xix s. ob. over and above iii s. iv d. for the Anniversarie of the Founder, and xvi s. ob. in Rents to the Lord of the Fee: Howbeit, in 37 H. 8. considering an Annuite of xl s. granted out of the lands belonging thereto, unto John Throckmorton gentleman for life, the cleer yearly value amounted to no more than vi li. But after the generall dissolution of the Chantries, this, with the lands belonging to it, was by Letters Patent, bearing date 9. Sept. 2 E. 6. (inter alia) granted to Ric. Pallady gentleman, and Francis Foxall Citizen and Mercer of London, and their heirs; and the next year following, another Patent thereof made to Thomas Hawkyngs, alis Fysher of Warwick, and his heirs.

In the utmost window (on the South side) towards the West, of those that pertain to the body of the Church, is this inscription.

Orate pro bono statu fratrum de Bromwich, qui hanc fenestram fieri fecerunt.

In the next window is this coat of Armes; viz. Argent a Chevron gules between 3. lozenges sable: And under it, the portraiture of a man kneeling in a surcoat of the same Armes, with 4. sons behind him, over whose heads is this in a scroule Pater Dei memento mei.

Behind them is the portraiture of a woman in a scarlet gown, with 4. daughters, having a scroule, over her head, in which is written: Fili Dei miserere mei.

And under them all this Inscriptoin: Orate pro bono statu Roberti Passet & Elisabethe uxoris sue.

In the fourth window on the same South side, is this coat; viz. Argent a Lyon rampant sable [Stapleton] empaling Massy, and under it the following Inscription.

Orate pro bono statu Roberti Passet & Elisabethe uxoris sue, qui hanc fenestram fieri fecerunt.

In one of the like windows on the North side are the portraitures of the same Walter Arden and Alianore his wife, kneeling, whose monument is in the Chancell; and in the same surcoats of Armes as thereupon are exprest. Over his head is this scroule, Iesu Fili Dei miserere mei. Over hers Pater Dei memento mei. And under them both, this written: Orate pro bono statu Walteri Arderne armigeri & Elianore uxoris eius.

On a stone fixed in the North Wall of the Chancell, is this Inscription.

Henry Williams Vicar once of this Church, and Parson of Aberfro in Anglice, lyeth here under, who died Anno 1603. Febr. 14.
Quod sibi quisq; ferit presentis tempore vita,

On the same side of this Chancell, there is a very noble Monument for Sir Edward Devereux Kt. and Baronet (grandfather to the now Vicount Hereford) erected by his Lady, who survived him; the Figure whereof I have here omitted, for the reasons exprest in my Preface, but have added the Epitaph.

Here lyeth Sir Edward Devereux of Castle-Bromwich Knight and Baronet, youngest son of Walter Lord Ferrers of Chartley, and Viscount Hereford, by Margaret his second wife, daughter of Robert Garnish of Kenton Hall in Com. Suff. Esquire; who married Katherine eldest daughter of Edward Arden of Park-Hall Esquire, by whom he had issue five sons and four daughters, Sir Walter Knight and Baronet, William, George, Edward, and Henry; Margaret, Anne, Howard and Grace. Sir Walter married Eliz. daughter and heir of Robert Bayspole of Nechells.

OF this place there is no mention at all in the Conqueror's Survey, forasmuch as it was then involved with Aston; but the name thereof, scil. pechells, or echells, (for it is indifferently written) discovereth it to have been a Wood at first, echel signifying the same in the German language (whereof our Saxon is a branch) as Quercus in the Latine. I am of opinion that one of the old Barons of Dudley granted it, originally, unto one of the Family of Parles, together with Hannetworth (now called Hansworth) in Com. Staff. For I find* that Osbert de Parles had a Bastard son called Reynald de Affeles, or, whom he conferred the inheritance of all his lands here in Affells, or pechells.

x Ex vet. membr. penes T. Holt, eq. aur. & Bar.

Which Reynald had issue Simon, and he three daughters that were his heirs, with the eldest of whom he gave these lands of pechells to Sir Robert de Handsacre Knight, in frank marriage; but she dying without issue, they came to Alice her neice, then the wife of Sir George de Castell Knight; which Alice in her widowhood, sc. 4 E. 3. in consideration of xl li. of silver, past away all her interest in this Mannour unto Simon del Holt of Birmingham, and his heirs, whose posteritie have continued Lords thereof ever since; Sir Thomas Holt now of Aston Knight and Baronet, being the present owner thereof Anno scil. 1640.

y Ex autog. penes eund. T. H.

But it hath been long since totally depopulated, though antiently it was a pretty Village, as by severall instances, might be shewed: for in 34 E. 3. Sir Thomas de Arden Knight, had a mansion here, as appears by a Licence² granted to him from Robert de Stretton then Bishop of this Diocess, to have a private Oratorie or Chapell, therein, for himself and his own Family. It seems that the same Philip de Aylesbury, of whom I have made mention in Dudston, had also some interest here in R. 2. time; for he then wrote^a himself Dominus de Dudston & de pechells; but of what extent it was, I cannot say: all which was^b passed by Sir William de Bishopsdon in 2 H. 5. unto Rich. de Clodhale (of Saltley) and his heirs, being said to have sometime belong'd unto the same Philip de Aylesbury. In 33. H. 6. there was a^c Fine levied betwixt Thomas Waldeyve, and William Leycroft, Plaintiffs, and Robert Danvers, Henry Fillongley, and John Holt Esquire, deforciant, of this

Mannour (for by that name it then passed) by which it seemeth, that the inheritance thereof became vested in the before specified Thomas Waldeyve; perhaps to the use of the same John Holt and his heirs; for in 20 H. 8. Thomas Holt, who then wrote himself de medio Templo London generosus, was^d owner thereof, which Thomas was grandfather to Sir Thomas above mentioned.

Dudston.

OF this Hamlet there is now no more left than the Mannour-house; but by the name, I should judge it to be a Village of great antiquitie, and so called from Dodo or Dud, whence Dudley (doubtlesse) had the appellation. But till E. 1. time, I have not found any mention of it in Record, in regard it was involved with Aston, and so came to Sir Thomas de Erdington, as a member thereof, though it be not particularly named: for it is evident^e that Henry de Erdington (great grandchild to the said Sir Thomas) did his fealtie to Joane Botetourt Lady of Woelep, as coheir to Someri Baron of Dudley, on S. Mark's day 17 E. 2. for this place, together with Aston; mention being made of their tenure by a pair of gilt Spurs, or six pence, as in the originall grant of Aston may be seen, which Sir Henry (for he was afterwards a Knight) granted^f it by the name of Manerium de Dudston to Thomas de Maidenhache and his heirs, about the beginning of E. 1. time; who had Free warren^g in all his demesne lands here, together with Aston, as by the King's grant thereof in 14 E. 1. appeareth: but having severall daughters and heirs (as in Aston is shewed) this, inter alia, was allotted^h, as a member of Aston, unto Sibill the wife of Adam de Grymesarve; by means whereof it cameⁱ to John de Grymesarve their son and heir, who^k sold it unto John atte Holt in 38 E. 3. for xl. marks: From which John it is descended, as the Pedegree in Aston manifesteth, unto Sir Thomas Holt now of Aston, Knight and Baronet, the present Lord thereof; and was his principall seat, till he had built Aston house.

But notwithstanding the Mannour thus fixed in the Familie of Holt, there was a considerable part of this Village antiently posselt by the Aylesburies (of whom I have spoke in Edston) for I finde^l that Roger de Aylesbury stiled himself Dominus de Dodestone in 5 E. 2. so also did^m Philip de Aylesbury in 10 R. 2. yet when or how it past from Aylesbury, I have not seen: but in 2 H. 5. Sir William de Bishopsdon Knight, granted to Richard de Clodhale all the lands and tenements lying here, which had formerly belong'd to the before specified Philip de Aylesbury; after which I have not met with farther mention of them.

Deretend.

THIS place (antiently writtenⁿ Durp-patehend) though it be within the Parish of Aston, is parcell of the Lordship of Birmingham; so that of it self there is nothing farther memorable than a certain Chapell, erected^o about the beginning of King Ric. the second's time; wherein by an Agreement

ment^v made 13. Junii Anno 1381. (4 R. 2.) betwixt the Monks of Wyke in right of their Restorie of Alton before specified, Richard Shoben-hale then Vicar of Alton, and Sir John Botetourt Knight, Patron of the said Priorie of Wyke, on the one part: And Sir John Birmingham Kc. Lord of this Hamlet, Geffrey Boteler, Robert Greene, and others, Inhabitants here and in Worsley, on the other part; by the consent of Robert de Stretton then Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, the said Inhabitants of these two Hamlets, partly in respect of the danger by floods, especially in Winter-time, and their great distance from the said mother-Church of Alton; and partly that their Children might not want Baptisme, in case of necessity, there should be a Font in the said Chapell, and that they might have libertie to find at their own proper costs, a fitting Priest to celebrate divine Service therein, as also for Churching of women. Provided that the same Inhabitants should repaire to the said Mother-Church of Alton, on Easter-day, Christmase-day, All-Hallow-day, and the days of the Dedication of the said Church, scil. S. Peter & S. Paul, hapning next after the Feasts of the Nativity of S. John Baptist, and Purification of the blessed Virgin; then and there to render and pay to God and the said Parish Church, all their Tithes, great and small, with Oblations, in such sort as they had anciently used, and were of right to do to the same Church. Which Priest so serving in this Chapell, was by the before specified Agreement in case the Vicar of Alton for the time being, or his Parochiall Priest could not attend it, to visit the sicke of these two Hamlets, and to administer unto them, as also to confesse and absolve them, so as they should thrive themselves once a yeare to the said Vicar of Alton, or his Parochiall Priest, as of right they ought.

After which, viz. in 6 R. 2. did William Geffen, Thoms Holden, Robert of the Greene, Richard Bene, Thomas de Belne, and John Smyth obtain License^t of the King to give certain lands of x. marks yearly value, and lying within the said Parish of Alton, for the finding of a Priest to celebrate divine Service daily in this Chapell. But in 37 H. 8. were the possessions, lying in Worsley, Dutton, Battle, and Bermlugham, which belong'd thereunto, seized^t upon as Chantrye lands, and then valued^t at xiii li. xix d. per annum, out of which two Priests, officiating in the said Parish Church of Alton, had^u x li. per an. betwixt them.

Bordsley.

This being originally a member of Alton, and therewith involved at the time of the Conqueror's Survey, descended to the Someris, Barons of Dudley, by the heir female of Paganell, as the Castle of Dudley (which was part of William Fitz-Anselm's possessions, together with Alton) did: yet have I not seen it particularly mentioned in any Record till H. 3. time; but then was it certified^w to be in the Earl of Chester's hands, who had obtained^x, the Wardship of the son and heir to William Percival de Someri (whose posterity were onely surnamed Someri) And afterwards scil. in 1 E. 1. being assigned^y to Anabill the widow of Roger de Someri, as part of her Dower, was valued^z at xviii li. xv s. v d. q. having a Leet, which the Barons of Dudley anciently held here, extending into Bromwycch parva, Bromwycch magna, Dobeston, Saluthep, Cheells, Overton, and Crdington, as by the Claim^a of Roger de Someri in 13 E. 1. appears: At which time it was also found, that three Rodmen of Wiltton (a Hamlet likewise in the same Parish) did usually, by turnes, do suit to the King's Hundred-Court of Hemlingford, from three weeks to three weeks, for all those Hamlets except Crdington; but that all the Freeholders of Crdington did personally perform their suit to the said Hundred from three weeks to three weeks, or pay a Fine of xix d. And that all the said Hamlets before specified, together with Crdington, used to pay for the Shiriffs Aid xxxv s. To the Leet a mark; and for Withe xi d. q. but that the King was in possession of the Weyfs.

Which Roger de Someri had issue Roger, upon whose death in 19 E. 1. the extent of what he had here, was thus certified^b; viz. a certain Grange, with an Oxe-house, Lxi. acres of land in demein; three Meadows, scil. one lying here, another in Dobeston, and the third at Olton; as also a certain proportion of pasture ground: That he had likewise xvi. Customarie Tenants, which held in Villenage six yard land and a half, with a fourth part, and ten Acres, paying Lx s. xi d. ob. per an. And four Freeholders, who held in Socage four Messuages, and four half yard lands, paying yearly xxxvi s. x d. q. doing suit of Court, as also giving Heriot and Relief, as it should happen. And moreover, that besides these, there were Lxxviii. Freeholders, that held lands, without Houses, newly reduced to tillage, paying yearly xii li. xv s. iii d. q. and performing two appearances in the year, unto the Court held at this place. All which being put together, amounted^c to xxvii li. xii s. ii d. per annum, whereof v li. viii s. v d. ob. was assigned^d towards the Dower of Agnes his widow.

But by the constant possession, which the Barons of Dudley had of this Lordship, it came, at length, to be reputed^e as a member of Dudley; and was therefore after the death of John de Someri in 16 E. 2. certified^f to be held of the King in Capite, as part of that Baronie, and so came to Joane one^g of his two sisters and coheirs, then the wife of Thomas de Botetourt; and by her death in 12 E. 3. to John de Botetourt her son and heir, a great Baron^h in those dayes (together with Willelmus in Com. But whether the said Lord Dudley survived them, and so became actually possessor of it, I cannot tell;
 for in 11 H. 7. there was a Fine^y levied thereof
 by Edward, Bishop of Chichester, Sir Thomas Or-

 with Warrantie against the heirs of the same Anne.
 Which Sir Thomas Ormund was brother to James

 shewed; and left issue two daughters his heirs;
 viz. ^z Margaret the wife of Sir William Bullein,
 and Anne married to Sir James St Leger Knight;

HAVING thus traced down the succession of

 and by the Inquis. taken after the death of Sir John

 suage, and three Carucates of land; all which hath been^e, and is to this day still possessor by the owners

Saltley.

THIS place also having been originally a member of Atton, is involved therewith in the Con-queror's Survey; and was soon after granted, by the then possessor of Dudley-Castle, unto the Ancestor of Henry de Rokeby, to hold by the fifth part of a Knight's fee, as the Confirmation^e thereof made unto the same Henry and his heirs by Gervase Pa- ganell Lord of Dudley, in H. 2. time, doth manifest; wherein it is written Saluthelep. From which Henry descended Ranulph de Rokeby, whose daughter and heir Annabill married unto Sir John Goband Knight, as in Rokeby appeareth, whereby the inheritance hereof came to the same
Sir John Goband, who in 16 E. 2. was certified^f to hold it of John de Someri (Baron of Dudley) then newly deceased, by the said service of the fifth part of a Knight's Fee. Which Sir John Goband and Annabill in 5 E. 3. granted^g it unto Walter de Clodshale, and Richard his son, to hold during the lives of them the said Walter and Richard, for the Rent of x li. per annum sterling; but afterwards to returne unto the said Sir John and Annabill, and the heirs of Annabill.

Of this Annabill I find, that surviving her said husband, and afterwards being wedded^h to John Brown of Wurbach in Com. Leic. she past away the inheritance thereof to the before specified Walter and Richard de Clodshale in 17 E. 3. For the better confirmation of which title, John the son and heir to the above mentioned Sir John Goband and An-

 and the heirs of Richard, all the right and claim that he could pretend thereto, as by the

Martin, there in Birmingham, for one Priest to celebrate divine Service daily thereat, for the souls of him the said Walter, and Agnes his wife, their Ancestors and successors, with all the faithful deceased.

Of the same Walter, and Richard his son, I further findⁿ, that being, by the Commissioners of Array in this Countie 21 E. 3. charged with two Archers, they were abated one of them, paying xli s. for the expences of that one: as also that the said Richard, for the health of his soul and the soul of Alice his wife, about the same time, added five Messuages, x. acres of land, and x s. Rent to the Chantry before specified: and moreover, that in 32 E. 3. he paid a Fine^o of x li. for his Parson, in respect he came not in, to receive the Order of Knighthood, upon Proclamation made that all such as were posselt of lands or Rents to the value of xli s. should appear for that purpose. And likewise, that in 34 E. 3. he was in Commission^p for the assessing and collecting of a xvth. and Tenth then granted to the King in Parliament, and the same year had a speciall License^a granted to him from Robert de Stretton, then Bishop of Cobentre and Lichfield, dated 3. Cal. Jan. for an Oratorie or Chapell in his House here at Saltley: and lastly that he bore for his Armes per pale indented, with certain Martlets in the place of a border, on the dexter part of his shield, as appears by his Seal^r; which (doubtlesse) was in reference to the tenure of his ancient lands from the Berminghams, whose coat it did so nearly resemble.

But the last of the male line, that had to do here, was Richard (grandchild to the said Ric.) who in 4 H. 4. had the title of Esquire; for so he writes^t himself in a Bond for payment of 500 li. to William de Bermingham Esquire. Betwixt this Richard and the same William de Bermingham was there a suit^t at Law touching the advowson of the Chantry, before specified, founded by Walter de Clodhale, his Ancestor, in the Church of Birmingham; in which suit he prevailedⁿ and accordingly presented thereto in 5 H. 4. In 7 H. 4. he was one^w of those gentlemen of note in this Countie Arma portantibus de Armis antiquis (as the words of the Writ are) who had summons to attend the King in their proper persons for defence of the Realm: and in 4 H. 6. underwent the office of Sheriff^x for this Countie and Leicestershire. By his Testament^r bearing date at Eggeston 7 Maii Anno 1428. (6 H. 6.) he bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Church of Birmingham, within his own proper Chapell of our Lady, constituting the Duke of Bedford (whom he there termes his honourable Lord) one of his Executors, and departed this life the same year, as appears by the Probate thereof. The Armes which this Richard bore, did much differ from his Grandfathers, being two Bars nebule betwixt six Estoiles, as his Seal^r manifesteth; which coat (I believe) he assumed for the allusion that it hath to his name, scil. the representation of Clouds to Clodhale; for it was a common usage in ancient time, where they could hit upon any thing, that founded neer or like to the name, to bear it in their Armes, as by a multitude of instances might be demonstrated. But dying without issue male, Elizabeth^a his daughter became heir to this Mannour, as also to that of Pebores in Com. Wigorn. and other lands, who being wedded^b to Robert Arden of Park-Hall Esquire, brought them to that Family wherein they continue till this present, Anno scil. 1640.

Ward end, alias Little Bromwich.

This place, heretofore called Little-Bromwich, was at first, either a member of Castle-Bromwich, or of Aston, which contained both: But the ancientest mention I finde of it, is in 13 E. 1. where it appears^c that one John de Bradewell had a suit for lands therein, with Walter de Eylesbury Steward to Roger de Someri, Baron of Dudley, and recovered them; forasmuch as it appeared, that the said Walter was born before matrimony betwixt his Father and mother. Which John in 19 E. 1. was certified^d to hold three yard land here, of the said Baron, by the xth. part of a Knight's fee. But from that time till 3 H. 8. that there was a^e Fine levied thereof, betwixt Edward Belknap Esquire, and others plaintiffs; and Richard Wodshawe and othes Deforc. I have seen little of this Mannour. After which it was not long, ere that one John Bonde,^f a wealthy Clothier in Cobentre and Merchant of the Staple, posselt it; who bearing a good affection thereto, by the consent of Geffrey Blythe then Bishop of the Dioces, as also of the Prior and Convent of Witkford, Rectors of the Parish Church of Aston, and Richard Stich then Vicar there,^g built a Chapell here, to the honour of the blessed Virgin and S^t Margaret, for the benefit of the Inhabitants of this Hamlet; in respect that the distance from hence to the said parish Church was such, as that many times, by reason of floods they could not repaire unto it.

And for the maintenance of a Priest to perform divine Service therein, and likewise support of the ornaments belonging thereto, obtained a grant from the said Vicar, with the consent of the before specified Monks of Witkford, and the Bishop, of all Oblations, aswell in money as others things, which should happen to be there made: as also that it should be lawfull for him the said John Bonde, his heirs and assignes, to retain all his own Tithes, aswell arising out of his Park here at Ward end, as out of a certain meadow commonly called Grith meadow, and belonging of right to the Vicars of Aston, paying unto the said Vicar and his successors, in the same Church of Aston, the summe of vi s. viii d. of lawfull English money for ever, as by the publique Instrument of the said Vicar, bearing date at Aston aforesaid 23. Feb. Anno 1516. (8 H. 8.) appeareth. Which John Bonde^h made a small Park here, of xxx. acres, in 6 H. 8. and stored it with Deer; and left issueⁱ Thomas Bonde, and he severall daughters and coheirs, whereof Margaret, being the wife^k of Edward Kynardesley, son^l to John Kynardesley of Wattlesford in Com. Derb. brought this Mannour to that Family, wherein it still continues.

Castle Bromwich.

THAT this place had its first denomination from the Broome, that the soile (being of a sandy disposition) naturally produceth, and the crooke of the River, which our Ancestors used to call a Welch, or Wilk, there is likelihood enough. Neither do I doubt, but that originally it was a member of Afen, and so disposed of by some one of the old Barons of Dudley unto him, who in respect of his residence here, had the surname of Bromwich. Of these, the first I find mentioned in Record, ^m is Wido de Bromwicz in 15 H. 2. and next unto him Alande Bromwich in 31 H. 2. whose son Thomas granted ^o to the Canons of Leicester certain Common of Pasture in Berwode, on the other side the River. Besides which Thomas there was one Henry de Bromwich; but whether he was also son to Alm, I am not sure. I am of opinion that this Henry is he, who in 54 H. 3. is called ^p Henricus del Chastel de Bromwicz; by reason that he had his residence at a little Pile or Castle here, situate upon the brow of the Hill on the Southern bank of Tame, as by the Vestigia thereof, yet remaining, may appear: from which Castle I suppose that the Family surnamed de Castello, whereof I have spoke in Wiltshire, took their surname.

Of Robert son to the same Henry de Bromwicz, I find ^a, that in 49 H. 3. he was one of the Collectors of the revenues arising out of those lands within this Hundred of Wenlingford, which escheated to the King by the overthrow of them that were vanquished in the battail of Evesham, fighting on the Barons part; and that he had issue Anselm de Bromwich, who in 19 E. 1. was certified ^r to hold of Roger de Someri (then Baron of Dudley) one hide of land in Woddy-Bromwich by the six part of a Knights fee; for at that time the severall parts of this Hamlet were distinguished by the name of Woddy-Bromwich, Little-Bromwich, and Castle-Bromwich, Henry de Castello then holding in Castle-Bromwich, one yard land by the xxxiith part of a Knights fee. As also that John Lovell, at that time, held ^f of the said Roger de Someri, a certain Park here at Bromwich, paying ii s. per annum at Michaelmasse, for all services: And that Thomas de Bromwich held likewise one yard land by the service of the xxiith part of a Knights fee; both which I presume to be meant of Castle-Bromwich.

To this Anselm succeeded Isabell his grandchild and heir, who in 18 E. 3. was wedded to William de Peto, a younger son of William de Peto; at which time this Mannour of Castle-Bromwich, wherein the said Anselm reserved ^u an estate to himself for terme of life, was settled upon the same William and Isabell, and the heirs of their two bodies lawfully begotten: but she, having no issue by him, afterwards married to Sir John de la Roche Knight, by whom she had divers Children; whereupon, being desirous that this Mannour, of her so antient inheritance, might remain to her posterity, she joyned with her said husband in the levying of a Fine ^w in 48 E. 3. whereby, reserving their own lives therein, they entailed it upon John their son, and the issue male of his body, with remainder to Roger, Thomas, and William, their younger children, successively; and for default of issue by them, to the heirs generall of their two bodies, and for lack of such issue to the right heirs of the same Isabell.

Of which sons, John and Roger died young, so that the inheritance devolved to Thomas, who by the death of Margaret wife of Sir Roger de Clarindon Knight, without issue, came to possess a ^x fair part of the Barony of Tyllaghlar in Ireland, by rightfull descent (as the Pedegree ^y before inserted sheweth.) Which Thomas had issue onely two daughters, betwixt whom his lands were divided, this Mannour falling to Elene the wife ^z of Sir Edmund Ferrers of Chartley Knight, and so descended unto William Lord Ferrers of Chartley her son and heir, who died ^b seized thereof in 28 H. 6. leaving Anne his daughter and heir then the wife ^c of Walter Devereux Esquire; which Walter in 2 E. 4. (and so afterwards during that King's regn, and in 1 R. 3.) was summoned ^a to Parliament amongst the Barons, by the name of Walter Devereux de Ferrers Chivalier: whose grandchild Walter Vicount Hereford, settled it upon Edward his son by a second wife, and his heirs: which Edward built a fair House of brick, here, wherein he resided; and being created Baronet 25 Nov. 10 Jac. departed this life 22 Sept. in 30th of that King's reign, leaving Sir Walter Devereux his son and heir, now Lord of this Mannour, Anne soil. 1640.

THIS having been the chief seat of the Ardens for near CCC. years last past, had in 38 E. 3. the name of Park-Hall, being situate in haya de Bromwich, the House (as it should seem by an ancient moat) then standing at the top of the hill, Southwards from the River. But in 2 H. 5. it was called Munerium de Park-Hall. As a member of Bromwich it did originally belong to the old Barons of Dudley, for so the tenure thereof implies: but when it came to the Ardens, or was by them impark't, I have not yet discovered. In 2 H. 8. I find that the Park was enlarged with Cx. acres of Wood and Pasture, as also with x. acres of arable ground, by John Arden Esquire; by which it seems that the extent of it before, was not great: And that afterwards, scil. in 32 H. 8. it was called Munerium de la Logge, alias Park-Hall. And here should I, according to my accustomed methode, speak historically of the Ardens; but in regard that Curdwoth, and Pinwoth have been of their inheritance, even from the Norman Conquest, I have thought it more proper to refer what I have to say of that ancient Family, thither.

Water Orton.

THIS little village hath its name from the situation, standing neer the River, and upon such an ascent. Before 32 H. 6. I have not found it termed a Mannour; but then by an Inquisition taken after the death of Raph de Arden, it was so reputed, coming to the same Raph by the marriage of Eliz. the daughter and heir of Richard de Clodhale; to whose posteritie it still continues. That it was originally, as a member of Aston, belonging to the old Barons of Dudley, there is no cause to doubt, considering that it hath so anciently been within the view of their Leet held at Wodstap, for all the Hamlets in Aston parish; and that it appears to have been held as Salstap was (the grant whereof from Gervase Paganell I have already vouched:) But that the Ardens had some lands therein, long before the match with Clodhale's heir, is as evident.

There is, besides this, another Mannour (at least in reputation) within the precincts of this Hamlet; concerning which, there was a Fine levied betwixt Francis Morgan and others Plantiffs, and Richard Tate, and others deforc. in 6 E. 6. (before which time I have not seen any mention of it) and whereof in 43 Eliz. Will. Tate, son of Barth. Tate was posselt: At which time I find it certified to be held of Ardens Mannour before mentioned.

The Inhabitants of this Village, being within the parish of Aston, did antiently use to hear divine Service in the Chapel of Bromwich: but in 20 E. 3. having built one of their own, they obtained Licence from Roger Northburgh then Bishop of Cobentre and Lichfield, for a Priest to performe the like service therein, for one year; provided that they should not retain any thing of their dues from the Vicar of Aston: which Licence bears date at Wepwood 2 Aug. Anno 1346.

For the antiquity of the Bridge, here, I cannot speak positively; but in 37 H. 6. I find, that Reginald Bowlers, then Bishop of this Dioces, taking into his consideration, that it was out of repair, granted a speciall Indulgence of xl. days, bearing date 24. Sept. to all the Inhabitants of Cobentre-Archdeaconry, who should within the space of three years next following, charitably contribute to the amendment thereof. But whether that Bridge was then of stone or not, I am not sure; for there is a tradition, that John Harman (alias Vesly) Bishop of Exeter in H. 8. time, built it and Curdwoth bridge, at his own Charges; causing the stone, for that purpose, to be brought from the old Mannour-House of Sutton: of which Bishop I shall say more when I come to that place.

Witton.

THIS was the freehold of one Staunchel before the Norman invasion; but afterwards, being disposed of, with Aston, to William Fitz Asculfe, the same Staunchel became Tenant to this new Lord (as generally the native English were constrain'd to do,) so that at the time of the Conqueror's Survey, it was certified with the rest of Fitz Asculfe's lands in this Countie; and containing one hide, was valued at xx s. in which Record it is written Witton. But the next possessor thereof, afterwards, that I can yet discover, was Andrew de Witton, who held it in 25 H. 3. (being the first, perhaps, that became enfeoffed thereof by one of the Barons of Dudley) at which time there was some dispute betwixt the same Andrew, and and William de Pyrie touching the bounds betwixt this Lordship, and that of Pyrie in Staffordshire; whereupon the King directed his Precept " to the Sheriff of this Countie, to bring with him twelve discreet and lawfull Knights of Staffordshire, having done the like to the Shiriff of Staffordshire; so that, upon Perambulation made, there might be certain metes and bounds exactly set forth betwixt them, which were to be certified to the King's Justices at the next Assize: and there it is written Wilton, which plainly shews, that though it be vulgarly pronounced Wiltton, the originall occasion of its name was from the situat on that it hath so near the bent of the River.

The next mention I find of it, is in 19 E. 1. upon the death of Roger de Someri Lord of Dudley; where it appears " that John the son of Will. Dyxle held it of the same Roger by the eighth part of a Knight's fee. Which John had issue John, who wrote " himself Dominus de Wilton, in 18 E. 2. But in these Dixleys it continued not much longer: for in 14 E. 3. did Sarra the widow of the said John de Dixle, and John the son of John de Barre the elder, passe " away the whole Mannour, excepting C. acres of Pasture and xl s. Rent, to Richard the son of Richard de Pyrie, and his heirs. To whom succeeded " Philip de Pyrie, whose widow Marion held " it in 35 E. 3. And in " 47 E. 3. one William de la Hay with Marion his wife: which Marion, was (in all probabilitie) daughter and heir to the said Philip: From whom, with Marion his daughter and heir, it devolved to " Thomas East, then Yeoman " of the Crown, who in 5 H. 6. enjoy'd " it. Which Thomas had issue " Thomas, and he Henry East " of Hay-Hall in Wardley Com. Wigorn. that sold " it to John Bond a rich Draper in Cobentre (of whom in Ward end I have made mention) who having 3. daughters and heirs, whereof Alice was married to Michaell Joyner of Cobentre, this by Partition " fell to her; and by her and her said husband was sold " in 15 Eliz. to Edward Kynardfley Esquire, that had married Margaret one of the other sisters. From which Edward it descended to John his son and heir; who having first pass " away the Feesmes to sundry persons, in 18 Jac. aliened " the Mannour unto William Booth Esquire, an utter Barister of the Middle Temple (descended by a younger son from the Booths of Cheshire, as I have heard) whose son and heir William now enjoys it, being a Gentleman so well affected to Antiquities, that by his judicious observation of sundry notable things concerning this part of the Countie, which with much freencle he hath imparted toward this present work, he deserves a better acknowledgment from me, than by a few words can be expressed.

Erdington.

Before the Norman Invasion, Edwine Earl of Merca was owner of this town; but afterwards, through the Conqueror's favour, did the same William Fitz Ausculf, of whom I have spoke in Aston, possesse it. By the generall Survey " , then taken, it was estimated at three hides, valued at xxx s. having a Mill rated at iii s. and woods containing one mile in length, & half a mile in breadth. As for the name, I am of opinion that it originally proceeded from some antient possessor of it in the Saxon's time; perhaps Harding, for in Domesday-book, it is written Hardintone. Till King Stephan's, or the beginning of H. 2. time, certain it is, that the successors of the above mentioned William Fitz Ausculf, in the Barony of Dudley, continued owners of this place; but then was it granted " to Henry surnamed de Erdinton, in respect of his residence here, by Gervase Paganell (one of those Barons) to hold by the service of a Knights fee: To whose descendants, in the male line, it continued till after the beginning of ward the fourth's reign; and being their principall seat, was strongly fortified with a large double moat, on the front and two other sides thereof; having the River for its better defence on the back part; within which moat was also an antient Chapell peculiar to the House, as by its ruines may be seen,

To which Henry succeeded William " , and to William, Thomas de Erdinton, who in 6 Joh. had the Shirifalty " of Salop. and Staffordshires: And at that time a Chapell " within his Mannour-house here at Erdington, concerning which there grew a difference betwixt the then Parson of Aston and him, which was at length thus determined, viz. that the Parson should receive from the said Thomas, the Tithe of all his profit arising out of Aston Mill, and he the said Thomas to make Oath that the mother Church of Aston should not have any detriment in Tithes or Oblations in respect thereof; the Priest there serving, promising, faithfully as much: As also that on the principall Festivalls, he the said Thomas, with his wife, children and Family, should repaire thither, except there there were good cause to the contrary, and especially upon the Feast day of S. Peter and Paul, bringing with him three Tapers of wax, weighing two pounds.

This Thomas was Chamberlain to King John, and received many great favours from him. In the eight of his reign he had the Mannours of Kington and Porton, and in 14. the Lordships of Welinton and Shalbury, in Shropshire, bestowed on him by that King; with whom he had so much trust, that the next year following, he, with Raph Fitz Nicholas (of whom in Stretton-Baskerville I have made some mention) was privately sent Embassador to Admiral Marmelius great King of Aphasia, Parochia, and Spain, to let him know, that he would willingly deliver up this Kingdom, to hold of him by a certain Tribute, as also forsake the Christian Religion and cleave to the Law of Mahomet, in case he might have assistance from him; to such a desperate condition was he exposed by his rebellious Nobility. Upon his return from which Embassie, I find that he compounded with Stephen de Staunton and Robert de Staunton, son and heir to the said Stephen, for their title to the Honour of Montgomery, and the Mannours of Badmunsfeld, Pulton, Aton, and Libham, belonging thereto; and had the King's confirmation thereupon. It seems that he had some title to that Honour, by descent from Baldwin de Bollers, unto whom King H. 1. gave it with Sibill de False his neice, being sprung from the said Baldwin by his second wife.

In 16 Joh. he purchased the wardship and marriage of the son and heir to William Fitz Alan (a great Baron in Shropshire) with purpose to marry his daughter Mary unto him, which was accordingly effected; in consideration whereof he was to pay five thousand marks; for the performance whereof, Ranulph Earl of Chester, and severall other of the great Nobilitie became his sureties. And in 17. Joh. had command from the King to hasten with some of his forces unto Lamworth Castle, in this Countie, to take out of it all the Prisoners, Horie, Armes, and amunition therein, and to pull it down to the ground. After which ere long, scil. in 2. H. 3. he died, whereupon this Lordship, together with Aton, was (inter alia) assigned unto Roese de Cokefeld his widow, for her maintenance, untill such time as her dowie should be set forth: leaving Giles his son and heir, of whom in 14. H. 3. the King accepted of Cs. per annum, to be payd into his Exchequer, till all his Father's debts were run up, or that the said King should please to require them. From the 34. to the 51. of which King's reign, this Giles was a Justice of Assize in this Countie: He was also a Benefactor to the Canons of S. Thomas juxta Stafford; for it appears by a speciall Instrument under their Covent Seal, that they granted to him, the admittance of a Canon into their Monasterie, upon his Presentation, and his heirs successively, to celebrate divine service there, at the Altar of S. Thomas the Martyr, for the health of his soul, as also for the souls of his Father, Mother, and Ancestors: And likewise, that at the celebration of the Masse of our Lady, in the Collect for the dead, the name of the said Giles should be always remembred, and after his decease his name registred in the Martyrologe; and his Aniversary duely kept, in as ample manner as for their Patron.

To the Monks of Lichfeld in Buckinghamshire, had he likewise been a friend, as may appear by their assignation of a Monk of that Covent, at their own proper costs, to sing for his soul, and the souls of his parents, within that Monasterie. To which Giles succeeded Henry his son and heir, who in 5. E. 1. was of the retinue unto William de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick in the Warrs of Wales, and made a Knight in that expedition, as I think; for in 7. E. 1. he had that title. This Henry married Maud daughter of Roger de Someri (Baron of Dudley) one of the coheirs of Nichola, daughter and coheir to Hugh de Albini Earl of Arundel; for which respect (as 'tis most probable) he bore for his Armes Azure two Lions passant Or, and sometimes with a border of Besants, having so near a resemblance to the Coat of Someri (scil. Or two Lions passant Azure.) He also, for the health of his soul, and the soul of her the said Maud, gave to the Nuns of Catesby in Com. Northampton, towards supporting the charge of their Habits, and relief of poor people, the perpetuall patronage of the Church at Perdley in Warwickshire, to the intent that the fruits of the same Church should be appropriated to their use: in consideration whereof the said Nuns covenanted with him, that so soon as they could obtain an appropriation thereof, they would thenceforth appoint one of the Canons of that their Monasterie, to celebrate divine Service daily to the worlds end, for the souls of him the said Henry and Maud, and of Giles de Erdinton his Father, with all their Ancestors and Successors: and likewise solemnly keep the Anniversaries of him the said Henry, and of the Lady Roese his sister; and lastly, after his decease, bury his body in the Chapell of S. Edmund before the Altar there, within the precincts of their Monasterie.

And departed this life in 10. E. 1. possessed of a fair estate in this Countie, so likewise in the Counties of Leicester, Salop. & Staff. then seized into the King's hands by reason of the minority of his heir: of which lands this Mannour of Erddington was (inter alia) assigned for the dowie of the before specified Maud his wife; who, shortly after, married to William de Biseild, without License from the King; whereupon she gave C li. Fine, for her Pardon, To this Henry de Erdinton succeeded Henry his son and heir, who doing his homage in 23. E. 1. had livery of his Father's lands, and in 30. E. 1. performing the like homage, had also livery of those lands which descended to him by inheritance from his mother, then deceased. This last mentioned Henry, in 3. E. 2. procured Walter Langton then Bishop of Cobentre and Lichfield, to ordain one John de Hull-Lemynton, a subdeacon, to celebrate divine Service within the private Chapell of his Mannour-house here at Erddinton; undertaking to settle the sum of Lx s. per an. for his maintenance, and to preserve the said Bishop indemnified therein. For his publique employments I find, that in 7. E. 2. he was constituted one of the Assessors and Receivers of a Fifteenth; as also a Commissioner for conservation of the Peace in this Countie: In 8. one of the Justices for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick: In 9. one of the Collectors of Scutage, in arrear to the King for the Warrs of Scotland, in 28. 31. and 34. years of his Father's reign. In which year likewise he was assigned to supervise, that both Men & Armes, in this Countie, were in a fit order and readiness, dineffe, according to the Statute of Winchester, for the Scotch expedition; being alsoⁱ constituted one of the Justices for the Gaol-delivery at Warwick, and^k conservation of the Peace.

In 11 E. 2. he was in Commission^l to enquire what persons had, or should retain any souldiers, Horse or Foot, or to make confederacies or private meetings within this Shire. From that time till^m 14 E. 2. he was again one of the Justices for the Gaol-delivery at Warwick, and in 17. of that Kings reign, he is in the listⁿ of those Knights and other men at Armes of this Countie, whose names were then certified into the Chancery. This is he (as I suppose) that built the South Ile to the Parish-Church of Aston, commonly called Erdingtons Chancel; for I find that in 12 E. 2. he gave a^o certain Rent seck of vid. per annum, to the maintenance of the Gutter betwixt the Church and it, in which grant he calls it, Nova Capella beata Maria de Aston; and by Joane his wife, one^p of the daughters and heirs unto Sir Thomas de Wolvey of Wolvey in this Countie, had^q issue Giles de Erdinton, who in 19 E. 3. had a^r Pardon for not appearing to receive the honour of Knight-hood before the Feast of S. Laurence the same year, according to the form of the King's Proclamation.

This Sir Giles in 20 E. 3. was^s in the Warrs of France (the King himself being there in person) being of the retinue of John de Montgomery in that service: and in 23 E. 3. in^t Commission for the levying of a xvth and Tenth in this Countie: So also in^u 26 E. 3. In^v 31 E. 3. he was a Knight, and bore^w for his Armes a bend over his Lions passant; and in 33 E. 3. one of the Commissioners, in this Countie, assigned for the asfraying of men, for defence of the Realm, in the King's absence; which is the last mention I have seen of him. To whom succeeded Thomas his son and heir xxviii. years of age at^y his Fathers death, viz. in 49 E. 3. who in 9 R. 2. served^z in the Parliament then held at Westminster, as one of the Knights for this Shire, being then a Knight, and^a departed this life in 18 R. 2. leaving issue Thomas his son and heir; who being^b 30. years of age at his mothers death, in 6 H. 4. was in 5 H. 5. in Commission^c for conservation of the Peace in this County; and in 8 H. 5. Shiriff^d of this Countie, and Leicestershire; but dyed in or before 12 H. 6. as appears^e by the respite given to Thomas his son and heir for doing his homage, being^f then thirty years of age. Which Thomas was Shiriff^g of these Counties the next year following, and one of^h the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament of 18 H. 6. about which time he had the honour of Knight-hood confer'd upon him; for in 19 H. 6. I find him so stiledⁱ, being then in Commission touching a loan of money to the King.

In 24 H. 6. he againe underwent the Office of Shiriff^k: In 28 H. 6. he was employed as a Commissioner^l for another Loan, and about^m levying the Subsidie then granted to the King in Parliament. Inⁿ 31 H. 6. again for a Loan. In 39 H. 6. as also in 1 E. 4. he was constituted^o one of the Justices of Peace in this Countie. But notwithstanding these employments of trust by King II. 6. he stood more cordially affected to the House of Bozke, as he manifested by declaring himself for Edward the fourth in his greatest Straights; for which faithfull service, in the second year of that King's reign, he had a grant^q of the Mannour of Bozke, already spoke of, for his own life, and the life of Joyce his wife; which Mannour was then eschaeted to the Crown by the attainder of James Earl of Wiltshire. This is the man that founded the Chantry in Aston Church 27 H. 6. (whereof I have there spoke) being the last of his Family that posselt this place. In 6 E. 4. he was joyn'd in^r Commission for the Peace in this Countie but what came of him I know not; for after^s 7 E. 4. I have seen no more mention of his name.

The next owner thereof (concerning whom I find any authoritie) was^t George Duke of Clarence, Sir William Harecourt Knight, being his Steward^u here in 11 E. 4. After which, ere long, it came to the hands of one Robert Wright, but by what means I know not; who in 11 H. 7. past it^v, together with the advouson of the Chantry of S. Mary Magdalen at Aston, unto Sir Reginald Bray Knight, (a great favorite to that King) which Sir Reginald having no issue, gave it, with other lands of great value, by his Testament^w, to Edmund his nephew, (scil. so^x to his brother John) Which Edmund in 21 H. 8. being then a Knight, sold^y it, together with the advouson of the said Chantry at Aston, to Francis Englefield Esquire, (afterwards Knight) from whom in 4 E. 6. it was purchased^z by Humphrey Dimock Esquire, who left issue Francis and Henry; after the death of which Francis the same Henry, as engaged for his Brothers debts, held^a it during his life, and resided here, being then a Knight; but dying unmarried, Sir Walter Earle of Charbozow in Dorsetshire posselt himself thereof, in right of Anne his wife, sole daughter and heir to the before specified Francis Dimock; and in 1 Car. sold it to Sir Walter Devereux Knight and Baronet. From which Sir Walter, it was purchased, in 23 Car. by Sir Thomas Holt of Aston before specified.

Pipe.

THIS Mannour, lying within the precincts of Erdington, was antiently posselt^a by one William Maunsel; who having his residence here, underwent the Office of^b Shiriff for this Countie and Leicestershire from 35. to the 40 H. 3. inclusive; and in 39 H. 3. was joyn'd in^c Commission with William Trussell, and Robert de Grendon for the finding out of certain notorious malefactors in this Countie: as also in^d 52. of the same King's reign for the Gaol-delivery at Warwick; and left issue one onely daughter and heir, called Emme, married to Sir Henry de Harecourt Knight, which Sir Henry had issue^e by her, one sole daughter named Margaret, whose wardship and marriage Richard de Pipe (having wedded her mother) purchased for an C. marks of John de Bishopston in 22 E. 1. and having so done, made her the wife^f of John de Pipe, his son, by a former venter: which John had issue by her divers Children, as the Descent^g in the following page sheweth.

Will.

By Richard, the eldest of which sons, it descended to Henry his son and heir; who by Ingrith his first wife, had many Children; all which, excepting Margerie, died¹ (with their mother) of the Pestilence, so that the same Henry afterwards wedded a second wife, scil. Maud, the daughter of George de Castello, of whom he had but little joy: for not long after the marriage, he found that she was^m with child by one John Boote his Father's servant, at which he took such grief, that he diedⁿ before the child was born, viz. on the Feast day of St. Laurence 36 E. 3. being then also seized^o of the Mannour of Boxton-Dasbenie in this Countie, as also of Staunton and Silbeston in Leicestershire. Whereupon John D. of Lancaster, of whom as in right of the Honour of Leicester the said Mannour of Boxton was held, seized^p the said Margerie, his surviving daughter, and John the son of Maud, so begotten as aforesaid, as his Wards; granting^q them to John de Stafford his Clerk; who to prevent that ill begotten child of enjoying the inheritance, made^r him a Canon Regular in the Priorie of Duston in Leicestershire, where he died; and afterwards, having procured the said Margerie to make a Feoffment unto one Peter Banaster a Priest, and others, of all her inheritance, to the use of him the said John and his heirs (which Feoffment bears date in 47 E. 3.) past^s it away to Will. Paylington Vicar of Radway and other Feoffees for the Abbot of Stoneley's use: whereupon they, by virtue of the King's License, as also of Sir John de Botetourt Lord of Meolep, chief Lord of the Fee, granted^t it to Thomas Pipe, then Abbot of Stoneley, and his successors for ever.

To which Thomas Pipe succeeded John de Colshull; who with the Covent of that House, in consideration of CC. marks, sold^u it to Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick; from whom descending to the succeeding Earls, it came in 3 H. 7. to the Crown, with the rest of their lands, as in Warwick I have shewed; where it rested till 36 H. 8. and then being past out to Sir Will. Staunford, one of the Justices of the King's Bench, was by him sold^v in 37 H. 8. to John Butler a Citizen of London, whose widow Catherine (afterwards married to Anth. Throgmorton) and Ric. Butler son and heir to the said Joh. Butler, aliened^x it to Edw. Holt Esquire in 11 Eliz. which Edw. sold it to Francis Dimock Esq. whose daughter and heir Anne, being married to Sir Walt. Earle, joynd with him in the sale of it, together with Erdrington already spoke of, unto Sir Walt. Devereux Kt. and Baronet; from whom it was also purchased by Sir Thomas Holt.

Within the Precincts of Erdrington there hath been a Familie of the Maffies (descended from those of Cheshire) which by marriage of an heir Female of Holden (as I have heard) first settled here in H. 6. time. Of these John was a Justice of Peace in this Countie towards the later end of H. 8. time, and had issue Hugh, and he John; which last John, wasting his estate by excess, was the last that had to do here.

Edgbaston.

Being past Erdrington, Tame is enlarged by a Brook called Rhea, from the British word Rhe, rheawor, or rhedg, as, I conceive, which significth to run or flow, and seemeth to have its originall from the Greek word ῥήσσω: which torrent hath its rise from the foot of the Lickey hills in Worcestershire, whence passing on with a swift course, it enters this Countie here at Edgbaston, whereof I am next to take notice. In the Conqueror's Survey^y this is certified to contain two hides, having Woods that extended to 3 furlongs in length, and half a mile in breadth; all which were valued at xxx s. but there it is written Celboldestone, (which shews that the denomination of it originally grew from some ancient possessor thereof in the Saxons time) Will. Fitz Ausculf (of whom in Aston I have spoke) being then the chief Lord of it; but one Drew held it immediatly of him. Whether this Drew were paternall ancestor to Henry surnamed de Eggbaldeston, of whom there is mention^z in H. 2. time, I cannot directly affirm, but 'tis likely enough that he might so be, though Henry was the first, that I find, who assumed it for his surname.

From which Henry descended another Henry, who being a Knight^a in 22 E. 1. gave for his Arms per pale indented Or and Azure, as by his Seal^b and other authorities appeareth. Which Coat hath not onely a resemblance in the colours, but somewhat in the very charge, to the ancient Armes of Birmingham (as in Birmingham may be seen) and therefore was doubtless assumed by the Family of Eggbaston in imitation of the other, in respect of their tenure^c of this Mannour by military service of the Berminghams, who held^d it over of the Barons of Dudley. To this Henry de Eggbaston succeeded Richard, whom I find intrusted with sundry great employments; viz. in^e 7. and^f 19 E. 2. as a Commissioner for assessing and collecting a Fifteenth in this Countie. In^g 11 for choosing of six hundred Foot-souldiers for the wars in Scotland; as also a Commissioner^h for the Gaol-delivery at Warwick; Inⁱ 15 for the choice of 1800 Foot souldiers in this County and Leicestershire, and likewise to conduct^k them to Newcastle upon Tyne to march against the Scots: and in 7 E. 3. for^l choosing and arraying of Foot-souldiers for another. Scotch expedition.

To him succeeded another Richard, who having in 2 R. 2. been employed, together with other persons of qualitie, for collecting a Subsidie in this Countie, left issue Isabell his daughter and heir, by whom this Lordship became transferred to the line of Midlemore, wherein it continueth to this day : which Family before that time, had their seat at Waplebozough, in the Parish of Studley, whereof I have already spoke. Of Thomas, who wedded the said Isabell, it appearsⁿ that he founded the Chantrie at Studley in 7 H. 4. (as I have there declared) and that he bore for his Arms partie per Cheveron Argent and sable, two Moor-Cocks in chief, proper, and for his Crest the like Moor-Cock upon a tuft of Reedy-grass, as by his Seal^o and the Church-windows at Studley appeareth. To whom succeeded John, who in 12 H. 6. amongst other the chief persons of note in this Countie, made Oath^p for the observance of certain Articles agreed on in the Parliament then held; and departing^q this life in 25 H. 6. was buried in the Church, here, at Eggebaston, leaving Richard his son and heir within age, who during such his minoritie, was in Ward^r to Sir Will. Bermingham Kt. which Richard bequeathing^s his body to be buried in the Church-yard at Eggebaston, and six pound of waxe, in Tapers, to be burnt about it on the day of his Funerall, left Margerie his wife Executrix^u of his said Testament, who in her widowhood, vowing^w Chastitie, built the fair Tower Steeple here, as the tradition is; and appointing^x her sepulture in this Church, directed that^{xl} should be bestowed at her Funerall, amongst Priests, Clerks, and poor people; as also that Sir John Baker, her own peculiar Priest, should sing therein for her, by the space of one whole year next after her decease, taking^{xl} s. wages, with meat, drink, and lodging.

And moreover that^y her Months mind should be kept, during the space of one year next after her decease. To Robert Midlemore, her God-son and Grandchild, she likewise gave^z certain lands by her purchased in Hales-Dwen, upon condition, that he and his heirs should find a Priest to be resident at Studley, there to sing for the soul of her late husband, and her own soul, with all their consanguinitie and affinitie, giving to the said Priest, and to every Priest, for his time being, in wages and salary, seven marks of lawfull money, yearly, for ever: After which, viz. in 22 H. 8. she departed^a this life. And now, having thus mentioned her Vow of Chastitie, to the end it may appear with what Ceremony the same was performed, I shall here exhibite the form of a Commission^b made by the Bishop of this Dioces, for the effecting thereof.

Johannes (&c.) Cov. & Lich. Episc. dilecto fratri nostro N. N. salutem, & fraternam in domino caritatem. Per partem honeste mulieris Margerix Midlemore relicte Ricardi Midlemore nostra Dioc. nobis est humiliter supplicatum; quod cum ipsa propter ipsius anima salutem uberioorem, ac viduitatis ordinem strictiorem, ad Dei honorem devotius ac celebrius servandum, votum continentie emittere, ac continentiam expresse & solemniter fovere; nec non in signum Viduitatis sue hujusmodi perpetuo, Deo dante, servando, Velum sive Peplum cum habitu hujusmodi Viduis, continentiam perpetuam expresse & solemniter profitentibus debitam & consuetam, seu ab eis communiter usitatam, sibi sumere, & ad vitam eam uti in castitate, ut asserit, devotè intendat, ipsam ad hujusmodi suum pium propositum admittere dignaremur: Nosque hujusmodi supplicationem piam atque devotam, ac Deo placabilem reputantes, aliasque multiplicis occupati, quo minus hujusmodi intentum prefata Margerix ad debitum valeamus perducere effectum; ad recipiendum igitur expresse & solemniter continentie Votum, & Castitatis promissum dicta Margerix; ac in signum hujusmodi continentie & castitatis promisso perpetuo servando, eandem Margeriam Velandam seu Peplandam habitumq. But I return to the before specified Robert. He was a Justice^c of Peace in this County, from 3. & 4. Ph. & M. and in 9 Eliz. high Shiriff^d of this Shire, single (for till then it with Leicester shire had but one Shiriff) referring what is to be said of his descendants, to the Pedegree before inserted.

THis being a place very eminent for most commodities made of Iron, was in Edw. the Confessor's days, the freehold of one Vluine, but after the Norman invasion Will. Fitz Ausculf (whose seat was the Castle of Dudley) posselt it, with divers other towns hereabouts. By the Conqueror's Survey I find it rated for 4. hides, having Woods of half a mile in length and 4. furlongs in breadth, all being then held of the same Williams, by one Richard, and valued at xx s. But that its appellation was originally taken from some ancient owner thereof, or planter here in the Saxons time, need not to be doubted, the last part of its name denoting a home or dwelling, and the former manifesting it self to be a proper name. Whether the before specified Richard were paternal ancestor to those who afterwards assumed this place for their surname, I cannot positively affirm; but certain it is, that the Paganells (who immediatly succeeded W. Fitz Ausculf in the enjoyment of Dudley Castle, and the substance of all other his lands) past it away, with other fair possessions, to be held by military service; for in 12 H. 2. amongst the Knights fees then certified by Gervase Paganell, it appears, that Peter de Bermingham held ix of him, de veteri seoffamentis; so that it is thereby clear, that the Father of the same Peter, whose name was William, if not his grandfather, became first enfeoffed thereof in H. 1. time.

This Peter, being Sewer to the said Gervase Paganell, had a Castle here, which stood scarce a Bow shoot from the Church, South-westwards; and by the grant of K. H. 2. as also of the same Gervase, in his presence, a weekly Mercate thereat upon the Thursday, with the Liberties of Thol, Theam, Soch, Sach, and Infangerthef, to him and his heirs: Which Mercate and priviledges, K. Ric. 1. afterwards confirmed to Will. de Bermingham, son and successor to the said Peter, who bore for his Arms Azure a bend lozengè Or, as by his seal and other authorities appeareth. Out of this Family (doubtless) came the Berminghams of Ireland, who settled there very antiently; perhaps in H. 2. dayes, upon the first Conquest of that Realm by Ric. Strongbow: for I find that in 2 H. 3. there was a controversie touching the title of certain lands there, betwixt Eva de Bermingham, mingham, then the wife of G. de Marisco Justice of Ireland, and Reginald Talbot; for justification whereof the said Reginald pretended a Charter made to him by K. John, at such time as he was Earl of Hereford: and it is also manifest, that there was one Peter de Bermingham, an eminent man there, about that time, forasmuch as K. H. 3. in 18. of his reign, made him a grant of .xx. marks per an. to be received out of the Exchequer at Dublin, for his support in his service.

But I must not here stand to trace down the descent of that Family in Ireland, it being besides my business; and therefore shall pass it by,

with this onely note^c, that in 12 E. 2. when Edward de Brus raised a rebellion in those parts, and caused himself to be crowned King of Ireland, through the singular valour and prudent conduct of John de Bermingham, then Commander in chief for the King against those Rebels, the said Edw. de Brus, with a multitude of his party, were slain, and the rest routed; for which signall service, he the said John was created^a Earl of Ulster, whose posteritie do continue there in great honour till this day, bearing the antient Armes of this Family before exprest, with a Castle in the sinister part of the Shield, for a distinction.

I now come to Will. de Bermingham, son and successor to the last mentioned William. In 25 H. 3. he had a suit^w for certain lands, lying in this place, with John the son of Robert de Hathemy; for determination whereof certain Justices of Assize were then constituted. In 34 H. 3. he was by a speciall Pat.^x exempted from serving on Juries; and the next year following had a Charter^y for a Faire to be annually held here, by the space of four days, beginning on the Eve of the Ascension (commonly called Holy Thursday) as also^z Free Warren in his Mannour of Hoggeton in Com. Buck. Not long after this, I find that there grew some dispute^a betwixt Rog. de Someri (Baron of Dudley) of whose Fee Bermingham was held, and this Will. de Bermingham, touching the services due by him to the said Roger for, this Mannour, with the members thereto belonging; for which he required that the same Will. should perform the service of eight Knights Fees, a half and fourth part, and also do suit to the Court at Dudley, for the Knights fees belonging thereto, once every three weeks: whereupon they came to an Agreement^b in 46 H. 3. viz. that the same Will. should do service for so many Knights fees, as afore said, and appear at the Court at Dudley onely twice every year; scil. at that held next after Michaelmas, and that likewise after Easter: And moreover, that whensoever the King's Writ of Right should be executed there, id est that when of necessity cellitie all the Kts. and Peers of the same Court, holding by service military, were to be called thither to give Judgement in cases of difficultie; as also for trial of a Thief, upon reasonable Summons he should not neglect to make his appearance.

Upon which Agreement, the before specified Roger de Soxeri released to him his suit of Court from thence weeks to three weeks. But the next thing memorable, that I find of this Will. de Bermingham is, that he sided with his Father in Law, Thomas de Ayley, and the other Barons, in that grand Rebellion against King H. 3. and that, being slain in the battail of Evesham in 42 H. 3. and his lands extended, this his Mannour of Bermingham was rated at xl l. and the inheritance of it given by the K. with divers Lordships more, forfeited by others, unto Roger de Clifford, for his faithfull service: Howbeit, by vertue of the Ditum de Henilworth (whereof I have there spoke) the greatest part of all mens lands to confiscate, being liable to Composition, this with the rest, upon satisfaction made, according to the tenor of that Decree, was repossessed by Will. de Bermingham, son and heir to the Rebell; who in 11 E. 1. obtained a Charter of Freewarren throughout all his demesne lands here; as also within his Mannour of Stokton in Worcestershire, Shetteford in Com. Oxon. Waldencote in Berkshire, Hoggesston in Com. Buck. and Cristleton in Cheshire; which last (viz. Cristleton) was given by Thomas de Estley, with Isabell his daughter in frank Marriage, to Will. de Bermingham, Father to the present William.

In 13 E. 1. this Will. upon a Quo Warranto brought against him, and all others who exercised or claimed any Liberties, or Priviledges within their Lordships, exhibited K. Henry the 2. Charter for the Thursday Mercate, Toll, Tem. Sak. Sok, and Infangenthef: And for the Faire and Freewarren K. H. 3. Charter, pleading Prescription for Weyfe, Gallows, Court Leet, with Affize of Bread and Beer; all which were allowed. The next year following he had Letters of protection, upon the King's purposed transference, whom he was to attend therein. Whether at that time he went beyond Sea, considering it doth not appear by our Historians, that the King himself was out of England, I am uncertain; but in 25 of the same King's reign, it is manifest that he was in Calcein in his service, under the conduct of the Earl of Lincolne and John de S. John of Basing (a great Baron) where intending to relieve Wollagard, then besieged by the Count of Arras, the said Earl and Baron divided their forces, the Lord S. John leading the Van through a Wood; who being presently encountered by the Enemy, and the Earl not seconding him, was overpowered with numbers and so routed, himself with our Sir Will. de Bermingham and eight more Knights, besides Esquires very many, taken Prisoners, and carried in triumph to Paris.

This Sir Will. de Bermingham died before the 32 of E. 1. for in that year do I find John de Ayleston Clerk presented to the Church of Bermingham by Isabell de Bermingham his widow, in whose Seal are 3. Escutcheons, viz. one with the Bend lozengé, another with a Lion rampant, and the third a Lion Rampant debruised with a Bend; but whose Armes the two last are, except I knew the colours, is hard to say. From which Sir Will. descended another William, and Henry a younger son, afterwards a Knight, who bore for his Armes partie per pale indented Argent and Sable, as by his Seal and certain ancient Rolls appeareth. Touching this last mentioned William. I find, that in 2 E. 2. his Bailiffs distrained divers Inhabitants of Bromsgrove and Doxtun (commonly called King's Doxtun) in Com Wigorn. for Toll in the Mercate here at Bermingham; so that there grew a suit betwixt them: whereupon, producing the Charters of divers King's, as also that of Gervase Paganell, formerly mentioned, for justification of his Mercate, he further alleadged, that his Ancestors (for so the pleading calls them) had a Mercate here before the Norman Conquest: But the men of Bromsgrove, and Doxtun, to this answered, that those Lordships, where they so inhabited, were of the ancient demesne of the Crown of England; and that they, as all other resident upon the like lands, ought to be freed from payment of Toll throughout the Realm for all petty commodities, as Victuall and the like, except it could appear that they did buy and sell as common Merchants; and were acquitted accordingly by the Judgement of the Court, having costs awarded them against the said Bailiffs.

In 11 E. 2. this William was a Kt. but after that, finding no more of him by that title, I have adventured to conclude the next mentioned William to be his son. Which William had many eminent employments; viz. in 18 E. 2. for choosing of 400. Foot-souldiers within this Countie, excepting the towns of Warwick and Cobentre, and arming them for defence of the Realm; and likewise the same year for the electing of Knights, Esquires, and other men at Armes to attend the King into Calcein. The next ensuing year he was a Commissioner appointed to enquire and certifye the names of all those in this Shire, that having xl l. lands per an. had not received military Armes, as also for the arraying of men according to the Statute of Winchester. In 20 E. 2. he had the custodie of Dudley Castle, with the appurtenances; but this was so granted to him by those that then exercised Regall power in the King's name (for the King was then a Prisoner, and shortly after deposed and murdered.) The Record says that it was upon the forfeiture of Hugh le Despenser the younger: perhaps that upon the death of John de Someri, which hapned about 4. years before, leaving none but Female heirs, the same Hugh had the trust thereof (as the King's speciall Favourite) committed to his charge.

In 1 E. 3. this William was in Commission with John de Murdak, for conservation of the Peace in this Countie, as also to put the Statute of Winchester in execution; so likewise in 5 E. 3. being at that time a Knight. I do not directly find how long he had the custodie of Dudley Castle; but in 7 E. 3. 'tis evident that it was not out of his hands; for by his Patent, being to answer for the profits thence arising, unto the King's Exchequer, and then complaining that the Treasurer and Barons there, did refuse to admit of his Accompt, whereby he had made defalcation of such wages as had been paid to the Porter and Watchman of the said Castle, and to the Forresters and Keepers of the Chase of Wentwood; as also of the Parks of Dudley, Seggeley, and the old Park, pertaining to the same Cattle; there was a speciall Mandamus directed by the King to the said Treasurer and Barons, commanding them to let it pass. In 9 E. 3. he was in Commissionⁱ for arraying of men, as well Knights, as others, according to their severall states and degrees, in order to the Statute of Winchester; to the end that they might be in readines for the defence of the Realm, whensoever they should be called upon: In which Commission he is called William de Bermingham senior; so also in two others the same year, the one^k for conservation of the Peace and the Statute of Portsmouth, and the other^l of Ar-

To this last Sir William succeeded Sir Fouk de Bermingham Knight; of whom the first mention^m, that I find, is in 16 E. 3. he having then lent 48. marks to Sir Baldw. Frevill of Tamworth Castle, for which he had five Mills at Tamworth, (viz. 3. in Warwickshire and two in Staffordshire) in Lease for one year. In 20 E. 3. he was retainedⁿ by Thomas Bishop of Durham to attend the King in his French expedition. 'Tis probable that in this voyage he used the Coat, which Sir Henry de Bermingham his uncle, bore, viz. partie per pale indented Arg. and Sable; for the next year following it appears, that he sealed^o with it; though in 16 E. 3. with^p the Bendlozengè (the ancient Coat of his Family) and a Label of 5. points. In 25 E. 3. he was one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament then held at Westminster so also in^r the Parliament of 35 E. 3. The same year was he first a Commissioner^s for conservation of the Peace in this Countie. In 36 he served again in the Parliament then held at Westminster, as one of the Knights for this Shire: so likewise in^t 39 and 40^u E. 3. In the same 40th year he was^x one of the Commissioners of Array in this Countie, and likewise in^y 41 E. 3. and lastly in^z 47 E. 3. one of the Kts. for the Shire in the Parliament held at Westminster.

To him succeeded John his son and heir, who in 50 E. 3. was^a a Knight and in 2 R. 2. Shiriff^b of this Countie and Leicestershire. This John bore^c for his Armes partie per pale Arg. and Sable, as his Father last did; and in 4 R. 2. served^d in the Parliament at Portsmouth, as one of the Knights for this Shire, being the same year Shiriff^e for the Counties of Buck. and Bedf. In 5 R. 2. he was again one^f of the Knights for this Countie, in the Parliament then held at Westminster, and a Commissioner^g for raising power against the Rebels (id est the followers of John Wickliff) So likewise^h the year next ensuing. In 8 R. 2. he servedⁱ again in the Parliament at Westminster; was also a Commissioner^k for the asselling a xvth. and Tenth then granted to the King; and the same year constituted Shiriff^l for this Countie and Leicestershire: but the certain time of his death, I cannot discover. After which, Elizabeth his widow, one of the daughters and heirs^m to William de la Plaunch, by whom he had no issue, marriedⁿ to the Lord Clinton, as in Warstoke shall be shewed, and held this Lordship of Bermingham, in dower, till her death, which hapned not till 2 H. 6.

But before I proceed further, it will not be incongruous (I hope) to say something of Sir Thomas de Bermingham Knight (brother to the before mentioned Sir John) especially because he had his residence in this Countie, and very likely here at Bermingham, though he was not Lord of the Mannour. In the Parliament held at Westminster 51 E. 3. he was one^o of the Knights for this Shire: The same year, and in 1 R. 2. a Commissioner^p of Array. In 2 R. 2. he served^q again as a Knight for this Shire, in the Parliament then held at Gloucester; and in another^r at Westminster. In 3 R. 2. he was in Commission^s for arraying of men. and for asselling^t a Subsidie in this Countie; and wedded^u Isabell the daughter of John de Whitacre, grandchild and heir to Richard, son of Richard, son of Simon de Whitacre (an ancient Family in this Countie, as in Whitacre shall be shewed.) Which Isabell, in her widowhood, had^v the custodie of the lands in Wales, belonging to Thomas son and heir to Sir John de la Roche Knight deceased, committed to her during the minority of the said Thomas; unto whom she afterwards gave her daughter and heir Elizabeth in^x marriage. Which Elizabeth by the same Thomas de la Roche, left issue^y Elene the wife of Edmund Lord Ferrers of Chartley, and Elizabeth of George Longvile Esquire; who were found^z to be Cousins and heirs to the before specified Sir John de Bermingham.

Howbeit, the inheritance of this Lordship, was by some Entail (as it seems) settled upon the heir male of the Family, viz. another William de Bermingham, son of William, son (if I mistake not) to John, uncle to the before mentioned Sir Fouk: for it appears^a, that in 20 Ric. 2. he confirm'd unto certain Feoffees, to the use of the Lady Elizabeth, then the wife of Sir John de Clinton (but formerly of Sir John de Bermingham) an estate for life in this Mannour; saving the reversion to himself and his heirs; and yet stiled himself Dominus de Bermingham, before her death, as is evident by his presentation^b of a Priest in 4. H. 4. to Clodphales Chantrie, in the Church of Saint Martin, here at Bermingham: And so (for ought I know) was reputed, notwithstanding the interest that Edm. Lord Ferrers of Chartley had therein, in right of Elene his wife, as by the Inquis.^c taken after his death may seem. This William Burmyncham was not much inferior to any of his Ancestors, for publick employments in this Countie. In 1 H. 5. he served^d as one of the Knights for this Shire, in the Parliament then held at Westminster; yet afterwards till 17. H. 6. he lived retired, as it seems, but then he was first put in Commission^e for conservation of the Peace, and the same year had a speciall exemption, that no Purveyor, or Victualler should take any provision within this his Lordship, for the expences of the King's Household; in which Patent^f the King calls him dilectus Armiger noster. In this mans time; viz. in 19 H. 6. I find it certified^g that this Lordship of Bermingham was held of Sir John Sutton of Dudley Knight, as of his Castle of Dudley, by military service, scil. by Homage, Fealtie, and Escuage, that is to say when Escuage runneth at xl s. so much, and when more, more, and when less, less; and by suit to his Court at Segeffrey, called Ington-Court, as also by Castleward.

In 121 H. 6. he underwent the Office of Sheriff¹ for this Countie and Leicestershire. In 27. he was a Knight^k. In 28 he was a Commissioner¹ for assessing a Subsidie then granted to the King in Parliament; as also for treating^m with the people about lending money to the King: but after H. 6. time, I do not find him made use of, for any publick service, whereby I conclude that he adhered to the House of Lancaster; for he died not till 18 E. 4. leaving William his son and heir then thirty years of age; I am of opinion that Thomas Bermingham, whom King H. 6. made one of the Esquires for his Body, was Brother to this Sir William: Which Thomas in 24 H. 6. had the grant^o of an Annuitie of L. marks to receive during life, for his daily attendance upon the same King's person, as Esquire of his Body; and within two years after was made Master of the King's Hawks, having a grant of the Mannour called the Mewes, with the appurtenances, in reversion after the death of Sir Raph Cromwell Knight, to hold for his life, with all the Fees belonging to that Office. But passing from him, I come to the last Sir William Bermingham of this Family; of whom I can say no more, than that he wedded^p Isabell the daughter and heir of William Hilton, and by her had issue William, who departed^q this life 7 Junii 15 H. 7. leaving Edward his grandchild and heir, not much above three years old; whose Wardship, being in 17 H. 7. granted^r by the King, to Edw. Lord Dudley, together with the custody of the lands of his inheritance; viz. the Mannours of Ober-Morton, Petherworth, Moch Tewe, Uptil Tewe, and Shuttofd in Com. Oxon. Hogston in Com. Buck. Billesley in Com. Wiltgon: and this of Bermingham, was purchased, it seems, by Elizabeth Bermingham his mother; for I find that she afterwards sold^t it to William Coningsby Sergeant at Law.

This Edward hapned to be the last of the Family, that had to do here; For, being contemporary with that ambitious man John Dudley, afterwards Vicount Lisle (more commonly known by those greater titles, which he sometime had, viz. Earl of Warwick and Duke of Northumberland) he was strangely wrested out of this Lordship: For the said John, having posselt himself of Dudley Castle, (as in Warwick I have shewed) and observing Bermingham a fit ornament for so noble a seat, but being the principall residence of such a Family, as had for some Hundreds of years enjoy'd it, not likely to be purchased from the then rightfull owner, conspired by a wicked stratagem, to work him out of it, which he soon put in practise; the Story whereof is in substance thus, as by tradition from divers discreet persons I have heard; viz. that Dudley did set on some of his Agents to lodge in Bermingham, and to learn when Master Bermingham was to ride out from home; which being accordingly done, they so contrived their business, that one of their plot should ride leisurely before, so that they might soon, keeping but an ordinary pace, overtake him; whereupon they watcht an opportunity to strike into Master Bermingham's company, as Travailers, with whom they soberly rode for a while; but being come up to their confederate, forthwith set upon him for his Purse, so that the villain thus seemingly rob'd, makes pursuit after them, and likewise after Master Bermingham, as one of the pack; who being thereupon apprehended and prosecuted, apparently saw his danger. The business therefore now working according to Dudley's first design, there were others imployed to Mr. Bermingham with overture, how he might save his Life, viz. to make the Vicount Lisle his friend, in giving up this Lordship of Bermingham to him; which, that it might bear the better colour, and be the more valid, was performed by yielding it to the King, and ratified by a speciall Act^u of Parliament, the tenor whereof was as followeth.

Where Edward Byrmingham, late of Byrmingham in the Countie of Warwick Esquire, otherwise callid Edward Byrmingham Esquire, ys and standyth lawfully indettid to our sovereing Lord the Kyng in diverse grete summes of money; And also standyth at the mercy of his Highness, for that the same Edward ys at this present convicted of Felony; our seide soveraign Lord the Kyng, ys contentid and pleased, that for and in recompence and satisfaction to his grace of the seide summes of money, to accept and take of the seide Edward, the Mannour and Lordship of Byrmingham, otherwise callid Byrmingham, with the appurtenances, lying and being in the Countie of Warwick, and all and singular other lands and tenements, reversions, Rents, Services, and hereditaments of the same Edward Byrmingham, set lying and beyng in the Countie of Warwick afforesayde. Be yt therefore ordeyned and enacted, by the autorite of this present Parliament, that our saide soveraine Lord the Kyng, shall have hold and enjoy to him his heirs and assignes, for ever, the seide Mannour and Lordship of Byrmingham (&c.) In which Act there is a reservation of xl l. per an. to the said Edward, and Elizabeth his wife, during their lives.

Howbeit, after this, it was no less than nine years, ere the grant^u of it from the Crown, to the said Vicount Lisle, was made; for it bears not date till December 21 37 H. 8. (perhaps on purpose, so deferred, that the world might the less censure him for this hard dealing) at which time the inheritance thereof, together with the Burgh of Bermingham and patronage of the Rectorie, late belonging unto the before specified Edward Bermingham, were past unto him, with other lands lying in the Counties of Salop. Heref. and Worcester. But how short a time he enjoy'd it, my Story of him as Earl of Warwick will further shew; for being attainted, and losing his head in 1 M. whereby all, that he had, eschaeted to the Crown, the same Queen in 3. and 4. of her reign, by her Letters^w Pat. & 4. Ph & dated 9 Apr. granted the inheritance thereof to Thomas Marrow Esq. whose posteritie (seated at Berkswell in this Countie) continue Lords of it till this day.

Other particulars memorable, relating to this place, are as followeth; viz. in 35 H. 3. a grant^x that another Faire should be yearly kept here, for three days; sc. on the Eve of St. John Bapt. and the two days next following, the Shiriff of Worcestershire having then command to proclaim it accordingly throughout his Liberties. And that in 12 E. 2. the Inhabitants, at the instance of Andomare de Valence Earl of Wembroke, obtained a License^y to take Toll of all vendible commodities brought hither to be sold for the space of three years; viz. for every Quarter of Corn a farthing, &c. towards paving the town: But this work was not perfectly compleated within that time, nor of xv. years after; for in 7 E. 3. I find that they had another^z Pat. to take Toll, in like manner, for the space of 3. years more.

The Hospitall of St. Thomas the Apostle.

This was situate at that end of the town towards Wolverhampton, and on the right hand the road, almost opposite to the sign of the Bull: but touching the originall Foundation thereof, I have not seen any farther testimony, than that Certificate^a made by the Commissioners upon their Survey in 37 H. 8. where it is said they were informed, that the Ancestors of the Berminghams, Lords of Bermingham, erected it for one Priest to sing Mass daylie therein, for the souls of the Founders for ever; as also that the late Lord of Bermingham (viz. Edw. Bermingham Esq.) did, inter alia, grant the patronage of it to one John Prettye for XCIX. years, which said John past away his title therein, to Mr. Clem. Threkmorton Gentleman. And the first mention of it, that I find, is in 13 E. 1. where it appeareth^b, that Thomas de Maidenhache (of whom I have spoke in Aston) gave unto it ten acres of Heath in Aston, Will. de Bermingham x. acres likewise, and Ranulph de Rekeby 3. acres of land in Saluteley. About that time were divers Cottages and lands, lying also in Bermingham and the adjacent Villages, given to it by sundry others; viz. xxvii. acres of land, and half an acre of meadow, by the same Will. de Bermingham, and the rest by a number of ordinary persons; for all which the Prior and Brethren thereof, obtained the King's speciall pardon^c in 4 E. 2. in regard they had been given thereto after publication of the Statute of Mortmain made in 7 E. 1.

In 24 E. 3. Fouk de Bermingham and Ric. Spenser gave^d thereunto two Messuages and an hundred acres of land lying in Aston, and Bermingham, to find a Priest to celebrate divine service daily at the Altar of our Blessed Lady in the Church of the same Hospitall, for the souls of Will. le Mercer and Margerie his wife, and of certain others. The clear yearly value of all which lands and tenements belonging thereto, over and above reprises, were in 26 H. 8. certified^e to be viii l. v s. iii d. at which time Sir Edw. Tofte was Chantrie Priest there; but in 37 H. 8. the value, above reprises, was rated^f at viii l. viii s. ix d.

The Gild of the Holy Cross

The Hall whereof, standing in Newstreet, is now the Free-School.

The originall hereof grew thus; In 6 R. 2. Thomas de Sheldon, John Colshill, John Goldmyth, and Will. atte Slowe, having obtained License^g to grant lands of xx. marks per an. value, lying in Bermyngham and Esgebatton, for the maintenance of two Priests, to celebrate divine Service daily, to the honour of God, our blessed Lady his Mother, the Holy Cross, S. Thomas the Martyr and S. Katherine, in the Church of S. Martin here at Bermingham; within ten years after, the Inhabitants of this town, by the name of the Bailiffs and Communaltie of Bermingham, procured a Patent^h from the same King, to found a Gild or perpetuall Fraternitie, amongst themselves, to the honour of the Holy Cross, consisting not onely of men and women of Bermingham, but other adjacent places; and to constitute a Master, with certain Wardens thereof: as also to erect a Chantrie of Priests, to celebrate divine Service in the said Church, for the souls of the Founders, and all the Fraternitie: for whose support and all other charges incumbent, there were Xviii. messuages iii tofts, six acres of land, and Xl. s. Rent lying in the above specified towns of Bermingham and Esgebatton then given thereto. The lands belonging to which Gild were in 37 H. 8. valuedⁱ at xxxi l. ii s. x d. out of which, three Priests that sung Mass in the Church here, had Cvi s. viii d. a piece; An Organist Lxxiii s. iii d. The Common Midwife iiiii s. per an. and the Bell-man vi s. viii d. but other reprises for brevity, I omit.

Bermingham, for the maintenance of one Priest him the said Walter and Agnes his wife, their

E. 3. did Ric. de Clodshale, (son and heir of the same Walter) give^r 5. messuages, ten acres of land,

for the support of another Priest to celebrate divine

him the said Richard and Alice his wife, during value of these Chantries was divided^r; that of the first by the name of Prima Cantaria beata Maria in parochia S. Martini, rated at Cxx s. xi. d. ob.

name of Secunda Cantaria in predicta parochia at

by the Statute of 1 E. 6. the lands belonging to the later, were in 4 E. 6. granted out of the Crown to Will. Morice of Chepyng-Angre in Essex Es-

Sutton.

HAVING now done with Bermingham, and tracing Rhea through the Parish of Aston,
I come to its confluence with Tame; following which River about two miles lower, I find the accession of a pretty torrent from the North west,
at the head whereof stands Sutton, being a large Parish, but a barren soil, and containeth divers
Hamlets and places of note; viz. Wigginhill, Panep, Hill, Little Sutton, Warmley, Langlep, Pewhall, and Pedmoze; of all which in their order.

That this Sutton was originally so called from its situation, there is no doubt; and therefore as it stands South to Lichfield, I am inclin'd to believe that the name at first arose. In Edw. the Confessor's days Edwine Earl of Merca was owner^w of it; but after the Norman invasion the Conqueror held it in his own hands, as appeareth by the generall Survey^x shortly after made, wherein it is rated at viii hides, the Woods extending to two miles in length and one in breadth, and all valued at 4 l. But it continued not long in the Crown; for I find^y that K. H. 1. past it away in exchange unto Roger Earl of Warwick, for the Mannours of Hocham and Langham in Rutland; Haber-
dum & tenendum dictum Manerium de Sutton (saith my authorit e) dicto Rogero Comiti & ha- redibus ejus, cum omni libertate & regalitate, sine sektis ad Hundredum, sine solutione Scutagii, vel
alicuius forinseci servitii, cum libero Chaceo inter
Thame & Bourne, qua dividunt libertatem dicti Manerii ab aliis. Et habeat dictus Rogerus & ha-redes sui unum Parcum & unam liberam Hayam in defensione. Et habeant liberam Curiam suam ad voluntatem in omnibus liberis consuetudinibus cum visu Franciplegii. Item habeant boscum forinse-cum, communem libere tenentibus, sine Ripario.
Item habeant in dominico duas Carucasas terra, & unum molendinum aquaticum cum sektis. Item habeant Ofodecem Cervos non nobiles.

But it doth not appear by this that any yearly Rent was reserved to the King, his heirs, and successors, upon the said Exchange; therefore 'tis probable that by some other Agreement with that King, or King H. 2. it might be; For in the Shiriffs Accompt² of 23. 24. and 25 H. 2. there is xxxix s. per an. answered to the King de Firma de Sutton. In 26 H. 2. xvii s. x d. de perquisitis;
In 30 H. 2. xxxix s. de Firma: In 31 H. 2.
Lii s. de Firma; and in 1 R. 1. iii l. de Firma:
howbeit, in these two last 'tis like some arrears are accounted, in regard that xxxix s. was the standing Rent or Ferm formerly due.

The next thing, in order, to be spoke of, is the Chase, whereof the bounds extended (as by the before recited authoritie is evident) to the banks of Thame and Bourne (which Rivers are described by the Map) and so consequently out of the bounds of this Countie, as well as into other Lordships within it, that are no members of Sutton: To give some reason therefore for this, I have look't further into the antiquitie thereof; and do find,
that whilst this Lordship continued in the King's hand, that which afterwards bore the name of the Chase, was then a Forest; and this appears by a special Inquisition² taken in 3 E. 2. where the Jury say upon their Oaths, that they had heard their Ancestors affirm the same: For, that the ancient King's of England, before they limited themselves by Carta de Foresta in 9 H. 3. might and did make Forests where they pleased, Mannwood, in his treatise of Forest Laws (whereunto I refer my Reader) doth sufficiently declare. And here, before I proceed further, I have thought fit to insert a Copie of the bounds of this Chase, as by the before-specified Inquisition they are set down: Sez sont lez boundes trovez de la Chase de Sottone en Colsebe, & se commencez à la teste de Bourne; dekes à la Woltestile; & dekes tank à la Tindit hoc; & dekes tank à Mosewall; & dekes tank à le Holecrook; & dekes tank a le Thame; & dekes tank a Wolsozdbrugge; & dekes tank a Schrafsozdbrugge; & dekes tank a Wylford; & dekes tank a la teste de Bourne. Most of which places, if not all, are (I am sure) very well known at this day.

That the Earl of Warwick so held it, with all privileges thereto anciently belonging, may appear by sundry testimonies, some of which I shall here point at. About the beginning of K. John's time, the Lord Basset of Draiton (a great Baron in these parts) erected a Park at Draiton-Basset, which being within the precincts of this Chase, and questioned by Waleran then Earl of Warwick, necessitated the said Lord Basset, rather than he would pull down his pales again, to come to an Agreement with the Earl; which accord^b was in 3 Joh. and because 'tis very memorable, I will here recite it.

Hac est finalis concordia inter Comitem Waleranum de Warwic quierentem, & Radulphum Bassiet tenentem de una sepe in Draiton, quam idem Comes dixit fuisse levatam ad necumentum Foresta sua de Colmesfeld, unde placitum conventionis summonitum est inter eos coram Justiciariis domini Regis apud Covinriam; viz. Magistro Willielmo de Kilkenny & dominis Henrico de Barton & Nicholao de Trye; scilicet quod predictus Comes concessit, & quietum clamavit, de se & heredibus suis, predicto Radulfo & heredibus suis, predictam sepe & totum Parcum de Draiton infra illam sepe inclusum. Et pro hac concessione & in pace dimissione, & quieti clamazione, predictus Radulphus pro se & heredibus suis concessit eidem Comiti & heredibus suis, duos Damos idoneos quolibet anno de predicto Parco, captos inter Assumptionem & Nativitatem beate Mariae Virginis; scil. de utroque Damo quatuor membra, & Capud, corio, & furehero; ita quod predictus Radulphus vel heredes sui, per seipsos vel per nuncios suos, faciant habere Rastivis predicti Comitis, vel heredum suorum, ad Manerium ipsius Comitis de Sutton, predictos duos Damos, sicut predictum est, inter predicta duo Festa. Et sciendum quod predictum Parcum de Draiton ita clausum erit, quod totum erit integrum versus Forestam predicti Comitis de Colmesfeld, & sine Bukestall.

To this Agreement were witnesses^c Thomas de Erdinton, then Sheriff of Staffordshire, Geffrey Sauvage, *Hugh fil. Woods, lying within the precincts thereof, do sufficiently manifest; viz. to Raph de Limefi, by Will. de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, to make a Park at Wesford of his Wood called Amehap, in 17 E. 1. In 18 E. 1. to Raph Lord Basset to hunt in his Woods at Draiton. In 21 E. 1. to Will. de Odingfells to hunt in the Woods and feilds of Wesford, Thickbrome, and Hynts: So also to Will. Meignill and Rob. de la Ward in their lands and Woods at Hynts, &c. And that this Chase was of high esteem with those great Earls (who had here a very goodly Mannour House, with fair Pools near unto it) is evident, as I shall now further manifest.

In 17 E. 1. the last recited Earl obtained a speciall Patent^e of the King, that during his life he might have free libertie to follow and pursue such of his Deer as, being hunted within this Chase, fled into the Forest of Hanc, and there to kill and bring them away, without any disturbance of the said King's Verderers or other Officers of the Forest: Nay the Earl was so tender in preserving his game, that though he had given libertie to the Lord Basset for hunting in his own Woods at Draiton, yet to the end it might appear that he excluded not himself, he questioned the same Lord Basset for his Keepers over-boldness in those Woods; So that Basset coming to an agreement^f with him; it was concluded, that from thenceforth his Forester for Draiton-woods, for the time being, should make Oath to the said Earl and his heirs, for his faithfull custodie of the Venison, and to make Attachments, and Presentments in the said Earl's Court at Sutton, touching the same: And that the Ranger to the said Earl and his heirs, for the time being, should oversee the Keepership of the Deer in those Woods, at his own pleasure, and make attachments for the same: As also that the Earl should have the one half of all Amerciaments, and recompence for Trespasses done to the Deer in those Woods, to be received by his Bayliff of Sutton. Which Accord was made at Sutton on the Eve of Holy Rood day, in the presence of Sir John Clinton the younger Kt, Thomas Prior of Cantwell, Anketill de L'isle, Rob. de Schelden, Herr. de Mabely, Will. de Lee, John Russell, and others.

In 21 E. 1. there being a complaint^g made to the King, by the before specified Earl, that some misdemeanours had been committed by certain lewd persons in killing of Deer within this Chase, a speciall Commission was directed to Roger Lord Strange, to find them out, and to punish them according to their demerits. And in 25 E. 1. John Lord of Little Warre came to an Accord^h with the before specified Earl, for license to inclose his Woods at Little Warre; as also to improve them by assarting, and for cutting of under-wood there, they being within the bounds of this Chase: for which libertie so granted he covenanted for himself and his heirs to pay yearly to the said Earl and his heirs six barbed Arrows on the Feast day of St. Michael, at his Mannour of Sutton.

I now come to the Mannour. After the death of Thomas Earl of Warwick in 26 H. 3. it was, inter alia, assignedⁱ to Ela his Countess in dower: and in 31 H. 3. upon the Agreement^k made betwixt John de Plessers, who had wedded Margerie Marechall, heir to the Earldome of Warwick (as in Warwick is fully shewed) and Will. Manduit and Alice his wife (Aunt and afterwards heir to the the same Margerie) it was accorded, that the same John de Plessers, in case he survived his said wife, should enjoy this, inter alia, during his natural life. But the Countess Ela was then living and a long time after; for in 32 H. 3. Philip Marmion (Lord of Lamwoth Castle) brought an Assise against her for Common of pasture within this Lordship; and in 36 H. 3. had a speciall Charter of Free Warren granted to her, for life, in all her demesne lands here, as also in divers other Mannors of her dower. After which, viz. in 13 E. 1. Will. de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, then Lord thereof, claymed " by Prescription a Court Leet here, with Assize of Bread and Beer, Free Chase, Insangthes, Tumbrell, Thewe, Weyf, and Gallows; and it being found that he and his ancestors had exercised all these Liberties and Privileges time out of mind, they were allowed.

To the last William succeeded Guy de Beauchamp in the Earldome of Warwick, and possession of this Lordship; who in 28 E. 1. obtained a Charter for a weekly Market here, upon the Tuesday, and a Faire yearly, to begin on the Eve of the holy Trinity, and to continue for three days following: In the time of which Earl, viz. in 35 E. 1. the K. having received information, that the free Chase here at Sutton, had been anciently a Forest, &c. in the time of the King's progenitors, before it came to the same Earl's Ancestors, made Henry de Spigurnell and Will. de Mortimer, Commissioners to enquire, whether it were so or not; and in case it should be found accordingly, then to certify when it was so disafforested, by whom, and for what reason; as also, how it past from the Crown: And the Sheriff of this Countie and Staffordshire, had thereupon command, to summon so many honest and lawfull men, to trie the same, as in their discretions they should think meet: But what return was made thereupon, I have not seen. Shortly after this, viz. in 3 E. 2. at a Court Leet and Court Baron, held for this Mannour, the ancient Customes thereof, were certified by the Jury upon their Oaths; which, in regard they are very memorable, I have here transcribed.

Et dicunt quod Waleranus quondam Comes WWarwici concessit, quod omnes predictae consuetudines, & omnes aliae antiquae consuetudines, pro se & hered. suis, durabunt imperpetuum.

The next things of note that I have observed concerning this Lordship, are these, viz. that in 9 E. 2. upon the death of Guy de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, it was^r valued at xiiii l. iiii d. ob. q. per an. as also the next ensuing year, in respect of the minority of his heir, committed^r to the custody of John de Somers. And that in 17 E. 2. there was a notable Robberie^r committed upon a certain Road, thwarting that part of the Chase called Colsefeld, then, and yet known by the name of Rugelwey, the partie rob'd being one Elias Le Collier, and the summe of money taken from him CCC l. about nine of the Clock in the morning: whereupon he commenced his suit against the Inhabitants of this Hundred of Hemlingford, and those of the Hundred of Othlow in Staffordshire, according to the Statute of Winchester, for not prosecuting the Felons; in regard that the same Way, as the Record saith, divideth the Counties of Warwick and Stafford, viz. leaving Sutton and Aston juxta Bermingham, on the one side of it (of this Countie) and Barre, Alrewich, with part of Shenston in Com. Staff. on the other side; and had Judgment to recover the money accordingly: wherupon Writts being directed to the Shiriffs of both Shires, to levie the said summe, return was made, that the people were so much indebted to the King, and impoverished by Murrein of their Cattell, dearth of Corn and other accidents, that they were not able to pay it. Nevertheless, it seems that the Shiriff pressing hard upon them, by virtue of severall Writts to him directed, at the procurement of the partie rob'd, levied xl. marks of it. Much ado there was about this Money, the Bishop of Cob. and Litch. pleading, for himself and his Tenants, immunitie from such charges; and the Countie still shifting the payment; so that at length, they procured a Superseedeas from the King to stop any farther proceeding therein.

Over part of this Chase there is another ancient Way called Pakenild-street (though not now much noted) being one of those four eminent ones made by the Romans, concerning which I have said something in my discourse of Watling-street; the tract whereof is yet to be seen in divers places within this Countie, especially here, and over a corner of Sutton Park; where, going over low grounds, it appeareth to be firm and high ridged up with Gravel. This Way coming from Wine-mouth in Northumberland, through Yorkshire, to Bolesober, and thence by Chesterfeld, through Scarsdale, comes over Moxley-moor to Little Chester near Derby, and so over Cogginton Heath, c. flecth the River Dove, at Mponks-bydge, then over Barton-moor; and passing Trent at Whitch-nour-bydge, stretcheth through Alberwas-Ways; thence to Street-hep, and so to Wail (anciently called Stocetum) where it thwarts Watling-street: thence over Rabley-moor, leaving Little Aston on the right hand, entreth this Lordship of Sutton (as the Map sheweth) and so extendeth it self to Alcester in this Countie. Thence over Witsoford-Bridge (leaving Cambden in Gloucestershire a little on the left hand) to Stow on the Wolds (where it crosseth the Fosse) and from Stow to Witsoford and over Wissat at Wetwylodge, directly to Wallingford; and so through Winchester to Sou-thampton.

But I return. Perhaps the Tuesday Mercate, formerly granted (as is before exprest) grew to be discontinued; for in 27 E. 2. Thomas de Beauchamp then Earl of Warwick (and Lord of this Mannour) obtained another Chatter^u for it upon the same day: by which he had likewise a grant of two Faires to be yearly kept here; sc. the one on the Eve of the Holy Trinitie and two days after, the other on the Eve and day of St. Martin. With the other lands belonging to these great Earls this Mannour, at length, came to Ric. Nevill in right of Anne his wife (as in Warwick is shewed) but towards the later end of H. 6. reign, when this haughty spirited Earl, sided with the House of York, it was seized by the King, and demised^w to Sir Edm. Mountfort Knight, one of his Carvers, for the terme of x. years; and the Ranger^xship of the Chase disposed^x of by the same King, to John Holt Esq. one of his Household servants, to hold for terme of life, with the Fees and profits thereof anciently due and payable. How it was afterwards (sc. in 14 E. 4.) taken from the said Anne, with the rest of the lands of her inheritance, and seled by Act of Parliament upon Isabell and Anne her Daughters, I have in Warwick fully shewed; as also how by a speciall grant, and Act of Parl. likewise, to strengthen the same, it came to the Crown: It now therefore remains to shew the course of it since: in which disquisition I find, that K. H. 7. in 5. of his reign, assigned^y it to the before specified specified Anne, to hold during her life.

After which, ere long, the Mercate being utterly forsaken² the Town fell much to ruin; and the Mannour place was totally pulled³ down by one Winston, who being employed as an Officer there for the King, made use of most of the timber for himself, selling the intire fabrick of the Hall unto the Marq. Dorset, which was set^b up at Bradgate in Leicestershire. And in this decayed condition did Sutton continue, till^c that John Harman, alias Versey Bishop of Exeter, bearing a great affection thereto, in respect it was the place of his birth, having obtained^d of the King in 10 H. 8. certain parcells of Inclosure here, called Moore crofts, and Wethe yards, and more than xl. acres of watt, with Licence to inclose it, the next year ensuing procured Letters Pat.^e dated 16 Dec. for the making it a Corporation, by the name of a Warden and Societie, to consist of xliiii. persons besides the Warden: As also another yearly Faire on Simon and Jude's day, with a weekly Mercate upon the Munday (the Tuesday Mercate being discontinued) together with a Common Hall or Moore Hall, for their assemblies, a Clerk of the Mercate, and a Steward, and one or two Sergeants at Mace; the VVarden for the time being, to be Coroner within the same Corporation; and that no Shiriff nor Bailiff shall meddle within their Liberties: Granting besides unto them the whole town and Mannour of Sutton-Colsefeld; as also the Chase and Park, to hold to them and their successors for ever in Fee ferm, at the Rent of Lviii. l. per an. in which sort it continueth till this day.

Concerning the parentage of this John Harman, I find^e that he was born in this Lordship, and of a Family residing^f here, his Father's name being Will. Harman, and his mother's Jane, daughter unto Henry Squier of Handsworth in Staffordshire (from which Henry is also descended my singular friend Mr. Scipio Squier now one of the V. ce-Chamberlains in the Exchequer, a Gentleman of great knowledge in Antiquities, and a special furtherer of this work). The first mention that I have seen of the said John Harman, isⁱ in 11 H. 7. Where the King grants unto him, by the name of John Harman D. of Law, the free Chapell of S. Lase, situate within this his Mannour of Sutton in Colsefeld, with all the lands and possessions thereunto belonging, for life: By which Pat. recital is made, that the same Chapell, &c. was formerly granted also for life, unto one John Hermon Priest in 20 H. 6. to celebrate Divine Service therein according to the Ordination of the Founders thereof; and confirm'd to him by George Duke of Clarence (in right of his Earldome of Warwick) 12 Oct. 11 E. 4. and then, viz. 11 H. 7. surrendered to the King and cancell'd to make way for this grant: Of which Chapell, all I have seen else, is only, that in 2 E. 3. the King in respect of the then Earl of Warwick's minority confer'd^h it upon Thomas de Hampton Clerk, as a Donative.

But I return to John Hermon. He was afterwards, viz. in 22 H. 7. Vicarⁱ of St. Michael's Church in Cobentre: Next Dean^m of the Royall Chapell at Windsor to K. H. 8. Homo cui nec eruditio deerat, nec prudentia; morum porro comitate insignis perhibetur (saith Godwyn) For which his abilities, being highly esteemed of the King, he was employed on sundry Embassies, made Tutor to the Lady Marie (then the King's onely Daughter) and President of Wales; and after the death of Hugh Oldham Bishop of Exeter, advanced to that See, being consecrated 6 Dec. an. 1519 (11 H. 8.) To this town he bore a speciall affection; and besides the procuring it to be incorporate (as I have said) bestowed very great cost, as well for ornament as enriching thereof; sc.^o The Moore Hall, with a Prison under it, and a Mercate place, he built, at the charge of xxxv. l. v. s. vi. d. Inclosed all the Coppices called the seven Heys, and set up Gates and Locks to them, at xliii. l. ii. s. vi. d. Paved the whole Town, at xl. l. ii. s. viii. d. Stored the Park with Mares, Colts, and Horses at xl. l. Gave to the ditching and Quicksetting thereof at one time xvi. l. viii. s. x. d. And at another x. l. xvi. s. viii. d. Paid for weights and Balances, and the VVarden's expences at the first Leet xli. s. For the Organs in the Church (an. 22 H. 8.) xlii. l. ii. s. viii. d. For building of two Iles to the Church (an. 25 H. 8.) XCii. l. xii. s. ii. d. Besides the finishing of them liii. l. vi. s. x. d. Built the School and endow'd it, as I shall further shew anon. Destroy'd the Chase for the benefit of the Poor, who for x. d. per an. had keeping for their Cows; and gave a meadow for Hay to the poor Widows, appointing the Coppices to be for Fewell to the Inhabitants.

Nay so great a desire had he, that it should increase in people and wealth; not doubting but that the barrenness of the soil would give an edge unto Industrie, that building^p L. stone Houses within the precincts of the Lordship, he began^q to set up a trade of Cloathing there, in making Kersey's, in imitation of Devonshire, which he saw had much enricht that County: But so much did he impoverish his Bishoprick, to do these things, that (as Godwyn observes) what was so founded upon Sacriledge, thrived but little: for this Cloathing trade being soon neglected, his design therein came to nothing: Neither had that better success wherewith he advanced his kindred, which continued not to them for three generations. The later part of his days, he spent^r here at Sutton, having built^s from the ground, a very fair House (North East near a mile from the Town) called Moore Hall; where he lived very hospitably, having of his retinue^t Cxl. men in Scarlet Caps and Gowns, his Household expences then amounting to 1500 l. per an. (which was no small summe at that time.) To Bulloin he sent^u xx. able men with K. H. 8. and C. l. with them; and twice as many to Bozworth feild, giving also money extraordinary with them, for the support, in case any fell sick by the way: and afterwards, in recompence of their service, bestowed^w on them lands and livings.

And for prevention of Robberies, which were in those days frequent upon the Road over Bassets-Heath (leading from Litchfield towards London) he erected^x a House, upon a piece of Wast called Coppsmoore, containing nine acres of ground, lying in a kind of desert place, near to Canwell-yate; which place, as by an Autograph^y I have seen, was deservedly called Latronum spelunca & receptaculum, wherein he placed one of his own domestique Servants, to reside, paying ii. s. yearly at Michaelmas to himself and his heirs, and xviii. d. to the Warden and Fellowship of Sutton, and their Successors. At his own proper costs he also built^z two Stone Bridges within 3. miles of Sutton; viz. at Curdworth, and Water-Diton: and for that purpose (as the tradition is) pulled down

And departing this world at the age^a of Ciii years, lyeth buried on the North ſide of the Chancell here at Sutton, having a fair Monument there, with his ſtatue mitred and veſted for the Altar, as I ſhall ſhew anon.

Of the before ſpecified Mannour Houſe, I may not omit to obſerve, that it ſtood very delightfully, having not only the Chafe for pleaſure of hunting, but divers large Pools near at hand; as alſo a Chapell^b within it (that of St. Blife before ſpoke of, as I take it) wherein the Prieſt that celebrated divine ſervice in 24 H. 6. had xxxiii s. iiii d. per an. for his Stipend. Concerning which Pools, being in number four, I have obſerved, that Sir Raph Bracebrigg of Kingsbury Kt. having a Leaſe^c of them for terme of life, from 7 H. 5. covenanted to pay the yearly Rent of x l. or Cxx. Bemes, the price of each Breme reckoned at xv d. but if they ſhould happen to be at a greater rate, then to be allowed back proportionably. Whereunto I ſhall adde part of an Account^d made by the before recited Earl of Warwick's Bayliff in 32 H. 6. that the price of ſuch Fiſh in theſe days, compared with other things, may the better appear.

Item John Burbage and Will. Lempſ for ſi-

Item the ſame Fychers were ſend for again, on Thurſday nexte after the Exaltacion, and was ther Thurſday, Fryday, and Setyrday, and tok four Breme, ther hyre and ther coſts iiii s. viii d. Item the coſts of bakyng the ſeyde iiii. Breme in flowre xii d. Item in Spys, Peppr, Saffron, Clows and Synamun vi d. Item the coſts of caryng the ſeyd iiii. Item for the Swans, four quarter Otter, and a buſhell, two quarter of hem a ſtreke ii d. ob. and two quarter and a buſhell a ſtreke iii d. (vii s. x d.)

The Church (dedicated to the Holy Trinitie) was in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued^d at xx marks; and in^e 26 H. 8. at xxxiii l. ix s. over and above xii s. yearly allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

Here was in this Church a certain Chantrie founde^f by one Thomas Broadmeadow (but the time when appears not) for one Prieſt to ſing Maſs and to pray for the ſoul of the ſaid Thomas and his Parents; the value of the Lands and Rents belonging thereto, being in 26 H. 8. rated^g at Cvi s. viii d. and in 37 H. 8. at C s.

First whereas the annuall Rent of vii l. formerly, by virtue of a certain Feoffment, had been reserved to the disposall of the same Bishop, either for the maintenance of a Priest to celebrate divine Service thrice every week in the Parish Church of Sutton, or else of an honest Lay-man, sufficiently learned and skilfull to teach Grammar and Rhetorique within the said town, was by him appointed to be allowed and payd for the support of a fit man to teach Grammar and Rhetorique, as above said; and that together with his Scholars, should daylie say the Psalm of De profundis for their Benefactors: And in case such a meet person should not be found, then to be employed in the providing of certain Lay-Artificers to teach their trades within this town of Sutton, there living well and honestly, or else to other pious uses ordained and declared by the said Bishop. And whereas for performance thereof, he appointed, that whensoever it hapned that ix. of the xii. Feoffees by him constituted, should be departed this life, that then the xii. surviving, ought, within one month after, to enteeff other nine of the most substantiall Inhabitants, from time to time, for ever.

And whereas by the said Feoffees not performance of what was so ordained, and for certain other causes, the said settlement thereof became void in Law, he being in full power to dispose otherwise of the same; out of his wonted pious regard to the publick benefit of the Common-wealth, and this his native Countrey, made a Feoffment of divers lands, lying within the precincts of this Parish, unto the Warden and Fellowship of Sutton, bearing date the first day of October in 35 H. 8. to the intent that the said Warden and Fellowship, and their successors, with the profits thence arising, should find a certain Learned Lay-man fit and skilfull to teach Grammar and Rhetorique, within the same Parish; who together with his Scholars ought daily to say the Psalm of De profundis for the souls of their Benefactors: and if such person could not be found, then to provide certaine skilfull Artificers to teach their trades as above said, or to distribute the Rents and profits of those Lands, for the discharge of Tallage, Taxes, or other impositions made by the King's authoritie, upon the poor people of the Parish; or else to be employed for the marriage of poor Maidens, or Orphans, or to some other charitable secular use, within this Lordship of Sutton.

Whereupon the said Warden and Fellowship, by their publick Instrument dated 6 Apr. the year ensuing, constituted one John Savage Schoolmaster there for life, granting him an Annuitie of x l. per an. issuing out of those lands: And on the first of October in 38 H. 8. conferred ^k the same again upon Laurence Noel in like sort; the memory of whom, is still famous for his singular learning, as Master *Cambden*¹ observes, Vir rarâ doctrinâ insignis (saith he) & qui Saxonicam Majorum nostrorum linguam desuetudine intermortuam, & oblivione sepultam, primus nostra aetate resuscitavit. But though he was a man so eminent in that kind, it seems that his dexterie and diligence in teaching Scholars, fell far short of what they expected; For it appears ^m that soon after his teaching here, the Corporation took great exceptions at him for the neglect of his School, and exhibited Articles against him in the Chancery; whereupon, after the fitting of a Commission, and sundry depositions taken, he procured Letters from the Councell Table, admonishing them that they should not go about his removal, except any notable crime could be proved against him; so that in conclusion, finding such slender cause amongst them, he accepted of his arrears, and a gratuitie of ten pounds, whereof the said Bishop of Exeter gave five marks; and in 1 Edw. 6. resigned; so that his stay in this place, was not much more than a year.

But how long these Trustees continued so zealous for the good of the School, and faithfull in disposing the profits of the lands before specified, to the designed uses, I cannot affirm: perhaps whilst the Bishop lived, which was till towards the end of Queen Maries reign: Sure I am, that to such an height of civetousness they did in time grow, that to prevent the Schoolmasters from enjoying what was justly due unto them, they contrived to elect them of their Societie (I mean of the Corporation) before they could be acquainted with their right; so that having made Leases of their Lands to their Children or friends, for small Rents reserved, it should not be in the Schoolmaster's power, being so bound up, as one of that Body politique, to question the same. Thus was the pious intent of the well-meaning Founder abused, till that within these few years, the fraud being discovered, some remedie was had by a Chancerie Decree, at the prosecution of John Michaell the then Schoolmaster, that famous man the Lord Coventre, being Lord Keeper of the great Seal.

THese two petty Hamlets I now joyn together, because I find, that a good part of them antiently belong'd to the Little Priorie of Cantwell, situate on the borders of this Countie (but within Staffordshire.) Which lands, as part of Sutton, were first given thereto by one of the antient Earls of Warwick, as I guess; for it appears that Waleran Earl of Warwick made a confirmation ⁿ to the Monks of that House, of three yard land lying in Hulle (which is this Hill) given to them by Earl Roger his Father. To which Monasterie they continued till the dissolution thereof in 17 H. 8. but then, by the name of the Mannours of Hulle and Little Sutton, were they granted, together with the site of that Religious Bonchivaler* enjoyed it: but afterwards, sc. in 36 H. 3. Raph de Wylinton held^t it, together with Chirfton, of the same Earls by the service of a Knights Fee: To whom succeeded John de Wylinton in 9 E. 2. who held^t it single for the fourth part of a Knight's Fee, and there it is written Wigginshill.

The next possessor thereof, that I find, was Will. de Lucy; who in 20 E. 3. held^t it by the same fourth part of a Knights Fee, of John de Hull; and he of the before specified John de Wylinton, and he of the Earl. But by a Court Roll^w of 35 E. 3. Baldw. de Bereford (owner of Langley, hard by) is said to be Lord of it, whose Ancestor Osbert de Bereford, had^t lands here in E. 1. time. And in 10 H. 6. John Hore of Wiltshaw Esq; (descendant of the same Baldwin) yet not by the name of a Mannour, but three Mesluages; and that he held them by the fourth part of a Kts. Fee. Which Mesluages were in Q. Eliz. time sold to Thomas Gibbons (then of New Hall) by Rob. Pudsey Esq; (heir to the same *T. There was antiently a suit^z betwixt the Abbot of Leicester, as Rector of the Church of Curdworth, and the Parson of Sutton, for certain Tithes arising out of nine yard land lying in this Hamlet; whereof six were of the Earl of Warwick's Fee, and the other three of the Fee of Thomas le Arden, and pertaining to the Church of Curdworth. And because it was a hard matter to distinguish betwixt these Fees, at length, by authority from the Pope, certain Judges were appointed to determine, the businesse; who decreed, that two parts of the Tithe Corn of the said nine yard land, should be payd to the Church of Sutton, and the third to Curdworth: And also, that the Inhabitants upon the same six yard land of the Earls Fee, should repair to the Mother-Church of Sutton, on the Feast days of the Assumption of our Lady, and Easter, and there communicate; and that the Priest of Sutton should strive them in Lent, and on their Death-beds: And moreover that at Sutton they should bury their dead, and pay to that Church all their small Tithes throughout the year: But because of their great distance from the said Mother-Church, they could not without much inconvenience go thither, that they should pay all their Oblations and Obventions to the Priest ministering at Curdworth, from whom they might receive spiritual comfort as occasion should require: As also that the Priest of Sutton should yearly pay to the Church of Curdworth iiii d. to buy Frankincense: And lastly that the Inhabitants upon the other three yard land of Arden's Fee, should be answerable to the Mother-Church of Curdworth, for all Obventions and Oblations,

Langley.

That this was originally a member of Sutton (in which parish it lyes) I incline to believe for in 37 H. 3. which is the first mention that ever saw of it, Walter de Bereford did (inter alia, grant^a to Walter his son L. acres of land lying in Lonkelepe, Blackmoze and Brockhurst, all which are said to be within the territory of Sutton: So that hence I conclude, that the same Walter, or his ancestors, first had it from one of the antient Earls of Warwick; adding thereto, that by a multitude of^b Inquisitions it appeareth to have been of their Fee. But all the farther mention that I find of this Walter, is in the Sheriff's Accompt^c of 23 H. 3. and that in 36 H. 3. he brought an Assise^d of Novell disseisin against Nich. L'ile for certain Common of pasture in Worhull. To whom succeeded Walter his son and heir; and to him Osbert de Bereford, who in 2 E. 1. was constituted Sheriff^e of this Countie and Leicestershire; as also the next year ensuing, a Commisioner^f for levying a Fifteenth; and in 8 E. 1. Sheriff^g again of these Counties: And to him William his brother; for he and his descendants went away with this Langley, and certain lands in Wiltshaw, Sutton, Curdworth, Wintworth, Widleton, and Wigginshill in this Countie; as also Stapleford in Leicestershire.

Which Will. was in 16 E. 1. a^h Kr. and being learned in the Laws, in 2 E. 2. had the Chief-Justiceship of the Common Pleas conferredⁱ upon him. But about three years after such his advancement to that eminent place, there was an high Complaint^k made against him to the King, by John de Someri (a great Baron in these parts) for words of defamation; viz. that he did so domineere in Staffordshire, that no man could enjoy the benefit of Law or reason, taking upon him more authority than a King; as also that it was no abiding for any thereabouts, unlesse they did bribe him in contributing largely towards the building of his Castle (at Dudley) And moreover that the said John did use to beset mens Houses in that Countrey, threatening to murder them, except they gave him what he would demand. Whereupon the King issued a Commission^l to Alan la Zouche and Will. Trussell, to enquire thereof; and in case the words were proved, then to find out whether the before specified John were really guilty of those misdemeanours, and to certifie the truth therein.

in 8 E. 2. I find^m that he was one of the Justices of Assize in this County; so likewiseⁿ in 13 E. 2. As also a Benefactor to the Canons of Benll-worth, by granting^o to them Lx. acres of land and two acres of meadow, lying in Radford-Simelie; and that he departed^p this world in 20 E. 2. leaving Edmund his son and heir 28 years of age, who did his homage the same year, and had livery^q of his lands. Which Edmund in 1 E. 3. obtained License^r from the King, to fortifie his Mannour House here at Langley, with a wall of lime and stone, and to embattle it. In that Record the K. calls him dilectus Clericus noster, yet was he then a Knight; for in a Release^s bearing date at Chaucumbe the same year, whereby Henry de Beresford Parson of the Church of Cozson, gave up unto him all his right in this Mannour, as also in Wiltshaw, he is so stiled; the sealing whereof was somewhat observab^e. In cujus rei testimonium (saith the Parson) Sigillum meum apposui; Et quia Sigillum meum plurimis est incognitum, Sigillum Rogeri Hillari nepotis mei apponi procuravi. Whereunto were witnesses Sir Gilbert de Elsfeld, Sir Sim. de Beresford, Sir Miles de Beauchamp, Sir James de Audley, and Sir John de Broughton, Kts. Rog. Hillari, John Dimeck and others. Which instance, as it shews of what regard Seals were anciently, so doth it give me an oportunitie to say something as to the original use of them in this Realm, and of the great esteem, wherein they have continued ever since.

Of Seals.

That K. Edw. the Confessor, was the first here in England, that ever put Seal to his Charters, is very evident; and that he did so in imitation of the Normans, amongst whom he had been educated, is not to be doubted; but till after the Conquest, we have no testimony that they were used here by any Subject, as Ingulphus^t manifesteth. — Nam Chirographorum confectio nem Anglicanam (saith he) qua antea, usq; ad Edw. Regis tempora fidelium presentium subscriptionibus, cum Crucibus aureis, alijsq; sacris signaculis firma fuerunt, Normanni condemnantes, Chirographa Cartas vocabant, & Chartarum firmitatem cum cerea impressione, per unius cujusq; speciale Sigillum, sub instillatione trium vel quatuor testium astantium conficere constituebant. Conferebantur enim primò multa pradia rudo verbo absq; scripto vel Charta; tantum cum Domini Gladio, vel Galea, vel Cornu, vel Cratera, & plurima tementa cum Calcari, cum Sirigili, cum Arch, & nonnullum cum Sagitta; Sed hæc initio Regni sui (speaking of Will. the Conq.) posterioribus annis immutatus est iste modus.

But that this use of Sealing was of greater antiquity, with the French, I shall exhibite the testimony of a learned^u person, from whom I have abstracted what follows. Karolus dei gratia Rex Francorum &c. Notum sit omnibus &c. qualiter vir illustris Rogerus Comes fidelis noster &c. Monasterium &c. in loco nuncupato Karrosum &c. in pago Pictavense construxit &c. Et ut hac presens auctoritas nostris & futuris temporibus inviolata perdurare valeat, manus nostra signaculis cum decrevimus roborari, & de Annulo nostro iussimus Sigillari (circa An. D. DCClxxix.)

In^w nomine domini Dei &c. Hludovicus divina ordinante clementia Imperator Augustus, Notum sit &c. Hæc verò auctoritas, ut nostris futurisq; temporibus melius credatur &c. manu propria subscripsimus, & de Annulo nostro subter iussimus Sigillari. Dat. &c. An. D. DCCCLxxiii.

But I return to England. That our Kings, and all great persons, anciently used their own pictures in the impressions of their Seales, is very evident; Militarie men allways on Horsback, and in the same kind of Armour that they wore, which in the elder times was Male, for the most part, with a Shield on the left Arme and in the right hand a naked Sword: upon which Shields 'tis rare before K. Ric. 1. time, to see any distinct charge, at least such as became hereditary; but after that, it was held a great honour for those whose Ancestors had served in the Holy Warrs, to retain the same Badges and Marks, which they there bore; so that then they did not only continue them upon their Shields, but to be the better known, had the like depicted upon surcoats of filke, behind and before, which they wore over their Male, as in those excellent observations^x made upon Upton by that learned gentleman, and my singular Friend Edw. Bishe Esq; is made most evident; and as is farther testified by John Rous — Tempore Regis Joh. (saith he) erant in Sigillis Dominorum, tunica super loriciis, non autem ante: erant autem tunica longa ad talos. But after this, ere long, divers bore their Armes on fair, large, and deep Shields, in their Seales; and some on the reverse, where the picture on Horsback was on the other side; of which the same Author saith^y — Circiter annum MCCxviii, Domini, qui in Sigillis more solito habebant Equites armatos cum gladiis, nunc in dorso sigillorum Arma sua posuerunt de novo in Scutis. Howbeit, in Edw. 1. days and after, most men began to leave of their pictures on Horsback in their Seals; which custome by degrees declining, was utterly given over in Edw. 3. time; So that our Historian observes — Post^z captionem Johannis Regis Francia (an. sc. 1356) Domini atq; Generosi, relictis imaginibus Equitum in Sigillis, posuerant Arma sua in parvis Scutis.

Now in what reverend esteem this practise of Sealing hath anciently been, may be observed from these testimonies. sc. Of a Charter made by K. H. 1. unto the Abby of Chesham, touching the Hundred of Blackherst, and divers Liberties, it appeareth, that being exhibited to K. H. 3. and through rude handling, the Seal cloven in sunder, that the validity thereof might not be lessened, the K. forthwith caused it to be confirmed (3 Maii 25 H. 3.) with this^b clause — Ne igitur prefata Carta, occasione fissura pradicta, processu temporis ab aliquo possit haberi vitiosa, hac presenti Charta nostra duximus testificandum, quod pradictum Sigillum sanum & integrum recepimus: Statuentes per hanc Cartam nostram, & pro nobis & heredibus nostris firmiter percipientes, quod pradicta Carta avi prefati Henrici avi nostri, nichilominus esse idem robur, & omnem eandem efficaciam habeat imperpetuum, quod haberet si Sigillum integrum esset & indivisum, sicut fuit quando prefatus Abbas eam nobis liberavit.

And for counterfaising another man's Seal observe what punishment was anciently used. Rex Vice comiti Oxon: Mandamus tibi quod Ankeriluni Manvers, qui captus fuit pro falsina Sigilli Roberti de Veteri ponte, abjurare facias terram nostram; & ipsum postea sine dilatione mittas ad mare, per aliquos de tuis, qui videant quod exeat à terra nostra &c. T. Rege apud Clipston 27 Martii. Nay so tender was every man in those times, of his Seal, that in case he accidentally had lost it, care was taken to publish the same, least another might make use of it to his detriment, as is manifest in the case of Benedict de Haghham in 54 H. 3. Where the Record runs thus, Memorandum quod publicè clammum est in Banco, quod Sigillum Benedicti de Haghham, cum uno capite in medio sub nomine suo, in quacunq; manu fuerit, de cetero nullum robur optineat. And not much unlike to this is that of Henry de Perpount, a person of great quality, in 8 E. 1. Memorandum quod Henricus de Perpount die Lune in crast. Octab. beati Mich. venit in Cancellaria apud Lincolniam, & publicè dixit quod Sigillum amisit, & protestabatur, quod si aliquod instrumentum cum Sigillo illo post tempus illud inveniretur consignatum, illud nullus esse valoris vel momenti. As also, that in 7 E. 2. Johannes E. recognovit in Cancellaria Regis se amisisse Sigillum suum, & petit quod dicto Sigillo deinceps non habeatur fides.

Nay by a Pleading^s in 9 H. 3. I find, that CC. marks damages was recovered against Henry de Grendon, and Will. de Grendon by Sir Raph de Crop-hull Knight, for forcibly breaking a Seal from a Deed. And in 13 E. 3. when by misfortune a Deed, then shewed in the Chancery, was severed from the Seal, in the presence of the Lord Chancellor, and other noble persons, command^h was not only given, for the affixing it again thereto, but an Exemplification made thereof under the great Seal of England, with a recital of the premises. Nor is that publicationⁱ made by John de Grefeley of Drakelow in Com. Derb. 18 R. 2. upon the losse of his Seal, lesse considerable Notum sit omnibus Christianis, quod ego Joh. Grefeley non habui potestatem Sigilli mei per unum annum integrum ultimo preteritum, jam notifico in bona memoria & sana mente; & Scripta Sigillo meo contradico & denego in omnibus a tempore predicto usq; in diem restorationis Sigilli predicti. In cujus rei testimonium Sigillum Decanatus de Repindon apposui. Testibus domino Thoma Stafford milite, Joh. Arderne, Joh. Corfoun de Lictleson, & Rog. de Montgomeri. Dat. apud Drakelow xviii R. 2.

And here we see, that as Henry de Beresford procured his nephew Roger Hillari, to affix his Seal to that Instrument before mentioned, in regard it was more known (which hath occasioned this digression) to both John de Grefeley now cause the Seal of the Deanry of Repindon to be put to his Deed. A multitude of Examples in the like kind I could produce; some of the Seals of Bishops, some of Deans and Chapters, some of Corporations, and some of sundry eminent persons, whose Seals were most notable, but for brevities sake I forbear; concluding my discourse of this matter with that which is very observable; viz. that King John, whilst he was Earl of Moreton, to his grant of the Church of Hope in Derbyshire made unto the Canons of Lichfield, affixed his gold Ring, with a Turkey stone in it, to the silk string whereunto the Seal was put, with this expression^k — non solum Sigilli mei impressione, sed proprii Annuli appositione roboravi. But further concerning Seales I refer my Reader to the learned Selden's Titles of Honour, Part 2. Cap. 5. Sect. 37.

And so returning to Sir Edmund de Beresford, I find, that in 9 E. 3. his Seal^l of Armes was Crusule fitchè and three flowre de lices, the colour sable and the field Arg. which coat hath a good affinity with Hillaries before mentioned; that differing from this in nothing but a border, as the Seal^m also sheweth. In 25 E. 3. this Sir Edmund, having by his Testamentⁿ, made at Brightwell in Derbyshire, bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Priory of Chaucumbe, betwixt the steps and the Altar, in the midst of the floor, if with convenience it might be: and to his poor Tenants of Chaulgrave in Derbyshire; Shottwell, Derfet, Wiltshaw, Wigginhill, Maney, Sutton, Wike-merthe, and Therpe, all in this County, given liberall Legacies, died^o in 28 E. 3. leaving John his son, possessor of most of his lands, by vertue of a special^p entail in 22 E. 3. For it seems he was^q illegitimate.

Which John wedded Alianore daughter to Ric. Earl of Arundell, and after that, another wife; but dying in Gascon 30 E. 3. left Baldwin his brother and heir xxiii years of age. This Baldwin was a Knight in 36 E. 3. and in 1 R. 2. constituted by Thomas de Holland (half brother to the K.) chief Guardian of all the Forests on this side Trent, his Lieutenant in that Office. In 4 R. 2. he had Free warren granted to him in all his demesne lands and Woods of Brightwell, Chalgrave, Pewham and Rufford in Com. Oxon. Stene and Fernyngho in Com. Northampt. Bykmarsh, Shottwell, and Wymshaw in this County, with Sutton and Meptham in Derbyshire: And in the same year was made Keeper of the King's Park at Eltham, for life; with a Fee of iii d. per diem, to be received out of the Rents of that Mannour. He was a special favourite and a powerfull man with K. Ric. 2. For besides the discharge of an Cl. li. due by him for the Wardship and Marriage of John the son and heir of John de Odingfells, he is noted to be one of those, who had the Character of an evill Counceller, given him by that tumultuous Parliament, held in 11 R. 2. and thereupon, with the Lord Zouch, and divers other great men, expelled the Court.

But the affection born towards him by the King, was not without great cause, I presume; For he had been servant to his Father the Black Prince, retained by Covenant for life, as well in Peace as Warr, having an Annuity of xl li. per an. granted unto him out of the Lordship of Cobentre; which the said King not only confirmed, after his Father's decease, whilst he was Prince of Wales, but again in the first year of his reign.

This Sir Baldwin had a Bear for his Crest, in regard it alluded so near to his name (a course very frequent in those times:) And having no issue, he settled a great part of his estate, by Fine, upon John Hore and Joane his wife; which Joane was grandchild by a coheir, to Will. de Ellesfield, and he grandchild of Gilb. de Ellesfield, by Joane his daughter, sister to Sir Edmund de Beresford before spoken of, as the Descent doth shew. This John being of Childerley in Cambridgeshire, and likewise Gilbert his son, resided wholly there: After which ere long, viz. about the beginning of H. 7. time, their male line extinguished, and this Lordship with other lands came to the Pudseys: For Edith cozyn and heir to the last Gilbert Hore, residing at her Mannour of Ellesfield near Driford, having a special liking to Rowland Pudsey, a younger son to Henry Pudsey of Barford and Bolton in Yorkshire, then a Student in that University, and a Gentleman much accomplished, took him for her husband, the posterity of which Rowland and Edith, have ever since enjoy'd it.

New-Hall.

This being a member of Sutton, was about the beginning of E. 3. time, possessed by one Will. de Sutton of Warwick; which Will. or his predecessors, had it (doubtlesse) from one of the Earls of Warwick, and granted it to one Rob. de Sutton a Merchant of Cobentre, who past it in 12 E. 3. unto Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, and Sir John Lizours of Fledborough in Com. Nott. Knight, to the behoof of the said Sir John and his heirs, as it seems, for the next year following, the said Earl released all his right therein accordingly; in which Release it is termed one Messuage called Pew-Hall. After this till 15 H. 6. I have seen no more of it, but then did the Homage in a Court Baron held at Sutton, present, that Sir Ric. Stanhope Kt. died seized thereof, by the name of the Mannour of Pew-Hall, held of the Earl of Warw. by the service of xs. xd. per an. a Heriot being then seized by the Bayliff. Whereupon James Stanhope son and heir to Sir Richard, exhibited a Deed, whereby it appeared, that his Father had in his life time enfeoffed Sir Thomas Aston Knight, Nich Goughall Esquier and others, in this Mannour and other lands, as well in this County as elsewhere, and therefore required a discharge from the Heriot. But all that I have further seen thereof is, that Katherine the widow of Will. Bassett of Fledborough beforementioned, demised it in 20 H. 6. unto Will. Deping of Sutton, and Ric. Ley of Maney, for 21 years, by the name of Dominium Vocatum Pew-Hall.

Pedimore.

Here is now no more remaining of an ancient Mannour place, that the Ardens had, than a large double moat; for after they settled in these parts, having another House on the South side of Tame, called Park Hall (whereof I have already spoke) they resided for the most part, there, and let this goe to ruine. I do not conceive this to have been the inheritance of that ancient Family, so long as Curdwozth and Wimwozth, (whereof I am next to discourse) but am of opinion, that they had it from one of the Earls of Warwick, after Sutton (within the territories whereof it lies) came to their hands: howbeit till 9 E. 1. I have not seen any mention of it at all, no not so much as the name; but then was it stiled the Mannour of Pedimore, and passed by Thomas de Arden of Roiley unto Hugh de Vienna, together with all his lands in Curdwozth, Wimwozth, Worhull &c. Which grant was no other than a trust, I suppose; for very soon after, did the same Thomas convey the inheritance of it to Thomas de Arden of Hantwell and Rose his wife, together with all his said lands in Curdwozth, Worhull, Wimwozth, Che-nours, and Overtown, as by his Deed, whereunto Sir Richard de Mandevill, Will. de Odingfells, John de Clinton, Thomas de Hasele, and Ric. de Whitacre, Kts. Hugh de Beresford, Anketyl de L'ile, and others, were witnesses, appeareth.

Who being thus in possession of it, began to exercise the like Liberty here, as he did in his other lands, not considering that it was within the compass of Sutton Chase, where the Earl of Warwick had so much privilege relating both to Vert, and Venison, as already hath been said; so that the Earl, having begun suit against him, he was glad to seek his favour, and submit to a peaceable Agreement; by which it appears; that the said Earl (sc. Will. de Beauchamp) condescended to grant unto them the said Thomas and Rose, and the heirs of Thomas, liberty to fish in that little stream, called Chroke, at his coming to Pedimore, and during his stay there, so far as his lands lay adjacent thereto: As also that they might have liberty to agist Hogs within their Woods of Curdwozth and Pedimore, take benefit of the paunage, and beat down Acorns for their Swine; and likewise gather such Nutts as should be there growing. And moreover to cut down wood for their Fewell and Hedges, without any assignation of the said Earl's Forester; and to make sale of twenty poundsworth thereof, so that it were by the oversight of the said Forester, to the end that the Chase might have least prejudice thereby: as also timber to repair the buildings, within his said Mannour of Curdworth and Pedmore, by the like oversight of the Forester, upon warning; or at least one of the Earl's Bailiffs at Sulton, or in those Woods, in the presence of two neighbours.

And if upon such warning given, the Forester should absent himself, that then the said Thomas and his heirs, might by the view of two neighbours, enter those Woods, and cut down and carry away so much as should be necessary: but after the death of the said Thomas and Rose, neither his heirs, nor assigns to take Eslovers for their Fewell and Hedges, nor Timber but by assignation of the said Earl's Foresters. And that their Woodward should be sworn to the said Earl and his heirs, as touching his Venison, carrying only a Harcher (i. e. rest-Bill) without Bow and Arrows. And further the said Earl did likewise grant for himself & his heirs, that the same Thomas and Rose, and the heirs and assigns of Thomas, should have liberty to make improvement of their Wast, within the said Mannours, according to the Sulton measure, to the extent of xx. acres only, and to inclose them according to the Custome of the Chase, so that Does with their Fawns might leap over the Hedges; and that they might reduce the same land to Tillage, as they should think fit in severall places, to the least damage of the Chase, and most advantage of the said Thomas, his heirs and assigns; Saving to the Commoners their Common of pasture when the Corn is off. And lastly that the said Thomas and Rose, as also the heirs and assigns of Thomas, might peaceably hold in, and enjoy four Acres and an half of the said Wast, whereof they had received the crop before the date hereof; which was at Pinworth the Sunday next after the Feast of the blessed Virgins Nativity in 16 Edw. 1.

Swet. f. 5.

In this Mannour House at Pedmore was anciently a Chapell; for I find that Sir John de Arden Knight, in 34 E. 3. had License from Rob. de Stretton then Bishop of this Dioces, to have a Priest for celebration of Divine Service therein: But now all is level with the Earth, the site thereof, with the lands thereto belonging, continuing to the posterity of the said Sir John (of whom in Curdworth I am to speak) till this day.

Curdworth.

This lying on the North-west side of Tame, and including Pinworth Berthode, and Duntun in its Parish, was in the Conqueror's dayes posselt by Turchill de Warwick, and by the general Survey^r, then taken, certified to contain 4 hides, the Woods being half a mile in length; with as much in breadth, and all valued at L. s. In that Record it is written Credetmorde, which makes me guess, that the name originally arose from some ancient owner of it in the Saxons time; perhaps Crida, for that was then a frequent appellation: but before the Norman invasion one Uluvinus had it.

Domesd.

In this place I have made choise to speak historically of that most antient and worthy Family, whose surname was first assumed from their residence in this part of the County, then and yet called Arden, by reason of its woodinesse; the old Britains and Gauls using the word in that sence, as Master Cambden hath observed: Not for that the same Turchill or his descendants lived here; for their principall seats were in other places; viz. Kingsbury and Hampton in Arden, on this side the Snare; as also Rotley and Redburne on the other, whilst some male branches lasted; but because this is the chief place, which continued longest in the Family, even till of late time (as I shall shew anon) and was near to that^{*}, where for the greatest part of these last 300 years they have had their residence, Hall.

Having therefore spoken so fully of the before mentioned Turchill, in Warwick, I shall now passe him by, with this only observation, that he was one of the first here in England, that, in imitation of the Normans, assumed a surname; for so it appears^a that he did, and wrote himself Turchillus de Eardene, in the days of K. Will. Rufus. This Turchill left issue^w Seward his eldest son (by the 6th wife) as also Peter a Monk in the Abby of Thorney; and, I think, Raph, of whom and his descendants, I shall speak in Hampton in Arden: and by a second wife Osbert, as in Kingsbury shall be further shewed.

Which Seward was not permitted to enjoy any large proportion of his Father's lands; the Earl of Warwick having the greatest part assigned^x unto him by K. Will. Rufus, about the beginning of his reign, in Comitatus supplementum (for augmentation of his Earldome) but what he had leave to retain, was by him and his posterity held by Military service of those Earls. Some^z say that he became Sewer to Henry de Newburgh, the first Earl of the Norman race; but all that I have seen further memorable of him is, that he was a witness to some principall Grants made by Geffrey de Clinton, Founder of Kenilworth Priory in H. 1. time, upon his endowment^a thereof; and to certain confirmations^b of Roger Earl of Warwick,^c and others: as also a speciall Benefactor to the Monks of Thorney in Cambridgeshire, by bestowing^d on them his Mill at Rilton, and certain lands in Flekenho, within this County: And that he left issue Hugh and Henry. Which Hugh, being a very pious and devout man, gave^e a large proportion of lands, out of his Mannour of Rotley unto the Monks of Stoneley: confirm'd^f to the Canons of Kenilworth the grant of Pakinton (which was of his Fee, and given to them by Geffrey de Clinton) Gave^g to the Canons of Leicester his Mannour of Berthode with an Hermitage^h there; as also one Messuage, one Mill, two Carucates of land, Lx. acres of meadow, Lx. acres of pasture, CCC. acres of Wood, and X. s. Rent in this Curdworth, with the advouson of the Church: And confirm'dⁱ to the Monks of Canwell that grant made by Cecile his sister, of one yard land lying also in this Lordship, with the meadow adjoining thereto: but it doth not appear that he left any issue, for Henry his brother succeeded him in the estate.

Which Henry in 12 H. 2. was certified^k to hold 5. Knights Fees of Will. then Earl of Warwick, as his brother Hugh did other five and a third part; and gave^l to the Canons of Kenilworth a meadow in Bathampton. He likewise confirmed^m to them the Mannour of Wainton, and partⁿ of Newton: As also^o the Monks of Combe what they had in Wilney, and to^p the Monks of Pipwell, Caufron; all which were of his Fee: and ratified^q his Father's grant to the Abby of Thorney, adding thereto some what more in Riton, of his own bounty. To this Henry succeeded Thomas^r, as son and heir; who gave likewise to the Canons of Leicester certain parcells of land and Woods in Berwood; and confirmed to the Monks of Stonley what they had in Rotley of his Uncles gift; making some enlargement^s thereof: So likewise^t to the Monks of Thorney, of what his Father, and grandfather had be towed on them; and moreover gave^u them all Salbridge in this County... This Thomas was one of those who met^x at the Tournament at Whitby in Nottinghamshire, contrary to the King's prohibition, for which his lands were seized on: but in 7 H. 3. he had restitution^y of them again: and having wedded^z Eustachia the widow of Saturnicus de Matalene, a Poictouin (one^a of those Courtiers that much guided the King and against whom the English Nobility took such high exception) departed this life before 17 H. 3. For in that year Avicia de Arden (wife to Will. de Arden of Robburne) having made a great complaint^b to the King, that whereas her said husband was gone on Pilgrimage to Jerusalem, and not returned, and yet there being no certainty at all of his death, the before specified Eustachia, had not only seized upon those lands, which the said Avicia had by her husband's assignation, to maintain her self in his absence, but taken away her son and heir: whereupon the King issued out his Precept to the Sheriff of this County, requiring him to put her in possession again, and restore her son.

Which last mentioned Thomas had issue Thomas, who ratified^c his Father's concessions to the Abby of Thorney: and in 35 H. 3. was^d a Knight. In 48 H. 3. this Thomas had Summons^e, together with many others of the most eminent men in England to appear at Orford in Midlent, there to advise with the King, and attend him in an expedition designed against Lewellin ap Griffith (Prince of Wales) and his complices, then in Rebellion: but what good affection he bore to the King, may be seen by his after-actions, for he presently took part with the rebellious Barons, and the next year following participated of their fate, being taken prisoner^f in the battell of Evham. Which unhappy enterprize, notwithstanding the Dictum de Kenilworth had made him capable of redeeming his Lands by a tolerable fine, was (as I guesse) the ruine of him: For I find that in 9 E. 1. he paid^g away all his lands here in Curdworth, and divers other places unto Hugh de Vienna: that in 14 of that Kings reign, he quitted^h to the Kts. Hospitalers the totall interest that he had in Riton (now Dunsmore): in 15. soldⁱ the Mannour of Rotley with the advouson of the Church unto Nic. de Eton: and about that time likewise granted^j unto Thomas de Arden of Hantwell and Role his wife, the inheritance of the Mannour of Pedmore, and of all his lands lying here in Curdworth: as also in Worham, Wintworth, Echenours, and Overton: and to shut himself out of all, made a conveyance^m unto Will. de Beauchamp then Earl of Warwick and Maud his wife, and the heirs of h. the same Earl, of all the Fees throughout England, that were held of him. The Armesⁿ he bore, were Chequi Or and Azure a Cheveron orles, which his Ancestors assumed, as it seemes, in regard that they held their lands of the Earls of Warwick, whose Cheveron was Ermine in the like manner; but whether he left any issue, I make a question.

I now come to Thomas de Arden of Hantwell, unto whom this Lordship with other lands were past by the last mentioned Sir Thomas, whose seat was at Rotley. This Thomas was^o in that Welch expedition of 5 E. 1. but little else have I seen of him, that is very memorable, other than the Agreement betwixt the Earl of Warwick and him, whereof I have spoken in Pedmore, and the bearing of his Armes; viz. E mine a Fesse Chequie, as appeareth by his Seal^p; as also that he married Rose daughter^q unto Raph de Ferrun, by whom (I think) he had the said Lordship of Hantwell; and left issue one only daughter called Joan wedded to Sir John Swinford Knight. To whom succeeded Robert his brother, who living at Wapenham near Wanbury, became Governour^r of Wanbury Castle in 15 E. 2. and in 16 E. 2. was in the Scotch Expedition: This Robert was in 3 E. 3. a Knight: After which, viz. the next ensuing year, he obtained License^s of the King, to fortifie his Mannour house at Wapenham, with an embattelled Wall of lime and stone; and in 5 E. 3. departed^t this life, seized of a very fair estate; left the Mannours^u of Draiton, Hantwell, Worham, Dunsmore, Pelushbury, Wapenham, and Swallowcliffe in Orfordshire; Wapenham, and Sudbury in Northamptonshire; with Perching, Adurton, Fulking, Lawke, Hangelton and Pote-knolle in com. Suff. Whose grandson Giles, being the last male of this branch, left an only daughter called Margaret, married^v to Lodewick Grevill Esq; from whom the Grevills of this County did descend.

But the next possessor^w of this Mannour, of whom I have seen any mention, was Raph, the son of Raph, a younger^x son to Sir Thomas Arden of Hantwell. This Raph was in 17 E. 2. certified to be one of the principal Esquires in this County, and by Isabell his wife daughter^y unto Anselme de Bromwich, left issue^z John and Henry. Which John bore for his Armes^a Ermine a Fesse Chequie; and in 33 E. 3. being a Knight, as also a powerfull man in this County (as my Author^b saith) impleaded the Abbot of Leicester for the Mannour of Berwood, with the advouson of this Church of Curdworth, given to the Canons of that House, by his Ancestors many ages before: whereupon the Abbot, fearing partiality in hearing the cause, for it was to be tried at Warwick, procured the King's Letter to the Judges of this Circuit: viz. Sir John de Montbray, and Thomas de Hengyly, requiring them that he might have equal right; by means whereof the Verdict past for the Abbot. This Sir John de Arden resided^c at his Mannour of Pedmore, as it seems by a License to have divine Service celebrated in his Oratory there, but left no other than heirs female; whereof Rose was married^d unto one Thomas Pakeson, and the rest dyed issueless: which Pakeson was outlawed^e for Felony in 43 E. 3. and dyed^f in 2 R. 2. leaving John his son, 7 years of age.

as the money will extend. Item, I will at the day of my buriall, that xii. pore women of my Tenant's shall have each of them a black Gown, with a Hood, apair of Bedes, Fourpence, and a Dinner, to bear each of them a Torch about my Herse. Item, I will have burning about my Herse xxiii. Tapers, and each Taper of half a pound of Wax. Item, I will every Months day, during the year, be sung a solemne Dirige, and on the morrow Masse of Requiem, for my soule and all Christen soules by Note; and at every Dirige and Masse to be bestowed iii s. iii d. amongst Priests, and Clerkes, Ringing, and Lights. Item, I will that a Priest sing at Wotton two whole Trentalls of St. Gregorie, with the Diriges belonging, that is for two years, and to have v l. a year, &c. Item, my best Gown of black Damask to my parish Church of Wotton, to make a Cope with all.

But here, before I proceed further with my historickall discourse of this Family, taking notice of the Mortuaries given by this John Arden and his Father, it will not be amiss to say somewhat, not onely touching the antiquitie, but the reason and originall occasion of such bequests; as also how in times past they were usually paid.

That which here is called a Mortuarie was by our Ancestors, the Saxons, called Saml-ſceat, as is to be seen in the Laws of Canutus, and signifies a tribute or pension payd for the safety of the Soul, the later syllable ſceat importing the same with census, vestigal, and pensio, as Master Lambert observeth: Neither is the word, with a signification not much unlike, out of use with us at this day, we commonly calling such money as Travelers pay for their entertainment, at a common Inne, the Shot. But ascending, as far as I can, to discover the antiquitie of this payment, I find a passage in a very ancient generall Councell of this Nation [Concilium Anhamense] called by King Aetheldred, at the request of Alpheagus Arch-Bishop of Canterbury and Wulfstane Arch-Bishop of Dorchester. An. M. ix.] ſaml-ſceat is ſaml-ſceat þ man ſymbel geſæpte à à æt openum ƿræps. Which words Sir H. Spelman thus interprets: Sed aquissimum est ut anima symbolum [quam pecuniam Sepulchralem nunc vocant] semper dependatur cum sepulchrum sit effusum: the same Canon being confirm'd by King Canutus 23. years after almost in the very same words.

But here we may observe, that though there be a time prefixt when this ſaml-ſceat, or symbolum anime ought to be payd; yet was it neither certain, whether it were Ox, Cow, Horse, Money, or other Good; nor indeed any other than arbitrarie: And no less doth the old Latine M.S. Copie of the before mentioned Synod Cap. 14. implice, where the Saxon Canon is thus rendred — Munera necnon defunctorum animabus concernentia, puto impendantur aperto; id est Let the gifts also which are given for the behoof of the Souls of the dead, be paid at the opening of the Grave. And further to make good what hath last been spoke, let us observe what Glanvill (a famous Lawyer, who lived in H. 2. time) hath to that purpose. — Poteſt quilibet homo liber (saith he) majoribus debitis non involutus, de rebus suis in infirmitate sua rationabilem diviſam facere, sub hac forma, secundum cuiusdam patrie consuetudinem; Quod Dominum suum primò de meliore re, quam habet, recognoscat; Deinde Eccle-

siam; postea verò alias personas pro voluntate sua. And going further saith — Quicquid autem diversarum Patriarum consuetudines super hoc teneant, secundum Jura regni, non tenetur quis in Testamento suo alicui persone, nisi pro voluntate sua aliquid relinquere: libera enim dicitur esse cujuscunque ultima Voluntas secundum has Leges, sicut & secundum alias Leges.

Now to give some reason for the name, I shall cite what Lindwood * expresseth thereof, sc. Mortuarium sic dictum quia relinquitur Ecclesie pro Anima defuncti; And for this he cites the Gloss. upon the Decretal Epistle of Pope Honorius the third, about the year 1220, and beginning of the reign of our Henry the third. But Sr Edw. Coke, from the words of Sim. Langham Arch-Bishop of Canterbury (near 300 years since) in a certain Constitution of his, thus hath it, * Mortuarium (saith he) is a gift left by a man at his death pro recompensatione subtractionis Decimarum personalium, & Oblationum, which is a more particular definition than the former; yet is not this very consonant to the instances in these two Testaments, viz. of Walter and John Arden before recited: for in the first Walter Arden bequeaths for his Mortuarie, and his Tithes forgotten, his best Ox, not or his Tithes; which and shews that they were not one and the same thing. And John Arden in his Will makes it more plain, viz. Item I bequethe for my Mortuaries, or Cors present a black Geldyng amblyng, that allmighty God may the rather take my soul unto his mercy and grace: And then, in a distinct Legacie, he saith, Item, I bequethe to the high Altar of Wotton for Tithes and offerings negligently forgotten iii s. iii d.

So that here we see Cors presentie is apparently the same as we call the Mortuarie, id est the Body presented or offered to the Priest; for where Mortuaries were used to be payd, the Body of the best Beast, or Good, was, according to the custome offered and presented to the Priest, in behalf of the Cors or person deceased. And yet, however here they are given as a Legacie, or bequest, which argues that of Custom they were not anciently payd in this place, 'tis very evident, that where they had been used to be payd, the Laws of this Realm did so settle them, that they were then recoverable as due debts; which the Statute de Circumspecte agatis, in 13 E. 1. doth manifest, in these words. Item si Rector petat Mortuarium in partibus ubi Mortuarium dari consuevit, &c. And Custome, in tract of time, did so prevail, as that they being held as due debts, the payment of them was enjoyned by severall Constitutions; the first whereof, that I have met with, is that of Robert de Winchelsie Arch-Bishop of Canterbury in An. 1294. 23 E. 1. — Quia inter Rectores Ecclesiarum & Parochianos suos lites capitimus extinguerem, quæ frequenter oriuntur; Statuimus, quod si decedens tria ad minus vel plura cujuscunque generis in bonis animalia habuerit, optimo, cui de jure fuit debitum, reservato; Ecclesia sua à qua recepit Sacramenta dum viverit, melius post optimum reservetur: id est the best being reserved for the Lord as an Heriot, the Church to have the next for a Mortuarie.

Which Constitution was farther, and more fully explained by Sim. Langham Arch-Bishop of Canterbury about Lxxx. years after, where he alledges the occasion of that payment to be pro recompensatione subtractionis Decimarum personalium, nalium, necnon & Oblationum, as I have already intimated; the truth whereof I somewhat doubt, for the reasons before exprest, though Lindwood in his Glosse upon that Constitution saith: Quia non remittitur Peccatum, nisi restitutione factâ, ideo statuit quod pro compensatione sic subtractorum secundum melius animal defuncti Ecclesia dampnum debet applicari; He means ut dampnum Ecclesia resarciat, to make some recompence for the Tithes and Oblations withheld.

Now, the manner of their payment was anciently by driving, or carrying the same before the Corps of the Defunct, on the day of his sepulture, I shall demonstrate by these ensuing testimonies. (1.) William de Beauchamp (father to the first Earl of Warwick of that Family) who died in 52 H. 3. scil. near 40 years since, in his Testament hath these words — Et corpus meum terra sepeliendum in Ecclesia Fratrum Minorum Wigornie; & coram corpore meo unum Equum ferro coopertum, ut decet, cum stramentis militariibus. (2.) In 12 E. 1. Roger de Clifford (a great Baron) in his Testament hath it thus — Et Corpus meum sepultura, matrixi Ecclesia de Doze, & cum corpore meo Dextrarium meum coopertorium, vel xxx. marcas. (3.) And in 20 E. 1. Sir Hugh de Plessers Knight thus — Et Corpus meum ad sepeliendum in Ecclesia Conventuali de Wussenden, juxta Monumentum patris mei ibidem, quondam defuncti; & cum corpore meo, nomine Principali, Palefridum meum album cum armatura qua decet.

(4.) Adde to these, that of Sir Walter Cokesey Knight in 24 E. 1. — Item lego Corpus meum ad sepeliendum in Ecclesia Fratrum Minorum Wigornie, & eisdem Fratribus x. marcas argenti pro omnibus Armis meis coram corpore meo venientibus, que quidem Arma integraliter Waltero filio meo remanebunt; & quidam Equus coram corpore meo veniens, tunc ibidem dicta Arma deferens, cum dictis Fratribus remanebit. (5.) And that of William de Beauchamp the first Earl of Warwick of that name, in 25 E. 1. who bequeathing his Body to be buried in the Quire of the Friars Minors at Worcester (as his Father did) goeth on thus — Lego etiam duos magnos Equos coram corpore meo Arma mea; secundum quod decet, portantes, ut predicto loco ubi corpus meum sepelitur, remaneant. (6.) As also of Ric. de Mundevile (of Werkswell in this Countie) in 27 E. 1. — Do, lego Corpus meum Ecclesia Conventuali Canoniorum de Chaucumbe humane tradendum sepultura, juxta patrem meum; & coram eodem unum Equum precii xx. marcarum, vel valorem xx. marcarum.

And to descend unto later times, that of Sir Robert de Legh Knight in 9 H. 4. Item lego unum Palefridum nigrum, coram Corpore meo die sepulture mee transsurum, nomine Herietis. As also that of John Marlesfeld Clerk in 9 H. 5. Item lego Equum meum vocatum le Bay ambler, ut offeratur ante Corpus meum in die sepulture mee nomine Principali.

By which instances that already said is not onely made good, but the originall occasion and practise of Horses being led, and Armour carried before the Corps at the Funeralls of great persons (which perhaps most men suppose to have been rather as a badge of their militarie services) sufficiently manifested. Many more of which nature I could exhibite, were it not for brevities sake:

but to make the matter more cleer, I shall further observe, that in a very antient autographⁱ of no less antiquity than Henry 3. time, in which the Depositions of sundry persons is recorded, to prove what Priviledges the Abby of Perthore had, forasmuch as their Charters and evidences had been unhappily consumed by Fire, when that Monastery was burnt; and wherein Walter the then Prior, sworn and examined, having declared his knowledge touching the right of Sepulture, which that Abby had unto the Bodies of the Inhabitants, not onely of Perthore but of xxxiii. other Villages, there named — Requisitus de Testamentis dictorum hominum (saith my Authoritie) dicit, quod Principale legatum debet deferri ante corpora defunctorum ad Ecclesiam de Perthore, & ibi per Sacristam illius Monasterii, & Capellanos dictorum locorum estimari; & factâ estimatione, medietas debet residere penes Sacristam, & alia medietas penes Capellanos dictorum locorum, &c.

And consonant to this, did John Fillol (an Essex man) by his Testament^k dated 20 Julii An. 1390. (14 R. 2.) who bequeathing his Body to be buried in the Church of Thorp, saith, — Item lego ad fugandum ante Corpus die sepulture mee unum Bovem meliorem: Nay, that it was the Custome of those elder times so to do, observe this following instance, by Thomas Frembaud Esquire in 8 H. 6. — Ac Corpus meum ad sepeliendum in Cœmeterio Ecclesia Omnium Sanctorum de Badlesden, &c. & meum melius animal coram corpore meo, ut mos exigit, die sepulture mee, nomine Principali.

And now a word or two to shew, that the Mortuarie, and Legacie for Tithes forgotten, though at first they were different things, (as by what hath been said may appear) came at length to be thrust together, and therefore might cause that exprestion in the Canon of Simon Langham before specified. I find that Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, who died in an. 1369. (43 E. 3.) by his Testament^m thus bequeatheth; Item ieo devise a chescun Eglise ou ieo su Seigneur, & ay per mez ministrez ma menere en mon temps, ma mellour Beste, illoques trove, en nom de Principal, pur gree faire de mez Dismez obliez.

And Thomas his son and Successor, by his Testamentⁿ bearing date in 2 H. 4. — Item ieo devise a chescun luy ou ie suy Seigneur ou Patron xx s. de monoie en nom de mon Principal; forspris si aveigre que me tollu la vie à Warrewyk, ie devise à l'eglise de nostre Dame susdite (sc. Ecclesia Collegiata Warwici) le mellour Beste que ia illoques le iour de ma moriant. And lastly, that of Simon Digby Esquire in 9 H. 8. who bequeathing his Body to sepulture in the Chancell of the Church at Colthill, in this Countie hath this exprestion — and my best Good to my Principal, after the use of the Countrey.

But this kind of payment was converted into money by the Statute^p of 21 H. 8. whereunto I refer my Reader. And so having herein digrest enough, by the help of that learned gentleman Master Thomas Barlow of Qu. Coll. Oxon. my singular friend, from whom I acknowledge that divers of the materialls, whereof I have here made use, were imparted to me, I return.

To this John Arden, who died . . . Junii 17 H. 8. succeeded^q Thomas, and to him Edward, (son and heir to William that died in his Fathers Ex autog. nris Edw. Ric. Con. ay. Fathers life time) in ward^r to Sir George Throgmorton Knight in 38 H. 8. whose daughter he afterwards married. Which Edward, though a gentleman not inferior to the rest of his Ancestors, in those virtues wherewith they were adorned, had the hard hap to come to an untimely death in 27 Eliz. the charge layd against him being no less than high Treason against the Queen, as privie to some foul intentions that Master Somerville, his son in Law, (a Roman Catholick) had towards her person: For which he was prosecuted with so great rigour and violence, by the Earl of Leicester's means, whom he had irritated in some particulars (as I have credibly heard) partly in disdain to wear his Livery, which many in this Countie of his rank, thought, in those days, no small honour to them; but chiefly for galling him by certain harsh expressions, touching his private accesles to the Countess of Essex, before she was his wife; that through the testimonie of one Hall, a Priest, he was found guiltie of the Fact, and lost his life in Smithfield, Tristis hic exitus nobilis viri (saith Master Camden) qui sacerdotis infidiis illectus, & ejusdem testimonio percussus, Lecestrii invidia vulgo vertebatur. Certum enim est illum Lecestrii invidiam, nec immerito incurrisse, cui in omnibus quibus poterat se temere objecerat, quasi adultero obrectaverat, & ut homini novo detraxerat. Upon whose attainder his lands were given away to Edward Darcy Esquire: and his heirs: but Robert son and rightful heir to that inheritance, being a prudent person, and well read in the Laws; by virtue of an Entail made upon his marriage (in his Father's life time) after very long suits, recovered all again, this Mannour of Curdworth, and Minworth, excepted; and living to a great age, with no small reputation in his Countrey, left Robert, his grandchild, heir to the estate. Which last mentioned Robert, being much accomplished with learning, and other excellent parts, died in the flower of his youth, whereby the inheritance of this antient Family resorted to his Sisters, of whose marriages I have in the Pedegree, before inserted, taken notice.

Vide. Annal. Eliz. per. Lambd. an. 1583. Within this Lordship did the Abbot of Leicester, in 13 E. 1. (having a large proportion of land by the grant of Hugh de Arden in H. 2. time) claim a Court Leet, as also Infangthef with Assize of Bread and Beer; and to justify this Challenge exhibited the Charters of K. H. 2. and Ric. 1. whereby the Canons of that house had sundry generall privileges granted to them throughout all their possessions. whereupon, the Jury finding that they had enjoy'd a Court Leet, with Assize of Bread and Beer time out of mind, those Liberties were allowed. And forasmuch as it appeared, that in the time of Abbot Henry, a Gallows had been set up, and a Thief there taken committing Felony, adjudg'd to death, and hanged by his Bailiff, the same Priviledge was likewise allowed.

Minworth.

This having been the freehold of one Godric before the Norman invasion, and in the Conqueror's time posselt by Turchill de Warwick, was by the generall Survey^b certified to contain 1 hide, the woods extending to half a mile in length, and 3 furlongs in breadth: All which with the rest were then valued at xs. In that Record it is written Penelworde, the later syllable signifying an habitation or dwelling, and the former shewing of whom, though a name now out of use.

But farther of this Village, I have very little to say, forasmuch as it continued in the Adens Family, till the attainder of Edward in 27 Eliz. and was past out of the Crown therewith, in 28 of the same Queens reign, to Edward Darcy Esquire and his heirs. That part of the Park, which lyeth Northward of the River, was first impaled by the before specified Edward Arden, about the beginning of Q. Eliz. reign, as I have heard: but before the recoverie of it by Robert Arden, his son. from Darcy, all the Trees were cut down, and rid out of it.

This being involved originally with Curdworth, is not at all mentioned in the Conqueror's Survey, neither have I seen any thing there.

Here was anciently a Chapell of our Ladie belonging to the said Canons, which long since went to decay; for in the beginning of H. 4. time, upon an extent of what they had in this place, there was certified to be onely a Hall, with Chambers, Buttry, Bakehouse, and all other necessarie rooms. Concerning which Chapell I further find, that Sir William de Arden Knight gave to Robert sometime Abbot of Leicester and his successors, one Mess. one Mill, and a large proportion of land lying in Curdworth, to find two Canons to celebrate divine service therein, for the health of his soul, and of the souls of his predecessors and heirs: But this, together with the Mannour of Berwood, as also the Rectory of Curdworth, appropriated to the before specified Canons, was after the dissolution of the Abbies purchased from the Crown, by Thomas Arden of Park Hall, and Simon his younger son, for the sum of CCLxxii l. x s. and to be held of the King his heirs and successors by the xxth. part of a Knight's fee, paying the yearly Rent of xxx s. iiii d. into the Exchequer. Whereupon, the next year following, by virtue of a speciall Feoffment made by the above-mentioned Thomas and Simon, the inheritance thereof became vested in William Arden eldest son to the said Thomas, and the heirs male of his body.

THat the high situation of this place, did originally occasion its name, is plain enough; Dun in our ancient English signifying a Hill: But till 36 H. 3. that Hugh de Mancestre (of whose Family I shall speak in Mancestre) had a Charter of Free-warren in all his demeln lands here, together with those at Mancestre, and Drakenegge in this Countie, I have not found any ment on of it in Record. Which Hugh was then posselt of certain lands therein; but not of the Capitall Messuage; for 'tis apparent that Philip Lovell in 41 H. 3. had the like grant of Free-warren, from whom the Lords of this Mannour do derive their title. This Philip is he, (if I mistake not) who was one of the King's Clerks in 34 H. 3. being brought into his service by Sir John Mansell, his chief Councillor: but *Math. To this Raph de Gorges succeeded Hugh, his son; who obtained License, from Guy de Beauchamp Earl of Marwick, to inclose that place of Wood lying within this his Mannour of Dunton, called Claphaw; and to make such a fence about it, as that neither Hart, Hinde, Buck, nor Doe; no nor Goat might enter therein; with this proviso, that if it should not be sufficiently inclosed to keep out the Earls Deer, belonging to the Chase of Sutton; and that, upon warning given by the Earls Bailiffs, the same were not made good within xx. days thereof, that then it should be lawfull for the Earl to lay it open again: And that if any of the said Earls Deer, being driven by hunting, did break into it, that the said Earl or his Servants might pursue them into the said Park, and there take and carry them away, without doing wilfull hurt to any of the Deer belonging to the before specified Rause: And for the better finding of such hunted Deer, that the Earls Hounds might likewise enter, but no Bow to be brought in with them. Which concession, being about the 28 E. 1. as I guess; for it hath no date, was witnessed by Sir Bernard de Brus, Sir John de Clinton, Sir John de Beauchamp, Sir Ric. de Whitacre, and others.

hides, there being then a Church, as also Woods that contained three furlongs in length and one in breadth, all valued at no more than x s. Which argueth that it then lay for the most part wast, in regard it is said to have been worth xxx s. in Edw. the Confessor's days. But there is little to be found thereof in our publike Records till Edw. 1. time, so that I am not able directly, to discover who posselt it in the interim.

In 29 H. 2. John de Doura impleaded Rob. fil. Willielmi, and Will. de Arden, for the fourth part of a Knight's fee lying in Coxcote (juxta Studley) and here in Wiltshage: And the Knights Templars were antiently posselt of some lands here, though by whose gift I yet know not; for about 12 H. 3. it appears ^a, that under their publick Seal they granted unto Margaret de L'isle two yard land and a half lying therein: Which Family have been long owners of land in this Lordship; for in 56 H. 3. Helewis the widow of Nich. de L'isle brought an Assize^b of Novell disseisin against Anketill de L'isle and others, concerning certain tenements here, and in Worhull. But that the Templars, notwithstanding what they so past away, as abovesaid, had still some possessions here, is manifest by that Presentment^c in 4 E. 1. Whereby it was certified, that they had withdrawn their suit due to the Hundred Court for 4. yard land and a half thereof.

Of that Family of Bereford, which had to do in this place; whether Osbert were the first, I cannot affirm; for till 16 E. 1. I have not found any thing of him in relation thereto; but then I do conclude that he was Lord thereof; and that by a Deed^d of Entail, he seised all his lands in this Wiltshage, Langley, Sutton, and elsewhere, upon Will. de Bereford his Brother. It should seem, that these Berefords had that here in Wiltshage, which belong'd to the Templars: for in 20 E. 2. (which was after the accession of the Templars lands to the Hospitalars, as in Walthall shall be shewed) it was found^e, that Will. de bereford, beforenamed, held a Mannour here of the said Hospitalars, by the service of xvii d. to be paid at Michaelmas and the Feast of the Annunciation of our Lady, by even portions, for all services.

Touching the Descendants of which Will. de Bereford, having spoke in Langley (their principall seat in this Countie) I have here no more to say of them, than that in 19 E. 3. Edmund de Bereford had a Charter^f of Free warren in all his demesne lands here. From whch Family it came to Hore, and from Hore to Pudsey, both by heirs female, as the Descent in Langley sheweth, and therefore 'tis needlesse here to give farther instance thereof.

In A. 1291 (19 E. 1) the Church (dedicated to S. Chad) was valued^g at vi. marks, and in 19 E. 2. the advouson thereof granted^h by Will. de Castell to Will. de Bereford: but in 26 H. 8. the value was certifiedⁱ at Cv s. over and above ix s. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

THis, though it be in the Parish of Withaw, seemeth to have been originally a member of Curdworth; for 'tis evident^k that the Ardens held it immediately of the Earls of Warwick: But the Ancestors of that Family, which doth still enjoy it, have posselt it for more than four hundred years, and had it first from one of the Ardens (lord of Curdworth) as is cleer enough by the Tenure: for by severall^l Inquisitions and other authorities it appeareth to be held of their posterity. The first mention that I have met with thereof, in any Record^m, is in 36 H. 3. Where it is written Duke-hull, Walt. de Beresford having brought an Assize of Novell disseisin against Nich. de Lile and others, for Common of pasture there: which Nicholus was the son of William, and he of Henry (as I think) for I have seen antientⁿ evidences, which do import as much; so that 'tis like that Henry was he that seated himself here: and probable enough it is, that Herbert del Yle (for so is his name written) might be Father to Henry; for I find him a witnesse^o to severall Charters of Geffrey de Clinton (son to Geffrey the Founder of Kenilworth Castle and and Priory) about the beginning of H. 2. time.

This William (father of Nich.) was a person of the superior rank amongst the gentry in this Shire, as may seem by a speciall^p Commission^q constituting him one of the Justices for the Gaol-delivery at Warwick and Kenilworth; but all that I have farther seen of him, is, that he was a Witnesse^r to the grant of certain assarted lands in Wedmore, which Henry Earl of Warwick made to Thomas de Arden: Neither after 10 E. 1. have I found any mention of the before specified Nicholus, he being then exempted from serving on Juries by the Kings Letters^s Pat. To which Nich. succeeded Anketil de Lile who wedded^t Julian the daughter and heir to Rob. de Blaggreve of Spoleton, and did his Homage^u to Philip Marmion (Lord of Samworth Castle) for the lands he had with her in frank marriage, of his Fee. Which Anketil had suits^v with Raph de Gorges, of Dunton, concerning certain lands here in Moxhull, about 22 E. 1. and left issue Henry, who was a Servant in much trust and esteem, unto Raph Lord Basset of Draughton (a great man in these parts) For in the Commission^w he had from that Baron, to treat with Sir Rob. Marmion concerning the Mannours of Peckherthillacre, Halughton, Pericroft, and Glascoate (all in this County) in 14 E. 2. the Lord Basset calls him notre chiere & bien ame Vadelot, his dear and welbeloved Esquier.

And (to manifest that he was a person eminently qualified) in 18 E. 2. he served^x in the Parliament then held at London, as one of the Knights for this Shire, having ii s. vi d. allowed him per diem, for his expences during that employment. But in 1 E. 3. upon a strong suspicion of Heresie, suggested against him to the King, a Commission to Will. de Clinton, bearing date 3 Maii, was forthwith issued out, not only to arrest and take him, but to seize on all his lands, goods, and Chattels; of which being advertised, he submitted himself to prison, and brought in sureties to stand to a lawfull trial therein; viz. Raph. de Crophull of Pottinghamshire, Walt. de Heselarton of Worshshire, Edm. de Shireford, David de Gaunton, Rog. le Ple-dour, and John de Alpath of this County; whereupon he was set at liberty, and his lands and goods restored to him, as by the King's special Precept bearing^y date at Pottingham 3 Sept. appeareth: After which, viz. in 5 E. 3. the said Lord Basset received his full accompt, for all the time he had served, and retained to him, and gave him a general^z Acquittance.

To whom succeeded John, who for the lands in Blaggreve, which sometime belong'd to Rob. de Blaggreve his grandmothers Father, obtained a Release^a from Sir Baldwin Frevill Knight (heir to Marmion) as to the suit due to his three weeks Court at Stipershill, and all other services for that land, during his own life, and the life of Maud his wife, saving to the said Sir Baldwin, his homage and a pair of gilt spurs at the Feast of S. Edith yearly. This John in 30 E. 3. payd^b to Sir John de Arden Kt. and Henry his brother, Executors to Raph de Arden their father, the sum of vi s. viii d. for reasonable Aid due upon the marriage of Sibill his eldest daughter, in respect of the lands in Moxhull, which he held of him by military service; and at the same time xxxviii s. iii d. for a^c Relief due to the before specified Raph, for those lands: and bore for his Armes three Eglets displayed, gules, as by his Seal^d and an old Glasse window in Bentley Chapell appeareth; which coat or part thereof, at least, was assumed by Henry his Father; for I have seen a Seal of^e his with one Eglet displayed, within the compasse of a roundle, and not in a Shield; a course very anciently used before they put their Badges into Shields, as I have observed in the Families of Beke of Cresby, and Darcy; the first of which bore their Crosse sarcile so; and the other their Cinqueseile.

Which John, bearing a singular reverence to the Monks of Berevale, desired that his body might be there buried, as may appear by certain land and Rent that he assigned^f to some friends in trust, for the

the finding of divers wax Lights to burn every Sunday and Holiday in the Chapell of our Lady, adjoyning to the gate of that Abby; for which respect he had a special grant^h from Robert de Atherston, Abbot of that House and his Covent, under their publick Seal, bearing date the Wednesday after Lammas 33 E. 3. of a certain proportion of ground, within the said Chapell of our Lady, containing seven foot square, where he and Maud his wife, at the death of each, should have sepulture; And that upon all great Festivall days, as well as Sundays, five waxen Lights should be burning there; as also that he the said John and Maud should have liberty to set up Images, in the same Chapell, in honour of the blessed Virgin.

To which John succeeded ¹ John his son, who, in H. 5. time, was retained^k by the Earl of Warwick, amongst other of his Elquires, to serve him with one Lance and one Archer, at the seige of Caleis, for which he was to receive^l xxx^l per an. besides his diet: And to him William, and to William Henry, who gave the Rectorie of Willmescote, with all the Tithes thereto belonging, to Thomas Clopton Master of the Gild at Stratford upon Avon, to the intent that the Priest singing the first Masse every day in the said Gild, should say De profundis before the holy Lavatorie, for the good estate of him the said Henry and Elizabeth his wife, and for their souls after their departure hence, as also for the soules of his ancestors and successors. Which Henry was Shiriff^m of this County and *Leicester*shire in the second, and nineteenth years of K. H. 7. reignⁿ and by his Testamentⁿ, dated 13 Sept. 20 H. 7. bequeathing his body to be buried within his own proper Chapell in the Church of S. Chad at Willmescote, before the Image of Henry the sixth, sometime King of England, departed this life about that time; for the Probate of his Will beareth date the next month following.

Unto which Henry succeeded John his son and heir, who taking to wife^o Anne the daughter and heir of Will. Lecrofte, had^p with der divers Houses, and a great proportion of land lying in Colwall; and other places. Of this John I find, that upon the birth of Elizabeth, second daughter to King H. 8. (afterwards Qu. of England) he received a special Letter^q from Qu. Anne, dated at Greenwich 7 Sept. 25 H. 8. advertising him of the good speed she had in her deliverance, and desiring his congratulation unto God for it, as also his Prayers for the good health, prosperity, and continuall preservation of the said young Princefle.

To whom succeed Nicholas^r, and to him Thomas^s, who wedded^t Alice one of the sisters and coheirs to John Masterfon. Which Thomas in the first year of Q. Mary, being one of the Justices of Peace in this County, received a speciall Precept^u from Francis Earl of Huntingdon, the Queens L. evenant, forthwith to muster and levy such and so many able men, well appointed for the Warrs, as he should call together, meet to serve the said Queens highnesse under that Earl, against the Duke of Suffolk and his complices, then proclaimed Traitors; and to bring them forthwith, both Horse and Foot to Warwick Castle, where the said Earl then lodg'd. In which service he was so active, that as a reward for his diligence, the Q. granted^w him a Warrant, under her Signet, to the Marquesse of Winchester, then Lord Treasurer, for a grant to passe the great Seal, of the Mannour of Hampton in Arden, for xxxi years in reversion after the decease of the Lady Margaret, then wife to Sir Gawen Carew Knight, upon the old accustomed Rent of xxx li. to be reserved unto the said Queen her heirs and successors: But the number of years fell short in the Patent^x; for it was but for xxxi. years, and the Rent increased to Lx li. As for the rest which relates to this Family, either in point of descent or matches, the Pedegree^y before inserted, will shew all that I can say.

Returning now to the banks of Tame, I come to Duffhorne, whereof, in respect it was heretofore a Grange belonging to Sperdale, I shall reserve what what is to be said, till I speake of that Abby, and so ascending the stream of Blithe (whose confluence with Lame is near this place, take notice next of Solihull, within the precincts of which Lordship it first enters this Hundred.

Solihull.

OF this, I have not seen any mention till King John's time; where the profit of the Leetes kept for the severall Hundreds and some other places, is certified², one Mark is accounted for it: but though the name be of no greater antiquity, yet that the place (I mean the whole territory, which of ancient time and still is reputed to belong thereto) is, I will presently demonstrate, notwithstanding that it had at first another appellation: and to that end shall begin my discovery by the light of that incomparable Record, viz. Domesday book; Where I find, that it was heretofore called Ulverley, and that Edwine Earl of Mercia posselt it in Edward the Confessor's days, but after the Conquest one Cristina (then owner of Ichinton longa in this County) At which time it was certified to contain viii. hides, and that the Woods belonging thereto, were 4 miles in length and half a mile in breadth, there being then a Church. How it came to passe appears not, but certain it is, that the rate of all was much lesse at that time, than before the Norman Invasion, for then it amounted to x li. in value, whereas at the time of the generall Survey, but liii li.

That this, with the other lands which the said Cristina then held, came to the Familie of Limesie, I have in Long Ichinton already manifested, here being the seat of Limesie's Barony, I mean in that place called Tilberley (about a mile distant from Solihull Northwards) though there be now so little memory thereof, that were it not for some grounds, lying adjacent to a petty Hamlet called Olton, which yet retaining the name of Ulverley, gave me occasion of farther search, I should have been at a great losse for the discovery thereof: but looking well thereabouts, and making diligent enquiry of the Inhabitants, I found a large Moat, containing within it at least an Acre, whereon they say a Castle long since was situate, though now nothing be left thereof (a parcell of old Oaks growing where the buildings stood) which tradition hath the more colour of truth, forasmuch as there is a Lane, near at hand, bearing the name of Castle Lane. Some of the neighbourhood do call this Hoggs moat, which I conceive is intended Odingsells moat, but by corrupt pronuntiation now so termed; for I have seen the name of Odingsells very anciently written Hoginsells. Which grounds being at least a mile diameter, have heretofore been a Park, as the Country people say, and is probable enough from the large bank that lieth on the out side of them, invironed with Lanes: Not far from whence, are the Vestigia of three very large Pooles, long ago converted to meadow ground. And 'tis not to be doubted, but that the Village now called Olton, was anciently this Ulberley above specified; which since the plantation at Solihull, having lost the true name, is, and hath since Edw. 1. time, for brevity, been called Olton, id est the Old town.

In H. 1. time I find, that Raphe de Limesie, the first of this line (who was a great man in the Conqueror's days, as appears^b by the possessions he then had, lying in divers Counties of England) gave^c to the Church of Pirton in Warwickshire (which he had founded) two parts of the Tithes here at Ulberley then written Ulterley. From which Raph, the male line of these Limesies continued but four descents; and then, between two sisters and coheirs, the Barony became divided, as in Ichinton I have shewed; this upon the partition falling to Basilin the wife of Hugh de Odingsells, by whom it was disposed of to Will. de Odingsells his younger son; in whose time was Solihull, out of the ruines of Ulberley, grown to be a town of some note, as it seems; for in 26 H. 3. he had a Charter^d bearing date 9 Apr. for a Mercate on the Wednesday every week, and a yearly Faire, beginning on the Eve of S. Alphege, and continuing for 3 days, that being the Saint to whom the Church had been dedicated; for that it was a very antient usage to have the Faire at that time, when the day of the Churches Dedication was yearly solemnized, I have in my discourse of Stratford super Avon, given a reason,

In the same 26th year of H. 3. was this Will. attendant^e upon the King, in person, beyond the Seas; but being returned, the next year following he obtained Licence^f that there should be a Perambulation made betwixt the lands in Kingsporton, and Bromesgrove in Warwickshire, belonging to the Crown, which then were in the hands of Henry de Hastings, by Lease, and the lands of the above specified Will. de Odingsells, here at Solihull, by the Shiriffs of Warwickshire and Warwickshire, and xii. lawfull and discreet Knights of each Countie. After which, viz. in 33 H. 3. this William (whom my Author^g calls miles strenuus) being made Governour^h of Pontgomer Castle in Wales, was the same year one of those that met at the Tourneament then held at Brackley in Northamptonshire, where he had some affront offered to him by Will. de Valence the King's brother, who being an Alien, had got Richard Earl of Gloucester to side with him, by which means the English were much insulted over.

In 34 H. 3. he had a Charter^k of Free Warren granted to him in all his demesne lands here. In 44 H. 3. he had Summons^l, with divers other great men, to be at Shrewsbury, upon the Feast day of the blessed Virgins Nativity, well furnished with Horse and Armes to march against Lewelin Prince of Wales and his Complices; and the next ensuing year, he had the like command to^m be at London, the morrow after the Feast of Simon and Jude. In 45 H. 3. he had an Annuityⁿ of xxx. marks per an. granted to him by the King, out of the Exchequer, untill better provision should be made for him. In 47 H. 3. he had again Summons^o to be at Warwick on the Feast of Saint Peter ad Vincula with Horse and Armes to resist Lewelin ap Griffith, above specified, with the power of the Welch, as also the like command^p to be at Oxford about Midlent, the next ensuing year: And was a Benefactor to the Friars of Whelesford, in this County, by the grant^q of certain lands lying here in Solihull, at a place called Hundeshale. This William bore^r for his Armes Argent a Fesse with two Mulletts in chief Gules, and left issue William and Nicholas.

Which William in 47 H. 3. had Summons^s to be

this Town, (dated 34 E. 1.) it is said to be infra Burgum de Solihull; but this Title of Burgum, attributed thereto, signifies no more, than that it was Villa insignior, a Countrey town of more than ordinary note, and not fortified as the word Burgum doth commonly import. In 7 E. 2. upon an Agreement betwixt Ela the widow of Sir Peter de Bermingham, and Raph de Perham, two parts of this town were settled upon the said Raph for his life; but afterwards to remain to the said Ela, and her heirs: which Peter and Raph were in 9 E. 2. certified to be Lords thereof. But I suppose it should have been Ela the widow of Peter de Bermingham, with Raph de Perham, because Peter was dead before. This Peter being a younger son (as I guess) to Will. de Bermingham (as when I come to that place shall be shewed) had issue, by the same Ela, John de Bermingham (as it should seem) who immediately upon his advancement to the Earldome of Lobeth in Ireland, past away this Lordship, with the advowson of the Church, unto John Hethum Bishop of Ely and his heirs; unto which Bishop, the next year following, did Philip Purcel and Ela his wife, likewise grant their estate herein (the same Ela being a daughter to Ela de Bermingham, by one of her husbands, as I think) whereupon the said Bishop obtained a Charter from the K. bearing date at Westm. 23 Febr. 13 E. 2. for a weekly Mercate here upon the Wednesday, and a Fair once every year for 3. days, beginning upon the Eve of S. Peter ad Vincula, commonly called Lammastide. Which makes me guess that the Mercate upon the same day, and the Fair at the Feast of S. Alphage, granted to Will. de Odingfells in H. 3. time (as I have shewed) were by discontinuance, either come to nothing, or else that the time for keeping of that Fair, viz. 19 Apr. was found somewhat inconvenient: And in 1 E. 3. obtained a Charter for free warren in all his demesne lands here, as also at Thorpe Constantine in Staffordsh. Afterwards within a short time, I find that the Inhabitants of this Lordship, joining with the Inhabitants of Kings-Poxton, and Werdly in com. Wigorn. for throwing down a certain Ditch, which Roger de Mortimer Earl of March had made in Kings-Poxton Wood, wherein those towns had Common of pasture, for all manner of Cattell throughout the whole year, were prosecuted sharply by the said Earl, who brought a Triall against them, by Nisi prius, at Bromesgrave, before Henry de Hambury, then one of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas: Which laid Inhabitants fearing the Earls greatness and power, durst not appear to challenge the Jurie; so that he had CCC^{li} given him for damages against them: But it so fell out, that in 3 E. 3. this mighty man, being seized upon by the King at Pottingham Castle, and by a Parliament, there held, condemn'd for Treason, was put to death, whereby all his possessions became confiscate; insomuch as the Inhabitants before specified, petitioned the K. that he would be gracious unto them in forbearing to proceed to Judgment upon that Verdict; whereupon he was pleased to remit thereof CCxvi li. xiii s. iii d.

The Chantry.

S. A.

There was a Chantry founded^d in E. 1. time
by Sir Will. de Odingfells Kt. for one Priest to celebrate Divine service for ever in this Church, for the health of the soules of Will. de Odingfells and Joane his wife, father and mother to the said Sir
Will. as also for his own soul, with the soules of his progenitors, Children, and all the faithfull deceased: for maintenance of which Priest, he gave,
with the consent of Joan his mother, and Raph de Limesi, then her husband, certain Houses and land situate near to St. Alphag's Well, within this Lordship, and iii li. yearly Rent, payable by feverall of his Tenants here, whose names are exprest in the grant. Which Priest was successively to be presented by the said Sir Will. and his heirs to the Bishop of Cobentre and Lich, for the time being, and by him to be instituted to the said Chantry.
In augmentation of whose maintenance, the said
Raph de Limesi, and Joane his wife, gave 5

marks yearly Rent issuing out of certian lands lying in Cotes (now called Coton) and perston juxta Kingsbury, in 5 E. 1.

To this Chantry in H. 4. time, did likewise Will. Hawe, and others, give^f one Messuage and
xl. acres of land, lying also here in Solithull, called Caldeford's Tenement, to the end that the Chantry-Priest for the time being, should celebrate Divine Service for the soules of Hugh le De-Spenser and Sibill his wife, before specified: but the grant being made without License obtained from the K.
the said lands became forfeited, and were in 14 H. 4.
bestowed upon John Birkyn, one of the yeomen of the Larder to the K. to hold during life.

How the means belonging hereunto, came to be so diminished, appears not; but in 16 H. 6. upon the addition of Lx s. more, yearly Rent, by one Thomas Greswold, it appears^g, that the maintenance was so slender, that no Priest did then serve therein; which Annuity he the said Thomas gave,
that the Priest officiating there, should sing

Mass every day for the good estate of the said K. H. 6. and of the same Thomas Greswold, and for their souls after their departure hence; as also for the souls of the Father and mother of the said Thomas, and all the Benefactors thereunto: So that in 26 H. 8. the valueⁿ thereof was found to be Cxxiii s. per. an. over and above xviii s. yearly Rent, payd out of it to severall persons: and in 37 H. 8. vi. l. xvi s. vi. d. per. an. over and above all Reprizes; at which time the Chantrie Priest serving here, did, upon occasion, assist the Parson in ministering the Sacraments; in regard that the Parish was spacious, and contained 700 Communicants.

This Chantrie was calledⁿ the Chantrie of Haltwell; the reason whereof I conceive to be, because the Houses given thereto, by Sir Will. de Odingfells, at the first Foundation thereof, did stand near S. Alphage his Well: but it wasⁿ in a Chapel on the North side of the Church of Solihull, called libera Capella S. Alphagi.

One thing more I shall observe, before I passe from this Church; viz. that in 13 E. 3. one Will. de Stow a Priest, and Parson of Solihull, gave^m xii acres of land, and six acres of meadow, to the succeeding Rectors here, for the finding of two wax Candles burning therein every day, at the celebration of Masse, and two Torches alwayes, at the elevation of the Host.

Olton.

This, through the corrupt pronounciation of the vulgar, is now called Oken end; but that it had its name after the plantation at Solihull, is apparent enough from what I have formerly said; that of Wolberle being waived, and thereupon called the Old-town. But by this new name of Olton, I find no mention of it till 19 E. 1. upon the extentⁿ of the lands belonging to Roger de Someri Baron of Dudley, who was then certified to have one meadow and a pasture here at that time: and in 23 E. 1. it appears, that Ela de Odingfells was jointly enfeoffed thereof, with William de Odingfells her husband, in which Record it is called Manerium de Dalton. After which, upon the partition of Odingfells lands, betwixt the daughters and coheirs, it came to Grey of Rotherfeld, who wedded Margaret, as the Descent sheweth: for in 2 H. 4. after the death of Sir Robert Grey of Rotherfeld Knight, Joane his daughter and heir, then the wife of Sir John Deincourt Knight, had liveryⁿ thereof: From whom it descended to Alice one of the daughters and coheirs of the said Sir John Deincourt, and Joan the wife of Sir Will. Lovell Knight, who in her right diedⁿ seized of it in 33 H. 6. leaving Sir John Lovell Knight his son and heir, 22. years of age: which Alice afterwards marriedⁿ to Sir Raphe Boteler Knight, who by a Fine levied in 6 E. 4. entailedⁿ it upon the issue of his body, by her the said Alice; with remainder to Anne the wife of Sir Remfride Arundell Knight, and the heirs of her body, and for want of such issue to the right heirs of Alice.

Of this Lady Arundell I findⁿ, that she married afterwards to Robert Crane Esquire, and that in 5 H. 8. she demised it to Catherine Boteler, widow, for xx. years. But in 33 H. 8. Henry Ogard Esq. wasⁿ Lord thereof; and since that (as I have heard) one M^r Oliver Briggs a Schopsire man, who sold it to M^r Middlemore of Esgebaston.

Fosham.

This being within the territories of Solihull, and antiently a member thereof, was, towards the later end of H. 3. or beginning of E. 1. time, givenⁿ by William de Odingfells unto Nicholas his younger son, and his heirs; and is, in that grant, bounded with Tanworth on the one side, Kings-Poxton on the other, Wesley on a third, and a great road-way leading from Witewrthe-milne, towards the Earl of Warwick's wood in Tanworth; reserving to the said William and his heirs, one penny to be yearly payd at the Feast of S^t Michael the Archangell for all services and demands whatsoever. By which deed was there also granted unto the same Nicholas, and his heirs, a Court-Leet of all the said William's Tenants inhabiting within those precincts; paying yearly to him and his heirs for the same, a pound of Cummin seed at the next Court, after Michaelmasse, to be held at Solihull.

From whom descended another Nicholas, Lord thereof in 10 R. 2. who boreⁿ for his Armes the antient coat of Odingfells of Solihull, viz. Arg. a Fesse gules, with two Mallets of the second in cheif, and the addition of three Escalops upon the Fesse, in which year there was a Fineⁿ levied thereof, by one Richard atte Rynding and Elizabeth his wife, to the said Nicholas and Joane, and the heirs of Nicholas, with warrantie against the same Elizabeth, and her heirs; whereby it should seem, that she was an Inheritrix. To which Nich. and Joane succeeded Margaret their daughter and heir, wife to John Waldeif Esquire, which John Waldeif had issue by her two daughters and heirs, scil. Alice married to John Boteler, and Anne to Sir Thomas Burdet of Arrow Knight. Which Sir Thomas, together with Sir Nicholas Burdet Knight, Richard Hubaud Esquire and others, in 15 H. 6. releasedⁿ to the said John Waldeif, and the same Margaret, all their right therein.

But it afterwards came to Burdet again, though how I am not sure; for certain it is, that Richard Burdet, of Arrow before specified, was seizedⁿ of it; and that Sir Hugh Conway Knight, who married Joyce his widow, held it in 19 H. 7. for the life of the said Joyce, as her Jointure; but afterwards it descended to Anne the daughter and heir of the said Richard, wife of Edward Conway Esquire, which Edward diedⁿ seized thereof in 38 H. 8. leaving issue John 35. years of age, and afterwards knighted. Here hath been antiently a kind of Park, and a Warren, which had the reputationⁿ of a Chase in Richard Burdet's time; but there is no more memoriall of the Mannour-house, than a double old moate of a large extent, a Coppice-wood now growing where the House stood.

Widenay.

This is an antient Mannour, though not a Village, what ever it hath been formerly; the first mention thereof, that I find, being about the beginning of H. 3. time, one Philip de Cumtune then grantingⁿ to William de Parles, his Kinsman, and his heirs Lx. acres of land here, which which are set out by certain metes and bounds: But the quantity I conceive to be much more than we now allow for Acres; for the words of the grant are per magnam mensuram de Arderne, in which Deed it is written Walthenhal, and the Rent reserved thereupon, x s. per annum, in lieu of all secular service and demand. From this William de Parles descended another William, who in E. 1. time, granted to Walter de Aylesbury all this his land at Wydenhap; which, as his Deed^f importeth, was before past to him from Sir William Bagot: So that it seems, that Sir William Bagot (then of Hide juxta Stafford) was the Chief Lord thereof: by whose grant to the said Walter, is reserved onely one Roſe yearly at the Feaſt of the Nati- vity of S. John Baptiſt, to be payd to him and his heirs for all ſervices. Which Walter in 13 E. 1. obtained a Charter^g of Free Warren in all his demeſn lands here; whoſe poſteritie, ſeated at Copſton (now called Coſton) in this Countie, continued owners thereof, as long as the male line laſted, John de Ailesbury in 17 H. 6. having a Patent^h for confirmation of the ſaid Free Warren, ſo granted as aboveſaid. But by Joane a daughter and heir of Ailesbury, it came to Somerville in H. 7. time (as in Coſton is ſhewed) and by the attainderⁱ of John Somerville Eſquire, in Q. Eliz. time, ſeichaeted to the Crown.

Langdon.

This place takes its name from the riſing ground, on the South ſide whereof it is ſituate; which lying in length like a ridge, was called Langdone, or Langdune, id eſt the long Hill. In the Con- queror's time one Almar held^k it of Turchill de Warwick, it being then certified to contain two hides and a half, valued at xx s. having Woods of one mile in length, and half a mile in breadth. But in H. 1. time, one Chetilbernus poſſeſſed it, by the grant of Siward de Arden, ſon to Turchill be- fore mentioned: which Chetilbern is written^l Chetilbernus homo Siwardi, and ſometimes^m Ketelbernus de Langdona, being not onely a Tenant to the ſame Siward, but his ſervant in the Officeⁿ of Sewer. This Chetilbern had a ſon called Robert, who died, as it ſeems, without iſſue; for the poſteritie of his daughter inherited his lands, and aſſumed the ſurname of Launde, or de la Laund, though from what place I am not ſure: the Chri- ſten name of which daughter appears not; but ſhe was the wife of one Thomas fil. Thurſtani, called alſo Thomas de Tamewuda: 'Tis like that he lived at Lamworth, and was a Retainer to the Alar- mions there; for his poſteritie were owners of a place called Stretford, lying near Faleſep-byſog, upon Watling-ſtreet (near Lamworth) as alſo this of Lea juxta Perſton in this Hundred, both Marmion's fee.

Of theſe I find that in 37 H. 3. James de Lande had (inter alia) a Charter^o of Free Warren in all his demeſn lands here; and paſt away his eſtate in this place, to one Gilbert de Kirkeby, with the advouſon of the Nunnery of Benwood (of his An- ceſtors Foundation). For the ſaid Gilb.^p granted the Capitall Meſſuage, or Mannour place here, with all the lands thereto belonging, and ſervices of Freeholders & others, together with the Patronage of that Religious Houſe, unto William de Arden and his heirs, for which he had Cxl. marks of ſil- ver; reſerving to the ſaid James, whom he calls Capitalis Dominus feodi, and his heirs, all ſuch ſervices that were of right due for the ſame. Of which William de Arden and his Family, I pur- poſe to ſpeak in Hampton in Arden, where I ſhall more fully ſhew, how much of their inheritance was diſpoſed of to Queen Elanore, by John le Lou and Amice his wife, one of the heirs to Richard his grandſon.

And though this Mannour of Langdon be not particularly mentioned therein, yet do I believe that it then paſt to her, as lying within Solihull, which is there expreſſed; for the Plea^q Roll of 46 E. 3. directly aſſirms as much. And in 20 E. 1. upon that grant^r made by the King to the Monks of Weſtmiſter, of divers Mannours ſituate in this and other Counties, to the intent that they ſhould ſolemnize the Anniverſarie of the ſaid Queen Elanore, then deceaſed (as in Knoll ſhall be farther maniſeſted) this of Langdon is one of the number, which in 22 E. 1. was certified^s to be held by the Abbot of Weſtmiſter of John the ſon and heir of James de la Lande, rendring to him yearly five marks of ſilver; and that the ſaid John held it of Walter de Winterton in Capite, by the thirtieth part of a Knights fee. Upon the diſſolution of which Abby, in 20 H. 8. there was firſt^t a Dean and Prebendaries ſetled, but ſoon after^u a Biſhop; who being ſhortly removed, the whole City of Weſtmiſter and Countie of Glouceſter were added^v to the Dioces of London, Nicholas Ridley, then Biſhop, poſſeſſing this Mannour; which (it ſeems) with ſome other lands, that had belong'd to the Abby of Weſtmiſter, were granted^x to him.

But ere long after, it came to John Greſwold, and by Alice^y his eldeſt daughter, and one of the coheirs to her brother Richard, to Thomas Dabridgecourt (deſcended by a younger branch, as their Pedegree ſheweth) from the famous Sanchio Dabridgecourt, one of the Founders of the moſt noble Order of the Garter: which Thomas, having been a Juſtice^z of Peace in this Countie, from 16 Eliz. for many years, and high^a Shiriff of the Shire in 29 Eliz. died^b 12 Maii 43 Eliz. leaving iſ- ſue^c by the ſaid Alice, four daughters, his heirs;

Leic. Esquire, whose posteritie, as part of her inheritance, do still enjoy it.

Henwood.

THIS place, being originally a part of Langdone, last spoken of, was about the beginning of King H. 7. reign, given by Ketelberne, then owner of that Lordship, to the Nuns of Estwell; for so was the Monasterie, upon its first foundation called, being built near a fair Spring lying Eastward of the said Langdone, and dedicated to S^t. Margaret. Which Ketelberne, by his Charter, whereby he so disposed of it, set forth the metes and bounds thereof, as followeth: viz. from the Ditch called Winewodshed, by Marrewell, to Coleford; and thence along the River Blithe, to the confluence thereof with Perreboch; and ascending Perreboch till it meet with Rodboch; and from thence to the head of the said Rodboch; and so by the midit of Timbleseage, unto the Ditch called Winewodshed, excepting Pachellingewich: Granting likewise unto them a Free Court, with all Customes and Liberties, in as ample manner as he the said Ketelberne had his own Court, with Customes and Liberties, from Hugh de Arden his superiour Lord: And pasturage for all their Cattell, Horses, Sheep, Goats, and Hogs, in every place where his own used to feed, without paunage, or any custome at all to be paid for them: And in defect of any of his own, that theirs might depasture where his should be, in case he had any. And moreover gave them power to take timber in Langdon-wood, for the structure of their Church, and other buildings; with leave to erect a Mill, wheresoever they could find a fit place, upon any part of their land, his lying opposite thereto.

But afterwards the name of Estwell growing out of use, it came to be called Hean-wood, by reason of the tall Oakes there growing, the word hean in our old English signifying high. Unto these Nuns, which were of S. Benedicts Rule, did Pope Gregory the ix. in Anno 1228. (12 H. 3. confirm all such Tithes as they had obtained within the precincts of Solihull, together with the rest of their possessions, whereof I shall here exhibit a short view, with the Donors names; viz. one yard land in Rodburne, by William de Arden, given to them about the beginning of H. 2. reign, as may seem by the confirmation thereof, made by Walter Bishop of Chester; as also the advowson of the Church, which was appropriated to them by G. Muschamp Bishop of Cobentre in King John's time. To these did Ralph de Lande adde all his Land and Wood called Habekeleard, with a Mill situate upon the River of Blithe (now called Henwood-Mill): And James de la Lande, his son; certain lands and Houses lying in that part of Langdon called Suthey. As also Roger de Camvill an Annuite of viii s. issuing out of lands in Syustoke, in this Countie, which in his grant are particularly named.

In 33 E. 1. the Abbot of Westminster bestowed on them xv. Acres of Watte, belonging to his Mannour of Longdome before specified: and in 4th E. 3. Richard de Feure of Brandon two Me^{ss}. xxx. acres and half of land, xii. acres of Meadow, and xxviii s. iv d. Rent, lying in Wetford, Church-Lawford, Stretton, Winstethorpe, Merton juxta Lalleford; and Wetford juxta Marwick.

And besides these inferior persons, I find that King Ric. 2. was likewise a Benefactor to them, granting the advowson of the Church of Choleton de Determore to this House, in 22. of his reign: So also King Henry 4th who gave them the perpetuall patronage of the Church of Everdon, in Northamptonshire, in the first year of his reign: both which Churches were appropriated by Pope Innocent the vii. in anno 1404. (5 H. 4.) by whose Bull it appears, that the Church of Wikenhall in this Countie, was united to this Monasterie at the very first Foundation thereof; and that at the time of the appropriation made of the Churches before specified, the Nuns of this Covent were xii. in number.

But it being one of the small Monasteries (for in 26 H. 8. the yearly revenues belonging thereto, were certified at no more than xxi li. ii s. ob.) it was dissolved by the Statute of 27 H. 8. whereupon Joane Hugford, the then Prioresse, had an Annuite of iii li. vi s. viii d. granted to her for life: After which, scil. in 31 H. 8. the King by his Letters Patent, dated 25, Febr. in consideration of CCvii li. v s. granted to John Higford and his heirs the site thereof, and divers lands thereto belonging, lying within the Parishes of Solihull and Knoll, in this Countie, to be held in Capite by the twentieth part of a Knight's Fee, paying xxiii s. i d. yearly to the King his heirs and successors in the name of a Tenth: which John, being descended from the Hugfords of Comescote, (of whom I have spoke) by William Hugford of Winstethorpe, a younger son of that Family, having so obtained it, pulled down the Church, transform'd the House, and seated himself thereat: To whom succeeded John his son and heir, and to him likewise another John, who sold it to M^r. William Spooner in our memory.

D. Johanna Hugford 28.
H. 8.

In this Parish of Solihull, have lived severall Families of ancient Gentlemen, viz. Boteler, Greswold, and Waring; which last still continues. Of Boteler, Richard, was the first of whom I find any certainty, viz. in 8. H. 4. who had issue John, a Lawyer, afterwards of Elmedon, where his posterity continued for some descents; so that I shall reserve what I have further to say of him, and them, till I come to that place.

Of Greswold, the first that I have seen mentioned, by any authentique authority, was Richard Greswold, who died before 13 H. 4. And the next, Thomas, recorded in 12 H. 6. amongst those persons of quality in this County, which were sworn to observe the Articles concluded upon in the Parliament then held. Which Thomas in 16 H. 6. having the custody of the Mannour of Solihull, together with Sheldon, committed to him (then seized into the King's hands upon the death of Edward Duke of York) augmented the allowance for support of the Chanrie-Priest at Solihull, and was a Justice of Peace in this Countie, from 21. till 36 H. 6. From whom descended John Greswold of Langdon Hall, before mentioned.

I am not certain how long the Warings have resided in this Parish; for the first mention that I meet with of them here, is in 21 H. 7. their seat being called Berry-Hall: but anciently they lived within the precincts of Tanworth, for I often find them stiled of that place, and that Joan Waryn in 51 E. 3. was in Commission, with other persons of quality in this Countie, for assessing a Subsidie of Pole-money, viz. in d. upon every head: So also in 2 R. 2. for collecting a Subsidie then granted; and in 7 R. 2. for assessing and gathering the half of a Tenth and Fifteenth. To whom succeeded Thomas Waring of Toneworth, one of those in this Countie, sworn to perform the Articles concluded on in the Parliament of 12 H. 6. being then stiled Armiger. Of which Family was likewise the Ladie Alice Waring Prioresse of Henwood in 38 H. 6. But to trace down their descent particularly, I shall not need, in regard they continue posselt of their antient lands to this day, having much adorn'd their House by matching with divers very good Families; viz. Butler of Elmedon, Hubard of Ipoley, Baskerville of Cresley in Com. Hereford, Hugford of Henwood, and Middlemore of Esgebaston, bearing for their Armes Azure a Cheveron betwixt 3. Lions passant Or.

Hampton in Arden.

BEing now past the precincts of Solihull, I come next to Hampton in Arden (on the Western bank of Blithe) in which parish are these severall Villages and Hamlets, scil. Pathurst, Knoll, Balshall, Kinwaldsey, Widington, and Charlesworth; but all of them, except Widington, situate on the other side the River. This, with divers other fair Lordships, being the inheritance of one Luevinus, before the Norman Invasion, was disposed of by the Conqueror, to Geffrey de Wirce (of whom in Spenskirby I have spoke) and by the generall Survey rated at x. hides, there being then a Church, as also a Mill of xld. and Woods extending to three miles in lenth, and as much in breadth, all valued at Cs. In that Record it is written Hantone, which manifesteth that the name was originally occasioned from the situation, hean in the Saxon signifying high, though by contraction written Han, and through corrupt pronunciation Ham. But by what I have said in Spenskirby, it will appear, that all Wirce his lands were conferred on Nigell de Albani; which Nigell had issue Roger surnamed Moubray, by whom the Ardens, who were Lords of this Mannour, were afterwards enfeoffed thereof.

Of these the first that had to do here, was called Radulphus de Hamtona; but whether he were one of the sons to Turchill de Warwick (called also Turchill de Ardena) of whom I have spoke both in Warwick, and Curdworth, I dare not absolutely affirm, though his posterity assumed the surname of Arden; but do conjecture that he was. Of W^{ch} Raphe, I find mention, first in 5. Steph. and lastly, in 33 H. 2. where, being then a Justice Itinerant, he is termed Radulphus de Ardena. But cleer enough it is, that though he took his surname from hence, yet he was not absolute owner hereof, nor, indeed, of any more than certain lands called Chadlesworth, then reputed as a Member of this Lordship; which lands he purchased of Roger de Moubray before mentioned: for the Mannour-house, with the demesns, and advouson of the Church, were first given, by the said Roger de Moubray, to Raph de Hais, in exchange for certain lands lying in Spenskirby: Of which Raphe, did Rob. de Arden, one of the sons of the said Raphe, acquire them, for L. marks of silver. This Robert, being a Clergie-man, and Archdeacon of Leicester in Spenskirby, gave all his estate, here, unto Peter and Roger his brothers. Which Peter (a Clerke also) having Chadlesworth, before specified, by his Father's gift, disposed of it, and all his share in the rest, unto the same Roger; who for confirmation thereof, not only obtained the Charters of Roger de Moubray

bray above mentioned, and of Nigel his son and heir, but of the Bishop of Lisieux, together with the Dean and Chapter of that Church, under their publique Seals.

To whom succeeded William, and to William, Hugh de Arden. Which Hugh received that Christen name from Hugh fil. Willielmi, his God-father (otherwise called Hugh de Hatton, of whom in Hatton I have spoke) and a kinde token, withall, of his said God-father's love; scil. the Mill at Amington in this Countie, as also a yard land, lying in that place: in which grant his God-father calls him Filiolus, quem de sacro Fonte suscepit; whence it appears, that in times past the God-fathers received the Child out of the Priests hands, as soon as it had been dipt in the Water: which usage was very ancient and perform'd by more than three persons, as it may seem by that constitution of Hubert Archbishop of Canterbury, in the year 1151. the words whereof are these.—Statuimus ne in Baptismo plures quam tres suscipiant puerum de sacro Fonte, masculinam duo mares & una mulier, Feminam dua femina & unus mas.

Nor is it lesse observable, that alluding to that spirituall illumination, whereof S. Paul cap. 6. vers. 4. ad Hebraeos & cap. 10. v. 32. maketh mention, conveyed unto those which were partakers of this sacred rite, White garments were very anciently used thereat: for within two hundred years after our Saviours Nativité, Dionysius the Arcopagite hath this expression,

—Amiciunt initiatum vestimentis lucem imitantibus, seu luminis instar resplendentibus: and a little after, thus, &c.

Deformitas illius (viz. originaria) refingitur illustrata vitâ universis luminiferâ.

And so also Lights: for upon the baptizing of divers Jews at Arbern by S. Avitus Bishop of that Citie, in the year of Christ 579. I find it thus express'd by an approved Author^b

—Flagrabant cerei, Lampades resulgebant, albebat tota Civitas de grege candido; nec minus fuit urbi gaudium, quam quando Spiritu Sancto descendente super Apostolos Hierusalem videre promeruit.

And for further illustration of what I have said, take these ensuing testimonies^c;

—Sacerdos Templum ingressus, induit se Sacerdotalibus vestibus albis & manipulis, accensisq; omnibus luminibus, & accepto thuribulo in Nativitatem pergit. And in his Prayer useth these words — Tibi quæq; Domine complacuit, ut illuminatio vultus tui perpetuo luceat in corde ipsius &c. Indumentum incorruptionis quo amictus est, im pollutum in eo atq; purum ab omni inquinamento conserva. And moreover — Ut illustremur splendore scientie ac pietatis per adventum Spiritus Sancti, Dominum precemur Kyrie eleison. And again — Pro eo qui modo accedit ad sanctam Illuminationem, ejusq; salute Dominum precemur. Kyrie eleison. As also — Ut Filius Lucis & heres aeternorum bonorum renuntietur, Dominum precemur Kyrie eleison. And lastly, — Benedictus Deus qui illuminat & sanctificat omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum, nunc & semper, & in secula seculorum, Amen.

Neither was that solemn Ceremonie of Lights, (thus anciently in use at the Sacrament of Baptisme) omitted till of late time: for not much more than 200. years since, the practise thereof did continue, as by this notable instance appeareth^d; Probatio atatis Johannis fratris & heredis Ricardi de Holland, filii & heredis Johannis de Holland Comitis Huntendonie;

—Thomas Coaling examinatus, dicit, quod bene constat ei de atate &c. quia Abbas de Lavelloke, fuit unus Compater dicti Johannis Holland; & vidit quod dictus Abbas dedit predicto Johanni Holland, statim post Baptismum, unum Ciphum aureum, cum circulo aureo, formatum ad modum Lili, cum x lib. auri in eodem cippo; Et Nutrici xx s. Johannes Shaldon Prior de Plymton, alter Compater, dedit ei xx li. auri. Johanna uxor Johannis Pomeray Chivalier portabat dictum Johannem versus Ecclesiam baptizandum; & Joh. Pomeray Chivalier, maritus dictæ Johannæ, & Joh. Dynham Chivalier, dictam Johannam inter se, in brachiis suis, versus dictam Ecclesiam conducebant; Et xxiv. homines portabant xxiv Torcheas, non illuminatas, ante dictum Johannem; quæ quidem Torchea immediate post nomen dicti Johannis datum, illuminata fuerunt.

And as this venerable and solemne order was anciently used in the baptizing of Children, so were the Founts themselves, of old time (of which sort I have observed many) adorn'd with the Images of Saints, to the end that such as were baptized might afterwards have before their Eyes, those whose deeds they were to imitate, as M^r Cambden, from Pontius Paulinus his Epistle to Severus, well observeth: For in the first plantation of Christianity amongst the Gentiles (saith he) such onely as were of full age, after they were instructed in the principles of Christian Religion, were admitted to Baptisme, and that but twice in the year; scil. at Easter and Whitsontide, except upon urgent necessity, at which time they were attired in white Garments, as is before express'd: Concerning which and all other Ceremonies heretofore used at that sacred rite, see Joseph. Vicecom. de antiquis Baptismis ritibus.

But I return. This Hugh underwent divers eminent employments. In 21 H. 3. he was^a one of the Justices of Assize in this Countie; and from 22. to 24. inclusive, in^b Commission for the Gaol delivery at Warwick. The Eschatorship of this County, he also held^c for divers years (an Office then of great reputation;) but being grown aged, as also a^d Knight, in 34 H. 3. by the mediation of Walter de Cantilupe Bishop of Worcester, he procured the King to substitute^e another in his room: And the next year following, obtained a^f Charter of Free warren in all his demesne lands here, as also in Knoll; together with the grant of a perpetuall at this his Mannour of Hampton, weekly every Tuesday, with an yearly Faire for three days; viz. on the Eve, day, and morrow after the Feast of S. Luke the Evangelist. This Hugh had issue^g Sir William de Arden Knight^h, of whom there is little memorable, other than hisⁱ adhering to the rebellious Barons, whose forces being at length scattered, he fled into the Ile of Arholme in 50 H. 3. with young Simon Mountfort; and there, discerning his case desperate, employed James de Audley, a person of great honour, to undertake for his submission unto the Dictum de Beaufort; whereupon he was received^k again into the King's favour, and protection.

After which, viz. in 4 E. 1. he died^l, slain, as 'twas suspected, by one Richard de Lisle, though how, or upon what occasion appears not: which Richard being imprisoned at Shrewsbury for the fact, found sufficient baile^m, of his neighbours in this Countie, to stand to a lawfull triall at the next Assizes to be held at Warwick; viz. Richard de Whitacre, Henry de Sheldon, William Fundu, Anketill de L'isle, Simon de Blagreve, Thomas Orbeni, William de Sidenhale, Raphe de Culi, Roger de Buryate, Norman le Venour of Episteton, Robert de Longasse, and Nicholas Nigtingale of Wiltshaw. By the Inquis. taken after his death it appears, that he had here a Mannour-House, two Gardens, 460. Acres of land, according to the large hundred, a Meadow valued at vii li. xii s. two Parks, one Pool, two Water-Mills, and Fishing in the River of Blithe: as also xxxvi. yard land held in Villenage, with vii li. xii s. v d. yearly Rent, due from severall Freeholders in Wiltwoldesley, Didington, Elmedon, Wikenbull, Sheldon, Hulverle, Donile, and Puthurst: the value of all, excepting the advowson of the Vicaridge, being Lii li. xvi s. v d. Of which two Parks, one lay North-westwards of Hampton-Church, wherein, on the outside, very neer to the Church-yard, stood a Mannour-House, as by the moat is still to be seen: but the other, almost a mile and a quarter distant from the same Church, North-west, towards Elmedon, (antiently called Wederichelesley, in which was a Castle, where the intrenchments do appear, and are still called Castle-hills) lyeth in the Parish of Wikenbull, though it be a member of this Lordship.

But upon the death of the said William de Arden, without issue (Richard his brother being^p heir to the estate, as also within age, and an Ideo: ⁹) the custodie of this Mannour was granted by the King to Berth. de Sudles (a person of great quality, as in Epist. appeareth) so that the inheritance reverted to the descendants of Hawisa and Oliva, sisters of Hugh, and Aunts to the said Richard, as the Descent sheweth; of which, Amicia, grandchild to Oliva, with Sir John le Lou Knight her husband, sold all her right, not onely in this Lordship, but in the rest of the lands hereabouts, as also in Burton super Swale in Yorkshire, unto King Edw. 1. and Queen Elanore, in consideration of xxx li. per annum Rent, to be received out of the Mannour of Newton-Harcourt, by the said King's assignation, during their naturall lives, and the longer liver of them. Which part so purchased, being the full moytie (for Margerie the other sister had the Mannour of Hund-Burton in Yorkshire allotted to her part) and assigned for the said Queens immediate use, gave opportunity to her Officers to possesse themselves of all the rest; so that Sir John Peche Knight, son and heir to Hawise before specified, was constrained to sue for his right therein, which at length he recovered, and had livery thereof; and afterwards obtained of the same Queen the other moytie. In whose Family it continued til Richard 2. time, and then, by a daughter and heir, came to the Mountforts of Colshill; by whom it was posselt, till the attainer of Sir Simon Mountfort Knight, in 11 H. 7. that it elcheated, with the rest of his lands, to the Crown, as in Colshill is shewed.

But before I descend to manifest the same in particulars, I shall here speak historically of Peches Family, in regard that this was their principall seat, after the before mentioned Sir John Peche became owner of it. This Sir John Peche was great grandchild (out of doubt) to Rob. Peche Bishop of Coventre, in King Stephen's time; for cleer it is, by what I have manifested in Blackwell, that Richard Peche, son to Geffrey, was next heir to Richard Archdeacon of Coventre, and Richard son to that Bishop. But of Geffrey I have not much to say, other than that he had Wilmelegton, in this Countie, in right of Petronill his wife, daughter and at length heir to Richard Walsh; nor of Richard his son, than that he was a Justice of Assize in this Countie in 13; and 22 H. 3. I shall therefore descend to the before mentioned John, who resided at Wilmelegton (which came by his grandmother) till this Lordship of Hampton devolved to him, as I have exprest.

In October 49 H. 3. (which was soon after that memorable Battail of Bevesham) he had the King's speciall Letters^b of protection, to be in force till Whitsontide following; which shews, that he stood loyall at that time: Shortly after which, he wanted not employment in places of publique trust; for from 53 H. 3. till 9 E. 1. inclusive, he was frequently one of the Justices for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick; as also in 16 E. 1. in that Welch expedition, under Edmund Earl of Cornewall, to whom the King, being then in France, had committed the custodie of this Realm during his absence. In 33 E. 1. he was a Knight, In 12 E. 2. in Commission^s for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick; and the next year following, upon complaint to the King, that this Countrey, swarming with Vagabonds and lewd people, divers Murthers, Robberies, and extraordinary mischiefs were daily committed, he was constituted a Commissioner, together with John de Segrave, to proceed against those malefactors, according to the Statute of Winchester; and appointed one of the conservators of the Peace for this County: so also upon renewing that Commission in 14 E. 2. being then likewise one of the Justices for the Gaole-deliverie at Warwick.

In 15 E. 2. upon information given, that one Thomas Blauncfront, and others, had posselt themselves of Warwick-Castle, then in the King's hand, by

by reason of the Earl's minority, he received a Commission^m to accompany the Shiriff thither, and, requiring the render thereof, to imprison the transgressors; whereupon he became Governour of^{it}: and the next year ensuing, was constituted^o one of the Commissioners for arraying of Souldiers; scil. Horse and Foot, to march against the Scotts. In 17 E. 2. in the Certificate^p of all the Knights and Esquires, whose names were returned into the Chancery, he is there ranked with the Knights; and the same year, was made Constable^q of Doboy-Castle, as also Warden of the Cinque Ports. But in that confession^r made by Edmund Earl of Kent, the King's uncle, in 3 E. 3. when he stood charged with Treason, for reporting that King Edward the second was alive, and that he should thereupon conspire his enlargement, and restitution of his Kingdom; being accused to be one of the said Earl's abettors therein, Precepts^s were issued out to the Shiriffs of Warwick, Dorset, and Hant-shires, for his speedy apprehension, by command of the Parliament held shortly after at Winchester (scil. in March) After which, his lands were seized^t by the King, but ere long he was cleared of that charge, and restitution made, as appears by the said King's Mandate^u to the Shiriff of this Countie, bearing date in August following.

This Sir John Peche bore^w for his Armes Gules a fesse between six Croffe crosetts Arg. with a label of 3. points in Chief: and, being an aged man, departed^x this life about the 11th or 12th year of King Edw. 3. reign, leaving John his grandson, heir to this and divers other fair Lordships; who being in 16 E. 3. a^y Knight, in 28 E. 3. served in^z the Parliament then held at Westminster, as one of the Knights for this Shire: so also in^a the Parliament of 32 E. 3. and in 43 E. 3. was Shiriff^b of this Countie and Leicestershire. In 45 E. 3. purposing to take a voyage beyond Sea, he entreated^c Sir Baldwin Freville Knight, and others, in certain Mannours and lands, within this County; with trust, that if he should die in those parts, they might bring up his Children in a convenient sort, with the issues and profits arising out of them; this being the time^d that John Duke of Lancaster sail'd into France, with a very great Army, to relieve Rochel; of whose good successe in that expedition, we cannot much boast. In 47 E. 3. he served^e in the Parliament at Westminster again, as one of the Knights for this Shire; and in 50 E. 3. departed^f this life, leaving John his son and heir xv. years of age; who being also a Knight, in 9 R. 2. attended^g John Duke of Lancaster then intitled King of Castile, and Leon, into Spaine: but whether he died there or not, I am not certain; for plain it is, that he deceased^h the same year, leaving Joane and Margaret his daughters and heirs.

Of which Joane, I have not found what became; but plain it is that she had no issue: for Sir William Mountfort of Colbhill Knight, became posselt of all Peche's lands, by the marriage of Margaret; scil. ^k this Mannour of Hampton, with the Mannours of Honiley, Wakwell, Wyrmelegyton, Fennit-Cumpton, Aben-Dasset, Dunchurch, and Tost. all in this Countie; and of Sherington in Gloucestershire: all which continued to his descendants, till that fatall attainder^l of Sir Simon Mountfort Knight, in 10 H. 7. whereof I shall say more in Colbhill: But after that forfeiture, was this Lordship, by Letters^m Patent, bearing date 16 Nov. 12 H. 7. given unto Richard Pudsey, one of the Esquires for the Body to that King, and to Joane his wife (sometime wife of Thomas Say) and to the heirs male of the bodie of the said Richard: which Richard had no such issue, as it should seem; for it returned back to the Crown; whereupon Simon Mountfort Esquire, grandson to the before specified Sir Simon, endeavoured to obtain it again; and to that purpose, by the mediation of Edmund Dudley (a person then of great power with the King) had, in consideration of CLxiii li. sterling, a promise^{*} thereof; for the payment of which summe, accordingly, he procured William Fylding Esquire, and Leonard Verney Gent. to joyn with him in a Recognizance of CC li. But the death of King H. 7. hapning before that intended grant was made, it continued in the Crown till 4 H. 8. and then was passedⁿ unto Sir Henry Guilford Knight and Margaret his wife, and to the heirs male of their bodies: which Sir Henry, failing also of such issue, and leaving the same Margaret surviving, there was a Lease^o for xxxi. years in reversion, after her death, granted by Q. Marie in 1. of her reign, unto Thomas Lisle of Morhull Esquire, in consideration of his good service, sayes the Patent, viz. for the apprehension of Henry Duke of Suffolk. But the inheritance thereof, being thus in the Crown, was obtained^p by Robert Dudley Earl of Leicester, in tail, 8. Julij 15 Eliz. after whose death without (allowed) lawfull issue, it returned again to the said Queen, and remaineth to her successors at this day.

Touching the Church (dedicated to our Lady and S. Bartholmew) what I have found observable, is, that Geffrey de Wirce (who had this Lordship in the Conqueror's time) gave^q a third part of the Tithes Corn; and of the Wooll, Cheese, and Pannage, the whole Tithes, unto the Monasterie of S. Nicholas at Angiers, whereunto Wirby-Minchorum, in this Countie, was a Cell: but after Roger de Molbray became posselt of Wirce his lands, he bestowed^r both the Church, Tithes and Glebe, totally, and all Chapellries thereto belonging, unto the Canons of Kenilworth, shortly after the Foundation of that Religious House; which gift of his, Roger de Arden afterwards confirmed^s, as also Richard Peche Bishop of Cobentre; his successor G. Muschamp appropriating to^t the said Canons, the yearly Rent of v. marks v. s. iv d. with one stone of waxe issuing out of the fruits thereof: whereupon the Monks of Wirby before specified, making their claim^u to the third part of the Tithes, as aforesaid, by vertue of G. de Wirce his grant, which was afterwards confirmed by^w Nigell de Moubray, son and heir to the first Roger, got a Composition^x from the said Canons of Kenilworth; which Composition was^y ratified by Richard Peche before mentioned.

Whereupon the said Canons prest hard for a full appropriation of all the fruits belonging thereto, with the Chapells; and at length obtained that their desire, from William de Cornhill, then Bishop, as by his Instrument^z bearing date at Wichfield 6. Cal. Oct. Anno 1217. (2 H. 3.) appeareth: But no sooner was this effected, than that William de Arden, at that time Lord of this Mannour, questioned their title to the advouson it self, so granted and confirm'd, as I have shewed: Howbeit, by mediation of friends, they came to an Agreement with him, that he should relinquish such his claim, & grant unto them free passage through-out his lands, to gather and carry their Corn; in consideration whereof they yielded, that he the said William and his heirs, should, upon every Vacancie, make choise of a new Vicar, and the said Canons to present him unto the Bishop to be instituted accordingly: which Bishop to put a full period to all disputes, then also made an assignation of what the perpetuall Incumbent should, for the future, always have; scil. the whole Alterage belonging to the Church of Hampton, with the small Tithes and obventions; as also the Chapells of Badley and Puthurst, and all the Glebe belonging to the said Church of Hampton, excepting half a yard land in Walshall, with the Tithes of Corn and Pease of the whole Parish; saving those which pertain to the Chapell of Badley and Puthurst, belonging to the Vicar.

And did moreover determine, that whosoever should afterwards be presented to that Vicaridge, ought to do his fealtie to the Monasterie of Kenilworth, in the Chapter-house there, and promise the payment of xx s. as an early Pension to the Canons of Kenilworth, for the maintenance of a Priest, celebrating at Walshall; viz. at Easter xs. and Michaelmas xs. the same Priest for Walshall making Oath to be faithfull in all things relating to the said Vicaridge. And likewise that the said Vicar of Hampton, for the time being, should pay all dues of right belonging to the Bishop and Archdeacon: And lastly, that the before specified William de Arden and his heirs; with their Family, should have liberty to hear divine Service in his Chapell at Knoll, saving the indemnity of the mother Church of Hampton. In Anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) this Church was valued at xi. marks; and in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge, with the Chapell of Puthurst thereunto annexed, at xvii. vi s. viii d. over and above xx s. Pension payable yearly to the Canons of Kenilworth, and xi s. to the Bishop and Archdeacon, for Procurations and Synodalls.

This Church, being situate on so fair an ascent, had a tall Spire, which was a noted mark to a great part of the Wood-land, till by the extraordinary violence of Lightning and Thunder, happening on S^t Andrew's day at night, in the year 1643. it was cloven, and fell to the ground: at which time the whole fabrick, with the tower, were torn in divers places.

Nuthurst.

OF this place I have seen no mention before H. 3. time, it being a member of Hampton, originally, and therewith coming to Montbray: From one of which Family it was past to Montfort; and from Peter de Montfort, or one of his Ancestors

Ancestors, to one of the Hastangs, of Demington-Hastang in this Countie: For upon the challenge made by Peter de Montfort in 46 H. 3. of certain services, which he claimed as due unto him, from Robert de Hastang, for the fourth part of a Knights fee here, they came to an agreement, viz. that the same Robert de Hastang, and his heirs, upon levying of Scutage after the rate of xls. a Knights fee, should pay to him the said Peter and his heirs xls. and so according to that proportion. When or how it past from Hastang, I have not seen; but, about the beginning of E. 3. time, Will. Trussell of Floze in Com. Northampt. became owner of it, and, in 5. of that King's reign, had a Charter of Free warren in all his demesne lands here; as also a speciall License to make a Park of his Woods in this place. From which Will. it descended to the Trussells of Billesley, and continued in the possession of that Family (whose Descent in Billesley is to be seen) till Edward Trussell, son and heir to the last Thomas, sold it, within these few years, to William Jesson an Alderman of Cobentre: The extent of what these Trussells had here, being one M^{ss.} CC. acres of land, CCC. acres of pasture, x. acres of meadow, xxx. acres of Wood, and iv s. Rent, as appeareth by an Inq. taken after the death of Thomas Trussell in 8 H. 8.

Here is an ancient Chapell, which in respect of its great distance from the Parish Church, hath some Parochiall rites belonging thereto. In 2 H. 3. it was with the Church of Hampton, appropriated to the Canons of Kenilworth, by William de Cornhill, then Bishop of this Dioces; whereupon an assignation^h was made of what Tithes the Vicar of Hampton should thenceforth have within this Hamlet, as in Hampton is shewed. In 18 E. 2. I find that John (de Obesfel) Vicar of Hampton, made a Leaseⁱ for the terme of eight years unto one Thomas Ketel of Kings-Poxton Priest, of this Chapell, with all the Glebe, Tithes, and every thing else thereto belonging, reserving to himself all living Mortuaries, of the Inhabitants there deceasing, and the buriall of the bodies of all married persons, and widows; with Funerall oblations: as also pasture, and forage of Hay, and Straw, yearly; sufficient for the maintenance of four young beasts, Steers, or Heysers, to be there kept; and the keeping of three or four Hogs yearly in Harvest-time, and for a month after Michaelmas: The conditions to be performed of the part of the said Thomas, being these; viz. that he and his Clerke should serve personally every day in the said Chapell, honestly and decently; so that the said Vicar might not have blame therefore: and that he should keep the Housing, and Chapell, with Books, Vestments, and all other ornaments in as good state, or better, than he found them, not cutting down any Trees, and paying to the said Vicar or his Deputie xxs. per annum.

Unto which Chapell, Edmund Fulwood of Tanworth Esquire, bearing a good regard, in respect of his so near residence thereto (scil. at Clepy-Hall) in 9 Eliz. granted^k a M^{ss.} and certain lands thereto belonging, unto Thomas Trussell, Thomas Greswold, John Lidyate Gentlemen, John Sidnall and some others, to the use of such Priest, as should thenceforth serve therein, and be continually resident; but in case of such non-residence, the Church-wardens to take the benefit thereof, to bestow on the poor and needy Inhabitants of Puthurst, on Good Friday; or else to the repair of the said Chapell, as in their discretion should be thought meet.

Knoll.

This was originally a member of Hampton, and therefore not particularly mentioned in the Conqueror's Survey: nor till K. John's time, have I seen it so much as named; but then did William de Arden, of Hampton, grant it unto Amicia de Fracie his wife, as part of her Dower, to hold during life, in which Deed^l it is written Enolle, the C. being mistaken for a G. having had its name originally from the situation; for in our old English, Enolle signifieth the knap of an Hill, or an ascending ground. In 35 H. 3. Hugh de Arden (son and heir to the said William) had Free warren granted^m to him in all his Demesne lands in this place, where it is written Li Enolle: And in 46 H. 3. William de Arden (son of Hugh) commenced suitⁿ against Peter de Montfort, and others, for certain lands here: upon the death of which William, Agatha his widow had it assigned^o unto her for part of her dowrie. Which William and his brother, dying without issue (as in Hampton is shewed) and the whole inheritance appertaining to Amicia the wife of John le Lou, one of the co-heirs, being past^p away unto Queen Alianore, then wife of Edward 1. King of England (as in Hampton hath likewise been intimated) it was totally possess^q by that Queen; and, after her death, in 20 E. 1. given^r, together with the Mannours of Arden, Grafton, and Langdon, and certain lands lying in Alspath, Bulepe, Hulberlepe, Witlakefeld, Witwaldehepe, Puthurst, and Widington, (all in this Countie) as also with the Mannours of Witodebyok in Essex, Westerham, and Connebygge in Kent, and Turleston in Buckinghamshire, to the Monks of Westminster; upon condition that the Abbot, Prior, and Covent of that House; or the Prior and Covent, if the Abbot should be out of the way, upon the Eve of S. Andrew the Apostle, on which day the said Queen's Anniversary had used to be kept, being solemnly revested in the Quire of that Monasterie, should sing a Placebo and Dirige, with nine Lessons, C. wax Candles weighing xii li. a piece, being then burning about her Tombe, and every year new ones made for that purpose.

And furthermore, that those Wax-Candles should be lighted at the Placebo and Dirige, on the Eve of the same Anniversary, and burn on the day thereof, till high Masse were ended; And that all the Bells, both great and small, then ringing, they should sing solemnly for her souls health. And moreover that on the day of her said Anniversary, the Abbot himself, in case he were present, or the Prior in his stead, if he could not procure a more eminent Prelate, should sing Masse at the high Altar, the Candles then burning and Bells ringing; and every single Monk of that Abby a private Masse, the inferior Monks their whole Psalter, and the Friars Converts of that House, the Lords Prayer, Creed, and Aves, as many as the Abbot and Covent should appoint, for her soul and the souls of all the faithfull deceased. And that likewise the said Prior and Covent, and their successors, on the same day, to distribute unto every poor Body repairing to that Monasterie, one penny sterling, or money to that value; staying till three of the clock, expecting their coming, before they should begin the Dole, which was to be unto seven-score poor people.

And that of the Waxen Tapers before specified, xxx. to remain all the year long about the said Queens Tombe, till the renewing of them on the day of her Anniversary; all which to be lighted upon the great Festivall days, and upon the coming of any Noble men thither, and as often else as they should see fit. And moreover, that the said Abbot, Prior, and Covent, and their successors, should find two waxen Lights, each of them weighing two pounds of wax, to burn continually at the Tombe of the said Queen. All which being performed, the surplussage of the revenue issuing out of these lands, to remain for their Pittance, to be provided according as themselves should best like. And for the more strict observance hereof, every Abbot successively, before the restitution of his temporalities, to take a solemn Oath for observance of the premises: And that every year, upon St Andrew's Eve, the said King's Charter to be publicly read in the Chapter-House, in the presence of the whole Covent: which Charter bears date at Warwick upon Twede 20 Oct. 20 E. 1.

The Monks of Westminster being thus possessed thereof, leased it for life in 34 E. 1. to Raph de Perham; but after that time retained it in their own hands, for ought I have seen to the contrary, untill the generall dissolution of the Religious Houses by King H. 8. and then Westminster being made a Bishoprick (as is very well known) this Mannour, inter alia, became annexed unto it: but long it continued not so; for in 4 E. 6. it was converted to a Deanrie, with secular Canons, and the jurisdiction of the Bishop united to London, Nicholas Ridley being then Bishop, unto whom and his successors, the same King Edw. 6. by his Patent dated 12 Apr. that very year, gave and confirmed this Mannour: which grant was afterwards ratified by Queen Mary: But in 2 Eliz. there being a Commission for the reassumption of divers lands from the said Bishoprick, at which time this Lordship came to the Queens hands, it was in 15 Eliz. granted to Robert Earl of Leicester and his heirs: which Earl in 23 Eliz. past it away again, in exchange for other lands, unto the same Queen: so that being thus in the Crown, Sir Fulk Grevill Knight Lord Brook, in consideration of his service (as the Patent expresseth) obtained it in Fee ferm of King James, in 20. of his reign, to be held of the Mannour of Cast-Greenwich for the Rent of Lxxvii li. xvi s. viii d. per annum.

The Colledge.

About the later end of Ric. 2. time, Walter Cook, a Canon of Lincolne, bearing a speciall affection to this place, considering that it stood distant above a mile from the parish-Church; did, for the health of his own and his parents souls, at his proper costs, erect a fair Chapell here, with a Tower-Steeple, and Bells, all in his Fathers own land, to the honour of S. John Baptist, S. Laurence the Martyr, and S. Anne, adding also a Church-yard thereto, purposing to endow the same Chapell with maintenance sufficient for one secular Priest, to celebrate divine service therein; so as that there should thenceforth be a Font for Baptizing of all Infants, to be born within this Hamlet of Knolle; and all persons there deceasing to be buried in that Church-yard: For performance whereof he obtained a speciall Bull from Pope Boniface the 10th, wherein was contained an Indulgence, for seven days, of their enjoyned Penance, to all such as, having made a true confession, and were heartily sorry for their sins, and repairing yearly out of devotion thither, on the Festivalls of our Saviour's Nativity, Circumcision, Epiphany, Resurrection, and Ascension, Corpus Christi day, and Pentecost. As also on the Nativity, Annunciation, Purification, and Assumption of the blessed Virgin, Nativity of S. John Baptist, S. Peter and Paul, S. Anne and S. Laurence; and on the Feast day of the said Chapells Dedication, and All Hallown day, or on the Octaves of those Feasts, and for six days immediately ensuing the said Feast of Pentecost, should confer something towards the repair of the same, upon every of those Holy days, for the space of seven years: which Indulgence bears date at S. Peters in Rome xviii. Cal. Dec. in the ninth year of his Papacie (fol. 21 R. 2.)

To second which Bull, was there a speciall License granted to the Inhabitants here residing, by John Burghill Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, in 1 H. 4. touching the celebration of Divine Service, therein, by any fitting Priests. For confirmation of which Chapell so built, together with the Churchyard before specified, there being a speciall Patent made by King H. 4. dated 18. Nov. in the fourth year of his reign, License was thereby granted unto the said Walter Cooke, and Adam Cooke his Father, to found and establish a Chantry, of one or two Priests, to celebrate Divine Service perpetually therein. All which being performed, he the same Walter, the next year following, granted unto the Monks of Westminster, and their successors, the advowson and patronage of this Chantry: but still continuing his wonted affections thereto, obtained a License in 14 H. 4. that himself, together with William Wynnewyk, William Hale, William Arlecock, William Bowedy, Thomas Elford, and Hugh Kuggeley, might found a Fraternitie and Gild in the same Chapell, of themselves, and others that out of devotion should be content to join with them therein.

Neither did he rest here, but within few years after, being advanced to other dignities, (for he was also Canon of Exeter, Salisbury, and S. Pauls in London) inciting the Lady Eliz. widow of John Lord Clinton to assist him farther in these pious intentions, he obtained another License in 4 H. 5. that she the said Eliz. and he, or the Executors of both or either of them, might in this Chapell found a Colledge of ten Chantrie-Priests, to pray for the good estate of them both, during this life, and for the health of their souls after their departure hence; as also for the souls of their parents and friends, and all the faithfull deceased, one of which Priests to be Rector thereof; and to have a Common Seal for the transacting of all their publique businesse. But I do not find that it was ever endowed with lands and Rents so amply, as to maintain half that number of Priests: for by the Survey taken in 26 H. 8. it appeareth, that there were then but two Chantrie-Priests, besides the Rector; nor above that number in 37 H. 8. at which time the cleer yearly value of all the lands and Rents thereto belonging, besides reprises, were certified^k to be xxiii. li. s. iii. d.

The lands appertaining to the Gild before specified, all lying in severall distant places, were then also rated^l at xxix. li. xiv. s. vii. d. per annum, which maintained^m three Chantrie-Priests for the said Gild, daily singing in the said Chapell.

That a multitude of persons, whereof most of good qualitie; nay, some of the great Nobility in those days, had admittance to be of this Gild, is very evidentⁿ; all which, in some measure, were Benefactors thereto; but those I suppose, the Chief, whose Armes or Inscriptions to their memorie, do appear in the windows of the same Cha-

H. 6.) As also^v his brother John, Master of Arts and Parson of Pasley, neer Doncaster in Northamptonshire, men in those dayes of great worship, as are the words of that Register.

In the midst of the Chancell lyeth a very fair Marble, but the portraiture of brasse sometime thereon, with the circumscription, is torn from it, so that there is no testimony whose Monument it was, farther than tradition; id est of Walter Cooke the Founder of this Collegiate Church.

Not far from this, lyeth another Marble, whereupon is the portraiture of a man, his two wives, and xii. Children in plates of brasse, and at their feet thus written.

About the year of our Lord MC. xviii. certain Gentlemen honoured with Knighthood, having betaken themſelves to a religious courſe of life, under the Patriarch of Jeruſalem, after the Rule of Canons Regular, began this Order: the firſt of which, were Hugh de Paganis, and Godfrey de S. Audemare; who in the beginning were ſo poor, though they were valiant men, as that they had but one Horſe to ride on; in memorie of which their primitive povertie, and to the end they might be mindfull of humilitie, they had the figure of two men, riding upon one Horſe, engraven on their Seal. Which two Knights, having no certain habitation, and ſeeking for a place of abode, were ſo much favoured by Baldwyn then King of Jeruſalem, as that he assigned them a piece of ground, within his own Palace, ſituate on the South part of the Temple of our Lord, for that purpoſe; whereunto the Canons of the Temple added a ſtreet adjoining, for erecting of buildings neceſſary for their uſe; the Patriarch, with the King, Nobles and Prelates allowing them lands, out of their own demetins, for ſupport in food and rayment.

Touching their firſt profeſſion I find, that in order to the remiſſion of their ſins, they were, to their power, to defend Pilgrims from ſpoil and robbery by Theeves, in their paſſage to and from Jeruſalem; and that thereupon, at the end of nine years, they had a certain Rule assigned to them in the Councell of Trecas, as alſo a White habit by Pope Honorius. After which they began to multiply very much, their poſſeſſions being greatly enlarged: But in the time of Pope Eugenius, they towed Croſſes made of red cloth upon the left ſhoulder of their Mantles; partly to the end, that having ſuch a triumphall ſigne inſtead of a Buckler, they ſhould not flee back from any Infidell, whiſt they were armed with ſo great a protection, and partly to the intent they might be diſtinguiſhed from other Religious perſons.

There are who affirm^a, that the beginners of this Rule, were ſome of the meanest Hopitalars, and that they were at firſt ſuſtained with weapons and food from the reliques of their provisions: whether it was ſo or not, I ſhall not ſtand to argue; but 'tis agreed on all parts, that they were originally called Knights Templars, from having their reſidence in certain rooms adjoining to that Temple ſometime built by King Solomon. As for their Habit, the deſcription which William Darrell made thereof to M. Lambard, was thus; viz. that on their Heads they wore linnen Coſes (like to the Sergeants at Law) and red Caps cloſe over them; on their Bodies ſhirts of maile, and Swords girded unto them with a broad belt; over all which, they had a White Cloak reaching to the ground, with a red Croſſe on the left ſhoulder, as hath been ſaid, in ſuch ſort as on the next page is repreſented.

And that they uſed to wear their Beards of a great length (whereas moſt other Religious Orders doe ſhave) I ſhall exhibit the teſtimony of King Edw. 2. made in the behalf of an eminent ſervant in his Court. Rex &c. Cum dilectus valetius noſter Petrus Auger, exhibitor preſentium, nuper voverit quod Barbam ſuam radi non faciat, quousq; peregrinationem fecerit in certo loco in partibus tranſmarinis; & idem Petrus ſibi timeat, quod aliqui ipſum, ratione Barbe ſuae prolixæ fuiſſe Templarium imponere ſibi velint, & ei inferre impedimenta ſeu gravamina ex hac cauſa; Nos veritati volentes teſtimonium perhibere, vobis tenore preſentium intimamus, quod prædictus Petrus eſt valetius Camera noſtra, nec unquam fuiſſe Templarius, ſed Barbam ſuam ſic prolixam eſſe permittit ex cauſa ſuperius annotata, &c. Teſte Rege, &c. 17. Febr. Anno &c. 4.

And touching their manner of reception into this Order, thus I find certified of one of them, being examined as to that point. — Requiſitus de modor ceptionis, dicit quod erat Claviger in Templo, dum erat ſecularis, & reſquiſitus Magiſtrum ut eum reciperat in Fratrem; Et expoſitis ſibi hiis quæ rigoris ſunt in Ordine Templi, & ſubſtantialibus Ordinis, quod ad Obedientiam, Caſtitem, & abdicationem proprietatis, fuiſſe ductus in Capellam, Fratribus Orainis, dumtaxat Capellanis, Militibus & ſervientibus præſentibus, ſecularibus omnibus excluſis, præſtito ab eo ad ſanctæ Dei Evangelia juramento, quod prædicta tria ſubſtantialia dicti Ordinis, & conſuetudines bonas & laudabiles Ordinis Templi ſervaret; & negotium terræ Sanctæ ultra-marine, pro poſſe ſuo, juvaret contra inimicos fidei Chriſtiane: Addeit etiam quod juravit, quod neminem injuſte exhereditaret, & tunc ſibi tradebatur Mantellum, cum Cruce, & Pilleum in Capite.

The firſt ſetting of this Order in England, was in that ſtreet called Holburne in the ſuburbs of London; but there they reſted not long; for in K. H. 2. time, that Houſe which ſtill retaineth the name of the Temple, in Fleet-ſtreet, was erected by them, and the Church (but according to the form of the Temple at Jeruſalem) dedicated to God and our bleſſed Ladie, by Heraclius Patriarch of Jeruſalem, in the year 1185. Of the vaſt poſſeſſions they ſoon obtained in England, as well as other parts of Chriſtendome, which at length occaſioned their ruine, I am not here to ſpeak; neither of their Priviledges, which were very ample, as by thoſe ^a Bulls of Pope Hadræn the 4th and Alexander the third, exempting them from payment of Tithes, for their demetn lands; and the Charter^a of King H. 3. affording them divers Liberties, and granting unto them extraordinarie immunities, unto which I refer my Reader.

Returning therefore to Walſhall, I find that beſides this Lordſhip, beſtowed on them by Roger de Moubray before ſpecified, they had divers other lands, lying in this Countie, antiently given by others; the revenues of all which, were for the moſt part, employed for the maintenance of the Knights Templars reſiding here; viz. the Mannours of Barſton, Shirburne, and Flechamſted, (whereof I have elſewhere ſpoke) and ſmaller parcells in a multitude of places; moſt of which I will here enumerate, with the names of the Donors; viz. in Witſho, by Robert de Stafford; in Chelverſton, Derceſ, and Herdwike, by Barth. de Sudley; in Moxtou and Warwick, by the Earls of Warwick; In Herberburſe, by Henry de Clinton;

In Chesterton, by William de Croc, and Henry de Broc; In Aven-Werfet, by William Giffard; In Stedley, by Peter Corbicon; In Spapton, by Adam de Napton; In Hunthigham, by Margaret de Campania; In Weston, and Shottswell, by William Fitz Alan; In Linesbury, by Herbert de Kinesbury; In Spidleton, by Giffrey Marmion; In Radoz, by William Pludi; In Spewbold-Paci, by Ric. Fil. Presbyteri, and others^a; In Polef-worthe, by Robert de Harecourt; In Edston, by Henry de Montfort; In Tacheb-zok, by Henry de Clinton; In Bereford, by Will. Fitz Thomas; In Whitacre-superior, by John de Weihele-berg; In Cubington, by Henry de St. Maur; And in Stonle, by the Abbot of Stonle: But by whom those lands, which they had^k in Witlaw, Wol-vey, Mollington, Compton-Wingate, Fulstble, Coton, Boxton, L. mji, and Lindon, were given, I have not teen.

I come now to the speciall Priviledges, which they had here in Walsall. In 32 H. 3. they obtained a Charter^l of Free warren in all their demefn lands here: In^m 52 H. 3. a weekly Mer-cate upon the Thursday, with two Fatres every year; the one on the Eve, day, and morrow after the Feast of S. Gregory the Martyr; and the other on the Eve, day, and morrow after the Feast of S. Mathias the Apostle. And for the surer enjoyment of their interest here, in 13 E. 1. they procured a full confirmationⁿ from Roger de Moubray, heir to Roger the first donour before specified, with warrantie of that his Ancestor's Charter; for which they made him Partaker of all their Prayers, and other spirituall benefits.

But whether it were really their guilt of such high enormities, which through Christendome were layd to their charge, or rather their potencie, so generally feared, which occasioned their ruine, I will not here stand to argue; certain^o it is, that on Wednesday next after the Feast of the Epiphanie Anno 1307. (scil. 1 E. 2.) by the King's speciall command, and a Bull from the Pope, were they generally through England layd hold on, and cast into Prison; nay, through all Christendome, as my Author saith; and afterwards proceeded against in a generall Councell held at London; where being convicted of divers great impieties, all their possessions were seized into the King's hands. In an ancient^p MS. Chron. which I have seen, the cause of their ruine is thus set forth, Anno MCCCX. c. n. ca. festum S. Hillarii, omnes Templarii in Anglia & in Scotia; & alii omnes, ut dicebantur, per totam Christianitatem, una hora diei, capti sunt propter Heresie pravitatem, necnon propter fraudem quam fecerunt in quodam bello inter Regem Tharsis & Paganos, in quo tergiverserunt ad Paganos, & occiderunt predictum Regem & exercitum ejus. & filium eius unicum ceperunt, unde tota Christianitas turbata est valde.

But Thom. de Wall.^q setteth forth other reasons for this severe proceeding against them, namely severall grosse and Heathenish, yea rather devilish practises (unto whom I refer my Reader) All which and more, were layd to their charge, in particular Articles; whereupon witnesses being examined, they were proceeded against, as hath been said; the whole series thereof being at large yet to be seen in an ancient MS. of that time; wherein I have observed, that the said Articles do charge them with no lesse than Heresie, Idolatrie, and most execrable Blasphemie; but very little, or nothing at all, appeareth to have been proved: And so much doth an honest Historian^r in his Acts of the Archbishops of Dozke declare; where speaking of the proceedings against them, he saith—Quamvis in multis essent accusati, nichil tamen inventum est quod de jure videretur statum illorum annullare: And that this was truth, speaking then of Will. de Grenefeld Archbishop of Dozke at that time, he further saith—Archiepiscopus Willielmus, pietate motus super statu Templariorum sue Diocesis, omni auxilio destitutorum, eos in diversa sue Diocesis instituit Monasteria, eisq; suo perpetuo vitæ necessaria ministrari precepit.

Yet such was their hard fate, that, having been thus dealt withall, their whole Order became shortly after condemned^u in a generall Councell at Alenna, under Pope Clement the v. Anno 1311. (4 E. 2.) So that their possessions being thereupon seized into the King's hands, what they had in this Countie, and Leicester-shire, was committed to^w the custodie of Alexander de Compton, who in 6 E. 2. answered^x Lx li. to the King, for the issues thereof: But 'tis plain^y that the heirs of the Donours, for a while, came to enjoy them again; and that thereupon John de Moubray had this Mannour of Walsall, which he held till his death, and attainder, for adhering to Thomas Earl of Lancaster in 15 E. 2, as also that it was thereupon committed^z to the custodie of John Peche (of whom in Hampton I have spoke) to hold during the King's pleasure: Houbet, in this condition they scarce continued one year longer; For by a generall Decree^a of Pope Clement before specified, dated at Alenna vi. Non. Maii, in the seventh year of his Papacie, they were annexed and incorporated to the Knights Hospitalars, of which Order, before I proceed farther, I will here (as I have done of the Templars) give a brief account.

At^b such time as the Holy Land began to grow famous by the expeditions of Christian Princes thither; this Order of the Hospitalars had its beginning, or rather restauration by one Girardus; for the originall is attributed to Johannes Hircannus Machabeus, or John Patriarch of Alexandria, who who for his liberalitie to the poor, was surnamed Eleemosynarius. These Knights having their chief seat at first in the Hospital of S. John Baptist at Jerusalem, which was reedified by the same Girard, took that Saint for their Patron; but their Rule from Pope Gelasius the second; and by Honorius the second had a black Mante with a white Crosse thereupon, assigned to them: The larger Statutes of their Order did Raimundus de Podio, the first Master after the forming thereof, devise for them, who there intitles himself Servus pauperum Christi, & Hospitalis Hierosolomitani Custodem. The profession of which Knights was, by a religious vow to entertain Pilgrims coming to the Holy Land, and to defend them in their journey from incursion of Robbers; in which service they had such great assistance from divers Christian Princes, that they often warred with much successe against the Infidells: and after the losse of all in Palestine, obtained the Ile of Rhodes for their seat: but that also, after fundry assaults, being won by the Tuks, they had an assignation of the Ile of Malta by the Emperour Charles the fift, and Pope Clement the seventh, where they continue till this day. As for the formalitie; and Ceremonies of their reception into this Order, though they be very observable, yet for brevities sake I passe them over, referring my Reader to those Writers which speak at large of them.

The first institution of this Order was ^d about the year MXCII. after which, ere long, they settled in England; for in the year MC. and beginning of King Henry the first his reign, Jordan Briſet a wealthy and devout man, built ^e then an House in the suburbs of London, near Smithſfield, which was afterwards called S. Johns of Jeruſalem: But these also from a low beginning, through the great austeritie of their lives at first, obtained vast possessions, before what belong'd to the Templars was settled upon them. In this Countie, they had antiently (I mean before the accession of the Templars lands to them) lands in Grafton given to them by Henry the son to Bernardus de Grafton, and ⁵ others; In Cheſterton by ^h William de Croc; In ⁱ Preston-Bagot, Whitnash ^k, Pewbold-Pacie, Wilsney ^m, Ricton ⁿ super Dunsmore, Walſford ^o, Anſle ^p, and other places, by the gift of sundry persons. And of what great esteem this their Order was within England, the Charter ^q of privileges and Liberties granted to them by King Ric. 1. in ⁵ of his reign doth sufficiently manifest, where the generall words run thus — Conceſſimus omne jus, omne Dominium, quod ad nos pertinet & pertinet; omnem potestatem, omnes libertates, & liberas consuetudines quas Regia potestas conferre potest in omnibus &c.

But I return to Balſhall. The next thing most observable in reference to these Knights Hospitalars; wherewith I have met, is a passage which manifesteth ^r that all their Tenants, for the better fruition of the many privileges belonging to those lands, did use to erect Crosses upon their Houses; which Custome appears by the seizure of a House and certain grounds thereto belonging, that lay in Wilsbaw, into the King's hands, in respect that one Cheſterſhire, the owner thereof, had set a Crosse upon it, to the end that he might partake of the Templars privileges; whereas, in truth, the premisses had not any relation to that Order.

I do not find that the Hospitalars held this place as a Preceptorie, by the residence of any of their Fraternity here, as the Templars did, but rather the contrary; for it appears ^s that in E. 4. time, John Beaufitz Esquire, was their Fermour of the House called the Preceptorie, and resided there; which John in 22 H. 6. underwent the Office of Eschaetor ^t for this Countie and Leicesterſhire; as also from ^u, 11 E. 4. till 4 H. 7. inclusive, was a Justice ^v of Peace in this Shire; And moreover, that having been in 16 E. 4. Sheriff ^w for both these Counties, and in 1. and 2 H. 7. again Eschaetor ^x, he dyed in 22 H. 7. as the date and probate of his Testament ^y do manifest, by which he bequeathed his body to be buried in the Monasterie of Bentworth, before the Image of the blessed Virgin, at the door of the Quire, or where else John Yardley

the then Abbot should think more expedient: And to the Abbot and Covent of that House, gave a Basin and Ewre of silver to serve at the high Altar; the same Abbot, during his whole life, being to pray for him daily in his Masse, especially by name; and he that should daily say the Chapter Masse, to pray for the Soul of Sir Raufe Boteler Lord Sudley, and his Lady, and him the said John Beaufitz especially by name, as the said Abbot and Covent pleased; and likewise he that was to sing our Lady Masse. To the same Abbot he also gave a gilt piece to the value of ten marks, to pray daily for him by name in his Masse, and he and his Covent to assail him in the Chapterhouse. This John had ^z also in Fletchamsted an estate by Lease from the Knights Hospitalars; and besides this, ^{aa} posselt ^{ab} a Mannour in Lodbroke, called Wynntenners, as also the Mannour of Wodcote in this Countie; and left issue ^{ac} Margerie his daughter and heir, afterwards married ^{ad} to Sir Robert Be-lyngham Knight.

Little have I seen else, ^{ae} worthy the notice, touching this place, other than the Customes, which antiently, as is evident by that ^{af} Account in 31 H. 2. were as followeth; viz. that their Tenants were yearly to mow three days in Harvest, one at the charge of the House; and to plow three days, whereof one at the like charge; As also to reap one day, at which time they should have a Ram from the House or viii d. xxiv. loaves and a Cheefe of the best in the House, together with a pail full of drink: And moreover that they might not sell their Horse-Colts, if they were foaled upon the land belonging to the Temple, without the consent of the Fraternity, nor marry their daughters without their License.

After the dissolution of the Monasteries, this Mannour, being (inter alia) assigned for the dowrie of Queen Catherine, the last wife of King H. 8. was in 1 E. 6. granted ^{ag} (I mean the reversion) to Edward Duke of Somerset and his heirs, to hold by the xlth part of a Knights fee: But he being attainted in 5 E. 6. (as our Historians do shew) the inheritance of it was shortly after past ^{ah} out of the Crown, unto John Dudley Earl of Warwick; upon whose attainder by Queen Mary (whereof I have spoke in Warwick) it became disposed ^{ai} of by that Queen, to Edward Lord Dudley, and to the heirs male of his body; who rendred it back again to the Crown, as it seems: for I find that the same Queen soon after, intending to ^{aj} restore that Religious House of the Knights Hospitalars, situate near Smithſfield, to some part of the lustre it antiently had, having to that purpose made Sir Thomas Tresham Knight Lord Prior thereof, did (inter alia) give ^{ak} this Mannour of Balſhall therunto: But all that fair design of hers being blasted very soon after Queen Elizabeth began to reign, this Mannour of Balſhall was by Letters ^{al} Patent from that Queen, dated 29. Junii 8. Eliz. given to Robert Dudley Earl of Leicester and his heirs.

THis petty Hamlet, having been so called from some possessor thereof in the Saxons time, lyes at a great distance from the Parish Church; and hath been anciently reputed, and still is esteemed as a member of Hampton: but whether it were given to the Nuns of Bergate in Bedfordshire by Rog. de Moubray (of whom in Hampton I have spoke) or by one of the Ardens, who had that Lordship of Hampton from his grant, I cannot say; yet cleer it is, that 'twas one of them who so gave it; for it appears that Cristina Priorese of Bergate, and the rest of her fellow Nuns, did demise it, together with Didington, unto the first William de Arden about King Ric. 1. time; for both which, they reserved the yearly Rent of xv s. and that Hugh de Arden, son and heir to the same William, purchased the inheritance of the n both, from Isabel the succeeding Priorese and the Covent of that House, for the summe of xv s. marks: And that these, together with Knolle, came to the Monks of Westminster; but how afterwards they were disposed of, I cannot well discover.

OF this I can say no more than what I have exprest in Kinwaldsey.

Chadleswic.

THis place, being originally a member of Hampton, was by Roger de Moubray granted unto Peter de Arden, to hold by the tenth part of a Knights Fee: in which grant, or rather confirmation, it is said to have been at first given to the said Peter, by his father, called Radulphus de Hampton (as I have elsewhere shewed.) From this Peter it came to Roger his brother, whom he made his heir; and so descended to William de Arden, who granted it in dower, inter alia, unto Anicia de Tracy his wife, by the name of totum villam de Chadleswic. But after this, viz. in 20. and 36 E. 3. Peter de Montfort was certified to hold it by the eight part of a Knights Fee, though how this comes to passe I cannot give a reason; for cleer it is, that in 29 E. 1. John Peche (descended from an heir female of Arden) enjoyed it. And farther I have not seen any considerable mention of it; wherefore I conclude that it was swallowed up in Hampton.

Badsley-Clinton.

THis, forasmuch as it was heretofore a member of Hampton, comes most properly to be next spoke of. In the Conqueror's Survey it is not particularly mentioned, as being involved with Hampton, wherewith it came to Nigel de Albani; which Nigell, or Roger de Moubray his son, enfeofft Walter de Biseg, or the father of the same Walter, thereof, in H. 1. time, as may be inferred from that Certificate in 12 H. 2. To which Walter, succeeded Raphe, and to him James de Biseg, who bore for his Armes Frette, as by his Seal appeareth, and left issue Mizera his daughter and heir, wedded to Sir Thomas de Clinton of Colshill Knight, by whom she had divers sons, as the Descent in Colshill will manifest; whereof James (the fourth) had the inheritance of this Lordship assigned unto him for part of his patrimony, paying 1^l per an. to his Fathers heirs; whence it came to be named Badsley-Clinton, for distinction from another Badsley in this Hundred. To which James succeeded Thomas, who left issue two daughters and heirs; scil. Joane, first married to John Coningsby, but afterwards to John Fowkes of Drypersston in Gloucestershire, and Petronill to John Wodard of Solihull: which John Coningsby, for 6 marks of silver, in 29 E. 3. bought out the interest that the same John Wodard and Petronill had here.

But whether Coningsby had any issue by the same Joane, or not, I am uncertain; for evident it is, that Fowkes her second husband, lived here, and in 13 R. 2. joynded with her in the passing of it unto one Nicholas Dudley a trade man of Cobventre (and Major of that City in 1 H. 4.) But perhaps this was only an estate in trust; for it appears, that in 2 H. 4. Robert Burdet of Byngthull and Joane his wife, purchased it of Richard Bushell of Drypersston in Gloucestershire and Margaret his wife; which Margaret was daughter and heir to John Fowke and Joan his wife, as the Pedegree of Clinton, in Colshill, doth manifest. From which R. Burdet it came to one Nic. Metley (a Lawyer) by purchase; who bequeathing his Body to sepulture in the Temple Church at London, appointed that this Mannour, should be sold by his Executors (inter alia) and with the moneys thence arising, four Priests provided to celebrate divine Service for his Soule, and the souls of his Ancestors, for one whole year after his decease; or else two Priests for two years: and besides this one other Priest to do as much here at Badsley, for the like terme, constituting Margaret his mother, Joane his wife, and

Rob. Catesby his Executors: which Margaret and Joane sold^h it unto the said Robert Catesby their fellow Executor, who enjoyed^h it accordingly till after the battail of Boshampton (which was about a.v. years) but then did John Hugford of Emfcote, in right of Margaret his wife, daughter and heir to the before specified Nicholas Metley, ^k enter upon it, and by the countenance of Richard Nevill Earl of Warwick, whose Steward he was, kept possession thereof during the whole life of the said Robert: Howbeit, before the death of the same

John Hugford, Nich. Catesby, son and heir of Robert, made his entrie^h upon it again, and from that time enjoyed it during the whole life of Hugford, and eleven years after, that the daughters and heirs of the said John (whose Descent in Emfcote is to be seen) disseised^m him: whereupon the before mentioned Nich. Catesby, discerning the title to be so disputable, passⁿ it away unto John Brome, a Lawyer; by which means it came to the Family of Ferrers, as the Pedegree^o here inserted doth manifest.

Of this John Brome the Lawyer, who had first to do here, I findⁿ, that he did descend from a Familie of that name, which for severall Descents were Tanners, and resided in that suburbe of Warwick, South of the Bridge; the House still retaining the name of Brome's place: and that Robert, his grandfather, was a Lawyer, as alsoⁿ Steward of the Courts to Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, for his lands in this Countie: And that John, his Father, servedⁿ in the Parliament of 8 H. 4. as one of the Burgessees for the town of Warwick; and likewise that they were owners of Wyss Hall, or Brome's place in Lapworth, whence 'tis believed they originally came. Which John, before he so acquired Catesby's title to this Lordship, hadⁿ certain lands within the precincts thereof, in right of his mother (scil. Joane daughter and heir unto Thomas Rodie) and for a great part of King Henry the six's reign, bore much sway in these parts, beingⁿ under Treasurer in the Exchequer: But in our publique Records his name is mistaken, and written Brown, as appeareth in the Commissionⁿ for assesseing of a Subsidie in 14 H. 6. and for treatingⁿ with the people about a Loan, of money to the King.

From 30 H. 6. till the end of that King's reign I findⁿ him in Commission for conservation of the Peace in this Countie; and inⁿ 38 H. 6. one of the Commissioners of Array: Howbeit, after the beginning of E. 4. reign, he was set aside as to any publique employment, and at length had the hard fate to be slain by John Hertbill Steward to Rich. Nevill, the great Earl of Warwick; who sending forⁿ him out of the White Friars Church in London, where he was then at Mass, upon some words which hapned betwixt themⁿ, kil'd him in the the Porch, the occasion of their quarrell, being (in short) this^o. Hertbill, having mortgaged the Mannour of Woodlow to this John, would have redeem'd it again for the money borrowed; but Brome, lying upon advantage, resolv'd to keep the land: whereupon, growing into height of words in disputing the businels, Hertbill mortally wounded him. Before he departed the world, having time to make his Will, he us'd therein this expression, scilicet, that he forgave his son Thomas, who smote when he saw him run through by Hertbill, in the White Friars Church-Porch: In which Church (for there he was buried) he had this Epitaph^u upon his Tombe-stone.

*Nobilis & doctus sic Regni jure periti, Subivit ut Pulvis Brome corpus carne Johannis:
 Ingenti natu testis Warwic Comitatus,
 Hic us in Ecclesia facta qui corruit ense;
 Pravorum manibus sub Misse tempore casus,
 Sarcophago Nonis sepelitur mense Novembris,
 Sexaginta Centum quater octo jungito Mille,
 Alme pater requiem sibi presat habere perennem.*

By Beatrice his wife, daughter to Sir Raph Shirley Knight, he left issue divers Children; of which, Nicholas succeeded him, as Lord of this Mannour; who from^o 3 H. 7. till 9 H. 8. was a Justice of Peace in this Shire; as also for divers years a Commissioner^r for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick, and of^r Array: and in 20 H. 8. Sheriff of this Countie and Leicester-shire. This Nich. resenting the death of his Father very much, about three years after, wav-lay'd the before mentioned John Hertbill in Longbrydg-field, in his passage towards Barfild to keep the Earl of Warwick's Court; and there, after a short encounter, slew^d him. Whereupon Elizabeth, Hertbill's widow, began to stir against him, by way of Appeal, for killing her husband: but by mediation of friends, Arbitrators were chosen to accord the businels, who awarded^d that she should release unto the same Nicholas all Actions personall, and Appeals, and that he the said Nich. should pay Cl. Sterling in S. Maries Church at Warwick, for the maintenance of a Priest, for one whole year, to sing Masse and pray for the souls, of John Brome and John Hertbill, so slau as hath been expressed, she the said Eliz. finding to the Priest, Bread, Wine, and Wax, as oft as he should say Mass: And moreover that the same Nich. should at his own proper costs, by the space of two years, find a Priest to sing Masse in the Church of Wad-slep-Clinton, for the souls above-said: which Award bears date at Coventre 18^o Martii 12 E. 4.

Of this Nich. I have further seen^d, that coming on a time into his Parlour here at Wad-slep, he found the Parish-Priest chocking his wife under the chin, whereat he was so enraged that he presently kill'd him; For which offence, obtaining the King's Pardon, and the Popes, he was enjoyn'd to do something towards the expiation thereof; whereupon he new built the Towre-steeple here at Wad-slep, from the ground, and bought three Bells for it; and raised the body of the Church ten foot higher: all which was exprest in his Epitaph, now torn away: And likewise built^d the Steeple of Packwood; in which Church windows was this Inscription, Orate pro anima Nicholai Brome qui Campanile de Packwood fieri fecit.

But farther of him I have not found any thing memorable, other than that he inclosed^d this Lordship, and that he departed^d this world 29. Aug. Anno 1517. (9 H. 8.) leaving issue^r by Eliz. his first wife, daughter to Sir Raufre Arundell Knight, Isabell wife to Thomas Marrow Sergeant at Law, and Constance married to Sir Edward Ferrers Knight. By^r Katherine his second wife, daughter of Limpeck, Edward Brome, who died childless; And by^r Letice his third wife, daughter of Nicholas Cateby, Raph Brome, from whom they of Woodlow are descended.

Which Sir Edward Ferrers, being son and heir to Sir Henry Ferrers of Hambleton in Com. Rutl. Knight (second son of Thomas Ferrers of Tamworth afile in this Countie, by Elz. sister and coheir to Sir Baldwin Frevile Knight, as the Descent in Tamworth sheweth) had^d, in right of the said Constance, this Lordship of Wad-slep for her share; whose posterity have continued owners of it ever since: amongst which, the memory of Henry Ferrers great grandchild to the same Sir Edward (who for his eminent knowledge in Antiquities, gave a fair lustre to that ancient and noble Family, whereof he was no small ornament) is yet of high esteem in these parts.

That which is now the Church here (dedicated to S. James) having been anciently a Chapell of Hampton in Arden, and therewith coming to the Canons of Kenilworth (as in Hampton is shewed) was appropriated^d to that Monasterie in Anno 1217. (2 H. 3.) But notwithstanding this Appropriation, it continued as a Rectorie, and in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) was valued^d at two marks, in 14 E. 3. at Lxxvi s. viii d. and in^o 26 H. 8. at iv li. vi s. viii d.

In the upper part of the East window of the Chancell here at Badfley, are curiously represented in Glasse, the portraitures of Sir Edward Ferrers Knight, and the Lady Constance his wife, with three sons and six daughters, all kneeling before S. George, with this expression in a scroul coming from his mouth Sante Georgi ora pro nobis: as also his Armes empaling hers, both with quartrings, and supported with two Unicorns, Ermine. And in the lower part of the same window, is the picture of the same Sir Edward, and the Lady Constance his wife, with Nicholas Brome Esquire her Father, all kneeling in their surcoats of Armes, before a Crucifix; the scroul from the lips of the said Sir Edward, having this written therein, scil. Amor meus Crucifixus est. And of a later time set up, towards the bottom of the same window, these four Coats.

1. Ferrers empaling Hampden. 2. Ferrers empaling Windsor. 3. Ferrers empaling White. 4. Ferrers impaling Peto; with these Inscriptions, as I have here divided them.

1. Nicholas Brome Esquire, Lord and owner of Badfley, married Elizabeth daughter of Sir Rawfre Arundell of Eggleshole in the Countie of Cornewall Knight, Anno Dom. 1473. and died the xth of October 1517. leaving issue Isabell and Constance, his two daughters, and lieth buried at this Church-dore.

2. Sir Edward Ferrers Knight, son and heire of Sir Henry Ferrers of Cast-Peckham in the Countie of Kent Knight, married Constance, daughter and coheir of the same Nicholas, of this Mannour of Badfley-Clinton Anno Dom. 1497. He died 29. Aug. 1535. and lieth buried in the Tombe of this Chancell.

3. Dame Constance Ferrers daughter and coheir to Nicholas Brome, and Elizabeth Arundel his first wife, who married to Sir Edward Ferrers An. D. 1497. and died 30. Sept. 1551. leaving issue by him Henry, Edward, George, and Nicholas, and six daughters Jane, Ursula, Anne, Margaret, Elizabeth, and Alice, figured as above said.

4. Henry Ferrers Esquire, son and heir of the same Sir Edward and Dame Constance, married Catherine daughter and coheir of Sir John Hampden of Hampden in the Countie of Buck. Knight, Anno 1524, and died 1526. leaving issue only Edward Ferrers his heir, and lieth buried in this Tombe.

5. Edward Ferrers Esquire, son of the same Henry, married Bridget daughter of William Lord Windsor Anno Dom. 1548. and died 11. Aug. 1564. leaving issue Henry Ferrers his heir, and lieth buried in Warbick-Church in the Countie of Warcester.

6. Henry Ferrers Esquire, son of the same Edward and Bridget his wife, married Jane the youngest daughter and coheir of Henry White of South-warnboyn in the Countie of Hampsh. Esquire, Anno Dom. 1582. and died the xth of October 1633. leaving issue onely Edward Ferrers his heir, and lieth buried in this Chancell.

7. Edward Ferrers Esquire, son of the same Henry and Jane his wife, married Anne the eldest daughter of William Peto of Chester Esquire, Anno Dom. 1611. She died the xiith day of September Anno Dom. 1618. leaving issue onely Henry Ferrers, born the 18th day of December Anno Dom. 1616.

All which portraitures and Armes, together with the Monument of the same Sir Edward Ferrers, and the Lady Constance his wife, situate in an Arch on the South side of this Chancell, were drawn by my self, and designed ready for the Graver, with great curiosity, to the intent that the beauty of them, which is so subject to perish, by time and unhappy accidents, might have been represented to the world, in such sort as others are in this present work, for their lasting memorie: But so frugall a person is the present heir of the Family, now residing here, as that, he refusing to contribute any thing towards the charge thereof, and it not being proper for me to undergo it totally, they are omitted.

The Epitaph upon that Monument of the before specified Sir Edward Ferrers Knight.

Here lyeth Sir Edward Ferrers Knight, son and heir of Sir Henry Ferrers, and Margaret Hekstall his wife, of Cast-Peckham in the Countie of Kent Knight. He died the xxixth day of August 1535. leaving issue Henry, Edward, George, and Nicholas. Here also lieth Dame Constance his wife, daughter & heir to Nicholas Brome Esquire of this Mannour of Badfley-Clinton, who died the xxxth day of September 1551.

Here also lieth Henry Ferrers their eldest son and heir, who married Catherine, one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir John Hampden of Hampden in the Countie of Buck. Knight. He died Anno D. 1526. leaving issue Edward Ferrers married to Briger daughter to William Lord Windsor of Windsor 1548 and died Anno Dom. 1564.

Other Monumentall Inscriptions.

Upon a stone in the midt of the Chancell.

Here lieth Henry Ferrers Esquire, son and heir of Edward Ferrers and Briger Windsor his wife; who was sometime Lord of this Mannour, and married Jane, one of the daughters and coheirs of Henry White, son and heir of Sir Thomas White of South-Warnboyn. He died the xth day of October Anno Dom. 1633. of his age the 84th leaving issue Edward Ferrers.

Inscribed on the South side of the Chancell, in stone.

Edward Ferrers Esquire son and heir of Henry Ferrers and Jane White his wife, did new build and reedifie this Chancell, at his own proper costs and charges Anno Dom. 1634.

Monuments, and Monumentall Inscriptions, now defaced, which were taken notice of by Mr. Henry Ferrers in Queen Elizabeth's time.

In the Chancell upon a raised Monument.

Hic jacet Beatrice Brome vidua, filia Radulphi Shirley militis, quondam uxoris Johannis Brome de Baddeley-Clinton armigeri: que obiit x^o die mensis Julii anno Domini MCCCLXXXIII, ejus anime propitiatur Deus Amen.

In this Chancell there is a large grave-stone, whereon is a plaine Cross, but no Inscription: under it lyeth buried Dorothy, sole daughter and heir of Thomas Marrow Sergeant at Law, who was first married to Francis Cokeyne of Pooley in this County Esquire, and afterwards to Sir Humfrey Ferrers of Lamboyrth-Castle.

Under a large marble lying within the Church dore, at the very entrance, whereupon hath been a faire portraiture in brasse, of a man in armour, lyeth buried Nicholas Brome sometime Lord of this Mannour.

And under the next stone, lyeth Elizabeth, one of his daughters, wife to Thomas Howe of Solthull.

Under another, neare thereto, lyeth Edward Brome son of the said Nicholas, by Katherine Lampeck his second wife, which Edward married Margery the daughter to John Bauso of Emicote in this County Esquire, and dyed Anno 1531. 23 H. 8.

Church-Bikenhill.

Returning now to the stream of Blithe, I come next to Church-Bikenhill. This containeth four other petty Hamlets; viz. Hill-Bikenhill, Spole-Bikenhill, Kingsford, Wavers-Perston, Perston-Culy, and Lindon; of all which, Turchill de Warwick was posselt^y in the Conqueror's time; but then they were reputed for no more than two Villages, the one certified to contain two hides, with Woods of four furlongs in length and as much in breadth, having been the freehold of Alnuardus before the Norman invasion; And the other likewise two hides, the Woods belonging thereto being xii. furlongs in length and six in breadth; all which one Aluric enjoyed in Edw. the Confessor's days. In Domesday-book they are both written Wichehelle, but afterwards Wychenhulle, and Bikenhill: wherefore, considering therewith the present manner of pronouncing the word, I do conclude that the name originally grew from the old English word Biggen, which signifieth a Hall, or Mannour-House, the later syllable shewing that it stood upon an ascent, as we see this town doth.

It should seem that a younger branch of Arden's Familie (whereof the said Turchill was the root) had that which is now called Church-Bikenhill assigned for his patrimony; for in the Deed made by Henry de Arderne (Turchill's grandson and heir) of certain lands for the dowrie of Leticia his wife, he likewise grants unto her servitium Eustachii de Arderne de Wychenhulle, which, it appears that he held of him. But I am of opinion that the descendants of this Eustace forsook the name of Arderne, and, in respect of their residence here, assumed the name of Bikenhill: for in 33 H. 2. and afterwards, I find mention^a of Thomas de Bikenhulle, with relation to this place; and, about the beginning of H. 3. time, Alexander de Bykenhill; which Alexander bound^b himself in the summe of xv. marks of silver unto Sir Hugh de Arden (of Hampton) Knight, that he would neither sell or pawn any part of his lands, without the consent of the said Sir Hugh; and in 19 H. 3. was one^c of the Justices of Assize in this Countie. After which, scil. in 23 E. 1. Alice de Langley (of whom in Wolfhamcote I have spoke) wrote^d her self Domina de Wygenhull; perhaps she was widow unto the said Alexander; and yet the same year did Thomas (whom I conceive to be his son) stile^e himself so, likewise.

But the next possessor of it (though how I find not) was^c Walter Parles, about the later end of E. 2. time: To whom succeeded^e William Parles, who in 1 E. 3. past^b away his title therein unto Sir John Peche of Hampton in Arden Knight, whose grandchild, Sir John Peche, in 28 E. 3. obtained a Charterⁱ of Free Warren in all his demefn lands here: From which time, for want of light, I have not discovered any more thereof.

The Church (dedicated to S. Peter) though at the first Foundation of the Monasterie of Henwood, it was united^k thereto, continued not long to those Nunns, but was transmitted to them of Perigate in *Com. Middle-Bickenhill, and Hill Bickenhill.

These were antiently reputed but for one Hamlet, and called^o Little-Bikenhill, being in King John's time posselt by Richard de Kaines: which Richard gave^p it unto his three sisters; scil. Rahace, Ala, and Margaret; Will. de Kaines, their other brother, confirming^q the grant; and Henry de Bickenhill releasing^r to them all his right therein. By these sisters it was divided^s; but a good part thereof came afterwards to the Nunns of Henwood, and after the generall dissolution, was^t past out of the Crown (inter alia) to Edward Aglionby of Balsball Esquire, and Henry Hugford of Solihull Gentleman, and their heirs, by the name of a Mannour, with certain lands and Rents in Hill Bickenhill: all which were purchased, as it seems, shortly after by John Fisher of Pakington Esquire; for by the Inquisition taken^u after his death, it appears, that he died seized of them; from whom they are descended to Sir Clement Fysher Baronet, his great grandchild, who now enjoys them.

Kington alias Kingsford, part in Bickenhill and part in Solihull-Parish.

This is a very ancient place, though now there be little signe thereof; for I find that there stood a Church here, in the beginning of H. 3. time, the advowson whereof was granted^w, in 5th of that King's reign; to the Nunns of Perigate in Bedfordshire, by one Henry le Notte: But afterwards, viz. in 16 E. 2. it had the reputation^x for no more than a Chapell belonging to Bikenhill.

In 37 H. 6. it appears, that the Mouniforts of Colshill were Lords thereof; and therefore I am of opinion, that it came to them by the daughter and heir, of Peche, as Hampton in Arden did: For in that year, Sir Baldwin son and heir to Sir William Mounifort, passed^y his estate therein, unto Sir Humphrey Stafford Knight, son and heir to the Duke of Buck, and others: which grant was but in trust, as it seems; for in 7 H. 7. did Sir Simon Mounifort Knight (son and heir to the said Sir Baldwin) demise^z it by the name of the Mannour of Kingsford, unto Henry and Thomas his two younger sons; and in 10 H. 7. died^a seized of it (but attainted, as in Colshill is shewed) whereupon it eschaeting to the Crown, was soon granted^b, inter alia, to Girald Earl of Wiltshire and Eliz. St John his wife, and to the heirs male of their two bodies lawfully begotten; by which it came to Sir James Fitz Girald Knight son to the said Earl by that Ladie; who being attainted in 28 H. 8. (as in Dunchurch appeareth) it resorted again to the Crown; and in 7 E. 6. was, with other lands, granted^c unto Thomas Lucy, of Cherle-cote Esquire, and his heirs: which Thomas (afterwards

ment Esquire, of whom in Langeon I have made mention.

Waver's Merston.

OF this place there is no mention at all in the Conqueror's Survey, so that I presume it was then involved with Bikenhill, because it afterwards appeareth ^c to be of Arden's Fee; From one of which Familie, I am of opinion that Anketill de Crafie was first enfeoffed thereof, about King Stephen or H. 2. time; for cleer it is, that the same Anketil posselt ^f it, and had his residence ^e here; From whom it descended ^h to Roger de Crafie, his nephew (scil. son of Roger his brother) which Roger, about the beginning of King Ric. 1. time, sold it unto William de Waver, son of Robert de Waver his kinsman, for XL. li. of silver, to be held of him the said Roger and his heirs by the sixth part of a Knights Fee; whereupon for distinction from the many other Merstons in this Countie, it came to be called Waver's Merston: whose grandchild, William, in 41 H. 3. obtained a Charter ^k of Free warren in all his demesne lands here: But taking part with the rebellious Barons in 49 H. 3. for which his lands were seized ^l, and this Mannour given ^m to Roger de Somers (Lord of Dudley) upon his Composition (according to the Dictum de Benilwozth) he was necessitated to sell ⁿ it, out-right, to the said Roger for CC. marks of silver: Howbeit, afterwards, either he or his son Robert redeem'd it again; for in 35 E. 1. the same Robert entailed ^o it, at his son's marriage, together with Th' ester-waver and other lands, as in my discourse of that place hath been already said.

In whose line it continued till 6 H. 6. that John Waver of Th' ester-waver Esquire, past ^p it unto John Catesby of Lapwozth: from whom it came to John Catesby of Stowell, grandchild to the said John, who in 16 E. 4. obtained a Release ^q from Henry Waver of Th' ester waver Esquire, of all his right and title thereto: and afterwards (though by what direct steps I have not seen) unto the descendants of Thomas Catesby, a younger son of Sir Will. Catesby Knight, whose Pedegree is in Lapwozth to be seen: one of which, viz. John, about the beginning of King James his time, sold it unto Henry Mayne, of Bobington in Hartfordshire, in reversion after his own decease: by which means it is come to John Mayne, now of Elmedon Gentleman, grandchild to the said Henry.

Merston-Culy.

IN King Edward the Confessor's time, this place was posselt ^r by one Aluric, who, after the Norman Conquest, sold ^s it, with the License of King William, unto Robert de Oilgi: Of which Robert, Robert Vcnator held ^t it at the time of the generall Survey, it being then accounted for two hides, having Woods which extended to four furlongs in length and one in breadth, all valued at xx s. But from this time till King H. 2. reign, that Hugh de Culi was owner ^u thereof, I have seen no more of it: nor after that till 21 E. 3. that Sr Fouk de Bermingham posselt ^w it, as appears by a speciall License, ^x by him then granted unto one Ranulph Lejecroft, to amortize two Mess. two yard land, and xii s. Rent, lying therein, for the maintenance of a Priest to celebrate divine Service, here, every day in the Chapell of S. Leonard, for the health of the soul of him the said Ranulph, and of his Ancestors, and all the faithfull deceased.

From which Ranulph (who had ^y a good proportion of lands here, besides what he had so disposed of) descended Robert Leecroft, by whom, in 22 R. 2. the whole Mannour was purchased ^z from Thomas Roche and Eliz. his wife, it being of her inheritance, as daughter ^a and heir unto Thomas de Bermingham. To the descendants of which Robert, it continued till H. 8. time, that Anne the daughter and heir ^b to William Leecroft of Colmhill, was wedded ^c unto John Lisle of Morhull Esquire, whose son and heir, scil. Nicholas Lisle, sold ^d it, in 25 H. 8. to Reginald Digby of Colmhill Esquire, in which line it still continues.

Lindon.

THAT this Hamlet was originally so called from the situation thereof, the name doth plainly manifest, Ublin. in the Brittain, signifying a Lake or Pool, and don, in the Saxon, a Hill; for at the foot of an indifferent rising ground it standeth: but the first mention I have found of it in any Record, is ^e in 34 H. 3. where it appears that unilda de Lynden brought an Assize of Novel disseisin against Walter de Bishopsdon and others, for lands here; yet is it no Mannour of itself, but the lands of other Lordships reach into it, whereof I shall not need to give instance.

Little Pakinton.

OF this place I find no mention in the Conqueror's Survey, though it seems to have been part of the Earl of Mellent's possessions at that time; for it appears ^f that the antient Earls of Leicester were chief Lords of the Fee: But certain it is, that in King H. 1. time, Robert de Cerafo ^g posselt it, and after him ^h Gilbert the son of Picot; which Gilbert had issue ⁱ William Picot, unto whom Nicholas the son of Richard de Torpe released ^j all his right therein, that descended to him by inheritance from the same Robert de Cerafo his grandfather. This Gilbert Picot, being a ^k Knight, had four possessions in Leicestershire; viz. Barow, Segrabe, Olen, &c. And in 4 H. 3. was William Picot (his son) one ^l of the Justices for the Gaol-delivery at Warwick, and Leicester, both. In which line of Picot it continued till about the middle of King H. 3. reign; but then, by daughters and heirs, two parts divided ^m to Murdac and Ireys, and the third to ⁿ Nicholas Pikot (which came shortly after to one Gilb. Petemon) betwixt whom there grew suits ^o for their interest here, in 27 H. 3.

But of these coparceners Sir Henry Murdac was the chief ^p, being Shirriff of this County and Leicestershire in 46 H. 3. and one ^q of the Justices for the Gaol-delivery at Warwick in 56 H. 3. Which Sir Henry doing homage ^r to Roger de Quency Earl of Winchester (as Lord of the Honour of Leicester) for the fourth part of a Knight's Fee,

Fee, that he and the other coheirs held of him here at Pakinton, had authoritie given " him by the said Earl, to receive the homage of Thomas le Ireys, and Agnes his wife; as also of Nich. Pikot, his fellow partners before spoken of: at which time he gave " to the same Earl xl s. of silver in the behalf of himself and them, and his and their heirs, to be released from attendance at the three weeks Court at Leicester, making their appearances at his Leet only.

To this Sir Henry succeeded Sir William Murdac Knight, who bore " for his Armes Bend of ten pieces Arg. and Gules, and had issue " Alice his daughter and heir wedded " to Sir Thomas Poyvile Knight, unto whom she brought a fair inheritance of lands in Leicestershire; Which Boyviles had their residence " at Stokelston in that Countie: But within the compasse of that time, as they had to do here, they obtained one of the two other parts of this Lordship, before spoken of, as it seems; So that upon the Partition betwixt the three daughters and heirs of the last John; viz. " Eliz. the wife of John Cokain, Margaret of Thomas Restwold, and Anne of Henry Sorbill, made 17. Ann. S. E. 4. it was allotted (inter alia) to Elizabeth, by the name of the Mannour of Pakinton-Picot; whose son and heir, Edmund Cokain of Bury Bailly in Com. Herif. about the later end of H. 7. c. m., sold " it unto Sir Robert Brudnell of Dene in Com. Northampt. Knight. From whom descend d Thomas Brudnell Esquire (afterwards, scil. 3. Car. created Lord Brudnell, a person much to be honoured for his great learning, prudence, and eminent knowledge in Antiquities) who by his Deed " of bargain and sale, dated 19 May 4. Jac. past it unto Sir Edward Brabazon, then of Pether-Whitacre in this Countie Knight, which Sir Edward disposed thereof to Sir Anthony Brabazon Knight his younger son, the late owner thereof.

Touching that part which Ireys had, I find, that in 13 E. 3. Thomas le Ireys passed " it away, by the name likewise of the Mannour of Pakinton-Picot, to Philip de Ayleston, and Katherine his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, but for lack of such issue to return unto the right heirs of the said Thomas; which makes me conjecture that the said Katherine was his daughter: After this, viz. in 50 E. 3. Sir William de Clinton Knight (of whom in Marstoke I shall speak) purchased " one third part of this Mannour from John Wiltches and Joane his wife: but whether this were that which Philip de Ayleston, above specified, had; or the other formerly belonging to G. Bert Peccomen, I cannot well discover. Which third part continued " to his posterity till the beginning of H. 7. time, though how much longer I know not: for in 20 H. 7. John Grey Vicount Listle was found " to dye seized the " of, by the name likewise of the Mannour of Pakinton-Picot; which from him devolved " to Thomas Marquis Dorset, his Uncle's son, and so consequently to Henry Duke of Suff. After whose attainder in 1 Marie (whereof in Atley I have spoke) it eschaeted to the Crown, and continued therein till Queen Elizabeth, in the second year of her reign, granted " it to Edward Earl of Lincoln (heir to the Clintons before specified) which Earl sold " it to one Sampson Baker Gentleman 30 Oct. 15 Eliz. who died " seized thereof in 26 Eliz. leaving John Baker his brother and heir L. years of age. Which John, together with Humphrey Baker, then residing at the Charter-House near Cobentre, by their Deed " bearing date 29 Jan. 33 Eliz. aliened it unto Robert Brudnell of Duddington in Com. Hunt. Esquire, whose son and heir Thomas (now Lord Brudnell) past it away, together with that other Mannour, formerly Boyvile's (and by the same Deed) unto Sir Edward Brabazon: by which means it came to Sir Anthony, his younger son, before specified.

There was anciently an Hermitage within the precincts of this Lordship (situate neer to the borders of Marstoke, the place bearing that name to this day) built " by one Hemerie, Parson of this Parish in the time of Robert de Cera's Lord of the Mannour, before spoken of: and, together with the Church of Pakinton, given " by Gislebert Picot to the Monks of Worcester, for the health of his soul, as also of his Ancestors and successors in pure Almes; which gift William Picot, his son, confirmed " with addition of a large proportion of land lying neer thereto, express by metes and bounds, over and above what his Father, before him, had granted withit: In consideration whereof he received from the said Monks four marks of silver, and two bifants (of Go'd) which grants were confirm'd " by Pope Innocent the third 4. Id. Febr. in the 4th year of King John's reign. Some other " concessions there were to this Hermitage, by ordinarie persons; but for brevity I omit them. All which lands, upon the dissolution of the Monasteries by King H. 8. were, in 33. of his reign, granted " (inter alia) to the Dean and Chapter of Worcester, unto whom they still continue, Anno scil. 1640.

But after the Church was so given to the Monks of Worcester, by the said Sir Gilbert Picot, and confirm'd " by Walter Durdent Bishop of Cobentre, there grew a difference " betwixt those Monks and the said Gilbert, concerning the rights due thereto, in so much as they went to suit with him about it; howbeit at length they came to a friendly agreement " whereupon the same Gilbert was, for himself and all his Tenants to pay Tithes Hay; and to allow them xii. loads of Wood yearly, by the oversight of his Woodward; as also an habitation for the Priest there officiating; and timber, with six forks, for the building of it; and likewise for sustaining it always in repair, together with half an acre of Land; and trouse out of his Woods for the continuall fencing thereof.

In Anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) the value " of this Church was certified at one Mark, but in 26 H. 8. at " iii li. over and above iii s. x d. allowed for payment of Procurations and Synodals, having at that time an annuall Pension " of x s. payable by the Prior of Marstoke.

Berkswell.

THIS, lying on the other side of Blithe, containeth Barston and Moxecote-hall within its parish. Before the Norman invasion one Levenet was owner^b thereof; but upon the Conquest by Duke William, it, with other vast possessions, were conferred^c upon Robert Earl of Meillant, in whose hands they continued till after the generall Survey, in which this was rated^d but for one hide, and valued at no more than v. s. the reason whereof I conceive to be, because the substance of it was then involved with Barston. In Domesday book it is written Berchewelle, having first had that denomination (as I guess) from the large Spring which boileth up on the South side of the Churchyard. Of those lands belonging to the Earl of Meillant, which Henry de Newburgh, his brother, (who obtained the Earldome of Warwick) had, this of Berkswell being part, was by him given to Ranulf de Mundeville in King H. 1. time, as may easily be gathered from what I have observed in Lightbourne.

To which Ranulf succeeded Nigel de Amunde-ville, who in 12 H. 2. was certified^e to hold one Knight's fee of the Earl of Warwick de veteri feof-famento, which Knight's fee is after manifested to lye here, and in Lightbourne. This Nigel had his seat here, as I guess; for it appears that he had then a Park at this place; and that Oliva his wife had the whole Lordship in dower: but all that I have observed of him, worthy the recitall, is, that he gave^f to the Canons of Kenilworth, for their fewell, as much dead wood in his Woods here at Berkswell, excepting onely his Park and that called Bernef, as two Carts throughout the year, Winter and Summer could carry: and that, because it was his wives dowrie (as I have said) she had a Palfrey, and x. l. s. in money for her content.

To this Nigell succeeded Richard de Munde-vill, who in 13 H. 3. was suretie^g for the payment of xx. li. for Thomas Earl of Warwick, being part of C. li. due to the King for his Relief: After which he had many publique and eminent employments in this Countie; for in 21 H. 3. I find^h him one of the Commissioners for assessing a xxx. th part of all mens goods for the King's behoof. In 20, 21, and 22 H. 3. a Justiceⁱ of Assize. In 26 H. 3. in Commission^k with the Shiriff and John Durvas-

fall for assessing of Armes, and conservation of the Peace. From 27. till 34 H. 3. a Commissioner^l for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick, and in 34 H. 3. a^m Knight. After which, viz. in 37 H. 3. he had a Charterⁿ of Free warren extending to all his demesne lands, both here and in Lightbourne, and the same year received an exemption^o for serving on Juries; whence I conclude that he was then grown old. And therefore because his son and heir was also called Richard, I will now begin to speak of him, whose publique Actions were no lesse eminent than his Fathers had been.

In 41 H. 3. he attended^p Richard Earl of Cornwall (then elect King of Romans) into Germany; and in 47 H. 3. was^q in the Welch Expedition with Prince Edward the King's eldest son. Whether he did cordially adhere to the rebellious Barons shortly after, I will not take upon me to say, though plain it is that he was^r in Kenilworth Castle when the Royall Army besieged it, and being reputed one of the Barons partie, had safe conduct with Henry de Hastings, and others, to march out upon the render thereof: yet so far he had favour by the Jurie^t, upon the seizure of his lands, as that they said upon their Oaths, that he was there with young Simon de Mountfort, per distinctionem, & contra voluntatem suam; so that I do not find that he compounded for his estate: But I suppose that this Richard had no issue; for in 6 E. 1. he past^u unto Will. de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick the inheritance of this Lordship, and Lightbourne, reserving only an estate for life to himself and Maud his wife: in consideration whereof, the said Earl granted^w to him the Mannour of Bzaeles, excepting xvi. li. Rent issuing out of the same, to hold during his life, and the life of the said Maud.

In 10 E. 1. this Richard de Mundeville was solely joyned in^x Commission with the Shiriff, for conservation of the Peace in this Countie, which is much ancients than some^y do allow Justices of Peace to have been: And in 13 E. 1. claimed^z a Court-leet here at Berkswell, with Assize of Bread and Beer, as also Free warren, but it was found by the Jurie, that he had no right to either Court-leet, or Assize of Bread and Beer, though he had injuriously held such a Court of his own Tenants when the King's Bayliff used to keep his Turne: wherefore he was warned to forbear the doing so any more, and amerced for what was past: howbeit, for the Free warren he produced King Henrie's Charter, which was allowed, and got off his Amerciament by favour of the Justices Itinerant. But it seems that he was not contented with the former agreement made with the Earl of Warwick, for quitting his title to this Mannour; for I find that in 25 E. 1. the Earl came to a new conclusion with him, granting him^a during life, C. li. per annum out of Belepe, and Wardley in Com. Wigorn. and Claberdon in this Countie.

To his first wife he wedded^b Isabell, sister unto John Fitz Alan; and to his second Maud, but of what parentage I have not seen. And by his Testament^c bearing date on the Friday before the Feast of the Annunciation of our Lady 27 E. 1. bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Priorie of Chaucumbe in Com. Northamp. neer to his Farther's grave, but his Heart to be buried in the Oratorie of the Friers Minors at Cobentre; and to the Countess of Lincolne a great silver Goblet, as also a Cross, with a bugle Horne: To the Ladie Alice de Whitacre a plain silver Goblet, and the like to the Lady Alice de Verdon; constituting Sir Richard de Whitacre, Sir Robert de Verdon Knights, Edm. de Whitacre, and Jordan de Whitacre his Executors.

After his death, that this Mannour came to the Earls of Warwick, it was assigned^d (inter alia) for the dowrie of Alice the widow of Guy de Beauchamp in 9 E. 2. And upon the attainder of Thomas Earl of Warwick in 22 R. 2. it was^e given to Thomas Holland Duke of Surrey; but after the depofall of King Richard 2. the said Earl repossest it, with the rest of his lands, again: amongst which it was, in 2 H. 4. allotted^f unto Margaret his widow for part of her dowrie. But coming with the rest of Warwick's lands to Richard Nevill (the stout Earl) it was by him entailed^g in 28 H. 6. and so, in 3 H. 7. came to the Crown, with Warwick-Castle, and the other lands belonging to that Earldom, as in Warwick I have manifested.

It seems that some Tenants, here, held their land in Villenage; for in 25 H. 8. the King (being then posselt of this Mannour) did grant unto one Thomas Miles his Letters Patent^h of Manumission. In the Crown it continued till 7 E. 6. and then was by that King, together with divers other Lordships in this Countie, pastⁱ unto John Duke of Northumb. But upon his attainder in 1 Marie, returning again to the Crown, it was in 3. & 4. Ph. & M. granted^k to Thomas Marow Esquire, and Alice his wife, for terme of their lives, the remainder to Samuell Marow, one of the sons of the same Thomas and Alice, and the heirs of him the said Samuell, to be held in Capite, by the 2th part of a Knight's Fee, in whose line, which I have here drawn^{*}, it continueth to this day.

Barston.

THIS, though it lye on the other side the River, is in the Parish of Berkswell, and was anciently a place of far greater note; for by the Conqueror's Survey it is rated at x. hides, mention being there made of it in two places; scil. under the title of the lands belonging unto Turchil de Warwick, and those appertaining to Robert Despenfer; the reason thereof, (as it appeareth by the Record) being, because Robert Despenfer, who in one place is called R. de Olgi, had it in mortgage of the before specified Turchil; unto which Turchil it came by descent from Alvine, his Father, who purchased it of one Ailmarus by the consent of King William the Conqueror. At the time of the said Survey, the Woods here, were reputed to be half a mile in length and three furlongs in breadth; and the whole (together with a Mill, of iv s.) rated at C s. Besides these x. hides doth the same Record manifest, that one Robert then held here of the King, half a hide, with a Mill esteemed at x. d. and both together valued at x. s. All which were of the said Turchil's inheritance: But the name hereof is variously written, viz. Bertanestone and Bercestone, and doubtless originally grew from some ancient owner of it in the Saxons time.

I am of opinion that it then extended into Berk-swell, and that almost all Berkswell was at that time included under the name of this place; forasmuch as that which is certified by the said generall Survey to be in Bercheswell, is so little, and this so much: but the extent of this Hamlet, I mean so much thereof as bore the name of Bertanestone (now Barston) was anciently given, partly to the Knights Templars, and partly to the Hospitalars; for in that Accompt^o of 31 H. 2. (whereof I have spoke in Balisall) the yearly value of what the Templars had here, amounted unto iv li. vii d. and is said to be de feods Roberti Marmienis, the Donors name being not exprest. But that which the Hospitalars had, is recorded to be the one half of the village, and was bestowed on them by Alan de Faleis, as appears by King John's Charter^r, who, in 1. of his reign, confirm'd it to them, together with the Park and Wood thereto appertaining. A which, together with what belong'd to the Templars (and came to the said Hospitalars, with Balisall, as I have there declared) at the generall dissolution, temp. H. 8. being given to the King, was granted^o out of the Crown in 4 Eliz. to John Fisher and others.

The Custome^r, for what belong'd to the Templars here, was that their Tenants should mow three days in the year, one at the cost of the House, (scil. as to Diet) and plow one day at the like charge, reap two days, one at their own finding, but Morcote-Hall.

Reg. ſt. de Kenilw. f. 52. This place had its name originally from the ſituation thereof, which is in a black mooriſh ſoil, and for antiquitie may be rankt with many that are of greater note; for it had a being in King Henry the ſecond's time (and perhaps before) as appears by Nigel de Amundevill's grant to the Canons of Kenilworth, whereof I have ſpoke in Berkſwell, whereunto was witneſs Hamon de Morcote. To which Hamon ſucceeded Alan de Morcote, of whom I find mention ^u in 4 H. 3. whose ſon and heir, John, is ſometimes ſiled ^w Johannes de Warwick, and at other ^x Johannes de Morcote, being owner ^y alſo of a third part of Radway in this Countie. After which John, there was one Walter de Morcote, one ^z of the four Coroners in this Shire, in 1 Edw. 3. I am of opinion, that Margaret the wife to William Warde of Charwelton in Com. Northampt. was daughter and heir to the ſame Walter; for it appears, that upon the ſale ^a of this place, called the Manour of Morcote, with the appurtenances, in Berkſwell, by the ſaid William and Margaret, in 7 R. 2. unto one Thomas del Borne, there is ſpeciall warrantie againſt her heirs, which ſhews that it was of her inheritance.

i ^c Chauſ. 8. R. 2. m. 32. This Thomas, being alſo one ^b of the Coroners at that time, died ^e the year following; in whose line it continued till about the later end of K. Edw. 4. reign: but then did John Mathew, a Skinner of Cobentre, marry ^d the daughter and heir of that Family, and dying ^e in 13 H. 7. left iſſue George Mathew his ſon and heir, 12. years of age, whose great grandchild, Henry, now enjoys it (ann. ſcil. 1640.) and beareth for his Armes Sable a Lion rampant Argent, deriving his Deſcent ^f from George Mathew, a Welchman, father of the before ſpecified John.

Mireden.

This place ſituate upon London-road, having from ſome Inns and Alehouſes, built for the receipt of Paſſengers, grown of late times to the credit of a Village, doth now utterly eclipse the name of Alſpath, by which, and none other, the Town it ſelf (ſc. where the Church ſtandeth) was known, even from the Saxons times, till about the beginning of King Henry the ſixt's reign; for of Appredene till ^g then, I have never ſeen mention in any authentique writing: ſo that, I conceive it to have been about that time, that the buildings in this thorough-fare increaſt to ſuch a conſiderable number, that the name of the place, where they ſtand, came to be more frequently uſed, than that of the Town it ſelf. Yet am I of opinion, that the place where the greateſt part of Appredene now ſtands, was very antiently ſo called; for the later ſyllable dene importeth no leſſe, being the old Engliſh word, that ſignifieth a Valley, as this is; which (I ſuppoſe) for the foulneſſe thereof, was at firſt called Appredene.

g. Reg. de Coventre f. 48. b.

By the Conqueror's Survey ^h, where it is written h. Domeſd. lib. Atteſpede, and certified to contain four hides, having Woods of a mile and half in length, and a mile in breadth, it appears, that the Counteſs Godeva poſſeſt it in Edward the Confeſſor's days: whence I conclude, that the famous Earl Leofrike, her husband (of whom I have ſpoke at large in Cobentre) was formerly owner thereof: but at the time of the ſaid Survey, it with the reſt of the lands in this Shire, which the ſaid Counteſs before the Norman invaſion held, were in the King's hands, and ſermd out by him to one Nicholis. This at that time being valued at xxx s. with Cobentre and the reſt, was granted afterwards to the Earl of Cheſter, as it ſeems: but, as yet, I have not ſeen when the firſt of that Familie, who aſſumed their ſurname from hence, was enfeoffed of thoſe lands here, which they enjoyed: Perhaps it was Ivo de Alſpath, who lived ⁱ in H. 2. time; for before him I have not obſerved this ſurname attributed to any other.

i. Reg. de Cumba. f. 34. a.

To which Ivo ſucceeded Gerard, and Walter; but whether they were brothers or not, I am not certain. It ſeems that both theſe had a good ſhare in this place; for Gerard de Alſpath, ſon of that Ger. in 41 H. 3. obtained a Charter ^k of Free warren in all his demeſn lands, here: and Walter was ^l ſiled Dominus de Alſpath. This Gerard holding certain lands of Richard de Amundevill, Lord of Berkſwell, for which he did ^m Homage in 33 H. 3. by his Deed ⁿ obligatory, bound himſelf to pay unto the ſaid Richard and his heirs, a pair of gilt Spurs, yearly, at Eaſter, in Berkſwell-Hall, or xii d. in money, whether they ſhould pleaſe to chooſe. But that which Walter de Alſpath had, deſcended to William de Alſpath; who, in 32 E. 1. had alſo Free warren granted ^o to him in all his demeſn lands thereof. This William had a daughter ^p called Annabel, ſecond ^q wife to Gerard de Alſpath (ſon and heir to the laſt mentioned Gerard) but whether ſhe was an inheritrix, or not, I make a queſtion. Which Gerard and Annabel had ^r iſſue Sir Gerard de Alſpath Knight, a Servant, or at leaſt a very great Well-wiſher to Roger Mortimer Earl of March; who helping ^s to contrive the eſcape of the ſaid Roger, out of the Tower of London (where he was a Priſoner, by reaſon of the difference rence betwixt him and Thomas Earl of Lancaster) fled with him out of England; for which he got a special Pardon in 4 E. 3.

Betwixt the descendants of this Sir Gerard, and Margerie his niece, grew afterwards suits for a great part of these lands, the issue whereof was this, in brief; that the said Margerie, whom one William Cocks had taken to wife, past away all her right unto John de Cherwyn; in whose line it continued, till 2 E. 6. that Thomas Cherwyn of Angestre in Com. Staff. Esquire, sold it, by the name of the Mannour of Alspath, alias Opydene with th'appurtenances unto John Hales of Cobentre Gentleman. Which John, by his 2 Deed bearing date 4 Jan. 4 E. 6. past it unto his brother Christopher and his heirs; who in 1. & 2. Ph. & M. sold it unto Edward Aglionby Esquire, and John Holbech Gentleman, and Elizabeth his wife, to the uses following; viz. the one moiety thereof to the said Edward Aglionby his heirs and assigns for ever; and the other to the said Elizabeth and the heirs of her body, begotten by John Dabridgecourt Gentleman, her late husband, and for lack of such issue, to the right heirs of the said Elizabeth. But afterwards, viz. in 6 Eliz. did Thomas Dabridgecourt Esquire (son and heir to the said John and Elizabeth) pass back their right and title therein, to the before specified Edward Aglionby and his heirs: which Edward within 4. years after, sold it unto his son in Law William Foster Gentleman.

And of this William Foster did Richard Corbet of Clatercote in Com. Oxon. Esquire, purchase it in 25 Eliz. viz. to himself and Mary his wife, for their lives; with remainder to Robert Corbet of Moston-Corbet in Com. Salop. his brother, and his heirs: From which Robert Corbet it descended to Elizabeth his daughter and heir, wife to Sir Henry Wallop of Staitley in Com. Suth. Knight, who in 7 Jac. aliened it to William Andrews, and John Halfall Gentlemen, and their heirs. From which William, and John, did Thomas Holbech Gentleman, purchase the Capitall messuage, or Mannour place, with certain lands thereto belonging, in June 10 Jac. (the residue being, for the most part parcel'd out in petty sales to other persons) From whom it is come to Mathew Holbech his son and heir, that now enjoys it.

Within the precincts of this Parish, had the Se-graves, anciently, certain lands, and Rents, which were held of them immediately of John de Langley, and by him of the Earl of Chester's heir; viz. Hugh de Albini, by the fourth part of a Knight's Fee; and in process of time, came to have the reputation of a Mannour; All which were extended in 50 H. 3. for the rebellion of Nicholas de Segrave: but repossessing them again, by virtue of the Ditum de Benikworth, they descended to John de Segrave his son and heir; who, having made a good addition to his inheritance, here, by purchase of more from Richard de Kynston; as also of a Mill with two Pooles, called Horn-Poole, and Nes-poole, from Gerard de Alspath, and Maud his wife, in 12 E. 2. obtained a special Charter from the King, for a weekly Mercate upon the Tuesday, at this his Mannour of Alspath and a Faire yearly to last for eight days, beginning on the Eve of S. Laurence the Martyr. From which Family, with their other lands, it came to the Monbrays, Dukes of Bedford, by a daughter and heir, as in Caladon appeareth; in whose line it continued till Edward the fourth's time. But the next possessor of it, of whom I have found mention, was Thomas Earl of Derby, in 11 H. 8. to whose posterity it continues till this present, anno scil. 1640.

A fourth part of a Mannour, here, had one Thomas de Pauntou, who levied a Fine thereof, to Sir Henry de Arden Knight, and others, in 38 E. 3. though not recorded till 1 R. 2, which was sold afterwards to Wyard, if my Author mistake not; and from him came to Robert Castell, as I guess: for in 11 H. 4. had the said Robert a Charter of free warren in all his demesne lands here: This being that (as I conceive) which John Waldeff, Esquire, and Margaret his wife, were possessor of, in 15 H. 6.

Within the precincts of this Parish also, had the Family of Waldeff, anciently, a Seat, which continued in that line for divers descents; but at length, by a daughter and coheir, came to Walke; whereupon it had the name of Wilke-Hall, as we find at this day: the first of them, for whom I have seen any good authority, being Gerard Waldeff, who bestowed on the Monks of Cobentre certain lands here. To which Gerard succeeded William; who, about the beginning of K. Edward the first's time, gave the yearly Rent of xx d. for the maintenance of two Lamps, to burn before the Altar of S. Lawrence and S. Nicholas, in the Church of Alspath: as also two Waxen Tapers, to be lighted at the Elevation of the Host, in the said Church: And after him another William; but whether he were his son or grandson, I know not: which William was in Commission for levying and collecting a tax and xvth in 23. E. 3. And having been one of the Coroners in this Countie, for some time, was in 34 E. 3. by reason of his debilitie, discharged of that Office.

This last mentioned William had issue ³ Alan Waldeffe, who, by the marriage^h of Joane, daughter and heir to Richard de Whitacre, became possessor of Chmedon; and there residedⁱ in 17 R. 2. The next year ensuing, he was Eschaetor^k for this County and Leicestershire. In 21 R. 2. in Commission^l for levying and collecting a xvth and 2th. In^m 2 H. 4. Eschaetor again. In 3 H. 4. inⁿ Commission for levying and collecting the Aid, for marriage of Blanch the King's eldest daughter; and left issue^o two daughters and heirs, viz. Margaret the wife to Thomas Hore of Chmedon, and Elene married to Richard Walsh; by which means these lands in Alspath came to Walsh, the said Richard being certified^p in 1 E. 4. to hold the fourth part of a Knight's Fee, here, of the Duke of Norfolk, as of his Mannour which was Se-grave's.

It seems that the heires male of this Richard Walke continued the possession hereof for divers descents: for I find^q that Sir Richard Walke of Sheldesley in Com. Wigorn. Knight, was possessor of it about the beginning of King James his reign, and that he left two daughters and heirs, scil. Joyce married to Sir Roland Cotton of Alkington in Com. Wigorn. Gentleman, and William Replingham of Harbottle in this County Gentleman. 1. Sept. 16 Jac. who, within four years after, sold it^s unto Sir Robert Fisher of Packington Knight and Bar. the now owner thereof Anno scil. 1640.

In 24 H. 8. Roger Wigston Esquire, purchased certain^t lands lying here in Alspath of one Robert Croye, and others, by the name of the fourth part of the Mannour of Alspath; and in^u 25 H. 8. of Pichard Hoo and others, by the name of the Mannour of Alspath; which Richard Hoo, as it seems, had a grant^w of them from John Walsingham: all which were given^x by the same Roger to the Hospitall of Wablake in Coventre.

The Church (dedicated to S. Laurence) being very antiently given^y to the Monks of Coventre, and appropriated^z in 44 H. 3. was in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued^a at six marks, over and above any yearly Pension of three marks issuing out of it to the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield: And^b in 26 H. 8. at Cxii s. besides ix s. vi d. allowed for Precurations and Synodals.

In the South Ile of this Church, there was a Chantry founded by John Wyard, in 5 H. 4. (whose Monument is also there) and^c endowed with lands to the value of C s. per annum: Which

John, being an Esquire to Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick; and in 2 R. 2. one^d of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament then held at Westminster, had his residence^e in this place. But that which belong'd to this Chantry, was in Rents issuing out of lands lying remote from hence, and amounting to iv li. per annum, as was certified in 26 H. 8. upon the Survey^f then made.

Before the Norman Conquest, this was possessed by one Alunardus a Saxon; but afterwards Turchil de VVarwick had it; and of him did Godmund his brother hold it at the time of the generall Survey, by which it was estimated for four hides, valued at xxx s. having two Mills rated at ii s. and Woods extending to a mile in length, and as much in breadth: but in that Record it is written Patitone, the c being mistaken for a t. Which Turchil, or Siward de Arden his son and heir, granted it unto Geffrey de Clinton, Founder of the Castle and Priorie of Kenilworth temp. H. 1. Whereby it descended to Geffrey his son, who gave it to that Monastery for the reception of Robert de Clinton his brother, to be a Canon there; reserving the like service for it, as he himself was to perform for the same, viz. ^k half a Knight's Fee: whereupon the Canons of that House acquitted him of L s. per annum lands, which he owed to them for the soul of his brother William; and besides that, gave ^l him x. marks of silver, and that Horse for the great Saddle, formerly belonging to Maurice de Clinton his Nephew. Which grant was confirmed ^m by King Stephen, and likewise by ⁿ Hugh de Arden, and Henry, sons of Siward, with the consent of their other Brethren; who, in consideration thereof, received from Bernard, the first Prior of that House, ten marks of silver, and for Cecilie their mother one mark.

After which the said Canons in 19 E. 1. obtained a Charter ^o of Free warren in all their demesne lands here; the whole extent of their possessions within this Lordship, being about that time certified ^p at one Carucate and virgate of land, rated at xxx s. the profits of the store xx s. In Rent of Assize vi li. xix s. Three Mills at xl s. per annum. In Pleas and perquisites, yearly, iv s. and the Paunage iii s. The totall xlii. xvi s. But at the generall dissolution in 30 H. 8. all coming to the Crown, it was, in 26. of the said King's reign, aliened to John Fisher Esquire, for the sum of 626 li. i d. by Patent ^q dated 20. Sept. to be held in Capite by the xxth part of a Knight's Fee, the yearly Rent reserved thereupon to the Crown, being Lii s. ix d. per annum. Which price was the more easy (as tis like) in regard of a long Lease thereof then in being: for in 27 H. 8. the Canons of Kenilworth, well discerning by the dissolution of the lesser Monasteries, a greater storme approaching, demised ^r it for Lx. years, thence next ensuing, unto one William Wheeler, the elder, of Kenilworth. From which William it came to Simon Wheeler his son; whose widow; scil. Katherine, daughter to Sir Thomas Digby of Olney in Buckinghamshire, marrying to the said John Fisher, gave him the first advantage of fixing here.

This John was ^t of the Family of those Fishers of Dottel in Shropshire, and one of the Pensioners ^u to King Henry the 8. K. Edw. the sixt, Q.

Mary, and Q. Eliz. and in 4 Eliz. ^v constituted Steward unto Ambrose Dudley Earl of Warwick, for the Castle and Borough of Warwick, with all the rest of his Mannours in this County and Leicestershire: for the execution of which Office, by himself or his Deputie, he had the yearly Fee of five marks. He it was that built the whole body of the present Fabrick here at Packinton, as may be seen by the Armes carved on the timber-work, and set up in Glasse through sundry parts thereof: And had the Shiriffalty ^x of these Counties in 5 Eliz. being a Justice of Peace in this Shire, from the beginning of Queen Maryes reign till his death, which hapned ^y 8 Martii 13 Eliz. To whom succeeded Clement his son and heir, a person so much esteemed for his integrity and prudence, by Robert Earl of Leicester, that he constituted him his Treasurer for that warlike expedition into the Peisterlands, when he went Generall of the English Auxiliaries in Anno 1585. 27 Eliz. After which, being Knighted by King James, he made a Park of the Out-wood, and some other grounds, here: And having been employed in all the affaires of greatest moment relating to this Countie in his time, left issue Robert his son and heir, Knighted in his Father's life time; but afterwards advanced to the dignitie of a Baronet. Which Sir Robert raised that large Pool Eastwards from the House, built the Lodge in the Park; and much adorn'd this Seat with other places of delight, and had issue severall sons and daughters, as the Descent ^{*} here inserted sheweth.

The Church (dedicated to S. James) belonging, with the Mannour, to the Priory of Kenilworth, had first an yearly Pension ^z of xxviii s. granted out of it to the Canons of that House, by Geffrey Muschamp Bishop of this Dioces in King John's time: But afterwards, viz. in 6 E. 1. was totally appropriated to them by Roger Molend, then Bishop, as appeareth by his publike Instrument ^a dated at Tachebroke 6 Cal. Aug. the same year. In anno 1291. 19 E. 1. it was valued ^b at v. marks and the Vicaridge at one mark: but in 26 H. 8. the same Vicaridge was rated ^c at vii li. x s. i d. over and above ix s. vi d. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

And make me live to live hereafter ever;
And gladly to Gods hands my soul surrender,
Prepar'd by Faith which, faith shall faile me never.

Since that which now I have at length death bla-

And that my death of heavenly life may savour.*

Maxstoke.

Descending somewhat lower by the guidance of this River, I come to Maxstoke, in the Conqueror's Survey^d written Maxstone, and certified to contain five hides, except one virgate, the Woods being one mile in length, and half a mile in breadth, and the whole valued at xls. which then belonged unto Turchil de Warwick (Alnod holding it as his Tenant) but in Edward the Con-fessor's time, to one Ailmundus. I have not seen when it was first granted from the Descendants of that Turchil, unto the Limesies, Lords, of Long-Ichinton and Solihull, in this Countie (of which later, viz. Solihull, it was reputed^e a member in 15 E. 2.) but that they had it, and very antiently, appears by the Shiriff's Accompt in^f 6 Job. where John de Braiose, and Amabil his wife, gave a Fine of XL. marks and a Palfrey, to have possession of it and Wulet; unto both which, Alice the widow of John de Limesie, brother to the said Annab:l, being at that time Countess of Warwick, claimed an interest; having had the King's Precept for receiving seisin thereof, for which she had likewise given a Fine: but in that Record it is written Maxtoc.

From this Amabil; for she died without issue
(as by the Descent in Ichington appeareth) it came to William de Odingells; son of Hugh de Odingells, by Basilia her sister: Which William in 34 H. 3.
had a Charter^g of Free warren in all his demefn lands here; and left issue William, who, in 13 E.
1. claimed, here likewise, a Court-Leet, with Gallows, Tumbrell, and Assize of Bread and Beer, by Prescription, which were allowed^h; the Hamlets of Periton and Cotes (now Coton) being membersⁱ thereof, the same William de Odingells having xiv. Freeholders there, from whom he received xxxvi s. viii d. per annum Rent.
Unto which William succeeded Edmund^k his son and heir, who dying without issue, the inheritance came to be divided betwixt^l his four Sisters and heirs, whose names with their matches I have in Solihull exprest. Of these Ida^m, the eldest had this Lordship for her share; and by marriage with John de Clinton, one of the sons unto Thomas de Clinton of Amington (eldest son of Sir Thomas de Clinton of Colshill) brought it unto that Family;
wherein it continued till 16 H. 6. that Sir William de Clinton passed it away, in exchange, unto Humphrey Earl Stafford, for two Lordships in Northamptonshire, as I shall shew by and by.
But forasmuch as the said John de Clinton and his descendants, being persons of much eminency, had here their seat; I shall, before I proceed farther, say something, historically, of them.

This John, before his marriage with the said Ida, residedⁿ at Aminton, as his Father did; and was called^o John de Clinton junior, whilst his Uncle
John (whose seat was at Colshill) lived. In 29
Edw. 1. he served^p in the Parliament at Wincolne as one of the Knights for this Shire; and the same year had speciall Summons^q, amongst divers
other eminent perions, to attend the King at Warwick upon Twede, on the Feast day of the Nativité of S. John Baptist, to march against the Scots: At which time the King invading^r Scotland with his Army Royall, as a badge of his favour.

Which John in 17 Edw. 2. was a Knight and in 3 E. 3. constituted one of the Conservators of the Peace in this Countie: howbeit, shortly after, he arrived to far greater advancement (by his Brother's means, as I guess) for in 6, 7. & 8 E. 3. he was summoned to Parliament amongst the Barons of this Realm: but little have I farther seen in relation to him, though he lived till the twentieth year of this King's reign at least, other than that he bore ^{for} his Armes Argent upon a cheif Azure, two Mullets of 6. points Or, pierced gules; and that he wedded ^{his} Margerie the daughter to Sir William Corbet of Chadley in Worcestershire, in 18 Edw. 2. by whom he had issue Sir John de Clinton Knight his son and heir: but his story I shall respice for a while, till I have spoke of William his noble Uncle, whose great actions and eminent employments made no small splendor amongst our English Worthies of that age.

This William being a Knight, in 17 Edw. 2. wedded ^{his} Julian the daughter and heir unto Sir Thomas de Leybourn, widow of John Lord Hastings of Bergabenny, in 3 Edw. 3. Which match was (as I guess) a great step to his farther advancement: For the next year following, he was constituted Justice of Chester, scil. 23. Oct. and within lesse than two months after, Constable ^{of} Doboy Castle, as also Warden of the Cinq-Ports: in which high places his prudence grew so conspicious, that he was thought worthy to be rankt amongst the superiour Nobility, and thereupon had summons to the Parliament held at Westminster, in 5 Edw. 3. which advancement to Honour, did rather increase his prictie than clate his minde: For having that very year obtained License to amortize xxli. per annum Lands and Rents lying here, in Marstoke, together with the advowson of the Church, for the maintenance of certain Chantry-Priests to celebrate divine Service daily there, for the soul of King Edward the third, after his departure out of this life, and for the souls of his Ancestors; as also for his own soul, and the soul of Julian his wife; about five months following, he seiled the number of five Priests, for the purposes aforesaid. In 7 E. 3. he was constituted Admirall of the Seas on the Western coast of England. In 10 Edw. 3. he began the Foundation of a goodly Monastery for Canons Regular of S. Augustin, on the South part of this Lordship, which he amply endowed (as I shall shew by and by) And standing high in the King's favour, became forthwith advanc't to the Earldome of Huntendon, as by his Charter of Creation dated 16. Martii, 11 Edw. 3. appeareth; having not onely xx li. given him out of the issues of that Countie, to be payd by the Shiriff at the Feasts of Easter and Michaelmasse, yearly; but for his better support of that Honour, in consideration of his former acceptable services, a grant of a thousand marks per an. lands, to himself and the heirs male of his bodie for ever: And moreover a speciall Precept directed to Rich. de Feriby, late Master of the Wardrobe, to account and make satisfaction unto him for his Fee and Robes due from the time that he had been retained to serve the said King as a Banerret.

In 12 Edw. 3. he had another Patent, constituting him Constable of Doboy Castle again: So likewise in 15 E. 3. for being Admirall of the Western Seas; and in 17 E. 3. for the custodie of all the King's Forests from Trent Southwards. Being therefore thus honoured and intricht, and also advanc't to such places of power and trust, in 19 E. 3. he began the Foundation of a fair and strong Castle, here, in a quadrangular forme, for the behoof of his nephew, John de Clinton, and his heirs (having no issue of his own body) the Prospect whereof is represented on the next page; making a Park of the Out-wood: And the next year following, he received the summe of 823 li. 12 s. 04 d. of the King's gift, as a remuneration of his services in the Warrs beyond Seas. This noble Earl bore ^{for} his Armes Argent Crusule fichè sable, upon a Cheif Azure two Mullets Or, pierced Gules; which Coat differs from that of his elder brothers onely in the Crosslets, having not been born by any other of this Family till of late time. By his Testament bearing date 23. Aug. 1354. (28 Edw. 1.) he bequeathed his body to sepulture in the Priorie Church, here, at Marstoke, and departed this life 25. Aug. the same year, leaving Sir John de Clinton Knight (his brother's son) his next heir, then 28. years of age. Which Sir John from 31 Edw. 3. during all the same King's reign, as

By *Idonea*¹, his first wife, one of the sisters and at length coheirs unto William Lord Say, he left issue Sir William^m and Sir *Thomas*ⁿ de Clinton, both K^s and Edward^o a younger son: Of which Sir Thomas I shall take farther notice when I come to Amin-ton, but Sir William (the eldest) died before him in 7 R. 2. His second wife was Elizabeth^p, one of the daughters & heirs to Will. de la Plaunch of Haberham in Com. Buck. having been first^q married to Robert Lord Grey of Rotherfield, secondly^r to Sir John de Bermingham, of Bermingham in this Countie, thirdly^s to him, and lastly^t to Sir John Russell Knight. But by her, having no issue, he departed^u this life in 20 R. 2. leaving William his grandson his next heir, and of full age: which Lady Elizabeth held^v this Castle, with other lands settled upon her at marriage, during her life; and having been a great Benefactress to the foundation of the Collegiate-Church at Knoll, in 4 H. 5. at length became one of the coheirs to Sir Roger Hillary Knight, as appeareth by her Deed^x, whereunto her Seal of Armes is affixt; in which she bears her paternall coat in the mid't, and the two Noble-men, her husbands, on the dexter side, with the two Knights (Bermingham and Russell) on the other: In whose Testament^y I finde little memorable, farther than that she disposed her body to be buried in the Chancell at Haberham, above specified, before the Image of our Lady, and gave to the Canons, here, at Marstoke, to pray for her soul, and the soul of the Lord Clinton, her husband, xl s. But in 2 H. 6. she died^z, being more than Lxxx. years of age; so that then the possession^a of this Castle and Mannour returned to her grandson-in Law, scil. Sir William de Clinton Knight, Lord^b Clinton and Say.

Which Sir William sat in Parliament, with the rest of the Barons, from 23 R. 2. till his death, as appears by his severall summons^c. In 1 H. 4. he was in Commission^d for arraying of men in this Countie, and in 9 H. 5. retained by^e Indenture to serve the King in his warrs of France, with xl. men at Armes; viz. himself, one Knight, and the rest Esquires, as also CCC. Archers well and sufficiently mounted, armed, and arrayed; taking for himself iv s. per diem, for the Knight ii s. and for each other man at Armes i s. with the reward accustomed. Neither was he forgetfull of the before mentioned Canons here at Marstoke; for I finde that^f in 10 H. 4. he bestowed on them x li. yearly Rent issuing out of certain lands lying in Dun-ton-Basset in Com. Leic. And having^g married Anne, daughter^h to the Lord Botreaux, but widowⁱ of Sir Fouk Fitzwarin Knight, departed this life in 10 H. 6. leaving John his son and heir xxii. years of age: Of whom I have little to say, considering that within six years after he came to his estate, he passed away the inheritance of this Castle and Lordship, unto Humphrey Earl Stafford, and Anne his wife, in exchange for the Mannours of Whiston, and Medeford, in port-hamptonshire, as by the Deed^k, whereunto his Seal of Armes is affixt (viz. quarterly Clinton and Say, with two Greyhounds supporting the Timbre) appeareth; which bears date 17. Maii 16 H. 6. After which though he retained some other Lordships in this County, yet did he not reside therein; so that here I am to leave this branch of that ancient and noble Family (from whence the now Earl of Lincolne is lineally descended) and trace down the succession of this Castle through such other hands as it hath since fallen into.

It seems that the before specified Earl, had a very great liking to this Castle; for no sooner did he to obtain it, but that he plated the Gates all over with Iron, and adorn'd them with his own Coat, impaled with Nevill (his wife being the daughter to Raphe Nevill Earl of Westmerland) and supported by two Antelopes, in respect that Anne, his mother, was one of the daughters and coheirs unto Thomas of Woodstock Duke of Gloucester: And in further memorie that these Gates were then so strengthened and beautified, he caused the burning Nave, and Knee (the ancient Badges of his Ancestors) to be imbossed in the Iron-work thwarting the midst thereof, as are yet to be seen. This great Earl, being created Duke of Buckingham in 23 H. 6, constituted ¹ William Dracote his Constable of this Castle; for executing which Office, he had the Fee of five marks per annum. Within the body thereof is a little Chapell, in which, by speciall dispensation from Reginald Bouslers then Bishop of this Diocess, was solemnized ^m the marriages of John Talbot son and heir to John Talbot Earl of Shrewsbury, and Katherine Stafford, one of the daughters of this Duke, in 36 H. 6. As also of John Stafford one of his younger sons (afterwards created ⁿ Earl of Wiltshire) and Constance the daughter of Henry Greene Esquire. To which Duke succeeded Henry his grandson; upon whose attainder in 1 Ric. 3. the custodie of it was committed ^o to Walter Grant, one of the Gentlemen-Hushers to the Queen.

The next thing observable thereof, is, that King ^p Ric. 3. upon his march towards Stafford, in the last year of his reign, came from Benilwoth hither, and commanded, that part of the inner buildings should be taken down and carried to that Castle, with all speed: but what was done therein I know not, for he was soon after slain at Wosworth-field; whereupon, King Henry, his successor, constituted ^q William Trussell Esquire, his Constable here. Howbeit, within a short space, Edward Duke of Buckingham, son and heir to the said Henry, repossessing what his Father had, in 18 H. 7. made ^r John Harewell of Warren's-Wotton Esquire, Constable thereof: But that Duke forfeited all by his attainder in 13 H. 8. Whereupon Commissioners were appointed to enquire, what Castles, Mannours, Lands, &c. he was at that time seized of, with the names of all his Officers and their severall Fees: At which time it was certified ^s (inter alia) that Hugh Mervyn Esquire, had the Keepership of the Park, here, having been admitted thereto by the said Duke, at ii d. by the day; as also Bayliffe there, at ii d. by the day, the old Fee having been but a penny; William Phipps Porter, at x s. per annum, by an old grant from the said Duke for life, he being then above Lxxx. years of age; and John Archer Constable, his Fee Lxvi s. viii d. per annum.

Which Duke suffered death 17 May in the year abovesaid: whereupon 20. Octob. following, the King granted ^t unto Sir William Compton Knight, and to the heirs male of his body, this Castle, Park, and Mannour, to be held of the Crown in Capite by Knights service: but because there had been a Recovery ^u of them suffered by the said Duke in 5 H. 8. whereby the Recoverers stood seized to the use of himself and his heirs, so that it did not eschaer to the King, by his said forfeiture;

therefore, to make all sure, it was in the Parliament of 15 H. 8. enacted ^w, that the before specified Duke, should stand and be convicted and attainted of High Treason, and forfeit to the King and his heirs, all Honours, Castles, Mannours, &c. whereof he, or any person to his use, were seized in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, &c. the 24th of April 4. H. 8. or any time since; with a speciall Proviso, that the same Act should not prejudice the King's grant abovesaid mentioned, made to Sir William Compton Knight, in 13. of his reign. Which Sir Will. Compton had issue ^x Peter, upon whose death in 36 H. 8. the King supposing he had left no issue male, so that the inheritance of this Castle had again returned to the Crown, made a grant ^y unto Edward Lord Clinton of, the Custodie of it and the Park, with the Herbage, and pannage thereof; as also of the Barwick of the Lordship, for life: but when he understood, that the said Peter had a son (born after his Father's death, as my authoritie saith) he then made a new ^z grant of the premisses to the same Lord Clinton, during the minority of the heir, then his Ward: whereupon the said Lord Clinton, in consideration of Lxx li. sterling, made an assignation ^a of the said Custodie, &c. unto John Hales Gentleman, at that time Clerk of the Hamper, and a very active man in the world (as in Cobentre I have shewed.) To the posterity of which Sir Will. Compton it continued, till that Will. Lord Compton, his great grandchild, by his Deed ^b bearing date 3. Febr. 39 Eliz. sold it unto Sir Thomas Egerton Kt. then Lord Keeper of the great Seal; from whom Thomas Dilke Esquire (afterwards Knight) purchased ^c it, scil. 21. Junii 41 Eliz. whose grandson, William, now enjoys it.

The Church (dedicated to S. Michael) was in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued ^d at viii. marks. In 5 E. 3. Sir William de Clinton Knight, purposing to found a Chantrie therein, obtained License ^e to bestow the advouson thereof (inter alia) upon the same; with Lands and Rents to the value of xx li. per annum. In pursuance whereof, he gave to John Lynie Priest, Warden of the said Chantrie and his successors, a certain piece of land lying, then, betwixt the road-way leading from Stillogley towards Colshill, on the one side, and the Church-yard of Marstoke on the other; and extending in length from the Lord of Marstoke's Quarrie, to the Pale of his Park; together with the advouson of the Church, as by his Charter ^f bearing date at Marstoke, on the Feast day of the Annunciation of our Lady 6 E. 3. appeareth. And moreover, by the same Charter, granted unto the said Warden and his successors 8. Messuages & six yard land, lying in Long-Ichinton; as also the Bodies of viii. Natives dwelling there, with all their Chattells and Offspring: And besides this, xx s. yearly Rent, payable by one William Snede, and John his son, out of a Messuage lying in Long-Ichinton abovesaid, with the reversion of the same Messuage, and one yard land, after their deceases: and lastly 4. Acres of land lying in the said town of Ichinton, together with the advouson of the Church.

Which endowment being so made, he forthwith by the consent of Roger de Northburgh, at that time Bishop of this Diocess, John Lynie the then Parson (whom he constituted Warden, as abovesaid) Sir John de Clinton, Lord of Marstoke, his brother and Parishioner there; as also all the other Parishioners of Marstoke; ordained ^g that the said five Priests should thenceforth celebrate divine Service daily in the same Church, where the Bodies of his Ancestors lay interred, for the good estate of him the said Sir William de Clinton, Julian his wife, Sir John de Clinton, his brother, Alice his wife; and for the souls of Sir John de Clinton his Father, the Lady Ida his Mother; as also for the good estate of Edward the third then King of England, Laurence de Hastings, and for all the Lords Hastings, in time to come: And moreover of the said Roger then Bishop of Coventre and Litchfield, Henry Prior of Coventre, and their successors; and for the souls of all the Kings of England, Lords Hastings, Bishops of Coventre and Litchfield, Priors of Coventre, Brethren and sisters, Parents and benefactors, and all the faithfull deceased.

Appointing, that the said Warden and his successors; as also the Subwarden and his, should be always Priests in Orders, admitted and instituted by the Bishop of Coventre and Litchfield, for the time being; and after the decease of him the said Sir William, always presented by the said Sir John de Clinton, his brother, and his heirs, having a House convenient for themselves, and the other three, adjoining to the Churchyard of Marstoke aforesaid, there to inhabit and lodge together. And that the said Warden and his successors should provide from time to time, Books, Veltments, Lights; as also two Clerks for the use of himself, his Sub-warden and the other Priests, aswell in the Church as in the House, viz. their Hall and Chamber, night and day. And moreover, that he and his said Sub-warden, and the other Priests, should wear white Surplices, with black Copes and Stoles, after the manner of the Vicars-Chorall in the Cathedrall of Litchfield, whilst they were about divine Service both in the Church and Quire. And that the charge of the Books and Ornaments should belong to the Sub-warden, whose Office was to direct concerning the celebration of Masses; viz. of whom, what howers; and in what order, by himself and the other Priests they were to be performed; And that Bread, Wine, Water, and Lights should be ready for the said Masses and divine exercises, but at the charge of the Warden to be provided.

And further, that aswell the Warden, when he could sily be at leisure, and Sub-warden, as all the Priests, except some great occasion did hinder, every day after dinner and before Vespers, should, together in the said Church, sing the full Office of the Dead, viz. Placebo and Dirige, except on double Festivalls and the time of Easter, in which they ought to observe the custome of the Church of Salisbury, in saying the said Office: As also Mattens, Vespers, and Canonicall howers, with Note, in the Quire of the Church aforesaid, admitting the Chaplains and Clerks of the same Church to sing with them, if they pleased. And likewise, that after the Compline, they should say the Commendation of the Dead, in the said Quire, according to the course above described: And every Holy day, in the Quire together, the seven Penitentiall Psalmes, and the xv. Gradualls, with the Letanie and accustomed Prayers, unless, there were cause expressed by the Warden, that they should say them out of the Quire. And that both the Warden and Subwarden, & all the other Priests, should every day celebrate their particular Masses in the said Church, or Quire, according to appointment, except there were a lawfull impediment, so that upon every Sunday, the Masse of the B. Virgin should be celebrated with Note, and the Mass of the day in such sort as was fit.

And upon every Munday, one of them, whom the Sub-warden should appoint, to celebrate the said Mass of our Lady by Note, with the Office for the Dead, for the souls of the persons before recited, and all the faithfull deceased: And after the death of the said Sir William de Clinton, and Sir John his brother, for their souls also: And that another of the said Priests should celebrate, the same day, the high Mass of S. Michael th' arch Angell, Patron of that Church, and of all the holy Angels, with Note; and the rest throughout the week, thus: Upon every Tuesday the Mass of S. Thomas, sometime Archbishop of Canterbury, by Note, besides the high Mass of the day by Note also; On Wednesday the first Mass of our blessed Ladie, by Note, and the high Mass of the said day with Note, as also a memorall of S. Katherine the Virgin: On Thursday the first Mass of the Holy Ghost by Note, as also the high Mass of the day: On Friday the first Mass of the B. Virgin by Note, and the high Mass of the holy Cross the same day by Note also: On Saturday the first Mass of S. John the Evangelist, by Note, and the high Mass of the glorious Virgin Mary. And that every Priest in his severall Mass, should specially pray for him the said Sir William, and all the persons before recited, both living and dead: as also, that in his Memento for the living, speciall mention being made of them, as aforesaid, they should pray for the good estate of the Church and Kingdom, and all the Benefactors to the said Chantrie. And lastly, that after his decease, they should in the first place remember him; next his Father and Mother, Brother, and their wives aforesaid; and afterwards the rest before expressed, with the Benefactors to the said Chantrie, and after them whom they should think fit; and then all the faithfull deceased. Which Ordination so made, bears date at Fulbroke in this Countie 21 Junii anno 1332. (6 E. 3.) and was ratified by the before specified Bishop the sixt of July following.

The Priorie.

But as this worthy person became advanced to further honour and riches, so was his heart much enlarged for works of pietie; for within the space of four years next following, having obtained License from the King, for the Foundation of a Monastery of Canons-Regular of S. Augustin's Order, and for amortizing of the Churches of Marstoke and Long-Ichinton thereto; with xx li. lands per an. of his own proper estate, he began the fabrick thereof, whereby the Chantrie, before mentioned, became dissolved, and was incorporated to that Religious House: And being then newly created Earl of Huntendon, procured from the said King a most ample Charter of Liberties and privileges thereto; constituting by his own Charter most solemn and exact Rules for the government of those his Canons: In which Charter, having declared his Dedication thereof to the honour of the holy and individuall Trinity, the blessed Virgin, S. Michael th' arch Angell and all Saints, he expresseth his said Foundation and endowment to be, for the good estate of himself and Julian his wife; as also of Edw. 3. then K. of England, Laurence de Hastings, Roger Bishop of Cob. and Litch. Henry Prior of Coventre, Richard Dean of Litchfield; as also of the the Monks of Cobentre, and Canons of Lichfield, during this life : and for the health of his soul , together with the souls of the said Julian, K. Edward & the rest, as aforesaid, after their departures out of this world ; the souls of John de Clinton his father, Ida his mother, John his brother, and their children living & dead : and moreover, for the souls of all the Kings of England Lords Hastings, Bishops of Cob. and Lich. Priors, Deans, Monks, and Canons of the places before recited, his Parents, Benefactors, and of all the faithfull deceased.

Appointing, that there should be therein, an elective Prior, with a Covent of xiii. Canons, besides, there living religiously , and regularly , according to the Rule of S^t Augustin ; wearing both in Summer and Winter for their upper garment a black Cope and Hood, with a Surplis under the said Cope. and such other garments as all other Regular Canons then used. And that upon the death of the Prior, the Covent should within five or six days proceed to the election of another, without seeking for any License of him, his heirs or successors. Likewise that none should be admitted as a Canon in this Monastery, but a Free-born man, and so reputed, as also of good conversation, competently learned for the state of such a Canon, having a fit voice to sing, being xviii. years old at least, and fit to receive the Order of Priesthood, when he should come of meet age ; and at the end of the first year after such his entrance, that should read, or cause to be read openly in his pretence , all and singular the things contained in the said Charter of Foundation, promising his faithfull observance of them.

And further declared , that whereas he had endowed the said Monastery, with Lands and Rents to the value of CC li. per an. lying within the precincts of Spasstoke, and Long-Actinton before specified, when there should happen to be x. marks yearly increase of that revenue, either by himself or any other Benefactor, or through the industry of the said Prior and Covent, within one month after, another Canon might be added to their number ; and so still more Canons, as their revenues should proportionably augment. And likewise, that no yearly Pension should be granted to any one by the Prior, except for the certain advantage of the House , whereof the Bishop of the Dioces to be Judge : As also that the Accounts of all the Officers belonging to the Monasterie, should be yearly exhibited to the Prior and Covent , or three persons by them nominated, and openly read before the whole Covent ; to the end that every one might thereby know the true state of the House, and by Indenture to be then deposited in their Treasury.

And hereunto did he adde, that after his departure out of this life , his Anniversarie should be yearly celebrated by the said Prior and Covent , with Placebo and Dirige ; as also solemn Mass in the Quire, and the whole Office of the Dead, for the health of his soul, with the souls above specified, and all the faithfull deceased. And that upon the same day there should be a Dole to an C. poor people, viz. of Spasstoke and other places, to each a Loaf weighing Ls. and every day at dinner time , over and above the accustomed Bread allowed to the poor, one white Conventuall Loaf, and a mess of meat out of the Kitchen , together with a flagon of Beer, assigned to one of the poorest people in Spasstoke, or from some other place , according to the discretion of the Prior or his Almoner, for the health of the said Founder's soul , and the souls of the persons above named, and all the faithfull deceased. And that the Mass of the blest Virgin, the Chapter-Mass, and the Mass of the day, should be daily celebrated at the heures, and in the places accustomed in other Monasteries ; so that in all those Masses , except on the greatest Festivalls , mention should be made of him, and of Julian his wife ; as also of the said King Edward, and the persons before recited, during their lives in this world ; and afterwards in such sort as is usually done for the dead. And moreover, that every Prior before his installation should cause all the particulars contained in the said Charter of Foundation to be openly read, promising his faithfull observance of them to his utmost power.

And after Mutens of the blessed Virgin finished in the Quire , and the Mass of the same , and at the end of every houre, the Priest celebrating the Mass, and the performer of the Office , with the same voice that he concludeth it ; to use the Angelique salutation of our Lady, and recommendation of her Mother, in this manner ; Ave Maria gratia plena , Dominus tecum ; benedicta tu inter mulieres , & benedicta fructus ventris tui , Jesus , Amen. Et benedicta sit venerabilis mater tua Anna , ex qua tua caro Virginea & immaculata processit ; whereunto the Quire shall answer, Amen.

And lastly , obliging his heirs and successors, under the penaltie of God's curse , with the curses of the blest Virgin , S. Michael th' arch Angel, and All Saints , that they should not make any advantages to themselves out of the possessions belonging to this Monasterie, appointed, that if the Prior did transgress in any thing pertaining to his dutie, every Canon of the House should be obliged to make complaint to the Bishop thereof , and the Bishop to see satisfaction made : and if any Canon should faile in his particular dutie , and thereof be convicted before the Prior, or other competent Judge , that for the space of five years he might not be capable to bear any Office in the Monasterie , except the Prior, by the advice of the better part of the Covent, should think fit to abate three years thereof, or any part of that time.

And for the firmer observance of all these his Ordinances , and the more lasting memory of this his establishment, he caused this his Charter to be indented and exemplified in three parts ; the one to remain with the said Prior and Covent for ever ; the other with the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield ; and the third with himself, his heirs and successors ; unto every of which he affixed his Seal ; procuring likewise a ratification thereof from Roger de Northburgh then Bishop of Cobentre and Lichfield as also by the Dean & Chapter of Lichfield ; His bearing date here at Spasstoke x^o. . . . An. MCCxxxvi. and theirs in April, and May following. Unto all which, the K. added his Confirmation dated 4^o Martii in the xviiith year of his reign.

Neither was it long after this , but that the said Earl made a farther augmentation to what he had so given , as hath been said : For within one year next following, he bestowed ^m on them the advowson of the moiety of the Church of Walughton in Leicestershire. In 14 E. 3. the advowson of the Church of Sanctiworth, which was immediately thereupon appropriated ^o to them by Wulfstan B. of Worcester , with reservation of a Vicaridge to the value

In⁹ 17.E.3. the Mannour of Shustoke, with the advouſon of the Church and Chapell or Chantry at Bentley; then newly by them purchafed⁹ of John Lord Moubray. Which grant was of ſo great conſequence to theſe Canons, as that by the advantage thereof, they ſoon obtained⁶ in exchange for the ſame, from John the ſon and heir of Sir John de Clinton before ſpecified, the ancient Mannour-houſe of Marſtoke, moated about, and ſituate neer to this Monafterie, together with the Park, and all that part, which hath ſince that time been known by the name of the Priory-Lordſhip: Whereupon they converted the old Houſe (the ancient ſeat of the ſaid Founder's Anceſtors) into Barnes, keeping up the Moat for the turning of a Water-mill, which ſo continued till within the memory of ſome aged perſons lately deceaſed. By which exchange it likewiſe appears, that the ſaid Founder had alſo given to this Monafterie, the moiety of the Mannour, of Petherwhitacre, and that his nephew had it, with Shuſtoke aforeſaid, upon that agreement.

In 19 E.3. he gave⁹ the advouſons of the Churches of Aſton-Cantlow and Fillingley thereunto, then newly obtained⁹ by him from Laurence de Haſtings E. of Penbroke (his ſon in Law) which were immediately appropriated unto it: viz. that of Aſton-Cantlow by⁹ Wolſtan B⁹ of Worceſter, and that of Fillingley by⁹ Pope Clement the vith which grant Rog. de Northburgh B⁹ of Cobentre & Leich, confirmed. To theſe Conceſſions did Tho. de Beauchamp then E. of Warw. adde⁹ the advouſon of the Church of Wardley in Worceſterſhire, w^{ch} was forthwith appropriated⁹ to them by Wolſtan B⁹ of Worceſter; whereupon they had a⁹ Releaſe from the Monks of Likford of all their right thereunto. And now that they were ſo plentifully provided for, by their Founders bounty, and favour of other Benefactors, they ſoon after began to make ſeverall purchaſes in ſundry places (though but petty parcells) viz. in⁹ Marſtoke, Cobentre and Long-ſchinton; as alſo of a Water-mill⁹ in Shuſtoke: and in 10 H.4. obtained⁹ from Will. Lord Clinton & Say x li. yearly Rent iſſuing out of certain lands lying in Duntun-Baſſet, in Com. Leic. and in 38 H.6. a Legacie⁹ of an Ch. from Humfrey Duke of Buckingham, to purchaſe lands of Cs. per ann. value; to the end that the Covent here might be augmented by one Canon more in number (ſc. xiii. in all) and that the ſame Canon or ſome other ſhould daily ſing and pray for the ſoul of the ſaid Humfrey, and for the ſouls of his Anceſtors, wife, and children, at the Altar in the North Ile of this Conventuall Church.

All which lands and poſſeſſions, with ſome other, whereof for brevity I omit the mention, were, in 26 H.8. upon the Survey⁹ then taken, eſtimated at the worth of Cxxx li. xi s. viii d. ob. per ann. Out of which ſum, conſidering theſe ſeverall deductions; viz. for the Conventuall loaf, Flagon of beer, and Meſs of meat, given every day to the poor according to the Founder's direction (as hath been already obſerved) and valued at iv d. per diem, which amounts to vi li. x s. d. per ann. In money, bread, and beer, diſtributed to poor people upon Monday Thursday, at the Gates of the Priory, iv li. per annum. To two Priests weekly celebrating divine ſervice in the Chapell dedicated to the Annunciation of the bleſſed Virgin, within the ſaid Monaftery, by the appointment of Adam de Overton, Lxxvi s. viii d. per an. Twelve pence per diem to a Canon, ſpecially celebrating for the Founders ſoul Lii s. per an. For the Fee of Sir Edw. Ferrers Knight, high Steward of the ſaid Monafterie, Lx s. per an. And in Annuities to other Officers, Penſions, and Rents, the clear yearly value amounted to no more than Lxxxvi li. xiii s. vii d. ob. So that by Act⁹ of Parliament the year following, being involved with thoſe which then went to wrack, it was in 30 H.8. (with a multitude more) granted⁹ out of the Crown unto Charles Brandon D. of Suff. and his heirs: Which Duke, for the ſum of 2103 li. ſterling, ſold the ſame, with all the Lands, Rectories, &c. thereunto belonging, unto Robert Trapps of London Goldſmith, as by his Deed⁹ dated 17. Julij 32 H.8. appeareth.

Unto whom ſucceeded⁹ Nich. Trapps, his ſon and heir; who leaving iſſue only two daughters, viz. Mary married to Giles Paulet, a younger ſon to William Marqueſſe of Wincheſter, and Alice unto Henry Brown Eſquire, the ſite of this Monaftery, with the lands in Marſtoke thereto belonging, by partition⁹ afterwards made, was allotted unto the ſaid Giles and Mary; whoſe grandchild Will. (now of Cotles in Com. Wilts.) enjoys it.

I come laſtly to ſpeak of the Vicaridge; for the Rectorie was appropriated to the Priorie, as hath been maniſeſt. This in 26 H.8. was valued⁹ at Cvi s. viii d. per an. but the manner of the Vicar's ſupport was thus, as by a Certificate⁹ from the Pariſhioners to the Viſitors, about the beginning of Q. Eliz. time, appeareth; viz. that he had meat and drink for himſelf and a child to wait upon him, every year a Gown, every week three caſts of Bread & two Gallons of Ale, his Barbour, Launder, Candle, and Fire-wood as much as he would ſpend, with xl s. wages, and all at the coſts of the Houſe.

Elmedon.

Following the stream of Blithe, a little farther, I come to its confluence with Cole; which water being of a dark colour, and therefore so called at first (as I guess) riseth in the Northern skirts of Wol- cester, but soon after its entrance into this County, is augmented by a petty torrent, which cometh from Elmedon; so that I shall next, in pursuance of my wonted methode, take notice of that place.

This, having its name originally from that hilly part of the town where the Mannour-house now stands, was before the Norman invasion possessed by one Tochi, but after the Conquest, Turchill de War-

p Dome's
lib.

wick had a grant thereof, as may seem by the generall Survey⁹ shortly after taken, where it is rated at half abide, the Woods thereunto belonging containing one furlong in length and as much in breadth; and all valued at v. s. the same Roger, who then also held Merstone, being his undertenant.

By some of the said Turchil's descendants, it was granted to the Ancestor of Simon de Berchestone, whom I take to be he, that had also Whitacre Superior, and whose descendants were surnamed of that place: For by a Fine¹ in 8 H. 3. betwixt Simon de Bercheston Plaintiff, and Simon the son of Jordan de Whitacre defendant, levied for warranty of a former Charter, it appears, that the said Simon de Whitacre and his heirs were to hold this place of the before specified Sim. de Bercheston, and his heirs, by the service of half a K^s Fee. But it continued not long so; for in 20 H. 3. the said half Knight's Fee here, was certified² to be held immediatly of the E. of Warwick, and in 36 H. 3. of Thomas de Arden (heir to Turchil before specified) and by him of those Earls. which Sim. de Whitacre in 41 H. 3. obtained a Charter³ of Free warren in all his demesne lands here; but his Seat being at Whitacre Superior, I have there placed the Descent of that Family; as also of the heirs female, viz. Waldeiff. Hore, & Boteler, which successively posselt this Mannour: Of which family of Waldeiff having spoken in Aspath (alias Merceden) I shall here take notice of what is observable, of those of Hore and Boteler, who had their residence in this place.

Of the Hores, the first was Thomas that became Lord of this Mannour, by the marriage of Margaret daughter & heir unto Alan Waldeyff; the Ancestors of which Thomas had long before their habitation here; for in 9 E. 2. I find⁴ one Ric. le Hore of Clunedon, and towards the later end of E. 3. Th. Hore, Eschactor⁵ for this County & Leicestershire in 3. & 4 R. 2. and grandfather to the before specified Thomas (as I guess) which Thomas, (husband of Margaret) underwent the same Office⁶ in 8 H. 6. To whom succeeded Alan Hore, as the Descent in Stonythorpe sheweth, who left issue Katherine his daughter and heir, wedded⁷ to John Boteler, son and heir to Richard Boteler of Solithull: Of which John (who was a Lawyer, I find, that in 16 H. 6. he was under-Shirif⁸ unto Rob. Arden Esq. but after his marriage with the heir of Hore, became employed in a higher degree of service: for in 3 H. 7. he was in Commission⁹ for the asselling of a Subsidie then granted to the K. in Parl. and in 4. & 6. H. 7. for the Gaol-delivery at Warw. so also in 21 H. 7. In 22 H. 7. he was constituted¹⁰ Clerke of the Peace in this Countie, and in 1 H. 8. again one of the Justices for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick, by the name of John Boteler Gent. And that departing this life in 4 H. 8. he was buried¹¹ in the Chapell of S. Katherine on the North part of Solithull Church, near his Ancestors, where his Monumentall inscription doth yet appear. To whom succeeded John his son and heir: which John in 34 H. 8. sold¹² this Mannour unto Tho. Marrow Gentleman, who had issue Samuel, of whom Henry Mayne of Bedinton in Com. Hertf. Gent. purchased it, whose grandchild, viz. John the son of John, now enjoys it.

Sheldon.

OF this place there is no mention in the Conq. Survey, so that I suppose it was then involved with Colthill; & being therewith in the hands of Geffrey de Clinton, temp. H. 1. came to Verdon in marriage with Lescelina, daughter of the same Geffrey, as Bandon did; and that Anselm de Sheldon, or one of his Ancestors was first enfeoffed thereof by some of the Verdons: for by a multitude of testimonies I find^m, that the said Anselm and his posterity were certified to hold it of that Family, by the service of half a K^s Fee, and they of the Earls of Warwick, as Clinton did all that he had. Of which Anselm the first mention that I have seen, isⁿ in 5 H. 3. To whom succeeded Henry de Sheldon his son^o & heir, who in 7 E. 1. was employed as a Commissioner with Sir Henry de Nottingham K^s, & John de Arundel Clerk, to enquire & certify touching the Lords of every Mannour, with the liberties, privileges and extent of the same; as also concerning the patronage of the Church, and how it was endowed, and likewise of the King's Demesns, Fees, Eschaets, &c. Which singular work was performed throughout two Hundreds of this Countie; viz. Knightslow, and Linneton, as appeareth yet upon^p Record; but whether they proceeded any farther or not, I am not certain, there being no memoriall left thereof: The forme of which Commission and Oath (the said Henry being then^a a Knight) is to be seen on the backside of the Patent-Roll of 7 E. 1. and very worthy observation.

In the same year he was also in^r Commission with the before specified persons, to enquire by the Oaths of substantiall and honest men, concerning all those that had xx li. lands per annum, or one whole Knights Fee of that value, and who being not Knights, ought to be: And from that time, till 20^o. of the said King's reign, was^r every year a Commissioner for the Gaol deliverie at Warwick. The next was^r Sir Nicholas de Sheldon Knight, of whom I have not found any thing memorable, other than that he bore^a for his Armes a Fesse with two Buckles in Chief (in reference, perhaps, to the Familie of Odingfells of Solthull, viz. Arg. a Fesse with 2. Mallets in Chief gules; but the colours of this, I cannot as yet discover) and that he left issue^m Henry his son & heir, who died without any Children, as I guesse; in regard that afterwards none of his name had more to do with this Ld.^s.

The first that next posselt it, was John Hothum Bishop of Ely, who had a grant^x thereof for life, or to the end of ten years, in case he died before, from Joane the widow of Sir Nicholas de Sheldon above mentioned, she having an estate for life therein; in consideration whereof she was to have an Annuitie of x li. per annum payd to her by the said Bishop, which grant of hers the before specified Henry de Sheldon confirmed^y; after whose death it reverted^z to him the said Henry, who immediatly thereupon entailed it^a, for want of issue betwixt himself and Beatrice his wife, on Sir John Murdack Knight, and his heirs; which Sir John in 20 Edw. 3. past^b away all his title therein, unto John de Peto junior, and Beatrice his wife, to hold during their lives, and the life of the Survivor of them, reserving x li. per annum, to be payd to himself and his heirs, after the decease of the said Henry and Beatrice without issue: which Henry and Beatrice confirmed that^c estate to them the said John and Beatrice the next year ensuing.

This Beatrice the wife of John de Peto, was daughter^d and heir to John de Sheldon, of whose alliance to the said Henry, I am not certain. But unto Sir John Murdack (of whom in Compton-Murdack I have spoke) succeeded Sir Thomas Murdack K^t, Lord of this Mannour, as heir to his Father; which Sir Thomas in 48^e E. 3. past away all his title therein unto Sir Roger Meres of Byrketon Knight, for CC li. sterling; whose son seil. John Meres, obtained a confirmation^e thereof from the before mentioned Beatrice, the widow of the said John de Peto, to take place after her decease (which makes me think that she was next heir in blood to the same Henry de Sheldon) and in 9 R. 2. sold^f the same reversion unto Sir Ralph Basset of Drayton Knight, who died^h seized thereof in 14 R. 2. leaving Thomas Earl Stafford, and Alice the wife to William Chaworth his cosins and next heirs, as the Descentⁱ here inserted sheweth.

Alicia uxor. Will. Chaworth altera cohær. Rad. Basset de Drayton.

To which Thomas succeeded^k William Earl Stafford, his Brother and heir; and to William Edmund^l, who in 4 H. 4. granted^m (inter alia) to Sir Hugh Shirley Knight, this Mannour of Sheldon, by the name of Colthill and Westhall, upon condition that if he the said Hugh should decease without issue male of his body, then to revert to the before specified Earl and his heirs; in confirmation whereof, John Browne Parson of Wychole, in 2 H. 6. releasedⁿ to Sir Ralph Shirley Knight (whom he calls cosin to Sir Ralph Basset of Drayton Knight) and to the heirs male of his body, all his right therein, and in other lands, which he the said John had, together with Walter Skyrlaw Bishop of Duresme and other Feoffees, by the grant of the before specified Ralph Basset in Fee-simple, without any condition whatsoever.

Whereupon the said Sir Ralph Shirley, by the name of Sir Ralph Shirley of Radsitt (super Soze, in Corz. Notr. Knight, in 10 H. 6. was certified^o to be Lord of this Mannour, and to hold it by the service of the fourth part of a K^s. Fee; but long it was not ere that the said Earl Stafford had it again, though by what agreement I have not seen; for by a Bayliff's Account^p of Humfrey Earl Stafford's lands in 23 Hen. 6. it appears, that the said Earl then posselt it.

Which Earl, being created D. of Buck. soon after died seized thereof, viz. in 39 H. 6. leaving Henry his son and heir 4 years of age: unto whom succeeded Edm. D. of Buck. attained in 13 H. 8. by means whereof it came to the Crown, and by Letters Pat. dated 29 Martii, the same year, was first granted out unto Thomas Grey Marq. Dorset, for life, and about two years after in Fee tail, to him and the heirs male of his bodie, viz. 27 Junii 15 H. 8. whole son and heir Henry D. of Suff. being attained in 1 M. (as in Astley I have shewed) it reformed again to the Crown, and was by Q. Eliz. first granted to Clerard and others in 2 of her reign; but by other Letters Pat. in 17 H. 8. to Hen. Grey E. q. in Fee tail; which Henry sold his estate therein, to Sir George Digby of Colthill Kt. who died seized thereof in 29 Eliz. leaving Robert his son and heir xii. years of age and upwards: which Robert, for farther corroboration of his title, in 3 Jac. obtained a Pat. thereof from the Crown, bearing date 15 Nov. ro himself and his heirs, being then a Kt. Since which time his posteritie have enjoyed it.

Besides this Mannour of St Hall and West Hall, there was another also here in Sheldon, which originally being nothing else but a member of Solihull, came in time to have the reputation of a Mannour: but the first ment on I have seen of it, is in 3 R. 2. where it is by Inquit. found, that Alice the widow of Sir Hugh le Despenser (sister alia u Solihull) died seized of C. s. Rent, here in Sheldon, payable partly by Free-holders, and partly by those that held in Villenage: which Alice had issue Sir Hugh le Despenser Kt. who in 3 H. 4. died seized of viii l. Rent, here, leaving Anne the wife of Sir Edw. Boteler Kt. his Sister and heir: Howbeit, within two years after, this which was no more than a certain Rent issuing out of sundry lands here, was called a Mannour, as appears by a Fine then levied thereof, together with the Mannour of Solihull, betwixt Sibill the widow of the said Sir Hugh le Despenser, and the before specified Sir Edward Boteler Kt. and Anne his wife: Of which, forasmuch as it afterwards accompanied Solihull for a long time, I shall not need to say more, it being a member thereof, as is farther manifested by the Inquit. taken after the death of George D. of Clarence upon whose attainment it came to the Crown; where it rested till 12 H. 8. that the King by his Letters Pat. dated 12 Febr. granted it together with the advouson of the Church, to Thomas D. of Poiff. and the heirs male of his body: which Duke in 20 H. 8. past it away, with Solihull, unto Edmund Knightley Esq. and Eustace Kuteley Gent. to the use of Sir George Throkemorton Knight and his heirs; whose grandchild Thomas, being seized of it in 23 Eliz. sold it unto the before specified Sir George Digby, as I have heard.

The Church (dedicated to St. Giles) was in An. 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued at viii. marks, and in 26 H. 8. at viii l. x s. x. d. over and above ix s. vi d. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

Of the Chantry founded here, the occasion was this. The before specified John de Peto having been so great a Benefactor to the Canons of Benilworth, by giving to them the Church of Locksley, and a large portion of that Village, as that by way of remuneration, they charged themselves and their successors, with the payment of xii. marks and v s. of silver yearly, viz. viii. marks for the maintenance of a Chantry Priest for ever, and four marks and five shillings for other pious uses; in 25 E. 3. built a Chapell adjoyning to this Church, dedicated to our Ladie, and procured Roger de Northburgh then Bishop of this Diocess, to ordain a Chantry therein; who, accordingly, did appoint and establish, that it should be called the Chantry of John de Peto junior, and that the Chantry-Priest serving therein, should be thenceforth presented by the Prior of Cobentre for the time being, at the nomination of the said John and the Lady Beatrice his wife, having an habitation adjoyning to the Church-yard, then also newly built by the said John de Peto: as also that the same Priest should especially pray for the good estate of him the said John, and likewise of Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, the Ladie Catherine his Countess, Sir Will. de Clinton Earl of Huntendon, Beatrice wife to the said John, his Father; and moreover of Roger de Northburgh then Bishop of Cob. and Wich. during this life, and for their souls after their departures hence; and for the souls of all the Earls of Warwick, as also the souls of the Fathers and Mothers of the said John and Beatrice, their kindred and friends; all the

the Priors of Cobentre and Henilwoyth, the Benefactors to the said Chantrie, and all the faithfull deceased.

That likewise in this Chapell the Anniversarie of the said John should be kept in a solemn manner, by the Parson of this Parish for the time being, or at least by his Curate and the Chantrie-Priest; and that for the space of xv. dayes following, the said Chantrie-Priest should say the Office for the dead, viz. Placebo and Dirige, for the soul of the said John and all the faithfull deceased. And moreover that upon the Feast day of the Annunciation of our Lady, one of the Canons of Henilwoyth might every year be sent hither, and celebrate the Mass of that day; and having so done, and made silence, read unto the people then present, the Ordination of this Chantrie, and suddainly after, make distribution of Ls. sterling to the poor, for the soul of the same John, and all the rest before mentioned; viz. to every poor body a penny, unless the number of the poor, then hapning to be there, should be so great, that it would not hold out; and if so, then two or three to have a penny amongst them: Which Ordination bears date at Herevode 5 Dec. 1351. (25 E. 3.)

And because the House for habitation of the Chantrie-Priest before specified, had no Garden belonging to it, there was a piece of ground, containing 7 Perches square, adjoining thereunto, on the North part, given by Jeffrey Scrope, then Parson of Wolthall, Will. Scrope, Parson of Medburne, and W. Avington Clerke, for the soul of Sir John Hothum Kt. Which piece of ground was granted to them by the said Sir John Hothum, to the intent that the Chantrie-Priest dwelling there, should have a Quarter of Oats yearly growing thereon, as also Pot-herbes to be spent in his House.

Colshill.

SOON after the said torrent is passed Sheldon, it enters Cole, which river halting towards Wylthe, gives name to Colshill situate upon an ascent on the South side thereof. This was one of those towns, which we call Antient Demesne, inasmuch as K. Edward the Confessor, and K. Will. the Conqueror possessed it, as appears by the generall Survey^k then taken, where it is rated for three hides; at which time there was a Church, and likewise a Mill valued at xl d. as also ten Burgeses in Henilwoyth belonging thereto, with VVoods of three miles in length, and two in breadth: but unto whom the Conqueror or his son first disposed of it, I never could find; yet that one of them so did, I incline to beleive, in regard that in the Charterⁱ of confirmation made by K. H. 2. unto Osbert of Clinton, ratifying the grant, which Geffrey de Clinton his Kinsman had made thereof to him the said Osbert, there is express mention, that Geffrey de Clinton, Father to the said Geffrey, did purchase it. Of which two Geffreys, I have spoke in my storie of Henilwoyth, and shall therefore say no more of either, than that it was Geffrey the second, who so granted^m it unto the before mentioned Osbert and his heirs, for his homage, and the service of one Knight's Fee: in whose line it continued for divers Descents, scil. till that in Edw. 3. time, by an heir female, it was transferred to the Familie of Mountfort.

Of this Osbert I find, thatⁿ in 8 H. 2. he is called Osbertus de Colshill; so also in 10, and 11 H. 2. upon levying of the Scutage in those years: and that he wedded^p Margaret the daughter to Will. de Hutton (son of Hugh that founded the Priorie of Worshall) by whom he had issue^q Osbert his son and heir: which Margaret in 2 Job. came to an accord with her said son, touching her dowrie, releasing her right to the third part of the VVoods, in generall, belonging to this Lordship, in lieu of an assignation by him then made unto her of certain VVoods by particular names; amongst which, in describing them by boundaries there is this^r expression, — Et ultra aquam boscum a quercu qui vocatur Quercus Castelli, usque ad Littlewale; From whence I observe that in ancient time there had been a Castle thereabouts, though where it stood I cannot well guess, except in that field on the North side of the town, called Crimeshill-field; for there, on the right hand the road leading towards Lichfield, have of late times been digged up certain foundations of building, accidentally discovered; amongst which a piece of Roman copper-coin was found, on the one side whereof is the head of Trajan the Emperor with a Laurell about it, and this circumscription on I M P. C A S. N E R V A T R A I A N. A V G. G E R M. P. M. and on the other Piety (as I take it) with her head veiled, her right hand extended, quasi vota suscipiens, and an Altar before her; the circumscription being I R. P O T. C O S. I T. So that 'tis not unlike that there hath been very antiently some notable Fort or Castle there, the place being so proper for such a thing, in regard of it's height, though tract of time hath thus overwhelmed its very ruins with the Common arable land.

This last mentioned Osbert de Clinton obtained a Charter^s from the King, for a weekly Mercate here upon the Sunday, and a Faire yearly to hold for two dayes; viz. the Eve and Feast-day of the Apostles Peter and Paul; which grant bears date at Hereberge 26 Aug. 9 Job. But there is little more that I have seen memorable of him, other than that he was in^t Armes with the Barons against King John, towards the end of his reign, and that he returned to his loyalty in 1 H. 3. whereupon his lands, seized upon for that offence, were again restored^u to him. After which it was not long ere he died, and that the custodie of his son and heir, and the lands of his inheritance, notwithstanding he was then a Kt. were committed^w to Will. de Briver; for I find, that the said William obtained a speciall Mandate^x from the King, to the Shiriff of this Countie, for protecting him in the possession thereof, and that he sold^y the same Wardship unto Will. de Cantilupe for C. marks. The name of which heir, was Thomas de Clinton, of whom the next mention that I have found, is that in 17 H. 3. he came to an agreement with Elysaut the widow to the before specified Osbert, touching her dowrie; whereupon it was concluded^z that she should hold the third part of a third part of the Kt's Fee here in Colshill and Walghton, which was given to her by the said Osbert.

In 19 H. 3. this Thomas was one of the Justices of Assize in this Countie, so also in 25 H. 3. But the reason of that grant so made by the King of his Wardship as abovesaid, was (as I conceive) in respect of the minoritie of thole coheirs, viz. the daughters and heirs to Henry de Clinton (which the Pedegree sheweth) for after they came to age and had husbands, it is evident that they questioned him for the performance of thole services, by which he held this Lordship of them; whereupon they came to an agreement by a Fine levied in 25 H. 3. viz. that he should do Homage to Wine de Bragenham and Agnes his wife (one of thole coheirs) and perform all other services incident to the said tenure: which being so settled, the said Wine and Agnes, within two years after, in consideration of xl. marks paid away their interest in this Knight's fee in Colthill and Halethton unto the before specified Will. de Cantilupe, levying a Fine for the surer selling thereof: but this William soon after released to the said Thomas and his heirs the one half thereof, reserving onely to himself and his heirs the service of half a Kts. fee for the lands in Colthill and Halethton, as abovesaid; which service upon partition made in 2 E. 1. betwixt the daughters and heirs of Cantilupe, came to Endola Zouche with Milisent his wife.

This Thomas de Clinton was a man of fair possessions; for it appears that he held five Kts. fees of the Earl of Warwick. In 32 H. 3. I find that he had a great suit with Hugh de Culi, touching Common of pasture here in Colthill, which the said Hugh claimed as belonging to his lands in Merton-Culi adjacent: and that in the same year he was one of the Justices for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick; as also in 35 H. 3. constituted the King's Escheator in this Countie (in those days an Office of great note) for performance whereof he made Oath in the presence of Henry de Wengham (afterwards Chancellour of England) and the Shiriff of the Shire, and had a speciall precept to the same Shiriff, to exempt him from serving on Juries by reason of that imployment, which held till 37 H. 3. In 38 H. 3. he obtained a Charter of Free-warren in all his demesn-lands here. In 45. and 49 H. 3. he was again in Commission for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick; and bore for his Armes onely a Chief, which I conceive was Azure, the feild being Argent (in regard that his posteritie retained the same ordinarie with thole colours) and wedded Mazera the daughter and heir of James de Bisegg (Lord of Badley in this Countie) by whom he had issue divers children as the Descent sheweth: whereof, unto John, (whom I take to be his second son) he gave the inheritance of this Mannour, with all his right in the advouson of the Church, reserving to himself an C l. sterling during his own life, in consideration thereof; and the performance of such service to his heirs, as to the Chief Lord of the Fee was due and accustomed; as also after his own decease 1 d. yearly to be payd at Christmasts to his heirs, for all services except forrain; entailing it upon his other son Osbert and his heirs, in case the same John should die without issue: which grant was made in 44 H. 3. as appears by the Fine then levied for confirmation thereof.

This John adhering to the Barons against K. Henr. 3. was one of those that held out Kenil- worth-Castle (touching the siege whereof I have elsewhere spoke) for which offence this Mannour being (inter alia) seized on, was bestowed upon Roger de Clifford; but thereof was he not long out of possession, through that favourable Decree called Ditum de Kenilworth: after which he grew in such esteem for his fidelitie, that from 6 E. 1. till 20 of the same King's reign, he was sundry times in Commission for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick; and in 25 E. 1. intrusted, together with Andrew de Astley (a great person in these parts) to choose and retain all such Knights and Esquires, within this Countie, as they should think fit for the service, to attend Prince Edward, then the King's Lieutenant in England, with Horse and Armes at London on the Observes of S. Mich. to be imployed as he the said Prince and the King's Councell should direct. In 13 E. 1. he claimed by Prescription within this his Lordship of Colthill Assize of Bread and Beer, Gallows, Pillorie, Tumbrell, a Court-leet, Infangthef, and Uttingthef, Percate, Faire and Free-warren: but it being demanded of him how he could justifie the said claim, he replied that thereto he was not bound to make answer, without the King's speciall Writ to enquire of his Ancestors being seized thereof, whereupon there was no more at that time said: and bore for his Armes Argent upon a chief Azure two flower de Lices Or, as by his Seal and Monument, in an arch of the Wall of Colthill-Church, where he lieth in male crois-leg'd, is yet to be seen; which kind of Buriall was onely used by those that had taken upon them the Crois, to serve in the Holy-land, as Mr. Cambden observeth.

To him succeeded John de Clinton his son and heir, who being afterwards a Kt. and in 28 E. 1. constituted one of the Conservators of the Peace in this Countie, the next year following had summons amongst divers great men to be at Warwick upon Tweede on the Feast of the Nativitie of St. John Bapt. well furnished with Horse and Armes to attend the King in his Scotch expedition: So also in 34 E. 1. to be at Carlisle in the quintize of the Nativitie of St. John Bapt. with the King's Army, to march against Robert Bruce, then in Armes in Scotland; and in 16 E. 2. had the custodie of the passage from England towards Scotland, from Whitoff haven unto Creshopeved. This Sir John bore for his Armes, Or three piles Azure, and a Canton Ermine, as by his Seal and other authorities appeareth; and wedded Alice the daughter of Sir Rob. de Grenlon Kt. by whom he had issue John his son and heir, who in 5 E. 3. was a Kt. and bore for his Armes Argent upon a Chief Azure two flowre de Lices Or, as his grandfather did; and departing this life in 27 E. 3. left issue by . . . daughter of Sir Roger Hilurie Kt. Joane his daughter and heir within age, who first became the wife of Sir John Montfort Kt. by which means this Lordship of Colthill devolved to that Family: secondly of Sir John Sutton Kt. (Lord of Dudley) and thirdly of Sir Henry Griffith of Witchmoure Kt.

Which Sir John de Montfort was the illegitimate son of Peter de Montfort of Beldesert in this Countie; but by reason of his said marriage made his residence here, and in 35 E. 3. served in the Parliament at Westminster as one of the Kts. for this Shire. In 38 E. 3. he was one of the principall principall Commanders of those few English forces, which having besieged the Castle of Doberey in France, encountred Charles de Blois with neer thrice that number, which he routed, slew the said Charles with neer a thousand others, took Prisoners, two Earls, 27 Lords, besides xv. men at Armes; and left issue Sir Baldwin de Montfort Kt. But Joane his widow, held this Lordship during her life, and in 45 E. 3. being then Sir Henry Griffith's wife, entailed it upon his issue by her; and for lack of such issue, upon John the son of Sir John de Sutton, and the heirs of his bodie; and for lack of such issue, upon Baldwin the son of Sir John de Montfort, her first husband, with divers other remainders. Whence I observe, that her husband Griffith, though he was the last, became the first in her respects, and Montfort, the first, set in the last place.

But all that I have seen, worth observance, of this Sir Baldwin is, that he was one of the Commissioners of Array in this Countie in 8 R. 2. as also that he attended the Duke of Lancaster into Spain in 9 R. 2. and there died, leaving issue by Margaret the daughter to Sir John de Clinton of Marstoke Kt. John, William, Baldwin, Thomas, and Margaret; which John was under age at his father's death, whereupon Sir Will. Bagot Kt. had his Wardship, and married Catherine his daughter to him; but he died without issue, before 23 R. 2. unto whom succeeded William his brother in the inheritance; Of which William I find, that having been, in H. 4 time, one of the chief Esquires retained with the Earl of Warwick for the siege of Calais; and in 5 H. 5. Steward of the Household to the same Earl, being retained with him at xl. marks per an. fee: As also from 9 H. 5. (at which time he was a Kt.) till his death, in Commission for conservation of the Peace in this Countie, he was one; and indeed chief of the Councell unto the same Earl, and Executor to the Ladie Isabell his Countess: and that almost in all employments for the publick service of the Countie, he had a principall place: for in 4. 8. 14. 19. and 24 H. 6. he was in Commission for treating with the people, concerning Loans of money to the King. In 14. and 28 H. 6. for assessing and levying of Subsidies. In 15 and 23 H. 6. one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament then held. In 12 H. 6. one of those, who swore to the observance of those Articles agreed on in the Parliament of that year. and three times Sheriff of this Countie and Leicestershire, viz. in 10. 20. and 29 H. 6. As also that he bore for his Armes A gent upon a chief Azure two flowre de l'ces Or, being the Coat of Clinton, his grand-mothers Father. In whose time that fair Spire-Steeple, here, being newly built from the ground, and the Chancell, as appeareth by the structure and Armes in sundry of the Windows, he was (without doubt) a speciall Benefactor thereto.

His Testament bears date the Wednesday next after the Feast of St. Mathew the Apostle 30 H. 6. but there is very little worth notice therein, other than the disposall of all his lands in Mollington, for the Foundation of a Chantrie here at Colthill, which was never accomplished. By his first wife; sc. Margaret daughter and heir to Sir John Peche of Hampton in Arden, he had issue Sir Baldwin Mountfort Kt. John that died without issue, Robert, Richard Parson of Almin- don, and Raph. Which Robert being possessor of the Mannour of Pontspath in this Countie, and of Wescote in Staffordshire, left issue one onely daughter and heir, named Catherine, married to George Booth, son and heir to Sir Will. Booth of Dunham in Cheshire (of the antient Familie of the Booths of Barton in Lancashire) From which George is lineally descended Sir George Booth now of Dunham Baronet. But by Joane a second wife (born in Little-Brittany) had the said Sir Will. Mountfort a son called Edmund, first one of the Esquires to King H. 6. and afterwards a Kt. and Sheriff of this Countie and Leicestershire in 38 H. 6. As also one of the Carvers to the same King, and a Commissioner for arraying of men the same year: A man, indeed, much in favour with that unfortunate Prince, as appears by an acknowledgement of his services exprest in the preamble of a certain Patent, whereby he had the Lordships of Shustoke and Wolc-Hall in this Countie, then given to him, which were seized on for the activens of John Lord Clinton and Say, on the behalf of the House of York.

Which Sir Edmund, by his Testament, bearing date 12 Martii 10 H. 7. bequeathed his body to sepulture in our Lady Chapell, within the Parish Church of Henley upon Thames (in com. Oxon.) at the window side before the Image of our Lady in the same Chapell; appointing thereby that a metely Tomb should be made according to his degree, and his Armes set upon it, with this inscription; Here lyeth Sir Edmund Mountford Knyht, sometime Counceller and Kerver with the most blessed King Henry the sixth, and after Chamberleyne to the high and mighty Prince Jasper D. of Bedford, brother to the said Prince the said King.

But I return to Sir Baldwin, who at his Father's death in 31 H. 6. was xl. years of age, and in 34 H. 6. a Kt. being then in Commission for conservation of the Peace in this Countie. Betwixt this Sir Baldwin and Sir Edm. Mountfort, his half brother, there was a great contestation for this Mannour of Colthill and the Mannour of Almin-don: for it seems that Sir Will. Mountfort their Father, being wrought upon by the importunitie of Joane his second wife, did endeavour the disherison of his Children by the first; for the better hearing out whereof, he enfeoffed Humphrey D. of Buckingham (a potent man in that age) to the use of the same Joane and of Edmund his son by her: which Edmund to make the said Duke the more firm to his interest, settled the reversion, in case he should have no issue, upon him and Humphry Earl Stafford his son; so that when Sir Baldwin made his claim thereunto, the Duke through his greatness so terrified him with threats, that he forced him solemnly to disclaim the former intail; and not onely so, but to procure Richard and John, his brothers of the whole blood, under their hands and Seals to do the like. Notwithstanding all which, Sir Baldwin, afterwards taking heart, did set a-foot his title again, so that at length the matter was referred to Thomas Bouchier Archb. of Canterb. Richard D. of York, Ric. Earl of Salisbury, John Earl of Gloucester, and Henry Vicount Bouchier, who awarded the said Duke to have Colthill to himself, and to his heirs, and that Almin-don should be to the same Sir Baldwin and his heirs; whereupon they released each to other; and the said Sir Edmund released to Humphrey Earl Stafford before specified, all his right

By which means she the said Joane and her son, went away with the present possession thereof, the reversion remayning in the before specified Duke and his heirs: Howbeit the said Sir Baldwin and his son, upon the attainder of that Duke (who was slain in the battail of Boshampton an. 38 H. 6.) procured a speciall clause to be inserted in the Act, for the regaining of their right hereunto, which forasmuch as it is memorable, I have here inserted.

—Foreseen alwey that this Act of atteynder in no wise hurt nor preiudice the right, title, nor possession of Symond Mountfort Esquire of in nor for the Mannours of Colshull and Almynndon in the Shire of Warwick, and the Manor of Rampnam in Berkshire; and the advowson of the Churches of the same Mannours, with their appurtenances, parcells & members; nor any of them, nor any part of them: nor the right, title, or possession of any persone or persones having joynt estate in the said Mannours or any of them with the seide Simond; nor the right, title, nor possession of any persone or persones having estate in the seide Mannours or any of them, to the use of Baldewyn Mountfort Knight fader of the seide Simond, nor any of them, nor their heirs nor assignes, nor any of the heires of the seide Baldewyn or Simond; which Mannours bin entailed on the heirs of the body of the seide Baldewyn begotten, as openly appeareth by evidens thereof redy to be shewed; for the disheriting of which Baldewyn and Symond of the seide Mannours, Edmond Montfort Kt. Karver to Henry the viii. late K. of England in dede and not of right, by the favour and might of the seide late soo King, Humfrey late D. of Buck. and James late Earle of Wiltshire, be full unconsciensly moynes long time laboured, as openly is known to many of the estates and worshipfull peopul of this Royallme, to the utterst impoverishing of the same Baldewyn and Simond.

Which said Sir Baldewyn, the better to manifest what unjust and ill dealing had been excercised by the before specified D. of Buck. for the utter disheriting of him and his son, made publication thereof to posteritie, by a particular Instrument, whereunto he set his hand and Seal; which, for that it discovers so much of the high oppression therein excercised, I have here thought fit to transcribe.

To all true Cristen pepull to whom this present writinge shall come, Baldewyn Mountfort Kt. and Prest, sendeth greting, &c. Know ye me the foresyd Baldewyn being in my good heele and good mynd, the day of the making hereof, at Hampton in Arderne, to say, testifye, and report for trouthe, there being present the Priour of Marstoke, with many other, that all such Obligations, Recoveres, Relees, or other writings which y made to Humfrey late D. of Buck. Humfrey late Lord of Stafford, and James late Erle of Wilts. or to Sir Edm. Mountfort my brother or any of them, for or of the Mannours of Colshull Almynndon, Rampnam, or any other parcell of my lvelode, which was late Sir Will. Mountforts my faders, hit was done by compulsion of the seide Duke, and for fere of my deth, and of my son Sir Simond's: For in trouthe the seide Duke kept me in Codentre xiiii. dayes, and after had me to the Castell of Marstoke, and there kept me: And my son Sir Symond was put in the Castell of Gloucester, and we coude never be delivered out, till we agreed to certain Articles written in a bill anexid to this my writinge; which Articles were send bi the seide Duke and Edmond, under the Seale of the said Edmond, to my seide son, when he was in prison in the seide Castell of Gloucester, reherfing that we should suffer Recoveres to be had ayeine us, such as the late Duke, Earl of Stafford, and Earl of Wiltshire, or Edm. Mountfort, by the advice of their Councell coude or would devise for ther profet; and also to relece all our right, which we had in the seide Mannours, to the same Duke, and other above reherfed, and to do o'her things, as hit appereth more plainly in the seide Bill; or els my seide son should never have comen out of Prison, nor y should not have abidden in my Cuntry, but to have had and to have stonden in the indignacion of the Lordship of the seide Duke, and other Lords above reherfed, which in thoo dayes had bin too heavy and too importable for me or my seide son to have boren.

By the which Recoveres, Relece, and Obligations, so had and made by compulsion, the said Edmund my brother would disherit me and mine yssue for ever, contrarie to right and consciens, God knoweth: For in trouthe, where the seide Duke seide, that and if any man would sey and prove, that any of the seide Mannours were entailed to me the seide Sir Baldewyn, eyther by Dede or by Fyne, he wold not be about to disherit me, nor myne heires for M. l. and my Lady of Buckingham affirmed, and seys the same since the deth of my seide Lord, late her husband: all that notwithstanding, the seide Edmond my brother, at the time of the seide Releces or Obligations made, or any Recoveres had ayeine me of the seide Mannours, had in his keepinge all the evidences concerning the seide Mannours, and he sware himself, and caused me to swere, and my brother the Parson, and Robert, before the seide Duke, that we saw never Dede of yntaile of the said Mannours nor Fyne, wherby they shold be entayled; where, that, indeed, the seide Sir Edmund was forsworn, and caused me and my Brether to be forsworn; for he had at that time divers Dedes, and Fynes in his keeping, wherby the seide Mannours were and are yntailed, which bin now redy to shew.

Wherefore I the seide Sir Baudwyn, in my last dayes, requier and charge yow that be presente at the making hereof, that ye informe, in that ye may, my seide Lady of Buckingham, and my yonge Lord of Buck. and all other Gentilmen and good men of this Countrey, that the seide Mannours bin entayled to me both by Dede and by Fyne; which Dedes and Fynes I shew you here at this time, to the intent that my Children may have their lvelode according to the talle, and as right and good consciens will, so that they be not disherit by the hiding of the seide Dedes and Fynes, and the colour and craft of my seide Brother Sir Edmund, being about to hurt, not onely his own soul, but the soules of the seide good Lord, late D. of Buck. and H. late Lord of Stafford his son, and James late Earle of Wilts. with many other good and well disposid persons, labourers in the same mater, not understanding what they did, God knoweth. In witnes, &c. I have set my Seale and signe manuall at Hampton above-seid, the Thursday next before S. Hillarie's dey xlixth. H. 6. and of the taking ayene of his royall power the first yeere.

This Sir Baldwyn, being at length a widower, betook betook himself to a religious course of life; and entering into holy Orders, in 39 H. 6. demised unto Simon his son and heir, the Mannour of Hampton in Arden, reserving onely for himself another Priest, and six Children celebrating divine Service there, with a competencie of meat and drink and other necessities during his life, according to their severall degrees, styling himself Knight and Priest, and died in 14 E. 4. leaving the before specified Simon his son and heir; who in K. H. 5. time, being a servant in Court to Q. Catherine, and in 35 H. 6. retained of Councell to Ric. Nevill Earl of Warwick, was in 1 E. 4. a Kt. and in 4. had a Release from that King, of all his right to this Mannour, in regard that Sir Baldwyn his Father, finding that Sir Edm. Mountfort (his half brother before spoken of) had backt himself with the countenance of the D. of Buck. (a mighty man for the Lancastrian interest) made a Feoffment thereof unto this King, when he was but Earl of March, the better to maintain his title thereto.

After which, viz. in 11 E. 4. he underwent the Sheriffaltie of this Countie and Leicestershire; and was retained by the said King, to serve him in the wars of France, for one whole year, with five Spears, himself accounted, and Lx. Archers well and sufficiently armed and arrayed, taking for himself ii s. per diem, for the rest of the said Spears xviii d. and for the Archers vi d. a peice; the King to have the third part of all prizes in war, taken by him or any of his retinue. In 9 E. 4. he had the Lieutenantie of the Isle of Wight and Castle of Carewbrooke, under Sir Anth. Widvile Kt. Lord Scales of Purcells, and of the said Isle: And being made a Kt. Banneret 24 Maii 11 E. 4. served in the wars of Boymonde in 15 E. 4. And was in all Commissions of the Peace, during the whole reign of that King, as also of Array, Gaol-deliverie, and levying of Subsidies, for the most part employed: So also in H. 7. time, till the x^h. of his reign; being likewise in 4. a Commissioner in this Countie, for assigning and choosing of Archers for releif of the Dutchie of Brittanie: which employments do argue, that he was a person of great wisdom and courage: But such an unhappy fate attended him, that by attainder in 10 H. 7. he lost his life, whereby his possessions, which were very large, became confiscate, to the utter ruin of his Familie.

The crime of Treason layd to his charge, was this; viz. that he sent xxx l. in money, by Henry his younger son, unto Perkin Warbeck; who counterfeiting himself to be one of the murdered sons of K. Edw. 4. did make severall attempts for the obtaining of the Crown: In the behalf of which Perkin, much hath been said by some, arguing that he was really the second son to K. Edward. Whether he was so or not, I will not stand to dispute, but (doubtless) many did really beleive him so to be; of which number this Sir Simon was one, having been a stedfast friend to the House of York, for it appears, that upon his triall in Castle-Hall London, the Friday next before Candlemas-day 10 H. 7. in the presence of Edw. D. of Buck. Thom. Marq. Dorset, Thom. Earl of Arundell and others, Commissioners for that purpose, he denied not the charge; having thereupon Judgement to be drawn through the midst of the Citie, as also hang'd and quartered at Tilburne; and being executed accordingly, was attainted in the Parl.

begun at Westm. 14 Oct. the year following: which sad Catastrophe did put a period to the greatness of this antient Familie (the line whereof the Pedegree before inserted doth shew till these present times: but what I have farther to say thereof is in Kinghurst) Upon the confiscation of whose lands, this Mannour was soon disposed of by the K, unto Simon Digby, Deputie to John Earl of Orford then Constable of the Tower, (which Simon Digby brought this unhappy Gentleman to the Bar at his said Triall) the Patent extending to the heirs male of his body, and bearing date at Westminster 23 Dec. 11 H. 7. to whom it still continues.

Touching the Ancestors of which Simon, I find, that they having antiently their residence at Wilton in Leicestershire, thereupon assumed their surname from thence, in H. 2. time; but afterwards fixing at Digby in Lincolnshire, were called of that place, which ever since hath been the known name of this Familie. Of which line was John de Digby, one of the Commissioners for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick in 11. 12. 14. 15. 32. and 33 E. 1. But I return; This Simon was second son to Sir Everard Digby of Wilton Kt. which Sir Everard, and three of his Brethren, lost their lives at Tontou-field (in Yorkshire) on K. H. 6. part. But our Simon, after he saw that the House of York prevailed, carried himself so obsequiously to Edw. 4th. that in 18 of that King's reign, he had a grant of an annuitie of x l. per an. issuing out of Ketford-Mills in Nottinghamshire, in consideration of his faithfull service done and to be done, as the Patent doth import: And within two years after, pro bono & commodifero servitio, quod idem Simon multimodis laboribus & expensis nobis per-antea & multipliciter impendit (as the King expresth) had the Forestership of Thornwodes, in the Southern part of Shirewood, bestowed

Which Alice by her last Will and Testament o, bearing date ult. Nov. 12 H. 8. gave a messuage here in Colthill, of the yearly value of xxxviii s.
viii d. and the Rent of vi s. viii d. issuing out of other lands; as also one acre of land lying in Cole- meadow (within the said Mannour of Colthill) to the intent that the issues and profits of the same should be distributed after this manner; viz. every day in the year, immediately after the sacring of the high Mass in the Church of Colthill, and at the end of the same Altar, where the said Mass

should so happen to be sung, to a Child, viz.
male or female, whose parents are Householders dwelling within the Parish, and under the age of
ix. years, that can and will, before the said sa-cring, kneel down at the said Altars end, and say five Pater noster; five Aves, and a Credo, for the soul of Simon Digby her late husband, hers, her Childrens, and all Christen-souls, a peny of silver sterling; beginning first at the House next to the Church, and so in order passing on from House to House till all be gone through: And to the Dean of the said Church, for the time being, yearly for his labour and diligence, in seeing the said Prayers so performed; and himself also saying at the said time a Pater noster, an Ave, and a Credo,
for the souls abovesaid, the yearly summe of vi s.
viii d. And that the remainder shall be to maintain a solemn Obit in the said Church, for the souls a-bovesaid, with the number of three Priests, whereof the Vicar of Colthill to be one, and the Deacon, and the Clerke besides; the said Vicar in case he be present to have viii d. And to xii poor people, the same time kneeling about the Hefse and saying our Ladies Psalter xii d. To the Bellringers v. d. For Waxe and Torchcs, burnt then likewise, xii d. To the reparation of the House, eth, iii s. iii d. To the chief Lord of the Fee ii s.

And the remainder being viii d. to run on and be kept in store for renewing of this Feoffment, as occasion shall be.

But this bequest being in after times deemed superstitious, and the land so given, divolving therefore to the Crown, the Inhabitants of this Parish obtained it by purchase (as I have heard) and setled part of the yearly profits thereof, for the maintenance of a School there, and part for to distribute to such Children, (viz. pence a piece as a-bovesaid) which repairing to the Church at ten of the clock every morning; shall say the Lords
Prayer before the Clerke, who for tolling a Bell at that time, and hearing the Children to perform that dutie, hath also a certain yearly allowance payd unto him.

Of the before specified Reginald and his descendants, I have little more to say, till within the compass of this last age, considering that their severall matches are expressed in the Pedegree before inserted; and that being Gentlemen of the superior rank, they underwent the most publick employments of note, scil. Justices of Peace, Shiriffs, and Commissioners upon all great occasions: But in Sir George Digby's issue (a grandchild to the said Reginald) was there an accession of very much honour to this ancient Familie; First by the marriage of Sir Rob. Digby Kt. (his son and heir) with Lettice, grandchild and heir female to Gerald Earl of Wiltshire in Ireland; whose son and heir; viz. Robert, having a fair estate in that Kingdom of his mothers inheritance, was by K. James created p Lord Digby of Seathill (his Castle there) which Dignitie descends to the heirs male of his body. And secondly by John, fourth son to the said Sir George; who, being a person of extraordinary parts, and employed by the same King, in that notable Embassie of Spain, for a marriage betwixt a daughter of that King, and the then Prince of England, was created Lord Dig-

The Church (dedicated to St. Peter) was very antiently given to the Nuns of Merkyate, in Bedfordshire for in H. 3. time it had a Vicar endowed: Nevertheless, about the beginning of Edm. 1 reign, there grew suits betwixt these Nuns and John de Clinton sen. touching the Advowson thereof; but at length they came to an accord, and gave him C. marks of silver, to quit his title thereto; which he did by a Fine then levied, whereby it appears, that the now Churches of Lea, Ober-Whitacre and Pether-Whitacre, were Chapelleries antiently belonging thereto. In an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) the Rectorie, then appropriated to those Nuns, was valued at xviii marks; and the Vicaridge at vi marks, but in x 26 H. 8. at x l. xviii s. vi d. over and above ix s. vi d. per an. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

Of the Vicars here, I find, that they have antiently been the Rurall-Deanes for this part of the Countrie (I mean the Deanrie of Arden, containing the Hundred of Hemlingford, wherein my present discourse lies:) Which order of Rurall-Deans was constituted by the Bishop or Arch-Bishop, as the learned Spelman observes, for the better regulating of Ecclesiasticall affairs; concerning whom, in a Councell held at London an. 1237. (21 H. 3.) by Otho the Pope's Legate, there is this Canon; Quod in quodam Concilio statutum invenimus approbantes, statuimus, ut per quoslibet Decanatus prudentes viri & fideles constituentur per Episcopum Confessores; quibus Personæ, & minores Clerici confiteri valeant, qui Decanis erubescunt confiteri forsitan & verentur: In Ecclesiis vero Cathedralibus Confessores institui precipimus generales.

All that I have farther to observe of this place, is, that in a 4 E. 6. the tall and beautifull Steeple here, suffered much hurt by Lightning and Thunder, which crackt the West side of the Tower, and shattered the upper-part of the Spire; for repairing whereof, though the Inhabitants sold one of their Bells, yet did they shorten it, xv. foot at the least.

Kingshurst.

This place did antiently belong to the Mountforts, before they were Lords of Colshill; for it appears that Peter de Mountfort of Wellesford, had it in Edw. 3. time; and in 41 of that K's. reign, by his Testament^b bequeathed unto Richard his younger son, all his goods both moveable and unmoveable, there: which Richard dwelt here; and after his death Rose his widow enfeof^c John de Catesby therein; who wedded her grandchild (as in Lapworth is manifested.) But Sir Baldwin Mountfort, grandchild to the said Peter (by John his eldest son) getting into possession, resided^d long upon it; and so did Sir Will. son and heir to Sir Baldwin, as may seem by the License^e he obtained 14 R. 2. from Ric. Scroope Bishop of Cob. and Lich. to have divine Service celebrated in his Chapel here: yet at length, John de Catesby before-specified, brought^f an Assize of Novel disseisin against the said Sir William, but upon the triall lost^g it: So that the said Sir William, having thus established his title, inclosed^h it; laying much of his demesne lands, parcell of the Mannour of Colshill, thereunto, and afterwards gaveⁱ it unto Sir Edm. Mountfort Kt. his son by a second wife: which Sir Edm. made^j the Parke in 26 H. 6. and resided much here: But after him Sir Sim. Mountfort, his nephew, died^k seized thereof; whose grandchild, Simon, also dwelt^l upon it, and so did Francis his son; betwixt whom and George Digby of Colshill Esq. (afterwards Kt.) there were great suits for it: Which George, layd claim thereto as a member of Colshill, and so consequently his right by virtue of K. H. 7. grant, made to his Ancestor of that Mannour (as hath been already said) So that after much expence of money therein, the said Francis was glad to come to an Agreement^m with him, in respect that part of the lands belonging thereto, and lying without the Park, did not so clearly appear to be parcell of Kingshurst, as the other did; and gave him a thousand pounds to quit his title: and afterwards Sir Edm. Mountfort Kt. grandchild to the said Francis, for further confirmation thereof to the posteritie of the said Sir George, passedⁿ away all his right therein to Sir Rob. Digby Kt. and his heirs; by whom it is enjoyed (together with Colshill) at this day.

Hawkswell.

This is no Mannour of itself, but as a member of Colshill, and involved therewith, hath been, and is still enjoyed by the owners of that Lordship.

Gilsdon.

This was heretofore written Gulesdone; for it seems that the Hill, which lyes North-Eastwards from the Village, being antiently so called, gave denomination therunto. But the first mention I find of it in Record^r, is in 10 E. 3. where it appears that one Will. le Wrounge of Colshill, whose inheritance it was, passed away his right therein unto Sir Ric. de Peshale Kt. for an C. marks of silver: the occasion whereof was this; Sir Richard, having an estate for life in the Mannours of Winton in Cambridgeshire, and Shustoke in this Countie, was requested by Will. de Clinton then Earl of Huntingdon (of whom in Marstoke I have spoke) to quit his right therein, unto him; inasmuch as he the said Earl had obtained the estate in reversion of those Lordships, from the Lord Mountbray, bray, in exchange for other lands : whereunto the said Sir Richard assented, upon condition that he might have this Mannour cleerly, and libertie to take down and remove, whether he pleased, a certain new House then built by him at Shustoke, and likewise to carry away such timber as he had cut down in the Park at Shustoke; as also to sell and take away six Oaks more, for timber, and six for fuell, out of the said Park : All which being assented unto, there were Indentures⁶ made betwixt the said Sir Richard and John de Peto junior then of Sheldon, in the behalf of the said Earl (unto whom he was of Council) for consummating the bargain: So that it hereby appears, that the C. marks given to the before-specified Will. le Wrounge, came out of the Earl of Huntingdon's purse. Unto which Sir Richard's part of the Indentures, is his Seal of Armes affixed; viz. Argent, upon a Crosse fleurie sable, an Escutcheon of Augmentation, bearing a Lion rampant.

But it was not long, ere that the said Sir Richard again quitted his right to this Mannour, unto the before specified Earl, whereupon the said Will. le Wrounge and Isabell his wife, for the better confirmation thereof, levied⁷ a Fine to the same John de Peto unto the said Earl's use: for in 20 E. 3. did the said Earl pass⁸ it unto John de Collesley and his heirs, in exchange for certain lands lying in Colshill, near Dwyke-bruge, which lands do bear the name of Collesleys to this day. From this John de Collesley, it descended⁹ to his two daughters and heirs, sc. Margaret the wife of Thomas Holt, and Alice; betwixt whom, partition¹⁰ being made in 23 E. 3. it was allotted to the said Margaret, who surviving her first husband, afterwards married¹¹ to Philip de Budeford; which Philip joyned with her in the sale¹² thereof, unto Will. le Massey of Stonley in Cheshire; whose grandchild William (of Stretscote in Staffordshire) had issue¹³ Catherine his daughter and heir, married¹⁴ to Will. de Chisenhale of Chisenhale in Lancashire, Lord of this Mannour, and of Stretscote in her right, who in 12 R. 2. sold¹⁵ it to one John de Parve, a Smith of Coventre: Which John in 13 R. 2. past¹⁶ it to one Raph Richards; who in 3 H. 4. aliened¹⁷ it to John Tate of Coventre; in whose line it continued till 27 H. 8. that John Tate (a descendant from the said John.) conveyed¹⁸ it to George Kebill. To whom succeeded in the possession thereof, Thomas Kebill; and to him John Wise Gent. by purchase¹⁹ in 14 Eliz. (a branch of the Wises of Devonshire, as by some ancient writings shewd unto me, may seem:) whose nephew Richard Wise (scil. son of his Brother William) now enjoys it.

At the skirts of this Parish, (sc. Colshill, wherewith I have now done) Cole meets with Blithe, which carrieth away the name scarce half a mile further: for having there met with Taine, that River hath the priority; a little below which confluence, Bourne likewise enters; unto the head whereof, next having recourse, I come to Cooley.

Corley.

I Am of opinion that this place had its name originally from the situation, which is very high, Coynn in the Brittiish-tongue, signifying the Head or top of any thing: for in the Conquerour's Survey²⁰ it is written Coynelle. In that Record it is rated at one hide, the Woods belonging thereto, being a quarter of a mile in length and half as much in breadth; all which were then in the hands of the same Godwine, who was owner thereof before the Norman invasion, and valued at xxx s. The next that posselt it, of whom I have seen any mention, were the Hastings's (Lords likewise of Fillongley hard by) yet how soon I cannot declare; but by some one of them, was Hugh de Ringedon, or his ancestor enfeoffed thereof; which Hugh had²¹ it in 4 H. 3. from whom descended Raph de Ryngesdon, who in 53 H. 3. was certified²² to hold it of Henry de Hastings, by the service of half a Kt's. fee. It should seem that the heir generall of the said Raph de Ryngesdon, married to one of the Mancesters (Lords of Pancester in this Countie) for by severall²³ authorities it appears, that the family of Mancester held this Mannour, of the heirs of Hastings.

But for want of light from private evidence, I cannot discern how it went from the Mancesters; nor of a long time after, who posselt it; I must therefore pass from the later end of Edw. 3. time (for then did the male line of Mancester determine) untill the reign of E. 4. wherein I find²⁴ that John de Champernoun died seized of it in 15 E. 4. leaving two daughters and heirs, viz. Blanche the wife of Sir Robert Willoughby Kt. and Joane: Which Sir Robert was summoned²⁵ to Parliament amongst the Barons in 7 H. 7. and afterwards, by the name of Rob. Willoughby de Brooke Chivalier, by reason of his residence at Brooke in Wiltshire; and had issue²⁶ Robert Willoughby Lord Brooke, whose heir was married to Sir Fonke Greவில், as in Alcester I have manifested; by which means this Lordship of Cooley is come, with the rest of Greவில்'s lands to the Lord Brooke, who now enjoys it.

The Church was antiently given to the Monks of Coventre, yet neither by whom, nor the direct time when, have I seen; but in 44 H. 3. they had²⁷ it. In an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was valued²⁸ at four marks, and in²⁹ 26 H. 8. at iii l. over and above ix s. vi d. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

IN the Conqueror's time, this place was rated at two hides, and posselt by severall persons: Half a hide thereof the Bishop of Constance had, then held by Leuninus, and valued at xxx. s., whereof the Woods extended to two furlongs in length, and one in breadth; another half the Monks of Cobentre posselt, valued at xxx. s. more, the Woods belonging whereunto, were a quarter of a mile in extent: A third half hide one Alsi then enjoyed, rated likewise at xxx. s. whose inheritance it had been before the Norman invasion, the Woods amounting to x. s. thereof: and the fourth half hide did Rob. Dispensator hold which, though it was then valued but at xx. s. had the Church therein, and Woods containing two miles in length and one in breadth. But the name of it is variously written in Domesday Book, viz. Filungelei, Filungelei, Felungelei, and Filunger.

c Testa
u de N.

Of these parcells, that one half hide, appertaining to the Monks of Cobentre, came afterwards to Gerard de Alspeth, who held it of them in H. 3. time, it being then called Old-Fillongley, by the fourth part of a Kts. fee; but whether he were the first that was enfeoffed thereof, I cannot affirm. That which Rob. Dispensator held, soon after divolved to Marmion, Lord of Lamwoth Castle; and the residue to one of the old Earls of Leicester, as it should seem, from whom Hugh de Hastings, or rather Walter (whom I take to have been father of Hugh) was enfeoffed in H. 1. time, as by circumstance may be inferred; for certain it is, that Hugh de Hastings (who lived about the later end of H. 1. time) posselt it: which Hugh had issue William, and he another William, and that these and their posteritie held it of Marmion and the Earl of Leicester, I have proof enough. Nor do I doubt that this Familie of Hastings had in those elder times their seat here, I mean before their marriage with the heir of Cantilupe, that they settled at Bergavenny; for here are the ruines of two Castles, the one North-East of the Church, about a quarter of a mile, to this day called by the name of the Castle-hills, and the other Southwards from the Church scarce half that distance, bearing still the name of Castle-yard, (and which was standing in 18 E. 2.) unto which adjoynd a Park of a very large extent; and theretore, forasmuch as they had other fair possessions in this Countie, I think it not amiss to say something, here, of them historically, beginning with Walter.

This Walter was an especial benefactor to the Nuns of Polestworth, for it appears² that he gave them Odbury, with a large portion of land adjoining, which was thenceforth made a Cell to that Monasterie. To him succeeded Hugh de Hastings, who wedded^a Erneburga, neece and heir to Rob. de Flamvile; which Erneburga gave^b the Church of Bartwell to the said Nuns of Polestworth. The next was William de Hastings, whose lands in this Countie and Leicestershire were disposed^c of, about the later end of K. John's reign to Will. de Rooley and El. as, his Uncle, for their support in the said King's service: but whether he were then dead or in Armes against that King, is not directly manifest from the Record. Which William had issue William, of whom I have seen little memorable, other than his being^d at the siege of Witham-Castle with K. H. 3. and that he was dead in 10 H. 3. for in that year did Henry his son and heir, give^e L. marks Fine, to have Livery of the lands descended to him by his Father's death, then doing his homage.

This Henry wedded Ada, fourth daughter to David Earl of Huntingdon, and of Maud one of the sisters unto Ranulph the last of that name, Earl of Chester, by which means he came to have a share in that great inheritance, I mean the Earl of Chester's lands, after the death of John surnamed Scot his wives brother, and last Earl of that Familie: and in 26 H. 3. attending the King into France, was taken^f Prisoner at that great defeat, when the English Army had neer Fante, but soon released^g by exchange. In 34 H. 3. he went^h beyond Sea again, in the company of Richard Earle of Cornwall, and divers of the prime Nobilitie, who passedⁱ through France in very great state, and with a pompous retinue, though to what purpose is not manifested. Whether he died in that journey, I know not, but certain it is, that it was the same year, M. Paris. having thereupon this expression^k; Eisdemque diebus obiit Henricus de Hastings miles egregius & Baro opulentus: To whom succeeded Henry his son and heir, at that time in^l minoritie, of whose Wardship Guy de Luzingian (half brother to the King) had, it seems, a grant; for in 36 H. 3. the said Guy pest it over unto Will. de Cantilupe, the King confirming^m the same; which William gave his daughter Joane inⁿ marriage to him, as I shall farther observe anon.

This Henry in 44 H. 3. had Summons^o, amongst others of the great Nobilitie, to be at Shrewsbury on the Feast day of the Nativity of the blessed Virgin, well furnished with Horse and Armes, to march against Lewelin Prince of Wales and his complices, then in rebellion: and the next year following, had^p the like Summons to be at London, the morrow after the Feast day of the Apostles Simon and Jude; So also in^q 47 H. 3. to be at Worcester, on the Feast day of S. Peter ad Vincula (called Lammastide) in like sort accoutred: but with what affection he came thither, is easie to guess; for it appears, that being seduced by the turbulent spirited Barons, he joynted with them in committing many great outrages^r upon the Church and Clergie, that very year; for which he, together with Henry and Simon, sons to Sim. Mountfort Earl of Leicester, and many more of the rebellious Nobilitie, were excommunicated by the Archb. of Canterbury. After which, no man was more active against the King than he, being one^t of those that on^u the Barons part, submitted to such a determination^a as the K. of France should make (unto whom the differences touching those Ordinances, called Provisions of Oxford, so prejudiciall to the King, was referred,) and who did put himself in Armes, with the rest, under^v pretence of asserting the Laws of the land, and the peoples just liberties, holding^w out Portsmouth hostily against the King, and likewise Kenilworth Castle, during that famous six-months siege (as in my discourse of that place is shewed) So that by the Decree^x called Dictum de Kenilworth (which after his victorie a Cedham was made in favour of those Rebels, having been so prime an Actor in those disturbances, he was specially excepted, and referred to a seven years imprisonment, or submission to the King's mercy,

But with his Lady, the King dealt very graciously, even in the height of her husband's violence; for in September 49 H. 3. he assigned^y unto her, this Lordship of Fillongley, with Allestey, and Berdingbury in this Countie; as also Barwell and Burbach in Leicestershire, for her maintenance; which were then valued at £1. per an. and in January the year following, added^z the Lordships of Ardele, Blimham, and Payleston, confirming² his assignation of this, and the rest above mentioned. The direct time of this Henry's death I find not, but I suppose it to have been in 53 H. 3. for in that year had the said Joan his widdow, an allotment^a of divers Kts. Fees, and parts of Fees, lying in sundry places, for her dower, which in the whole, came to no less than xxxiii. Which great Lady sealed^b with her husband's Armes, scil. a Manche, the outside of the Seal being decked with her paternall coat, viz. Flower de lues.

To the last Henry de Hastings succeeded^c John his son and heir; which John became a coheir^d to George de Cantilupe, his Uncle by the mothers side; unto whom for his part (inter alia) was allotted^e the Castle and Honour of Bergavenny the Castle of Bilgaran, as also the Mannour of Aston. Cantilupe in this Countie; of all which being in the King's hands in regard of his minoritie, he had livery^f in 11 E. 1. then doing his homage: and the next year following, had command^g to attend the King in his Scotch expedition. In 15 E. 1. he was^h in that Welch voyage with Edm. Earl of Cornwall, unto whom the K. being then in Gascon, had committedⁱ the custodie of this Realm: After which I find, that in 21 E. 1. he accompanied^j Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Glouc. and Heresford into Ireland; and that in 25 E. 1. he had Summons^k, amongst many other great persons, to be at London on the Sunday next after the Octaves of St. John Bapt. sufficiently furnished with Horse and Armes, thence to attend the King in his expedition beyond Sea: As also the next ensuing year, the like Summons^l to be at Harleol on Whitson Eve, to march against the Scots.

In 28 E. 1. he attended^m the King with his Army into Scotland, and there performed militarie service, for five Knight's fees; in which year he obtained a Charterⁿ for a mercate at this his Mannour of Fillongley, week'y every Munday, and an annuall Faire, beginning on the Eve of St. John Bapt. Nativitie, to last for five days. In 31 E. 1. he attended the King again again into Scotland, and was at that memorable siege of Bacrlabrook: The same year likewise was he in the wars of Gascoigne; and in 34 E. 1. had speciall summons¹, amongst the rest of the great Nobilitie to be at Westminster, the morrow after Trinitie-Sunday, there to consider and take order concerning an Aid for the making of Prince Edward Knight: and from the 23 of E. 1. till his death, which hapned¹ in 6 E. 2. had summons¹ with the rest of the Barons, to the severall Parliaments then held: but departing this world not long after, left issue by Isabell his wife, daughter² to Will. de Valence Earl of Pembroke, John de Hastings his son and heir, who being of age at that time, did³ his Homage, and had lverie of his lands.

Which John in 16 E. 2. was made Governour of Kenilworth Castle: but of him I have seen little else memorable, other than his marriage⁴ with Julian the daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Leyburne, and that he departed⁵ this life in 18 R. 2. leaving Laurence his son and heir about five⁶ years of age; which Laurence in 11 E. 3. was committed⁷ to the tuition of Will. de Clinton Earl of Huntingdon, who had married Julian his mother, to be educated with him, till he should become of full age, having an allowance of CC. marks out of the Exchequer yearly, for his support and maintenance during that time: Of whom I find⁸ that the King had so much care, when he was at New-Castle upon Tyne about four years before, that, having sent for the Queen to come thither to him, and considering that so long a journey might be dangerous to the Child (for he was then bled up in her Court) directed his speciall Letters to the said Julian, desiring her, as a person most proper to undergo that trust, to take him into her charge, promising satisfaction for all costs and expences, which she should be at therein.

This Laurence was in 13 E. 3. (by the K's. Letters Pat. bearing date Oct. 12.) declared⁹ Earl of Pembroke, in regard of his descent from Isabell the eldest sister and coheir unto Aymere de Valence Earl of Pembroke; and by Agnes¹⁰ one of the daughters to Rog. de Mortimer first Earl of March had issue¹¹ John Earl of Pembroke, little more than a twelve month old at his father's death, which hapned in 22 E. 3. Which John was in 46 E. 3. sent¹² over into Gascoigne, to raise the siege of Rochel, beleagured by the French, being then¹³ about xxv. years of age, but was attended with very ill success in that expedition: for no sooner did he arrive with his Army at the Port of Rochel, but that the Spanish Navie fell suddainly upon them, before they could put themselves in order to fight, so that few of them escaped death, wounds, or imprisonment; and yet without any considerable loss to the Enemy, who forthwith set fire on all the English Ships, carrying away the Earle and many gallant Gentlemen, as also no less than twenty thousand marks in money; sent over by the K. of England, to continue the war: which unhappy accident fell¹⁴ out on the Eve of St. John Baptist's Nativitie, being the Festivall of St. Aetheldred the Virgin; and therefore was it censured by many (as my Author¹⁵ observeth) that God's judgement so followed him, as a punishment for the injurie he had done to the Church of that holy Virgin (sc. Ely) in a cause betwixt the Church of St. Edmundsbury and it, before his departure out of England and that the money so lost had no better luck, forasmuch as it had been got from the Religious Houses and Clergy: But others attributed it to his living an adulterous life, being a married man; that he also had attempted in Parliament an infringement of the Church its Liberties, and that he perswaded the King to lay greater Taxes upon the Clergie than Laitie, for support of his wars: which practises of pilling and polling the Church, however the temporall Lords (saith the same Author) were pleased; yet what success they had, not onely England, but the whole world hath sufficiently found.

I now come to speak of his death, the circumstances whereof, were as followeth; viz. that having undergone four years imprisonment in Spain, with most inhumane usage, he sent to Bertrand Clerk Constable of France, desiring that he would use some means for his enlargement; who thereupon interceded for him to the Battard of Spain, that called himself King, and obtained his libertie, in consideration of part of that money due to himself: whereupon he was brought to Paris, and a sum of money assigned, which he must pay for his redemption: but after his coming thither, it was not long, ere that he fell mortally sick of Poison as twas thought, given to him by the Spaniards, who were reputed to have such a speciall facultie in that Art, as that the potion should kill at what distance of time they pleased: The French therefore seeing death approaching him, being eager to get his ransome money before he died, made haste to remove him unto Calais; but on his journey thither he departed¹⁶ this world, upon the very day of St. Aetheldred the Virgin (which Saint he had so much offended before his coming out of England, as hath been said) though the Inquisit.¹⁷ after his death expresth it to have been the xvth. of Aprill; his son and heir, John being¹⁸ at that time but two years old and a half; and was buried in the Quire of the Friers Preachers at Hereford, as by his Testament¹⁹, and what I shall hereafter say, may seem.

But here, before I proceed farther, I must observe, that this John, in 43 E. 3. (obtaining Licence for that purpose from the King) made a Feoffment²⁰ unto Walter Amyas, and others of all his Castles, Lordships, Mannours, &c. in England and Wales, to certain uses: which Feoffment, being left sealed up in the hands of the Feoffees, to be kept till his return from beyond Seas, was upon his death delivered to the King's Councell at Westminster; who opening it, found, that in case he died without issue of his body, the town and Castle of Pembroke should come to the King, his heirs and successors, and the Castle and Lordship of Bergavenny, and all other his lands in England and Wales, in Fee, to his Cousin Will. de Beauchamp (viz. his Mother's sisters son) provided that he should bear his Armes, and endeavour to obtain his title of Earl; and in case he neglected so to do, that then his Kinsman Will. de Clinton, to have them upon the same conditions.

But I return to his said son and heir, of whom I find²¹, that at the Coronation of K. Ric. 2. he claimed to carry the great gold Spurs, and that though he shewed sufficient evidence for his right so to do, yet, being underage, it was adjudged, that the King might appoint another for that time: whereupon Edmund Mortimer Earl of March was assigned thereto: And moreover, that he took to wife ^c, whilst he was very young, Philippa daughter to the said Edmund Earl of March, but had no issue by her: for being at Wodstoke, where the King kept his Christmases in 13 of his reign, he tilted ^e with Sir John St. John, and by an unfortunate slip, was run into the botto^me of his Belly, so that his bowells breaking out, he suddenly died, to the great lamentation of many, in regard he was a perion of so noble a disposition, that in bountie and curtesie he exceeded most of his degree: So that it is observed^u, that from Aymerie de Valence Earl of Pembroke (his lineall ancestor) who was one that gave Judgement of death upon Thomas Earl of Lancaster in E. 2. time, even unto this John, the last Earl of the line, none of them ever saw his Father, nor any Father of them took delight in the seeing his Child, so young were they at their Fathers deaths. His body was interred in the Church of the Gray Friers, near New-gate in London (now called Christ's-Church) where he had a fair Monument^w, since (with all the rest) defaced.

Dying thus without issue, Reginald Lord Grey of Ruthin, was by some Inquil.^x found his next heir of the whole blood, as descended from Elizabeth, sister to John, great-grandfather to the said Earl, so slain in tilting, as hath been said: and by other^y Inquil. Hugh de Hastings, son of Hugh, son of Hugh, son of a second John, by Isabell the daughter of Hugh le Despenser, as the Pedegree here placed sheweth. But so little did John Earl of Pembroke (Father to the last John) regard his next heir male, as it seems; and so much hate ^z Reginald Grey, father to the last Reginald, that he entailed the greatest part of his lands, as hath been said, on Will. de Beauchamp before mentioned. Notwithstanding which settlement, 'tis observable, that the right of bearing Armes, was in those days of such esteem, as that the contest^a for thoe of the Earls of Pembroke (sc. Or a Manche gules) betwixt Reginald Lord Grey, son to the before mentioned Reginald, and Edm. Hastings, brother and heir to the last mentioned Hugh, lasted little less than twenty years in the Court Militarie, before the Constable and Marshall of England: wherein, after much money spent, the said Edm. Hastings, who chalenged them as heir male of the Familie, was not onely condemned^b in 970 l. 17 s. 10 ob. q. costs (rey swearing that he had spent a thousand Marks more) and the Armes adjudged^c to Grey, but imprisoned^d xvi. years for disobeying that Sentence. The particular proceedings in which business, with the hard measure, which the said Edward had, for brevities sake I pass by, referring my Reader to that learned Comment upon Sir Henry Spelman's discourse of Armes, lately published by my worthy friend Edm. Bysshe Esq, where they are compendiously set forth; and return to the before specified Wil. Beauchamp.

Which William possessing this Lordship of Fillongley, and the greatest part of the said Earl of Pembroke's lands, by virtue of that entail, was impleaded^e for the same by the above mentioned Edm. Hastings, and having invited^f his learned Counsell to his House in Pater Noster Row, within the Citie of London, amongst whom, were Rob. Charlton (then a Judge) Will. Pinchbeck, Will. Brenchesley, and John Catesby, all learned Lawyers, after Dinner went into his Chapell, and at his coming out, in an angry fashion, threw to each of them a piece of Gold, saying^g, Sirs! I desire you forthwith to tell me, whether I have any right and title to Hastings's Lordships and Lands: whereupon, Pinchbeck stood up, the rest being silent, fearing that he suspected them, and said^h, No man here, nor in England, dare say that you have any right in them, except Hastings do quit his claim therein; and should he do it, being now under age, it would be of no validitie. Perhaps there had been some former entail to settle them upon the heir male of the Familie, which preceded that before spoken of; but what ever it was, sure we are, that Hastings apprehended the injury done to himself, so great, as that with extream anguish of mind, at his later end, he leftⁱ God's curse and his own, upon his Descendants, if they should not attempt the vindication thereof.

Of this Will. de Beauchamp (who was a younger^k son unto Thomas de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, by Catherine Mortimer, sister^l of Agnes, mother unto John de Hastings Earl of Pembroke before specified) I find, that he was in 4 R. 2. retained by Indenture^m to serve the King in his wars, with CCL. men at Armes, and CCL. Archers, for a quarter of a year, under the command of Edmund de Langley Earl of Cambzrge, (the King's Uncle) in the parts of Portugal and Spain; in which expedition the said Earl was Generall. So also in 6 R. 2. with that warlike Bishop of Exeter, sc. Henr. Spenser, who was so victorious in the parts of Flanders about that time; and should have had 500. marks for the service of himself in particular, of which he received part; but because he had it not all beforehand, he refused to stir from home. After which, viz. in 7 R. 2. he was constitutedⁿ Governour of Calais, and retained by Indenture^p for the safe custodie thereof, with CXL. men at Armes on Horseback, whereof himself with nine other Kts. to be part, CL. Archers on Horseback, C. men at Armes, and CLxxxiii. Archers on foot, and four Esquires on Horseback, with condition that xx.

men at Armes and ten Archers on Horseback, as also ten Archers on foot, belonging to the Treasurer of Calais, should be under his command, in relation to that service; and in consideration thereof to receive four shillings per diem, for his own wages, for the rest of the Knights ii s. and men at Armes serving on Horseback xii d. Which retainer was for two years: but the next year ensuing, the like Covenants were renewed ⁹ for the terme of three years more, and in 11 and 12 R. 2. for each ¹ of those years, singly.

In 10 R. 2. he was made Governour ^c of the Castles of Pembroke and Wiltgarran. In 16 R. 2. first summoned ¹ to Parliament, with the Barons, by the name of Will. Beauchamp de Bergabenny chevalier, and made Knight ⁴ of the Garter, being then possessor of the Castle of Bergabenny, with the other lands, which the best specified John de Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, had so entailed upon him, as hath been said. In 1 H. 4. made ¹⁰ Justice of South-Wales; and from ² 2 H. 4. till 8. inclusive, was in Commission for conservation of the Peace in this Countie. But farther of his Militarie, or Civill employments, I have not seen; nor can I say more of him, than that he gave ² to the Collegiate Church of Warwick, for the good estate of K. Ric. 2. and Q. Anne his Consort, as also of himself and Joan his wife, during their lives in this world, and for the health of all their souls afterwards, the advowson of the Churches of Speltesbury, and ² Chadsey-Corbet in Worcestershire: and that he was in some sort a Benefactor to the Gild of the Holy Trinitie, our Ladie, and St. John Baptist in Covenetre, as may seem by his portraiture set up in glass on the East side of St. Mary Hall, together with his Ladie, in robes of great state, which in my discourse of that place are most exactly represented.

And lastly that by his Testament ^a, bearing date at Bergabenny 25 Apr. an. 1408. (9 H. 4.) he bequeathed his body to be buried in the Church of the Friers Preachers at Hereford, next and beneath the Tombe of the before specified John de Hastings Earl of Pembroke; appointing that five Tapers should be hung about his Bodie as soon as might be after his death; as also that xxxiii men should be clothed in black, each of them holding a Torch in his hand, and to have ii d. a piece for the same. To which place of his bur all he bequeathed xx. marks or more, as his Executors should think fit; and over and above what hath been already exprest Cl. for the charges of his Funerall, directing that ten thousand Masses should be sung for his soul, in all the hast that might be after his death, by the most honest Priests that could be got: as also that four good Priests be found, by the space of ten years, singing for his soul, and for the soul of his Lord, Sir John Hastings Earl of Pembroke, and for all the souls unto whom he had obligation. And moreover to his poor Tenants within his Lordships Cl. To Joane his wife a pair of Basyns, covered, and overgylt, having the Armes of Warwick and Arundell empaied upon them. To Richard his son his best Sword and Harneis, to be armed withall, as well for War as Peace; as also all his other Harneis for the Justs of Peace which belong'd to War. To Joane and Elizabeth his daughters a thousand marks a piece to their marriage: And constituting Thomas Arundell, Archb. of Canterbury, Thomas Earl of Arundell, Joane his wife, &c. his Executors, departed ^b this life in 12 H. 4. leaving issue by the same Joane (who was ^{*} one of the daughters and coheirs to Ric. Earl of Arundell) Richard Beauchamp his son and heir.

Of this deceased Lord, I have the rather taken occasion to speak, in regard that he made his residence at some times in this Countie, as I presume his Lady also did, in her widdowhood: for I find that she was at severall ^c times in Commission for treating with the people about Loanes to the King, within this Shire; surviving him many years, her death ^d hapning not till 14 H. 6. Of whose Testament ^e, forasmuch as by it, that greatness and state, wherein the English Nobilitie in those days lived, may in some sort be seen; as also the pomp of their Funeralls, I have here transcribed the greatest part.

In the name of the blessed Trynyte, Fader, sonn and Holy Ghoast, the xth. day of January in the year of our Lord MCCC Cxxxiii. I Johanne Beauchamp Lady of Bergabenny, as a meke daughter of holi Chirche, full in the Christen sayth and believe, hool in minde and body (blessed be God) considering that the freel condicion of this wrechid and unstable lief, ys ful of perels; and the yend and conclusion thereof is not elles but Deith, fro the which no persone of none astate schall escape: and therefore purposyng, with the leve of God, to dyspose such goods as of his grace he hath lent me, in such use as myght be most to hys plesauus, and profit to my soule, and all theirs that I am bounden to; I have ordeyned and make my Testament and last Will, in this forme.

First I bequethe my soule to the mercy of my blessed Saviour and maker Jhesu Chryst, through the beseechyng of his blessed Moder Mary, and alle holi companye in Hevene, and my symple and wretched body to be buried in the Queer of the Frere-Prechours of Hereford, in a new Tumbe by my worthe Lord and sometime husband Sir Will. Beauchamp on whoos soule God have merci. But I wol that my Bodie be kept unburied, in the place where hit hapneth me to die, unto the time my maigne be clothed in black, my Hers, my Chare, and other covenable purviance made, and then to be carried unto the place of my buryng before reherseed, with alle the worship that ought to be done unto a woman of myne astate; which God knoweth welle procedeth not of no pompe or vayne glorie that I am set in for my Bodie, but for a memorial and a remembrance of my soule, to my kyn, friends, servants, and alle other. And I wol that every Parish Church that my seid Bodie resteth ynne a night after hit passeth fro the place of my dying, be offred two Clothes of Gold: and if hit rest ynne any College or Conventuall Chirche, three Clothes of gold. Also I devyse that in every Cathedrall Chirche or Conventuall, where my Bodie restes a night, toward the place where my Bodie shall be buried, that the Dean, Abbot, or Prior, have vi s. viii d. and everi Channon, Monk, Picar, Preste, or Cierke, that ys at the Dirige at the Mass in the morning, shall have xii d.

Also I ordeyn, that anon astur my buryng, there be done for my soule five thousand Masses in alle the hast that they may goodly. And I bequethe unto the House of the seid Freres at Hereford in generall CCC. marks, for to synd two Profes perpetuall for to syng for my Lord my Husband, my Lord my Fader, my Lady my Moder and me, and Sir Hugh Burnell Kt. and alle my good doers, and alle Crysten soules: the one Preste to syng the fyrst Mass in the mornyng in the same House, and the other

I ordeyn and make myne Executors Mr. John Bathe, Chanon of Welles, taking for his labour xl l. and if he take mynistracion, Rob. Darcy, Barth. Brokusby, Wauter Kebell, Sir Will. Requyryng and preying all these perfoxes, Executors aforesamed, and so far as I dare or may, charging hem, that as my singular trustys on hem afore other, they refuse not but to take upon hem the Administration of this Testament, with the conditions afore rehearsed, and put it in execution, as they wolde I shulde do for hem in like caas; and as they wol answer before the most hygh and mightyfull Juge at the dredfull day of Dome, where both they and I shall appere. In witnes that this ys my last Will I have set hereto my Sele; ywritten in the day and yere aforesyd.

I now return to Richard, son and heir to the before specified Sir W. Ham. This Richard was created Earl of Gloucester in 8 H. 5. but slain in France within two years after, leaving one onely daughter his heir; seil. Elizabeth, married to Sir Edm. Nevill Kr. (a younger son to Raph Earl of Westmerland) first summoned to Parliament in 29 H. 6. by the name of Edm. Nevill de Bergevenny, now Lord of this Mannour.

The Church (dedicated to our Lady and All Saints) was in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued^h at xvi. marks; the advouson whereof in 19 E. 3. being purchasedⁱ from Laurence de Hastings Earl of Pembroke, by Will. de Clinton Earl of Huntingdon, was by him given^k to the Canons of Maxstoke the same year; whereupon they soon obtained an appropriation^l thereof. And in 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was rated^m at viii l. ix s. ix d. over and above x s. allowed for Procurations and Synodals. But all that I have farther found relating to this Church, is that in H. 3. time, viii s. per an. was assignedⁿ, by one Nich. Burbache Clerk (out of certain lands lying in this Parish) for the maintenance of a Lampe burning in the body thereof, to the honour of the blessed Virgin; the said annuities having been appointed to be so disposed of, by Sir Thomas de Hastings, who for the souls of his Ancestors, gave to the same Nicholas those lands out of which it was so charged, and upon that condition.

Old Fillongley.

OF this place I have but little to say. In 13 Edw. 1. the Prior of Cobentre,^o claymed a Court Leet and divers other Priviledges here, by vertue of King H. 3. Charter, which were allowed; and in 20 Edw. 3. was certified^p to hold it of the Lord Hastings by the eighth part of a Knight's Fee, this being as he was superior Lord thereof. Not from hence till Hen. 7. time have I seen any more thereof, by the light of our publique Records: but, in 14. of that King's reign, Thomas Frommere Esquire, was found^u to die seized of it, leaving Francis his son and heir xiv. years of age. Which Family of the Frommers had it by a daughter and heir of Fillongley, if we may credit someⁱ mens Notes; of which name there were, that long since resided at this place, as by tradition I have heard; whereof I am the more credulous, in regard it appears, that William de Fillongley had imployment as a Commissionerⁱ, in some publique affaires of the County in 51 Edw. 3. and 2 Ric. 2. and that Henry de Fillongley Esquire, Sergeantⁱ of the Scullerie to King H. 4. was^u one of the Knights for this Shire in the Parliament of 31 H. 6. as also Shiriff^u of this Countie and Leicestershire in 37. of the said King's reign.

Metley.

THis part of Fillongley, now called Metley-end, lyeth westward from the Church neer two miles: but the most ancient mention I find of it, is, in 6 E. 2. Nicholas de Burbache then holding half^a a Knight's Fee here, of the heirs of Henry de Hastings. In which line of Burbache it continued till 3 E. 6. that Richard Burbache sold it^v to Edw. Pye (of Partridge-Hall Esquire) by the name of the Mannour of Metley.

Ansley.

Bourne passing on, about a mile below Fillongley-Church, is enlarged with another torrent, that riseth in Ansley; of which place I am next to take notice. In Edw. the Confessor's time the Countess Godeva (of whom I have spoke in Cobentre) enjoy'd^a it: but after the Norman Invasion, being in the King's hands, it was, together with Cobentre, and the other lands which belong'd to that Countess, ferm'd^a out to one Nicholas; and in the generall Survey then taken (where it is written Hantlei) is joyned with Hartshill, there also recorded by the name of Ardrethille; both which were valued at C s. as also from H. 1. time, for many ages afterwards, posselt jointly, by a Family of good note, whose cheif seat being at Hartshill, assumed that place for their surname. But by a daughter and heir of Hardreshull, came at length to Culpeper, as the Descent in Hartshill doth shew.

Which Family of Culpeper, having their principall seat at Wedgebury in Leint (for the most part) made little residence in this Country; so that, in process of time, they sold away all their interest here, Sir Alexander Culpeper Knight, first passing^b in Fee-ferm, unto John Ludford Gentilman (his Receiver and^c Officer for this Mannour and Hartshill) much of the demesns in 20 H. 7. And afterwards, John Culpeper (a younger^d son to the said Sir Alexander) on whom, it seems, this was settled, all^e the rett, together with the Mannour, unto Robert and Edmund Wyeche of Loughborough in Com. Leic. Gentilmen. Which Robert and Edmund in 5 H. 8. for the summe of xlviii li. granted^f it to John Rympton of Atherston Yeoman; of whom George Wighman of Elmesthorpe in Com. Leic. Gentilman, having purchased^g it in 1 Eliz. past^h it in mortgage unto William Glover, Citizen and Dyer of London, in 34. of the said Queen's reign; who in 43. Eliz. obtained a Releaseⁱ from Tho. Wighman of Wurbage Gentilman, son and heir to the said George, of all his right, and title therein.

To which Will. Glover (afterwards a Knight and Alderman of London) succeeded Sir Thomas Glover of Wilsdon in Com. Midd. Knight, his son and heir; who, together with the Lady Anne his mother, sold^k it in 6 Jac. unto James Wighman of Wurbage in the said Countie of Leicester: which James in 10 Jac. past^l it unto George Ludford of Ansley Gent. (descended from the before specified John Ludford) who left issue George, now owner thereof.

The Church (dedicated to S. Laurence) being given^m to the Nuns of Polesworth in King John's time, by William de Hardreshull, son of Robert, and grandchild to Hugh, was appropriated to them shortly after; and thereupon an assignation madeⁿ of what the perpetuall Vicar should have for his paines in serving the Cure: which being found too little, and complaint made to the Bishop, there was an augmentation^o thereof, by vertue of a Provinciall Constitution, which the Archbishop of Canterbury and the rest of the Bishops within his Province had made to that purpose; viz. that whereas the small Tithes and Obventions pertaining to the Altar, were valued but at L s. and the Tithes-corn at xv. marks, the Vicar and his successors should thenceforth have the fift sheaf of the Tithes-corn throughout the whole Parish, to be delivered out of the Tithes-Barn belonging to the said Nunns, after it should be gathered in by them, at their charge. This was done by M^r Simon de Balidon, Officiall to the B^p. of Cob. and Lich. and by authority from the said B^p. on Friday next after the Feast of S. Dennis an. 1275. (3 E. 1.) In an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) the Rectorie here was valued^p at vi. marks, and the Vicaridge at half a mark: but in 26 H. 8. the same Vicaridge was rated^q at vili. vi s. viii d. over and above ii s. iv d. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

Orate pro bono ſtatu Johannis Ludford, & Allice uxoris.

Bret's-Hall.

IN this Pariſh there is a place, though but of mean conſideration, yet noted in the common Maps by the name of Bret's-Hall, from a Family of that name, ſometime owners thereof. Of which the firſt, as I think, was William, unto whom Will. de Hardreſhull (Lord of Anſley in H. 3. time) gave certain lands here: From Which William deſcended another William, unto whom the Biſhop of this Dioces in 34 E. 3. granted liſenſe to have divine Service celebrated, for the ſpace of two years, in a private Oratorie, here. But from theſe Brets, who poſſeſſed it till the beginning of H. 4. time (which is above two hundred years) it came to Nicholas Palmer of Stanton in Com. Leic. and by the daughters and coheirs of William Palmer, to Harecourt, and William Pouchin. Which William Pouchin in 37 H. 8. paſt away his intereſt to John Pureſey, it being then reputed a Mannour. Whereupon in 14 Eliz. partition was made betwixt the ſaid John and George Harecourt. To which John Pureſey ſucceeded Michaell, who ſold his part thereof unto John White of Buſby in Leiceſterſhire.

Monmode.

THIS lying on the Weſt ſide of Anſley, and in the ſame Pariſh, had heretofore the reputation of a Mannour; for by that name did Sir John de Hardreſhull call it in 39 E. 3. at which time he ſetled it with Anſley and Hardreſhull in the hands of certain Feoffees; and ſo by Records of later time, hath it often been termed: But as it was originally a member of Anſley, ſo is it now deemed to be; no part (that I know) retaining the name, but a piece of Waſt-ground lying on the utmoſt ſkirt thereof, called Monmode-Lee.

Whitacre ſuperior.

LOWER on the Northern ſide of Bourne, lyes Whitacre ſuperior, and adjoining to it Whitacre inferior; which, though they now are, and have long been diſtinct Lordſhips and Pariſhes, were not originally ſo. In the Conqueror's time ſeverall perſons were intereſſed here; Turchill de Warwick had two hides, excepting one virgate, the Woods belonging whereto extended to one mile in length, and half as much in breadth; all which being then held of him by one Edwinus, was valued at x s. and in Edward the Confessor's days appertained to two Ulrics. Half a hide had Hugh Grentemaſnill, then held of him by one Walter, and valued at ii s. which before the Conqueſt had been the freehold of one Baldvine. And three virgates had Robert de Veci, held at that time of him by one Robert, and rated at ii s. which before the Norman Invaſion was eſteemed to be worth x s. it being then the freehold of Ailricus. But in that Record it is written in two places Whitaceze, and in the third Whitacre.

That the greateſt part of theſe, came ſoon after to the Marmions (Lords of Wamwoth-Caſtle) is not to be doubted; for of ſo much thereof, as lyes in that which is now called Whitacre ſuperior, was the Anceſtor of Simon de Whitacre enfeoffed in H. 1. time, to hold by the ſervice of half a Knight's Fee; who alſo obtained the reſidue from the Anceſtors of thoſe Ardens whoſe ſeat was at Hampton in Arden, as by what I ſhall ſhortly ſay will appear: All which continued in the male line of the ſaid Simon (who had their reſidence here) till about the later end of Edward the third his reign; but then it was by daughters and heirs transferred to other Families, as the following Pedegree ſheweth.

^f Rec. 33. H. 2. To this Simon succeeded ^f Alanus de Witacre, and to Alan, Simon; who (as by circumstance may be concluded) seating himself at Bercheston, assumed that place for his surname; for in 8 H. 3. upon an Accord ^s made betwixt the said Simon de Bercheston and Simon the son of Jordan de Whitacre, this Whitacre appears to have been of his inheritance, and that he granted the same, together with Elmendon in this Countie, to the same Simon de Whitacre and his heirs, to be held of him he said Simon de Bercheston, by the service of one Knight's Fee; viz. Whitacre by the one half of a Knight's Fee, and Elmendon by another; the same agreement being in Warrantie ^h of a Charter formerly granted thereof to that purpose. And to make it farther manifest, it appeareth by another Fine, levied ⁱ in 23 H. 3. betwixt the parties abovesaid, touching the same half Knight's Fee in Whitacre, that the same Simon de Whitacre was to performe such military service, in Warding at Tamworth Castle: but the said Simon de Bercheston and his heirs, to have Ward, Marriage, and Relief, from the same Simon de Whitacre and his heirs, whensoever occasion should require: and that the said Simon de Whitacre and his heirs should performe suit to the Castle of Tamworth before mentioned, for the same Simon de Bercheston, and his heirs forever.

Howbeit, by what service the rest was given, I have not seen: but in H. 3. time, did the before specified Simon de Bercheston grant ^k the same unto Hugh de Arden (then Lord of Hampton in Arden, and superior Lord of the Fee thereof.) to be held of him the said Simon de Bercheston and his heirs by the tenth part of a Knight's Fee. From which severall Simons that were owners of this place, it was anciently called Whitacre-Simund, as by severall ^l Records appeareth. But I return. This Simon de Whitacre was a Knight ^m about the 30th of H. 3. and in 38 H. 3. being grown weak and impotent, obtained the King's speciall precept, ⁿ directed to the Shiriff of Warwickshire, to exempt him from appearing personally at the Countie, or Hundred Court, as also at his Turnes; provided that he did by his Letters Patent substitute an Attourney to do suit for him there. And in 41 H. 3. had a Charter ^o of Free-warren granted to him in all his demesne lands here, together with those at Elmendon and Freseley; and confirmed ^p to the Canons of Lillshull in Com. Salop. what Robert de Kaili his uncle, whose heir he was, had given to them in Freseley, in this Shire.

To him succeeded Jordan de Whitacre, who being guilty of some youthfull extravagancies, obtained the King's pardon ^q in 36 H. 3. And in 41 H. 3. had a speciall Patent ^r exempting him from the Office of Shiriff, Coroner, &c. and from serving on Juries. After which, viz. in 50 H. 3. he was a Knight ^s, and in 52, and 53 H. 3. one ^t of the Justices for Gaol-delivery in this Countie. This Jordan, being a man potent in the Countie, and taking advantage of those turbulent times, in which the Barons put themselves in Armes against the King, entred ^u upon x. acres of Wood in Freseley, which belong'd to the Canons of Lillshull before specified, and continued posselt thereof, till his death. By reason of which seizure Philippa his widow afterwards held it: whereupon the Abbot of Lillshull brought an Affize of Novell disseisin against her, but by mediation of friends the matter was composed, and in 56 H. 3. Richard de Whitacre son and heir to the said Jordan, quitted ^v his title thereto.

This Richard de Whitacre, being a Knight ^x in 9 E. 1. in 16 E. 1. attended ^y Edm. Earl of Cornwall in that famous expedition of Wales, and bore ^z for his Armes, upon a Fesse three Escalops with two Mallets in Chief. Upon that grant to the King, made by the Parliament in 25 E. 1. of a Ninth part of all their moveable goods, for confirmation of Magna Charta, and Charta de Foresta, he was appointed ^a one of the Commissioners in this Countie, for the more equall assessing and collecting collecting thereof: But after 4 Edw. 2. I find no more mention of him, than that he left issue ^b Richard his son and heir, and severall other sons: which last mentioned Richard, having been in that rebellion with Thomas Earl of Lancaster in 15 E. 2. for which he purchased his Pardon ^c, that cost C. marks, found sufficient sureties for his future good behaviour, viz. ^d Sir John Mardak Knight, Simon de Whitacre, and Alan de Wodelowe. And the next year following, being ^e a Justice of Assize in this County, bore ^f for his Armes Sable, three Lozenges Argent. After which, viz. in 1 Edw. 3. he was a Knight, ^g and in 11 Edw. 3. one of the three, for this County, that had speciall summons ^h to attend the King in his great Council held at Westminster the Friday next after Michaelmas-day.

The next year following, he had the like summons ⁱ to be at Westminster on the morrow after the Clause of Easter, the King being then resolved upon an expedition beyond Sea: in which year also, he was constituted ^k a Commissioner for conservation of the Peace in this Countie, and to see that all persons were sufficiently armed according to the Statute of Winchester. In 17 E. 3. he was in Commission ^l to arrest such Proctors, as were then employed here in England, as also other Purveyors from the Court of Rome, which by vertue of the Pope's Bulls did put in practise divers things derogating from the King's Royall power. In 18 E. 3. again joyned in Commission ^m for conservation of the Peace in this Countie. In 19 E. 3. he had summons ⁿ, amongst sundry other persons of note, to be well accoutred with Horse and Armes, on the Feast of St. Laurence to attend the King in his French expedition: and by Joane ^o the daughter of Hugh de Culi, of Radcliffe in Leicestershire, had issue ^p Richard his son and heir, who bore ^q for his Armes Argent upon a bend sable, cotized Gules, three Lozenges of the first.

Which Richard in 27, and 28 E. 3. was employed as a Commissioner ^r for levying and collecting a xvth and xth in this Countie: So likewise in 47, and 48 Edw. 3. but farther of him I have not observed any thing memorable, other than that he left issue one onely daughter called ^s Joane wedded ^t to Alan Waldeif of Alspath; by whom she had two daughters and heirs, viz. Elene ^u married to Richard Walshe of Onelip in Leicestershire, and Margaret ^x to Thomas Hore of Elmecdon. Which Richard Walshe and Thomas Hore were certified ^y to hold this Mannour, joyntly, in 10 H. 6. but afterwards Hore had it wholly, as it seemes; and left Alan his son ^z and heir, and he Katherine an onely daughter, married ^a to John Boteler of Solihull Gentleman. Which John and Katherine had issue John Boteler, who sold ^b his moytie to Thomas Marow then of Wyrpden Esquire. In whose hands it continued but a while; for by his Deed ^c bearing date 3. Martii 2, & 3 Ph. & M. in consideration of CCC li. he past away the same unto Richard Kyfe, alias Coke, and John Miller (both of this town) Yeomen, and to the heirs and assigns of the said Richard. Which Richard, by his last Will and Testament ^d (bearing date about November 3, & 6 Ph. & M.) bequeathed all his lands to Katherine Corbet, his wives daughter, and the heirs of her body; whereby the inheritance thereof came to the posterity of the same John Miller, unto whom she was wedded.

But the other moytie descended ^e from the before specified Richard Walshe and Elene his wife, to Thomas Walshe their son and heir, and so to ^f Anne the wife of Sir Thomas Pultney Knight, cousin and heir to the said Thomas Walshe. Which Sir Thomas Pultney had issue ^g Francis, and he Gabraell ^h, who in Queen Elizabeth's time, aliened ⁱ it to the heirs of the said John Miller; most, if not all the Fermes, (as of Marow's moytie before specified) and part of the demesns, having been sold out before, to the particular Tenants.

The Church here (dedicated to S. Leonard) was originally but a Chapell belonging to Colshill, as may seem by what I have in Colshill already manifested; yet did the patronage thereof pass by the name of a Church in 3 Joh. as appears by the grant then ^k made unto the Nuns of Mergate in Bedfordshire, from Jordan de Whitacre: the appropriation whereof, I have not seen, conceiving that it was very ancient; but the Cure hath been served by a Stipendiary, there being no Vicar ^l endowed.

Whitacre inferior.

This being part of that, which in my discourse of Whitacre superior, is contained under the name of Whitacre, without any distinction, came totally to the Marmions Lords of Tamworth-Castle, as the other did; and in King Stephen, or beginning of Hen. 2. reign, was granted ^m by Robert Marmion to William Fitz Raphe, to hold by the service of one Knight's Fee. Which William being a very devout man, gave ⁿ to the Nuns of Polestworth all his lands lying in Aldulvestre (now called Austrey) in this Shire. To whom succeeded Raphe, also surnamed Fitz Raphe, one of ^o the pledges for Robert Marmion in 2 H. 3. that he should faithfully keep the Castle of Tamworth to the King's use; who in 6 H. 3. was one of ^p the Justices of Assize in this Countie, and in 20 H. 3. certified ^q to hold this Mannour of the said Robert Marmion, by the service of one Knight's Fee; whereat both he and his successors

for some descents, resided, as I guess, there being the site of a fair Mannour place, which had antiently a Park belonging thereto.

The next of which line, was Nich. Fitz-Raphe (whom I take to be son and heir to Raphe before specified) who being a Knight about the 29. of H. 3. and in 34 H. 3. one of the Justices for Gaol-delivery at Warwick, bore for his Armes two Barrs, as by his Seal appeareth; and had issue Giles, whose daughter and heir Isabell took to husband Robert a younger son to Philip Marmion, Lord of Lamworth-Castle. Which Robert, being by that means possessor of this Mannour, gave to the Nuns of Doleworth a yard land lying therein, for the health of his soul, and the soul of the said Isabell; and by his Deed bearing date at Walston-Basset, the Wednesday next before the Feast of S. Leo the Pope 14 E. 2. in consideration of an annuity of XL li. to be payd during his naturall life, past away all his title and right in this Mannour; as also in Walughton, Pericroft, and Clascote, unto Raphe Lord Basset of Walston, to hold during that terme; unto which Deed his Seal of Arms is affixt, viz. three Swords in pale, pointing downwards, with a Cheif varrè.

This Robert had issue a daughter called Amice, first married to Eustace de Hardreshull, as it seems; for the said Eustace and she, in 14 Edw. 2. covenanted to passe away all their interest and right herein, as also in those other before specified, unto the said Lord Basset; which was done accordingly by a Fine levied xv. Mart. the same year: But she was afterwards married to John de Whitacre; and in 3 Edw. 3. having buried him, released to the said Lord Basset all her right only to the moytie thereof. As for the other moytie, I cannot clearly see when or how it past from the said Robert Marmion and Isabell; but the next mention I find thereof, is in 5 Edw. 3. where it appears to have been entailed by Richard the son of Simon de Whitacre and Amabil his wife, on the heirs of their two bodyes lawfully begotten, and for default of such issue, on the heirs of Sir Richard de Whitacre Knight. Which Lord Basset, after he had thus gained an interest in this Lordship, gave xx li. of Land and Rent lying therein, for the endowment of a Chantrye consisting of three Priests; founded by him in the Church of Walston-Basset, as appears by the King's license in 12 Edw. 3. as also of the like License from Sir Baldwin Frevill, then superior Lord of the Fee: and in 14 Edw. 3. past away all the residue thereof to William de Clinton Earl of Huntingdon, and his heirs: which Earl, by his Deed bearing date at Walsstoke the Tuesday next after the translation of S. Thomas the Martyr in 16 Edw. 3. granted away the same in exchange, unto Richard de Whitacre and Amabil his wife, and their heirs, in lieu of their other moytie of their Mannour of Pericroft.

But from hence, for a while, I cannot well discern how the succession thereof went: howbeit, by a Fine levied in 38 Edw. 3. betwixt Sir Fouk de Bermingham Knight Plaintiff, and John Waryn of Burton Stather (in Com. Linc.) and Hulma his wife deforc. it appears that the said John and Hulma granted two Messuages and two yard land, xvi acres of Pasture, and the moytie of one Mess. lying here and in Walughton, with the third part of this Mannour; and the third part of the Mannour of Pericroft, which were the dowrie of the said

Hulma, unto the same Sir Fouk and his heirs: From whom, as it seems, it descended to Edmund Lord Ferrers of Chartley, and George Longville of Little-Billington in Com. Northampt. For in 10 H. 6. the said Edmund and George were certified to be Lords of the whole, the residue divolving to them by Isabell the daughter and heir of John de Whitacre and Amice his wife, as the Pedegree here inserted, and that in Birmingham do shew.

Of these, Longville's moytie was sold by Arthur Longville Esquire, (descended from the before specified George) in 34 Hen. 8. to John Cheyney of Chesham waterside in Com. Buck. Esquire. And the other moytie, coming by a daughter and heir of Ferrers, to Devereux (as the Descent in Wymoloch sheweth) was purchased from Walter Devereux, Vic. Hereford, Lord Ferrers of Chartley, by Edmund Skirning of Croburg in this County Esquire, in 12 Eliz. Which Edmund in 18 Eliz. sold the same to Henry Cheyney son and heir to the before specified John. The whole Mannour being thus totally in the said Henry Cheyney, was by him conveyed the next year following, to John Puresey Gentleman, who by his Deed bearing date 24. Febr. 25 Eliz. past it to Lawrence Washington of Gray's-Inne in the Countie of Wiltshire Gentleman. Which Lawrence in 31 Eliz. sold it to George Villers of Wokesby in Com. Leic. Esquire, from whom, about the 40th. of the same Queens reign, Sir Edward Brabazon Knight, purchased it; whose son and heir, William Earl of Nethe in Ireland, 15 Aug. 6 Car. sold it to Sir John King and Sir Robert King his son and heir (both Knights) which Sir Robert now enjoys it.

 ed a Stipendiary to serve the Cure.

u Domefd. ON the other side of Bourne lyes Shustoke,
 lb. which by the Conqueror's Survey^u is certified to contain four hides, having Woods extending to a mile in length, and half so much in breadth, and valued at xls. It was then possessed by Gef-frey de Wirce (of whom in Donks-hirby I have spoke) and held of him by one Sotus; by reason whereof it had the name of Sotus Stoke, or Sote-stroke; for so I have seen it antiently written, though in that Survey above mentioned it be Scotescote. But, as the rest of the said Geffrey Wirce his lands came to Nigel de Albani, progenitor to the Family of Moubray, so did this Lordship; and from Moubray was granted to the Ancestour of Walter de Camvill, together with Bentley, to hold by the service of one Knight's Fee, as may be cleerly inferred from sundry^w Records, being one of those nine Knight's Fees, whereof the said Walter in 12 H. 2. certified^x that his said Ancestour had been so enfeoffed in H. 1. time.

To which Walter succeeded Roger de Camvill, who in 12 Joh. gave a Fine^y of xxx. marks, that it might be certified by Inquisition, whether he held those two Knight's Fees, and a fourth part of the King, for which he had summons to go beyond Sea in the King's service, or not. This Roger gave^z a Rent of viii. s. issuing out of certain lands lying in this Lordship, unto the Nuns of Hen-wood, for the health of his Father's, Mothers, and Ancestours souls; and dying without issue, left this Mannour, with Bentley before specified, as also Creke and other fair possessions in Poythamptonshire, to be divided^a betwixt his three Sisters and heirs; viz. Alice wedded to Robert de Esseby, Maud to Thomas de Estley (Lord of Estley in this Countie) and Petronilla to Richard Curson, as the Descent in Arroth sheweth. Of which lands
Robert de Esseby had^b this Mannour, inter alia.
 Whereupon by inheritance from the said Robert and Alice, it came at length to William de Esseby, who about the 52. of H. 3. being convicted^c of Felony, scil. for killing a man maliciously in the Priory of Catesby, forfeited all; so that this Lordship escheacting, by that means, to the Lord Moubray, of whom it was held, was in 9 E. 2. posselt
 by^e John de Moubray.

But long he enjoyed it not; for taking part with headed at Woke: after which it became soon dis-

But besides this third part, it seems that the said
 Sir Richard obtained an estate in the rest, to hold likewise during his own life: for in 16 E. 3. when William de Clinton then Earl of Huntendon, had began the Foundation of Marstoke Priorie, having a minde to endow it with lands and possessions situate convenient thereto, it appears^k that k Ex autog.
 after he had agreed with the Lord Moubray to have penes W.
 this Lordship in Exchange for the Mannour of Paulet ar.
Winton in Cambridgeshire, he gave unto the said
 Sir Richard, in lieu of his terme in this, the inheritance of the Mannour of Gudlesdon (juxta Col-shill) with leave to take down a new House, which he had built here at Shustoke, and to remove it whither he should think fit; as also all such timber
 as was then fallen by the said Richard, in the Park here at Shustoke; and libertie to cut down in the said Park six more Oaks for Timber, and six for Fewell: the same grant bearing date 5 Jan. 16. E.
 3. After which, scil. the morrow following Ascension day, the said Lord Moubray granted^l the same, l 16.
 with the advowson of the Church, unto that Earl and his heirs for ever. Whereupon he, accordingly, by his Deed^m dated the Saturday before the Translation of S^t Thomas the Martyr, settled it upon the Canons of Marstoke and their successors; who
 the next year following, for their better conveniencie, pastⁿ it away unto John de Clinton (nephew to the before specified Earl) in exchange for that part of Marstoke, which was afterwards,
 and still is called the Priorie-Lordship.

All which being thus performed, the same John de Clinton immediately granted^o it unto the said o Pat. 20.
 Earl, his uncle, to hold during life: who being so E. 3. p. 2.
 seized thereof, procured a Charter^p bearing date m. 23.

 and his said nephew, and his heirs for ever, should have a Court Leet within this Mannour, extending likewise into the Hamlets of Bentley and Blithe (within the same Parish) together with Assize of Bread and Beer, Pillorie, Tumbrell; as also the Liberties of Insangthes, and Outsangthes, Gallows, and Weyfs; rendring for the same to the said King his Heirs and Successors xviii. d.

 Charter there was farther granted to the said Earl,
 as also to his nephew and his heirs, Free warren

The present fabrick of this Church was erected in King Edw. 2. time, as is evident by the picture of Richard de Colshull, the last Rector, which stood within these few years in a South window thereof: and therefore that portraiture, in one of the North windows, of John Lord Moubray, kneeling before S. Cuthbert, must be of that John that was beheaded at Wake for his adhering to Thomas Earl of Lancaster: which John being, doubtlesse, a great Benefactor to that new structure, and bearing an extraordinarie respect to S. Cuthbert, sometime Bishop of Durlesme (whose fame for sanctitie and miracles was very great in the Northern parts, where the said Lord Moubray's estate most lay) did, upon the rebuilding thereof, honour him with the Dedication.

Bentley.

This place, though it do lye two miles distant, & interposed by Whitacre-superior, is within Shustoke parish; the reason thereof being plain; viz. that in ancient time, being both posselt by one and the self same Lord, who founded and endowed the Church, it was both lawfull and proper that he should dispose of the Tithes thereto, arising out of it, for the better support of the Incumbent (the payment of them being then arbitrarie, I mean to what Church any man pleased, as in Church-over I have shewed;) which custome of payment ever after continuing to Shustoke, hath fixt it to be of that Parish.

By the Conquerour's Survey^b, having Woods of half a mile in length, and three furlongs in breadth, it was rated for one Hide, and is there recorded by the name of Benechelle, then being posselt by Geffrey de Wirce, (with Shustoke,) and valued at Lxiv. pence; at which time one Ansgot a Priest, held it of the said Geffrey in pure Almes: but afterwards, with Wirce his lands, it came to Nigel de Albani, by whom, as it appears by these authorities, which I have cited in Shustoke, the Ancestor of Walter de Camvile was first enfeofft thereof. Which Camviles had large Woods here; part

But of the Park above mentioned, had the said Sir Thomas de Astley no more than a moytie; for so it appearsⁱ by the Extent thereof in 50 H. 3. Henry de Curson being seized of the other part, by Descent from another coheir of Camvile: Which Sir Thomas and Henry, being both Rebels, the one slain, and the other taken Prisoner in that memorable battail of Chesham 49 H. 3. it was extended and valued at li. vi. s. viii. d. About the beginning of King Edw. 2. time, was this Mannour of Bentley (for so I find it then called) granted^k by the before specified John de Wilnechete, unto Henry de Lisle and Joane his wife, and the heirs of the said Henry; to whom in the male line it still continueth, as by the Descent in Wochull (the seat of that Familie) it appeareth.

Here is now but the carcase of a Chapell (dedicated to the Holy Trinity) which anciently was of use to the Inhabitants, being a Presentative, as the Institutions do manifest; the Patronage whereof, pertaining to the Lords of Shustoke, and granted^l in 17 E. 3. with that Mannour and advouson of the Church, by John Lord Moubray, unto Will. de Clinton Earl of Huntendon; as also by the said Earl soon after, to^m the Canons of Paristoke, became involved in the appropriation, with Shustoke, as being part of that Parish. The endowment it had, as by a Certificateⁿ to the Bishop in 34 H. 3. appeareth, was an Annuite of four Marks (the Rectorie of Shustoke, being then valued^o but at ten Marks) which summe of four marks was payable by the heirs of Roger de Camvile; viz. three marks and a half, out of the Ferm of a Mill lying in Shustoke, and the rest out of Duffhine-grange; all which being swallowed up by the Appropriation before specified, there doth not appear to have been any more than one Presentation^p thereto, afterwards; and that (as p^{lb} the words of the Institution do import) to a Chan-

But how, or by whom, this Priest was presented or placed there, I have not seen, till 2 R. 3. that the Canons of Marstoke admitted one Will. Moore thereto, by a speciall Instrument^e dated 18 Junii, under the Covent Seal, enjoyning him to perform divine Service therein, onely upon Sundays, and double Festivalls; and at all other times, at least three dayes in the week, at the Altar of S. Catherine in the Priorie of Marstoke, in case he should be in bodily health, and not oherwise lawfully hindred, for the souls of the Founder and Benefactors of the said Chanrie, and all the faithfull deceased. Which Mill before specified, did belong to this Chapell; for by a Letter^t Patent from John Lord Clinton, directed to the Prior and Covent of Marstoke, and dated 6. Febr. 2 R. 3. taking notice that it was decayed, and the WVater-course thereto, filled up for want of cleansing; as also that the said Prior and Covent had a purpose to repair it, for the benefit of this Chapell, the said John signified his pleasure, that they should have leave so to do, by cutting down wood in the ancient Water-courie, and scouring the same for that purpose.

 By the Survey^t made in 26 H. 8. I find that the Priest weekly celebrating divine Service here, had a stipend of Liii s. iv d. per annum paid by the Canons of Marstoke; but this was in lieu of the Mill in Shustoke, which they had; for of the Tenement and half yard land lying in Bentley, it doth not appear by that Survey, that they were posselt.

This, being originally a member of Shustoke, and involved therewith in the Conqueror's Survey, came to Nigel de Albani (out of doubt) with Shustoke; and by the said Nigel, as I guess, was disposed of in H. 1. time, unto the Ancestor of that Family, whose seat being at Th'esser-wader, now called Ceffer-Dwer, assumed that place (viz. WVaver) for his surname: and to fortifie this conjecture, I have these evincing circumstances, whereof, wanting better light (at so great a distance) I presume to make use, scil. the Tenure thereof^u from the descendants of the before specified Nigel, who took the name of Monbray; and that WVilliam, a younger^w son of WVilliam de WVaver, settling here in King John's time, had his surname^x from hence, his posteritie bearing the same Coat as WVaver did, viz. Argent, on a Fesse sable, three Escalops Or, as by a Pedegree^y drawn about the beginning of King H. 7. time, appeareth.

away their interest here, to the end that its successive owners may the more perspicuously be discovered: By which it appeareth, that by the coheirs of Thomas de Blithe, in H. 6. time, it came to Bishbury and Ringley; who making no division of it, their posterity became Tenants in common thereto: But long they kept it not; for in 37 H. 8. did Reginald Bellers purchase^b that moitie belonging to Richard Lawley and Barbara his wife; and^c in 13 Eliz. the other moitie, from John Lveson of Wibbury, cosin and heir to Rose the Widow of John de Cleyton, as the Pedegree sheweth: So that then being posselt of the whole, by his Deed^d bearing date 6. Julii 21 Eliz. he conferred^e the inheritance thereof upon William his second son: which William reserving an estate therein for himself and his wife, during their lives, sold^f the reversion to Sir Edward Aston of Wibhall in Com. Staff. Knight, who by his last Will and Testament^g disposed thereof unto Henry Skipwith of Lugby in Com. Leic. Gent. and Jane his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies (the said Jane having been his Concubine.) But of them did Sir Walter Aston Knight of the Bath, son and heir to the said Sir Edward, purchase^h it again in 5 Jac. Which Sir Walter (afterwards Lord Aston of Foxfare in Scotland) by his Deedⁱ of bargain and sale, dated 14. Nov. 1 Car. conveyed it unto me William Dugdale, it being the place of my residence, and where I compiled this present Work.

Ousthirne.

ON the skirts of Shustoke-parish, is the confluence of severall Rivers, viz. Blithe and Cole, Lame, and Blithe, as also of Lame, and Bourne, as the Map sheweth; in pursuance therefore of my methode, I must passe over to the Western bank of Lame, where I first behold Ousthirne, sometime a Grange¹ belonging to Merevale Abby, and for that respect still reputed a member thereof: but originally the greatest part of it did belong^m to Shustoke, being first given to the Monks of Merevale (as I guess) by Walter de Camvile, in H. 2. time; for at that time was the said Walter, Lord of Shustoke (as I have shewed) and that he gave lands to that Monasterie, King, H. the second's confirmationⁿ doth manifest, though the particular names thereof are not there exprest; But upon the dissolution of Merevale, this Grange coming to the Crown, was^o granted, with the site of that Monasterie, unto Sir Walter Devereux Knight, Lord Ferrers of Chartley; and by him given, as it seems, to Sir Edward Devereux Knight, and Baronet, his son by a second wife: whose son and heir, Sir Walter, hath within these few years, sold the site thereof, and most of the lands thereto belonging, unto Charles Adderley Esquire (now Knight) Lord of Lea, hard by.

Lea.

OF this place there is no mention in the Conqueror's Survey, it being then involved with Whitacre (of which Constablerie it is, till this day) and so consequently posselt therewith by the Marmions, Lords of Tamworth-Castle. From one of those Marmions, as it seems, was the Ancestor of James de la Launde enfeoffed thereof; which James lived^p in H. 3. time, and in 37. of that King's reign, had a Charter^q of free warden in all his demein lands here. From this James descended John de la Launde (as the Pedegree in Langdon sheweth) who manifesting^r that his Ancestors had enjoyed a Court-leet here, with Assize of Bread and Beere, and other Liberties thereto belonging, in 3 E. 3. obtained a^s Charter from the King, for confirmation thereof to himself and his heirs, with Infangthef, Tumbrell, and Pillorie; and bore^t for his Armes a Rend Cotized, as by his Seal appears.

To whom succeeded James his son and heir, the last of this Family, that had to do here; for in 41 E. 3. he quitted^u all the interest he had in this Mannour, to Alianore his mother: which Alianore, by her Deed^w bearing date at Tamworth in 44 E. 3. past away the same unto Sir Baldwin Frevill Knight, and his heirs, reserving only an estate for life. By which means, upon partition^x made in 31 H. 6. betwixt the three sisters and heirs to the said Sir Baldwin, it was allotted to Thomas Ferrers, at that time Tenant by the Curtesie of England to all the lands, which were of the inheritance of Eliz. his wife deceased, eldest of the said three sisters: In whose line it continued till Sir John Ferrers Knight, about the beginning of King Charles his reign, sold it to Charles Adderley Esquire, afterwards an Equeire to the said King, and by him Knighted; who now enjoys it.

The Church (dedicated to S. John Baptist) was antiently given to the Nuns of Mergate in Com. Bedf. by one of the De la Launds, as I guess: But it seems that the title which those Nuns had, was not very firme: for in 26 H. 3. James de la Launde recovered^y the right of Presentation thereto: Howbeit afterwards they grew to^z Composition with him, and gave him 57. marks of silver to quit his claim to it; which he did in 36 H. 3. whereupon it became appropriated to them, but no Vicar endowed; so that the Curate there was provided by those Nunns as a Stipendiare to them.

Merston (juxta Lea) and Coton.

THIS place, having its name from the flat moorish ground bordering upon it, was posselt^a by Turchil de Warwick, in the Conqueror's time, and then rated at three hides, valued at xxx s. which were at that time held of him by one Roger: But it was not long (I presume) ere it came to the Marmions of Tamworth-Castle; for in^b 20 H. 3. Robert Marmion answered for half a Knight's Fee in respect thereof, at which time it had the name of Merston-Marmion, for distinction from the other Merstons in this Hundred: but whether Marmion were any other than superior Lord of the Fee, at that time, I make a question, the Limes of Marstoke holding it immediately of them: for it appears^c that in 5 E. 1. Raph de Lime and Joane his wife, gave to a Chantrie-Priest celebrating Divine Service at Solihull, five marks of yearly Rent, issuing out of certain lands, lying here and in Cotes (now called Coton) and that the Family of Odingsels, who were antiently Lords of Marstoke, f Domest. lib.

OF this place there is mention made twice in the Conqueror's Survey; first under the title of the lands then belonging to Hugh de Grentemaisnil; where it is rated for four hides, having a Church, as also a Mill esteemed at xx s. which (with the rest were all valued at viii. having been the inheritance of one Pellinus in Edward the Confessor's dayes: And next under the title of the lands belonging to Adeliz the wife of the said Hugh, where the quantity and value, in the grosse summe, do not differ: but there it is said to have been the freehold of one Turgot, before the Norman Invasion. After which, ere long, it was disposed of to one of the Murmions, as I guess, together with Tanworth-Castle; and (if we may believe the ancient Windows of that Church, and some other authorities) by the Conqueror himself, as in Tanworth I shall more fully shew: Neither is it unlikely; for by an accompt^s of the Templars revenues, taken in 31 H. 2. it appears, that they were then posselt of certain lands here, that had been bestowed on them by Geffrey Marmion.

In which Family of Murmion, it continued whilst the male line lasted, Philip Marmion, in 13 E. 1. claiming^a by Prescription a Court Leet and Gallows here, which were allowed; as also Free Warren within his demesn lands of this place: But to this the Jury answered, that the Earls of Warwick had free Chase within the same, taking forfeitures for all offences done therein; and that the said Philip had no Warren, except by grant from Elizabeth Countess of Warwick, onely for terme of her life; whereupon he was amerced for his undue challenge. But this Philip Marmion dying without issue male, his lands came to be divided betwixt severall coheirs, (as the Descent in Tanworth sheweth:) Of which, Alexander Frevill and Joane his wife, Raphs Boteler^k the elder, with Maud his wife, and Henry Hillary^l and Joane his wife, had their particular shares in this Mannour: till at the length, by purchase^m, Hillarie's part became united to that which Frevill had; whereupon Sir Baldwin Frevill Knight, procured from Richard Scroope Bishop of Cobentre and Lichfield, about the 14th of R. 2. Licenceⁿ to have an Oratorie, or private Chapell within his Mannour-house here.

Of the accession of Boteler's part, I have not seen any thing; but do conclude that it was before the partition made in 31 H. 6. betwixt the Sisters and heirs to the last Sir Baldwin Frevill; for thereby it appeareth^o, that Margaret the youngest of them, had (inter alia) this Mannour of Midleton, wholy, as parcell of her purpart, she being then, wife to Richard Bingham, one of the Justices of the King's Bench, and afterwards a^p Knight. Which Sir Richard resided here till he died, scil. in^q 15 E. 4. being ioynd in all Commissions^r of the Peace and other matters of importance with the superior Gentlemen of this Countie: After whose death she continued a widow, even to a very great age, as by her Presentation^t to the Church of Wollaton-Bagot in 20 H. 7. appears. To whom succeeded in the inheritance of this Lordship Sir Henry Willoughby Knight her grandson (by^u Sir Hugh Willoughby of Wollaton, in Com. Nott. a Knight her first husband) as the Pedegree here inserted sheweth.

Baxterley.

Passing the River, now, to the other side, I come to Baxterley, situate at the head of a slender torrent, which coming by Hurley, enters Tame a little above Kingsburie: But of this place there is no particular mention in the Conqueror's Survey, it being then involved with Grendon, and so consequently possessed by Henry de Feriers: From whom it came to one of the old Earls of Warwick, and so to Harecourt, as may seem by the Record of 36 H. 3. where it is plain, that, Richard de Harecourt held the sixth part of a Knight's Fee, here, of the Earl of Warwick: And from Harecourt to Luvell; for about the beginning of King Edw. 1. reign, did John Luvell the son of William Luvell, grant to Sir John de Chetwynd his kinfman, the inheritance thereof, paying to him the said John and his heirs, or to Richard de Harecourt Chief Lord of the Fee (as the Deed expresseth) a pound of Pepper yearly at Easter. After which, scil. in 9 E. 1. it was found that the same Sir John de Chetwynd had certain Customary Tenants here, who paid unto him 6 s. per annum Rent, and did suit twice a year at his Leet, the extent of what he had here, being certified at iv. yard land; but in 17 E. 3. it appears, that Sir John de Chetwynd had xvi. Messuages, vi. yard land, vi acres of Pasture, and two acres of Wood in this place.

It seems that the Chetwynds did not long after this, retain the possession of these lands; for in 19 E. 3. the moitie of this Mannour, together with the advowson of the Church, was given by some Ecclesiastique persons, who were Feoffees to one William de Henover, unto the Abby of Sperebale to find certain Priests, to celebrate divine Service in the Chapell of our Ladie, near the Gate of the said Monastery, for the soul of the said William de Henovere deceased: so that 'tis like, they were about that time purchased of Sir John de Chetwynd, for that purpose, in regard of their vicinitie to Merevale. All which after the dissolution of that Houſe, were in 32 H. 8. (together with it) purchased from the Crown, by Sir Walter Devereux Knight Lord Ferrers of Chartley; and ſo deſcended to Robert Earl of Eſſex, Lord thereof in anno 1640.

Within this moytie, is a fair manſion, called Barterley Hall, built in King Edw. 6. time, by John Glover, then a Retainer to the Lord Ferrers (as may appear by the Armes and Badges carved upon the timber-work thereof) but formerly a Servant to the Abbots of Merevale, as by tradition I have heard. Unto which Houſe, did that famous aſſertor of the Proteſtant Religion, ſcil. Hugh Latimer, ſometime Biſhop of Worcester, reſort; whoſe ghottly Inſtructions, ſo well grounded Robert Glover, Brother to the ſaid John, that rather than he would recede from them, he choſe to lay down his life, being burnt at Coventre in 5, & 6 Ph. & M. as M^r Fox in his Catalogue of Martyrs hath declared. Which Robert had iſſue Hugh, who inherited theſe lands, as coſin * and heir to his uncle John; in whoſe line they continue till this day.

As for the other moytie, the ſoonest diſcovery, that I have made thereof afterwards, is in 12 E. 4. where Thomas Littleton, at that time one of the Juſtices of the Common Pleas, gave it to Roger Wall, then one of the Canons of Litchfield, and other his Feoffees, for performance of his laſt Will: From whom deſcended Sir Edward Littleton of Willaton-Hall in Com. Staff. Knight, who ſold it of late years, to George Corbyn, George Luſford, and Richard Whitehall, Gentlemen, Truſtees for the Freeholders, in whom it now reſteth.

The Church, being originally but a Chapell, belonging unto Diſton on the Hill (antiently written Overton ſubius Arden) was with it given to the Monks of Merevale by Robert Earl Ferrers, Pope Lucius the third confirming the grant, in anno 1185. (32 H. 2.) But the patronage thereof, after the grant of the moytie of the Manour, together with the Advouſon, to the Monks of Merevale (as formerly hath been ſaid) was jointly in the ſaid Monks & the heirs of Harecurt (ſuperior Lords of the Fee) being exerciſed by turns, as the Inſtitutions will manifeſt. In anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was valued at five marks; but in 26 H. 8. at C^s. over and above iv s. vi d. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

Kingsbury.

I Come next to Kingsbury, which is a large Pariſh, containing theſe Villages and places of note; viz. Lymberiey-Hall, Hurley, Blumpton, Flanders-Hall, Hallaton, Drakenegge, Whateley, Slateley, Holt, Cliffe, and Doſhill; of all which in their order.

That this place in the Saxons time, was a Seat belonging to ſome of the Mercian Kings, is not to be doubted, the name it ſelf importing no leſſe. Beſides, if we regard the ſituation for delight, few in theſe parts will equall it, conſidering the vicinity of the River, bordered on the one ſide with Hills and Woods, and on the other with ſpacious and pleaſant Meadows. And that the verge of Sutton-Chaſe,

Chase, in those days a Forest (as by what I have in Sutton observed) extended to the skirts thereof: So that, if I shall hence conclude, that this is the same Wingsburie, where Bertulphus King of Merca residing, had a " grand Councell of his Prelates and great Nobles in the year from our Saviour's Incarnation DCCCLI, I think it will be no great presumption. But of these ancient times, as we have little Discoverie, so is there no great certaintie to be found: I shall therefore descend somewhat neerer the Norman Invasion, where, by the light of that generall Survey * (where it is written Chinesburie) which King William here made shortly after his Conquest, I find that the Countess Godeva (of whom in Cobentre I have spoke) held it in Edward the Confessor's days; whence I guess that Earl Leofrike, her husband, posselt it in his time. By which Survey here are said to have been six hides of land, two Priests, one Mill valued at ix s. iv d. xii. acres of Meadow, and Woods extending to a mile in length, and as much in breadth; which, together with the rest, were rated at xiii li. by weight, being then in the possession of one Nicholas, as Fermour to the King of all the lands that had belong'd to the said Countess.

Rot. 9.

But after that great change, made by the Norman Conquerour, Turchil de Warewic had it^y in right of Leverunia his second wife, whose inheritance it was, Which Turchil (in imitation of the Normans who had their Cognomina long before their coming into England, with Duke William) residing here, as I presume, assumed Arden for his surname, in regard that all this tract of the Countie Northwards of Avon, being Woodland, was anciently so called, as I have elsewhere observed. By the said Leverunia he had issue^z Osbert de Arden, whose service (for this Mannour, as I take it) did Ranulph Earl of Chester (possessing a great part of the lands which belonged to the Countesse Godiva before mentioned) about King Stephen's time, grant^a unto Robert Marston (of Lamworth-Castle) and his heirs: Howbeit, notwithstanding this grant, it appears^b that this Mannour was afterwards held of the Earl of Chester's heirs, as of their Mannour of Cheylesmoze, in Cobentre.

But I return. To this Osbert succeeded^c Osbert his son, and to him two daughters and heirs, scil. Adeliza the wife of Simon de Harecourt, and Amabil of Robert Fitz-Walter, as the Descent in Curdworth sheweth, Which Amabil gave^d with her body, for sepulture, to the Nuns of Polesworth, the Mill here at Kingsburie, with some grounds thereto belonging, her sister Alice confirming^e the grant, and adding the Mill at Hurley for the health of her soul. But these sisters having no Children, this Lordship descended to Amicia their Aunt and heir, wife to Peter de Bracebrige (so called from a place of that name near Lincolne, whereof he was possessor) The Descendants of which Peter and Amicia, had their principall seat here, till about the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign, divers of them being Knights, as the Pedegree in the foregoing page sheweth.

T is Peter de Bracebrige was a militarie man, as it seems; for I find that he gave^f unto William the son of Fundus and his heirs, certain lands lying within the precinct of this Lordship, in a place called Csbjoc, to the intent that the said William, should upon lawfull warning carry hither to Kingsburie, such painted Lances, from London or Portsmouth, at the charges of him the said Peter, as he might have occasion to use in any Tourneament there: and that whensoever the said Peter should take a journey beyond Sea, for performance of such martiall exploits, he the said Will. to attend him, and to bring back his Lances. To which Peter succeeded John his son and heir, who had much adoe in defending this his inheritance; for in 7 Joh. did Thomas de Arden begin his claim, and gave^g five marks to the said King, for a Writ of Right, to trye his title thereto; which in 9 Joh. he did set^h forth, as lineall heir to Turchil (de Warewic) who was seized of it in King H. 1. time; and offered to decide his right to it by Duell, naming one William de Kopland his Champion: which William, receiving command from Ilseill his Father (as being Tenant to the said John) assented to undertake the Combate.

Whereupon John de Bracebrige answered, that he denied not the said Turchil's seisin, but tendered triall by the great Affize, as to the time and right thereof. Unto which the said Thomas replied, that the great Affize ought not to be in this case, because they were both descended from one stock, viz. from Turchil, of whose inheritance it was: Howbeit, John answered, that though he acknowledged their descent from Turchil, yet he claimed nothing thereby; because the said Turchil had two wives, and that it was from the first that the said Thomas descended; but that this land being the inheritance of Leverunia his second wife, who held it all her life, and after her decease Osbert her son, and after him another Osbert, that had severall daughters, which died without issue, it came to Amicia their Aunt, mother to him the said John; tending to put himself upon the great Affize, to determine whether he had not more right thereto from the before specified Leverunia, than the said Thomas from Turchil; and whether the same Turchil were so seized of it, the day and year that the said King Henry dyed. And lastly, because the said land did lye bordering on two Counties, scil. Warwick and Stafford, he offeredⁱ xx. marks to have Knights of both Counties for triall thereof; the said Thomas offering xx. marks and a Palfrey: whereupon it was concluded, that the cause should be so decided: and so I suppose it was, or by some friendly Agreement; for I find that the next year following, the same Thomas de Arden quitted^k all his right and title therein, to the said John.

And yet, it seems that they were not quiet; for in 11 Joh. the said Thomas de Arden gave^l a Palfrey, that the determination thereof might be before the King: and the next year after, John de Bracebrige payd^m xls. for to have another Jury: but other particulars I have not seen. This John de Bracebrige confirmedⁿ the grant of Kingsburie-Mill, &c. and Hurley-Mill made to the Nuns of Polesworth, as hath been observed; and died without issue in 2 H. 3. leaving William^p his Brother and heir. Which William in 19 H. 3. was a^q Justice of Affize at Warwick: and afterwards confirm'd^r to the Monks of Merevale, the grant of a yard land in Holt, made to them by John his Brother, and whatsoever else he the said John had given to that Monasterie. But to William succeeded Raph his son and heir, who questioned^s the title that the Nuns of Polesworth had to Kingsburie-Mill, and Hurley-Mill; whereupon they came to a Composition^t with him, giving six marks of silver.

This Raphe was at that time a^u Knight, and shortly after commenced^v suit against the Nuns of Meregate for the advouson of Kingsburie-Church; but to this they pleaded^x the grant of Osbert de Arden, and exhibited the Charter of Peter de Bracebrige before specified, with the consent of Amicia his wife, confirming the same; whereupon he had no more to say. To which Raphe succeeded John de Bracebrige, betwixt whom and the Prioresse of Meregate there was a Fine^y levied in 26 H. 3. for certain lands lying within this Lordship of Kingsburie, that were settled upon the said John and his heirs, paying iii s. yearly Rent to the Nuns. In 40 H. 3. this John gave a Fine^z to the King of two marks in gold, that his Knighthood might be respited for three years longer; within the compasse of which time, being amerced at a mark by the Justices Itinerant in Lincolnshire, because he was not a Knight, he had a speciall^a Mandate to the Barons of the Exchequer for acquitting him of that summe. But adhering to the rebellious Barons, who in 48 H. 3. did put themselves in Armes (as in Hemlwozth hath been shewed) was on the first of April the same year, taken^b Prisoner in Portsmouth, at the surprisall thereof by the King's Army, being at that time a Knight (for which this Lordship was seized and given^c by the King, to Roger de Clifford) and imprisoned at Shrewsbury, as appears by the King's Precept^d for his deliverie; directed to the Bayliffs of that town, and dated 9. Jan. 49. H. 3. But the Inquisition^e upon the extent of his lands says, that Hugh de Turberville had the charge of him, till he had got his redemption: yet after this he fled^f into the Isle of Arholme with young Simon Montfort and others, where he continued till he saw all his partie totally vanquish^g, and then submitted^h to the Dictum de Benilwozth, James de Audela undertaking^h on his behalf.

It seems that his composition did cast him into some distress; for in 53 H. 3. he made a Leaseⁱ of this whole Lordship, excepting a yard land that one Walter le Plummer sometime held, unto Robert de Tyetot, and Eva his wife, during their lives, for which he received of them 500 li. sterling. Which Robert, having thus got footing therein, procured a Charter^k of Free warren (inter alia) extending into all his demein lands here: howbeit, this was but temporarie; for it appears that John de Bracebrigge, son^l and heir to the last mentioned John, at length enjoying it again, did in 29 E. 1. obtain another Charter^m, for Free warren here, as also at Bracebrigge and Wrauby in Lincolnshire. Which John, having in 3 E. 2. a speciall Patentⁿ from the King, exempting him from serving on Juries, or undergoing the place of Shirriff, Coroner, or any other Office against his own liking, being at that time, a^o Knight also bore for his Armes Varré Arg. and Sable a Fesse Gules, as by his Seals^p and certain old Roules appeareth; and departed^q this life in 9 E. 2. leaving John his son and heir ten years of age; of whom I have not seen any thing farther, till 25 E. 3. that he presented^r to the Chantry of Hynebaldey; nor after 31 E. 3. at which time he was a Knight^s.

But the next Bracebrigge that had to do here, after the death of the before specified Sir John, was Raphe, whom I suppose to have been his Brother: which Raphe presented^t to the said Chantry in 9 E. 3. and in 11 E. 3. levied a Fine^u of two parts of this Mannour. This Sir Raphe (for he was then a Knight) had Summons^v in 19 E. 3. to sit himself with Horles and Armes, against the Feast of S. Laurence, to attend the King into France; and in 22 E. 3. had a speciall Patent^x of exemption from serving on Juries, or undergoing the Office of Shirriff, Eschactor, Coroner, &c. In 8 R. 2. he was in Commission^y for arraying of men in this Countie, and in 19 R. 2. died^z leaving Sir John Bracebrigge Knight his son and heir, then xix. years of age; which Sir John died soon after; for by severall^a authorities it appeareth, that Raphe succeeded him as heir, whom one Inquisition^b taken in 1 H. 4. calls Frater Johannis, & propinquier hares pradiſti Radulphi: But the Ladic Joane his mother, was Mistresse here for her life, as it seems; for in 20 R. 2. she obtained Licence^c from Richard Scroope then Bishop of Coventre and Litchfield, to have Divine service in a private Chapell, within this her Mannour-house.

Of which last mentioned Raphe, I find, that he was a Knight^d in 10 H. 4. that in 13 H. 4. he married^e his son Raph (though then but yong) unto Joane the daughter of Sir William Newport Knight; that in 7 H. 5. amongst other persons of note, Arma portantes, de Armis antiquis (as the words of the Writt are) having speciall^f summons to attend the King in person for defence of the Realm, he was the first in the list of those, which were returned by the Shirriff of this Countie: In which seventh year of King H. 5. he took a Lease^g of the Mannour-house, Park, and Pooles, at Sutton, of Richard Beauchamp, then Earl of Warwick, to hold for life; one of which Pooles beareth the name of Bracebrigge-Pool to this day; and was afterwards retained^h with the said Earl, to serve him with ix. Lances and xvii. Archers, for the strengthening of Calais. To him succeeded Raphe his son and heir (before mentioned) who is rankⁱ amongst the Esquires of this Countie, for the subscription of the Articles agreed on in the Parliament of 12. H. 6. And in 14 H. 6. departed^k this life, leaving Richard his son and heir ix. years of age; of whom I find little memorable, other than that difference which Walt. Arden of Park-Hall, had with him, touching the stealing away of John Arden his son and heir, to marry unto Alice his daughter, concerning which I have already spoke in Curdwozth.

Neither after this last mentioned Raphe; was there one of them employed in any publique affairs of the Countrey; so that having deduced the Descent down to the last that posselt this place, I have little to observe, farther, than that, after this Eclipse; Thomas the fourth in succession from the said Richard, having buried his first wife, who was of an ancient & good Family; and marrying a second of mean parentage, became so much alienated in affection, to his issue by the former, that by a Feoffment^l made of this Lordship unto Sir George Griffith Knight and others, bearing date 16. Aug. 5. E. 6. he utterly disherited them thereof; selling the same, after reservation of a meere estate for life, to himself, and Joyse at that time his wife, upon Thomas his eldest son by the said Joyse, with remainder, for want of heirs male of his body, to John, and so to Ankitill, his other sons by that woman. But what successe came of that causelesse disherison of the true heir, I cannot omit to take notice, which (in brief) was this, In November anno 1557. (5 & 4 P. & M. his said wife^m dies, whereupon his love to those Children that were ere while his darlings, cooled; so that in 2 Eliz. having run himself into many debts by extravagant courses, he contractedⁿ with Sir Ambrose Cave Knight, then Chancelour of the Dutchie of Lancaster, and by a Deed^o of bargain and sale, passes unto him, the inheritance of the Mannour-house, with the demesns; of which act his son Thomas took such advantage, that he entred^p upon that, and layd claim to all the rest, as forfeited by vertue of the Feoffment before mentioned: but getting a piece of money of Sir Ambrose, makes^q good the sale, reserving only an Annuitie of xliii li. per annum to himself and his heirs, and continued his claim to the residue; whereof, after much striving, he at length had possession: About a year after which, viz. 1 Martii 11 Eliz. his Father died^r, so that then, though he had no interruption for enjoyment of it, yet did he so intangle himself with debts, that at last he sold it all to Sir Fancis Willoughby of Spoleton Knight, and through his great improvidence, came to die miserably. So that here I am to put a period to my story of this ancient Family, having taken notice of the issue male, still remaining in the Pedegree before inserted.

From which Sir Ambrose Cave, did the premisses descend^c unto Margaret his onely child, the wife of Henry Knolls Esquire, who leaving issue by her, two daughters; scil. Mary and Elizabeth, the one married to the Lord Paget of Beaufort in Staffordshire, and the other to Sir Henry Willoughby of Risley in Derbyshire, an equall division was in our time made thereof, betwixt them. But from Sir Francis Willoughby before specified, the Mannour and Tenements, so by him purchased, did in right of Briget his eldest daughter and coheir, come to Sir Percevall Willoughby Knight, who sold the Fermes to the Tenants, as I have heard, but left the Mannour to Sir Francis his son and heir.

The Church (dedicated to S. Peter) was given to the Nuns of Mergate in Bedfordshire, by the first Osbert de Arden, about the beginning of King Stephen's time: Howbeit, till 36 Hen. 3. they did not quietly enjoy it, as by what I have observed in my discourse of Sir Raphce Bracebriggs, and John his son appeareth: but the moytie thereof was anciently appropriated to them, though the direct time when, I have not found. In anno 1291. (19 Edw. 1.) the said appropriated moytie was valued^a at xiii marks, and the other at xv. Which other moytie became afterwards also appropriated^w to them, viz. in 12 Rich. 2. whereupon in a short time, scil. in anno 1397. (21 Rich. 2.) ensued the Ordination^x of the Vicaridge, vi s. viii d. yearly Pension being then reserved to the Bishop and his successors, and ii s. to the Arch-Deacon. Which Vicaridge in 26 Hen. 8. was valued^y at viii li. ix s. x d. over and above iii s. per annum deducted for Synodalls.

Here was anciently a Chapell^z of S. Edmund, and in it a Chantrie, founded^a by one of the Bracebriggs of Kingsburie, about the beginning of King Edw. 2. time, as may seem by the Presentations thereto, and called^b Cantaria de Kyne- baldestey. By the Survey^c of 26 H. 8. this Chantrie is said to be in the Church of Kingsburie (which, if so, then was it not long before removed thither) and the value thereof, over and above reprises, certified at Cvi s. viii d. But I rather think that to be a mistake; for in 37 H. 8. it is called^d Cantaria de Hurley, forasmuch as 'tis situate within the precincts of that Hamlet, and then valued^e at Cxiii s. x d.

OF this place there is no mention in the Con-queror's Survey, by reason it was then involved with Kingsburie: but I have seen it very anciently written Hurnlet, which apparently shews,
that the name at first grew from its situation, hurne
or hyrne in the Saxon, or old English, signifying a nook or corner, which rightly agreeth with the position thereof, it lying in the utmost corner of Kingsburie Lordship, Eastwards. As it was a part of Kingsburie heretofore, so were the Bracebriggs in those days Lords thereof, as appears by a grant of it from^f Raphce de Bracebriggs, about the 25. of H.
3. unto Amicia his mother, in name of her dowrie,
where it is called Mannerium de Hopley; yet by some other^g authorities of later time, it appears to have been only a member of Kingsburie; So also by the Inquisition^h after the death of Thomas

Bracebrigg Esquire, in 19 Eliz. But notwithstanding that, there is a Mannour within it, at least in reputation, whereof one John VValdiff Esquire, dyed¹ seized in 31 H. 8. which descended to Joane the sole daughter of Nicholas Nightingale, by Joyce sister and heir to the said John; which Joan was then^k the wife of Thomas VVillington, cousin of VVilliam VVillington Esquire (of whom in Worcester I have spoken) the posteritie of which Thomas do still enjoy it.

It seems that the VValdyve have lived antiently in this place; for in 36 H. 6. was Joane the daughter of VVilliam VValdyve of Burley, married unto Robert VVillerhale of Greeneburgh, in the Chapell here, by speciall License¹ from the Bishop directed to the then Vicar of Kingsburie for that purpose. Which VVilliam VValdyve was son to Richard^m, a branch of the VValdyves of Alspath.

Plumpton.

THIS place is now known onely by certain grounds lying on the East side of Kingsburie Parish, so called; whereof one VValter de Plumpton was posseltⁿ in H. 3. time, who held them by a certain weapon, called a Danish Axe: which being the very Charter^p whereby the said land was given unto one of his Ancestors, hung^q up for a long time in the Hall of the capitall messuage belonging thereto, in testimony of the said tenure, untill that the said House was seized upon by Sir John Bracebrigg Knight, Lord of Kingsburie in E. 3. time, and pulled to the ground: After which it remained^r a great while in the Hall of the mansion belonging to VVilliam de Plumpton, in Wardeshull (about two miles distant) being commonly reputed, and called^s the Charter of Plumpton. What title the said Sir John Bracebrigg had to it, I know not; but by severall^t authorities it appears, that his posteritie were seized of it, by the name of the Mannour of Plumpton: And in 12 H. 4. did Sir Riphe Bracebrigg Knight, sell the same (the content thereof being C. acres of Land, xl. acres of Wood, and xl. acres of Moore, then called Plumpton fields) unto Robert VVaterston Esquire, and his heirs: All which came afterwards to the hands of one Roger Horton, who died seized^v of them ult. H. 5. leaving VVilliam his son and heir xviii. years of age.

But upon the death of the said Roger, were they taken^x into the King's hand, and continued in the Crown till 13 H. 6. that VVilliam VValdiff and Thomas VVylcock obtained a^y grant of them, for the space of ten years. Which VVilliam in 26 H. 6. being cousin^z and heir to Joyce Plumpton of Nottingham, one of the daughters and heirs of Roger Plumpton, and sister^a and heir to Philippa the other daughter and heir to the said Roger (as he stiled himself) of whose inheritance they were, b^b granted^b them to Thomas VValdyve his son; From which Thomas, by an heir female the Willingtons of Burley do derive themselves, and are still owners of all, or a great part of these lands.

Flanders-Hall.

THIS place was antiently so denominated from one Hugh a younger brother to William de

Odingsells (of which Family I have spoke in Ichington, Solihull, and Warfoke) as Mr. Burton in his Description^c of Leicestershire, affirms, in regard that his Ancestors came out of Flanders, whose descendants assumed it for their surname: but upon the death of John de Flanders, the last male branch of this line, it was allotted by partition^d in 13 H. 6. to Elizabere, the wife of Sampson Erdswike, one of his three daughters and heirs; by which means it descended^e to the issue of John Herdwick of Lindley in Leicestershire, her first husband; and so came to the *Purefey*s of Caldecote, in marriage (as I have heard) with Joyce one of the daughters and coheirs to the last John Herdwyck, wife to Michael Purefey: From which Michael descended William Purefey Esquire, who in our time sold it unto Sir Robert Fisher of Packington Knight and Baronet.

Hallaton.

OF this place I have not seen any mention till 17 H. 3. at which time it was reputed a member^f of Coshill, and part of the dowry of^g Elisant the widow unto Osbert de Clinton: But after this it came to be posselt^h by the same Robert Marmion, of whom I have spoke in Pether-whitacre; and by those authorities, which I have there voucht, seemeth to have gone with that Mannour till Q. Eliz. time: for it appeareth that Walt. Devereux Visc. Hereford in 12 Eliz. sold^k it with Pether-whitacre unto Edmund Skerning, then of Crobury Esquire.

Drakenedge.

THIS was originally a member of Pether-whitacre, as I conceive, and so consequently posselt^l by the Marmions of Samworth-Castle; and from one of them, granted therewith, to Nicholas Fitz Raphe, or his Ancestour; for it is evident that the Familie of Mancestre, who for a good while enjoyed it, held^m it of the heirs of Nicholas Fitz Raphe (Lords of Pether-whitacre) by the service of a pair of gilt Spurs, and that they heldⁿ it over, of those Marmions. Of which Mancestres I find, that Hugh, in 36 Hen. 3. had a Charter^o of free warren, extending to all his demesne lands here; and that from him, it descended to Guy de Mancestre, his grandchild, who in King Edw. 3. time, past^p it to Robert de Herle and his heirs, by the name of a Mannour: Which Robert dying without issue of his body, it devolved to Sir Raph de Hastings Knight, his cousin and heir, viz. son^q of his sister Margaret; and from him (through divers descents) to William Lord Hastings, Chamberlain to King Edward the fourth, who died^r seized thereof in 1 Ric. 3. leaving Sir Edward Hastings Knight, his son and heir xvii. years of age: But farther hereof, I have not seen, than that Richard Hastings in 9 H. 8. was presented^s for depopulating the Capitall Messuage, and CC. acres of arable land, lying thereto.

I Am not sure, whether this place be particularly taken notice of in the Conqueror's Survey; if it be, that which is there written Dercelaf is intended for it, which R. de Olgis had at that time in pawn, from Turchill de Warwick; and is said to contain two hides, having a Mill of xxxii d. yearly value, and Woods extending to two furlongs in length, and as much in breadth, the whole being valued at xls. But in 12 H. 2. certain it is that Hugo fil. Ricardi (of whom in Watson I have spoke) was posselt of it, as appears by that Certificate which William Earl of Warwick then made, whose Father or Grandfather had enfeofed the said Hugh thereof, with other lands of a great extent, in King Henry the first's time, it being then written Derteulla. By this Hugh, was it doubtlesse granted to Thomas fil. Thurstani; for it is manifest that Robert de la Launde, son to the same Thomas, gave to Richard Fitz Raphe, in marriage with Amicia his daughter, the Mill here, it being then written Dorchethull.

From which Robert it descended to James (as the Pedegree in Langdon sheweth) who was certified to hold it of the Earl of Warwick in 20 H. 3. But it appears that Albrecht Marmion (of whom I have made mention in Arrow) granted the service of the same James de la Launde, for this place, unto William de Camvile, her son; whereby it shuld seem, that the immediate grant, whch the Ancestour to the said James had of this place, was not from the Earl of Warwick, but from one of the Marmions, who obtained it from some of those Earls. This James, in 31 H. 3. past unto Robert de Grendon and his heirs, all the interest he had here, by the name of the Mannour of Dorchethull, then amounting to half a Knight's Fee: Which Robert, in 40 H. 3. granted the same, unto one Robert de Wycheford and his heirs, reserving the Rent of a pair of gilt Spurs, to be yearly paid to himself and his heirs, at Easter, and performing the service of half a Knight's Fee; which service the said Robert de Wycheford, at the request of the above specified Robert de Grendon, then granted unto Walter de Mancestre and Erneburga his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies lawfully begotten; but for want of such issue. to return to the said Robert de Wycheford and his heirs. So that after this, the possession thereof continued to the heirs of the said Walter de Mancestre, together with Mancestre, as by severall authorities appeareth, at length, being divided by the coheirs, was broken into such small parts, as is evident by what came to the Fildings, which was Prilleys; and to Lewes, which was Rowley's and Arblasters, that it is not worth while to trace the succession thereof any farther.

Nun-Eaton.

FOLLOWING Tame further, I observe no place of note, bordering on it, before I come to Tamelworth, where Anker joyns therewith: I must now therefore ascend to the entrance of Anker into this Hundred, which is in Nun-Eaton Parish.

This place hath its name from the Rivulet nigh which it stands, Ca in our old English signifying Water. Before the Norman invasion one Harding posselt it; but after the Conquest, it was disposed of to Earl Alberic (Progenitor of the Veres Earls of Orford) which Earl deceased before the generall Survey made by that King; so that afterwards, it with the rest, being seised into the King's hands, was committed to the custodie of Geffrey de Wirce (of whom in Monks-Hitby I have spoken): Howbeit, the number of hides that it contained, are omitted in the Record; but 'tis said thereby, that there were xxxii. carucates of land, one Mill of xxxii d. xxv. acres of Meadow, and Woods of two miles in length, and a mile and half in breadth; the whole being valued at Cs. By the said generall Survey I find also, that R. de Olgis held three hides of land in this place, with Woods of a mile in length and as much much in breadth, which were the inheritance of Alwine in Edward the Confessor's days, and valued by the before specified Survey, at iv li.

But the direct time when this Lordship was given to Robert Earl of Mellent and Leicester, is hard, I think, to be found; yet certain^u it is that he had it before the death of King Henry the first: which Robert had issue Robert, surnamed Bossu, Earl of Leicester, who in King Stephen's time, founded a^w goodly Monasterie here, for Nuns, of the Order of choise at Font Ebzand in Normandie (id est Benedictines) wherein Amice his Countess became one, and was buried. Which Monasterie he plentifully endowed with lands, whereof this whole Lordship^x of Caton was part, excepting what the Canons of Leicester then had in Stockingford, and that which the Nuns of Casa Dei (in France) held in Atleberge, and in this town. As also certain lands in Kenetberie (in Com. Berks.) to the then value of xxv li. per annum. And with all his Lands, Rents, and Fishing in Welle, excepting the Tithe of the Eccles, which the said Robert Earl of Mellent, his Father, had formerly given to the said Canons of Leicester. Confirming^y the grants^z of what others, at that time had made thereto; viz. of two Carucates of land in Waltham (Com. Leic.) with pasturage there, for CCC. Sheep, by Isabell his daughter, and Simon Earl of Northampton, her son: Of two yard land and a half lying in Swinford (Com. Leic.) by Ric. Mallore; and in Leicester ii s. Rent out of a House, which one Guy Breadcas then held of the said Richard; as also of all the lands, lying within this Lordship, whereof the said Richard was possessor: And of what Robert Fitz Jocelin had bestowed thereon; scil. all his lands lying here in Caton, betwixt the Water and the Wood; and beyond the Water, two yard land, and vi s. Rent, which William de Neumarch held of Jocelin his Father, with all his Woods.

Hereunto did King Hen. 2. adde his Confirmation^a; and besides that, of his own gift, conferred^b upon these Nuns, the Church of Chanton in Hantshire; ratifying^c the grants of sundry other persons, which I shall briefly here^e enumerate; viz. the Mill of Ingepenne in Berkshire, with the Meadows and Crofts thereto belonging, given by Gervase Paganell. The Village of great Hoden-hull, by Richard de Ibstoke; the Church of Merton by Robert de Crafr, both in this Countie. Certain lands here in Caton, by Geffrey de Turvill. Twentie shillings yearly Rent issuing out of the Mill at Haringworth in Northamptonshire, by Ada mother to the King of Scotland. Half the town of Burton (now called Burton-Hastings in this County, with the advowson^{*} of the Church, and Chapell of Stretton (id est Stretton-Baskerville) thereto belonging, by Geffrey l'Abbe, and Emme his wife whose inheritance it was. The Church of Maple-Deberham (in Hantshire) by William Earl of Gloucester, and Hawise, the Countess, his wife: as also Pustfort Mill, and divers lands, lying within the Lordship of Wimpze, by the said Hawise. One yard land at Calcote, by Robert Archer, and Margaret his wife: and besides all this, gave them sundry ample Liberties and Priviledges, which for brevities sake I forbear to recite: Whereunto Pope Boniface the eight added the Appropriation^d of the Churches of Burton in Rutland, and Clepybooke in Leicestershire, with a speciall Indulgence^e from payment of Tithes for any of their lands, which they should till, or stock with Cattell, at their own charge.

Having now therefore so plentiful an endowment, they obtained a grant^f of a weekly Perccate here upon the Tuesday in 10 H. 3. to endure till the King should be of age: but this Perccate in 17 H. 3. was altered^g to the Saturday: After which, within a short space, they rebuilt their Church; towards the Fabrick whereof the King gave^h them ten Oaks out of Kenilworth Woods, andⁱ av. more within a year following, out of Cank-Forest: And in 23. of his reign, granted unto them a Charter^k for an yearly Faire here, for four days, beginning on the day of the Invention of the Holy Cross, (scil. 3. Maii.) Other grants of most note, from severall persons in succeeding times, for which I have seen any authorities, were these; viz. ^l two yard land lying in Hodenhull, and Cranescote (now called Atcote) by Nicholas de Muton. In Wiltbott^m one Messuage, and Cxx. acres of land, by Gilb. de Houby. The advowson of the Church of Clepybooke (in com. Leic.) byⁿ John the son of Ernald de Boys. The third part of the Mannour of Skendelby by^o Julian de Gaunt, for maintenance of a Priest to celebrate divine Service in the Church of this Monasterie, for the health of her soul, and the souls of her Ancestors. One Messuage here, in Pun-Caton, by^p Robert de Herle: Four Messuages also, lying here and in Rothby (Com. Leic.) by^q John Huwer, and William Wytherley Priest. The appropriate Rectorie of this Parish-Church at Pun-Caton, by^r the Prior and Covent of Shene.

All which, with the rest, whereof I have not found the grants, or which being not very considerable, for brevities sake are omitted, were (as a preparative to that fatal dissolution soon after following) by the Survey^s made in 26 H. 8. valued at CCXC li. xv s. ob. Out of which (inter alia) were deducted^t, for the Fees of Henry Marquess Dorset, then high Steward of this Monasterie, and John Dabridgcourt the Under-Steward vi li. xiii s. iv d. per annum. Of William Fynderne Receiver generall ii li. xiii s. iv d. and of William Font Auditor i li. xiii s. iv d. So that, being one of the greater Monasteries, it was not dissolved till 31 H. 8. But then did the Prioreffe and her Covent, by their publique Instrument^u under Seale, dated 12 Sept. surrender it to the King, whose names as they are subscribed thereto, with the severall Pensions by Patent allowed them for life, I have here added.

But in the Crown it continued not long; for it appears, that King Henry, by his Letters Patent dated 29. May 32. of his reign (which was abought eight months after the surrender) gave it, with all the lands in this Countie, thereto belonging, unto Marmaduke Constable junior, of London Knight, then his servant (son of Sir Robert Constable of Flambozough in Norfolk) which Sir Marmaduke sold part thereof, but died seized of the site, as also of the Manour, and greatest proportion of the lands to given him, 28. Apr. 2 Eliz. leaving Robert his son and heir xxx. years of age: unto whom the said Queen in the sixt of her reign, for the summe of CCCCxxv li. xiii s. granted the reversion of the premises, scil. to him and his heirs generall: Of which Sir Robert, they were soon after purchased by Sir Ambrorse Cave Knight, who died seized thereof 2. Apr. 10 Eliz. leaving Margaret the wife of Henry Knolls Esquire, his daughter and heir; by which means it is come to the Lord Paget, and Sir Henry Willoughby, in like sort as Kingsburte is (whereof I have already spoken) and divided accordingly.

In farther reference to this town, the most notable passages, which have come to my observation, are these; viz. That after the Mercate and Faire, was so obtained by the Nuns, in 7 E. 2. as hath been said, they procured a speciall Patent to take Toll of all vendible commodities, coming thither by the space of five years, towards the charge of paying it: and next: that in 9 E. 3. the Townsmen had the like Patent to take Toll for four years, of all such commodities, for repairing the Bridge there.

The Church (dedicated to S. Nicholas) was given to the Monasterie of Lira in Normandie, by Robert surnamed Bossu, Earl of Leicester, in Hen. 1. time; whose Charter thereof (inter alia) King H. 2. confirmed. In anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was valued at xxxii marks: but after the dissolution of the Priories-Alien (whereof in Wolston and Wootton I have spoke) it was settled upon the Carthusian-Monks at Shene in Surrey, by King H. 5. in 3. of his reign, when he founded that Religious House; of whom the Nuns here at Eaton obtained it in 38 H. 6. In 26 H. 8. the Vicaridge was valued at xix li. xiv s. vi d. over and above ix s. vi d. per annum allowed for Procurations and Synodals, and C. s. per annum Stipend to the Curate serving in the Chapell at Astilbozough.

IN this Parish-Church did one John Leek found a Chantry in 23 H. 7. of one Priest, to celebrate Divine service, for the good estate of him the said John, during his life in this world, and after his death for the health of his Soule; as also for the health of the Soules of his Parents, Benefactors, and all the faithfull deceased: but of this there is no remembrance in the Survey, of 37 H. 8. so that when it was dissolved, I know not.

THIS was founded in 6 E. 6. by the Inhabitants of this town, unto whom the King gave^k for that purpose, three Closes of ground, lying within the Liberties of Coventre, which sometime belonged to the Trinitie-Gild, there, and were then valued at xli. xv s. viii d. to be held of the Man-nour of East-Greenwich in Socage.

Horeston-Grange.

THIS was originally part of the Lordship of Sun-Eaton, but thereof I have not seen any particular mention till 19 E. 1. where it is called the Grange of Horeston, belonging then to the Nunns, and certified to contain six Carucates of land, which by the Survey^m in 26 H. 8. were valued at xv li. ix s. viii d. and pastⁿ with the Monasterie unto Sir Marmaduke Constable Knight, in 32 H. 8. Which Sir Marmaduke sold^o the Grange it self, with certain lands thereto belonging, unto one Jasper Fisher Esquire, who died^p seized thereof in 21 Eliz. leaving Katherine Norwood widow, and Anne the wife of Richard Wolriche, his coheirs and heirs: But the grounds called Hore-ston-fields, together with Horeston-Wood, were aliened^q in 4 Eliz. by Robert Constable, son and heir to Sir Marmaduke, unto Stephen Hales Esquire.

Attilborough.

THIS being part of the Lordship of Sun-Eaton, was at length totally posselt by the Nunns, as may seem by the Survey^r taken in 26 Hen. 8.
 But had a Chapell for the benefite of the Inhabitants; whereunto, for maintenance of a Priest
 there serving, was anciently the summe of C s.
 allowed^r, but with the dissolved Monasterie it passed^r out of the Crown in 32 H. 8. to Sir Mar-maduke Constable: Since which they have not been severed.

Stockingford.

THIS was originally a member of Caton, and involved therewith in the Conqueror's Survey; but afterwards by the Earl of Leicester (scil. Robert Bossu) granted in exchange to William de Newmarch, for Witlewike in Leicestershire; which William gave it to the Canons of Leicester. About that time also had those Canons the Chapell here, by the grant of Geffrey de Turvill, and certain lands bordering on Hardeshull, which Geffrey the Heremite bestowed on them. Within the precincts of this place, the Nuns of Caton had likewise a Grange, containing three Carucates of land, as is certified by the valuation thereof in 19 E. 1. At which time all that the Canons of Leicester had here, was rated but at one Carucate; so that what the said Nuns were then posselt of, was, it seems, formerly granted to them by those Canons.

But afterwards it came into Lay hands, though how I find not; for it appears by a Fine² levied in 10 E. 3. betwixt Roger Jabet Planuff, and William Jabet and Maud his wife, Deforc. that it was entailed upon William Jabet son of the said William, after his Father's decease, and upon the heirs of the said William the younger, by Elene his wife; but for default of such issue, on the right heirs of the before specified Maud: From which time till 14 H. 4. I have seen no more of it; but then did the reversion of it belong² unto Hugh Lilburne, John the son of Thomas Boteler of Crothale, holding it for the life of the same Hugh: which reversion in 1 H. 5. was granted^b by Will. Boteler and William Babington to the Canons of Croburie in this Countie, the Canons of Leicester, (or whom it was held) giving Licence^c for the same, reserving to themselves Fealtie, and security for Lxxii s. xv d. to be payd to them in the name of a Relief; which summe by the Survey^d of 26 H. 8. appears to have been an yearly Rent: So that upon the dissolution of the Priorie at Croburie, it was therewith granted^e unto Charles Branaon Duke of Suffolk in 30 H. 8. Which Duke (inter alia) pass it^f unto Sir Edward Wootton Knight, John Danet, and Anthony Cooke Esquires; betwixt whom, being as it seems divided, Marie Danet in 35 H. 8. conveyed^g a third part thereof, unto George Medley, to certain uses. Of the other two parts, Sir Anthony dying^h seized in 18 Eliz. left Richard his son and heir of full age. But that which belonged to Pun-Caton, was with that Lordship, granted out of the Crown to Sir Marmaduke Constable Knight, and hath been posselt by the owners thereof, ever since.

Chilvercoton.

IN the Conqueror's Surveyⁱ this is written Celverdestoche, which shews that it was at first so called from him that posselt it in the Saxons time; whom I suppose to have been one Ceolfredus, that being a name then in use. It is there rated at viii hides, the Woods containing a mile and a half in length, and a mile in breadth, the whole being valued at Ls. and held by Haroldus fil. Raanli; which Kaphe was Earl of Hereford, and owner thereof in Eward the Confessor's days. In the line of this Haroldus (Lords also of Sudley in com. Glouc. whence they assumed that surname) it continued for divers generations, and at length by an heir female devolved to the Butlers, as by the Descent in Wille is manifested. But there is little to be said of this place in particular, other than that Bartholmew de Sudley, in 51 H. 3. ha Free Warren^k (inter alia) granted to him in all his demesne lands here, it having attended the succession of Wille, ever since, as a member of that Mannour.

Within the precinct of this Parish had the Knights Templars certain lands given to them; which the Record^l of 31 Hen. 2. lays, were de feodo Radulfi de Suthlega, being (probably) of his or his Father's gift, and afterwards reputed for a Mannour; for by that name, had those Templars Free-warren granted^m to them and their incesors therein, in 32 H. 3. Which Mannour coming to the Crown in 30 Hen. 8. with all other the possessions belonging to the Religious Houses, was in 4 Eliz. soldⁿ unto John Fisker, and Thomas Dabridgecourt. Which Thomas Dabridgecourt having obtained a Release from Fisker of all his right therein, by his last Will and Testament in 44 Eliz. gave it to Christian one of his daughter, who became the wife of William Belcher of Gillsborough in com. Northampt. From whom it was purchased^o by Walter Giffard of Chillington in com. Staff. Esquire, and since that of him or his son, by Richara Chamberlain Esquire, Register of the Court of Wards.

The Church was given^p to the Canons of Croburie, together with two yard land, by Raphe de Sudeley, Founder of that Monastere; and in anno 1291. (19 Eam. 1.) valued^q at viii marks, being then appropriated to that Religious House; and the Vicaridge but at half a mark. But in 26 Hen. 8. the said Vicaridge was estimated^r at vii li. iv s.

Griffe.

OF this place there is no particular mention in the Conq^{rs}. Survey, it being then involved with Chilverscote, and posselt by Harold, the son of Raphe Earl of Hereford; whose posteritie took the surname of Sudley, yet sometimes made their residence here. Whilst the male line of which Family lasted, it continued theirs; but afterwards came to Boteler, Norbury, and Bray, successively, as the Descent on the next page inserted will shew.

This Raph Earl of Hereford, was son^e to Wal-ter de Maunt, by Goda sifter to K. Edw. the Confessor; but of him there is little observeable, other than his pusillanimitie, whereby he suffered^e the Citie and Countie of Hereford to become a prey to the VVelch, in the year 1055. (13 Edw. Conf.) It seems that he was disposselt of his Earldome, in the first year of K. Will. the Conq^{rs}. reign; for Will. fitz Osberne then had it conferredⁿ upon him; but found favour to enjoy some of his inheritance, which descended to Harold, his son^w; whereof this Lordship was part. To this Harold succeeded John, surnamed de Sutei (from his residence at Sudley in com. Glouc.) Of whom I have seen no more mention, than that he was a witness^e to the Charter of Margaret Countess of Warwick (widow to Earl Henry) made in K. Stephen's time to the Canons of Kenilworth. And to John, succeeded Raphe, who gave^e divers lands lying in Herdwike (juxta Derfet) to the Knights Templars, as also founded^e the Priorie of Erdburte, adjoining to this Lordship, and left issue, Orvel,^a and Raphe^b; which Raphe, by his brother's death, became heir to the estate, and residing here at Griffe, had a pecnliar Chapell in his Man-nour-house, wherein he had a speciall License from^e the Canons of Erdburte, to have divine service celebrated, at such time onely, as himself or his heirs, their wives, or mothers, should be personally there present, excepting Christmass-days, Easter-day, Whitsunday, All Saints-day, Candlemass-day, and the Feast-day of the Church its Dedication, on which there should be no solemnitie kept therein, unless by speciall License obtained; and that in case of their disabilitie to come unto the Mother-Church, by reason of sickness or other good cause: And provided that all Oblations made in the said Chapell, should be delivered to the Vicar of Chilberdescote, for the time being, so that no indempnitie thereby, nor in any thing else might accrue to the said Mother-Church of Chil-berdescote by means of the said Chapell.

VVhich Raphe had issue Raphe, concerning whom I have no more to say, than of his marriage and death, and therein, for brevities sake, do refer my self to the Pedegree. To this last Raphe, succeeded^e Sir Barth de Sudley Kt. who in 54 H. 3. being constituted^a Shiriff of Hereford-shire and Governour of Hereford-Castle, and in 7 E. 1. a Justice^e of Assize in this Countie, gave^e the Monks of Stoneley leave to inclose two tofts in Radway; and by Joan his wife, daughter^e to Will. de Beauchamp of Elmeley (sister to William, the first Earl of Warwick of that name) left issueⁿ Sir John de Suthley Kt. aged about xxiii. years at his Father's death; which Joane was interredⁱ in the Conventuall Church at Erdburte before specified; for the health of whose soul, did Walt. de Langton Bishop of Cob. and Lich. in 13 E. 2. grant a speciall Indulgence^k, releasing XL. days of their enjoyned Penance, to all such as should, with a devout mind, say a Pater noster, and an Ave, for the health of her soul, and the souls of all the faithfull deceased.

VVhich Sir John in 13 E. 1. claimed^a a Court Leet here, with Assize of Bread and Beer, Gallows, Infangthef, Tumbrell, Weyf, and Free-warren; as also to be quit of Murther, and suit to the Countie and Hundred Courts; exhibiting K. H. 3. Charter for the Free-warren, and pleading Prescription for the rest: All which were allowed^m, excepting his immunitie for Murther, for-asmuch as he ought to partake with the Hundred therein. And in 15 E. 1. had the King's speciall Licenseⁿ to travail beyond Sea. In 26 of that King's reign, he was, with other great men summoned^o to be at Harleol, on Whitson-Eve, well fitted with Horse and Armes to go into Scotland; and was summoned^p to Parliament, amongst the Barons, from 28 E. 1. till 13 E. 2. inclusive, having been a liberall Benefactor to the Canons of Erdbury, by granting^a them certain lands, and on for France, he was in 20 H. 6. created Baron of Sudley, with an Annuity of CC. marks per an. to himself and his heirs, for the better support of that dignitie; and became soon after Lord Treasurer of England: But in that Office he continued not long; for in 28 H. 6. he was retained by Indenture, to serve the King for five years, as Governour of the Cittadell at Calais with . . . men at Armes on Horseback, xxxv men at Armes on foot, and xx Archers, all able men of war, taking for himself ii s. per diem, for his men at Arms on foot viii d. and for his Archers vi d. besides the speciall Fee of C. s. the quarter for himself: And immediately thereupon, being made the King's Lieutenant of that Town, covenanted^b for the defence and safeguard thereof, and the Marches adjoining, to keep C. men at Arms, over and above the number before specified, and DCCCC. Archers, for a quarter of a year, taking for his men at Arms xii d. a man, and his Archers vi d. besides the reward accustomed.

And was in so great esteem with the Canons of Erdburie, for his munifcence to them, in sundry wife; but specially in procuring^c for them the Appropriation of the Church at Leyth in Lancashire (dated 15 Jan. 28 H. 6.) that, in consideration thereof, they did by their publick Instrument^d, ordeign, that two of their Covent, should every day celebrate divine service in that Monasterie, for the health of his soul, appointing particular Masses for each day of the week, binding themselves and their successors to observe his Anniversarie, after his decesse, with Placebo, Dirige, and Masse of Requiem; and to spend vi s. viii d. yearly on the day of his said Anniversarie in their Covent, by way of Pittance, over and above their usuall allowance. After which, viz. in 30 H. 6. he had a speciall Pardon^e granted to him, for all offences, whereby any advantage might be taken against him, in respect of his great and generall employments: in which pardon his particular services to King H. 5. as well as to the said K. H. 6. in France, and in the Dutchie of Normandie, even from his very youth, are gratefully acknowledg'd: For he had been Lord Treasurer, and Chamberlain to K. H. 6. and Standard-bearer and chief Butler of England, as also Knight of the Garter, and Steward of his Household.

But after this, I find no more of him till his death, which hapned 2 Maii 13 E. 4. where it appears^f, that John Norburie and Will. Belknap were his cocons and heirs (for Sir Thomas Boteler, his son, died^h before him without issue) So that this Mannour came at length (inter alia) by Partitionⁱ made 15 Maii 11 H. 7. to Sir John Norburie; and so by Jane his grandchild and heir to Sir Edmund Bray; which Jane died^k seized thereof 24 Aug. in the last year of Q. Maries reign, leaving severall daughters and heirs (as the Descend before inserted sheweth) whereof Frances married to Thomas Lifeild; who, by the name of Thomas Lifeild of Stoke-Dabernon in com. Sur. Esq. together with the said Frances his wife, did by his Deed^l of bargain and sale, Dated 7 Maii 3 Eliz. in consideration of 1050 l. sell and convey it, unto John Giffard of Chillington in com. Staff. Esq. whose grandchild (sc. Peter son of Walter Giffard) in our memorie, passed the Mannour, consisting of a Royaltie and certain chief Rents, to Sir John Newdigate of Erdburie Kt. and the Demesns, to certain persons in trust, for the use of Thomas Lord Coventre, late Lord Keeper of the great Seal of England: So that at this day, the said Mannour is now enjoyed by Ric. Newdigate Sergeant at Law, son to the same Sir John; and the demesns by the Lord Coventre, son and heir to the said Lord Keeper.

The Priorie of Erdburie.

W Ithin the precincts of Chilberescoton Parish, stood the Monasterie of Erdburie, built in K. Henry 2. time, by Raphe de Sudley, for Canons Regular of St. Augustine; the Foundation Charter whereof, I never saw: but do conceive, that the substance wherewith he at first endowed it, was as followeth; viz. the Church of Chelberescote, with two yard land belonging thereto; as also six yard land, and a Wood there, reputed for half a hide, ten Acres of land lying in Broad-meadow, and a place called the Breche at Whitmoze, with certain messuages, and half a VWood called the Hudells: And besides this, with some lands and a meadow at Sulingsen, together with the Church of Dercet, and CC. acres of land, lying in one of Dercet fields: As also ten Acres of Meadow, half a yard land there, then held by one Fulk, and a Messuage for barning: And at Radway with one hide of land, as by his grantⁿ appeareth. Giving thereby likewise to these his Canons, sufficient timber for their buildings, and fuel for fire, to be taken upon all occasions throughout his demesns Woods; and libertie for their Hogs therein, without any thing to be rendred for paunage. All which he confirmed to them for the health of his soul, and for the soul of Emme his wife, Orwell his son and heir, and other his Children, his Father's soul also, and all his Ancestors.

Besides this, they hadⁿ anciently the Church of Welfton subius Welfhele, given to them, but by whom I have not seen: yet so it hapned, that for want of good government, they at length, totally in a manner, deserted their Rule; insomuch as Alex. de Savensby, Bishop of this Diocess, shortly after the beginning of H. 3. reign, wrote an earnest Letter^o to the Abbot of Derley (in Derbyshire) desiring that he would send some of his Covent thither, for a time, for the better instructing, and guiding them therein. The substance of what they had from other Benefactors, was as followeth; One yard land in Shirefild, granted^p by Robert de Chartres, and confirmed by Raphe his son, who added^q ten acres more thereto, of his own gift. In Dercet a certain meadow, called Radwey-brok, with the amerciements of all their Tenants, as also Common of pasture for eight Oxen, within that Lordship, given^r by John de Sudley, son and heir to Sir Bartholmew about the 31th of E. 1. Which John, in 11 E. 2. added^s two Messuages, one toft, eight acres of land, seven acres of meadow, and vii s. viii d. yearly Rent, lying within the said Lordship of Dercet and Chelberescote.

After which, viz. in 15 E. 3. they obtained^t a Messuage and xxxvi. acres of land in Wolbe, of Sir Thomas de Astley Kt. towards the support of one Canon, to celebrate divine Service daily in this Priorie, for the good estate of him the said Sir Thomas, and Eliz. his wife, Alice de Wolvey, Y y y y 2 and

Rent, lying in Pin Caton, Aitilborough, Wylken Solw, Cobentre, Hyde, and Chilverscote; as also the reversion^w of the Mannour of Stockingford, from the Canons of Leicester, after the death of Hugh de Lilburne. And being then grown wealthy by so fair an enlargement of their possessions, in 23 H. 6. they procured License^x from Raphe Boteler then Lord Sudley (of whose patronage the said Priorie was) to buy other lands of C. marks per an. value: whereupon, the year next ensuing, they acquired^y the Advouion of the Rectorie of Welflegh in Lancashire, from Will. Lord Lovell: so that, by the Survey^z taken in 26 H. 8. the whole yearly revenue then belonging to this Religious House, was esteemed at Cxxvi l. viii s. viii d. Out of which, xvi s. viii d. being deducted^a for keeping the Anniversarie of the Lord Sudley, the Founder, xl s. for the Obit and Anniversarie of the Lord Lovell; xvi s. viii d. for the Fee of John Dabridgecourt High Steward of their lands; Liii s. iiii d. to Will. Wigston Receiver generall; and other disbursements, which in the totall, with these now mentioned, came to xxviii l. ii s. v d. per an. the cleer remainder^b amounted to XCiii l. vi s. i d. by reason whereof, it was exposed to dissolution with the other small Houses in 27 H. 8. William Clement being then^c Prior, who had an Annuitie^d of xx marks per an. by Patent allowed him during life. But in the Crown it continued not long; for in 30 H. 8. did Charles Brandon Duke of Suff. obtain^e it, together with a multitude more of Monasterie lands, by which means the site thereof, with some part of the demesne lands thereto belonging, came in partition^f to Margaret, wife of John Kersey, one of the coheirs to the said D. of Suff. Which John sold^g the same to Sir Edm. Anderson Kt. chief Justice of the Common Pleas in Q. Eliz. time; who totally demolishing the old fabrick of the House, and Church, built out of their ruins a very fair structure, in a quadrangular form; and having so done, in 28 Eliz. past^h it away unto John Newdigate of Wentfeld in Com. Midd. Esq. great grandchild to John Newdigate Sergeant at Law, in K. H. 8. time (descended by a younger branch, from the ancient Family of Newdigate, of Newdigate in Surrey) in exchange for his said Mannour of Wentfeld. Which John, by Martha daughter and coheir to Anthony Cave Esq. had issue Sir John Newdigate Kt. who by Anne, one of the daughters to Sir Edw. Fitton of Gosworth in Cheshire, left issue two sons, viz. John and Richard; which Richard (now Sergeant at Law) as heir to his Brother, is the present owner hereof.

Manceter.

Descending lower on this side the River Anker, I come next to Manceter, heretofore a Roman station, as the forme of that entrenchment, through which the great Way called Watling Street passeth, doth manifest, where divers coynes of silver and brasse have been, by digging and plowing, frequently brought to light: but now it is no more than an ordinary Countrey-Village, containing Hartshill, Odburte, and Atherston, within its parish. That the name originally proceeded from the condition of the place, which was fortified, the later syllable doth sufficiently manifest, Cestre (but antiently Cæstre) importing the same in our old English, as Castrum doth: but perhaps the first syllable Man, may be Brittain, in which language it signifieth exiguum or parvum, as 'tis like this Fortification was.

In the Conq^u. Survey, there is no mention at all thereof, it being involved with Atherston: but as the rest of those lands, whereof the Countess Godiva (of whom in Cobentre I have spoke) was posselt in Edm. the Conf^u. days, came to the first Hugh Earl of Chester, so doubtless did this: by whom, or his Kinsman and successor, Ranulph, there is no question, but that Walt. de Hastings (of whom I have made mention in Willongley) was enfeoffed; and that from him, Walkeline, who assumed it for his surname, in respect of his residence here, originally had it: For though we have little light to discover the passages of these elder times, the grant of lands being then not frequently by Charter (as I have elsewhere observed) yet from what is manifested by divers¹ Records, in reference to the tenure, no less than what I have sayd, may clearly be inferred. The male descendants of which WValkeline till E. 3. time, continued Lords thereof, but then by heirs Female other Families enjoy'd it, as I shall forthwith shew.

But of this WValkeline de Mancetre, I have seen no more, than that he was witness^k to a Charter, by which Rob. Marmion gave to the Nuns of Polesworth, the Church of Quinton in com. Glouc. about the beginning of K. H. 2. time; and that he confirmed^l Odbury to the said Nuns of Polesworth, which Walter de Hastings originally gave to them. To which Nuns was Hugh de Mancetre (grandchild to the said WValkeline) also a Benefactor, by granting^m unto them some speciall favours concerning their Mill at Odburte. To whom succeeded Hugh, his son andⁿ heir, who in 29. 30. 31. and 32 H. 3. was one^o of the Justices for the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick; and in 36 H. 3. obtained a speciall Charter^p of free Warren in all his demesne lands here, for which he gave^q xi. marks: At which time he was^r one of the Coroners for this Countie; and the next year after, being made^s Eschac-said Sir Thomas sold ⁱ his third part, to one Robert Greene of Atherston; of which Robert it was purchased ^k by Thomas Ludford of Anley Gent. whose posteritie enjoy it (as I think) at this day.

To Geffrey Brokushole, son of Geffrey, who wedded the second, succeeded ^l Joane the wife of Thomas Aspal, and Margerie the wife of John Sumpter, as daughters and heirs, whose third part came ere long, to VVill. Harper, Nich. Rouley (both of this place) and Thomas Arblaster of Longdon in Com. Staff. Esq. for in 10 H. 6. they were joyntly ^m posselt of it: but made partition thereof as it seems; for Thomas Harper (the last of that name, that had to do here) sold ⁿ his share to John Glover of Warterley, in whose line it still continues, the Mannour house being part of it. But Rouley's and Arblaster's came ^o to Thomas Lewes Gent. in Edm. 6. time, of whose great-grandchild George, did VVill. Cumberland of Cum-berford in Com. Staff. Esq. of late time purchase it. And Prilley's, by Anne the daughter ^p and heir of Edm. Prilley in H. 6. time, to ... VVaver, in marriage; whose grandion Ric. VVaver in 7 H. 7. sold ^q it to Ric. Cave of Stanford in Com. Northampt. Which Richard, by his Deed ^r bearing date 20 Julii 9 H. 8. past it with certain lands in Dozwell, Kingsburle, and Pun-Caton in this Countie, as also in Swinsford and Forton in Com. Leic. unto VVill. Filding of Belwinham Esq. in exchange for divers lands in Stormyswozth in the said Countie of Leic.

Of whose great grandchild, viz. Basill Filding Esq. did Alice Lady Dudley, wife to Sir Robert Dudley Kt. about the twentieth year of K. James his reign, purchase ^s it; causing a conveyance to be made thereof to the said King, and to be enrolled in the Chancerie; to the intent ^t that his Majestie should regrant the same to the then Incumbents, of Mancester, Leke-Wootton, Althow, Kenil-wozth, Ponkskirby, and Stonley, for the augmentation of those small Vicaridges xx l. per an. a piece: which was accordingly done, with proviso that the Patentees and their successors, should preach one Sermon every Sunday throughout the year, and upon every Whitunday, a speciall Sermon, in commemoration of the said Ladie Dudley, and Alexia her daughter, then deceased; who by her last Will and Testament, bequeathed most of her estate unto her said Mother, to be employed to such uses as she should think fit. To each of which Churches, this pious Ladie also gave a fair proportion of plate to be used at the Communion.

The Church, was in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) valued ^u at xxii. marks, the advouson whereof in 23 H. 6. did the Monks of Merevale purchase ^v from the then Lords of this Mannour (sc. Thomas Arblaster the elder and Alice his wife, Anne the widow of Thomas Porter, Rob. Armeburgh Esq. Reginald Armeburgh, Clem. Draper, Joan the Widow of VVill. Harper, and Raphe Holt and Elene his wife :) whereupon the Appropriation ^w of it soon ensued, by VVill. Booth then Bishop of Cob. and Lich. the yearly Pension of xiii s. iii d. to him the said Bishop and his successors, and iii s. iii d. to the Archdeacon of Cobentre being reserved: As also a Vicaridge endowed ^x; which Vicaridge in 26 H. 8. was valued ^y at x l. xiii s. iii d. per an.

To which Robert succeeded Will. de Hardredeshull his son and heir, who in 9 H. 3. gave^r xx. marks to the King for his Releif, and^s 447 l. 7 s. 5 d. being a debt due by him to the Jews. In the same year he was in^t Commission for levying and collecting a xvth. in this Countie and Leicestershire, so likewise^u the next year following; And for^w taking Assizes of Novel disseisin in this Shire. In 23 H. 3. he gave^x x. Marks Fine, for the custodie of the lands, which were belonging to Ric. de Hardredeshull, his Uncle; and in 43. of the said King's reign, did^y his Homage for all those lands in Lincolnshire, which Grace de Lisle died seized of, and were of his inheritance: But in 46 H. 3. he departed^z this life, leaving Robert his son and heir, who gave^a Lx s. to the King as a Releif for the lands which his Father died seized of, that were held of the said K. in Capite, and doing his Homage had liverie^b of them. Which Robert, siding with the Earl of Leicester, and other the rebellious Barons in 49 H. 3. and being slain, fighting in their part in the battail of Esvelham, his lands were seized, and this Mannour by name, given^c to Willelmo de Bassingburne: yet to Margaret his widow, the King allowed^d certain of her said husband's forfeited possessions, lying in Pulteneth and Parton, for the maintenance of herself and her Children: but what Children these were, doth not appear to me, nor what became of him; for the inheritance of this Lordship (considering that the Dictum de Kenilworth exempted it from forfeiture) came^e to Sir John de Hardreshull Kt. brother to the said Robert, who first bore for his Armes a border with Martlets, but afterwards^f Arg. a Cheveron sable betwixt ten Martlets gules, and died^g in 4 E. 1. leaving William his son and heir, five years of age, who in 20 E. 1. doing his Homage, had liverie^h of his lands.

This Will. in 21 E. 1. obtained a Charter^k of Free-warren in all his demesne lands here, as also at Saleby, Cukewold, and Kelesey in Com. Linc. and Pultenepe in Leicestershire, and bore^l for his Armes a Cross engrailed, with a Martlet in the dexter quarter. In 29 E. 1. he had Summons^m amongst divers other eminent persons, to attend the King at Warwick upon Tweede, on the Feast day of S. John Bapt. Nativitas, to march with him into Scotland, and departedⁿ this life in 32 E. 1. leaving John his son and heir ten years of age, whose marriage (for he was in Warde) was granted^o unto Nich. Malemeyns, a servant to the King. Which John became of full age in 6 E. 2. and doing his homage had liverie^p of his lands; immediately whereupon he attended the King, in that unfortunate Scotch expedition, the same year, and was taken Prisoner^q in the battail of Bannocksburne. After which, sc. in 10 E. 2. I find, that having had some contestation with the Abbess of Polesworth, touching an hereditarie right, to present two Nuns into that Religious House, to be there admitted by the said Abbot and Covent; upon better consideration of his title, he quitted^r any farther claim thereto, being at that time a Kt. And that in 15 E. 2. he was, with Nich. de Grey, joy-^sned in the Governourship of Donington and Spelburne Castles in Leicestershire; as also the next ensuing year, one^t of the Commissioners for arraying of men in this Countie, for the Scotch expedition: In 17 E. 2. employed^u into Cal-cogn on the King's service; and in 20 E. 2. made Governour^w, both of St. Briavell Castle, and the Forest of Dene in Gloucestershire.

And moreover, that in 1 E. 3. he obtained a speciall License^x from Rog. Northburgh then Bishop of this Dioces, for a Priest to celebrate divine service within this his Mannour house at Hardreshull; that in 3 E. 3. he was constituted a^y Commissioner for conservation of the peace in this Countie, and bore^z for his Armes Argent a Cheveron sable betwixt ten Martlets gules, as his grand-

Oldburie.

OF this, is there not any particular mention in the Conquerour's Survey (it being then Lapis ipse extat inter cuncta Elie Ashmole Arm. Norwichephili Anglici.

On the South side of this Fort, had the Nuns of Wolestwoth very antiently a Cell, as appeareth by part of a Chapell, yet standing, which was dedicated to St. Laurence: and if we may credit that old historicall MS. voucht in my discourse of that Monasterie, it must not be denyed but that it was theirs before the Norman Conquest. 'Tis true, that in K. Henry the first's time Walter de Hastings and Athawis his wife, did by their speciall Charter^a, in the presence of Roger de Clinton then Bishop of this Dioces, grant unto these Nuns, Osanna being then the Prioress, the site of this Oldburie, and all Stiperthull, in fields and woods, down to the midst of the Valley on that side Panceter: As also a certain part of the wood lying South-east of Oldburie, and extending to the rivulet which comes from Hardesethull. And moreover all those grounds called Calde-croft, and Birchley, lying betwixt these two ways, sc. Mere-street, and Birchley street, unto Hugh's wood, in circumference.

But this I do not account to be any other than in the nature of a Confirmation, which was very fit for these Nuns to have, considering that notwithstanding the Conqueror by those Lawsⁱ he made in the fourth year of his reign, seemed favourable to Religious persons, yet by the Preamble to^k those of K. Henry the first, there is an acknowledgement of manifold oppressions; which had involved with Atherston, as I guess) though it be a place of great antiquitie, as may appear by that quadrangular Fort, whence at first it had this name, which contains about seven acres of ground, as by the rampires, whose height and largeness do still shew the strength it was of, is manifest; being situate upon the most eminent crest, of all that mountainous tract, bordering upon this nook of the Wood-land, and purposely chosen (without doubt) by the Romans in respect of its vicinitie to Panceter, where they had a fixed station. On the North part of this Fort, have been found, by plowing, divers Flint stones, about four inches and a half in length; curiously wrought by grinding, or some such way, into the form here exprest; the one end shaped much like the edge of a Pole-Axe, which makes me conjecture, that, considering there is no flint in all this part of the Countie, nor within more than xl. miles from hence, they being at first so made by the native Britans, and put into a hole, boared through the side of a staff, were made use of for weapons, inasmuch as they had not then attained to the knowledge of working iron or brasse to such uses.

there not been, how expedient it was for them to obtain some good assurance from their new Lords, will easily be judged: And that this, though it pass by the words dedit & confirmavit, was no other than a ratification, seems likely to me, both by that declaratorie Instrument^l made thereupon by the before specified Bishop in these words, Rogerus Dei gratia Cestria Episcopus, Omnibus, &c. Noverint tam presentes quam futuri, Walterum de Hastings, & Hadevisam ejus uxorem, in mea presentia dedisse & concessisse, & religioni & conversationi pauperum mulierum deputasse locum de Aldeberia, cum omnibus suis pertinentiis, ita quod nichil proprii juris, vel dominii, vel advocacionis terrena inibi sibi retinuerunt, prater hoc quod eundem locum debent munire, & protegere contra omnes importunitates ut suam elemosynam, &c. And that of Walcheline de Mancestre, who having the first grant of Panceter (within the territories whereof this place lyeth) from the said Walt. de Hastings, in his Charter^m to the said Nuns, which could be no other than for corroboration, hath the words Concessi & confirmavi, expressing all the lands, with the bounds as aforesaid.

Other particulars (wherewith I have met) which specially relate to this place, were, briefly these; That the Nuns here residing had two yard land in Waberton, givenⁿ to them by Raphe Roteler of Lambwoth, with his Daughter, whom he there placed placed to be a Votresse: As also that a special Indulgence^o for release of Xv. dayes Penance, was granted by Robert Bishop of Hereford, to all such as should contribute to these Nuns, towards their buildings here: And lastly, that after much controversy, betwixt the Nuns of Polesworth, and the Parson of Spanceter, (about the beginning of E. 1. time;) for the right to all Oblations made in the Chapell of St. Laurence, at this place, and the Tithe Corn of two pieces of inclosed ground, one lying on the South part of the House and the other on the North, they grew at length to this conclusion^p, for themselves and their successors; viz. that the said Nuns should totally have the benefit of them; in consideration whereof, they were yearly, every Michaelmas day, to bring to the Church of Spanceter three pounds of Wax, and there before Noon, deliver the same to the Parson for the time being, upon the High Altar.

Provided nevertheless, if it did happen in time to come, that God should work any strange Miracles here, by reason whereof there might be a more than ordinary confluence of people to this Chapell, and so consequently a multitude of Offerings, that then all such extraordinary offerings to be divided equally betwixt the said Nuns and the Parson: And also provided that the Priest so celebrating Divine Service here, should not admit any of the Parishioners of Spanceter thither on Sundays, or Holy-days, either to the Sacrament or Divine Service, without the expresse License of the said Parson, or his Deputie. Which Agreement bears date on the Eve of the Feast of St. Philip and James the Apostles an. 1284. (12 E. 1.)

Which lands, lying here in Oldburie, so belonging to those Nuns, were in 26 H. 8. valued at 9 vil. x d. and coming to the Crown, together with the said Monasterie of Polesworth in 30 H. 8. were in 33. of the said King's reign, granted^r to Charles Brandon D. of Suff. and his heirs, by the name of Dominium & Manerium de Oldburie, ac Capitale Messuagium de Oldburie, &c. Monasterio de Polesworth spectans. Which Duke immediately thereupon, past^t the same unto one Robert Green, who in 3 Eliz. sold^u it to John Symings Doctor of Physick. Neither did he keep it long; for in 21 Eliz. Jasper Fyler Esq. died^v seized of it, leaving Cuth. Norwood widow, and Anne the wife of Richard Wolriche, his coheirs and heirs. But after this it came again to the Crown; for in 3 Jac. Sir Edw. Stanhope Knight and Edm. Luteworth Gent. had a grant^w of it in Fee. From whom it is since come to Master Richard Whitehall, the present owner thereof.

Atherston.

OF this place was the Countess Godeva (of whom in Cobentre I have spoke) possessor, before the Norman invasion; but after the Conquest King William ferm'd it out, with all the rest of those lands formerly belonging to that noble Ladie. By the generall Survey^x, made towards the later end of the Conqueror's reign, it was rated at three hides, the Woods then belonging thereto, being esteemed at two miles in length and as much in breadth, which with the rest were valued at Lx s. but herein were Spanceter and Oldburie, (without question) involved. In that Record^y it is written Abdestone, and in^z some others of great antiquitie, Coredestone, and Albredestone, so that 'tis apparent, that the name at first arose from some ancient possessor thereof in the Saxons time, both Edredus and Alfredus being appellations then in use. But, as the rest of the lands, belonging to that Countess, came to those Earls of Chesster of the Norman line, so did this place, and was by the first Hugh, given^a to the Monks of Bec in Normandie: which Monks in 30 H. 3. obtained an yearly Faire^b here, to last three days, beginning on the Eve of the blessed Virgins Nativitie (sc. 7. Septembris) And the next year ensuing, a Mercate weekly on the Tuesday; for which they having a speciall Charter^c, with a confirmation of the said Faire, gave a Fine of 4 C s. to the King.

What it was that Robert Earl Ferrers (whose Ancestour founded Merevale Abby, hard by) had to do within the precinct of this Lordship, I know not, which occasioned him to release^e to those Monks of Bec, in H. 3. time, all his right therein; but, about the beginning of E. 1. time, Raphe de Culy layd claim to this Mannour, pretending that his Ancestour was possessor of it; whereupon there grew a great suit^f betwixt him and those Monks; howbeit in 3 E. 1. the Monks recovered^g it: and in 13 E. 1. challenged^h divers Liberties and privileges here, viz. Gallows, Pillorie, Theme, Assize of Bread and Beer, Mercate, Fair and Toll, exhibiting King H. 3. Charter for the same, & proving that they had enjoyed them accordingly without interruption; all which were allowed. But after this, ere long, it came to be reputed as a member of the Priorie of Deburne in Com. Wilts. for so doth that taxationⁱ of the temporalities belonging to the Religious Houses in 19 E. 1. speak it to be; as also the Record^k called Nomina Villarum in 9 E. 2. but this was no other than as the Priorie of Deburne was a Cell to Bec before specified.

As the Mercate, in time, growing very much to be frequented, by reason it stands so opportunely both to the Woodland and Feildon, brought no small advantage to the Inhabitants here; so did it, by such concourse of people, make the town very foul and dirtie in Winter time; for remedy whereof they procured a Patent^l from the King in 12 E. 2. for License to take Toll of all vendible commodities coming hither for the space of four years, towards defraying the charge in paving thereof; viz. for every Quarter of Corn a farthing, &c. but this not performing the work, they obtained another Patent^m in 17 E. 3. to take Toll for five years more, to that purpose, scil. of every Hordload of Corn a half penny, &c.

About this time, the Monks of Bec, being very weary of the frequent seizures, which were made of their lands in this Realm, into the King's hands, by reason of his wars with France, began to think of quitting their interest, for some certain advantage; and therefore in 18 E. 3. got Licenseⁿ to pass this Mannour away, unto the Monks of Merevale; but it was not accordingly conveyed; for in 7 H. 4. upon seizure of the lands belonging to those forraign Monasteries, for the reasons before exprest, as a member of the Priorie of Deburne (which was a Cell to Bec, before mentioned) it was demised^o to Will. de Brynklow Clerk, and Peter Purly Esq. by John the King's son (afterwards Duke of Bedford) and Thomas

Longley Chancelour of England (who had the King's grant of all the lands belonging to the said Priorie of Dkeburne) to hold for xx. years, at the rate of xl l. per an. After which time, viz. in 16 H.6. (the Duke of Bedford being then dead)

the King gave ^p it to Humphrey Earl Stafford, for ^p Pat. 16. life ; and within six years after, granted ^q the re- H.6.p.2.m. version thereof, for ever, unto the Provost and 33. Scholars of King's Colledge in Cambridge, then ^q Pat. 22. newly by him founded. H.6.p.2.m. 15.

W. Hollar fecit.

Heremitanus S.^r Augustin.

Yet of this grant, had that Colledge no benefit, as it seems; for in 31 H. 6. did the said King bestow it upon Edm. Earl of Richmond, his half Brother, and the heirs of his body: but that Patent held good no longer than the life of that King; for it appears that King Edward 4. in the first year of his reign, disposed thereof, unto the Carthusian Monks of Montgrace in Dorsetshire, who accordingly enjoy'd it till the dissolution of that House by King Henry 8. Whereupon, coming to the Crown, it was granted to Henry Marq. Dorset, and Thomas Duport, and to the heirs of the said Marquess, for ever: upon whose attainder in 1. Marie (whereof in Affley I have spoke) it returned again to the Crown, and in 1 & 2 Ph. & M. was past to William Devereux Esquire and his heirs; Which William (being afterwards a Knight) died seized thereof in 21 Eliz. leaving Margaret the wife of Edward Littleton of Willaton-Hall in Com. Staff. Esquire, and Barbara the wife of Edward Hastings, his daughters and heirs. But since, it is come, by purchase to Sir John Repington Knight, whose son and heir, sc. Sir John R. of Amington Knight, now enjoys it.

Within the precincts of this town, there was very anciently a Chapell, whereunto the Monks of Ber. about the beginning of H. 2. time, gave xii. acres of land, viz. six lying on the one side of the town, and six on the other. Concerning which Chapell, the said Monks and the Parson of Manceter, then came to this agreement; viz. that the Rector of Manceter, for the time being, should cause Divine service to be celebrated therein, three days every week, sc. Sunday, Wednesday, and Friday; and if a Holy-day did happen on any other than of these, to be accounted for one of them, solemn Service being then to be there performed: And moreover, in case the passion of St. Peter should happen on any of those days, that Mass should be there and then celebrated, but on all other days omitted; all Tithes and Obventions, arising out of this Hamlet, to be paid to Manceter; yet, that Buriall and Baptism should be performed here, for the Inhabitants of Atherston, except any particular person, on his death bed, should rather desire sepulture at Manceter, than in this Chapell-yard; which Agreement was ratified by Richard Peche then Bishop of Cob. and Lich.

The Friers.

This House was founded by Raphe Lord Bassett of Draughton in 49 E. 3. for Friars Heremites of St. Augustine; over the Gate whereof, is yet to be seen his Armes, cut in a fair Shield of Stone. Touching the originall of this Order, there is no absolute certaintie, as Polydore affirmeth. Some alleadge, that St. Augustine Bishop of Hippo, retiring into the Wilderness, during the rage of the Manichean Hereticks, then instituted it, gathering together into one Covent, those that were dispers'd in the Desert: Others, that, divers devout persons, desiring to imitate the piety and singular learning of St. Augustine, even whilst he lived, left all that they had, and betook themselves to the Wilderness, whereupon they were called Heremites. By which of these means it was, I shall not farther stand to enquire; but Mendicants they were, for certain; and for their Habite did wear in their Cloister a white garment close girt to them, and when they went out, a Black over it, with a broad lethern Girdle, buckled, (as on the last page is represented) being shorn on the Head, as the Dominicans are.

These first began to propagate in England, about the year 1250. (34 H. 3.) as did the Carmentites; but in this Countie, not of a long time after; for to this in Atherston, which was the onely House of them therein, it was the 49th. of Ed. 3. ere the said Lord Basset gave the land, sc. xii. acres, whereupon it stood; at which time they began to build their Church, and came to an Agreement with the Parson of Manceter (in the presence of the said Lord Basset, the Abbot of Leicester, Tho. Harecourt Lord of Wosworth, and others; John Canbe being their Procurator, or Warden, at that time.) Which was, in substance, this; that for the Tithes of those places whereupon that structure was to be made, and for the rest of the lands before specified, they should pay to the said Parson and his Successors xv s. per an. at the Feast of St. Michael the Arch-Angell and Easter, by even portions; in default whereof, a distress to be taken; and that if they should acquire any more land, then to pay Tithe in kind for the same.

It seems, the Church and buildings were not perfected till King Ric. 2. time; for it appears, that the said Lord Basset, by his Testament, bearing date at London 12 Sept. an. 1383. (7 R. 2.) gave them a Legacie of five hundred marks, for completing thereof. This is he that was the last Lord Basset of Draughton (for he died without issue) and lieth magnificently entombed in Lichfield, Cathedral, on the South side of St. Chads Shrine, though the place be not now known by that name, the Lord Paget's Monument being erected where that Shrine stood. But I do not find, that they ever had any more lands, than what are above express'd; for by the Survey taken in 26 H. 8. all that belonged to them, was valued but at xxx s. iii d. per an. over and above reprises, and came to the Crown by the Act of dissolution in 27 H. 8. After which, viz. in 35 H. 8. the King granted the site and circuit of the House, with a Dove-cote, Barn, Orchard, and two Messuages (that stood upon the before specified ground, first given thereto) unto one Henry Cartwright and his heirs, to hold by the xxxth part of a Knight's Fee. Which Henry the same year, sold it to ... Hill. Since which, by purchase it came to Sir John Repington Knight, who having bought the Mannour (as hath been already shewed) built a fair House of Brick upon the ruins of this Friery, where residing, he died in an. 1625.

The Gild.

OF this Gild, forasmuch as it consisted of the Inhabitants of the whole Parish, I have spoke in Manceter.

The Free-School.

This was founded in 15 Eliz. by Sir William Devereux Kt. who (then residing at Merevale) obtained License to purchase lands, and to give them thereunto; the substance whereof are situate in Dosbhill, near Kingsburie.

And farther of this Town, I have not to say, than that it gave birth to one of our late famous Poets, scil. Michael Drayton; who being one of the Elquires that attended Sir Walter Aston

Feldon-Bridge.

AT the further side of Atherston field, stands this Bridge, over Anker; which being ruinous in 6 E. 3. License was granted to Edmund de Shireford to take Toll of all vendible commodities passing over it, by the space of three years, towards the charge in repairing thereof.

Merevale.

Westwards from Atherston, scarce a mile, stands Mirabale, of which there is no particular mention in the Conquerour's Survey, in regard it was involved with Grendon (lying on the other side the River) whereto it then belonged as an Out-wood, and therewith became posselt by Henry de Feriers, a great man in these parts (as I shall shew anon) whose grandson Robert Earl Ferrers, having a reverend esteem of the Cistercian Monks, which in his time began to multiply in England, made choice of this mountainous and woody Desert (as fittest for solitude and devotion) to found therein a Monasterie of that Order; which was begun accordingly in the xiiith year of K. Stephen's reign; and being propagated with Monks from Worcester-Abby in Worcestershire, had, by reason of such its situation, the name of Miraballe attributed thereto; the lands wherewith he endowed it, being these; viz. all his Forest of Arden (id est his Out-wood in that part of the Woodland, which then bore the name of Arden) and also what he had in Whittington, together with the Mannour of Overton (now called Wotton on the Hill in Com. Leic.) as also Herdwike in the Peake of Derbyshire, unto Cranokelstone; with Common of pasture in Hertendon and Pillesburke, for Sheep and other Cattell, as the words of his Charter do import.

But besides this, it had severall other Benefactors; of which the principall were these; scil. Gerard de Limesi, Walt. de Camville, Robt de Baskerville, and Pain de Baskerville. as K. H. 2. Charter, whereby he ratified their grants, manifesteth: So that about 30 H. 2. there were the Granges of Moze (now Moze-Barne) Bozle, Selle, Little-Petling, the Church of Overton (on the Hill) with the Chapells of Grendon, Twicrosse, Gopshall, and Barterley (some in this Countie, and some in Leicestershire) belonging thereto, as the Bull of Pope Lucius the third, whereby he confirmed them, doth manifest. Divers lands had these Monks afterwards bestowed on them also, through the bountie of sundry other persons; viz. in Little Sheple by Henry de Appelby and others; In Overton sub. Arden, by John de Overton and Rob. Stapleton. In Brantingthorp by Rob. de Brantingthorp and others; In Sheppe by Nich. de Temple and others. In Hertynndon, as parcell of the Mannour of Pillesburke, they obtained Cxx. acres of land more, from Thomas Earl of Lancaster, in lieu of xx s. yearly Rent, which they usually did receive at his Exchequer of Wotbury.

In 2 E. 3. they had a grant of two Messuages, three Shops, and xii s. Rent in Leicester, by Petronill Oliver of Leicester, to finde a Priest for celebration of Divine service in the Conventuall Church of Mirabale, for the soul of her the said Petronill, her ancettors and all the faithfull deceased. In 11 E. 3. they had more lands bestowed on them, lying in Overton, Peatling, and Brantingthorp before specified, by sundry persons. In 18 E. 3. they purchased xvii. Messuages, and divers lands in Atherston, Bentley, and Barterley, with the moytie of the Mannour of Barterley. In 31 E. 3. they had a Messuage and a yard land in Bentley, bestowed on them by John de Lisle, then Lord of that Mannour, to find xv. Tapers in the Chapell of our Ladie, near the Gate of the Abby. In 10 R. 2. they purchased v. fix other Messuages in Atherston, and certain Rents in Whittington and Barterley. In 16 R. 2. four Messuages and certain lands in Lamworth, and Wilmecote, as also two Messuages more in Atherston. And in 28 H. 6. they obtained the Church of Hautefer, with an appropriation thereof. The value of all which lands and all other their possessions, amounting unto CCLiii l. i s. viii d. as appears by the Survey of 26 H. 8. preserved it from ruin, when the lesser Houses went to wrack in 27 H. 8. But in 30 H. 8. it was overwhelm'd in the generall deluge, being surrendered to the King's use, by the then Abbot and Covent, as their publick Instrument, under the Conventuall Seal, dated 13 Oct. the same year, whereunto their names are particularly subscribed, doth manifest; whose Pensions during life, as they were by Patent granted to them, I have here also added.

Lord Ferrers of Chartley, and to the heirs male of his body; so that there being a reversion in the Crown, for defect of issue male, in 4 E. 6. he obtained another Patent (being then arrived to the dignitie of Vicount Hereford) for the same site, and the other lands, to himself and his heirs generall. Though I have now done with this Monasterie; and should, according to my method, proceed to Wedington, which is next in order to be spoke of; yet in respect that the Family of the before specified Robert Earl Ferrers, have had for many ages such large possessions in this Countie, and that the principall male branch now remayning of it, with another fair stemme, do flourish here to this day (as in Tamworth, and Wadley-Clinton is manifested) I shall here digress a little in speaking historically thereof.

The first of them that settled in this Realm; was Henry de Feriers, son^a to Gualchelina de Feriers, a Norman: which Henry, having a great proportion of land, by the Conqueror's gift, lying in the Counties^b of Berk. Wilts. Northampton. Hereford. this of Warwick, Leicester, Glouc. Nottingham, Derby, Essex, and Stafford, seated himself^d at Lutburie Castle in Staffordshire;

near unto which he founded^e a goodly Monastery for Clunian Monks, endowing it with large possessions: But there is little else, at this distance, that I have seen memorable of him, saving that he was amongst other of the great Nobilitie one of the witnesses^s to King William the Conqueror's Charter made to the Monks of St. Edmundsbury in an. 1181. (14. of his reign) whereby he confirmed the lands and possessions, which they had by the grant of former Kings, and that he gave^h to the Monks of Abingdon, the Tithes of Laking.

To which Henry succeeded Robert (for it seems, that Eugenulfus and William, died without issue) which Robert was a witnessⁱ unto the Charter of King Stephen's Laws, made in the first year of his reign; and having brought^k in, and commanded the Derbyshire men, in that famous Battail^l near North-Alberton in 3. Stephani, where the King had^l a glorious Victorie against David King of

To whom succeeded William, as appears by that Certificate 'made in 12 H. 2. of the Knight's Fees he then held, which amounted to Lxxix. And to him another 'Robert; of whom the first mention I find, is in 19 H. 2. at which time, hearing how the King's territories in France, were invaded by the adherents of young Henry, who, through the assistance of the King of France, then brake out into high Rebellion against his Father, and of some ill 'successes, which his said Father's forces had in those parts) joyning with the Earls of Chester, Leicester, Posfolk, and other great men, here, in England, in the like hostile Actions, manned 'the Castles of Tutburte and Duffeld against his sovereign; and not onely so, but rayling * the power of Leicestershire, marcht 'early in the morning to Spottingham, which then was kept for the King by Reginald de Luci, and having without any great difficulty entred the 'town, burnt and plundered it, slaying^a and taking Prisoners most part of the Inhabitants.

But, the year following, the King having notice of these outrages in England, returned; at whose entrance his good Subjects took courage, and prevailed^b over the Rebels in every place; against whom, Rhese Prince of Wales came also with a great power, and besieged Tutburte-Castle: whereupon this Robert Earl Ferrers, apprehending what danger he was in, hastned^c to the King, then at Poshampton, and to obtain his favour, rendred^d the said Castles of Tutburte and Duffeld, giving securitie^e for his future fidelitie: but so little did the King trust him, that though he received him to outward favour, he caused^f those Castles to be demolished. This Robert was a Benefactor^g to the Abby of Doze in Herefordshire, and by Sibilla his wife, daughter^h to William de Braose, left issueⁱ another William Earl Ferrers; who not onely confirmed^k to the Monks of Ceolston the inclosed ground at Hesthote, and pasture for C. Sheep there, which his Father had given to them, but added^l another piece of Inclosure adjoyning thereto, with pasturage for CC. sheep more, at six score to the Hundred, five Kine and a Bull, and six Oxen. And in 1 Richard 1. gave^m to the Monks of St. Denis in France, for the health of his soul, and the soul of Sibill his wife, one Wax Taper yearly, price xiii d. as also a Stag and a Boar in their proper seasons, to be sent thither annually at the Feast of St. Dennis, by the Messengers of him the said Earl and his heirs: And likewiseⁿ to the Monks of Lenton, all his right to the Church of Woodham in Essex, specially^o for the health of the souls of those that were with him at the burning of Spottingham, which (belike) was the time that his Father made such spoil there, as I have before exprest.

But this William was outed of his Earldomes of Spottingham and Derby by King Richard 1. in the first year of his reign, as it seems; for upon the said King's first arrivall in England, after his Father's death, I find that he bestowed^p them, with divers other, upon John Earl of Moreton, his brother: yet I hardly think that the said William continued long so dispossessed of them; for it appears, that the same year, he attended King Richard in the Holy Voiage, and died^q at the siege of Acon (an. scil. 1190, 2 R. 1.) leaving issue^r William his son and heir. Of the great misfortunes that befell that King in his journey, by being taken Prisoner,

I shall not here stand to tell, forasmuch as our Historians speak so fully thereof; nor of the advantage which John Earl of Moreton before specified, made upon it, in seizing divers Castles here into his hands, reporting that his Brother was dead, whereupon he layd claim to the Crown: But shall observe, that upon the King's enlargement and return, order^s was given for the siege of those Castles; whereupon our William Earl Ferrers joyned^t with the Earl of Chester in besieging of Spottingham Castle, which after a while, was rendred; and for his fidelity was made choice of by the same King, to sit^u with the rest of the Peers in that great Councell held there, on the 30th. of March next ensuing.

At the second Coronation of which King, he was one of the four that carried^w the rich silken Canopie over his head. With the Earls of Clare, Chester, and others of the great Nobilitie, he swore^x Fealitie to King John in the first year of his reign; but conditionally, that he should render to each of them his own. At the Coronation of that King in the Church of St. Peter at Westminster on Ascension day, he was also present^y; and one the seventh of June following, being solemnly invested Earl of Derby, by a speciall Charter^z, then dated at Poshampton, was girt with the Sword, by the said King's own hands, having a grant likewise of the Tertium Denarium de omnibus Placitis confirm'd to him and his heirs. In 5 Joh. he obtained a speciall Mandate^a to Geffrey Fitz-Piers (then Justiciarius Anglia) for delivery of those lands in Stapleford in Com. Leic. that belong'd to the Vidame of Chartres, and were of his Fee: which Vidame died^b in a voyage to the Holy land: and was a Ferrers, though he bore^c for his Armes a Bend betwixt six Martlets.

This Earl was very loyall to King John, even in his greatest distresses; for in 14 of his reign, when that the Pope had deposed^d him of his Kingdom, and that Pandulfus his Legate came over to treat with him, the French King being then upon the Seas with a powerfull Navie, threatening an Invasion; so that King John's condition was so desperate, as that he became necessitated to yeild to what termes he could get, he manifested his great affection to him, in becomming^e one of the four, that gave his solemn Oath, for the King's performance of those Articles, whereunto he had submitted; which Agreement was made 13 May the same year: as also a witness^f to the Charter of K. John (dated within two days following) whereby he gave up his Realm to the Pope: Of whose favour to him, I cannot omit to take notice of this singular instance; viz. that on the 27th. of June following, he had a speciall grant^g to himself and his heirs, sitting at Dinner upon all Festivalls in the year, when they should solemnly celebrate those days, with his Head uncovered, and without any Cap, having a Garland thereon, of the breadth of the said King's little Finger.

In 16 Joh. he had the Castle of Hareston in Com. Derby. committed^h to his charge; and the next year following, (when the Barons put themselves in Armes, and seized divers Castles) having raised Forces on the said King's behalf, he tookⁱ from them by assault, the Castles of Boleslover and Pec, in Derbyshire, whereupon he had a speciall Patent^k constituting him Governour of them. And upon the death of King John, stood so firm to the young King Henry the third, as that, with the rest of the loyall Nobilitie, he not onely assisted at his Coronation on Simon and Jude's day, but immediatly after Easter, accompanied the famous William Marshall (then Governour of the King and Kingdome) the Earls of Chester, Albanarle, and many other great men, to the siege of Mountsozell Castle in Lecestershire, then held out by Henry de Braibroke and ten other stout Knights. The same year he was also with those noble persons at raising the siege of Lincoln, which the Rebellious Barons, with Lewes K. of France, whom they brought into the Realm, had made: And having new Patents from the King, for the custody of those Castles, held the government of them for full six years. But in the second year of this King's reign, he made a journey to the Holy Land, with Ranulph Earl of Chester and some others, appointing his Steward, viz. Ralph Fitz-Nicholas, to transact all businesses concerning him, which should relate to the Exchequer, till his return from Pilgrimage: And in 8 H. 3. was constituted Governour of the Castle and Honour of Lancaster.

The next observable passage, relating to this stout Earl (wherevith I have met) is, that upon the difference betwixt the King and Richard Earl of Cornwall (his Brother) in 11 H. 3. where upon the King gave away the said Earl of Cornwall's Castle of Berkhamsted, he with others, more resenting the injury, which he thought was offered to the said Earl, than the obligation of loyalty to his sovereign, stuck not to put himself in Arms on that Earl's part: but the King wisely discerning, that unavoidable mischief might have ensued, by clashing with his Nobilitie, which were then so potent, attributed the fault to his Chief Justice, and fairly composed the business. Nay this was not all, for they threatned him, that if he would not restore to them that Charter touching the Liberties of the Forest, which he had lately cancelled at Oxford; ipsi illum gladiis discurrantibus compellerent, saith my Author: but in all these things the King gave them satisfaction at Portsmouth, in August following.

In 13 H. 3. this William Earl Ferrers was employed by the King in his service of Wales. In 8 H. 3. he had livery of the lands lying between Ribbel and Merse, which belonging unto Ranulph Earl of Chester (his wives Brother) were assigned unto Agnes his wife in part of her portion of the inheritance belonging to her self, and her other sisters and coheirs; for which he and she were then bound to pay yearly unto the King's Exchequer a Goshawk or al's. In 21 H. 3. he was one of the three chief Councillors recommended to the King, by the Barons, upon that reconciliation of their discontents for the violation of Magna Charta, the King then renewing his promise for the strict observance thereof, and those his Councell making Oath, that they would not, for any respects, give him other than wholesome advice: which so well contented the people, that they gave him a xxvth. part of all their moveable goods, excepting of Gold, Silver, Horse, and Arms. But in 31 H. 3. (scil. 10 Cal. Oct.) he died, vir bonus & plenus dierum, Math. Westm. calls him, and Math. Paris. vir pacificus & justus, saying that he had lain long afflicted with the Gout: His Countess departing this life the same month, eiusdem aetatis, fame, & bonitatis. They had been man and wife at least Lxxv. years, if my Author mistake not; for he affirmeth that St. Thomas of Canterbury celebrated the marriage betwixt them, who died in 18 H. 2. But I have seen an autograph, mentioning their marriage to have been in an. 1192. (4 R. 1.) which falls short no less than xx. years thereof.

To which Earl succeeded William his son and heir, a discreet and good man, saith M. Paris. but troubled with his Father's infirmities, who the next year following (viz. 32 H. 3.) did his Homage, and had livery of Chartley Castle, and all other the lands of his Mothers inheritance; and the same year sat in that Parliament held at London, where the King made so stout an answer to the high demands of his impetuous Barons. This Earl gave to the Canons of Derley in Derbyshire, the Church of Bolesober in that Countie, for the health of his soul; whose grant Robert and William his two sons, afterwards confirmed. But there is no other matter memorable, that I have seen of him, till his death, which happened to be violent 9 Cal. Apr. 38 H. 3. for being carried in a kind of Chariot, by reason of his Gout, which through the unskilfulness of the Driver, fell off the Bridge at S. Neots, his limbs were so broke, and body bruised, that he quickly died thereof; and was buried in this Abby of Worcester, leaving issue by Margaret his second wife, Robert his son and heir, and William (for by Sibill, his first, he had none but Daughters, as the Descent sheweth.)

Which Robert, being then in minority (for the custody of whose lands, the Queen, and Peter de Savoy, gave six thousand marks, till he should accomplish his full age) had the ill hap to be the last Earl of his Family: for no sooner was he come to man's estate, but that meeting with a discontented Nobilitie, who under many fair and specious pretences, infused into him all principles of disloyalty, his high and hot spirited youth grew so inflamed, as that in 47 H. 3. when the combustions of Civill war began to break out, none was more forward to increase them, than he: yet, nec fidus Regi neque Baronibus, quasi non in Baronum numero, saith Math. Paris. but a world of mischief he did; for having got a power of Souldiers at his heels, he entred Worcester demolished that place there, called the Jewrie, plundered the Religious Houses, as well as other, and destroyed the King's Parks thereabouts. To retaliate which outrage, the King sent Edward his eldest son, down into Stafford and Derbyshires, with a good Army, where he wasted his lands and Mannours with Fire and Sword, and demolished his Castle of Tutbury.

The next remarkable thing, relating to him, whereof our Historians make mention, is, that after the King and Prince were made Prisoners by that unhappy defeat of the Royall Army, at Lewes; and that Clare Earl of Gloucester grew discontented at the Earl of Leicester's assuming the rule of all to himself, he secretly adhered to Clare: Of which, Leicester having notice, layd hold on him: but notwithstanding Clare stoutly adventured his life, afterwards, for the Royall interest, yet did this Earl Ferrers no whit incline that way; for though he were not in the battail of Chebam, yet did he act otherwise with all the power he had; so that, being highly taken notice of

Whereupon the King, out of his gracious disposition, in consideration^f of a Cup of gold adorned with precious stones, obtained by the said Earl from Michael de Toni, for which he mortgaged to the said Mich. the Mannour of Pirle in Northamptonshire, and for fifteen hundred marks to be payd at four severall payments, within the compass of a twelve month, pardoned^g his misdemeanours, and undertook^h to secure him against Prince Edward, and all others against whom he had been injurious, at any time during the troubles, untill the 5th of Dec. 50 H. 3. as by his speciall Pat. then bearing date, appeareth. Howbeit, sub tali pacto fuit restitutus, ut si forte, quoquo tempore residaveret, sine spe restitutionis foret exheredandus, saith my Authoritieⁱ; Et ad hoc tenendum tam per Sacramentum prestitum corporale, quam per Cartam suam, se Domino Regi gratis obligaverit. But of that pardon he had no benefit, partly for that the said sum was not^k accordingly payd, and partly by reason of his second defection; For the next Spring after, he made head^l again, in the Northern parts of Derbyshire, contra^m Sacramentum suum, cum copioso Exercitu: unto which the King's forces under the conduct of Henry, eldest son to the King of Almain shortly advanc'dⁿ and at Chesterfield on Whitson-Eve, routed^o all his power, whereof many were slain; and of those that escap'd by flight, he himself being one, was hid in a Church, but by the trecherie^p of a woman, discovered, and brought up Prisoner^q to London by the said Henry.

The authorities, whereof I have been necessitated to make use, for the better illustration of this Storie, do (I confess) somewhat differ in point of time; to reconcile them therefore, I have followed those, which have most agreed with our publick Records.

Hereupon, in the Parliament held the same year at Westminster, he was disherited^r, according to the tenor of his obligation before specified, and Edmund, the King's son invested with his Earldome of Derby, as my said Authoritie^s expresseth; and as those that have written^t touching the succession of our English Earls do affirm: but that he really was so, though he had the greatest part of his lands, and exercised (perhaps) the power of Earl in that Countie, I am not satisfied, forasmuch as I cannot find that the said Edmund had any Patent of Creation unto that Honour, as he had to those of Leicester^u and Lancaster; nor any other, till^v Henry of Monmouth, his grand-son, (who was afterwards made^w D. of Lancaster.) Which Edmund soon after; viz. 28 Junii next ensuing, had a grant^x from the King, of all the goods and Chattells, whereof the said Robert Earl of Derby was posselt, upon the day of the skirmish at Chesterfield before mentioned; and on the fifth of August following, of^y all the Castles and lands belonging to the same Earl, to hold during pleasure.

It seems, that this Robert continued a Prisoner

for the space of three years or thereabouts; for of his enlargement I find no mention till^b the beginning of May 53 H. 3. but then there was such mediation made for him, that the King accepted of securitie^c, whereby he might receive satisfaction for his misdemeanours committed in the turbulent times before spoken of; and commanded the said Edmund to make restitution to him of his lands. Hereupon (as I guess) was that agreement made betwixt them, viz. that to quit all his interest in those Castles and lands so granted to him, he should receive^d fifty thousand pounds, all upon one day; for payment whereof the said Earl procured Henry, son to the King of Romans, William Valence Earl of Pembroke, John Earl of Warren and Surrey, William de Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, Roger de Someri, Thomas de Clare, Rob. Waltraund, Rog. Clifford, Hamon le Strange, Bartholmew Sudley, and Robert Bruce (all great Barons) to be bound; unto whom he passed, by way of counter-securitie all his Castles and lands, excepting Chartley in Staffordshire and Holbroke in Derbyshire: which sum, being not accordingly payd, those his sureties past^e over their title therein unto the said Edmund and his heirs.

But hereupon there arose great suits in Law, betwixt them, about the beginning of King Edward the first's time; the Earl pleading^f, that according to the Dictum de Benilwoth, he was capable of redeeming his lands, lying in the Counties of Stafford, Derby, Leic. and Lancaster, excepting Chartley in Com. Staff. and Holbroke in Com. Derby for the sum of fifty thousand pounds, and that they were both formerly so agreed. In answer whereunto, the said Edmund exhibited a certain writing made, and enrouled in the Chancery, by which it appeared, that he was to hold those lands untill the Earl did pay that sum at one intire payment. Unto which the Earl replied, that the said Writing ought not to oblige him, forasmuch as it was made per duros; but upon full hearing of the cause, Judgement^g was given against him, whereupon he lost Lintburie Castle and other vast possessions, which came thereby to the said Edmund, then Earl of Leicester and Lancaster, as hath been shewed: But this was not all; for he lost^h his Earldome likewise. All that I have seen, farther memorable of the before specified Robert Earl Ferrers, is, that by his Letters Patentⁱ, bearing date at Porhall, on the Tuesday next after the Feast of St. Fabian and Sebastian, in 46 H. 3. he gave libertie unto Sir Walter de Ralegh and his heirs, inhabiting at Uttorater in Staffordshire, to hunt and course the Fox and Hare, within the precincts of his Forrest of Speedwood in that Countie, with eight Braches, and four Greyhounds. To which grant his Seal of Armes is affixed; wherein it appears, that, upon his Shield and the Caparitions of his Horse (waiving the border of Horse-shoes used by his Father) he bore onely Varrè Or and Gules: which Armes were afterwards continued by his posteritie, the Lords Ferrers of Chartley, so long as that line lasted; and since, according to the usage of later times, by the principall male branch, now remayning, of this great and noble Family, seated at Lamwoth-Castle in this Countie. As for the time of his death, I cannot directly point it out; but in sted thereof shall close up his story with the words of the Two wives he had, Mary the first, neice to King Henry the third (sc. daughter ^m to Hugh le Brun Earl of Angolessm, his brother by the mother's side,) being married ⁿ very young, he at nine, and she at eight years of age. And Alianore ^o, though whose daughter I cannot prove: For the health of whose souls, and his own, he gave ^p to the Canons of St. Thomas juxta Stafford, two Messuages in Chartley before mentioned, as also xvii. acres of land and the advouson of the Church of Stow juxta Chartley; appointing ^q his body to be buried in the Priorie of St. Thomas, whensoever he should depart this life.

To this Earl succeeded John ^r his son and heir, within age in 9 E. 1. but somewhat of his Father's spirit, it seems; For in 25 E. 1. when the Earls ^s of Hereford and Marshall ^t, with other their complices, began to blow the Coals of discontent at the present Government, and prohibited ^u the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, to gather that Subsidie granted to the King in Parliament at St. Edmundsbury (which was the eighth part of their moveable goods) having allured the Londoners to stand with them for the recovering of their liberties (as they termed it) this John fell in to their partie: but by the timely care of Prince Edward, then Lieutenant here, in his Father's steed (who was at that time victorious in Scotland) the heat of these turbulent Spirits was allayed, by a condescension ^v to confirm Magna Charta, and that of the Forests; as also ^w that thenceforth no Taxe should be imposed upon his Subjects without their consent in Parliament, and that the offences of those Earls and their adherents should be pardoned: In which pardon this John de Ferrers is particularly ^x named, who shortly after grew in such esteem with the King, that he had Summons ^y to sit in Parliament amongst the Barons in 27 E. 1. and afterwards in all succeeding Parliaments; which favour was continued to his posteritie, who thereupon had the title of Lord Ferrers of Chartley, that being their principall seat. But farther than what I have said, I shall not prosecute the storie of these Barons, it being besides my business, referring my Reader to the Descent before inserted, whereby the succession of them, may be seen: a word or two now, of William, his uncle, from whom they of Gzoby sprung, and so consequently those of Lamworth and I have done.

This William, being in Armes against the King, with the Barons in 48 H. 3. was taken ^z in Portsmouth the same year, at the assault thereof by the Royall Army: but in 50 H. 3. conforming himself to obedience, had pardon ^a, and was received to favour. By the gift of Margaret his Mother, one of the daughters and coheirs to Roger de Quincie Earl of Winchester, he had a grant ^b of the Mannour of Gzoby in Leicestershire, which came to her upon the partition of that inheritance; whercupon he payd a Fine ^c of xl. marks to the King, that he might hold it in Capite by the services antiently due, and did his Homage for the same; bearing for his Armes the Coat of the said Roger de Quinci, (sc. Gules seven Mascles voided Or) which his descendants continued till the male line of the elder House (viz. the Lord Ferrers of Chartley) became extinct, as hath been already observed. To which William who was dead ^d in 17 E. 1. succeeded William his son ^e and heir, summoned ^f to Parliament amongst the Peers in 25. E. 1. and afterwards, during his life, by the name of William de Ferrers de Gzoby Chivalier (being the first that brought the dignity of a Baron, to this branch of the Family,) and to him Henry, who married ^g Isabell the daughter and heir of Theobald Lord Verdon.

Which Henry, in consideration of his good and acceptable services performed to King Edward the third, as also his chargeable expences and frequent endeavours for the defence of his rights (as the words of the Pat. do import) had, by the consent of the Prelates, Earls, and Barons, assembled in Parliament at Westminster, by Letters Pat. ^h bearing date 18 Maii 11 E. 3. a grant from the said King, of the Mannours of Risebergh-Comitis in Buckinghamshire, Walton in Com. Derb. and Newport in Com. Essex, &c. to himself and the heirs male of his body; some whereof are to this day enjoyed accordingly: But forasmuch as the seat of this branch, was in Leicestershire, I shall not farther pursue the Story of them, having already inserted the Descent so far as the male line continued; chiefly because I am to discourse of the principall stem now remaining, when I come to Lamworth-Castle, where, to this day, it flourisheth.

And so, having already made my Apologie for this long digression, I must now step on the Northern side of Anker, forasmuch as the Mother-Churches, whereunto all those Villages and places of note, lying on this side the River, do or did antiently belong, are situate there.

Wedington.

BEfore the Norman invasion, this place was possessed ⁱ by one Hereuuarde; but after the Conquest, Robert Earl of Meilent had it, with many other Lordships aswell in this Countie as elsewhere; at which time, by the generall Survey, it ^k was rated for three Hides, having Woods that belong'd thereto, containing two furlongs in length and one in breadth, and all together valued at xxx s. but in that Record it is written Wattfune. That from this Earl of Meilent, it came to Henry de Neuburgh (his brother) the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman race, and that the progenitor of the Astleys had it with Astley and Will. Por-ton (both in this Countie) by grant from the said Earl in K. Henry the first's time, to be held by the service of one Kts. Fee, I have in Will. Por-ton and Astley already demonstrated; I shall now therefore take notice of what I find memorable thereof, during it's continuance in that Family, and the succession of it since, which, in brief, is as followeth; viz. That being seized into the King's hands for the Rebellion of Thomas de Astley, slain in the battail of Escham 49 H. 3. it was given ^l to Warine de Bassingburne, with Astley and all other his possessions then forfeited: but afterwards upon the Composition made by Andrew de Astley, son and heir to the said Thomas, according to the Dictum de Beniltwozth, the said Andrew had a grant thereof back, from the same Warine, which the King confirmed ^m.

Which Andrew, in 13 E. 1. clayming here by Prescription a Court Leet, Gallows, Free-warren, and Wayfs, had allowanceⁿ thereof: To whose Descendants it continued whilst the male line lasted; but then together with Astley, devolving to Grey, was inclosed^o, and for the most part depeopulated by Thomas Grey Marquess Dorset in 7 H. 7. who decayed^p ten Mesluages here, whereunto belonged CCC. acres of land: After which, his posteritie did not long enjoy it; for by the attainder^q of Henry D. of Suff. his grandson, it eschaeted to the Crown, and in 4. Eliz. was granted^r to Henry Earl of Huntingdon and his heirs, to be held in Capite by the xth. part of a Knight's Fee: of whom it was purchased (as I think) by Humphrey Adderley Esquire; for I find that the said Humphrey died^s seized of it in 41. Eliz. whose grandchild now enjoys it.

Caldecote.

A Bout a mile lower, stands Caldecote, possess^t by one Tonna in King Edw. the Confessor's days; but after the Norman Conquest, it came to the Bishop of Chester's hands, who held it when the generall Survey was made; at which time it was rated^x at two Hides, having a Church and a Mill, and Woods containing three furlongs in length and as much in breadth; all being valued at Lx s. How or when it went out of the hands of these Bishops, I have not seen, the next possess^y for thereof, of whom I find any mention, being^z William le Archer in 12 H. 3. Which William past^a it away the year ensuing, unto one William le Roux: From whom descended (as I suppose) Margerie le Russe, who in 32 E. 1. sold^b it to Robert de Herle; John Painell, son and heir to the said Margerie, releasing^c to the said Robert, all his title therein, as also to the advouson of the Church.

Unto whom succeeded Will. de Herle, which Will. died^d seized of this Mannour in 21 E. 3. leaving Robert his son and heir xxx. years of age, after- wards a Knight, who departed^e this life in 38 E. 3. Sir Raph Hastings Knight being then found his Co- sin and heir, scilicet, of Margaret, sister to the said Robert. Which Sir Raph, excepting the Advouson of the Church, within five years after aliened^f it to the Priests of the Collegiate Chapell of Hous- ley in *Leicester*shire, for four hundred pounds: whereunto it continued till the dissolution there- of by the Statute of 37 H. 8. But then, coming to the Crown, was by Letters^g Par. dated 6 Aug. 2 E. 6. past out (inter alia) to William Gyes of the Stronoe in Com. Midd. and Michaell Puresey of Whelleshope in Com. Leic. Gentlemen, and their heirs, to be held of the Mannour of Hether in Socage, without any Rent to be rendred for the same. Which Michaell being a younger^h son to Thomas Puresey of Dialton in Com. Leic. Es- quire, and marryingⁱ Joice the daughter and co- heir to John Herdwyk of Uindley in Com. Leic. Esquire, settled here, and left issue William his son and heir, John who resided at Hetherwhitacre; and George, who purchased Wolverhill in this Countie. Which William, by Catherine daughter to Sir William Wigston of Wolston Knight, had issue Francis his son and heir, who wedded Elia- nore the daughter to John Baskerville, and by her had issue William the present owner hereof, and reedifyer of the Mannour House with a fair stru- cture of brick and stone, where the Armes and mat- ches of his Family are in severall pieces of sculp- ture, very exactly represented.

The Church (dedicated to St. Theobald and St. Chad.) was in an. 1291 (19 E. 1.) valued^j at two marks; but in^k 26 H. 8. at vii l. xvi s. over and above vs. allowed for Procurations and Syn- odalls.

xl s. But before the Norman invasion one Sinward Barn was ownerⁿ of it, as also of som other lands in this Countie, that at the Conquest were in like manner disposed of to the before specified Henry de Ferriers: Which Sinward, being a potent Englishman, was kept Prisoner^o with divers other persons of qualitie, till the end of the Conqueror's reign, that the King, lying upon his death-bed, being moved with compunction for his hard dealing to the native English, gave order^p for their enlargement. Whether the before specified Thurstan, who held it in the Conqueror's time, were paternall ancestor to that Familie, which for many ages afterwards enjoy'd it, is hard to say, Roger de Grendon being the first that took his surname from hence in^q King Stephen's time. Which Roger, or his Father was originally enfeoff^t hereof in H. 1. time; yet not immediatly by Ferrers, but by^r Camvile, who (it seems) had the first grant of it from the said Henry or his son, to hold by the service^t of one Knight's Fee: But of Robert Marmion Lord of Warwiczth-Castle he held^u another Knights Fee (lying^w in Dozdon and Waberton) and to the Church of St. Leonard at Hoo, gave^x certain lands, which he held of the said Robert Marmion; as also to^y the Nuns of Polesworth, half a yard land in Waberton, leaving issue Richard de Grendon, who confirmed his said Father's grant, and for the health of his soul, and the soul of Margaret his wife, bestowed^z on the said Nuns half a yard land more, situate in the same Viliage, towards the support of their garments, being likewise a Benefactor^a to the Canons of Calc (near Repton) in Derbyshire.

To this Richard succeeded Sir Robert de Grendon Knight, who by Avicia the daughter of William de Bray, had issue Robert; which Robert, being heir^b to his said grandfather W. de Bray, became thereby possessor of Shenston, a fair Lordship in Staffordshire. After which, sc. in 20 and 25. H. 3. he was a Justice^c of Assize in this Countie. In 21 H. 3. he was in^d a Commission for collecting a Subsidie; and from 26 till 33 H. 3. inclusive, a Justice^e of Gaol-delivery at Warwick. In 34 H. 3. he was constituted^f Shirriff for the Counties of Salop. and Staff. as also Governour of^g the Castles of Salop. Wuges. and Ellesmeze; at which time he gave^h C. s. to the King for a Charter of Free-warren. In 37 H. 3. he was aⁱ Knight but afterward, either really, or in shew, an adherent to the rebellious Barons; for it appears that he had some speciall favour^k from them, in respect of a Debt that he owed to the Jews; and was by them constituted^l Shirriff of the Counties of Salop. and Staff. But if he were cordially theirs, he soon gave the King testimony of his more loyall affections; for it appears, that shortly after their overthrow in the battail of C-esham, he was join'd^m in authoritie with the Shirriff of this Countie, for the seizure of their lands and possessions, as also made a Commissionerⁿ for the Gaol-delivery at Warwick; and the next year following, having the King's speciall acknowledgement of his faithfull service, obtain'd^o respite^o for payment of those Debts, which were due from him to the Exchequer, for such money as he had received whilst he was Shirriff as abovesaid, having libertie to pay it by xxl. per an.

He was likewise a Benefactor^p to the before specified Chapell of St. Leonard at Hoo, in which the Nuns of Polesworth (for it belong'd to them) found two Priests perpetually celebrating divine service for the health of his soul. Of this Robert I farther find, that he contracted matrimony^q with one Joane le Butiller, yet did not thereupon receive her as his wife, which caused a controversy betwixt them in the Spirituall-Court: What he alleag'd in justification of himself, appears not; but by sentence^r of the Chief-Chanier of Lichfield, and others, it is evident that he was quit of her, and wedded^s Emme the daughter to William Bassett (of Sapcote) by whom he had^t in frank marriage, all her Father's lands in Houby, with the Homage and service of Sir Steph. de Segrave. To which last mentioned Sir Robert, succeeded Sir Raph de Grendon Knight, one of the Justices for^u the Gaol-deliverie at Warwick in 2 E. 1. Bewixt whom and Geffrey de Camvile, there grew certain differences, touching the services to be performed for this Lordship, which was held of the same Geffrey by one Knight's Fee, but in 4. E. 3. they came to an Agreement^w; sc. that the said Sir Raph and his heirs; should from thenceforth answer^x xl s. to the King, for Scutage, when it might happen, and according to that rate, doing Homage and paying Relief upon occasion; as also performing suit to the Court of the same Geffrey, at Clifton-Camvile, upon reasonable summons, whensoever any Triall might fortune to be there, by virtue of the King's Writ, or that a Thief was to be judged.

In 26 E. 1. this Sir Raphe had Summons^x, amongst sundry other great men, to be at Carleol on Whitson-Eve, well furnisht with Horse and Armes to march against the Scots. In 28 E. 1. he was^y a Knight. In 29 E. 1. he received another command^z to attend the King at Barwick upon Twede to march into Scotland. In 31 E. 1. having confirm'd^a to the Nuns of Polesworth those grants of his ancestors, made to the Chapel of Hoo before mentioned, he releas'd^b to them all the right he had in severall assarts of Woods and arable within the precincts of Polesworth; and departed^c this life in 5 E. 3. leaving Robert his son and heir, and a daughter called Joane, married to John Rockford Esquire. Which Robert was a man but of weak^d understanding, insomuch as Sir Roger and Sir Philip de Chetwin, with John de Freford, who had married his Aunts, alledging^e, that A. de Clinton second wife to old Sir Raph de Grendon, and mother to those three daughters, had a joint^f estate with her said husband in all his lands, challenged the inheritance of them (she being dead) from the before mentioned Robert, in right of their wives, by virtue of an Entail^g made in 27 E. 1. and accordingly entred^h upon them.

Whereupon the said Robert discerning, that he was like to be over-born by the subtilty of those his adversaries, resorted for refuge to Henry Duke of Lancaster (a potent man at that time) yeilding unto him the whole Mannour of Shenston, to hold for terme of his life, or the longer liver of them, conditionallyⁱ that he would protect him in the possession of this Mannour, and his lands at Gopshall and Dozdon, &c. All which being in like sort performed, the said^j Roger de Chetwynd, and Joane, quitted^k their interest to the same Robert, and his heirs in 17 E. 3. and so^l likewise did John de Freford and Margaret his wife, as also Alice the widow of Sir Philip Chetwynd in 19. E. 3. But afterwards, sc. about the 22th. of E. 3. the the said Robert died¹ without issue, so that the inheritance of these lands thereby descending to his nephew Sir Raph Rochford Knight (son of Joane the wife of John Rochford before specified) he the said Sir Raph entailed^m them upon the issue of his body by Joane the daughter of Sir Hugh Menill Knight, with remainder to his three sisters successively, and then to Sir Richard Stafford and his heirs: According to which entail, the possession thereof continued for divers years, untill at length Sir Raph Rochford being dead, the said Joane his wife marriedⁿ again to one Hugh de Asheby, with whom Sir William Chetwyn Knight (son and heir to the before mentioned Sir Philip) making an accord^o, became totally possessor thereof, having (in 39 E. 3.) compounded^p with Isabell the widow of John de Rochford for her title of dower therein, formerly granted to her by Sir Raph Rochford her son in Law.

After which he seated himself here, and in 16 R. 2. obtained a Licenseⁿ from the Bishop of Cob. and Uch. to have divine Service within a private Chapell for his House. But before I descend to speak farther of the said Sir William and his posteritie, I shall observe, that this Family hath been of great antiquity in Schropshire; scil. of Chetwynd, whence this their surname was first assumed, as also that John de Chetwynd, son^o of Adam, had a Charter^t of Free-warren in 37 H. 3. throughout all his demesne lands in the Counties of Salop. Staff. and Warwick; for he was possessor^t of Warterley in this Shire, at that time; havingⁿ likewise Ingestre, Salt, and Cretwich in Staffordshire, by Isabell the daughter and heir to Philip de Abuton, as it seems^o: But I return to the before specified Sir William, great-grandchild to the said John, in regard he was the first of this line that had to do here. Towards the latter end of King Edw. 3. reign, he was by Indentureⁿ retained with John of Gaunt Duke of Lanc. to serve him aswell in times of Peace as War, for ten marks per an. Which Indenture being lost, was again renewedⁿ by the said Duke in 50 E. 3. whereby he increased his Fee to ten pounds per an. W. C.

I am of opinion, that a great part of the Church, here at Orendon, was new built by the before-specified Sir William; for it is evident, that the pictures in glass of many of this Family in their tuncoats of Arms, were set up there about that time. This Sir William had issueⁿ Richard, of whom I find little memorable; and John^b: Which John, residing^c at Alspath (now called Mereden) was one of the chief persons in this Countie, that subscribedⁿ the Articles concluded of in the Parliament of 12 H. 6. and in 15 H. 6. served^c in Parliament as one of the Knights for this Shire, being from 17 till 20 H. 6. inclusive, in Commission^t for conservation of the Peace.

But to the said Richard, succeeded Philip his sonⁿ and heir, a person not a little eminent in his time; for in^b 7 H. 6. he had the Shireffaltie of Staffordshire; so also inⁱ 15 H. 6. being then a Knight. In 17 H. 6. he was employedⁿ into the Duchy of Guten, for the King's service, and in 20 H. 6. constituted^l Governour of the Citie of Baton in Normandie, being allowed 940 marks, to retain as many Archers for the safeguard thereof, as might be therewith hired for a quarter of a year. In 22 H. 6. he was retained with Humphrey Earl of Buckingham, to do him service during life, according to his degree, aswell in times of Peace as War; sc. in times of Peace, with as many men and Horses as he the said Earl should appoint, out of the said Earl's Lordship of Holderness in Yorkshire; as also taking bouche of Court and livery for them, in his Household, during such his continuance with him, and allowance of reasonable costs for his coming and returning, and in case the said Earl might be commanded in any service of War, on this side or beyond the Sea, upon reasonable warning to attend him, with such number of men at Arms and Archers, well and sufficiently armed, horsed, and arrayed after the manner of war, as he should assign; and receive the like wages and reward, as the said Earl did take of the King, or of any other his Captains in such expedition, with Skippeson and reskippeson reasonable, for himself, his men and Horses: but the said Earl to have the thirds of all manner of Prisoners and prizes, to be taken by him the said Sir Philip, through fortune of War; and the third of the thirds of all Prisoners, prizes, &c. taken by any of his men; the Indenture of that his Retainer, bearing date at London 13 Februarii the year above said.

Nay, it farther appears, that upon the same day, he was also retainedⁿ with that Earl, by another Indenture (wherein he is stiled the right mighty Prince Humphrey Earl of Buckingham, Hereford, Stafford, Northampton, and Perche, Lord of Wyecknock and of Holderness) then Captain of the Town and Castle of Calais, as his Lieutenant of that Castle, for one whole year, with xxix. men at Armes on Foot, and xx Archers; whereof two men at Armes on Foot and four Archers, to be of the said Sir Philip's own retinue; taking for himself xvi d. per diem; for his said men at Arms viii d. and his Archers vi d. at the hands of the Treasurer at War to the same Earl: And moreover, for himself, his Lady and a Gentlewoman, with her; and a Gentleman and two Yeomen of his own retinue, bouche of Court, and xx l. per an. of speciall reward, or else allowance for their bouch of Court, according as other souldiers of their degree used to have; as also for their skippeion and reskippeson.

And of this Sir Philip I farther find (which is not the least observable) that having wedded^o Elen the widow to Edmund Lord Ferrers of Chartley, daughter and heir to Thomas de la Roche, as also Cousin and heir to John de Bermingham (as in Bromwich appeareth) he empaledⁿ her Armes on the dexter part of his own; which, as I conceive, was for the dignitie of her person, she being a Baronesse, and so great an heir: and that he departed this^o life in 24 H. 6. leaving William, his grandchild, his Cousin and heir. Which William, afterwards one of the Gentlemen-Huissers of the Chamber to King H. 7. became so much envied by Sir Humphrey Stanley (then of Pipe in Com. Staff.) one of the Knights for the Body to same King, and Shireffⁿ of that Countie in 9 H. 7. as that, by means of a counterfeit Letter, in the name of Randolf Brereton Esquire, delivered on Friday night before the Feast of St. John Baptist's, Nativity requesting his meeting with him at Stafford the next morning by five of the Clock, being allured out of his House at Ingeltrie; and passing thither-wards accordingly, with no more attendance than his own son, and two servants; he was way-layed upon Wrbhall-Heath, by no less than xx. persons, whereof seven were of the said Sir Humphrey's own Familie, some with Bows, and other with Spears, all armed with Bregandines and Coats of Male; who, issuing out of a Sheep-coat, and a deep dry Pit, furiously assaulted him, saying, that he should die, and accordingly killed him, the said Sir Humphrey at that time passing by, with at least xxiii. persons on Horseback, upon pretence of hunting a Deer. All which, the Petition^r to the King, made by Alice his widow, wherein she craves that the same Sir Humphrey, and his said servants might answer for it, doth manifest. But what was done therein, I have not seen; neither any farther of his Descendants (forasmuch as their residence hath been, for the most part, in that Countie) other than what the Pedegree before inserted, sheweth.

The Church (dedicated to All Saints) was originally but a Chapell, and belonging to Oberton subt. Arden, in Com. Leic. (now called Oberton on the Hill) and therewith confirmed^r to the Monks of Wolverhampton in King H. 2. time, by Pope Lucius the third: but I do not find that it was ever appropriated to them, or that they continued long Patrons thereof, the Advowson having been for many ages, in the Lords of the Mannour. In an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) it was rated^u at xvi. marks, over and above half a mark, which the Parson of Oberton before specified, did receive out of it: and in 26 H. 8. at xx l. iii s. iii d. besides ix s. vi d. allowed for Procurations and Synodalls.

THAT this petty Village was originally a member of Grendon, within which Parish it lyes, and therewith involved in the Conqueror's Survey, I am fully satisfied; for part of it was given^x to the Monks of Merevale by Robert Earl Ferrers, upon his Foundation of that Monasterie; but the residue did the Family of Grendon, (owners of Grendon.) possesse^y, as a branch^a of that Lordship; which, in process of time, being granted away by some of the Lords of Grendon, came to be reputed a Mannour, one Margerie Ribbis in 6 R. 2. holding^a it, for life, by that name, the inheritance being^b in Sir Geffrey Fuliambe Knight, Which Sir Geffrey left issue^c Alice his daughter and heir, about a year old in 12 R. 2. Howbeit, after this I do not find it termed a Mannour; for upon the grant thereof from John Heklyng of Lyndeby Esquire and Joan his wife, unto William Repington of Amington in this Countie Esquire, in 13 H. 6. it passed^d by the name of ten Messuages CCCC. acres of land, xxx. acres of meadow, and xl. acres of pasture; from whom is descended Sir John Repington, now of Amington, Knight the present owner thereof.

That which the Monks of Merevale had here, yeilded^e Liii s. yearly Rent of Assize in 26 H. 8. but coming to the Crown by the dissolution of that Abby, was in 32 H. 8. granted^f with the site thereof, and a multitude of other lands, unto Sir Walter Devereux Knight, Lord Ferrers of Chartley, and so consequently devolved to Robert Earl of Essex, the present owner thereof, an. scil. 1640.

Polesworth.

NEXT below Grendon-Parish, is Polesworth situate, which containeth within its precincts divers Villages and places of note; scil. Badley-Endsor, Dordon, Frescley, Hall-end, Dodenhale, and Booley, on the South side of the River, with Stiperhill, Waberton, and Bramcote, on the North.

Of this place, though there be no particular mention in the Conquerour's Survey (as of divers the most antient Towns and Burroughs is not) yet, for antiquitie, and venerable esteem, needs it not give precedence, to any in this Countie; being honoured with the plantation of the first Religious-House therein, that was in all these parts; founded^g by King Egbert, our first English Monarch. But, before I farther proceed to speak thereof, I resolve here to take notice, of what I have seen most considerable, touching the antiquitie of a Monastick life, practised by women, as I have done in Cobentre for men; wherein I cannot discern, till towards the fourth Centurie, any thing thereof: For though a learned person^h observeth, that Non solum viri sed Mulieres, etiam Apostolorum Christi tempore ministerio Ecclesia addicebantur, yet he saith—Verum procedente tempore instituta sunt Collegia, seu Monasteria Virginum

Deo consecratarum, & solennibus votis obstrictarum: And that Marcella was the first, who began it in the Western Church, we have the testimonie ofⁱ St. Hieron; Marcella (saith he) in Occidente, circa an. CCCXL. Virginum & Viduarum didicit disciplinam; which kind of life was taught her by Athanasius, as Baronius^k affirms.

But, that they exercised it so soon, in that solemn manner, as in after times hath been used; viz. under the threefold Vow, of Povertie, Obedience, and Chastitie, cannot be made good: For cleer it is, from the testimonie of an authentick Writer^l, that St. Benedikt first prescribed that Rule—Benedictus, cum sorore Scholasticâ, primus Regularem vitam certis Legibus, & ordinibus (cum hæcenus seorsim liberè Christo inservissent) inceperit; which Rule came in time, to have that venerable esteem, that as Baronius^m tells us, In Liptinenſi Concilio (in Cameracensi Gallie agro) sanctum est, ut Monachi ac Nonne, juxta Regulam S. Benedicti Cœnobîa sua ordinarerent.

The first Monasterie of Nuns, which we had here in England, was that of Berking in Essex, foundedⁿ by Erkenwald, Bishop of London, about the year of Christ DCLXVI. long before the reception of St. Benet's Rule, in this Nation.

I now come to this of Polesworth; and in the first place shall take notice upon what occasion^o it was founded, and then go on to shew the endowment thereof, with lands, &c.

King Egbert, having one onely son, called Arnulph, who was a Leper; and hearing by a Bishop, which came from Ireland, that the then King of Connaught had a Nun to his daughter, called Modwen, that healed all diseased people repairing to her, sent his said son, at the perswasion of that Bishop, into Ireland, where he was accordingly cured by the same holy Woman: which great favour to pleased King Egbert, that he forthwith invited St. Modwen to come into England, promising that he would found a Monasterie for her and her Covent: Of which tender, she soon after accepted, forasmuch as the Religious House, wherein she resided, was by Wars betwixt those petty Kings of Ireland, burnt and wasted; and brought over with her, two of her fellow Nuns. Whereupon the King, having a great opinion of her sanctitie, recommended his daughter Edith unto her, to be instructed in Religion after the Rule of St. Benet, giving her a dwelling place in the Forest of Arderne, then called Trensale, where the said Edith, together with St. Lyne, and St. Osihe, lived together in a holy manner; and soon after, founded a Monasterie for them, on the bank of the River Anker, at this place called Pollysworth; the first syllable Pol, importing a deepness of Water, and the other, scil. Worth, a dwelling or habitation; constituting the said Edith Abbess thereof.

Which Monasterie, being so founded and endowed, continued to her and her successors till the Norman Conquest, that Sir Robert Marmion, having the Castle of Tamworth, and the territories thereabouts, bestowed upon him by the Conqueror, expelled the Nunns from hence, so that they were constrained to resort to Olbury (a Cell belonging to this House.) But within the compass of a twelve month after this their expulsion, the said R. Marmion, making a costly entertainment at Tam- wozth-Castle, for divers of his friends, amongst which was Sir Walter de Somerville, Lord of Whitch-noure, his sworn-brother; it hapned that as he lay in his Bed, S^t Edith appeared to him in the habite of a veiled Nunne, with a Crofier in her hand, and advertised him, that if he did not restore the Abby of Poleswozth unto her successors, he should have an evill death, and go to Hell; and to the end that he should be the more sensible of this admonition, she smote him on the side, with the point of her said Crofier, and so vanished away: By which stroke, being much wounded, he cryed out; whereupon his Friends in the House were soon raised, and finding him grievously tormented with the pain of his wound, they advised him to confesse himself to a Priest, and make a Vow to restore those Nunns to their former possessions: All which being performed, his pain presently ceased; wherefore in accomplishment of his vow, accompanied with the same Sir Walter de Somerville and the rest, he forthwith rode to Odbury, and craving pardon of the Nunns, for the injury done to them, brought them back hither, desiring that himself and the same Sir Walter de Somerville, might be their Patrons, and have buriall for themselves and their heirs in this Abby, viz. the Marmions in the Chapter-house, and the Somervilles in their Cloister.

Ordinis Benedictini monialis.

I shall not take upon me to censure the truth of this Storie, as to the substance of it; but in circumstance; perhaps there may be some mistakes therein; for by an Author^p, who more compendiously speaks thereof, it is referr'd to King Ethelwolph (son to K. Egbert) whose son Alured, languishing of a desperate infirmity, was thus cured by S. Modwene; whereupon he gave unto her, lands in this Realm, for the founding of two Monasteries of Nunns, one, here in Arden, at Poleswozth, wherein (as he saith) Osithe and Athea, two holy Virgins, and S. Edith, sister to the said King Ethelwolph, dwelt, and the other at Streneshale.

But of their going to Odbury, and bringing back hither, I shall not make any question, though the appartion of S. Edith, with her Crofier, may be doubted; forasmuch as the words of Robert Marmion's Charter, and Milisent his wife, do import no lesse, which I have here transcribed^q — Notum sit omnibus, me concessisse Osanna Priorisse, ad religionem instaurandam Sanctimonialium ibi, Ecclesiam S. Edithæ de Pollesworda, cum pertinentiis, ita quod Conventus de Aldeberia ibi sit manens. Hence it is, as I guess, that this Robert Marmion and his wife are by the learned Leland, accounted to have been Founders thereof: in which repute I shall leave them, forasmuch as it also appears^r, that they gave the town of Poleswozth totally thereto, with their whole demesnes in Waberton; all which were confirmed by King Stephen.

I shall now descend to such other Benefactors, as these Nunns had; the next and chiefest whereof, was Walter de Hastings, who gave^t Odbury unto them (it being a Cell to this Monasterie, as I have already observed.) After which, they had^u, by Robert Marmion, son to the before-specified Robert and Milisent, the Church of Queinton in Gloucestershire (which in 12 R. 2. they procured to be appropriate^u to them.) As also the Mill at Kingsburie, called Hemlingford-Mill, with certain Meadow-ground and other lands, by^w Robert Fitz-Walter and Amabil his wife, one of the coheirs unto Osbert de Arden: and moreover, a Mill at Harlep, given^x by Alice, sister to the said Amabil, then wife of Simon de Harecurt; both which were confirmed by Raphe de Braccbrigge, afterwards Lord of that Mannour. In Dalston, in Com. Leic. they had a good proportion of land, given^y by Picot Archer, in H. 2. time, and confirmed^z by Robert then Earl of Leicester; with a farther augmentation^a by William de Trumpinton. In Burdingburie (in this Countie) certain lands, by^b Edelina, sister to Robert Boteler of Angleby, for the souls health of Walter de Somerville her husband. The Church of Barwell in Leicestershire, by^c Erneburga the mother of William de Hastings: the Church of Andley in this Countie, by^d William the son of Robert de Hardreshull: Certain lands in Bromcote by^e William Fitz-Walkeline of Bromcote, which were confirm'd by Robert his son and heir, in consideration that these Nunns allowed him to have a Chantrie in his Chapell at Bromcote: Whereunto Robert de Grendon, in 32 E. 1. added^f a yard-land and certain Messuages lying in the same Village.

All those lands called Coppenhull (neer Shutenton) given by^g William Burdet; which Hugh, his son, confirmed temp. H. 2. A yard land in Sirefscote by^h Roger the son of Walter de Somerville. Certain lands in Snarkeston (Com. Leic.) which William de Appilby gaveⁱ, together with his body to sepulture in this Monasterie, &c which were confirmed^k by Will. de Charnells and Clementia his wife. The Mill of Fresfeley, and a proportion of land there, by^l Robert de Kaily, with addition^m of more, by Sir Jordan de Whitacre Knight, and Will. Savage, which William gaveⁿ also certain lands in Dodenhale, as also all the ground he had in Pobele-Wood, where the Chapell above S. Edith's Well was built. In Bromcote they had an yearly Rent of xx s. given^o to them by Eustace de Morlein, for the health of his soul, and the soul of Hillaria his wife; upon condition, that if they did enjoy those lands in Shotswell, whereof he made them a grant, that then they should not challenge this Annuity. From Raphe Lord Basset of Dalston, they had^p an annuall Rent of a mark of silver, for the enlarging of their Diet, upon the day of S. John Baptist's Nativity, in honour of that Festivall. In Porton (now Hoggs-Porton) a Carucate of land, given by^q Robert de Gresele, and a yard-land^r by Geffrey de Greseley, with certain Rents, as also the Homage and services of sundry persons: and in Harlaston the Rent of v s. yearly, given^s by William de Vernun, for the maintenance of a Lampe to burn every night in the Chapter-house, here at Poleswozth.

The Chapell of Hoo, with a certain proportion of land thereto belonging, and set forth by metes and bounds, given^t by Robert de Grendon (Lord of Grendon) in consideration whereof, the said Nunns were to find two Priests, to celebrate divine Service therein, for the health of his soul, and for the soul of William de Bray (his grandfather) and for all the faithfull deceased. In Austrey, they had lands given^u to them by Hugh de Hatton. In Pe-ther-Whitacre a yard land by^w Robert Marmion, Lord of that Mannour. In Glascote a good proportion by^x William le Franceis. In Sutton, by Thomas de Overton: In Dakinton by^y Cecelis de Limse, and Robert de Somerville: In Durandsthorpe, by^z Geffrey de Bec: In Appilby, by^a Margaret Banaster: In Snarkeston, by^b Robert de Motun. The Church of Etton (scil. Church-Etton, in Com. Staff.) given^d by Robert de Brienton, heir to Edeline, by the consent of Eve his wife. A Rent of two marks per annum issuing out of Cobentre, given^e by Ranulph Earl of Chester:

Five shillings Rent per annum in Shukbozough,
by^f Isabell de Sumerville: A messuage, with a yard-land and a Cottage, lying in Whichnoure,^g by Robert de Sumerville. In Wadlep a Messuage, with half a yard land given^h to the Chapell there (belonging to those Nunns) by Richard de Hertull:
The Mill at Swepton byⁱ William de Charnells:
And of later time, six Messuages, Lx. acres of land
and three acres of Meadow, lying in Polestworth, Dodenhale, and Womcote, given^k by Richard de Dodenhale Merchant of Cobentre. But sundry other petty parcells, in severall other places, for brevities sake, I omit.

And that there might be nothing wanting to them, aswell for their conveniencies as necessities, they obtained a speciall Charter^l from King H. 3.
for a weekly Mercate, here at Polestworth, upon the Thursday, and a Faire once every year, to last for three days, beginning on the Eve of S. Margu- ret (scil. 13. Kal. Julii) with immunitie^m for themselves, their servants and Tenants, from attendance at the Countie or Hundred-Courts, as also the Shiriffs Turn, with power to holdⁿ a Court-Leet for all their Tenants owing suit to the Court at Polestworth; and other privileges.

All which Lands, Rents, &c. before specified, by the Survey made in 26 H. 8. were valued at Cix
li. vi s. vi d. Out of which xxvi s. viii d. yearly, being deducted for Almes given to the poor, on Maunday-Thursday, at the washing of their Feet;
and xxvi s. per annum, for three Bushells of Rye at vi d. a Bushell, made into Bread, and distributed weekly throughout the year, to poor people at the Gate of the Monasterie; and xxv s. per annum, for the Fee of Sir John Willoughby Knight, then high Steward thereof; and severall other constant payments, viz. of Rents, wages, and Pensions, which, altogether amounted to xxvii li. x s. iii d. left the clear yearly value, as the Commissioners at that time certified, no more than Lxxxvii li. xvi s. iii d.
So that, being under CCli. it was by the Statute of 27 H. 8. then lyable to dissolution; yet for some respects, it was permitted to stand, till the generall destruction of all the great Houses in 30
H. 8. at which time the Nunns here being, subscribed an Instrument^o, dated ult. Jan. 30 H. 8.
whereunto their Conventuall Seal was affixt; whose names, with the Pensions^p allowed to each of them during life, I have here added.

And now before I proceed farther, I shall here make bold to observe what I find signified^a by the Commissioners, who were employed to take Surrender of the Monasteries in this Shire Anno 29 H. 8.
viz. that after strict scrutinie, not only by the Fame
of the Countie, but by examination of severall persons, they found these Nunns Vertuous and Religious Women, and of good conversation, Alice Fitz-Her- bert being then Abbess, (having so continued for xxvii. years) and at that time Lx. years of age:
And that in this town were then Xliv. Tenements,
and but one Plough, the residue of the Inhabitants bring Artificers, who had their livelihood by this House: imploring the mediation of T. Cromwell, (for to him it was that they wrote) that it might not be supprest: wherein as they alledg'd, he might do a right good and meritorious deed. The names of those Commissioners, being John Grevill, Simon Mounsfort, Thomas Holt, Roger Wygton, George Giffard, and Roger Burgoin, as their Letter dated at Marstoke-Priorie, 28. Julii testifieth.

Nevertheless, it was not the strict and regular lives of these devout Ladies; nor any thing that might be said in the behalf of the Monasteries, that could prevent their ruine then approaching, so great an aime had the King to make himself thereby glorious, and many others no lesse hopes to be enricht in a considerable manner: But, to the end that such a change should not overwhelm those that might be active therein; in regard the People every where had no small esteem of these Houses for their devout and daily exercises in Prayer, Almshouses, Hospitality, and the like; whereby not only the souls of their deceased Ancestors had much benefit, as then was taught, but themselves, the Poor, as also Strangers, and Pilgrims constant advantage, there wanted not the most subtil contrivances to effect this stupendious work, that (I think) any age hath beheld; whereof it will not be thought impertinent, I presume, to take here a short view.

In order therefore to it, was that which Cardinal Woolsey had done, for the founding of his Colledges in Oxford and Ipswich, made a President; viz. the dissolving of above xxx. Religious Houses (most very small ones) by the Licence of the King and Pope (Clement the 7th). And that it might be the better carried on M^r Thomas Cromwell, who had been an old servant to the Cardinal, and not a little active in that, was the chief person pitched upon, to assist therein: For I look upon this business, as not originally designed by the King; but by some principall ambitious men of that age, who projected to themselves all worldly advantages imaginable, through that deluge of wealth, which was like to flow amongst them by this hideous storm.

First therefore, having insinuated to the King matter of Profit and Honour; scil. Profit by so vast an enlargement of his revenue; And Honour in being able to maintain mighty Armies to recover his rights in France; as also to strengthen himself against the Pope, whose Supremacie he had abolished, and make the firmer alliance with such Princes as had done the like, did they procure Cromwell's advancement to the See of Canterbury, and more of the Protestant Clergie (as my authoritie termes them) to other Bishopricks, and high places; to the end that the rest should not be able in a full Councell to carry any thing against their design; sending out Preachers to persuade the People, that they should stand fast to the King, without fear of the Pope's curse, or his dissolving their allegiance.

Next, that it might be the more plausibly carried on, care was taken so to represent the lives of the Monks, Nuns, Canons, &c. to the world, as that the lesse regret might be made at their ruine: To which purpose T. Cromwell being constituted general Visitor, employed sundry persons, who acted their parts therein accordingly; viz. Richard Lupton, Thomas Legh, and William Petre Doctors of Law, D^r John London Dean of Wallingford, and others; to whom he gave Instructions in Lxxxvi. Articles; by which they were to enquire into the Government and behaviour of the Religious of both sexes: which Commissioners, the better to manage the designe, gave encouragement to the Monks, not only to accuse their Governours, but to informe against each other; compelling them also to produce the Charters and Evidences of their lands, as also their plate and money, and to give an Inventorie thereof. And hereunto did they adde certain Injunctions from the King, containing most severe and strict Rules; by means whereof divers being found obnoxious to their censure, were expelled; and many discerning themselves not able to live free from some exception or advantage, that might be taken against them, desired to leave their Habit.

And having by these Visitors thus searcht into their lives; which by a Black Book containing a world of enormities, were represented in no small measure scandalous; to the end that the People might be the better satisfied with their proceedings, it was thought convenient to suggest, that the lesser Houses, for want of good government, were chiefly guilty of these Crimes that were layd to their charge: and so they did, as appears by the Preamble of that Act for their dissolution, made in 27 H. 8. which Parliament, consisting for the most part of such members as were packt for the purpose, through private interest; as is evident by divers original Letters of that time, many of the Nobility, for the like respects also favouring the design, assented to the suppressing of all such Houses, as had been certified of little value then CC li. per annum, and giving them, with their lands and revenues to the King; yet so as not only the Religious persons therein should be committed to the great and honourable Monasteries of this Realme, where they might be compelled to live religiously for reformation of their lives; wherein, thanks be to God, Religion is well kept and observed (as are the very words of that Act) but that the possessions belonging to such Houses should be converted to better uses, to the pleasure of Almighty God, and to the honour and profit of the Realme.

But how well the tenour thereof was pursued, we shall soon see; these specious pretences being made use of for no other purpose, than by opening this gap, to make way for the totall ruine of the greater Houses, wherein it is by the said Act acknowledged that Religion was so well observed. For no sooner were the Monks, &c. turn'd out; and the Houses demolish'd; (that being it which was first thought requisite, least some accidentall change might conduce to their restitution) but care was taken to prefer such persons to the superioritie in government, upon any Vacancie of those greater Houses, as might be instrumentall to their surrender, by persuading with the Covent to that purpose; whose activeness was such, that within the space of two years, severall Covents were wrought upon, and Commissioners sent down to take them at their hands to the King's use: Of which number I finde, that besides the before specified Doctors of Law (scil. Legh, Petre, and Layton, and D^r London D. of Wallingford) there was Robert Earl of Suffolke, Sir John S. Clere, Sir William Pirton, Sir Henry Farrington Knights, and Richard Deveraux, sometime a Frier: And of Gentlemen, Anthony Fitz-Herbert (afterwards one of the Justices of the Common Pleas) John Gage, William Leyland, John Williams, Thomas Mildmay, Jobson, Richard Cromwell, Robert Southwell, William Parr, Thomas Bedyll, Henry Polsted, John Anthony, Edmund Knightly, John Lane, George Giffard, John Grevill, Simon Mountfort, Thomas Holt, Roger Wigston, Robert Burgoin, Richard Pollard, Philip Parys, John Smuh, Edward Carne, Richard Gwent, William Berners, John Arnold, John ap Rice, and Richard Paulet.

The truth is, that there was no omission of any endeavour, that can well be imagined, to accomplish these Surrenders, For so subtilly did the Commissioners act their parts, as that after earnest solicitation with the Abbots, and finding them backwards, they first attempted them with the promises of good Pensions, during life; whereby they found some forwards enough to promote the work, as the Abbot of Bales in Com. Glouc. was, who had had high commendation for it by the Commissioners, as their Letters^r to the Visitor Generall do manifest: So likewise had^t the Abbots of Ramsay, and Prior of Elp. Nay, some were so obsequious, that after they had wrought the surrender of their own Houses, they were employed^t as Commissioners to perswade with others, as the Prior of Offburne in Yorkshire, for one.

Neither were the Courtiers unactive in driving on this work, as may seem by the Lord Chancelour Audley's employing a speciall Agent to^u treat with the Abbot of Athelney, and to offer him C. marks per annum Pension, in case he would surrender; which the Abbot refused, insisting on a greater summe: And the personall endeavours that he used with the Abbot of S. Osithes in Essex, as by his Letter^w to the said Visitor appeareth; wherein is signified, that he had by great solicitation prevailed with the said Abbot; but withall insinuated his desire, that his place of Lord Chancelour being very chargeable, the King might be moved for an addition of some more profitable Offices unto him. Nay, I find that this great man the Lord Chancelour hunting eagerly after the Abby of Walden in Essex (out of the ruines whereof, afterwards, that magnificent Fabrick, called by the name of Audley-end was built) as an argument the sooner to obtain it, did, besides his extenuation of its worth, alledge^x, that he had in this world sustained great damage and infamy in his serving the King, which the grant of that should recompence.

Amongst the particular Arguments, which were used by those that were averse to surrender, I finde^y, that the Abbot of Feverham alledg'd the antiquitie of that Monasterie's foundation; scil. by King Stephen, whose body, with the bodies of the Queen and Prince lay there interred, and for whom were used continuall suffrages and commendations by Prayers; yet would it not avails: For resolv'd they were to effect what they had begun, by one means or other; in so much as they procured the Bishop of London to come to the Nunns of Slon, with their Contessor, to sollicite them thereto; who, after many perswasions^z took it upon their consciences, that they ought to submit unto the King's pleasure therein by God's Law. But what could not be effected by such Arguments, and fair promises, which were not wanting nor unfulfilled, as appears by the large Pensions^a that some active Monks and Canons had, in comparison of others, even to a fift & sixt fold proportion more than ordinarie, was by terror and straight dealing brought to pass; for^b under pretence of suffering dilapidation in the buildings, or negligent administration of their Offices; as also for breaking the King's Injunctions, they deprived^c some Abbots, and then put others that were more pliant in their rooms.

From others they took^d their Covent-Seals, to the end they might not, by making Leases, nor sale of their Jewells raise money, either for supply of their present wants, or payment of their debts, and so be necessitated to surrender. Nay to some, as in particular to the Canons of Leicester, the Commissioners threatned^e, that they would charge them with Adulterie, and Buggerie, unless they would submit: And D. London told^f the Nuns of Godstow, that because he found them obstinate, he would dissolve the House, by vertue of the King's Commission, in spite of their teeth. And yet all was so managed^g, as that the King was solicited to accept of them, not being willing to have it thought they were by terror moved thereto; and speciall notice^h was taken of them as did give out that their Surrenders were by compulsion.

Which courses, after so many, through underhand corruption, had led the way, brought on others apace, as appears by their dates, which I have observed from the very Instrumentsⁱ themselves; in so much as the rest stood amazed, not knowing which way to turn them. Some therefore thought fit to trie, whether money might save their Houses from this dismall fate so neer at hand, the Abbot of Peterborough offering^k 2500. marks to the King, and 300 li. to the Visitor Generall for his favour therein. Others with great constancy refused to be thus accessorie in violating the donations of their pious Founders: but these, as they were not many, so did they tast of no little severitie: For touching the Abbot of Fountaines, in Yorkshire, I find^l, that being charged by the Commissioners for taking into his private hands some Jewells belonging to that Monasterie, which they called Theft and Sacriledge, they pronounc'd him perjur'd, and so deposing him, extorted a private resignation. And it appears^m, that the Monks of Charterhouse, in the Suburbs of London, were committed to Belgate; where, with hard and barbarous usage five of them died, and five more lay at the point of death; as the Commissioners signifiedⁿ; but withall alledged^o, that the suppression of that House, being of so strict a Rule, would occasion great scandall to their doings, soasmuch as it stood in the face of the world, infinite concourse from all parts coming to that populous City, and therefore desired that it might be altered to some other use. And lastly, that^p under the like pretence of robbing the Church (wherewith the before specified Abbot of Fountaines was charged) the Abbot of Glaffenbury, with two of his Monks, being condemn'd to death, was drawn from Wells upon a Hurdle, then hang'd upon the Hill called the Dor (near Glaffenbury) his Head set upon the Abbey-gate, and his Quarters disposed of to Wells, Bath, Gloucester, and Widewater. Nor did the Abbots of Colchester and Reading speed much better, as they that shall consult our Storie^q of that time, may see: And for farther terror to the rest, some Priors, and other Ecclesiastique persons, who had spoke against the King's Supremacie (a thing then somewhat uncouth, being so newly set up) were condemn'd^r as Traytors and executed.

And now that all this was effected; to the end it might not be thought, that these things were done by a high hand, the King having^s protested that he would suppress none without consent of Parliament, a Parliament^t being called April 28. Anno 1539. to confirm these Surrenders so made, as hath been said, there wanted not plausible insinuations to both Houses, for drawing on their consent with all smoothness thereto; the Nobilitie being promised large shares in the spoile, either by free gift from the King, easie purchases, or most advantageous Exchanges; and many of the active Gentrie, advancements to honour, with increase of their estates: all which, wee see, happened to them accordingly: And the better to satisfie the vulgar, was it represented^u to them, that by this degluge of wealth the Kingdom should be strengthened with an Army of 40000 men, and that for the future they should never be charged with Subsidies, Fifteens, Loans or common Aides. By which means the Parliament ratifying the before specified surrenders;

renders; the worke became compleated; for the more firme feeling whereof, a suddain course was taken to pull down and destroy the buildings, as had been before upon that dissolution of the smaller Houses, whereof I have touch't: Next to disperse a great proportion of the lands amongst the Nobility and Gentry, as had been projected, which was accordingly done^w; the Visitor Generall having told^x the King, that the more had interest in them, the more they would be irrevocable.

And least any domestique stirs, by reason of this great and strange alteration should arise, rumors^y were spread, that Cardinall Poole laboured with divers Princes to procure forces against this Realme, and that an Invasion was threatned; which seemed the more credible, because the Truce concluded betwixt the Emperour and the French King was generally known, neither of them wanting pretence to bring an Army hither. And this was also seconded by a suddain journey of the King unto the Sea-coast; unto divers parts whereof he had sent sundry of the Nobles and expert persons to visit the Ports and places of danger; who failed not for their discharge, upon all event to affirme the perill in each place to be so great, as one would have thought every place had needed Fortification. Besides, he forthwith caused his Navy to be in a readines, and Musters to be taken over all the Kingdom: All which preparations being made against a danger believed imminent, seemed so to excuse this suppression of the Abbies, as that the people, willing to spare their own purses, began to suffer it easily, especially when they saw order taken for building of such Forts.

But let us look a little upon the success; wherein I find^z, that the said Visitor Generall (the grand Actor in this tragique buisnesse) having contracted upon himself such an Odium from the Nobilitie, by reason of his low birth, though not long before made Knight of the Garter, Earl of Essex, and Lord high Chamberlain of England; as also from the Catholiques, for having thus operated in the dissolution of the Abbies, that before the end of the before specified Parl. wherein that was ratified, which he had with so much industrie brought to pass; the King, not having any more use of him, gave way to his Enemies accusations; whereupon, being arrested^a by the Duke of Norff at the Council-Table, when he least dream't of it, and committed to the Tower, he was condemn'd^b by the same Parliament for Heresie and Treason, unheard, and little pittied; and on xxviiith of July, viz. 4. days after the Parliament was dissolved, had his Head^c cut off on Tower-Hill. Nor did many of the Reformers speed much better; for Fire and Fagot hapned to be their portion, even within the same King's time, as whosoever looks into the Storie of those days may see.

And as for the fruit, which the people reapt, after all their hopes built upon those specious pretences, which I have instanc't, it was very little: For plain^d it is, that Subsidies from the Clergie, and Fifteens of all Lay mens goods were soon after exacted: And that in Edward 6. time the Commons were constrain'd to supply^e the King's wants by a new invention, viz. Sheep, Cloathes, Goods, Debts, &c. for three years: which Tax grew so heavy, that the year following they prayed^f the King for mitigation thereof. Nor is it a little observable, that whil'st the Monasteries stood, there was no Act for relief of the Poor, so amply did those Houses give succour to them that were in want; whereas in the next age, viz. 39th Eliz. no lesse than xi. Bills were brought into the House of Commons, for that purpose.

But fearing that this digression hath been too tedious, I returne.

These Nunnis, being thus disposed of, and the House demolish'd, it was not long ere that the lands were dispersed; for in 36 H. 8. the site and demesns, with the whole Lordship of Polesworth, were sold^g to Francis Goodere Gentleman, which Francis had issue Sir Henry Goodere Knight his son and heir (a Gentleman much accomplisht, and of eminent note in this Countie, whilst he lived; having suffred imprisonment^h in behalf of that magnanimous Ladie, Marie Queen of Scotland, of whom he was a great honourer) who had issue two daughters only, scil. Frances and Anne, the one married to Sir Henry Goodere Knight, son and heir to Sir William (brother to the before specified Sir Henry) the other to Henry Rainsford of Cliffe foyd in Com. Glouc. Which last mentioned Sir H. Goodere, left four daughters, viz. Lucie married to Sir Francis Netherfole Knight, a Kentish Gentleman of an antient House, sometime Orator for the Universitie of Cambridge, and at the time of that his marriage, Agent for K. James with the Princes of the Union in Germany (of whom the King of Bohemia was chief) as also Secretarie to the Q. of Bohemia, and by them often employed back again to the Court of England, where he was of note by his actings and sufferings in their Majesties service.

The other, viz. Elizabeth, to Samuel Roper, a Counciller at Law, of Lincolns-Inne (of whom I have made mention in Donk. Kirby) Mary to Samuel Hilderham, a worthy Divine, Rector of West-Felton in Com. Salop. and Anne to John Kingston D. of Physick.

Which Sir Francis, at the speciall instance of his said Lady, who bore a great affection to this Town, in regard it had been posselt by her Family from her great-grandfather's time, having erected a convenient fabrick of stone, therein, for a School-House, on the front whereof both his own and her Arms are cut, with this Inscription, Soli Deo Gloria.

In further accomplishment of her pious desires, hath lately enfeofed six gentlemen of the Countrey thereabouts, and seven Divines, of the impropriate Tithes of Waberton, Dorbon and Dooley, as also of a Rent-charge of xl. marks per annum issuing out of Wolt-Hall, and Freasley, and six yard land in Waberton before specified, all of the yearly value of Cxlii. per annum at the least (which is more than the whole impropriate Tithes of this Parish do amount unto) for a liberall maintenance of a Schoolmaster and Schoolmistris to teach the Children of the Parish, viz. the Boys to write and read English, and the Girles to read and work with the Needle, and both to be instructed in the principles of the true Christian Religion: And the residue to be employed to such charitable uses, as he may in his life time finde most conducing to advance the knowledge and practise of true Religion, and most beneficiall to the Poor of this place; and afterwards as he shall by his last Will and Testament declare: And in default of his so doing, that his said Trustees, or the major part of them, may increase the maintenance of the Vicar of Polesworth for the time being, for whom he is now building a fair House, there; or set up another School to teach the three learned Languages to the Youth of this Parish; or relieve poor Widows and Fatherless Children of deceased Mini-ars aforesaid, towards the sending them to the Universitie of Cambridge, and to be there maintained, as they shall finde most expedient in all, or any of these, and likely to be continued in perpetuity.

The Church (dedicated to S. Edith) was in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) rated at xxii. marks; but the Vicaridge at no more than one mark: which Vicaridge in 26 H. 8. was valued^k at X. li. over and above two shillings allowed for Procurations and Synodalls. I am of opinion, that the faire Spiresteeple here, was built by the last Sir Richard Herrhull of Polesworth, about King Ric. 2. time; partly for that I finde on each side the same, a little below the Embattlements, the Coat of Herrhull, cut in large Shields, upon the Freeze; and partly for that the caryed work on the Buttresses, resembleth that,
which is upon his Monument within the Church.

The Chapell of Hoo, } situate betwixt Polesworth and Grendon.

THis (now demolish'd) was dedicated to S. Leonard, and endowed with land by Roger de Grendon, in King H. I. or King Stephen's time, whose successors had the patronage thereof, Roger de Grendon, a younger son of that Familie, being admitted there to by G. Muschamp Bishop of Coventre and Litchfield, in King John's time, at the presentation of Sir Robert de Grendon Knight, whose son, scil. Robert, gave it to the Nunns of Polesworth (as in my discourse of him in Grendon, I have already shewed) for the mainenance of two Priests to celebrate Divine Service daily therein, for the soul of the said Robert, and of William de Bray (his Grandfather, by the mother) sometime Lord of Shenston, and all the faithfull deceased: Which service was accordingly performed, till the dissolution of that Monasterie; for in 26 H. 8. it appears, that the Priests serving therein had a Stipend of ten pounds per annum.

THis is now commonly reputed a Parish of it self, but is, in truth, a member of Polesworth, and in the Conqueror's Survey written Beddeslei, being then certified to contain two hides, having Woods of a mile and a half in length, and half a mile in breadth, all which were then valued at x s. In King Edward the Confessor's days, one Brietric had it; but at the time of the before specified Survey, Turchil de Warwic was possessor thereof, whose Tenants then held it: Soon after which, it came to Henry de Newburgh, the first Earl of Warwick of the Norman line, as the most of the said Turchil's lands did, and was given to the Monks of Geroudon in Com. Leic: by Roger Earl of Warwick, son and successor to the said Henry; which Monks, within a short time after, rendered all their right therein, to William Earl of Warwick, son and heir to the same Roger; in consideration whereof, he gave them ten marks of silver, and released to them the service of half a Knight's Fee, due from Geoffrey de Clinton, and Robert de Burton, and their heirs, for that part of Abtroke, which the said Monks held: So that in 12 H. 2. the said Earl, having it in his own hand, past it soon after, to Helias the son of Geoffrey Sauvage: which Helias died without issue (as I guess) for it appears that the same Earl confirm'd it to Geoffrey Sauvage, Brother to the said Helias & his heirs, to be held by the service of one Knight's Fee.

On the South side of this Church, there is a place for the including of an Anchoreße, of which there was one, called Margaret Salie, who had a Confessor assigned * to her by the Bishop in 35 H. 6.

Before I proceed to speak of the particular Hamlets, formerly mentioned, I must take notice of two other places, situate within the precincts of Polesworth only; the one called the Heremitage, and the other, the Chapell of Hoo.

The Heremitage.

In a window of this Heremitage.

THis, being built of Stone, is still extant, and near the Road-way leading from Polesworth to Tamworth; under the end whereof, is a fair Spring, running from a Rock; which Spring I take to be it whereof I have already made mention by the name of S. Edith's Well in bosco de Poble; for the grounds thereabouts were an Out-wood, Pooley-Park being not made till King Henry the seventh's time, as I shall shew anon. Those of Sauvage, to Ednesfure, (and thereupon had the addition of that name, for distinction thereof from another Wadney in this Countie) as the Descent in Waginton will succinctly shew: as also that it diuolued to Hertull, and from Hertull to Cokain, by the like means. Which Family of Cokain had their chief seat at Pooley in this Countie (where I have placed their Descent) and continued Lords hereof, till that Edward Cokain Esquire (afterwards Knight) about the beginning of King James his reign, sold the Mannour and some Fermes to Francis Leving Gentleman (whose son and heir Thomas now enjoys it) and the rest to severall other persons.

Here is an ancient Chapell, dedicated to S. Nicholas, which belong'd to the Nunns of Polesworth, and had a Messuage and half a yard-land pertaining thereto.

Dordon.

This being originally a member of Polesworth, and therewith posselt by the Marmions, of Lamboroth Castle, was granted, together with part of Waberton, unto Roger de Grendon, by Robert Marmion in H. 1. time, to hold by the service of one Knight's Fee. But in the beginning of E. 1. time, it was in the hands of William Baring, of Wode in Com. Staff. who by his Deed bearing date at Ecclethale the Munday next after the Feast of S. Hillarie, ann. 1274. (2 E. 1.) sold the inheritance thereof, for XL. marks of silver, unto Roger de Meulend then Bishop of Cobentre & Lichfield reserving the Rent of a pair of Gloves or a Penny, at Easter, to Sir Raph de Grendon and his heirs, for all service, suit of Court, and demand whatsoever. After which, it was not long ere it came to the hands of the Lords of Grendon again; for I perceive that in 22 E. 1. Raph de Grendon, son to the before specified Sir Raph, had it: From whom the greatest part of it is diuolued, with Grendon, to the Familie of Cherwin, and enjoyed by them at this day: But the Inhabitants thereof are within the Leet of Polesworth.

Frefeley.

This was also very antiently belonging to the Marmions, being originally a member of Polesworth, as I guess; by one of which Familie I conclude that Robert de Kaily or his Ancestor, became at first, enfeoff of it; for it appears that Robert Marmion, who lived in H. 2. time, calls that Robert his Knight, in respect he held of him by militarie service; and confirmed the grant of Frefeley Mill; which the said Robert had made to the Nunns of Polesworth. This Robert de Kaily gave and sold to the Canons of Lilleshull, in Com. Salop. full two parts of this Village, disposing his body to sepulture in that Monasterie; and having no issue, left the inheritance of the rest to his Sisters; whereof one was married to Simon de Whitacre, of Whitacre superior, in this Countie, and the other to one Richard de Pakington, who ratified her Brother's grant: But wanting the like Confirmation from the former, there grew suits betwixt Sir Simon de Whitacre Knight, grandchild to the said Simon, and the Canons of Lilleshull, for part of that land: which suits being accorded in 25 H. 3. he released unto them all his title & claim thereto.

Notwithstanding which Release, Jordan de Whitacre, son and heir to the said Simon, after his Father's death, taking advantage of those turbulent times, sold the Barons Warrs, entered upon the same lands again, and dyed posselt of them; in so much as Philippa his widow, who shortly after became the wife of James de Astley, retained them in her hands, till another Agreement being made betwixt the said Canons and her; unto which, Richard de Whitacre her son and heir assented, they had quitted their right thereto. And yet did not this binde the said Richard de Whitacre, but that he began a new suit for those lands; whereupon a Jury was returned for triall thereof, yet before it came to be so decided, they grew to a finall accord; which being made in 21 E. 1. he released, once more, all his right and interest to those lands: So that afterwards they enjoy'd them till the generall dissolution by King Henry the viii. but then coming to the Crown, they were granted out, in 35 H. 8. by the name of the Mannour of Frefeley, unto James Leveson Merchant of the Staple, to be held in Capite by the xxth part of a Knight's Fee: which James, the same year, aliened part of them, to one John Beck.

That which remained to the Whitacres (as hath been said) into which the Free warren granted to Simon de Whitacre in 41 H. 3. extended, came at length, to Alan Waldeisse, by an heir female of that Familie, as the Descent in Whitacre sheweth; and afterwards to Poultney, as it seems; but it being so small a proportion, I have not farther taken notice of it.

Hall-End.

Of this place I have not seen any thing till K. Ric. 3. time; that it came by a daughter and heir of Sturmie to the Familie of Corbin, whose antient seat is at Corbins-Hall, within Swinton Parish in Com. Staff. where most of them have had their residence: but their Descent, since they had to do here, I have added.

THIS is a depopulated place, and did totally belong to the Nunns of Polestwozth; part thereof being given ^d to them about H. 3. time, by William Sauvage, sometime Lord of Pooley; and the rett by ^e Richard Dodenhale Merchant of Coventre, in 21 R. 2. In consideration whereof, the said Nunns, by their publique Instrument ^f dated 12. Apr. 1. H. 4. granted, that there should be every day and night, a speciall Collect said for the same Richard in their Chapter-House, in such sort as they used to do for their other Benefactors; and at his death, his name registered in their Martyrologe, as also his Anniversarie kept with Placebo and Dirige; and solemn Masse celebrated for the soul of Henry Dodenhale, sometime Merchant, and for the said Richard, with Beatrice, and Alice, his wives, their Parents, Benefactors, and all the faithfull deceased, over and besides the night of S. Thomas the Martyr: and likewise one Collect once a year, for the said Henry, Richard, Beatrice, and Alice, their Parents and Benefactors, for ever. And lastly, that at the celebration of the Anniversarie of the said Henry, Richard, Beatrice, and Alice, on the Feast-day of S. Thomas the Martyr's translation, all the Nunns present thereat, to have xii. Eggs in the name of a Corrodie, for their faithfull performance of that Office.

Pooley.

THIS, as a member of Polestwozth, did anciently belong to the Marmions of Lamwozth-Castle; and being originally given ^e by Marmion to Burdet in Fee-Ferme, for the Rent of x s. yearly, was soon after granted from Burdet to Sauvage, as appears ^h by a Confirmation made from Geffrey Sauvage to William Burdet in 10 H. 3. Which passages from Marmion to Burdet, and Burdet to Sauvage, were about King Stephen's time; for Osanna then Abbess of Polestwozth, with the consent of her fellow Nunns, granted ⁱ to Helias the son of Geffrey Sauvage, a Chapell here, but without Service, as also a Chapell-yard; in consideration whereof he gave to that Covent, the inheritance of four Acres of the best Meadow-ground in this Village, promising to pay yearly, during his life xii d. upon S. Edm's Altar, on the day of her Festival; and bequeathed his body, wheresoever he should depart this life, to be buried in the Church of Polestwozth. Which Agreement ^k was somade, in the presence of Roger de Clinton, then Bishop of this Dioces. But this tenure in Fee-Ferm, did not long continue; for it is ^l evident, that Robert Marmion (whom I take to be the man that first granted it to Burdet) did, in consideration of x. marks in the nature of a Fine; and the yearly payment of a Sore-Sparhawk to himself and his heirs, release the said x s. annuall Rent, unto Geffrey Sauvage (brother and heir of the said Elias.) And moreover, that the same William Burdet acquitted ^m to Sir Philip Marmion, all his right in the Homage and services of William le Sauvage (successor to the before specified Geffrey) for these lands in Pooley; which from thenceforth were held immediatly of the Marmions, by the service of the said Sore-Sparhawk, ⁿ or ii s. to be paid at the Feast of S. James the Apostle, in the nature of a Socage tenure.

But by a daughter and heir of Sauvage (as the Descent in Baginton manifesteth) it came, in proceffe of time, to Sir Thomas de Endeshoure, of Endeshoure in Com. Derby. who, sometimes residing here, obtained a speciall License ^o from Pope Urban the ivth for to build a Chapell within the precincts of this Lordship, and to have a Priest for celebration of Divine Service, and administering the Sacraments therein, by reason of the floods at sometimes, especially in Winter, which hindered his accesse to the Mother-Church: Howbeit, in the Family of Endeshoure it rested not two Descents, ere by an heir female it came to Hertkull, in whose male line it continued for divers ages; and at length, devolved to Cokain, by ^p Eliz. the daughter and heir of Sir Richard de Hertkull Knight, wife to Edm. Cokain Esquire. From which Edmund and Elizabeth, is lineally descended Sir Aston Cokain Baronet, now Lord of this Mannour.

before specified Edmund and Elizabeth, made his residence here at Booley, for some time; for it is evident, that in 13 H. 4. when he was to go into France in the King's service (in aid of the D. of Burgundy) he made his Will, at this place; which bears date the Thursday next after the Feast of S. Barnabas the Apostle, the same year; whereby it appears, that having enfeoffed Sir John Dabridgecourt Knight and others, in his Mannour of Wadley-End for in this Countie, to the end that a certain summe of money might be raised out of the profits thereof, for payment of his debts; and towards a marriage-portion for his daughter Elyn, he directed, that then his said Executors should make an estate thereof, unto John Cokain his son and heir, and the heirs of his body; and appointed, that if the said John did happen to die without issue, it should be amortized, to find as many Priests, singing to the worlds end, for his soul, his wives, his Children, and all his Ancestors souls, as the Rent thereof would reasonably maintain; viz. in S. Marie-Chapell at Polesworth, five pounds to one Priest; in S. Marie Chapell near Abburne seven marks to another Priest, and the remnant to be spent in Wax, Vigils, and Almesdeeds, on the Eve and day of his Obit.

But after this voyage, he lived many years; for certain it is, that he was a Justice of Peace in this Shire, from 5 H. 5. till the end of that King's reign, and a Commissioner of Array, in 6 H. 5. Thus Sir John Cokain, bore the Armes of his Mothers Familie, for the most part, scil. Argent two Bars vert, the being an eminent heir; and died in 16 H. 6. leaving issue John his son and heir, and William a younger son, from whom Sir William Cokain Knight, Alderman of London, in King James his time, deduced his descent. Which Sir William was father to Charles (erected to the dignity of Viscount Colein by the late King Charles) now residing at Rushon in Northampton-shire.

Of the last mentioned John, I finde that he had issue Thomas; who dwelling here at Booley, and having difference with Thomas Burder of Wromcote Esquire, his neer neighbour, so irritated him with affronts, that he was slain by Burder, in his passage to Polesworth Church, as the tradition is. Which unhappy accident, fell out in his Father's life time, so that Thomas his son, upon the death of John, the grandfather, in 20 H. 7. became heir; who being a brave spirited Gentleman, and with King H. 8. at the Sieges of Therobene and Tourney, was then a Knighted. This Sir Thomas built the Mannour-House, here at Booley, of Brick (as is yet to be seen) having in 22 H. 7. imparked the Woods lying Westwards thereof; but by his Testament bearing date 4 Apr. 28 H. 8. bequeathed his body to sepulture in our Ladyes Quire, at Abburne (where his Ancestors lye interred) before the Image of S. Modwen, appointing that his Executors should cause a Tombe of Marble to be made there, for him; which was accordingly performed, with this Inscription thereon.

Here chested in this Tombe, and closed in this Clay
Doth lie Sir Thomas Cokain Knight, and must till Judgment Day.

This martiall man so bold, and eke this warlike might

At Tyrwyn and at Turney siege was dub'd a worthy Knight:

Three goodly Houses he did build, to his great praise and fame,

With profits great and manifold belonging to the
same:

Three Parks he did impale, therein to chase the Deere,

The lofty Lodge within this Park he also builded
here.

He did his House and name renew, and eke restore,
Which others had with negligence in time decayed
before.

This virtuous Knight had issue male three sons
of manly port,

And eke three daughters virtuous and married in this sort;

The eldest to her husband had a Knight of worthy fame,

Sir William Bassett Lord of Blore he called was by name.

To Vincent Lowe of Denby Squier the second married was,

The third to Robert Burdet Squyer, as fate did bring to passe,

The body of this worthy Knight shall never come to Hell,

But yet in Tombe of Marble-stone, till Judgment day shall dwell.

To which Sir Thomas succeeded Francis, and to him Sir Thomas, who resided frequently here, in Queen Elizabeth's time, being a Gentleman of eminent note in those dayes: but since, his Descendants have seldome dwelt at this place.

I now come to that part of Polesworth-Parish, lying on the North side of Anker.

Stiperhill.

The place which bears this name, is situate on the Northern side of Anker, a little above Polesworth, where the ground hath a naturall and steep descent to the River; and by the form of an old entrenchment, seems to have been a little Fortification. Till Edw. 3. time, I have not seen any thing of its name; but then being written Stipurnshall, it was made use of, by the Lords of Polesworth-Castle, for the keeping of their Three-weeks-Court, as it had been (I presume) in the Marmions time: Which Court continued so kept there, for a long time after, as by severall Records appeareth, all the Tenants of that Fee, doing their suit and service there: but now it is usually kept no more than twice in the yeare.

Waverton.

This had it's name originally, from the high situation; Waver and Ober, importing one and the same with supra; and being a member of Polesworth, belong'd to the Marmions of Polesworth-Castle; for it appears that Robert Marmion and Milisent his wife, gave all their demesne lands lying therein, to the Nuns of Polesworth in H. 1. time, or thereabouts; and enfeoffed Robert de Grendon of certain lands in this Village, which lands lands are by an heir female, come (with Grendon) to the Chetwins. Several other parcells there were, which sundry persons held afterwards of the heirs of Marmion; viz. ^h the Culies of Radelstoc in Com. Leic. The heirs of John de Langdon, and Will. de Fago, and likewise Roger Hillarie, though to whom these were first granted will be hard to discover.

Bramcote.

THAT this was originally a member of Grendon, and so consequently posselt by the first Henry de Ferrers, need not to be doubted; neither that Roger de Grendon, or his Ancestor, was very antiently enfeoffed thereof by the same Henry: for I findeⁱ that Walkeline, a younger son to that Roger, being seated here, assumed it for his surname; and that it was held^k by his Descendants, of the heirs of Ferrers, by half a Knight's Fee: the posteritie of which Walkeline, bore^l the Armes of Grendon, scil. two Cheverons, but the colours I know not. Of these, William, son to the said Walkeline, was a benefactor to the Nunns of Polesworth, by the gift^m to them, of one yardland, and four acres, lying in this village (which grant, Robert his son confirmed) and bestowedⁿ upon the Monks of Aucote, a Meadow called Bramcote-Meadow; but with Proviso, that he and his heirs, might be Toll-free for the Corn they should grinde at Aucote-Mill.

To the said Robert succeeded William, surnamed de Grendon, in the possession^o of this Mannour (whom I take to be his brother.) From which William at length descended^p Sir Thomas de Grendon Knight, that left issue Margaret his daughter and heir, first the wife^q unto . . . Charnells, and afterwards of Thomas Malorie. Which Margaret in her last widowhood, past away all her title in this Mannour, unto John Charnells of Snarkeston Esquire, her son and heir, and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten, as appears by her Deed^r bearing date, here at Bramcote, the Monday next after the Feast of S. Andrew the Apostle 7 H. 6. From which John descended William Charnells, who in 6 E. 4. sold^s it unto Thomas Burdet Esquire, Ancestor to Sir Francis Burdet Baronet, (the present owner thereof) as by the Pedegree in Arrows doth appear, where I have spoken historically of that ancient Family, whose Seat was for many ages at that place, till Conway, by an heir female, had it: Since which time, till the marriage of Sir Thomas Burdet Baronet, with Jane, daughter and heir to William Francis of Fozmark in Com. Derb. Esquire (a Ladie of singular endowments) they resided here; but now have made choise of Fozmark, before specified, for their principall Mansion.

Austrey.

HAVING now done with that large Parish of Polesworth, I come to Austrey, whereof I find, that Wulfrie Spot, (the Founder of Burton Abbey in Com. Staff.) was posselt^t in the time of King Ethelred, viz. about Lx. years before the Norman Conquest; as also that it was by him given^u to the wife of one Mordar: but afterwards it came to Leofrike Earl of Merca, (of whom in Cobentre I have spoke) which Leofrike gave two hides thereof to the Monks of Burton before mentioned. Of the residue, after the Norman Invasion, did^x Henry de Ferrers hold two hides and a half, and Nigel de Albingi five hides and a half; which five hides were^y in the hands of eight Theines, in Edward the Confessor's for's days, the Church standing within the compass of them: But in the Conqueror's Survey^z, where the value of the whole, is rated at v li. xs. (scil. that which belong'd to Burton-Abby xxx s. That which Henry de Ferrers had, xx s. and that which Nigel de Albingi held, iij li.) it is written Albalve-streu; the last syllable thereof being Brittainish, discovering its great antiquitie; and the former, that it was originally so called from some antient possessor thereof.

Of what the Monks of Burton had, with other additions given by severall persons afterwards, they continued posselt till the dissolution of that Monasterie: But of the residue, neither were the posteritie of Henry de Ferrers, nor of Nigel de Albingi long owners: For Hugo fil. Ricardi (of whom I have spoke in Hatton) had^a it in H. 1. time; In whose male line it rested, so long as the same did last; and afterwards, by Margerie and Maude sisters and coheirs to Hugh fil. Willielmi, grandchild to the before specified Hugh (as the Descent in Hatton sheweth) it devolved to other Families, the said Maud, wife of Stephen de Nerbon, making partition^b thereof, with Thomas de Clinton, grandson to her sister Margerie. Which partition being so made, the moytie belonging to Maude, descended to Margerie de Nerbone, her daughter and heir, who gave^c all her said purpart to the Monks of Burton before mentioned, in pure Almes; Osbert de Clinton, a younger son to the said Thomas (unto whom, it seems, that the other part was by his Father assigned) confirming^d the grant. Which Osbert died without issue, as I guess; for it is plain enough, that his purpart of Austrey came^e to the posteritie of Thomas, his elder brother, who were Lords of Marstoke (as the Pedegree in Marstoke and Colwill sheweth) and so descended to Edward Lord Clinton; who by his Deed bearing date 6 Febr. 31 H. 8. sold^f this Mannour unto James Leveson of Wolberhampton in Com. Staff. Esquire, who gave^g it in marriage (inter alia) with Eliz. his daughter, unto Walter son and heir of Sir Edward Aston Knight: From whom descended Sir Walter Aston Knight of the Bathe, who in 1. Caroli (or about that time) sold it to the Tenants.

But that which the Monks of Burton had here, coming to the Crown, at the generall dissolution of the Religious Houses in 30 H. 8. was in 33. of that King's reign, given^h to the Collegiate-Church of Burton before specified (for King Henry, having outed the Monks, placed a Dean and secular Canons in their room.) But this Collegiate-Church, soon following the fate, which the Abbies had, being likewise dissolved in 37 H. 8. the King, by his Lettersⁱ Patent bearing date 31. Jan. the same yeare, granted this Mannour (for by that name it is past) unto Sir William Paget Knight, and his heirs, to be held in Capite, by the xxth. part of a Knight's Fee. Which Sir William by the name of William Lord Paget of Bendesert. (for so he had been created) by his Deed^k dated 30. Dec. 1. & 2. Ph. & M. sold it unto the Lady Elanore Brereton, M.

THis seems to have been originally a member of Sehindon, as by what I shall say, when I come to speak of the Church, will appear; for there is no mention of it in the Conqueror's Survey; and till 5 H. 2. it being in the King's hands, was for that respect called Newton-Regis; but then granted to Geffrey Sauvage, it continued to his Descendants whilst the male line lasted, and afterwards to the sisters and coheirs to the last William (as the Pedegree in Baginton manifesteth) Howbeit, the second Geffrey, was exposed to a defence of his title thereto, in 7 R. 1. against Thomas de Arden; the service by which he held it, being half a Knight's Fee. coming to Ednesoure and Meinill, I find, that in 13 E. 1. Thomas de Ednesoure, and Philippa de Meinill, jointly claimed^w a Court-Leet, with Assize of Beer, Gallows, and Free Warren therein, by the grant of King H. 2. all which were allowed. From which said Thomas (son of Thomas, by Lucia, one of the Sisters and coheirs to the said Will. le Sauvage) the one moitie thereof descended to the Hertbills, of whom in Baginton I have spoke, and from Hertbill, after divers Descents, to^x Cokain, as the Descent in Booley manifesteth: in which Family it continued till Sir Edward Cokain (grandfather to Sir Aston Cokain Baronet now living) sold it.

But from the before specified Philippa (the second sister and coheir of Sauvage) the other moitie came to the Meinills of Derbyshire, she being the wife^y of Hugh de Meinill (of Langley-Meinill in that Countie, where the chief seat was) sometime Steward^z to William de Ferrers Earl of Derby, and continued in that line for divers Descents, Sir Hugh Meinill, great-grandchild to the said Hugh and Philippa, having in 24 E. 3. a Charter^a of Free Warren (inter alia) in all his demesne lands here. To which Sir Hugh succeeded^b Sir Richard, and to him Sir Raphe, who died^c in 12 R. 2. without issue male, whereby his four daughters became heirs to the estate; viz. Joane^d, first married^e to John Staunton, and afterwards^f to Sir Thomas Clinton Knight, Elizabeth to^g William Crawshawe, Margaret^h and *Thomasine*ⁱ; betwixt whom Par-

The Church (dedicated to the Assumption of the blessed Virgin) was in H. 2. time but a Chapell^m to Sekindon. and in an. 1291. (19 E. 1.) valuedⁿ at vin. marks. In 39 E. 3. upon some difference, which arose betwixt the Parson of Clifton-Carville in *Com. And that the Parson of Newton and his successors, should receive the Tithe Wooll, wholly, and the Tythe of Piggs, and other living things depasturing in the said Parish of Clifton. In the Conqueror's time, the Earl of Mellent was posselt of the greatest part of this Village, whereof two hides and a half, one Leuwinus then held of him, in which there were Woods of half a mile in length, and three furlongs in breadth, all having been the freehold of Cethred, and Godric, in Edward the Confessor's days: Other two hides and a half, did Godric hold of him, at the same time (whose inheritance it had been before the Norman Invasion.) In which part, there were Woods of the very same extent as aforesaid, and a Mill; Half whereof pertained to this part, and a half to the other. But the last two hides and half, Ingenulfus and Arnulfus held, which also had been of the said Godric's inheritance. Besides these particular parcels, so posselt by the Earl of Mellent, Will. fil. Corbucionis (of whom I have spoke in Stablesley) held at that time, two hides and a half, here, by one Jubellus, his underrenant; whereof one Ernvi had been owner before the Conquest: All which joynted together, were valued at vi li. x s.

But by the said Earl of Mellent, or Robert Earl of Leicester, his son, was the Father of Richard Bruton, as I guess, enfeofft of a good proportion hereof; for I finde, that the said Richard, by the consent of Hamon, his Brother, (about the 24th of King H. 2. reign) sold it to William de Camvile and his heirs, by the name of Domus de Secchen-dona, for XL. marks of silver, to be held in Capite of the Earl of Leicester: unto which grant, young King Henry (scil. son of H. 2.) gave his assent. To this William de Camvile, succeeded William, who being thus posselt of the Mannour-House (for so I take it, the word Domus here imports) obtained, ere long, a grant from Aubreda Marmion, his mother, of the fourth part of a Knight's Fee in this place, which was of the Fee of Leicester, and then held by the said William in demeln; and another fourth part likewise, from her, of the Fee of Warwick: as also half a Knight's Fee more, lying here, and in Welston, which Simon de Bercheston held: In consideration whereof, he the said William gave her XL. marks, and discharged her of xx. marks more, due to the Monks of Combe, for to perform the Anniversarie of William de Camvile her husband: One of which fourth parts, did Gefrey Marmion (father to the said Aubreda) hold of Robert Bossus sometime Earl of Leicester: But all of them were afterwards held (though by what agreement, I find not) by the heirs of the said William de Camvile, of the Earls of Warwick.

Of these Camviles, the last that had to do here, was Gerard, whose daughter and heir Elizabeth, wife to Robert Burdet, brought this Lordship to that Familie: Which Robert, being so posselt thereof, obtained a Charter for free warren (inter alia) in all his demesnl lands here, bearing date at Worcester 25 Dec. 1 E. 3. From whom (as the Pedegree in Arrow sheweth) is lineally descended Sir Francis Burdet Baronet, now Lord of this Mannour.

Scarce a furlong from the Church, North-wards, & upon an ascending ground, is yet to be seen a notable Fort, made after a circular forme; the dimensions whereof (though much lesse than what they were at first, by reason that the Earth is so shrunk down) are yet, as followeth; viz. The breadth of the outer Ditch, at the top xx. foot, and at the bottome x. foot. The depth of it xii. foot. The diameter within the bank CCXCvii. foot. On the North-side of it (opposite to the entrance) there is a round Hill, artificially raised, of Xlii. foot in height, which at the top is xxxiii. foot in breadth; and whereupon, as it should seem, some Watch-Tower hath formerly stood. By the Countrey people, it bears the name of a Castle; whose tradition is, that it was anciently the Burdets, and pulled down in King Hen. 2. time, by William Burdet, for the structure of that little Monasterie at Aucote (hard by) which, as they report, he founded, to expiate the murder of his wife: But having not seen, that the Burdets were so long since posselt of this Lordship, I somewhat doubt the truth thereof.

The Church, in anno 1291. (19 E. 1.) was valued at but in 26 H. 8. at * Cxvi s. over and above ix s. vi d. allowed for Procurations and Synodals.

Shuttenton.

OF this place there is no particular mention in the Conqueror's Survey, it being then involved with Sekindon, and of that part (as I guesse) which the Earl of Mellent then posselt; from whom, or his son Robert, surnamed Bossu, Earl of Leicester, was William Burdet enfeofft thereof;
who, upon his Foundation of the Monasterie at Aucote, on the other side the River, gave it wholly thereunto, excepting those lands called Coppenhull, which he had disposed of to the Nuns of Polesworth. At that time it was * written Schetyn-ton, and continued a pretty Village till about the beginning of King H. 8. time, that the Monks of Aucote depopulated¹ fix Messuages and two Cotages therein (which I take to be a third part thereof) After the dissolution of which Mo-nasterie, it continued in the Crown, till 34 H. 8.

but then did the King passe^m it away, unto Thomas Lord Audley Chancelour of England (inter alia) in exchange for other lands; who, the next year following, soldⁿ it, together with the site of the said Priorie of Aucote, unto Joane Robinson, the widow of George Robinson of London. Mercer: Since which time, it hath past with Aucote to such particular persons, as I have there manifested.

The Church was very antiently appropriated^o to the Monks of Aucote, and in 26 H. 8. valued^p at Xls. But upon the grant of the Rectorie, together with the site of the Priorie of Aucote, unto Thomas Lord Audley, in 34 H. 8. there was vi li. per annum reserved^q for a Curate to serve therein.

I cannot find, that there hath ever been any more than one Presentation to this Church, & that was by the Prior of great Malvern in anno 1341.
Aucote being a Cell subordinate to that Monaste-rie. Which Prior of Malverne presented one Richard, then Prior of Aucote, thereto; who was instituted^r 14 Cal. Aug. in the year abovesaid.

Aucote-Priorie.

THIS place, being originally a member of Sekindon, and with Shuttenton obtained from the Earl of Leicester, by William Burdet, was in anno 1151. (scil. 5 H. 2.) granted^f therewith, to the Monks of great Malvern in Com. Wigorn. upon condition, that they should send two of their Covent; to serve in the Church here, from the Feast of S. Michaell, till that time twelve-month; and the next year following, to adde unto them, two more: And moreover, that afterwards, so soon as the building of the Monasterie here, could be completed; according to the capacitie thereof, more Monks to be received therein, by the advice of the Abbot of Westminster, and other Religious Persons, of these parts; and the Prior to be constituted always by the Prior of Malverne before specified.
Unto which agreement so made, betwixt the said
William Burdet, and Roger, then Prior of Malberne, in the presence of the before mentioned Abbot of Westminster, as also the Abbots of S.
Albans and Palmesburte, Robert Earl of Leicester, amongst others, was a witnesses.

The occasion whereupon this little Monasterie was founded, is said to be this; viz. that the said William Burdet, being both a valiant and devout man, made a journey to the Holy Land, for subduing of the Infidells in those parts; and that his Steward, whil't he was thus absent, solicited the Chastitie of his Ladie, who resisted those his uncivill attempts with much scorn: whereupon he grew so full of envie towards her, that so soon as he had adventement of his Master's arrivall again
in England, he went to meet him; and to shadow
his own foul crime, complained to him of her loosness with others: Which false accusation so enraged her husband, that when he came home, and that she approacht to receive him with joyfull embraces, he forthwith mortally stab'd her; and that, to expiate the same unhappy Act, after he understood the truth, he built this Monastery. Of this storie though I have nothing but by tradition, yet that he was the Founder hereof, is most certain, from what I have before exprest; and doubtless that Monument,

nument, situate in an Arch of the wall, on the North side of the Church here at Aucote, is for him; which is only a plain Free-stone, covering the Coffin wherein his Body resteth, curiously embossed with the sculpture of a large Crosse.

The Benefactors that this Priorie had, were but few, that I finde; viz. Robert de Bramcote, who gave ^a a Meadow called Bramcote-Meadow; and William Burdet, grandchild to the Founder; who having conferred ^b thereunto the Rent of xii d. issuing out of a certain tenement in Aucote, for the maintenance of a Lampe, to burne before the Altar of our Lady in the Church here, of S. Blase, when he lay upon his death-bed, added ⁱ the grant of half a yard land, and a Water-Mill lying in Radcliffe in Com. Leic. So that all the revenues belonging thereto, were by the Survey ^k made in 26 H. 8. valued at no more than xxxiv li. viii s. Out of which Lx s. being yearly paid to the Priorie of Malverne (whereunto it was a Cell) xx s.

to Sir Humphrey Ferrers Knight, then high Steward thereof, and other Reprizes, which in the whole amounted to vili. ii s. x d. left the clear yearly value, but xxviii li. vi s. ii d. In so much as it being exposed to dissolution by the Statute of 27 H. 8. and so coming to the Crown, was ¹ granted out, in 34 H. 8. (together with Shuttenton) unto Thomas Lord Audley, Lord Chancelour of Eng-land, and by him to ^m Joane Robinson widow, who died ⁿ seized thereof in 1 Eliz. leaving William her son and heir. Which William had issue ^o Thomas, who mortgaged it with Dalton-Basset in Com. Staff. to one William Paramour a Londoner: After which it was not long ere that Robert Dudley Earl of Leicester, coveting that fair Lordship, obtained Paramour's title, and so justling out Robinson, past this, with Shuttenton unto Queen Elizabeth in exchange for other lands: so that, ever since, it hath been in the Crown.

Following the stream of Anker, a little lower, I come to its confluence with Tame, that gives denomination to Tamelworth, the most eminent Town, for situation and ant. quitie on this side the Countie; of which, but the one half, including the Castle, is in this Shire; the Villages of Wolehall, Glasfote, Stretford, Wlincote, Standelf, and Amington lying Southwards of the River, and Pericroft on the North, being members thereof. A place this is, participating chiefly of the commodities which the Wood-land affordeth, being almost invirion'd by it, and watered with delightfull Rivers, whereby the bordering Meadows are plentifully inrich; yet not wanting a spacious Champaigne near at hand, for farther profit and pleasure; so that divers of the Mercian Kings, invited (doubtless) by these advantages, had here a Pallace-royall, as their severall Charters do manifest: Of which Kings, the first, that I find mentioned, was Offa; who granting lands in Saple to the Monks of Worcester, concludeth thus Hanc autem prescriptam vicissitudinem terrarum, & mea dona- tionis pro Domino libertatem, ego Offa Rex, sedens in regali Palacio in Tamoworthige secundo die Nativitatis Domini, in die Festivitatibus beati Stephani Martyris, concedens donavi, Anno ab Incarnatione Christi DCCCLXXXI. Indictione quarta.

q ib. f. 10. b. The next was Coenulf, whose Charter thus ends — Acta est hac donatio anno DCCCXIV. Indict. septima, in vico celeberrimo, qui vocatur

And as these authorities do shew, that it was by those Kings thus honoured, so is there not want of other, to manifest the large extent, and strength thereof: witness that vast Ditch, to this day called King's Ditch; which stretching forth in a straight line, from the River Anker, somewhat below Bolton-Bridge; then making a right angle, keepeth on its course parallel to the River, for the space of near four hundred paces; and so returning by another right angle, runs into Lame, below Lady-Bridge; whereby the ground, within the precincts thereof, is of a quadrangular forme. Which Ditch, though much filled up in most places, appears to have been at least xlv. foot broad, as by measure I have observed.

 But such mischief, shortly after, did the Danes make, by their severall invasions, that this place was wasted, and continued desolate, till that renowned Ladie of the Mercians, Ethelfleda, (daughter to King Alfred, and Sister to King Edward the elder) after her husband's death, scil. in the year of Christ DCCCCXIV. restored it to its ancient strength and splendour; raising a strong Tower, upon an artificiall Mount of Earth, called the Dungeon, for defence against any violent assault thereof: upon which Mount, that building now called the Castle, hath of later times been erected: for the body of the old Castle stood below, towards the Mercate-place, and where the Stables at present are. And here it was, that the said famous Ethelfleda departed this life xix. Cal. Julii anno DCCCCXIII. viz. five years before the death of King Edward her Brother: but in the Abbie-Church of S. Peter at Gloucester, of hers and her husband's Foundation, she had a sepulture.

The next observable thing, which, in course of time I have met with, that concerns this place, is, that there was a Monasterie here: for by the Testament of Wulfic Spot (Founder of Burton-Abbe in Com. Staff. about the year of Christ DCCCCXLIX.) it appears, that he gave thereunto certain lands in Langanborne (scil. Langdon in Com. Staff.) But whether it was of Monks or Nuns, or by whom founded, I never could as yet see good testimonie. From these ancient times therefore, whereof so little light by Historie, is to be found, I shall now descend to those after the Norman Conquest; and for my more methodicall discovery of such things as are most memorable; purpose first to speak of the Burrough, by it self; for by that name it was heretofore called, and then of the Castle and its possessors.

 Of the Burrough there is not any particular extent in the Conqueror's Survey, nor farther mention of it, than that ten Houses therein were at that time belonging to the Mannour of Colthill in this Hundred, which was in those days part of the King's demesne: neither can I discover any thing of note; for a long time after, relating thereto, besides the Aid, and other advantages, which upon sundry occasions it yielded to the King; from the beginning of King Stephen's reign; that part, which is in this Countie, answering two marks for an Aide in 15 H. 2. and in 21 H. 3. iv li. xvi s. for the Ferm thereof: yet was it anciently demesne of the Crown (id est belonging thereto in the days of King Edward the Confessor, or King William the Conqueror.) And till about the later end of King H. 3. reign, continued in the King's immediate hand; but then was it let to Philip Marmion (Lord of the Castle) for life, at the Rent of xxxiv li. vi s. ix d. per annum. Howbeit afterwards, the King had it again: Whereupon in 11 E. 2. it was granted to Baldwin Frevile, during pleasure, reserving the old accustomed Ferme, viz. iv li. xvi s.

Which Lease to Frevile, soon determined: For the King, having the same year given to the Inhabitants thereof License to take Toll of all vendible commodities, to be brought thither, for the space of three years; scil. for every Quarter of Corn a half penny, &c. towards the charge of Paving the Town, the next year following, made a new grant thereof (I mean all this while, of that moiety in Warwickshire) unto the Inhabitants of the Burrough, their heirs and successors, reserving to the Crown, the ancient Ferme, as above is expressed, and xx s. yearly increase, payable to his Exchequer at the days and termes, when the other used to be received; as also excepting all Tallages, Aids, and Customes, as had formerly been paid out of it, in the times of his Progenitors. And in 14. of his reign, the time being expired for taking Toll, towards the Pavement of the Town, by the former Patent, renewed it for three years more: yet this did not compleat the Pavement, as appears by the sundry other Patents granted to them afterwards, as well by King Edward 3. as this King E. 2. for the same purpose, which in the margin I have cited.

But besides this for Paving, did the same Inhabitants obtain a Charter from the King in 10 E. 3. for two yearly Faires here, the one upon S. George's day (viz. April. 23.) and three days after; the other on the Feast-day of S. Edward, and three days following: and in xx H. 6. procured another Patent, for taking Toll of all vendible commodities coming hither, for the space of four years, towards the finishing of the Pavement, and repair of Bol-brygge.

After which, I have not seen any thing more of it, that is considerable, till 3 Eliz. that the Queen, by her Letters Patent bearing date at Westminster, 24 Dec. taking notice, that it had been a very ancient Mercate-town, and that the Inhabitants thereof, by the name of the Bailiffs and Commonalties, had not only held it, time out of minde, of her Royall Progenitors, in Fee-Ferme, by the Rent of v. li. xvi s. per annum, but enjoyed divers Jurisdictions and Priviledges, as well by Prescription as by severall Charters; which Charters, as they then suggested, had been either burnt, or casually lost, imploring her Royall favour, that she would, for the better governing thereof, vouchsafe to make it a Corporation; did at that time, ordain it to be a Burrough Corporate, consisting of two Bailiffs; the one for that part of the town situate in this Countie, and the other for that part lying in Staffordshire, granting them libertie to have a Common Seal, and assigning Peter Bradoke, and

Henry Draper the first Bayliffs : As also that from thenceforth there should be xiv. of the most substantiall Inhabitants, assistants, to the said Bayliffs; and called the principall Burgeses : which said Bayliffs and Burgeses, to have power, as often as they should think fit, to call a Court of themselves, or the major part of them, there to consult and determine of all things tending to the well government of it; and to choose two Sergeants at Mace, for performance of all Proclamations, Arrests, &c. Which Bayliffs to be Justices of the Peace within the same Burrough.

And moreover, that they should have power to keep a Court of Record upon Munday once in three weeks, there to hold Plea, &c. after the usage of the Citie of London. And likewise a Gaole for the imprisonment of Felons and Malefactors : As also a weekly Mercate every Saturday; and two Faires, the one on the Feast-day of S. George the Martyr and four days following; and the other on the Feast-day of S. Edward the King and Martyr and four days then likewise next ensuing. Granting further unto the said Bayliffs for the time being, that they should be Clerks of the Mercate, within the precincts of the Burrough; and to have a Court-leet twice in the year; scil. within the compals of a month after Michaelmas, and the like limit of time after Easter; as also power, to purchase, or receive by gift, lands to the value of Xl li. per annum, notwithstanding the Statute of Mortmain.

† Pat. 30.
Eliz. p. 4.

And by another Patent † bearing date x^o Oct. in 30. of her reign, gave the Inhabitants of this Burrough, immunitie from being returned on Juries, except they held lands out of the compasse thereof, and likewise to choose a Recorder; constituting Robert Devereux Earl of Essex their Steward; and granting them another Faire yearly, to begin on the Feast-day of S. Swithin, and to endure for four days. At which time she founded an endowed a Grammar School here; but thereof, forasmuch as it is situate on the Staffordshire side, it concerns me not to speak. Closing up therefore, I shall observe, that forasmuch as 'tis not apparent by any of our publike Records that the Saturday-Mercate was granted by Charter till now, it was held before by Prescription, and questionlesse from the very time that the Saxon Kings had their residence here (whereof I have already touched.) Nor is it to be doubted, but that the Privilege, which they had in sending of Burgeses to Parliament, was of great antiquitie, and used only by the like Prescription, in such sort as other the ancient Burroughs of this Realm did enjoy.

The Castle.

HAVING now done with the Burrough, I come to the Castle, touching the Foundation whereof I have already spoke. This being in the hands of King William, after his Conquest, was by him given (towards the end of his reign, as I guess) unto Robert Marmion, as my Story in Polesworth intimateth, and as is verified by an ancient window of this Church, where the same King, being depicted in his Robes of State and crowned, stretcheth forth his hand to him, holding a Charter therein, neer the Gate of a faire Castle, an exact representation whereof I have in page 822. exhibited.

Which Robert had issue Robert, unto whom King

Henry the first, by his Charter dated at Canoc in Com. Staff. granted Free-warren in all his lands within this Countie, as Robert his Father had, and by name, here at Wamworth. This last mentioned Robert was possessor of the strong Castle of Fontney in Normandie (which Castle Geoffrey Earl of Anjou beleiged and razed ^w, in 4^o Steph. because he held out Faleis against him;) and gave ^x the Church of Queinton in Gloucestershire to the Nunns of Polesworth. Being a great ^y adversarie to the Earl of Chester in 8. Steph. he entred the Priorie of Cobentre (neer unto which the said Earl had a Castle, as I have elsewhere observed) and expelling the Monks, fortified ^z it, making in the fields adjacent, divers deep Ditches, lightly covered over, to the intent, that such as should make approaches thereto, might be intrapt: but it so hapned, that as he rode himself to view the Earl's forces that began to draw neer it, he fell into one of them, and broke his Thigh; so that he was forthwith seized on by a Common Souldier, who immediatley cut ^a off his Head.

To him succeeded Robert, his son ^b and heir; by whose Certificate ^c in 12 H. 2. it appears that he then held xv. Knights Fees, whereof his Ancestor was enfeoffed in H. 1. time; and three, which he had obtained since; for which, in 14 H. 2. he gave ^d vii li. xvi s. viii d. Aid, upon the marriage of Maud the King's daughter. This Robert was a Benefactor to the Knights Templar's as by his grant ^e to them of Watson Mill, is manifested: as also in 33 H. 2. a Justice ^f Itinerant in this Countie: and confirmed ^g to the Nunns of Polesworth, his Father's gift of the Church of Queinton: But in the beginning of H. 3. time, he died, leaving two sons, by severall wives as it seems, both of them bearing the name of Robert. Of which Robert the younger gave ^h the summe of 500 li. to the King, in 2 H. 3. for the custodie of this Castle; and to have possession of the lands, whereof his Father died seized, untill matters should be so settled, as that Englishmen might peaceably enjoy their lands in Normandie, and the Normans theirs in England, in regard that the Duke-dome of Normandie was seized ⁱ on by the French, about the beginning of King John's time, for the murder of Arthur Duke of Brittanie; but with this condition too, that if Robert Marmion, his elder brother, should make his peace with the King (for, it seems, he then adhered to the French) and regain his inheritance here, in England, that then he should pay back to the said Robert the younger, so much of that summe, as the profits of the lands, of which he had received the issues, did fall short thereof: and that the said Robert should then enjoy the Lordships of Wttringham, and Contingeb in Com. Linc. Queinton in Com. Glouc. and Derewte in Com. Suff. As also, that William his younger Brother, should have Dointon in Com. Linc. and lands to the value of X li. per annum in Derewte abovesaid; of all which they had speciall grants from their Father.

And further, it was then concluded, that the said Robert the younger, should not only give the King good caution to keep this Castle, to his use, but upon occasion, deliver it up into his hands: For performance thereof, these were his sureties ^k; scil. Nicholas de Verdon, Geoffrey de Camville, William de Hardreshull, Raphe fitz Raphe, Thomas de Oferton, John de Culi, Richard Russell, Robert de la Lande, Robert de Passi, William de Fou, and Mathew

Mathew de Charnels. All which being effected, he had the King's speciall Precept¹ to William de Harecurt (then Governour thereof for the King) to deliver it up unto him. But it was not long after this, that Robert the elder made his peace; for in 5 H. 3. he had possession^m of this Castle delivered to him, and the rest of his Father's lands, as appears by the King's significationⁿ of his pleasure therein to all that held of it by Militarie service, or otherwise; as also to the Sheriff of this County. So that here I must leave the said Robert the younger, whose posteritie flourish in Lincolnshire, for a long time after, and speak of the elder Robert.

I am of opinion, that this Robert the elder, return'd into Normandie in 17 H. 3. for in that year, did he passe^o over the estate of all his lands in England, for seven years, unto Peter de Rupibus (that potent Bishop of Winchester, in those times) together with the custodie of Philip his son and heir, for to marry him where he should think fit, without disparagement: whereupon, by the consent of the same Robert, and Philip, he made an assignation^p thereof, unto William de Cantilupe. Of this Robert, I finde no more, after that time, than his death, which hapned^q in 25 H. 3. But the said Philip became a person of no small account in the world; for having married^r Joane, one of the daughters and heirs to Hugh de Kilpeck, of Kilpeck Castle in Herefordshire (whose custodie and disposall in marriage the said William de Cantilupe had^s) in 33 H. 3. he was constituted^t Shirriff of this County and Leicestershire, and Governour^u of the Castle of Sauby; which office he held^v for three yeares, then next following: and at that time obtained a Confirmation^w of the Charter of Free Warren before mentioned, granted to his Ancestor by King H. 1. But in 36 H. 3. he was questioned^x for sitting with Richard de Mundevill, and the rest of the Justices for Gaol-deliverie at Warwick, having no Commission so to do: for which, I do not find that the King's displeasure stuck long upon him, in regard he attended^y him so soon after into Gascon: upon his return from which voyage, he was taken Prisoner^z by the French in Poitou, with Gilbert de Segrave and divers other of the English Nobilitie, notwithstanding that they had Letters of Protection from the French King.

The next mention, that I find of him, is, that he was in^b that Welch expedition of 41 H. 3. and the year ensuing, had Summons^c, with divers other great men, to be at Chester, on the Eve of S. John Baptist well furnisht with Horse and Armes, to march into Wales, against Lewelin ap Griffith, then in Rebellion. In 45 H. 3. he had the like Summons to^e be at London, with all the chief Nobilitie, upon the morrow after Simon and Jude's day; in which year it was, that the defection of the Barons began farther to shew it self, by their intrusion upon the King's authoritie, in placing^f Shirriffs for sundry Shires of this Realme: In which respect, this Philip Marmion, as a person in whose fidelitie the King reposed much confidence, had by speciall Patent^g the Counties of Posfolk and Suffolk, committed to his custodie. And in 47 H. 3. had summons^h, amongst other great men, to be at Hereford, upon the Munday after Candlemas day, well furnisht with Horse and Armes, to resist the power of the before specified Lewelin: so alsoⁱ to be at Worcester on Lamas day next ensuing, in like sort accountred, to the same purpose. Immediately whereupon, divers of the Barons put themselves in Armes, to force the King's assent to those Ordinances, which they had made at Osford, so much derogating from his regall power: who seeing himself over-powred, was necessitated to submit to the determination, which the King of France should make therein; and to bring in severall of the Peers, and other eminent persons, to give Oath for his performance thereof; amongst which, this Philip Marmion was^j one; who likewise adhered stoutly to him throughout those turbulent times, which soon after ensued: For the next year following, he was at the^k taking of Poshampton; and in 50 H. 3. as a reward for his faithfull services, had a^l grant of all the King's demetins here in Tamworth, as well in that part, which lyes in Staffordshire, as of that in this Countie, as also in Wyginton, to hold during his naturall life, for the Rent of xxxiv li. vi s. ix d. And was made Governour^m of Kenilworth Castle, immediately upon the render thereof, after that memorable six-months siege, whereof I have elsewhere spoke.

In 13 E. 1. this Philip claimedⁿ by Prescription, a Court-Leef, and Gallows, here at Tamworth, with all Weyfs found in a certain place called Alle-londe, within this his Mannour: as also Free Warren in his demetn lands here, and in those belonging to the Nunns of Polestworth; all which were allowed. And upon his death, which hapned in 20 E. 1. it was certified^o, that he held this Castle of the King in Capite, by Knight's service, finding three Knights at his own proper costs, for xl. days in the Warrs of Wales; and that Joane the wife of William Mortem, Maud the wife of Raphe le Boteler, Joane the daughter of Raph Cromwell and Mazera his wife; and Joan Marmion, were his next heirs, as the Descent in the following page doth more plainly shew. Which Joan Mortem (being the eldest daughter) had^p this Castle for her share, and died^q seized of it, about three yeares after, leaving no issue, whereupon by Agreement^r betwixt the rest of the coheirs, it was allotted to Joane the wife of Alexander Freville. Which Alexander being brother and heir to Sir Baldwin Freville Knight, of whose inheritance he had^s fair lands in Posfolk and Herefordshire, died^t seized thereof, jointly with his said wife, in 2 E. 3. leaving Baldwin his son and heir xxxvi yeares of age; who after the decease of his mother in 14 E. 3. doing his homage to the King, had full^u possession thereof.

Which last mentioned Baldwin died^v in 17 E. 3. leaving Baldwin his son and heir 26. yeares of age; who the next year following, did his Homage to the King, and had thereupon Liverie^w of all the lands of his inheritance, lying in this Shire as also in the Counties of Hereford, Salop, Staff, Wilt, Wilt, Posf, and Suff. In 26 E. 3. he was a^x Knight, and bore for his Armes^y Or, a Crosse fleurè gules; and for his Crest, upon a Chapeau, the Leggs of a man, booted, spurred, and reverst, as appeareth by his Seale^z: but not long after this he altered it, and bore^a a Plume of Fethers, in fiede of the other. Of this Sir Baldwin, I further find, that he was in great esteem with Edward Prince of Wales (commonly called the Black-Prince) being tor^b his approved fidelitie and service in 28 E. 3. made by him, his Steward of Montaigne in France, for life: and in 46 E. 3. retained^c with the same martiall Prince, by Indenture, to serve the day of his Coronation, and to do the service appertaining to that Office, by reason of the tenure of this Castle; viz. to ride completely armed upon a barb'd Horse into Westminster Hall, and there to challenge the Combate with whomsoever that should dare to oppose the King's title to the Crown; which service, the Marmions, antiently Lords thereof, had heretofore performed: But Sir John Dimock, being then his Competitor, carryed it from him, by Judgment of the Constable and Marshall of England, in regard he was possessor of the Lordship of Scribvelby in Lincolnshire; which by better authorities, than Frevile could produce, appeared to have been held for divers ages, by that service; and that the Marmions had the said office, as owners thereof, and not in right of this Castle; it being descended to Dimock, with Scribvelby, from an heir female of Sir Thomas Ludlow Knight, husband of Joane, the yongest daughter to Sir Philip Marmion before spoken of.

Which Sir Baldwin, in 3 R. 2. was also one of the Commissioners for arraying of men in this Shire; and in 9 R. 2. upon partition made betwixt him and Sir Thomas Boteler Knight, of Mountfort's lands, whereunto they were heirs, had the Mannour of Ashfede in Com. Surre. with Gunthorpe, and Loudham in Com. Nott. assigned to him; as also the reversion of the Mannours of Henley, Ben-desert, and Haselholt, in this Countie, after the decease of William de Beauchamp (Lord Bergavenny) in whose hands they then were. And had two wives, both daughters unto Sir John Botetourt of Woolley Castle in Com. Wigorn. whereof Elizabeth, the first, was married to him in 27 E. 3. but I suppose she was then very young, and died before they lived together; in regard it is plain, that he afterwards married Joyce, her sister, who over-lived him, and took to her second husband, Sir Adam Peshale Knight: which Joyce, at length, became one of the coheirs to Joyce her Neece, daughter and heir to John, son to the before specified Sir John Botetourt (through which means, part of that fair inheritance came to this Familie of Ferrers.) By whom he had issue Baldwin, viz. years of age at his Fathers death, which happened in 11 R. 2. But of this Baldwin, I find nothing memorable, excepting his marriage in 12 R. 2. with Joane the daughter of Sir Thomas Greene Knight, and his death, which happened in 2 H. 4. To whom succeeded Baldwin his son and heir, then but two years of age; who departing this life in his minority, scil. 6 H. 5. leaving three Sisters and heirs, the inheritance came afterwards to be thus divided, in 31 H. 6. viz. to Thomas Ferrers, then Tenant by the curtesie, Elizabeth the eldest of those coheirs being dead, and to Thomas, son and heir of the same Thomas and Eliz. this Castle and Mannour of Tamworth, the Mannours of Lee juxta Perston, Stretford juxta Tamworth, and Haverburgh in this Countie; as also the Mannour of Stitchall juxta Cobentre; the Mannour of Taddington in Com. Heref. with lands and Rents in Waberton, Allesley, and Spereeden in this Countie, as also in Wiginton in Com. Staff.

To Robert Aston Esquire, son of Joice, one other of the said Sisters and coheirs, the Mannours of Ashfede and Pewdigate in Surrey, Becknoze in Com. Wigorn. Patesburie in Com. Wilsf. Witley, within the Liberties of Cobentre, and the moitie of the Mannour of Henley in Arden in this Coun-

tie, with the advowson of the Church of Preston juxta Henley. And to Sir Richard Bingham Knight, then one of the Justices of the King's Bench, and Margaret his wife (formerly the wife of Sir Hugh Willoughby of Mollaton in Com. Nott. Knight) the Mannours of Spoleton and Whitnash, with lands in Willmecote in this Shire: The Mannour of Wickin juxta Cobentre, with certain other lands and Rents lying within the Countie of that Citie: as also the Mannours of Gunthorpe and Loudham in Com. Nott. with Bradford, Ferne, and Malwne in Com. Heref. Which Partition bears date 5. Oct. the year abovesaid.

This Thomas Ferrers was second son to William Lord Ferrers of Goby, and underwent the Office of Sheriff for the Countie of Staff. in 26 H. 6. but departed this life in 27 H. 6. being then the principall male branch of this line of Goby (as the Descent in Perrevalle sheweth) in token whereof, he bore his Armes with a Labell of three points Azure. To which Thomas succeeded, as Lord of this Castle, Thomas his son and heir, then xxxvi. years of age, who was constituted Sheriff of this Countie and Leicester-shire in 39 H. 6. so also in 1 E. 4. Which Thomas, having been a faithfull adherer to the House of Bozke, and taken Prisoner in the battail of Makesfield, where he was put to CCC. marks Fine, obtained a speciall Precept from King Edward 4th to the Barons of the Exchequer (wherein is acknowledged his signall fidelitie to Richard Duke of Bozke, Father to the said King, and slain in that Battail) commanding them to remit unto him CCC. marks of the summe, for which he was then accountable to them, by reason of his Receipts, whilst he underwent that Office: in which Precept it further appeareth, that the said Thomas was then a Knight, being so made (as it seems) by the same King Edw. in the first year of his reign.

Nay, I find, that after this, he became a Knight of the Bath, at the Creation of the Duke of Bozke (14 E. 4.) and from 4 E. 4. till his death, was in Commission for conservation of the Peace in this Shire; as also in 8 E. 4. again Sheriff of this Countie and Leicester-shire: and that by his Testament, bearing date 10. Febr. 12 H. 7. he bequeathed his body to be buried on the North side of the Quire, within the Collegiate Church, here at Tamworth, by Anne his wife; appointing a marble to be laid over them, with their portraictures and Armes in brasse, and such Inscription, as his Executors should devise, departing this life 22. Aug. 14 H. 7.

To whom succeeded Sir John Ferrers Knight, his grandchild and heir. (For Sir John his son, who in 15 E. 4. was in the King's service in Normandie, died in his life time.) Of which Sir John, I find little memorable, other than that he was one of the Knights for the body to King H. 7. and in Commission for the Peace, from 18. of that King's reign, till his death, which happened in 1 H. 8. as appears by the Probate of his Will, whereby he bequeathed his body to sepulture within the Chancell here at Tamworth, before the Image of S. Edith. Of whose descendants I shall say no more, than that some of them have been Knights, and in many publick employments, as by divers Comissions appeareth; John, son and heir to the last Sir Humphrey, being now owner of this Castle; referring my Reader to the Pedegree before inserted, which manifesteth their matches, with sundry good & antient Families.

Upon an Alabaster Tombe-stone, lying in the midst of the Chancel at Tamworth, under which is buried the body of Sir John Ferrers Knight, is this Epitaph.

If thou hast a minde to know,
Whose Corps interred lye below;
Lest thou thinke these words in stone
Are all that's left of him, being gone;
Give care unto the upright tongue
Of whoe'er he liv'd among,
Then free'd from doubt thou wilt consent
He left a choicer Monument. 1633.

Upon another, lying neer thereto.

Here lieth Sir Humfrey Ferrers Knight, who married Anne, one of the daughters of Sir John Packington, of Hampton-Lovet in the Countie of Worcester Knight: By whom he had issue three daughters and one son. His age was thirty and three years, when he departed this life; and he was here interred on the second day of November, in the year of our Lord 1633.

Bole-Hall.

I Now come to the particular Villages before mentioned, which are within this Countie, and in the Parish of Tamworth, though the Church be in Staffordshire, and first of Bole-Hall.

Of this place I have not seen any thing in Record till 13 R. 2. where, with severall other Mannours, Sir John de Clinton of Marstoke Knight entailed it upon the issue of his body, by Elizabeth then his wife: but from severall circumstances I am satisfied, that it was originally a member of Aining-ton, which adjoyns thereto, and whereof the same Sir John was then posselt: From whom descended John Lord Clinton; who about the beginning of H. 7. time, decayed the capitall Messuage here; And from him, Edward Lord Clinton and Say, that sold it in 29 H. 8. unto James Leveson Merchant of the Staple: which James gave it in marriage (inter alia) with Elizabeth his daughter, unto Walter Aston, son and heir to Sir Edward Aston of Tirehall Knight; whose grandson, Sir Walter Aston Knight of the Bath and Baronet, sold it unto William Anson of Lincolns-Inne in Comm. Midd. Esquire. Of whom it was purchased by William Comberford of Tamworth Esquire, and Anne his wife 2. Oct. 13. Jac. and is now possessed by Will. son to the said William and Anne.

Glascote.

The name of this place, I take to be Brittainish, Glascott in that language signifying Sylvia viridis: but of it I have not seen any thing, till about the beginning of King H. 2. time, that Will. the son of Hugh de Hatton, confirmed to the Nunns, of Polestworth, all those lands lying here, which William le Franceis had given them: By which confirmation it appears, that they were of the inheritance of Maud, wife to the said William de Hatton. But the next possessor hereof, was Raph Fitz-Raph, Lord also of Pether-Whitacre, where his seat was: Which Raph in 6 Joh. purchased some lands here, of Hugh de Culi: From whom descended Giles Fitz-Raph, as the Descent in Pether-Whitacre sheweth; whose daughter and heir, called Isabell, brought it to Robert, son of Philip Marmion, in marriage: From which time it pass along with Pether-Whitacre before specified, as the Records there cited do manifest, till after the beginning of Edw. 3. time.

After which, till H. 6. time, I finde no mention of any more than six Messuages, and one yard-land here, belonging to Sir John de Clinton of Marstoke Knight, which are said to be parcell of the Mannour of Witicroft: but upon the Death of Sir William Clinton in 10 H. 6. it appears, that he was seized of the moitie of a Mannour, here: Whether his descendants purchased in the residue, afterwards; or whether there be any other member of a Mannour here, saving a fourth part, which the Lord Ferrers had, together with Pether-Whitacre, as may seem by some authorities, I cannot say: but sure it is, that in 29 H. 8. Edw. Lord Clinton, lineall heir to the before specified Sir Will. sold it, together with Bole-Hall, by the name of a Mannour, or certain Messuages, unto James Leveson Merchant of the Staple: all which, came to Sir Walter Aston Knight, in marriage with Elizabeth, daughter to the said James, and since to William Comberford Esquire, in such sort as Bole-Hall did.

Stretford juxta Tamworth.

This is now a depopulated place, and had its name originally from the situation thereof, upon that great Roman way, called Watling-street, where it thwarts the River towards Faleley: But the first mention, that I have seen of it, is in 37 H. 3. at which time James de la Lande was posselt of it, and had Free-warren granted to him in all his demesne lands thereof. There is no doubt, but that it was, at first, a member of Tamworth and granted by one of the Marmions to the Ancestor of this James, whose surname was Tamworth (as the Descent in Langdon sheweth) In the line of which De la Landes it continued till 19 E. 3. but shortly after, came to the Frevills, Lords of Tamworth-Castle: for I find that Sir Baldwin Frevill the elder Knight, made a Feoffment in trust, thereof (inter alia) unto Sir William de Beauchamp Knight, and others; and that, upon the Partition made betwix the heirs of Frevill in 31 H. 6. (whereof in Tamworth I have spoke) it was allotted to Ferrers, in which Familie, together with Tamworth-Castle, it continueth to this day.

Wilnicote.

In Edward the Confessor's days, this was the Freehold of one Levenot; but after the Conquest, it being given unto the Earl of Mellent, with a multitude of other Lordships in this Shire, by the generall Survey, soon after made, was certified to contain three hides; the Woods extending to one mile in length, and half a mile in breadth: all which, together with the rest, were then rated at xxx s. whereof v s. was accounted for an Iron-work here, at that time. In that Record it is written Wilmundecote, whereby it may seem, that the name originally sprung from some one that posselt it in the Saxons time: Howbeit till 6 Joh. I have not seen any more thereof; but then it appears that Robert de Valle (of which Familie I have spoke in Ludinton) was in suit for six yard land here, whereof Robert, his Father, had been wrongfully disposselt by William de Longcamp, Bishop of Ely, and Chancelour to King Richard the first. But from the Earl of Mellent, part hereof came (as the most of those lands, which he had in this Countie did) unto the old Earls of Warwick, and so to Marmion: for it is manifest, that Will. de Ludinton held part of a Knight's Fee here, of Albreda Marmion, which devolved to William de Camville (then Lord of Sekinton in this Hundred) being held of those Earls.

But of another part, which afterwards had the reputation of a Mannour, were the posteritie of the before specified Robert de Vale seized, as by an Autograph that I have seen, bearing date in 28 E. 1. is evident, and so continued, till that Sir Robert de Vale Knight, in 18 E. 2. sold away the inheritance thereof, in reversion, after his Father's death, unto Roger de Culi son to Sir Hugh de Culi Knight:

 q Claus. 35. Which Roger was certified ^a to hold it of Henry E. 3. m. 17. Duke of Lancaster (unto whom a great part of the Honour of Leicester, heretofore belonging to the said Earl of Melfent came) by the fourth part of a Knight's Fee. When it past from these Cules, I have not seen, but plain it is, that Sir Raph Bracer Efc. 14. H. 6. brige of Kingsbury Knight, died ^a seized thereof 6. n. 3. in 14 H. 6. From whom it descended to Jane and Margerie, daughters of William Bracebrige (as the Descent in Kingsburte sheweth) and heirs to f Ex Michael their brother: which Jane was the ^a wife
 Rot. of Leonell Skipwith of Calthorpe in Com. Linc.
 Cur. and Margerie, of ^a Waldeffe Willington of Hurley
 w penes in this Countie Gent, who in 8. Eliz. kept ^w Court x pref. here, in right of their said wives; and after that
 T. W. Thomas Willington son and heir to the said Margric, in ^a 43 Eliz. to whose posteritie this Man-nour still doth continue.

Beside this Mannour last spoke of, there is yet another, here in Willincote, whereof Sir William Brabazon Knight, now Earl of Castlemeath in Ireland, is owner. This I take to be it, which Roger Brabazon purchased, partly ^a of Adam de Wellesbergh, and Maud his wife, in 25 E. 1. and partly ^a of Simon de Bruilli and Joane his wife, within two years after. But by the name of a Man-nour I have not seen it called in Record ^a till 29
 H. 8.

The Chapell here, being a Prebend ^b belonging to the Collegiate Church of Tamworth, was in 14 E. 3. valued ^c at vi. marks.

Kingswood.

The ancientest mention that I find of this place, is in 11 E. 2. where Hugh de Meinill ^a entails
 one carucate of land, lying therein, together with the Mannour of Kings Beuton, upon the issue male of his body, with severall remainders: Which carucate was afterwards accounted ^a as parcell of that Mannour, having a Messuage situate thereupon, called Warbernes, whereof Maud the wife of John Charnells died ^a seized in 13 R. 2. leaving Joane the wife of Robert de Aston, and Catherine married to William Rodburne, her daughters, by Henry Stanidelf a former husband, her heirs. But the exact succession thereof, I cannot discover:
 howbeit I finde, that it had the reputation ^a of a Mannour, about the later end of H. 6. time, as also in H. 8. time; and since the Cokains of Booley possessed ^a it, though how much sooner I know not: But from that Familie it was past away by Sir Edward Cokain Knight within our memorie.

Stanidelfe.

This lying within the precincts of Willincote, is a Mannour in ^a reputation, and was the seat of Henry the son of Geffrey de Stanidelf in E. 3. time, who bore for his Armes a Fesse varre betwixt six Billets, as by his Seal ^a appeareth. Which Henry left issue two daughters and heirs, Joane the wife of Robert de Aston, and Catherine of Will. Rodburne
 (as in Kingswood appeareth) Which Mannour

came afterwards to the Ferrers of Tamworth.
 Castle, Sir John Ferrers Knight, dying ^a seized ^a thereof in 20 H. 7. but how they parted with it, I know not: for the next notice that I have taken ^a thereof, is a grant ^a made from Q. Eliz. of it, for three lives to Sir Christopher Blount Knight, husband to Leticia Countesse of Leicester.

Aminington.

Of this place, there is no speciall mention in the Conqueror's Survey, wherefore I am of opinion, that it was then involved with Willincote;
 and that by the E. of Melfent, or rather his brother
 the Earl of Warwick, who had so large a share of his lands in this Countie, Hugo fil. Ricardi (Founder of Wrothall-Priorie) was enfeoffed thereof; for that he posselt it is cleer from sundry ^a testimonies: and that it was held by his heirs of the Earls of Warwick for half a Knights Fee, is plain enough. Which Hugh gave two yard land, with all the Royaltie here, on the further part the water, as also some other particular parcells, unto his Kinsman Alexander, the son of Atrop, and his heirs; covenanting with him, that if he should fortune to be impleaded, either in the King's Court, or in the Countie or Hundred Court, or any other Court, except that in the Chapell, here at Amin-ington, he and his heirs, would at their proper costs, defend the said Alexander and his heirs therein: In consideration of which grant, the Rent of two pound of Pepper was reserved to be payd yearly, on the Feast-day of S. Edith.

But, notwithstanding this grant, the inheritance thereof returned to the heirs of the said Hugh,
 For Osbert de Clinton, who wedded ^a Margaret his sister and heir, to Hugh, granchild to the same Hugh, possessed it, and so did his posterity, for many generations, whose Descent in Colshill, and Parstoke are to be seen. Of which, John de Clinton junior, claimed ^a divers Liberties and Priviledges here, by Prescription, in 13 E. 1. viz. Courts Leet, Gallows, Infangthef, and Weyfs, with Assize of Bread and Beer; all which were allowed: whose son and heir, John in 28 E. 1. obtained also a Charter ^a of Free warren in all his demesn lands here:
 but in 1 H. 6. did Sir William Clinton Knight make sale ^a of a large proportion here, though the Man-nour then past not; viz. one Messuage, five hundred acres of Land, C. acres of Meadow, CC. acres of Pasture, and fishing in the River of Onkere, unto William Repington, and his heirs: all which particulars had been then lately in the possession of Adam St. Clere: And in 29 H. 8. did Edward, Lord
 Clinton grant ^a more lands here unto Francis Repington Gentleman lineall heir to the said William:
 But in the first grant, as I suppose, the Capitall Messuage, or Mannour-House, did passe; for it appears that the said Francis died ^a seized thereof in 4 E. 6. whose great grandchild Sir John Repington Knight, now enjoys it: But of this Familie
 I can say no more than what the Descent ^a on the next page inserted expresseth.

Piricroft.

THIS hath antiently past by the name of a Mannour, though now it be scarce so reputed; and was originally a member of Tamworth, as I guess; for it appears " to have been held of that Castle; and being therewith posselt, was by one of the Marmions, about King H. 2. time, given to the Ancestour of Raphe Fitz-Raphe (whose Descent I have put, in Pether-Whitacre.) the succession of which Mannour, it attended (as by the Records I have there cited may appeare) untill that Will. de Clinton E. of Guntendon, in 16 E. 3. * obtained the moitie of it in exchange, for the moitie of the Mannour of Pether-Whitacre, from Richard de Whitacre and Amabill his Wife; by which means it descended to the posteritie of Sir John de Clinton Knight, elder brother to the said Earl, in regard of his death without issue (as in Marstoke is shewed) Sir John de Clinton Knight, dying y seized of it in 20 R. 2. Which moitie, being granted with Bele-Hall, and Glasfote, to James Levison, Merchant of the Staple, in 29 H. 8. and by him past to Sir Walter Aston Knight, in marriage with Eliz. his daughter, as hath been already observed, was in 1 Caroli, or about that time, sold by Sir Walter Aston Knight of the Bath, and Baronet, grandchild to the said Sir Walter.

But the residue, continuing in the hands of the said Richard de Whitacre, descended by an heir female (as the Pedegree in Birmingham manifesteth) unto Edmund Lord Ferrers of Chartley, who in 14 H. 6. died 2 seized thereof; but it bore 3 the name of no more than a fourth part of the Mannour, and is now possessed, scil. anno 1640. by the present Earl of Essex, as lineall heir to the said Lord Ferrers.

FINIS.

Curteous Reader.

THough the Printer hath been guilty of some oversights in pageing this Booke; for from 230 the numbers are skipt to 280; and that in some other places, here and there, a figure is mistaken (which the foregoing and following Pages will help) the inconvenience is not considerable: But from page 733 to page 734 the error is greater, the numbers of ten pages being the same as before, I have therefore, for thy better guidance, in my Index, marked the later numbers with an Asterisme thus *

Touching the most materiall faults besides, which have pass'd in the printing, they are to be corrected as in these following Errata is expressed. Others, viz. a Letter, Word, or Point, mistaken or transposed, the sense will demonstrate how they are to be rectified. And for those defects of lines, which may be found in some few of the Pedegrees, I must referre thee to the Historicall part, which relates to them, for their better amendment.

Faults in the printing thus to be corrected.
